ment shows an undervaluation, even though the appraised value is not sufficient to subject them to an ad valorem duty. U. S. v. Nuckolls (1902), 118 Fed. 1005, 55 C. C. A. 499.

Antimony was entered under the law of 1909, which made it dutiable specifically, and withdrawn under the law of 1913, which makes it dutiable ad valorem. Its appraised exceeded its declared value. The law of 1913 will not be given a retroactive effect, so as to make it subject to the additional duty imposed by this section, upon merchandise dutiable ad valorem when the appraised exceeds the declared value. Sheldon & Co. v. U. S. (1916) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 516.

10. —— Cartons and boxes.—Boxes containing lemons, which are treated in the tariff act as a dutiable entity by themselves, being subjected to a separate classification from the lemons they contain, are within the provision for the undervaluation of "any article of imported merchandise," and, when undervalued, are subject to the penalties provided by said section. Phelps Bros. & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1892) 142 Fed. 213.

11. Additional duties—In general.—The duty should be assessed only on the quantity of the goods arriving in port, and not on the quantity appearing by the invoice to have been shipped. The paragraph forbidding the assessment of duties on an amount less than the invoice value refers only to the price, and not to the quantity. Marriott v. Brune (1850) 9 How. 619, 631, 635, 13 L. Ed. 282; Weaver & Sterry v. Saltonstall (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 493, 494.

Importers who have failed to accompany the entry of their importation with a true and correct invoice stating the cost or market value thereof must be required to pay the additional duty, where the duty to be levied is to be regulated by the value of such goods. Hoeninghaus v. U. S. (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 305, 172 U. S. 622, 43 L. Ed. 576.

A customhouse broker, who makes the sworn declaration for entry of goods, in which he declares himself the consignee, becomes liable for additional duties imposed for undervaluation. U. S. v. Vandiver (D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 252.

Where the consular invoice showed a net per se value of 8,310.60 francs, nondutiable charges of 113.25 francs, and dutiable charges of 972 francs, and entrant attaching his declaration to the consular invoice, erroneously deducted the nondutiable charges from the net per se value stated in the invoice, making no mention of the dutiable charges, "additional duty," under this section, should be levied proportionate to an undervaluation of 113.25 francs, and not 113.25 plus 972 francs. U. S. v. Bates (1916) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 540.

The legislation on the subject reviewed. (1882) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 268.

12. —— Under prior statutes.—See Belcher v. Lawrason (1858) 62 U. S. (21 How.) 251, 16 L. Ed. 123.

13. —— Quantity not correctly stated.—The penalty of 20 per cent. (Act July 30, 1846, § 8) cannot be exacted for a 10 per cent. undervaluation in coal arising solely from an excess of quantity. Manhattan Gaslight Co. v. Maxwell (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 9,023.

Where a valuation of molasses in casks in an invoice is correct, but the quantity stated in the invoice is less than the actual quantity, found on gauging, the case is not one for the imposition of a penalty for undervaluation. Yznaga v. Redfield (C. C. 1860) Fed. Cas. No. 18,197.

Where an invoice of molasses in casks does not specify the number of gallons, the case is one of undervaluation, and the penalty may properly be imposed. Id.

14. —— As penalty.—As to penalty imposed by former law in case excess of appraisement over entry value, see Ring v. Maxwell (1854) 17 How. 147, 15 L. Ed. 25; U. S. v. Collier (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 14,833; Morris v. Robertson (C. C. 1888) 37 Fed. 199, 200; (1882) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 268.

The "further sum," equal to 2 per cent. of the appraised value of imported merchandise for each 1 per cent. that such appraised value exceeds the value declared in the entry, which, under Customs Administrative Act, may be collected from an importer for undervaluation "in addition to the duties imposed by law," is a penalty, and exclusive jurisdiction of a suit to recover such sum is therefore, by section 991, ante, vested in the District Courts of the United States. Helwig v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 427, 432, 188 U. S. 605, 47 L. Ed. 614.

The additional duties provided for by this section are penalties within the meaning of sections 10130–10134, post. (1893) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 660.

15. —— Different articles in one invoice.—Although the articles composing an invoice are dissimilar and known by different trade-names, still, if they belong to the same class, and are grouped together in the tariff acts as dutiable under their class name at the same rate, and are valued in the entry only at a lump sum for the entire importation, the penalty imposed by Rev. St. § 2900, requiring an additional duty of 20 per cent. if, on appraisal, the value of imported goods shall exceed by 10 per cent. or more the value declared in the entry, is not incurred unless the appraisement of the importation as a whole exceeds by 10 per cent. or more the value declared in the entry. Morris v. Robertson (C. C. 1888) 37 Fed.

listinguishing Schmeider v. Barney C. 1880) 6 Fed. 150.

Different invoices for one impor-n.—Where an importation was al- to be an unit, but divided into invoices for the sake of conven- and entered of different values, invoice must stand upon its own ng; and the whole cannot be aver- so as to avoid the additional duty n is levied upon one invoice taken self. Sampson v. Peaslee (1857) How. 571, 579, 15 L. Ed. 1022.

—— Assessment.—Collector of the port cannot make an addition to invoice value upon mere hearsay mation, derived from the collector e second port. Spring v. Russell C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 13,261.

here a board of three general ap-sers, on reappraisement appraised value of imported merchandise more 10 per cent. above the value de-d in the importer's entry, and the tional duties provided for in section t 1890, thereupon accrued and were ted by the collector, no appeal from eview of the decision of the collec-n assessing such additional duties rovided for under said act. In re avant (C. C. 1892) 50 Fed. 788.

addition made to the invoice value, ise the same to the actual market e, though marked upon the invoice f, becomes a part of the entered e, and the collector cannot ignore addition, and then assess a penal which would not otherwise have ued. U. S. v. Merck & Co. (C. C.) 91 Fed. 641.

finding the invoice value of im-ed merchandise, a collector of cus- has no right, after the appraiser appraised the merchandise and ted an item of commissions as non-able to include such item in the in-e value, and assess duty thereon, a mere inspection of the invoice, out inquiry or evidence to justify action. U. S. v. Lahey & Duncan C. 1904) 132 Fed. 181.

e action of government officers at rt of entry in raising the apprais-alue of dutiable goods and imposing nalty authorized by statute for un-aluation will be presumed to be ect, just, and without prejudice to owner, unless the contrary is shown; e the presumption is that such offi-do their duty. Guesnard v. Louis-& N. R. Co. (1884) 76 Ala. 453.

nder earlier statutes, see Passavant . S. (1893) 13 Sup. Ct. 572, 575, U. S. 214, 37 L. Ed. 426 (affirming ment In re Passavant [C. C. 1892] ed. 788); Belmont v. Lawrence (C. 853) Fed. Cas. No. 1,280; Schmeid-. Barney (C. C. 1880) 6 Fed. 150; S. v. Thomas Leeming & Co. (C. 907) 153 Fed. 489.

. Defenses—In general.—Where the e in specie and in foreign paper ency are both set out in the invoice, the fact that the importer makes the entry in the specie value alone will not subject the goods to a penalty for undervaluation. Fiedler v. Maxwell (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 4,760.

A penalty for undervaluation cannot be imposed on the importation of goods by their producer, where a corrected invoice is handed in before any action is taken to determine the value of the goods. Howland v. Maxwell (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 6,799.

The penalty for undervaluation attaches whether the importer makes the addition to his invoice or not. Goddard v. Maxwell (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 5,492; Morris v. Same (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 9,834; Vaccari v. Same (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 16,810; Lehmaier v. Same (C. C. 1856) Fed. Cas. No. 8,214; Schmaire v. Same (C. C. 1856) Fed. Cas. No. 12,460.

One who is assessed with a penalty for entering dutiable goods at a sum below their actual value cannot, in an action for the penalty, defend on the ground that he intentionally omitted certain items from the entry in order to pay them separately under protest. He must either give notice, and ask for a reappraisement, or take an appeal, as provided by law. U. S. v. Strauss (D. C. 1893) 55 Fed. 388.

19. —— Fraudulent intent in undervaluing.—The additional duties are payable, except in case of clerical error, irrespective of any question of fraudulent undervaluation on the part of the importer. U. S. v. 1,621 Pounds of Fur Clippings (1900) 106 Fed. 161, 45 C. C. A. 263.

Goods are not fraudulently entered if the entry is made according to the actual cost, no matter how fraudulent the invoice may be. Goodwin v. U. S. (C. C. 1811) Fed. Cas. No. 5,554.

20. Manifest clerical error.—Where an entry made by an agent of the owner included only a part of the goods and the owner subsequently made a further entry of the residue, and the goods agreed with the two entries taken together, but differed materially from the first entry, the collector could make a seizure of the goods after the second entry for a variance between the goods and the first entry and the seizure must be followed by confiscation, unless it appears that the difference resulted from accident and mistake. U. S. v. Six Packages of Goods (1821) 6 Wheat. 520, 521, 5 L. Ed. 321.

An importer, in giving the invoice value of his merchandise stated it in dollars, instead of rupees, having mistaken the rupee abbreviation for the dollar mark. Held, this constituted a clerical mistake. U. S. v. Muller, MacLean & Co. (1907) 158 Fed. 405, 85 C. C. A. 515.

An import was more expensive than that called for by the invoice, owing to an alleged error of the shipper in failing to conform to an order for a cheaper kind. Held, that this was not a clerical error for which relief should be given, and that, owing to the facility with which such apparent errors might be fraudulently arranged by collusion between importer and shipper, it would be establishing a dangerous precedent to excuse an error of this kind. Magnus & Lauer v. U. S. (1900) 166 Fed. 1020, 91 C. C. A. 145, affirming judgment (C. C. 1908) 160 Fed. 281.

Where there was, through mistake, an error in an invoice and entry, and a correct invoice was obtained, a penalty for undervaluation should not be imposed. Carnes v. Maxwell (C. C. 1856) Fed. Cas. No. 2,417.

Although the statement, in an invoice, of the value of merchandise at a certain sum per ton, "on trucks," shows that something not dutiable may be included in the price, it does not show any value less than that stated, since it does not show how much is to be taken out for nondutiable items; and such statement of the price is not such a manifest clerical error as entitles the importer to a correction on a new invoice. Roebling v. U. S. (C. C. 1896) 77 Fed. 601.

On entering certain merchandise the importers presented an entry and invoice together, the former of which stated only the value of the merchandise, omitting a dutiable item of packing boxes, but the latter plainly stated both items. The merchandise was appraised at the higher value, as stated in the invoice. Held that, in the absence of circumstances indicating an intention to evade the law, this was a case "arising from a manifest clerical error," which exempted the merchandise from the additional duty accruing where the appraised value exceeds the entered value, "except in cases arising from a manifest clerical error." S. M. Lawder & Sons v. Stone (C. C. 1901) 125 Fed. 809.

Certain importers inadvertently entered a shipment of goods on the basis of an invoice which, through clerical error, failed to specify certain charges as nondutiable. Their inclusion in the entered value indicated a price for the goods which rendered them subject to a higher duty than that which would have been applicable had they been entered at their true value. The error was not brought to the importers' attention until, after liquidation, demand was made for the increased duties that had been assessed on account of the error, whereupon they sought permission to correct the error. Held, that this should have been allowed. Wilmerding v. U. S. (C. C. 1904) 139 Fed. 1004.

The expression "clerical error" implies negligence or carelessness of a clerk, writer, or copyist, and assumes that the mistake, or negligence, or carelessness, is that of one engaged in the subordinate service of transcription, copying, or comparison; labor not requiring original thought; and where a standard article was incorrectly invoiced at an excessive price, this was a clerical error of a kind of which correction is not harmful to the administration of customs laws, and relief from which should be granted. Morimura Bros. v. U. S. (C. C. 1908) 160 Fed. 280.

Allowance should have been made in the dutiable value of an importation on the ground of clerical error, where it appeared that the shippers had failed to note on the invoice that the value included certain nondutiable charges. R. U. Delapenha & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 311.

To constitute manifest clerical error, this must be apparent to the appraising officers or collector at the time of liquidation and upon the record itself. Hampton, Jr., & Co. v. U. S. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 51 (distinguishing U. S. v. Zuricaldy [C. C. 1896] 71 Fed. 955); Thomsen & Co. v. U. S. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 69 (citing U. S. v. Swedish Produce Co. [1913] 4 Ct. Cust. App. 223; Same v. Wyman & Co. [1913] Id. 264; Same v. Proctor Co. [1914] 5 Ct. Cust. App. 44); U. S. v. Nozaki Bros. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 286; U. S. v. Rice (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 288.

An American concern with a London branch closed that branch and directed that such supplies as had been forwarded from this country and not consumed should be returned to the United States. Some goods of English manufacture were included in the consignment made up to be returned, but these last were not declared at the home port of entry, apparently through ignorance or mistake, for there is no imputation of fraud. The English goods were fairly to be treated as excess goods and not subject to an additional duty over and above that to which they would have been subject if regularly imported. Downing & Co. v. U. S. (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 278, citing U. S. v. Thomas Leeming & Co. (C. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 489.

Where the facts establishing the undervaluation of merchandise are known to importers at the time the entry is made, the undervaluation does not present a case of manifest clerical error. U. S. v. Swedish Produce Co. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 223.

The commission charged abroad, disputed here as dutiable, was entered on the invoice in the words and figures intended by the writer; they received from the collector the interpretation they were intended to take when the invoice was made out. This is not a case of manifest clerical error. U. S. v. Wyman & Co. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 264, citing Same v. Bennett & Loewenthal (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 249.

Importers claim they overstated the e of the merchandise in a pro forinvoice, being misled by an error e transmission of a cable message their London office. The ap-er appraised the merchandise at value stated in the pro forma in-

, and the collector liquidated
eon. Held, that this is not man-error in the appraisement or as-ment, and cannot be reviewed up-rotest to the board of classifica-
U. S. v. National Steam Naviga-
Co. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 491.
tomobile tires were sold and im-ed to replace defective tires. The ers made the entry, following the ce, without adding anything to the ce price to make market value. was not a clerical error. This on plainly requires, if it is desired dd to the invoice value to make et value, that this should be done e time of making entry and not wards. U. S. v. Proctor Co.
4) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 44, citing e v. Swedish Produce Co. (1913)
. Cust. App. 223; Same v. Wy-Id. 264.

idence of admitted clerical error before the importers at the time made entry. Subsequently the in valuation was disclosed to the aiser. These facts do not constia case of manifest clerical error.
. v. Bayersdorfer & Co. (1914)
. Cust. App. 99, citing U. S. v. lish Produce Co., 4 Ct. Cust. App.
U. S. v. Wyman, Id. 264; U.
Proctor, 5 Ct. Cust. App. 44.

e collector had before him the ce, the entry, and the weigher's ficate, and it was apparent there-that the statement of the gross ht of the wire in the invoice and was incorrect and that the true ht less tare, which is the dutiable ht, was before him in the manner ired by law. A case of manifest cal error was thus presented and ortage in weight of the shipment nvoiced appeared. U. S. v. Bush
o. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 127, g Marriott v. Brune (1850) 50 U.
33, 13 L. Ed. 282; U. S. v. Nash
C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 15,856.

e entry here asserts the item ed as exempt was dutiable. On invoice the item is called a buying nission. This does not disclose fest clerical error. When the aiser examined the statement of nspector that the item was a non-ble buying commission, in connec-with the fact that the charges made by the seller of the goods found the gross sum the dutiable e of the goods, the inquiry was luded. U. S. v. Brodie (1915) 6
Cust. App. 186.

here the consular invoice for goods rted from Hongkong stated the value in three currencies—cory in pounds sterling but incorrectgold dollars and Tientsin taels—not one of the three agreeing by the proper rate of exchange with either of the others, and the entrants adopted the statement in Tientsin taels and declared its equivalent in gold dollars, they cannot escape the payment of additional duty by claiming a manifest clerical error. U. S. v. Gordon & Ferguson (1915) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 410.

Where the consular invoice for cloth showed the number of units of length, the price per unit, and the value as the product of the two, without stating whether the unit was yards or meters or the price for a yard or a meter, and the importers, having declared accordingly, claim afterwards that the consular invoice stated the measurement in yards and the price for a meter, if there was error, it was not manifest clerical error. De Liagre & Co. v. U. S. (1915) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 470.

The Secretary of the Treasury has power, after an entry has been made upon an invoice, believed by the importer to contain a true statement of the actual market value of the goods, to permit the importer, before payment of duties, to substitute another invoice, giving less value, in case it appears affirmatively that the second invoice truly stated the actual market value, and that such true and actual value was not inserted in the original invoice by reason of mistake. (1866) 11 Op. Atty. Gen. 532.

21. Not to be refunded on exportation, etc.—An importer, who has been compelled, on account of the undervaluation of his goods, to pay additional duty, is not entitled, on their re-exportation, to have this duty refunded. Bartlett v. Kane (1853) 57 U. S. (16 How.) 263, 14 L. Ed. 931.

On the warehousing and re-exporting of imported goods the importer is not entitled to recover back amount of the penalty paid because of an undervaluation. Bartlett v. Kane (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 1,077.

The additional duty imposed by section 7, Customs Administrative Act June 10, 1890, is not subject to drawback upon the exportation of the article, but must be regarded in the light of a penal duty. (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 247.

22. Remission by secretary of treasury.—There is no statute granting to the Secretary of the Treasury the power to adopt article 1450, Customs Regulations 1899, permitting entry of imports by appraisement without invoice, where the invoice value greatly exceeds the general market value at the time of exportation. Ullmann v. U. S. (C. C. 1910) 177 Fed. 567.

The Secretary of the Treasury may remit "additional duties" or penalties, but he has no power to remit any part of the duties, strictly so called, however erroneously they may have been assessed. (1893) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 660.

The secretary of the treasury is not authorized to remit penalties incurred under section 7 of Customs Administrative Act amounting to more than $1,000 until after the proper proceeding before a district judge. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 101.

The Secretary of the Treasury has no power to permit collectors of customs to receive special deposits of penal duties, to be returned by them to the importers in case the duties should be remitted. All duties paid to the collector must be placed to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States. (1896) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 345.

Where payment of the penal duties imposed under section 7 is required as a condition precedent to the delivery of the goods the power of the secretary of the treasury to remit such penalties is unavailing in many cases, but not in the case of warehoused goods nor where the penalties are first assessed on final liquidation after the delivery of the goods to the importer. (1896) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 418.

The Treasury Department has no authority, when goods are entered or withdrawn for consumption, to suspend the collection of penal duties accruing thereon pending an application for remission, "the goods in the meanwhile having been delivered from the custody of the government." Id.

The power of the Secretary of the Treasury to release and remit fines, penalties and forfeitures relates only to civil liability and consequences where the value of the property seized or the amount of the fine or forfeiture incurred does not exceed $1,000, but does not include penalties "accrued" or "incurred," which have been "adjudged" as part of the punishment of an indictment. (1903) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 583.

23. Entered value—In general.—The entry in the invoices, that the importer is entitled to a deduction for prompt payment of the price, cannot affect the amount of duty chargeable. Ballard v. Thomas (1856) 19 How. 382, 383, 15 L. Ed. 690.

Invoice and entered value, as value upon which duty is to be assessed. Kimball v. Goodrich (1870) 10 Wall. 436, 437, 19 L. Ed. 964.

As duty cannot, as to the goods, "be assessed upon an amount less than the invoice or entered value," whatever is put down in the invoice and entry as the value of the goods per se cannot be diminished, although in fact there may have been included in such value the cost of cartons and packing, unless the invoice or entry shows distinctly what such cost was, and that it was included. Oberteuffer v. Robertson (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 462, 465, 471, 116 U. S. 499, 29 L. Ed. 706.

It is obligatory on the importer to furnish the appraisers and collector with a true valuation of imported merchandise. Hoeninghaus v. U. S. (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 305, 172 U. S. 622, 43 L. Ed. 576.

There can be no issue between the invoice value of merchandise and any value below. Roebling v. U. S. (C. C. 1896) 77 Fed. 601.

As to an importation of framed paintings which were invoiced as "paintings," it would not be in violation of the provision forbidding the assessment of duty "on less than the invoice * * * value," to treat the invoice value for this item as including the frames, where it appeared that such value was sufficient, and that it was customary so to describe paintings with frames. U. S. v. Hensel, Bruckmann & Lorbacher (C. C. 1896) 158 Fed. 645.

Internal transportation charges for getting the goods from the place of manufacture to the place of shipment, even if not dutiable elements of market value, become a part of the entered value when they are included in the entry as a part of the market value because that was thought to be the best way, without indicating that such inclusion was objected to. In such case the charges form an indisputable part of the entered value, which the collector cannot reduce. Vantine v. U. S. (C. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 519.

An importer added to the invoice value an amount considered necessary to equal actual market value. On reappraisement this addition was decided unnecessary and the invoice value was held correct. Held, that the provision therein that "duty shall not, however, be assessed in any case upon an amount less than the * * * entered value," indicates an intent to bind the importer to the market value fixed by him, regardless of that found by appraisers or of the general rule of conclusiveness of such finding, and so duty could not be assessed on a less amount than that on which entry was made. Daloz v. U. S. (C. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 275.

Where imported merchandise offered for entry has depreciated from its invoice value, the rate of duty is to be determined by considering not alone section 5599, post; but effect must be given to this section, and the duty should not be assessed in any case upon an amount less than the invoice or entered value. Ullman v. U. S. (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 61.

A regulation issued by the Treasury Department permitting entry by appraisement without invoice is not valid in so far as the regulation might be construed to abrogate the provision requiring that in no case shall an assessment be fixed on an amount less than the invoice or entered value. Id.

24. —— Pro forma invoice.—The provision that duty shall not be ason less than the invoice value, not require that the collector take as the dutiable value an ive sum erroneously given in a rma invoice, when he has before consular invoice giving the cor- alue. He conforms to the stat- he assesses on the basis of the in the latter invoice. U. S. v. , Maclean & Co. (1907) 158 05, 85 C. C. A. 515.

provision that duty shall not be ed on "less than the invoice or d value," does not prevent as- nt on less than the value stated ro forma invoice on which entry le under section 5522, ante; and a certified invoice is produced ordance with the latter section, e value stated therein is approv- the appraiser, duty may prop- e assessed on that value, even less than that given in the pro invoice. U. S. v. Commercial Co. (C. C. 1905) 141 Fed. 473.

o forma invoice is for entry pur- a recognized lawful invoice made oath as a substitute for a reg- certified invoice; a penalty for aluation in such an invoice may icted and an entry on a pro for- voice is an entry to which is ap- e the provision forbidding the ment of duty upon an amount an the entered value. U. S. v. tt & Loewenthal, 2 Ct. Cust. 249.

er earlier statute, see (1885) 18 tty. Gen. 259.

Suit to recover additional duties. fact that a collector fails to levy dditional duty upon imported to which they are subject under atute by reason of undervalua- does not affect the right of the States to recover the same by U. S. v. Nuckolls (1902) 118 005, 55 C. C. A. 499.

action to recover additional du- ccruing upon an undervaluation e maintained against a consignee, t proof of any fraudulent intent consignor, or the consignee, or ent. U. S. v. Bishop (1903) 125 81, 60 C. C. A. 123.

— Prior proceedings for for- as bar.—See Gray v. U. S. 113 Fed. 213, 51 C. C. A. 170 ing judgment U. S. v. Gray [D. 1] 107 Fed. 104, and writ of cer- denied Gray v. U. S. [1902] 22 t. 939, 184 U. S. 700, 46 L. Ed. Baldwin v. Same [1902] 113 17, 51 C. C. A. 174 (affirming ent U. S. v. Baldwin [D. C. 107 Fed. 104, and writ of cer- denied Baldwin v. U. S. [1902] . Ct. 939, 184 U. S. 700, 46 L. 5).

er prior statutes, see U. S. v. (D. C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. ; U. S. v. Segars (D. C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 16,249; Falleck v. Barney (C. C. 1862) Fed. Cas. No. 4,625.

27. Forfeitures—In general.—The provision for forfeiture is not applicable unless there has been a legal appraisement. The Lace House v. U. S. (1905) 141 Fed. 869, 73 C. C. A. 103.

Goods are forfeitable for an undervaluation in the invoice, though not discovered until after they have passed inspection. U. S. v. Eighty-Two Packages of Glass (D. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 15,038.

28. — Effect of forfeiture or seizure.—The fact that goods have been seized for undervaluation does not deprive the consignee or owner of the right of reappraisement given in section 5594, post. The Lace House v. U. S. (1905) 141 Fed. 869, 73 C. C. A. 103.

The forfeiture and sale by the United States of imported goods for undervaluation does not relieve the importer from liability for the duty thereon, so as to entitle him to a return of the duty paid. The obligation to pay the duty is incurred by the act of importation, and the importer is not relieved from such obligation by the violation of a different provision of the customs law, although he thereby incurs as a penalty a forfeiture of the entire importation. U. S. v. One Case Paintings, Engravings, and Manufactures of Metal (1900) 99 Fed. 426, 39 C. C. A. 586.

29. — Intent.—The fraudulent intent of the owner or agent in entering imported merchandise is an indispensable condition of the right to forfeit the goods for undervaluation. U. S. v. Bishop (1903) 125 Fed. 181, 60 C. C. A. 123.

To subject goods to forfeiture for fraudulent undervaluation, it must be shown that the goods were invoiced below their value, with an intent to defraud the United States. U. S. v. Seventy-Eight Cases of Books (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 16,258a; Same v. Three Hundred Bales of Wool (D. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 16,508; Same v. One Hundred Fifty Bales Unwashed Wool (D. C. 1861) Fed. Cas. No. 15,932b.

Any intentional undervaluation is cause of forfeiture. In re Six Cases of Silk Ribbons (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 12,914; Same v. One Case of Cashmere Shawls (D. C. 1847) Fed. Cas. No. 15,923; U. S. v. Fifty-Three Boxes of Havana Sugar (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 15,098.

30. — Parties.—A patent owner, who is suing an importer for infringement by the importation of infringing goods, which have been detained by the customs officials, and libeled for forfeiture because of fraudulent undervaluation, may, for the protection of his interests, be permitted to intervene in the forfeiture proceedings, on giving proper security. U. S. v. One Case

Chemical Compound (D. C. 1897) 81 Fed. 373.

31. —— Evidence.—On an information for forfeiture for undervaluation, the importer may show the selling price at the place of importation and the market price at the place of manufacture. In re One Hundred and Twenty-Three Packages of Glass (C. C. 1841) Fed. Cas. No. 10,525.

On an information for forfeiture for undervaluation the United States are not bound by the action of the revenue officers in assenting to the invoice valuation, but they must show undervaluation at the trial. U. S. v. Twenty-Five Cases of Cloths (D. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 16,563.

32. —— Defenses.—The fact that duties have been paid or secured, and the goods turned over to the importer, will not prevent a forfeiture for a fraudulent undervaluation in the invoice. The Cloth Cases (D. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 2,902.

33. —— Remission or compromise.—When certain merchandise was seized and libeled under this section, and the United States attorney recommended the acceptance of an offer of claimants to compromise under section 6375, post, finding no fraud or irregularity on their part, held not to be a proper case for compromise. (1897) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 491.

The Secretary of the Treasury is without authority to remit or mitigate a seizure made pursuant to the provisions of this section on shipments of imported frozen eggs, where the appraised value of the eggs exceeded their entered value more than 75 per cent. (1911) 29 Op. Atty. Gen. 261.

A forfeiture cannot be remitted after it has been adjudged and decreed. (1899) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 491.

34. —— Review.—Delay by an importer in commencing proceedings of review to reclaim the proceeds of an imported article seized and sold by the government for undervaluation under a mistake of fact held not to constitute such laches as to bar relief. U. S. v. One Case Chemical Compound (D. C. 1913) 203 Fed. 63.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Legg (1901) 105 Fed. 930, 933, 45 C. C. A. 134; Same v. Sommers (1909) 171 Fed. 57, 96 C. C. A. 299; Meyers v. Shurtleff (C. C. 1885) 23 Fed. 577, 579; Yanada v. Spalding (C. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 21; Reiss v. Magone (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 105, 107; Same v. Phillips (D. C. 1891) 46 Fed. 466, 467.

§ 5528. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, J.) Declaration on entry of consignments for sale.

J. When merchandise entered for customs duty has been consigned for sale by or on account of the manufacturer thereof, to a person, agent, partner, or consignee in the United States, such person, agent, partner, or consignee shall, at the time of the entry of such merchandise, present to the collector of customs at the port where such entry is made, as a part of such entry, and in addition to the certified invoice or statement in the form of an invoice required by law, a statement signed by such manufacturer, declaring the cost of production of such merchandise, such cost to include all the elements of cost as stated in paragraph L of this Act. When merchandise entered for customs duty has been consigned for sale by or on account of a person other than the manufacturer of such merchandise, to a person, agent, partner, or consignee in the United States, such person, agent, partner, or consignee shall at the time of the entry of such merchandise present to the collector of customs at the port where such entry is made, as a part of such entry, a statement signed by the consignor thereof, declaring that the merchandise was actually purchased by him or for his account, and showing the time when, the place where, and from whom he purchased the merchandise, and in detail the price he paid for the same: Provided, That the statements required by this section shall be made in triplicate, and shall bear the attestation of the consular officer of the United States resident within the consular district wherein the merchandise was manufactured, if consigned by the manufacturer or for his account, or from whence it was imported when consigned by a person other than the manufacturer, one copy thereof to be delivered to the person making the statement, one copy to be transmitted with the triplicate invoice of the merchandise to the collector of the port in the United States to which nerchandise is consigned, and the remaining copy to be filed in the ulate. (38 Stat. 185.)

See notes to subdivision B of this section, ante, § 5519.

These provisions, as originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act f June 10, 1890, c. 407, were re-enacted in the same language as provisions of he Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 96, which vere re-enacted without change by this act.

Notes of Decisions

tement of cost of production.— statement by the manufacturer erchandise consigned by him or on account for sale in the United s, declaring the cost of the pro- on of such merchandise, required presented to the collector at the of the entry of the merchandise, d be signed by the manufacturer elf. The signing of such state- by an agent is insufficient. 0) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 655.

The manufacturer is not required to appear in person before the proper consular officer and sign in his presence the statement, in order that it may receive the attestation of such officer. Should the consular officer certify that it has been satisfactorily shown to him that the statement is, as it purports to be, the act of the manufacturer, this would be an attestation of the statement and meet the requirement of the statute. Id.

529. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, W.) Invoices of goods from different consular districts.

. Where merchandise purchased or manufactured in different ular districts in the same country is assembled for shipment and raced in a single invoice and consulated at the shipping point, such ice shall have attached thereto the original bills or invoices or ements in the nature of such, showing the prices actually paid, racted to be paid, fixed, or determined, and in connection with such purchase or consignment the invoice shall state all charges expenses as provided in paragraph R of this section. (38 Stat.)

See notes to subdivision B of this section, ante, § 5519.

The requisites of invoices and the indorsements thereon were prescribed by ubdivisions C. D. of this section, ante, §§ 5520, 5521.

"Paragraph R of this section" mentioned in this provision, is set forth post, 5599.

530. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, Z.) Collectors and other officers not liable for rulings or decisions.

From and after the taking effect of this Act, no collector or r officer of the customs shall be in any way liable to any owner, orter, consignee, or agent of any merchandise, or any other per- for or on account of any rulings or decisions as to the classifica- of said merchandise or the duties charged thereon, or the collec- of any dues, charges, or duties on or on account of said merchan- , or any other matter or thing as to which said owner, importer, ignee, or agent of such merchandise might, under this Act, be led to appeal from the decision of said collector or other officer, rom any board of appraisers. (38 Stat. 191.)

See notes to subdivision B of this section, ante, § 5519.

This provision, as originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act of une 10, 1890, c. 407, § 25, 26 Stat. 141, was re-enacted in the same language s a provision of the Payne-Aldrich Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 03, which was re-enacted without change by this act.

Appeals from decisions of collectors or other officers were provided for by ubdivisions M, N, of this section, post, §§ 5594, 5595.

Notes of Decisions

iability of customs officers in general.
ctions to recover excess duties—Aboli- tion of right to sue collector.
— Necessity and sufficiency of pro- test.
— Limitations.
— Premature proceedings.
6. — Pleading in general.
7. — Bill of particulars.
8. — Evidence.
9. — Trial.
10. — Reference.
11. — Verdict and findings by court.
12. — Interest recoverable.

Rubens v. Robertson (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 86; Cantzler v. Gordon (1834) 6 La. 258.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. American Express Co. (C. C. 1910) 177 Fed. 735.

§ 5531. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, AA.) Bribery of revenue officers or employees; evidence.

AA. Any person who shall give, or offer to give, or promise to give, any money or thing of value, directly or indirectly, to any officer or employee of the United States in consideration of or for any act or omission contrary to law in connection with or pertaining to the importation, appraisement, entry, examination, or inspection of goods, wares, or merchandise, including herein any baggage or of the liquidation of the entry thereof, or shall by threats or demands or promises of any character attempt to improperly influence or control any such officer or employee of the United States as to the performance of his official duties shall, on conviction thereof, be fined not exceeding $2,000, or be imprisoned at hard labor not more than one year, or both, in the discretion of the court; and evidence of such giving, or offering, or promising to give, satisfactory to the court in which such trial is had, shall be regarded as prima facie evidence that such giving or offering or promising was contrary to law, and shall put upon the accused the burden of proving that such act was innocent and not done with an unlawful intention. (38 Stat. 191.)

See notes to subdivision B of this section, ante, § 5519.

This provision, as originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 26, 26 Stat. 141, was re-enacted in the same language as a provision of the Payne-Aldrich Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 103, which was re-enacted without change by this act.

§ 5532. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, BB.) Revenue officer or employee accepting bribe; evidence.

BB. Any officer or employee of the United States who shall, excepting for lawful duties or fees, solicit, demand, exact, or receive from any person, directly or indirectly, any money or thing of value in connection with or pertaining to the importation, appraisement, entry, examination, or inspection of goods, wares, or merchandise, including herein any baggage or liquidation of the entry thereof, on conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding $5,000, or be imprisoned at hard labor not more than two years, or both, in the discretion of the court; and evidence of such soliciting, demanding, exacting, or receiving, satisfactory to the court in which such trial is had, shall be regarded as prima facie evidence that such soliciting, demanding, exacting, or receiving was contrary to law, and shall put upon the accused the burden of proving that such act was innocent and not with an unlawful intention. (38 Stat. 192.)

See notes to subdivision B of this section, ante, § 5519.

This provision, as originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 27, 26 Stat. 141, was re-enacted in the same language as a provision of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 103, which was re-enacted without change by this act.

§ 5533. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, CC.) Baggage in transit to foreign country.

CC. Any baggage or personal effects arriving in the United States in transit to any foreign country may be delivered by the parties having it in charge to the collector of the proper district, to be by him retained, without the payment or exaction of any import duty, or to be forwarded by such collector to the collector of the port of departure and to be delivered to such parties on their departure for their foreign destination, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. (38 Stat. 192.)

See notes to subdivision B of this section, ante, § 5519.

This provision, as originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 28, 26 Stat. 141, was re-enacted in the same language a provision of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 at. 104, which was re-enacted without change by this act.

The provision superseded R. S. § 2803, re-enacting the provisions of that tion, with the addition of the words "or to be forwarded by such collector to collector of the port of departure."

4. (Act March 8, 1902, c. 140, § 8.) Laws applicable to Philippine Islands.

e provisions of the Act entitled "An Act to simplify the in relation to the collection of revenues," approved June tenth, een hundred and ninety, as amended by an Act entitled "An Act ovide for the Government and to encourage the industries of Jnited States," approved July twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred inety-seven, shall apply to all articles coming into the United s from the Philippine Archipelago. (32 Stat. 55.)

This section was part of an act temporarily to provide revenue for the ilippine Islands, and for other purposes, cited above.

Provisions for free admission of certain articles from the Philippine Islands re made by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1909, c. 16, § IV, C, ante, § 94.

5. (R. S. § 2840.) Collector to take possession when invoice s not correct.

every case in which a collector shall suspect that any merlise is not invoiced at a sum equal to that for which it has ly been sold in the place or country from whence it was imd, he shall take the merchandise into his possession, and retain ame with reasonable care, at the risk and expense of the owner nsignee, until its value at the time and place of importation een ascertained, as in the case of damaged merchandise, or of handise not accompanied with an invoice, and until the duties g, according to such valuation, have been paid, or secured to id. But in case of a prosecution for forfeiture, such appraise- shall not exclude other proof, upon the trial, of the actual of the merchandise at the place of exportation.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 66, 1 Stat. 677.

The custody of goods in case of imperfect entry was provided for by R. S. 2789, post, § 5570.

The liquidation of duties on damaged merchandise, was provided for by tion III, X, of the Underwood Tariff Act, post, § 5602.

The seizure of merchandise as security for fines was authorized by the ti-Moiety Act of June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 13, ante, § 5525.

Cited without definite application,
Forbes v. Gracey (1876) 94 U. S. 762, 763, 24 L. Ed. 313.

(R. S. § 2841. Repealed.)

This section prescribed the forms of oaths of which one, according to the ture of the case, was required to be administered by the collector at the ne of the entry of merchandise by invoice. It was repealed by the Cusns Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, amend- and re-enacted by the Payne-Aldrich Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 at. 104, and declarations in lieu of oaths, were required to accompany the voice by section 5 of the Customs Administrative Act, amended by the yne-Aldrich Act and further amended by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 1913, c. 16, § III, F, ante, § 5523. All oaths administered by officers of customs, except as provided in the Customs Administrative Act, were olished by section 22 thereof, amended by section 28 of the Payne-Aldrich t.

The provisions for the abolition of fees and oaths on entry of goods, made the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 22, 26 Stat. 0, as amended by the Payne-Aldrich Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 at. 102, were superseded by a proviso annexed to section IV, S, of the nderwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, ante, § 5316, which provided that othing in this act shall be construed to permit any oaths to be demanded fees to be charged except as provided in this act," etc.

Provisions for the separate entry of packages contained in one importation re made by Act May 1, 1876, c. 89, § 2, ante, § 5483.

§ 5536. (R. S. § 2842.) Bond for production of invoice of goods of absent owner.

No merchandise subject to ad-valorem duty imported into the United States, and belonging to a person residing in the United States, but at the time absent from the place where the merchandise is intended to be entered, shall be admitted to an entry, unless the importer, consignee, or agent, shall previously give bond, the form of which shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, with sufficient sureties, to produce, within four months, to the collector of the port where the merchandise may be, the invoice of the same, duly certified, according to the circumstances of the case, by the oath of the owner, or one of the owners; which oath shall be administered by a collector, if there is any in the place where the owner may be or, if there is none, by some public officer duly authorized to administer oaths.

Act March 1, 1823, c. 21, § 6, 3 Stat. 733.

Provisions for bond for production of invoice in case of entry made by a verified statement in the form of an invoice were made by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 4, 26 Stat. 131, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 92, and further amended by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, E, ante § 5522.

Provisions for judgment at the return term in suits brought on bonds for the recovery of duties were made by R. S. § 960, ante, § 1598.

See note to R. S. § 2841, ante, as to abolition of oaths.

Cited without definite application,
Forbes v. Gracey (1876) 94 U. S. 762, 763, 24 L. Ed. 313.

(R. S. § 2843. Repealed.)

This section required that, for admission to entry of merchandise subject to ad valorem duty, belonging to a person not residing in the United States who should have actually purchased it, the invoice should be verified by the oath of the owner, administered by a consul or other officer, and certified by him. It was repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890 c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, and a declaration, similar in substance to such oath, was required by section 3 of that act to be indorsed on the invoice produced to the consul or other officer. Said section 29 was re-enacted by the Payne-Aldrich Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 104.

See note to section III, D, of the Underwood Tariff Act, ante, § 5521, as to declaration to be indorsed on invoice produced to consular officer.

§ 5537. (R. S. § 2844, as amended, Act June 28, 1906, c. 3569.) Authentication in absence of consul.

If there is no consul [or commercial agent] of the United States in the country from which such merchandise was imported, the authentication required by the preceding section shall be executed by a consul of a nation at the time in amity with the United States, if there is any such residing there; and if there is no such consul in the country the authentication shall be made by two respectable merchants, if any there be, residing in the port from which the merchandise shall have been imported. Provided, That the authentication may be made by the collector or a deputy collector of customs in the case of merchandise shipped to the United States from the Philippine Islands.

Act March 1, 1823, c. 21, § 7, 3 Stat. 733. Act June 28, 1906, c. 3569 34 Stat. 539.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, did not contain the proviso relating to authentications in the Philippine Islands. This proviso was added at the end of the section, making the section read as set forth here, by Act June 28, 1906, c. 3569, last cited above.

The words of this section, "or commercial agent," inclosed in brackets, were superseded by the abolition of the grade of commercial agent by Act April 5, 1906, c. 1366, § 2, ante, § 3139.

Indorsement of invoices was required by R. S. § 2855, post, § 5541, and by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 3, 26 Stat. 131, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat.

1, and further amended by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, III, D, ante, § 5521.

Rev. St. § 2843, referred to as "the preceding section," repealed by the ustoms Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, was as follows: "Sec. 2843. No merchandise subject to ad-valorem duty belonging to a person ot residing at the time in the United States, and who shall have actually urchased the same, shall be admitted to entry, unless the invoice is verified y the oath of the owner, or one of the owners, certifying that the merchandise as actually purchased for his account, or for account of himself and partners n the purchase; that the invoice annexed thereto contains a true and faithul account of the actual cost thereof, and of all charges thereon, and that o discounts, bounties, or drawbacks, are contained in the invoice, but such s have been actually allowed on the same. Such oath shall be administered y a consul or commercial agent of the United States, or by some public officer uly authorized to administer oaths in the country where the merchandise as purchased; and the same shall be duly certified by the consul, commercial gent, or public officer; and when such oath is administered by an officer other han a consul or commercial agent of the United States, such official certifiate shall be authenticated by such a consul or commercial agent."

Notes of Decisions

thentication in absence of consul.— collector at the port of New York ted a proffered invoice and entry t duly certified. The invoice was ied by the British vice consul at na, Mexico, this certificate conng the statement that there was merican consular office within that ict. The invoice as presented to collector was duly certified under aws and regulations. It was the collector's duty to receive it, and failing to do this no valid appraisement could be had. All proceedings as to exacting bond and otherwise after such failure were accordingly invalid. U. S. v. Marquardt & Co. (1915) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 168.

Cited without definite application, Forbes v. Gracey (1876) 94 U. S. 762, 763, 24 L. Ed. 313.

(R. S. § 2845. Repealed.)

This section required that, for admission to entry of merchandise subject o ad valorem duty, belonging to a person not residing in the United States, who had not acquired it in the ordinary mode of bargain and sale, or belonging to the manufacturer, the invoice should be verified by the oath of the wner, administered and authenticated as prescribed in the two preceding sections. It was repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, . 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, and a declaration similar in substance to such ath was required by section 3 of that act to be indorsed on the invoice roduced to the consul or other officer.

Said section 29 was re-enacted by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. , 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 104.

See note to section III, D, of the Underwood Tariff Act, ante, § 5521, as o indorsement on invoice.

538. (R. S. § 2846.) Oath of representative.

Whenever merchandise subject to ad-valorem duty belongs to estates of deceased persons or of persons insolvent who have gned the same for the benefit of their creditors, the oaths to ines may be administered to the executor or administrator, or he assignee, of such persons.

Act March 1, 1823, c. 21, § 9, 3 Stat. 734.

This section was superseded, as to requirement of oaths, by the abolition f all oaths administered by officers of the customs, except as provided therein, by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 22, 26 Stat. 140, and by the repeal, by section 29 of that act, 26 Stat. 141, of R. S. § 2841, 2843, 2845, which required oaths to accompany invoices on entry f merchandise, and the substitution of declarations for such oaths, by sections 3–5 of said act, 26 Stat. 131, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act f Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 102, and further amended by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, D, F, ante, §§ 5521, 5523, and § V, S, ante, § 5316.

Cited without definite application, Forbes v. Gracey (1876) 94 U. S. 762, 763, 24 L. Ed. 313.

(R. S. §§ 2847, 2848. Superseded.)

These sections authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to admit to entry n certain cases merchandise subject to ad valorem duty, belonging to a person not residing in the United States, not accompanied with an invoice verified and authenticated as required by preceding sections. They became inoperative by the repeal of R. S. §§ 2843, 2845, by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, re-enacted by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 104, and the enactment of provisions for entry of goods without invoice by section 4 of said Customs Administrative Act, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act, and further amended by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, E, ante § 5522.

§ 5539. (R. S. § 2849.) Oath where one of owners resides abroad.

In all cases where merchandise subject to ad-valorem duty belongs in part to a person residing in the United States, and in part to a person residing out of the United States, the oath of one of the owners residing in the United States shall be sufficient to admit the same to an entry. In all cases, however, where the merchandise was manufactured, in whole or in part, by any one of the owners, residing out of the United States, the same shall not be so admitted to an entry, unless the invoice has been verified and authenticated by such manufacturer in the manner prescribed in section twenty-eight hundred and forty-five.

Act March 1, 1823, c. 21, § 11, 3 Stat. 734.

This section was superseded to the extent that it required an oath and verification by the repeal of section 2845 and the substitution of declarations for oaths, by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, §§ 5, 22, 29, 26 Stat. 132, 140, 141, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 92, 102, 104, and further amended by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, B–J, ante, §§ 5519–5524, 5526–5528.

Cited without definite application,
Forbes v. Gracey (1876) 94 U. S. 762, 763, 24 L. Ed. 313.

(R. S. § 2850. Superseded.)

This section provided that whenever the invoice or merchandise belonging to a person not residing in the United States had not been duly verified and authenticated, and, upon application to the Secretary of the Treasury, the merchandise had been refused entry, the same should be deemed suspected. It became inoperative by the repeal, by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, re-enacted by the Payne-Aldrich Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 104, of the special provisions of R. S. §§ 2843, 2845, for verification and authentication of such invoices.

(R. S. § 2851. Repealed.)

This section prescribed a fee of $2.50 for consular certification of invoices. It was repealed, and such fees were included with those for which, by R. S. § 1745, ante, § 3205, the President was authorized to prescribe rates, by Act April 5, 1906, c. 1366, § 9, ante, § 3187.

Exacting excessive fees for verification of invoices was punishable by R. S. § 1716, ante, § 3172.

§ 5540. (R. S. § 2852.) Certificate upon invoice.

When any merchandise is admitted to an entry upon invoice, the collector of the port in which the same is entered shall certify the same under his official seal; and no other evidence of the value of such merchandise shall be admitted on the part of the owner thereof, in any court of the United States, except in corroboration of such entry.

Act March 1, 1823, c. 21, § 23, 3 Stat. 737.

Cited without definite application,
Forbes v. Gracey (1876) 94 U. S. 762, 763, 24 L. Ed. 313.

(R. S. § 2853. Repealed.)

This section required invoices to be in triplicate and prescribed by whom they should be signed. It was repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, and provisions of the same nature, with additions, were made by section 2 of that act, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 91, and the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, C, ante, § 5520.

(R. S. § 2854. Repealed.)

This section prescribed the requirements of declarations to accompany invoices produced to the consul or other officer. It was repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, and provisions of the same nature, with additions, were made by section 3 of that act, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 91, and the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, D, ante, § 5521.

541. (R. S. § 2855.) Indorsement upon invoice.

he person so producing such invoice shall at the same time dee to such consul, vice-consul, [or commercial agent] the port in United States at which it is intended to make entry of merndise; whereupon the consul, vice-consul, [or commercial nt] shall indorse upon each of the triplicates a certificate, un-his hand and official seal, stating that the invoice has been pro-ed to him, with the date of such production, and the name of person by whom the same was produced, and the port in the ted States at which it shall be the declared intention to make ry of the merchandise therein mentioned. The consul, vicesul, [or commercial agent] shall then deliver to the person pro-ing the same, one of the triplicates, to be used in making entry he merchandise; shall file another in his office, to be there carey preserved; and shall, as soon as practicable, transmit the aining one to the collector of the port of the United States at ch it shall be declared to be the intention to make entry of the chandise.

Act March 3, 1863, c. 76, § 1, 12 Stat. 738.

The words "or commercial agent," inclosed in brackets, where they occur three times in this section, were superseded by the abolition of the grade of commercial agent by Act April 5, 1906, c. 1566, § 3, ante, § 3140.

The words at the beginning of this section "the person so producing such invoice," and "such consul," etc., refer to provisions of R. S. §§ 2853, 2854, repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141. Substitutes for the provisions so repealed were enacted in sections 2 and 3 of that act, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 91, and the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, C, D, ante, §§ 5520, 5521.

Before the repeal of R. S. §§ 2853, 2854, mentioned above, section 2853 and this section were amended by the Immediate Transportation Act of June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 4, post, § 5542, so as to require that all invoices of merchandise imported and intended to be transported without appraisement to any of the ports mentioned in section 7 of that act should be made in quadruplicate, one of the quadruplicates to be used in making entry at the port of arrival, and one to be used in making entry at the port of destination. Similar provisions were made by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 2, amended by the subsequent tariff acts mentioned above.

Further provisions relating to the duties of consular officers as to certification of invoices are contained in R. S. §§ 2861–2863, post, §§ 5545–5547.

The authentication of invoices in the absence of the consular officer was provided for by R. S. § 2844, as amended by Act June 28, 1906, c. 3569, ante, § 5537.

The destruction of old invoices on file in consular offices was authorized by Act Feb. 24, 1903, c. 753, set forth ante, § 3173.

Notes of Decisions

oods not subject to duty.—Under requirement that all "invoices" of chandise imported be made in tripli-, and certified by the consul, and "no merchandise" be admitted to y unless the invoice conforms to requirements, and the consular regions of 1874 and 1881, providing "all invoices of importations" must authenticated by the consul, an inve authenticated by the consul is essary in the case of an importation goods not subject to duty. Phelps Siegfried (1892) 142 U. S. 602, 12 Sup. Ct. 391, 35 L. Ed. 1128, reversing (C. C. 1889) 40 Fed. 660, and following U. S. v. Mosby (1889) 133 U. S. 273, 10 Sup. Ct. 327, 33 L. Ed. 625.

Consul's fees.—Consul's duty to account for fees defined. U. S. v. Mosby (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 327, 331, 332, 333, 133 U. S. 273, 33 L. Ed. 625.

Government's right to fees defined. Id.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Wilson (1897) 18 Sup. Ct. 85, 168 U. S. 273, 42 L. Ed. 464; Wilson v. U. S. (1896) 32 Ct. Cl. 64.

§ 5542. (Act June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 4.) Quadruple invoices; in dorsement; disposition; fees.

Sections twenty-eight hundred and fifty-three and twenty-eigh hundred and fifty-five of the Revised Statutes of the United State be, and the same are hereby, so amended as to require that a invoices of merchandise imported from any foreign country an intended to be transported without appraisement to any of th ports mentioned in the seventh section of this act, shall be mad in quadruplicate; and that the consul, vice-consul, [or commerci agent] to whom the same shall be produced, shall certify each c said quadruplicates under his hand and official seal in the manne required by section twenty-eight hundred and fifty-five of the Re vised Statutes, and shall then deliver to the person producing th same two of the quadruplicates, one to be used in making entry a the port of first arrival of the merchandise in the United States and one to be used in making entry at the port of destination, fil another in his office, there to be carefully preserved and as soon a practicable transmit the remaining one to the collector or surveyo of the port of final destination of the merchandise: Provided, how ever, That no additional fee shall be collected on account of an service performed under the requirements of this section. (2 Stat. 173.)

This was a provision of the Immediate Transportation Act, cited above Other provisions of that act are set forth post, §§ 5695–5698, 5700, 5702, 5704

Quadruplicate invoices of merchandise intended for immediate transporta tion were required by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c 407, § 2, 26 Stat. 181, which, as amended, was further amended by the Under wood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, C, ante, § 5520. The provision of said section 2 of the Customs Administrative Act were substitutes fo similar provisions made by R. S. § 2853, repealed by section 29 of that act

R. S. § 2855, mentioned in this section, is set forth ante, § 5541.

The words of this section, "or commercial agent," inclosed in brackets were superseded by the abolition of the grade of commercial agent by Ac April 5, 1906, c. 1366, § 3, ante, § 3140.

(R. S. § 2856. Repealed.)

This section provided that, in case of merchandise imported from a foreign country adjacent to the United States, the declaration required in the two pre ceding sections might be made to, and the certificate indorsed by, the consul vice-consul, or commercial agent at or nearest to the port of clearance for the United States. It was repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, re-enacted by the Payne-Aldrich Act o Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 104.

§ 5543. (R. S. § 2857.) Change of destination.

Whenever, from a change of the destination of any merchandise after the production of the invoice thereof to the consul, vice-consul, [or commercial agent], or from other cause, the triplicate transmitted to the collector of the port to which such merchandise was originally destined, is not received at the port where the same actually arrives, and where it is desired to make entry thereof, the merchandise may be admitted to an entry on the execution by the owner, consignee, or agent, of a bond, with sufficient security, in double the amount of duty apparently due, conditioned for the payment of the duty which shall be found to be actually due thereon. The collector of the port where such entry shall be made shall immediately notify the consul, vice-consul, [or commercial agent] to whom such invoice has been produced, to transmit to such collector a certified copy thereof; and such consul, vice-consul, [or commercial agent] shall transmit the same accordingly without delay; and the duty shall not be finally liquidated until such triplicate, or a certified copy thereof, shall have been received. Such dation, however, shall not be delayed longer than eighteen ths from the time of making such entry.

Act March 3, 1863, c. 76, § 1, 12 Stat. 738.

The words "or commercial agent," inclosed in brackets where they occur three nes in this section, were superseded by the abolition of the grade of com- ercial agent by Act April 5, 1906, c. 1366, § 3, ante, § 3140.

The provisions of this section were made inapplicable to importations under ct June 8, 1896, c. 371, by section 4 of that act, set forth post, § 5708.

(R. S. § 2858. Repealed.)

This section provided that the Secretary of the Treasury, whenever it had come impracticable for the person desiring to make entry of merchandise to oduce any invoice thereof, might authorize the entry thereof, and remit for- itures in such cases, as in other cases under the revenue laws. It was re- aled by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 tat. 141, re-enacted by the Payne-Aldrich Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 at. 104.

44. (R. S. § 2859.) Countries excepted from foregoing provi- sions.

e six preceding sections shall not apply to countries where there o consul, vice-consul, [or commercial agent] of the United es. And whenever the value of the imported merchandise does exceed one hundred dollars, the collector may admit it to entry out the production of the triplicate invoice, and without sub- ing the question to the Secretary of the Treasury, if he is sat- l that the neglect to produce such invoice was unintentional that the importation was made in good faith, and without any ose of defrauding or evading the revenue laws.

Act March 3, 1863, c. 76, § 1, 12 Stat. 739. Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 19, Stat. 182.

The words of this section, "or commercial agent," inclosed in brackets, were perseded by the abolition of the grade of commercial agent by Act April 5, 906, c. 1366, § 3, ante, § 3140.

Of "the six preceding sections" mentioned in this section,—being R. S. §§ 853–2858,—all except sections 2855 and 2857 were repealed by the Customs dministrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141.

The submission to the Secretary of the Treasury of the question of admission entry of merchandise without an invoice was provided for by R. S. § 2858, e of the sections repealed, as stated above.

Entry of merchandise without invoice, upon affidavit, was provided for by the ustoms Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 4, 26 Stat. 131, amend- d by the Payne-Aldrich Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 92, and fur- er amended by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, E, nte, § 5522.

Notes of Decisions

eal.—This section is not repealed ction 9, Act June 22, 1874 (18 188), or by Act May 1, 1876 (19 49). (1884) 17 Op. Atty. Gen.

penses.—Where goods without in- and unclaimed are sent to a gen- rder warehouse, and subsequently, the application of the assignees of ill of lading for entry of the same, sent to the public store for ex- ation and appraisement, the charges for cartage to the appraiser's store and for storage and labor there may properly be exacted from the im- porter, although the value of the goods is less than $100. Kennedy v. Magone (1895) 158 U. S. 212, 15 Sup. Ct. 814, 39 L. Ed. 954, affirming (C. C. 1890) 41 Fed. 768.

Cited without definite application, Hempstead v. Cadwalader (C. C. 1890) 42 Fed. 529.

(R. S. § 2860. Repealed.)

This section provided that, "except as allowed in the four preceding sections," being R. S. §§ 2856–2859,—no merchandise imported should be admitted to ntry unless the invoice conformed to the requirements of sections 2853, 2854, nd 2855, and had thereon the certificate in those sections satisfied, nor unless e invoice was verified, etc., nor unless the triplicates transmitted to the ollector had been received by him. It was repealed, with most of the other ections mentioned therein, by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141.

§ 5545. (R. S. § 2861.) Restriction on consular certificates.

No consular officer of the United States shall grant a certificate for merchandise shipped from countries adjacent to the United States, which have passed a consulate after purchase for shipment.

Act Feb. 22, 1873, c. 184, § 3, 17 Stat. 474.
A similar provision was made by R. S. § 1717, ante, § 3174.

§ 5546. (R. S. § 2862.) Consuls to exact proof of invoice.

All consular officers are hereby authorized to require, before certifying any invoice under the provisions of the preceding sections, satisfactory evidence, either by the oath of the person presenting such invoices or otherwise, that such invoices are correct and true. In the exercise of the discretion hereby given, the consular officers shall be governed by such general or special regulations or instructions as may from time to time be established or given by the Secretary of State.

Act March 3, 1865, c. 111, 13 Stat. 532.
Provisions of a similar nature were made by R. S. § 1715, ante, § 3171.
The oath provided for by this section was excepted from the abolition of oaths by a proviso of the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, S, ante, § 5316.

§ 5547. (R. S. § 2863.) To report fraudulent practices.

All consuls and [commercial agents] of the United States having any knowledge or belief of any case or practice of any person who obtains verification of any invoice whereby the revenue of the United States is or may be defrauded, shall report the facts to the collector of the port where the revenue is or may be defrauded, or to the Secretary of the Treasury.

Act July 14, 1862, c. 163, § 18, 12 Stat. 559.
The words of this section, "commercial agents," inclosed in brackets, were superseded by the abolition of the grade of commercial agent by Act April 5, 1906, c. 1366, § 3, ante, § 3140.
False certification by consular officers of invoices or other papers was punishable by R. S. § 5442, which was incorporated into the Criminal Code in section 70 thereof, post, § 10238, and was repealed by section 341 thereof, post, § 15515.

(R. S. § 2864. Superseded.)

This section as amended by Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, 18 Stat. 319, was as follows:

"If any owner, consignee, or agent of any merchandise shall knowingly make, or attempt to make, an entry thereof by means of any false invoice, or false certificate of a consul, vice-consul, or commercial agent, or of any invoice which does not contain a true statement of all the particulars hereinbefore required, or by means of any other false or fraudulent document or paper, or of any other false or fraudulent practice or appliance whatsoever, such merchandise or the value thereof shall be forfeited."

It was superseded by similar provisions made by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 9, 26 Stat. 135, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 97, amended and superseded by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, G, H, ante, §§ 5524, 5526.

§ 5548. (R. S. § 2865, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Smuggling merchandise, or making or passing false invoice.

If any person shall knowingly and willfully, with intent to defraud the revenue of the United States, smuggle, or clandestinely introduce, into the United States, any goods, wares, or merchandise, subject to duty by law, and which should have been invoiced, without paying or accounting for the duty, or shall make out or pass, or attempt to pass, through the custom-house any false, forged, or fraudulent invoice, every such person, his, her, or their aiders and abettors, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not exceeding five thousand dollars, or imprisonor any term of time not exceeding two years, or both, at the etion of the court.

Act Aug. 30, 1842, c. 270, § 19, 5 Stat. 565. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 9 Stat. 247.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"Every person who makes out or passes, or attempts to pass, through the cus-om-house, any false, forged, or fraudulent invoice, or who shall aid or abet in aking or passing such false, forged, or fraudulent invoice, shall be deemed guil-y of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than five thousand dol-ars, or by imprisonment for not more than two years, or both, in the discre-ion of the court."

It was amended by substituting therefor the section set forth here, by Act 'eb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

Provisions of a similar nature were made by the Customs Administrative ct of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 9, 26 Stat. 135, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 97, and further amended by he Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, G, ante, § 5524.

Securing false entry of goods was punishable by R. S. § 5445, incorporated nto the Criminal Code, in section 69 thereof, post, § 10237, and repealed by ection 341 thereof, post, § 10515.

Notes of Decisions

peal of act.—As to repeal of super-l acts, see In re Landsberg (D. C.) Fed. Cas. No. 8,041.

is act does not repeal section 5785, U. S. v. A Lot of Jewelry, etc. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 684, 686; Same rtega (D. C. 1895) 66 Fed. 713, ements of offense—In general.—By established definition of the word ggling," both in English and rican law, to constitute the offense goods must be unladen and brought hore. Keck v. U. S. (1899) 19 Ct. 254, 172 U. S. 434, 43 L. Ed.

person becomes guilty of smug-by avoiding the first opportunity n to make a customs declaration pay the duty. Rogers v. U. S. 0) 180 Fed. 54, 58, 103 C. C. A. 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 264.

indictment for smuggling goods Canada into the United States out an invoice cannot be maintain-nder this section as formerly en-d, as such importations are gov-d by section 5810, post, which re-es only the delivery to the collec-of the manifest of the goods im-ed from adjacent territory. U. S. olton (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 97.

e offense is not committed by an done before the obligation to pay account for the duties arises. rican Sugar Refining Co. v. Bid-(C. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 677, 681.

e who goes abroad with funds fur-ed by another, and buys goods to muggled home, and causes them to delivered to the carrier, who actu-smuggles them, is guilty, though service be gratuitous. U. S. v. tin (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 29.

constitute smuggling, there must omething in the manner of the im-ation which violates the statute, such as secrecy or concealment, intent to defraud the revenue, or the like. U. S. v. Thomas (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,473.

Act of smuggling goods contained in a passenger's pocket and omitted from his declaration on shipboard is complete when he has left the vessel, though he is still within the custom lines on the dock. U. S. v. 218½ Carats Loose Emeralds (D. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 643, 647, affirmed (1907) 154 Fed. 839, 83 C. C. A. 475.

It was alleged that an exporter had caused a false and fraudulent invoice to be made out, signed, verified, and left with a consul to be transmitted to the collector of customs at an American port, and had then caused the merchandise covered by the invoice to be shipped to said port; but it was not charged or shown that he had been concerned in importing the goods. Held, that the case was not brought within this section. U. S. v. 646 Half-Boxes of Figs (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 778.

Though this section provides for the punishment of persons aiding and abetting smuggling, and though if an offense necessarily involves an unlawful agreement between two or more persons the parties thereto cannot be charged with conspiracy for making such agreement, but must be prosecuted for the principal offense, the parties to a conspiracy to smuggle foreign merchandise and defraud the United States of customs duties may be indicted for conspiracy, as neither smuggling nor defrauding the United States necessarily involves an agreement between two or more persons, and either offense may be committed by a single individual. U. S. v. Shevlin (D. C. 1913) 212 Fed. 343.

To constitute the offense of smuggling, there must be a secret introduction of dutiable goods with intent to defraud the government. San Antonio

Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy (Tex. Civ. App. 1908) 113 S. W. 574.

—— Fraudulent entry.—The provision making it criminal to "smuggle or clandestinely introduce" merchandise into the United States, does not include a case where merchandise is fraudulently entered at the customhouse. U. S. v. 646 Half-Boxes of Figs (1908) 164 Fed. 778.

—— Attempts.—The section does not include mere attempts, and under it the offense is not complete until the obligation to pay or account for the duty has arisen; hence the concealment of merchandise on board an incoming vessel, though with the intent and for the purpose of clandestinely introducing the same into the United States without the payment of the duty thereon, and although continued until after the vessel has entered the waters of a port of the United States, does not constitute the offense. Keck v. U. S. (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 254, 172 U. S. 434, 43 L. Ed. 505.

—— Intent.—To support an indictment under this section, there must be sufficient evidence of a criminal intent. (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 63.

Indictment.—Any words of description which make clear to the common understanding the articles in respect to which the offense is alleged are sufficient, and an indictment sufficiently describes the article as "prepared opium subject to duty by law, to wit, the duty of $12 per pound," where the only opium subject to a duty of $12 per pound is "opium containing less than 9 per cent. of morphia and opium prepared for smoking." Dunbar v. U. S. (1895) 15 Sup. Ct. 325, 327, 156 U. S. 185, 39 L. Ed. 390.

An indictment charging the defendant with having smuggled and clandestinely introduced into the United States certain diamonds of a stated value, which should have been invoiced, and duty paid thereon, with intent to defraud the revenue, sufficiently describes the smuggled goods, though certain classes of diamonds were free of duty. Keck v. U. S. (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 254, 172 U. S. 434, 43 L. Ed. 505.

An indictment, alleging that accused at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., did unlawfully, knowingly, and fraudulently import and bring into the United States certain merchandise, to wit, 3½ yards of black woolen suiting cloth of the value of $10, contrary to law—that is, clandestinely and without entering the same at the United States Customs Office and port of entry with the United States Collector of Customs and paying the duty thereon—the same being foreign merchandise subject to an import duty as provided in Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, 30 Stat. 151, sufficiently charged "smuggling." Rogers v. U. S. (1910) 180 Fed. 54, 103 C. C. A. 408, 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 264.

An indictment charging that defendant did "bring into the country clandestinely" certain dutiable goods, was synonymous with the provision, making it an offense to "clandestinely introduce" dutiable goods into the country with intent to avoid payment of duty. Id.

An indictment for smuggling "smoking opium" and "prepared opium" sufficiently described dutiable merchandise. U. S. v. Gardner (C. C. 1890) 42 Fed. 832.

An indictment that describes smuggled property in terms which presuppose the existence of some law is not bad on that account, as where it describes the goods "as subject to duty and which should have been invoiced." U. S. v. White (C. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 775.

An allegation that defendants knowingly smuggled goods meets the requirement that it must be alleged they knew the goods were dutiable. Id.

Indictment must allege the facts relied upon as rendering the importation alleged an offense, or state the particular illegality intended to be proved, and such allegation must be proved as made. U. S. v. Thomas (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,473.

An indictment alleging that defendant smuggled into the United States merchandise subject to a duty, which should have been invoiced, without paying or accounting for such duty, and without having such merchandise invoiced, is sufficient without alleging that defendant knew that the duty had not been paid. U. S. v. Dunbar (D. C. 1894) 60 Fed. 75, 76, judgment affirmed Dunbar v. U. S. (1895) 15 Sup. Ct. 325, 328, 156 U. S. 185, 39 L. Ed. 390.

An indictment for conspiracy to smuggle merchandise and defraud the United States of customs duties need not allege that defendants intended that such merchandise should not be invoiced. U. S. v. Shevlin (D. C. 1913) 212 Fed. 343.

Where an indictment for conspiring to defraud the United States of customs duties and to commit the crime of smuggling merchandise into the United States clearly described the general purpose and scope of the conspiracy, it was not necessary to allege the exact manner or means by which the merchandise was to be passed through the customs lines. Id.

Evidence.—Where defendant, having dutiable goods secreted on his person, knowingly passed the customs office at the dock where he entered the United States and ignored three distinct calls of the customs officer before his further progress was arrested and the goods disclosed, when he stated for the first time that he expected to enter the goods at the main customhouse some distance away, instead of at the dock, a finding that he intended to evade entering the goods or paying the duty at and that he was guilty of smugg, was justified under the rule that erson becomes guilty of that offense avoiding the first opportunity given make a customs declaration and the duty. Rogers v. U. S. (1910)

Fed. 54, 103 C. C. A. 408, 31 L.
A. (N. S.) 264.

unishment.—Sentence and fine im-ed for smuggling. U. S. v. Mills
C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 15,777.

cquittal or conviction as bar.—A dict for defendants, indicted for ggling certain diamond rings into United States, was ground for a in bar to a libel by the United tes for the forfeiture of the rings.
S. v. Rosenthal (1909) 174 Fed. 652,
C. C. A. 406.

conviction on an indictment for ggling, where the imprisonment im-ed is served out, and the fine paid, a pardon received as to the costs of prosecution, also imposed, will bar a civil action of debt to recover the penalty of double the value of the goods smuggled. U. S. v. Gates (D. C. 1845) Fed. Cas. No. 15,191; Same v. Tilton (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 16,525.

An acquittal on the charge of smuggling under this section and of illegal importation under section 5785, post, is not a bar to a proceeding in rem to forfeit the goods under section 5499, ante, and section 5763, post. (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 63.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Sixty-Seven Packages of Dry Goods (1854) 17 How. 85, 91, 15 L. Ed. 54; Same v. Johannesen (C. C. 1888) 35 Fed. 411; In re Greenwald (C. C. 1896) 77 Fed. 590, 594; U. S. v. Mitchell (C. C. 1905) 141 Fed. 666, 669; Same v. Curtis (D. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 184, 188; Same v. Caminata (D. C. 1912) 194 Fed. 903.

(R. S. § 2866. Repealed.)

This section provided for the entry and conveyance in transit, without payment of duties, of merchandise arriving at certain ports in the United States destined for the British possessions in North America, and for conveyance in transit from such possessions for export from said ports, in pursuance of provisions of the treaty with Great Britain of May 8, 1871. It was repealed on the termination of arts. 18–25, 30, of that treaty, pursuant to the Joint Resolution of March 3, 1883, No. 22, 22 Stat. 641.

The treaty of May 8, 1871, arts. 18–25, 30, 17 Stat. 869, 872, 873, mentioned in section 1 of that resolution, related to certain sea fisheries, and to the carriage of goods, without payment of duty, on the St. Lawrence, the Great Lakes, and the rivers connecting them.

Act March 1, 1873, c. 213, 17 Stat. 482, mentioned in and repealed by section 3 of that resolution, was incorporated into R. S. §§ 2506, 2866, 4347, which were therefore repealed by the operation of the resolution. Of the provisions so repealed, section 2506, carrying into effect article 21 of the treaty, admitted into the United States, free of duty, fish oil and fish, the produce of the fisheries of the Dominion of Canada or of Prince Edward Island; section 2866, carrying into effect article 29 of the treaty, provided for the conveyance of merchandise in transit, without payment of duties, through the United States; and the provisos annexed to section 4347, giving effect to article 30 of the treaty, permitted the carriage of goods in British vessels, without payment of duty, between ports or places in the United States, upon the St. Lawrence, the Great Lakes, and the rivers connecting the same.

5549. (Act June 20, 1876, c. 136, as amended, Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 70.) Custom-house bonds of partnerships.

When any bond is required by law to be executed by any firm or rtnership for the payment of duties upon goods, wares or merandise, imported into the United States by such firm or partrship, or for any other purpose connected with the general transtion of business at any custom-house, the execution of such bond any member of such firm or partnership, in the name of said m or partnership, shall bind the other members or partners ereof, in like manner and to the same extent, as if such other embers or partners had personally executed the same. And any tion or suit may be instituted on such bond against all the memrs or partners of such firm, as if all of the members or partners d executed the same. (19 Stat. 60. 28 Stat. 569.)

This was an act entitled "An act relating to the execution of custom-house bonds."

This act was amended by inserting after the words "imported into the United States by such firm or partnership" the words "or for any other purpose connected with the general transaction of business at any custom-house," as set forth here by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 70, last cited above.

Bonds were required in the transaction of business at custom-houses by R. S. §§ 2776–2778, 2787, 2800, 2825, 2842, 2925.

Notes of Decisions

Partnership bond.—A customs bond executed in a firm name by a partner duly authorized by power of attorney to execute it is obligatory upon the firm. (1892) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 311.

§ 5550. (Act June 10, 1910, c. 283, § 1.) Custom-house brokers; license.

The collector or chief officer of the customs at any port of entry or delivery shall, upon application, issue to any person of good moral character, being a citizen of the United States a license to transact business as a custom-house broker in the collection district in which such license is issued, and on and after sixty days from the approval of this Act no person shall transact business as a custom-house broker without a license granted in accordance with this provision; but this Act shall not be so construed as to prohibit any person from transacting business at a custom-house pertaining to his own importations. (36 Stat. 464.)

This section and the five sections next following were an act entitled "An act to license custom-house brokers."

See note to R. S. § 2770, ante, § 5466, as to abolition of ports of delivery.

Notes of Decisions

Definition.—The term "customhouse broker," as used in section 23, Tariff Act 1894 (28 Stat. 552), includes persons who deal in drawback matters exclusively, as well as those who combine all branches of customhouse work. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 255.

License.—The authority to collect drawback may be delegated by a manufacturer to a general selling agent or to some attorney at law, but such a person must conduct his business through a licensed broker unless he obtains himself a license. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 255, 258.

Liability for additional duties.—A customhouse broker, who makes the sworn declaration for entry of goods, in which he declares himself the consignee, cannot thereafter deny that he is such as against the government, and becomes liable for the duties under the provision of section 5519, ante, that "all merchandise imported * * * shall * * * be deemed and held to be the property of the person to whom the merchandise may be consigned," including additional duties imposed for undervaluation under section 5527, ante. U. S. v. Vandiver (D. C. 1904) 133 Fed. 252.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Burr (1895) 15 Sup. Ct. 1002, 1005, 159 U. S. 78, 40 L. Ed. 82.

§ 5551. (Act June 10, 1910, c. 283, § 2.) Revocation of license.

The collector or chief officer of the customs may at any time, for good and sufficient reasons, serve notice in writing upon any custom-house broker so licensed to show cause why said license shall not be revoked, which notice shall be in the form of a statement specifically setting forth the grounds of complaint. The collector or chief officer of customs shall within ten days thereafter notify the custom-house broker in writing of a hearing to be held before him within five days upon said charges. At such hearing the custom-house broker may be represented by counsel, and all proceedings, including the proof of the charges and the answer thereto, shall be presented, with right of cross-examination to both parties, and a stenographic record of the same shall be made and a copy thereof shall be delivered to the custom-house broker. At the conclusion of such hearing the collector or chief officer of customs shall forthwith transmit all papers and the stenographic report of the hearing, which shall constitute the record in the case, to the Secretary of the Treasury for his action. Thereupon the said Secretary of the Treasury shall have the right to revoke the license of any custom-house broker, in h case formal notice shall be given such custom-house broker ın ten days. (36 Stat. 464.)

Notes of Decisions

ocation of license.—When the li- of a broker has been revoked, he t thereafter deal directly with the customs officials, except when acting for himself as principal. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 255.

52. (Act June 10, 1910, c. 283, § 3.) Review of decision revoking license.

ıy licensed custom-house broker aggrieved by the decision of Secretary of the Treasury may, within thirty days thereafter, not afterwards, apply to the United States circuit court for ircuit in which the collection district is situated for a review ıch decision. Such application shall be made by filing in the e of the clerk of said court a petition praying relief in the ises. Thereupon the court shall immediately give notice in writ- f such application to the Secretary of the Treasury, who shall with transmit to said court the record and evidence taken in the together with a statement of his decision therein. The filing ıch application shall operate as a stay of the revocation of the se. The matter may be brought on to be heard before the said in the same manner as a motion, by either the United States ct attorney or the attorney for the custom-house broker, and ecision of said United States circuit court for the circuit in which ollection district is situated shall be upon the merits as disclosed e record and be final, and the proceedings remanded to the Sec- y of the Treasury for further action to be taken in accordance the terms of the decree. (36 Stat. 465.)

53. (Act June 10, 1910, c. 283, § 4.) Regulations for carrying act into effect.

e Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe regulations nec- y or convenient for carrying this Act into effect. (36 Stat.

54. (Act June 10, 1910, c. 285, § 5.) Definition of "person."

e word person wherever used in this Act shall include per- copartnerships, associations, joint stock associations and cor- tions. (36 Stat. 465.)

CHAPTER FIVE

Unlading

Penalty for unlading without permit.
Forfeiture for unlawful transfer.
Permits.
What a permit must state.
License to lade or unlade at night.
Preliminary entry of vessel to boarding officer, and lading or unlading thereupon.
Bond for special license to lade or unlade at night.
Issue of special licenses and permits.
Time of delivery.
Penalty for unlawful delivery.
Forfeiture for unlawful delivery.
Inspectors.

Sec.
5567. Duties of inspectors.
5568. Delivery of cargo.
5569. Compensation, etc., of inspectors.
5570. Compensation of inspectors in case of delay.
5571. Compensation of inspectors, etc., for night service; boarding officers may administer oaths.
5572. Time for unloading.
5573. Salt and coal and other articles.
5574. Removal from wharf.
5575. Indorsement on permit for landing spirits, etc.
5576. Landing of spirits, etc., regulated.
5577. Marking casks and cases of spirits.
5578. Obliteration of marks.

Sec.
5579. Forfeiture of omitted or missing articles, except in case of accident or mistake.
5580. Account of deliveries.
5581. Proceedings upon returns of deliveries.
5582. Returns of weighers, gaugers, and measurers.
5583. Distress of weather.
5584. Storage of goods in distress.
5585. Variance between report and delivery of vessel in distress.
5586. Reloading of vessel in distress.
5587. Obstruction by ice.
5588. Tare.

§ 5555. (R. S. § 2867.) Penalty for unlading without permit.

If after the arrival of any vessel laden with merchandise and bound to the United States, within the limits of any collection-district, or within four leagues of the coast, any part of the cargo of such vessel shall be unladen, for any purpose whatever, before such vessel has come to the proper place for the discharge of her cargo, or some part thereof, and has been there duly authorized by the proper officer of the customs to unlade the same, the master of such vessel and the mate, or other person next in command, shall respectively be liable to a penalty of one thousand dollars for each such offense and the merchandise so unladen shall be forfeited, except in case of some unavoidable accident, necessity, or distress of weather. In case of such unavoidable accident, necessity, or distress, the master of such vessel shall give notice to, and, together with two or more of the officers or mariners on board such vessel, of whom the mate or other person next in command shall be one, shall make proof upon oath before the collector, or other chief officer of the customs of the district, within the limits of which such accident, necessity or distress happened, or before the collector, or other chief officer of the collection-district, within the limits of which such vessel shall first afterward arrive, if the accident, necessity, or distress happened not within the limits of any district, but within four leagues of the coast of the United States. The collector, or other chief officer, is hereby authorized and required to administer such oath.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 27, 1 Stat. 648.

Notes of Decisions

Scope of act in general.—What constitutes a violation. U. S. v. The Virgin (C. C. 1806) Fed. Cas. No. 16,625.

If, for the purpose of exchanging cargo, vessels rendezvous at a place within four leagues of the shore, and one of them then tows the others beyond the four-league line, where the exchange is made, then the continued, concerted, necessary action for the effectuation of that purpose, including the towing out, should probably be considered as a part of the actual exchange, being a part of the res gestæ of the offense which the statute was intended to prevent. U. S. v. The Coquitlam (D. C. 1893) 57 Fed. 706, questions certified to and determined The Coquitlam v. U. S. (1896) 16 S. Ct. 1117, 163 U. S. 346, 41 L. Ed. 184.

—— "Arrival."—A vessel is not considered to arrive so as to be regarded as importing her cargo, unless she arrives within a port, and with the intent to enter her cargo. Harrison v. Vose (1850) 9 How. 372, 381, 13 L. Ed. 179; The Cargo ex Lady Essex (D. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 765, 767.

A vessel driven ashore by stress of weather has not "arrived" within the limits of the collection district, and the unlading of her cargo without authority of the customs officer does not subject it to forfeiture. The Cargo ex Lady Essex (D. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 765, 767.

When a vessel comes within four leagues of the shore of the United States, and makes a transfer of merchandise with another vessel there, without authority from the revenue officers, it should be held to have "arrived" there, and be treated as a vessel "bound" to the United States. U. S. v. The Coquitlam (D. C. 1893) 57 Fed. 706.

—— Before coming to proper place of discharge.—The unlading of rum from a vessel before arrival at her port of discharge is an offense under this section, and not under sections 5563, 5564, post. U. S. v. Brant (C. C. 1806) Fed. Cas. No. 14,637.

This section applies to vessels which have not reached their port of destination and discharge. The Industry (C. C. 1812) Fed. Cas. No. 7,028.

This section, and not sections 5563–5565, post, applies where the goods imported are unladen before the vessel has arrived at a port or place within a collection district. The Active (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 33.

— Wrecked goods.—This section not apply to wrecked goods brought shore. Peisch v. Ware (1808) 4 nch, 347, 363, 2 L. Ed. 643.

'here 'a vessel has been driven ore by stress of weather, the unload- of her cargo without authority of customs officer does not subject forfeiture, although no notice was n of the contingency which made unloading necessary. The Cargo Lady Essex (D. C. 1889) 39 Fed.

— "Persons in command."—The vision making the unlading an of- e applies only to the captain and e. U. S. v. Smith (C. C. 1808) . Cas. No. 16,343.

— "Bound to the United States."— s section is not violated by an un- ng and transfer of cargo after ves- have casually arrived within the ts of a collection district, if they not bound to the United States, have no cargo destined to be un- n in the United States. The Co- lam (1896) 77 Fed. 744, 23 C. C. 438, reversing (D. C. 1893) 57 Fed.

navoidable accident, necessity, or ress.—The defense that goods were den by unavoidable accident, neces- , or distress is not admissible un- the requisite proofs thereof were le before the collector, or were pre- ted by inevitable accident, etc. U. . Hayward (C. C. 1815) Fed. Cas. 15,336.

'hat constitutes a case of unavoida- accident, necessity, and distress. Id.

orfeitures.—Unloading goods with- a permit before reaching port of tination does not cause a forfeiture the ship. U. S. v. The Hunter (C. 806) Fed. Cas. No. 15,428.

forfeiture for unlading imported ds before reaching port of discharge applies to both foreign and American vessels. The Betsy (C. C. 1818) Fed. Cas. No. 1,365.

A forfeiture of goods for a violation of the revenue laws will not be imposed, unless the owner of such goods or his agent had been guilty of an infraction of such laws. The act of a trespasser, or one having no interest in the goods, will not have that effect. The Cargo ex Lady Essex (D. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 765, 767.

Evidence.—The admission of the goods to entry is not evidence either that the proofs were furnished, or of the existence of accident, necessity, or distress. U. S. v. Hayward (C. C. 1815) Fed. Cas. No. 15,336.

Proof that the fact of an intended illegal importation was previously known to the revenue officers, and that they acted thereon in making the seizure, is admissible. U. S. v. Nine Trunks (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,886.

A forfeiture of the cargo of the E. was claimed on the ground that it had been imported without payment of duties. The information averred that the cargo had been sold to the master of the E. by the master of the V. Held, that it would be presumed, for the purpose of sustaining the information against a demurrer, that the sale took place under such circumstances as to constitute it a legal sale, and that the master of the V. had authority to make the sale. The Cargo ex Lady Essex (D. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 765.

Cited without definite application, Constable v. National S. S. Co. (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 1062, 1071, 154 U. S. 51, 39 L. Ed. 903; U. S. v. 1,150½ Pounds of Celluloid (1897) 82 Fed. 627, 631, 27 C. C. A. 231; The Saratoga (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 322, 324; Hogarth Shipping Co. v. Federal Sugar Refining Co. (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed. 278, 280.

5556. (R. S. § 2868.) Forfeiture for unlawful transfer.

f any merchandise, so unladen from on board any such vessel, ll be put or received into any other vessel, except in the case of h accident, necessity, or distress, to be so notified and proved, the ster of any such vessel into which the merchandise shall be so and received, and every other person aiding and assisting there- shall be liable to a penalty of treble the value of the merchandise, l the vessel in which they shall be so put shall be forfeited.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 28, 1 Stat. 648.

Provisions that no vessel used by a common carrier shall be subject to forfeiture for violation of revenue laws unless it appears that the owners or masters of such vessel were a consenting party or privy to the illegal act, were made by Act Feb. 8, 1881, c. 34, post, § 5766.

Notes of Decisions

iolation of act in general.—This sec- is not violated by an unlading and nsfer of cargo after vessels have ually arrived within the limits of collection district, if they are not nd to the United States, and have cargo destined to be unladen in the United States. The Coquitlam (1896) 77 Fed. 744, 23 C. C. A. 438, reversing (D. C. 1893) 57 Fed. 706.

The reception by one vessel of goods unladen from another without a permit subjects the receiving vessel to forfeiture, irrespective of a fraudulent intent on the part of her officers. The Ploughboy (D. C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 11,229.

The facts that efforts were made to find an officer, which were unsuccessful on account of the lateness of the hour, and that the master was impatient to proceed, furnish no legal excuse. Id.

Acts of congress declaring forfeitures of vessels and cargoes for violation of the revenue laws are not to be construed with the strictness applicable to penal laws, but rather so as to accomplish the purpose for which they were intended. U. S. v. The Coquitlam (D. C. 1893) 57 Fed. 706, following Ten Cases of Opium (D. C. 1864) Fed. Cas. No. 13,828, and distinguishin The Cargo ex Lady Essex (D. C 1889) 39 Fed. 765, and questions cer tified to and determined The Coquit lam v. U. S. (1896) 16 Sup. Ct. 1117 163 U. S. 346, 41 L. Ed. 184.

When a vessel comes within fou leagues of the shore of the Unite States, and makes a transfer of mer chandise with another vessel there without authority from the revenue of ficers, it should be held to have "ar rived" there, and be treated as a ves sel "bound" to the United States. Id Cited without definite application The Saratoga (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 322 324.

§ 5557. (R. S. § 2869, as amended, Act June 5, 1894, c. 92, § 2.) Permits.

The collector jointly with the naval officer, if any, or alone wher there is none, shall, according to the best of his or their judgment o information, make a gross estimate of the amount of the duties o the merchandise to which the entry of any owner or consignee, hi factor or agent shall relate, which estimate shall be indorsed upo such entry and signed by the officer making the same. The amoun of the estimated duties having been first paid, or secured to be paid pursuant to the provisions of this title, the collector shall, togethe with the naval officer, where there is one, or alone where there i none, grant a permit to deliver the merchandise, whereof entry ha been so made, and then, and not before, it shall be lawful to delive the merchandise.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 49, 1 Stat. 664. Act June 5, 1894, c. 92, § 2, 2 Stat. 86.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking ou after the words "grant a permit to" the word "land," and by inserting in plac thereof the word "deliver," and by striking out after the words "it shall b lawful to" the word "land," and by inserting in place thereof the word "de liver," as set forth here, by Act June 5, 1894, c. 92, last cited above.

Provisions for permits for immediate lading or unlading of vessels admitte to preliminary entry were made by Act Feb. 13, 1911, c. 46, § 4, post, § 5562

Cited without definite application, Porter v. Beard (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 554, 555, 124 U. S. 429, 31 L. Ed. 490; Davies v. Miller (1889) 9 Sup. Ct. 560, 130 U. S. 284, 32 L. Ed. 932; Constable v. National S. S. Co. (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 1062, 1071, 154 U. S. 51, 38 L. Ed. 903; Barney v. Rickard (1895) 15 Sup. Ct. 642, 644, 157 U. S. 352, 3 L. Ed. 730; Saltonstall v. Birtwe (1895) 66 Fed. 969, 14 C. C. A. 20 (affirmed [1896] 17 Sup. Ct. 19, 164 U S. 54, 41 L. Ed. 348); U. S. v. Leg (1901) 105 Fed. 930, 933, 45 C. C. A 134.

§ 5558. (R. S. § 2870.) What a permit must state.

All permits shall specify, as particularly as may be, the merchan dise to be delivered, namely, the number and description of the pack ages, whether trunk, bale, chest, box, case, pipe, hogshead, barrel keg, or any other packages whatever, with the mark and number o each package, and, as far as circumstances will admit, the content thereof, together with the names of the vessel and master, in whic and the place from whence they were imported; and no merchandis shall be delivered by any inspector or other officer of the custom that does not fully agree with the description thereof in such permit

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 49, 1 Stat. 664.

Cited without definite application, Hogarth Shipping Co. v. Federal Sugar Refining Co. (D. C. 1909) 174 Fed 278, 280.

(R. S. § 2871. Repealed.)

This section, providing for the granting of a special license to unlade at ight, and the amendment thereof by Act June 30, 1906, c. 3909, 34 Stat. 633, ere repealed by section 6 of Act Feb. 13, 1911, c. 64, the preceding sections f which are set forth post, §§ 5559-5562, 5571. Said sections were substiutes for the provisions so repealed.

559. (Act Feb. 13, 1911, c. 46, § 1.) License to lade or unlade at night.

Jpon arrival at any port in the United States of any vessel or er conveyance from a foreign port or place, either directly or way of another port in the United States, or upon such arrival m another port in the United States of any vessel or other conance belonging to a line designated by the Secretary of the Treas- as a common carrier of bonded merchandise, and, after due re- t and entry of such vessel in accordance with existing law or due ort, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may escribe, of the arrival of such other conveyances, the collector of stoms, with the concurrence of the naval officer at ports where there a naval officer, shall grant, upon proper application therefor, a ecial license to lade or unlade the cargo of any such vessel or other nveyance at night; that is to say, between sunset and sunrise. 6 Stat. 899.)

This section and the three sections next following were part of an act entitled "An act to provide for the lading or unlading of vessels at night, and the preliminary entry of vessels, and for other purposes."

Section 5 of the Act is set forth post, § 5571.

Section 6 of the Act repealed provisions of the same nature made by R. S. § 2871, amended by Act June 30, 1906, c. 3909, 34 Stat. 633.

Act June 5, 1894, c. 92, § 1, 28 Stat. 85, and the amendment thereof by Act May 31, 1900, c. 600, 31 Stat. 249, were also repealed by said section 6.

Notes of Decisions

Decision under prior act.—See Contable v. National S. S. Co. (1894) 14 up. Ct. 1062, 1071, 154 U. S. 51, 38 L. Ed. 903; The Egypt (D. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 320, 331, 333.

5560. (Act Feb. 13, 1911, c. 46, § 2.) Preliminary entry of vessel to boarding officer, and lading or unlading thereupon.

The master of any vessel from a foreign port or place, upon arival within a customs collection district of the United States, ound to a port of entry in such district, may make preliminary entry f the vessel by making oath or affirmation to the truth of the stateents contained in his original manifest and delivering his said origial manifest to the customs officer who shall board such vessel within uch district, with a copy of said original manifest for the use of the aval officer at ports where there is a naval officer; whereupon, upon rrival at the wharf or place of discharge, the lading or unlading of he cargo of such vessel may proceed, by both day and night, under uch regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. 36 Stat. 900.)

5561. (Act Feb. 13, 1911, c. 46, § 3.) Bond for special license to lade or unlade at night.

Before any such special license to lade or unlade at night shall e granted and before any permit shall be issued for the immediate ading or unlading of any such vessel after preliminary entry, as ereinbefore provided, either by day or by night the master, owner, gent, or consignee of such vessel or other conveyance shall make roper application therefor and shall at the same time execute and leliver to the United States, through the collector of customs, a good and sufficient bond, in a penal sum to be approved by the said collector, conditioned to indemnify and save the United States harmess from any and all losses and liabilities which may occur or be occasioned by reason of the granting of such special license or the issuing or granting of such permit for immediate lading or unlading or the master, owner, agent, consignee, or probable consignee, as aforesaid, may execute and deliver to the United States, in like manner and form, a good and sufficient bond, in the penal sum of fifty thousand dollars, conditioned to indemnify and save the United States harmless from any and all losses and liabilities which may occur or be occasioned by reason of the granting of such special licenses and the issuing or granting of such permits for immediate lading or unlading by day and night during a period of six months. (36 Stat. 900.)

§ 5562. (Act Feb. 13, 1911, c. 46, § 4.) Issue of special licenses and permits.

Application having been duly made and the required bond having been duly executed and delivered, special license or licenses to lade or unlade at night after regular entry of vessels, and due report of other conveyances, may be granted, and a permit or permits may be issued for the immediate lading and unlading, by day and night, of vessels admitted to preliminary entry, or of other conveyances of which due report of arrival has been made: Provided, That the provisions of this Act shall extend and be applicable to any vessels or other conveyances bound to a port of entry in the United States to be unladen at a port of delivery or to be unladen at a place of discharge designated by the Secretary of the Treasury under the provisions of section twenty-seven hundred and seventy-six of the Revised Statutes as amended: Provided further, That when preliminary entry of a vessel shall be made by the master as herein provided he shall not be relieved from making due report and entry of his vessel at the custom-house in accordance with existing law, and any liability of the master or owner of any such vessel to the owner or consignee of any merchandise landed from her shall not be affected by the granting of such special license, but such liability shall continue until the merchandise is properly removed from the dock whereon the same may be landed. (36 Stat. 900.)

The use of the term "port of delivery" was discontinued, and all ports of delivery not made ports of entry were abolished, by section 2 of the Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act. Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

R. S. § 2776, mentioned in this section, is set forth ante, § 5472.

§ 5563. (R. S. § 2872, as amended, Act June 26, 1884, c. 121, § 25.) Time of delivery.

Except as authorized by the preceding section, no merchandise brought in any vessel from any foreign port shall be unladen or delivered from such vessel within the United States but in open day—that is to say, between the rising and the setting of the sun—except by special license from the collector of the port, and naval officer of the same, where there is one, for that purpose, nor at any time without a permit from the collector, and naval officer, if any, for such unlading or delivery.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 50, 1 Stat. 665. Act June 26, 1884, c. 121, § 25, 23 Stat. 59.

The "preceding section," R. S. § 2871, mentioned in this section, was repealed by section 6 of Act Feb. 13, 1911, c. 46, sections 1–4 of which are set forth ante, §§ 5559–5562.

This section as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by Act June 26, 1884, c. 121, § 25, 23 Stat. 59, by adding at the end of the section the following provision: "When the license to unlade between the setting and rising of the sun is granted to a sailing vessel under this section, a fixed, uniform, and reasonable compensation may be allowed to the inspector or inspectors for services between the setting and rising of the sun, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe to be received by the collector om the master, owner, or consignee of the vessel, and to be paid by him to e inspector or inspectors." This provision was superseded by provisions of e same nature made by Act Feb. 13, 1911, c. 46, § 5, post, § 5571.

Notes of Decisions

e of act in general.—What con- es unloading goods without a per- U. S. v. The Virgin (C. C. 1806) Cas. No. 16,625.

prohibition of unloading without mit applies, though the port is at originally intended for the port scharge. The Industry (C. C. Fed. Cas. No. 7,028.

ion 5555, ante, and not this sec- applies where the goods imported nladen before the vessel has ar- within a collection district. The (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 33.

ds landed without a permit, by the unlawful act of the mas- nd without the knowledge or con- of the owner or consignee, are t to forfeiture. U. S. v. Twenty of Matches (D. C. 1868) Fed. No. 16,559.

iable goods, imported as passen- baggage, where no attempt was to have them passed as such, he owner, without knowledge of seizure, offered them with cor- ills of lading and moneys for en- the customhouse, held not for- le. U. S. v. Ninety-Five Boxes, D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 15,891.

illegal unlading after arrival at should be prosecuted under this n. The Coquitlam (D. C. 1893) ed. 706, 713, questions certified preme Court (1895) 70 Fed. 336, C. A. 674; questions answered) 16 Sup. Ct. 1117, 163 U. S. 41 L. Ed. 184, and reversed) 77 Fed. 744, 23 C. C. A. 438.

ere a person arriving in the d States took with him from the articles which he had willfully ed to declare to the customs offi- he was guilty of unloading mer- ise without a permit, in viola- of this section. U. S. v. 218½ s Loose Emeralds (D. C. 1907) Fed. 643, judgment affirmed 218½ s Loose Emeralds v. U. S. (1907) Fed. 839, 83 C. C. A. 475.

"Merchandise."—This section s to goods the importation of was prohibited by law. Har- v. U. S. (1814) 12 U. S. (8 h) 109, 3 L. Ed. 504.

er dollars are "goods, wares, and andize," for the landing of which nit from the customhouse is nec- . The Elizabeth and Jane (C. 22) Fed. Cas. No. 4,355.

urtenances or equipments of a purchased bona fide for its use, be landed without a permit. U. Chain Cable (C. C. 1836) Fed. No. 14,776.

ds free of duty cannot be law- unladen and delivered without a n permit from the collector and officer. U. S. v. The Sarah B. Harris (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,223.

A vessel is not forfeited by the landing without a permit of two gallons of brandy, taken on board by a seaman for his own use on the voyage home. The Sarah Bernice (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 12,343.

Goods are subject to forfeiture, though they were the product of the United States, and simply transported to a foreign country, and were exempt from duty, and all the laws and regulations relating to such transit had been complied with. U. S. v. Twenty Cases of Matches (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 16,559.

Cases of goods landed with the owner's personal baggage are subject to forfeiture. U. S. v. Three Cases, Marked A. D. 1, 2, and 3 (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 16,498.

The compass of a steamship, being part of its apparel and tackle, is not "merchandise." U. S. v. Fry (D. C. 1892) 48 Fed. 713, following Same v. Chain Cable (C. C. 1836) Fed. Cas. No. 14,776.

—— "From any foreign port."—Vessel forfeited for unlading foreign goods without a permit, etc., although not actually brought by her from a foreign port, but transshipped into her on the homeward voyage. The Harmony (C. C. 1812) Fed. Cas. No. 6,081.

A vessel engaged in the coasting trade, having goods on board, which have not paid duties, is not within the provision as to landing foreign goods without a permit. Jackson v. U. S. (C. C. 1826) Fed. Cas. No. 7,149.

Mackerel, the property of an American citizen, caught in an American vessel by an American seaman, and shipped in an American vessel from a foreign port of transshipment, cannot be landed without a written permit. U. S. v. The Sarah B. Harris (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,223.

A vessel, arriving from a foreign port, is forfeited by landing goods without a permit from the collector after her arrival in the port of discharge. The John C. Brooks (D. C. 1861) Fed. Cas. No. 7,336.

Goods of whatever growth or manufacture brought from a foreign port or place, and landed at a port or place within the United States without a permit, are forfeited. In re Ten Cases of Opium (D. C. 1864) Fed. Cas. No. 13,828.

Opium shipped from San Francisco to Portland by the way of Victoria, B. C., and taken ashore there, for however short a time, cannot be landed by the same vessel at Portland without a permit. Id.

The carrying out of salt, and its return to the port of departure by a fishing vessel, which touched at a foreign port, is not a bringing of goods from a foreign port. The E. K. Dresser (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 4,324.

—— "Unlading or delivery."—Goods were taken at night in a boat from the vessel, and when partly unloaded on the wharf defendant was discovered, and the goods were all returned to the vessel. Held not a landing. U. S. v. Smith (C. C. 1808) Fed. Cas. No. 16,-343.

The removal of dutiable goods from the vessel to the wharf is an unlading, and, where no permit was granted, will subject them to a forfeiture. U. S. v. Nine Trunks (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 15,885.

The transshipment of a cargo from one vessel to another, while lying at a wharf in port, is an unlading and delivery. The Fame (D. C. 1858) Fed. Cas. No. 4,633.

A discharge of cargo into lighters is not an unloading of them. U. S. v. The Express (D. C. 1858) Fed. Cas. No. 15,066.

—— "Permit."—Goods landed under a permit obtained by collusion with a deputy collector are forfeited, as suc permit is void. Bottomley v. U. S. (C. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 1,688.

A permit obtained by fraud or a oral permit from the custom officer land goods will not save a forfeitur The Sarah B. Harris (D. C. 1867 Fed. Cas. No. 12,344.

—— Intention.—Innocence of inte tion cannot, any more than ignoran of law, afford a defense to the mast or owner of a vessel for a violation this act. U. S. v. The Sarah B. Ha ris (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,22 Same v. The Cuba (D. C. 1869) I 14,898.

Cited without definite applicatio The John Griffin (1872) 15 Wall. 2 33, 21 L. Ed. 80; Friedenstein v. U S. (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 838, 839, 125 U S. 224, 31 L. Ed. 736; U. S. v. Or Pearl Necklace (1901) 111 Fed. 16 169, 49 C. C. A. 287, 56 L. R. A. 13 One Pearl Chain v. U. S. (1903) 12 Fed. 371, 374, 59 C. C. A. 499; Th Egypt (D. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 320, 32 U. S. v. A Lot of Jewelry, etc. (D. C 1894) 59 Fed. 684, 687; Same v. On Pearl Necklace (D. C. 1900) 105 Fe 357.

§ 5564. (R. S. § 2873.) Penalty for unlawful delivery.

If any merchandise shall be unladen or delivered from any ves sel, contrary to the preceding section, the master of such vessel, an every other person who shall knowingly be concerned, or aiding therein, or in removing, storing, or otherwise securing such mer chandise, shall each be liable to a penalty of four hundred dollars fo each offense, and shall be disabled from holding any office of trust o profit under the United States, for a term not exceeding seven years and the collector of the district shall advertise the name of such per son in a newspaper printed in the State in which he resides, withi twenty days after each respective conviction.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 50, 1 Stat. 665.

Notes of Decisions

Construction in general.—Where a person is selling goods in his possession which he concedes to have been smuggled, he is guilty of keeping or storing goods with knowledge that they were landed without license. Walsh v. U. S. (C. C. 1847) Fed. Cas. No. 17,116.

This section is not to be applied in cases evidently outside of the intention of the statute, such as derelict or salvaged goods, or goods unladen in case of accident to save them from loss, nor to cases of unlading by a superior attacking force, nor, in like manner, where it is affirmatively shown that it could not, by any practicable means, be prevented by the master or person in command. U. S. v. Curtis (D. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 184.

As guilty knowledge or evil intent are not necessary ingredients in statutory crimes or penalties, where the intention of the statute appears not to make them so, in an action against the master of a vessel, for unloading goods without a permit, the master's want of knowledge or of participation in the unlawful acts is no defense. Id.

Liability of master or other person in command.—Section 5464, ante, defining "master" as any person having the chief charge or command of a vessel, and this section are to be construed together as imposing only one penalty for unlading without a permit, viz., a penalty upon the master, or, if he be not in command at the time, then upon the person who is in command of the vessel. U. S. v. Curtis (D. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 184.

The design of this section is to secure vigilance on the part of masters, or the persons having charge of the vessel, in preventing illicit traffic, which, by virtue of their command, they are presumed to be able to prevent. Id.

Where 77 packages of cigars were secretly lowered for the purpose of ling from the bows of the steam- at 2 o'clock a. m., while she t anchor at lower quarantine, York harbor, while the master bsent from the ship, he having the day previous to the New custom house, 15 miles distant, ke entry of the arrival of the , as he was bound to do by law, hat, though the penalty of $400 incurred, the suit should have against the person in actual com- of the vessel at the time, and gainst the absent master, and he latter was not liable. Id.

Trial.—Under prior statute, see U. S. v. Curtis (D. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 184.

Information.—If the information be filed by the district attorney on behalf of the United States, though expressed to be for the benefit of the collector and all concerned, it will be sufficient. Walsh v. U. S. (C. C. 1847) Fed. Cas. No. 17,116.

Cited without definite application, Peisch v. Ware (1808) 4 Cranch, 347, 2 L. Ed. 643; Locke v. U. S. (1813) 7 Cranch, 339, 344, 3 L. Ed. 364; The Saratoga (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 382, 383; Id. (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 322.

55. (R. S. § 2874.) Forfeiture for unlawful delivery.

l merchandise, so unladen or delivered contrary to the provisions ction twenty-eight hundred and seventy-two, shall become for- l, and may be seized by any of the officers of the customs; and e the value thereof, according to the highest market price of the , at the port or district where landed, shall amount to four hun- dollars, the vessel, tackle, apparel, and furniture shall be sub- o like forfeiture and seizure.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 50, 1 Stat. 665.

Notes of Decisions

visions as to forfeiture of vessel. §§ 5766, 5792, post.

ion 5766, post, provides that no shall be subject to seizure by of the penalty incurred under ection, unless it shall appear that aster at the time of the alleged as a consenting party or privy o. The Saratoga (C. C. 1883) l. 382.

ds landed at different times, but the same cargo and vessel, may ded together to make up the ite amount to forfeit the vessel. arah Bernice (D. C. 1867) Fed. No. 12,343.

eiture in general.—As to grounds feiture, see notes under § 5563,

Information or libel.—It is not ary to state the time and place portation, nor the vessel in which s made; but it is sufficient to that they were unknown. Locke S. (1813) 7 Cranch, 339, 3 L. 64.

rmations of seizure for forfei- are civil proceedings in rem. nstein v. U. S. (1888) 8 Sup. 8, 839, 842, 125 U. S. 224, 31 . 736.

rmation must allege that the were unladen in some port or within a collection district, with- permit from its collector, or that ort or district is unknown. U. Burnham (C. C. 1816) Fed. Cas. 4,690.

ibel for a forfeiture for a viola- of customs laws should substan- agree with the terms of the stat- The Betsy (C. C. 1818) Fed. No. 1,365.

A libel need not allege the goods to be of foreign growth. Id.

Forfeiture for landing goods under a collusive permit may be enforced upon a general count charging that the goods were landed without a permit. Bottomley v. U. S. (C. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 1,688.

Allegations in the libel as to the goods landed and their value bind the government. The Sarah Bernice (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 12,343.

—— Evidence.—The diamonds seized were claimed by a third person. Held, that the declarations of the person having them in custody, made to the agent in regard to them while he was making an official examination as to whether they should be seized for forfeiture, and while he had them in his possession, were admissible against the claimant as part of the res gestæ. Friedenstein v. U. S. (1888) 125 U. S. 224, 8 Sup. Ct. 838, 31 L. Ed. 736.

The defense that the party has been prevented by inevitable accident, necessity, or distress from complying with the requisitions of this section and section 5807, post, is not admissible under a plea which simply puts in issue a denial of the facts constituting a forfeiture thereunder. U. S. v. Hayward (C. C. 1815) Fed. Cas. No. 15,336.

On an information of forfeiture, the goods themselves are regarded as the defendant, and it is no objection to the admission of proof of communications made to the revenue officer that they were made in the absence of the claimant. U. S. v. Nine Trunks (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,886.

Proof of foreign growth or manufacture of alleged unlawfully imported goods is not necessary. The Active (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 33.

Vessel forfeited for smuggling cigars on the testimony of their owner, who produced an invoice for their shipment to the place from which the vessel sailed, and a letter from the master of the vessel stating that they had been shipped, and that he had paid the master the agreed freight, though the master denied the shipment. The John Griffin (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 7,-348.

Evidence is not sufficient to sustain forfeiture of vessel for smuggling where the only evidence is that of the seamen who were arrested in the act of smuggling, and promised immunity if they would testify against the vessel. The Cleopatra (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 2,886.

—— Trial.—Where, on the trial of an information, the claimants prayed the court to instruct the jury that the United States were not entitled to recover unless the goods were unladen and delivered without permits, and the jury were told, in reply, "If the permits were obtained by fraud and improper means, they were of no effect, and a mere nullity, and the United States were entitled to recover if the goods were imported with the view to defraud the revenues," it was held that, whether or not the permits were obtained by fraud or improper means, was a point in the cause for the jury to decide, and that the instruction was calculated to mislead. Caldwell v. U. S. (1850) 49 U. S. (8 How.) 366, 12 L. Ed. 1115.

Where the evidence fully proved that imported packages were unladen and delivered without the required permit, the direction of the court to return a verdict condemning them to the use of the government was correct. Four Packages v. U. S. (1878) 97 U. S. 404, 412, 24 L. Ed. 1031.

Diamonds were found by a government agent at a jewelry store where the person having them in charge was trying to dispose of them, and taken to the custom house, where, after an examination of such person, they were appraised and placed in the seizure room. Held, that it was not calling for a conclusion of law to ask the agent, "When and where did you make the seizure of those diamonds?" Friedenstein v. U. S. (1888) 125 U. S. 224, 8 Sup. Ct. 838, 31 L. Ed. 736.

A libel for forfeiture of a vessel charging the violation of certain provisions of the law will be dismissed if the facts do not authorize a forfeiture, although an offense against other provisions of the same law is shown. U. S. v. The Hunter (C. C. 1806) Fed. Cas. No. 15,428.

—— Judgment.—It is wholly immaterial who makes the seizure, or whether it was irregularly made or not, or whether the cause assigned originally for the seizure be that for which t condemnation takes place, provided t adjudication is for a sufficient cau Taylor v. U. S. (1845) 3 How. 197, 2 205, 11 L. Ed. 559.

—— Purchaser or lienor.—The Unit States has no title in the goods until election has been made to recover t goods or their value, and any rights the goods acquired bona fide by thi persons in the meantime are protect Caldwell v. U. S. (1850) 8 How. 3 379. 12 L. Ed. 1115.

The fact that a ship has been arre ed for smuggling, and released on bo held sufficient to put persons subs quently furnishing her with supplies inquiry as to her character, and to d feat their claims, as against the gover ment's right to a forfeiture. U. S. The Haytian Republic (D. C. 1894) Fed. 120.

Where, by the terms of revenue la the penalty of its violation is the forfe ture of the goods without alternativ then the property in said goods vests once in the government, and no pu chaser of said goods, however innocen can acquire any title to them. Th remain liable to seizure and confiscatio wherever found. Summers v. Cla (1877) 29 La. Ann. 93.

—— Remission.—Amount allowed di trict attorney for attending an exan ination to procure remission of a forfe ture. The Pacific (D. C. 1866) Fe Cas. No. 10,645.

Where a vessel was condemned an sold by decree of a United States cou as a forfeiture under this section, fo landing after sunset certain cases o foreign gin and brandy, valued at mor than $400, the proceeds of the sale be ing still retained subject to the order of the court, held that the owner an a mortgagee of the vessel are person who incurred the forfeiture within th meaning of sections 10132, 10133, pos which authorize the Secretary of th Treasury, after certain proceedings ha to remit such forfeiture, "if in his opin ion the same shall have been incurre without willful negligence or any in tention of fraud in the person or per sons incurring the forfeiture." (1880 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 473.

—— Under earlier statutes.—Se Phile v. The Anna (Pa. 1787) 1 Dal 197; Richards v. Tabb (Va. 1788) Call. 522; Stratton v. Hague (Va 1790) 4 Call. 564.

Cited without definite applicatio Peisch v. Ware (1808) 4 Cranch, 347 2 L. Ed. 643; Harford v. U. S. (1814 8 Cranch, 109, 3 L. Ed. 504; U. S. v One Pearl Necklace (1901) 111 Fed 164, 169, 49 C. C. A. 287, 56 L. R. A 130; The Saratoga (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed 322; U. S. v. A Lot of Jewelry, etc (D. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 684, 687; Sam v. One Pearl Necklace (D. C. 1900) 10 Fed. 357.

56. (R. S. § 2875.) Inspectors.

ıe collector of any district at which any vessel arrives, immely on her first coming within such district, or the surveyor of port where such vessel is, may put and keep on board such vesvhile remaining within such district, or in going from one dis- to another, one or more inspectors to examine the cargo or ents of such vessel, and to superintend the delivery thereof, or much thereof as shall be delivered within the United States, to perform such other duties, according to law, as they shall be ted by the collector, or surveyer, to perform for the better se- g the collection of the duties. Only collectors shall have power, ever, to put inspectors on board vessels, to go from one district nother.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 53, 1 Stat. 667.

Provisions fixing the compensation of keepers of life-saving and life-boat stations, conferring on said keepers the powers of inspectors of customs, requiring em to take charge of property saved from shipwrecks, and requiring them to side at or near their respective stations, were made by Act June 18, 1878, c. 55, § 4, post, § 8531.

Notes of Decisions

ding cargoes for inspection.—The tary of the Treasury has plenary by statute to superintend the tion of duties or imposts and ton- and to prescribe regulations not sistent with law to prevent frauds the customs revenue. He may au- e his agents, in the discharge of duties, to insist that all cargoes d be actually landed for inspec- and in permitting the discharge of cargoes upon lighters he is granting a privilege to the importer. In the exercise of this privilege by the importer he suffers no wrong in being required to pay for watchmen's services. Arbuckle Bros. v. U. S. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 105.

Cited without definite application, Hartranft v. Oliver (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 958, 960, 125 U. S. 525, 31 L. Ed. 813.

67. (R. S. § 2876.) Duties of inspectors.

ıe inspector shall make known to the master of such vessel the es he is to perform; and shall suffer no merchandise to be un- ı, or otherwise removed from such vessel, without a permit in ng from the collector of the port, and naval officer thereof, if The inspector shall enter in a book, to be by him kept accordto such a form as shall be prescribed or approved by the color, the name of the person in whose behalf such permits are ted, together with the particulars therein specified, and the ks, numbers, kinds, and description of the respective packages h shall be unladen pursuant thereto, and shall keep a like account e book of all merchandise which, not having been entered within time limited by this Title, or for some other cause, has been to the store or warehouse provided for the reception of such chandise; such book shall be delivered to the surveyor in the th of January in every year for his inspection, and immediately such inspection be transmitted by the surveyor, with such obations as he may think necessary thereon, to the collector, to eposited in his office.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 53, 1 Stat. 667.

Cited without definite application, Hartranft v. Oliver (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 958, 960, 125 U. S. 525, 31 L. Ed. 813.

568. (R. S. § 2877.) Delivery of cargo.

he inspector shall attend to the delivery of the cargo under his , at all times when the unlading or delivery of merchandise is ful, particularly from the rising to the setting of the sun on each Sundays and the fourth day of July in each year excepted; for ch purpose he shall constantly attend and remain on board the vesthe deliveries from which he is to superintend, or at any other sta- where his inspection is necessary. The inspector shall not quit such station or place without the leave of the surveyor of the po first obtained, who shall appoint another inspector, if he deems necessary, to supply the place of such inspector during his absenc and any inspector who shall neglect or in any manner act contra to the duties hereby enjoined, shall for the first offense be li ble to a penalty of the sum of fifty dollars, and for the second o fense shall be displaced, and be incapable of holding any station trust or profit under the revenue laws of the United States, for term not exceeding seven years.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 53, 1 Stat. 667.

§ 5569. (R. S. § 2878.) Compensation, etc., of inspectors.

No inspector shall perform any other duties or service on boa any vessel, the superintendence of which is committed to him, f any person whatever, other than what is required by this Title, u der the penalty of being disabled from acting any longer as an i spector of the customs; the wages or compensation of such i spector as may proceed from one district to another, shall be d frayed by the master of the vessel committed to his care; every i spector or other officer of the revenue, while performing any du on board any vessel, not in a port of the United States, dischargin her cargo, shall be entitled to receive from the master of such vess such provisions and accommodations as are usually supplied to pa sengers, or as the state and condition of such vessel will admit, o receiving therefor fifty cents a day; and any master of any vess who shall refuse such provisions and reasonable accommodation shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 53, 1 Stat. 667.

Provisions requiring the inspector quitting the vessel at night to secure th hatches with locks, and prohibiting the opening of such locks until the follow ing morning, in the presence of the said inspector, were made by R. S. § 307 post, § 5773.

§ 5570. (R. S. § 2879.) Compensation of inspectors in case o delay.

If, by reason of the delivery of the cargo in several districts, mor than the term allowed by law shall in the whole be spent therein the wages or compensation of the inspector who may be employe on board of any vessel, in respect to which such term may be so ex ceeded, shall, for every day of such excess, be paid by the master o owner; and the inspector shall, previously to the clearance of th vessel, render an exact account to the collector of all such compen sation as has been paid, or is due and payable by the master o owner.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 56, 1 Stat. 670.

§ 5571. (Act Feb. 13, 1911, c. 46, § 5.) Compensation of inspec tors, etc., for night service; boarding officers may administe oaths.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall fix a reasonable rate of ex tra compensation for night services of inspectors, storekeepers weighers, and other customs officers and employees in connectio with the lading or unlading of cargo at night, or the lading at nigh of cargo or merchandise for transportation in bond or for expor tation in bond, or for the exportation with benefit of drawback, bu such rate of compensation shall not exceed an amount equal to doubl the rate of compensation allowed to each such officer or employee fo like services rendered by day, the said extra compensation to be pai by the master, owner, agent, or consignee of such vessel or other con veyance, whenever such special license or permit for immediate lading or unlading or for lading or unlading at night or on Sundays or holi days shall be granted, to the collector of customs, who shall pay the same to the several customs officers and employees entitled thereto ɔrding to the rates fixed therefor by the Secretary of the Treasury. toms officers acting as boarding officers, and any customs officer may be designated for that purpose by the collector of customs, hereby authorized to administer the oath or affirmation herein vided for, and such boarding officers shall be allowed extra com- sation for services in boarding vessels at night or on Sundays nolidays—at the rate prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury herein provided, the said extra compensation to be paid by the ster, owner, agent, or consignee of such vessels. (36 Stat. 901.)

See notes to section 1 of this act, ante, § 5559.

This section superseded a provision of the same nature made by an amend- nent of R. S. § 2872, ante, § 5563, by Act June 26, 1884, c. 121, § 25, 23 Stat. 59.

572. (R. S. § 2880, as amended, Act May 9, 1896, c. 164.) Time for unloading.

Vhenever any merchandise shall be imported into any port of the ted States from any foreign port, in any vessel, at the expiration ten working days if the vessel is less than five hundred tons ster, and within fifteen working days if it is of five hundred tons ster and less than one thousand, and within twenty working days is of one thousand tons register and less than fifteen hundred, within twenty-five working days if it is of fifteen hundred tons ster and upward, not including legal holidays and days when the dition of the weather prevents the unlading of the vessel with ty to its cargo, after the time within which the report of the ster of any vessel is required to be made to the collector of the rict, if there is found any merchandise other than has been re- ted for some other district or some foreign port, the collector ll take possession thereof; but with the consent of the owner onsignee of any merchandise, or with the consent of the owner or ster of the vessel in which the same may be imported, the mer- ndise may be taken possession of by the collector after one day's ce to the collector of the district. All merchandise so taken shall delivered pursuant to the order of the collector of the district, which a certificate or receipt shall be granted.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 56, 1 Stat. 669. Act March 2, 1861, c. 81, 12 Stat. 209. Act May 9, 1896, c. 164, 29 Stat. 115.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"Whenever any merchandise shall be imported into any port of the United States from any foreign port, in any vessel, at the expiration of eight work- ng days, if the vessel is less than three hundred tons burden, and within twelve working days, if it is of three hundred tons burden and less than eight hundred, and within fifteen days, if it is of eight hundred tons burden and upward, after the time within which the report of the master of any ves- sel is required to be made to the collector of the district, if there is found any merchandise other than has been reported for some other district, or some foreign port, the collector shall take possession thereof; but with the con- sent of the owner or consignee of any merchandise, or with the consent of the owner or master of the vessel in which the same may be imported, the merchandise may be taken possession of by the collector after one day's notice to the collector of the district. All merchandise so taken shall be delivered pursuant to the order of the collector of the district, for which a certificate or receipt shall be granted."

It was amended to read as set forth here by Act May 9, 1896, c. 164, last cited above.

Notes of Decisions

emurrage claims.—This section has relation to claims for demurrage. Hundred and Seventy-Five Tons Mineral Phosphates (D. C. 1881) 9 209, 210.

Cited without definite application, Bartlett v. Lockwood (1896) 16 Sup. Ct. 334, 337, 160 U. S. 357, 40 L. Ed. 455; U. S. v. Twenty-Five Packages of Panama Hats (1913) 34 Sup. Ct. 63, 65, 231 U. S. 358, 58 L. Ed. 267.

§ 5573. (R. S. § 2881, as amended, Act June 3, 1892, c. 86.) Sa and coal and other articles.

The limitation of time for unlading, prescribed by the precedin section, shall not extend to vessels laden exclusively with coal, sal sugar, hides, dyewoods, wool, or jute butts, consigned to one co signee, arriving at a port for orders; but if the master of any such ve sel requires a longer time to discharge her cargo, the wages or com pensation of the inspector, for every day's attendance exceeding th number of days allowed by law, shall be paid by the master c owner; and thereupon the collector is hereby authorized and requi ed to allow such longer time, not exceeding fifteen days.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 56, 1 Stat. 669. Act June 3, 1892, c. 86, 2 Stat. 41.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"The limitation of the time for unlading, prescribed by the preceding sectio shall not extend to vessels laden with salt or coal; but if the master or ow er of any vessel laden with salt or coal requires a longer time to discharge h cargo, the wages, or compensation of the inspector, for every day's attendanc exceeding the number of days allowed by law, shall be paid by the master c owner; and thereupon the collector is hereby authorized and required to a low such longer time as, in his judgment, he may think necessary to discharg such cargo, not exceeding fifteen days."

It was amended to read as set forth here, by Act June 3, 1892, c. 86, las cited above.

§ 5574. (R. S. § 2882.) Removal from wharf.

No merchandise, brought in any vessel, from any foreign port o place, requiring to be weighed, gauged, or measured, in order t ascertain the duties thereupon, shall, without the consent of th proper officer, be removed from any wharf, or place, upon which th same may be landed or put, before the same shall have been s weighed, gauged, or measured, and if spirits, wines, or sugars, be fore the proof or quality and quantity thereof is ascertained an marked thereon, by or under the direction of the proper officer; an if any such merchandise shall be removed from such wharf or place unless with the consent of the proper officer, obtained before th same has been so weighed, gauged, or measured, and if spirits, wines or sugars, before the proof or quality and quantity has been s ascertained and marked, the same shall be forfeited, and may b seized by any officer of the customs or inspection.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 51, 1 Stat. 665.

Notes of Decisions

Consent to removal from wharf.—Wine and spirits, saved from a wreck and landed, are not liable to forfeiture because they were removed without the consent of the collector before the quantity and quality were ascertained and the duties paid. Peisch v. Ware (1808) 4 Cranch, 347, 363, 2 L. Ed. 643.

A collector cannot impose any conditions to the granting of permission to allow goods discharged from a ship to remain on the wharf than are prescrib ed by statute or the secretary's regula tions, and to exact more would be un lawful constraint, and hence duress an void. The Egypt (C. C. 1885) 25 Fed 320, 331.

Cited without definite application. In re Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 228, 231 (affirmed [1893] 55 Fed. 383, 5 C. C. A. 142); Young v. Lehmann (D. C. 1886) 27 Fed. 383, 385.

§ 5575. (R. S. § 2883.) Indorsement on permit for landing spirits, etc.

Every permit for the unlading of spirits, wines, or any part thereof, shall, previous to such landing or unlading thereof, be produced to the officer of inspection, who shall record or register in proper books the contents thereof, and shall indorse thereupon the word "Inspected," the time when, and his own name; after which he shall return the permit to the person by whom it was produced, and then, and not otherwise, it shall be lawful to land the spirits, or wines, therein specified; and if spirits or wines shall be landed without such indorseupon the permit granted for that purpose, the master of the l from which the same shall have been so landed shall for every offense be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars, and the s or wines so landed shall be forfeited.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 37, 1 Stat. 658.

d without definite application affirmed (1893) 55 Fed. 383, 5 C. C. A. Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 228, 142.

76. (R. S. § 2884.) Landing of spirits, etc., regulated.

distilled spirits, and wines, shall be landed under the inspection e surveyor, or other officer acting as inspector of the revenue he port, and such of the inspectors of the customs as shall be ted by him for that purpose, and not otherwise, on pain of fore thereof, for which purpose the officer shall at all reasonable attend. This shall not, however, be construed to exclude the ction of any officer of the customs, as now or heretofore prac-

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 38, 1 Stat. 658.

d without definite application, 228, affirmed (1893) 55 Fed. 383, 5 C. C. Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. A. 142.

77. (R. S. § 2885.) Marking casks and cases of spirits.

e officers of inspection of any port where distilled spirits or s shall be landed, shall, upon the landing thereof, and as soon e casks, vessels, and cases containing the same shall be ined, gauged, or measured, brand or otherwise mark in durable acters, the several casks, vessels, and cases containing the same, the marks shall express the number of casks, vessels, or cases, her of spirits or wines, marked by each officer respectively, in year, in progressive numbers for each of the articles; also the of importation, the name of the vessel, and the surname of the er; also each kind of spirits or wines, for which different rates ity are or shall be imposed, the number of gallons in each cask ase, and the rate of proof if spirits; also the name of the sur- r or chief officer of inspection for the port, and the date of im- ation; of all which particulars the chief officers of inspections keep fair and correct accounts, in books to be provided for that ose.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 39, 1 Stat. 659. Act July 14, 1832, c. 227, § 5, 4 tat. 591.

d without definite application, 228, affirmed (1893) 55 Fed. 383, 5 C. C. Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. A. 142.

78. (R. S. § 2886.) Obliteration of marks.

n the sale of any cask, vessel, or case, which has been or shall be ked as containing distilled spirits or wines, and which has been tied of its contents, and prior to the delivery thereof to the pur- er, or any removal thereof, the marks and numbers, which shall been set thereon by or under the direction of any officer of in- tion, shall be defaced and obliterated in the presence of some er of inspection or of the customs, who shall, on due notice be- given, attend for that purpose, at which time the certificate h ought to accompany such chest, vessel, or case, shall also be ned and canceled. Every person who shall obliterate, counter- alter, or deface any mark or number placed by an officer of in- tion upon any cask, vessel, or case, containing distilled spirits ines, or any certificate thereof; or who shall sell or in any way ate or remove any cask, vessel, or case, which has been emptied s contents, before the marks and numbers, set thereon pursu- o the provisions of the preceding section, shall have been de- l or obliterated, in presence of an officer of inspection; or who neglect or refuse to deliver the certificate issued to accompany the cask, chest, vessel, or case, of which the marks and numbers sh have been defaced or obliterated in manner aforesaid, on being the to required by an officer of inspection or of the customs, shall f every such offense be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars, wi costs of suit.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 44, 1 Stat. 660.

Notes of Decisions

Removal of casks after purchase.—The provision making it penal to sell, alienate, or remove an empty cask which has contained foreign distilled spirits before the marks set thereon had been defaced, does not apply to a removal by a person who receives it after a purchase. U. S. v. Halberstadt (C. 1835) Fed. Cas. No. 15,278; Id. (D. 1833) Fed. Cas. No. 15,277.

Cited without definite applicati In re Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 F 228, affirmed (1893) 55 Fed. 383, 5 C. A. 142.

§ 5579. (R. S. § 2887.) Forfeiture of omitted or missing articl except in case of accident or mistake.

If any package whatever which has been so reported is wantin and not found on board such vessel, or if the merchandise on boa such vessel does not otherwise agree with the report or manife delivered by the master of any such vessel, in every such case t master shall be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars; exce that if it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the collector, nav officer, and surveyor, or to the major part of them where those of cers are established at any port, or to the satisfaction of the co lector alone where neither of the others is established, or in case trial for the penalty, to the satisfaction of the court, that no pa whatever of merchandise of such vessel has been unshipped, lande or unladen since it was taken on board, except as specified in t report or manifest, and pursuant to permits, or that the disagreeme is by accident or mistake, in such case the penalty shall not be i flicted. But in all such cases the master of any vessel shall be r quired and shall make a post entry or addition to the report manifest by him delivered of any and all merchandise omitted t be included and reported in such manifest; and it shall not be lawf to grant a permit to unlade any such merchandise so omitted befo such post entry or addition to such report or manifest has been mad

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 57, 1 Stat. 671.

Provisions requiring surveyors to examine whether goods imported in a vessel correspond with the permits for landing the same, and to report di agreements to the collector and naval officer, if any, were made by R. S. 2627, ante, § 5365.

Notes of Decisions

Surplus of cargo.—A surplus of cargo, equally with a deficiency, is a disagreement with the manifest. U. S. v. Fairclough (C. C. 1823) Fed. Cas. No. 15,068.

Accident or mistake.—Defendant, to obtain the benefit of the proviso excusing from the penalty, must not only satisfy the court that no part of the cargo had been landed or unladen after it was taken on board as specified in the report, and pursuant to permits duly obtained, but also that the disagreement was by mistake or accident. U. S. v. Fairclough (C. C. 1823) Fe Cas. No. 15,068.

Goods found concealed on board aft the master has declared that the whol cargo is discharged are not protect from forfeiture. U. S. v. Cave (D. 1809) Fed. Cas. No. 14,760.

Cited without definite applicatio In re Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 Fe 228, affirmed (1893) 55 Fed. 383, 5 C. A. 142; Hogarth Shipping Co. Federal Sugar Refining Co. (D. C. 1909 174 Fed. 278, 281.

§ 5580. (R. S. § 2888.) Account of deliveries.

When the delivery of merchandise from on board of any vess is completed, copies of the accounts or entries which have been kep or made thereof, by the officer charged with the deliveries, sha be returned to the collector of the district, and the naval officer, any, within three days after such delivery has been completed, if a port where such officer resides, and if at any other port as soon ne nature of the case will admit, not exceeding fifteen days. The unts or entries to be so returned shall comprise all deliveries e pursuant to permits, and all packages or merchandise sent to public stores; also each and every package remaining on board uch vessel for the purpose of being exported therein to a for- port, or to some other district of the United States.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 55, 1 Stat. 668.

ed without definite application, er v. Beard (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 554, 124 U. S. 429, 31 L. Ed. 490; In re Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 228, affirmed (1893) 55 Fed. 383, 5 C. C. A. 142.

581. (R. S. § 2889.) Proceedings upon returns of deliveries.

uch returns shall be signed by the inspectors respectively under se superintendence the deliveries have been made; and, after mination, and on being found correct, shall be countersigned ertified by the surveyor of the port; if any, at the port where deliveries have been made. The returns shall be transmitted him to the naval officer, if any; who shall compare the same the manifests and entries in his possession; and if any differ- appears, the particulars thereof shall be noted by indorsement he returns; and if no difference appears, it shall be so noted by indorsements. The naval officer shall transmit the returns to collector of the district; and on being returned to the collector, l be by him compared with the manifests and entries of the mer- ndise, which have been made by the owner, consignee, or his or or agent; and if any difference appears, the same shall be d by indorsement on such manifests specifying the particulars eof; and if no difference appears, it shall be noted by like in- sement, that the delivery corresponds with the entry or entries eof. The indorsement or memorandum shall, in each case, be scribed by the officer by whom the comparison was made.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 55, 1 Stat. 669.

ed without definite application, e Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 228, affirmed (1893) 55 Fed. 383, 5 C. C. A. 142.

582. (R. S. § 2890.) Returns of weighers, gaugers, and meas- urers.

he weighers, gaugers, and measurers, employed in the service ne revenue, shall, within three days after any vessel is discharged, e returns of the articles by them respectively weighed, gauged, neasured, out of such vessel. Such returns shall be made by the ghers, gaugers, and measurers, in books to be prepared by them that purpose, and kept in the custom-houses.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 72, 1 Stat. 678.

ed without definite application, shaw v. Cadwalader (1892) 12 Sup. 852, 855, 145 U. S. 247, 36 L. Ed. 693; In re Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 228, affirmed (1893) 55 Fed. 383, 5 C. C. A. 142.

583. (R. S. § 2891.) Distress of weather.

any vessel from any foreign port, compelled by distress of weath- or other necessity, shall put into any port of the United States, being destined for the same, the master, together with the mate person next in command, may, within twenty-four hours after arrival, make protest in the usual form upon oath, before a ary public or other person duly authorized, or before the collector he district where the vessel arrives, setting forth the cause or umstances of such distress or necessity. Such protest, if not made ore the collector, shall be produced to him, and to the naval cer, if any, and a copy thereof lodged with him or them. The ster shall also, within forty-eight hours after such arrival, make ort in writing to the collector, of the vessel and her cargo, as is directed hereby to be done in other cases. And if it appear to t collector, by the certificate of the wardens of the port, or otl officers usually charged with, and accustomed to ascertain the co dition of vessels arriving in distress, if any, or by the certificate two reputable merchants, to be named for that purpose by the c lector, if there are no such wardens, or other officers duly qualifi that there is a necessity for unlading the vessel, the collector a naval officer, if any, shall grant a permit for that purpose, and sh appoint an inspector to oversee such unlading, who shall keep account of the same, to be compared with the report made by t master of the vessel.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 60, 1 Stat. 672.

Cited without definite application, 228, affirmed (1893) 55 Fed. 383, 5
In re Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. C. A. 142.

§ 5584. (R. S. § 2892.) Storage of goods in distress.

All merchandise so unladen from any vessel arriving in distre shall be stored under the direction of the collector, who, upon quest of the master of such vessel, or of the owner thereof, sha together with the naval officer, where there is one, and alone whe there is none, grant permission to dispose of such part of the car as may be of a perishable nature, if any there be, or as may be ne essary to defray the expenses attending such vessel and her carg But entry shall be made therefor, and the duties paid.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 60, 1 Stat. 672.

Provisions authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to make regulatio for the management of bonded warehouses and prohibiting customs offic from having any personal interest in bonded warehouses are contained in A June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 24, post, § 5683.

Cited without definite application, 228, affirmed (1893) 55 Fed. 383, 5
In re Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. C. A. 142.

§ 5585. (R. S. § 2893.) Variance between report and delivery vessel in distress.

In case the delivery of the cargo does not agree with the repo thereof, made by the master of such vessel so arriving in distres and if the difference or disagreement is not satisfactorily account for in manner prescribed by this Title, the master of such vessel sha be liable to such penalties as in other like cases are prescribed.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 60, 1 Stat. 672.

§ 5586. (R. S. § 2894.) Reloading of vessel in distress.

The merchandise, or the remainder thereof, which shall not b disposed of, may be reladen on board the vessel so arriving in di tress, under the inspection of the officer who superintended the lan ing thereof, or other proper person; and the vessel may proce with the same to the place of her destination, free from any oth charge than for the storing and safe-keeping of the merchandis and fees to the officers of the customs as in other cases.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 60, 1 Stat. 672.

(R. S. § 2895. Superseded.)

This section was as follows:

"Whenever any Spanish vessel shall arrive in distress, in any port of t United States, having been damaged on the coast or within the limits of t United States, and her cargo shall have been unladen, in conformity wi the provisions of the four preceding sections, the cargo, or any part there may, if the vessel should be condemned as not seaworthy, or be deemed i capable of performing her original voyage, afterward be reladen on board a other vessel under the inspection of the officer who superintended the lan ing thereof, or other proper person. No duties, charges, or fees whatev shall be paid on such part of the cargo as may be reladen and carried awa either in the vessel in which it was originally imported, or in any other."

It was superseded by the provisions of the treaty with Spain of July 3, 190 33 Stat. 2105.

7. (R. S. § 2896.) Obstruction by ice.

en a vessel is prevented by ice from getting to the port or at which her cargo is intended to be delivered, the collector district in which such vessel may be obstructed may receive port and entry of such vessel, and, with the consent of the naval , where there is one, grant permits for unlading or landing erchandise imported in such vessel, at any place within his dis- most convenient and proper. The report and entry of such , and her cargo, or any part thereof, and all persons concerned n, shall be subject to the same regulations and penalties as if essel had arrived at the port of her destination, and had there eded to the delivery of her cargo.

ct March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 85, 1 Stat. 694.

Cited without definite application, Waring v. Mobile (1868) 8 Wall. 110, 120, 19 L. Ed. 342.

(R. S. § 2897. Repealed.)

his section authorized the Secretary of the Treasury, under regulations by prescribed, to permit the unloading of salt, imported from foreign places, the right bank of the Mississippi River, opposite New Orleans, at any point said bank between the upper and lower corporate limits of said city. It s repealed by Act March 3, 1897, c. 389, § 16, 29 Stat. 691.

8. (R. S. § 2898.) Tare.

estimating the allowance for tare on all chests, boxes, cases, , bags, or other envelope or covering of all articles imported lia- pay any duty, where the original invoice is produced at the of making entry thereof, and the tare shall be specified therein, ollector, if he sees fit, or the collector and naval officer, if any, y see fit, may, with the consent of the consignees, estimate the according to such invoice; but in all other cases the real tare be allowed, and may be ascertained under such regulations as ecretary of the Treasury may from time to time prescribe; but case shall there be any allowance for draught.

Act July 14, 1862, c. 163, § 16, 12 Stat. 558.

Notes of Decisions

nination to determine tare.—No n be laid down to determine the number of hides in a given ation that should properly be ed and tested in order to fix a llowance for tare on an entire nment, but in the case at bar, importations immediately in- , a fair number and selection of were examined and tested by an er and by the representatives importer, when ten out of 795, a time being selected at differ- ages of the count, and five out , chosen from the other lots, had o examined and tested. On the ce, an allowance of two pounds de for tare would have been a allowance on these two consign- Shallus v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. App. 316.

etermining an allowance for tare, s taken upon scales in compli- vith official duty must be accept- preference to those taken on without an official status and own to have been tested and to rect. U. S. v. Lozano, Son & 915) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 281.

ing by collector.—A guess or es- of a proper allowance for tare may not be substituted for a finding arrived at according to the regulations that control. American Sugar Refining Co. v. U. S. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 69.

Leakage and breakage.—The act authorizes deductions in measures in all cases for leakage and for breakage and reductions in weight for tare and draft. Marriott v. Brune (1850) 9 How. 619, 633, 13 L. Ed. 282.

Garlic tops.—Garlic consists of the bulb and top of the plant. No portion of the natural product as imported can properly be called tare, and particularly is this true since it is shown by the evidence that the tops serve the purpose of preserving the bulbs and are sold as constituting a part of the importation. Shallus v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 316, T. D. 31408; U. S. v. Baker Castor Oil Co. (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 338, T. D. 32076; Vitelli & Son v. U. S. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 171.

Jute in bales.—An allowance must be made, in estimating the duty on jute in bales, for the weight of jute tie ropes with which the bales are bound up; it appearing that between buyer and seller these ropes are regarded as tare, and are never charged for, a deduction equal to their weight being made from the total weight of the bale, and only the net weight being billed. Fachri v. Magone (C. C. 1892) 53 Fed. 789.

Impurities.—The words "draft" and "draught" used in this and preceding acts of congress, do not mean the impurities contained in the imported articles, but mean the arbitrary allowance of certain deductions in handling for shrinkage or variation in scales. U. S. v. G. Falk & Bro. (1906) 27 Sup. Ct. 191, 193, 204 U. S. 143, 51 L. Ed. 411; Wright & Lawther Lead Co. v. Seeberger (C. C. 1890) 44 Fed. 258, 259, affirmed (1895) 15 Sup. Ct. 583, 157 U. S. 183, 39 L. Ed. 665.

Impurities ordinarily present in an article of merchandise do not constitute tare; only those impurities not ordinarily present in the merchandise as traded in may be the subject of an allowance for tare. U. S. v. Baker Castor Oil Co. (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 338, citing Seeberger v. Wright & L. Oil & Lead Mfg. Co. (1895) 15 Su Ct. 583, 157 U. S. 183, 39 L. Ed. 66 Shallus v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cu App. 316.

In order for impurities to be allo ed for as tare, the importer must tablish by a preponderance of evider that, at the time the law was pass the impurities claimed as demandi an allowance were other than the or nary impurities commonly found that kind of merchandise as traded and that it was the general, unifor and definite custom of the trade to regard such impurities as part of t goods and to make an allowance the for. Wood & Selick v. U. S. (191 4 Ct. Cust. App. 228.

Where liquid in tins of fish was added, but was an oil exuding from t fish in the processes of canning, t oil taking into solution the inclos salt, forming thus a brine, there cou be no allowance on account of imp rities or for tare. Rosenstein Bros. U. S. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 401, c ing Shallus v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cu App. 316.

CHAPTER SIX

Appraisal

Sec.
5589. No delivery without appraisal.
5590. Number of packages to be opened.
5591. Appraisal at actual market value and wholesale price.
5592. Ascertainment of value.
5593. General appraisers; appointment, tenure, salary, and powers.
5594. Revision of reports of assistant appraisers; reappraisement; appeal to board of general appraisers.
5595. Decision of collector; appeal to board of general appraisers.
5596. Administration of oaths, examination of witnesses, and production of papers, etc.
5597. Failure to submit to examination or to produce papers; false swearing; penalty; forfeiture.
5598. Decisions of general appraiser; filing; publication of abstracts.
5599. Assessment of ad valorem duties.
5600. Additional duties on failure of seller, shipper, consignor, or manufacturer to submit books, etc., to inspection.
5601. Additional duties on failure of importer to submit books, etc., to inspection.
5602. Allowance for shortage, or damage; abandonment of goods.
5603. Depreciated currency.
5604. Value at date of shipment.
5605. Value at period of exportation.
5606. Different values in the same invoice.
5607. Best article fixes value.
5608. Appraisement of wool.
5609. Appraisement of gloves.
5610. Grades of sugar.
5611. Sampling of sugar.
5612. Samples of wool.
5613. Standard of vinegar.
5614. Hydrometers.
5615. Ascertainment of duties on grain
5616. Sampling and assaying lead ore
5617. Shipment of ores to samplin works.
5618. Expense of weighing, measurin or gauging.
5619. Deficiency.
5620. Bond to produce proof.
5621. Storing goods with incomplet manifests.
5622. Examination of medicines.
5623. Name of proprietor to be affixe to medicines.
5624. Return upon examination.
5625. Appeal from examination.
5626. Exportation of rejected article
5627. Appraiser as special examiner.
5628. Appraisement at New York.
5629. Examiners at New York.
5630. Appraisers, etc., at New Yor not to engage in business.
5631. Duties of appraisers at New York.
5632. Labor beyond usual hours.
5633. Appraisement by revenue officers
5634. Appraisement in other districts
5635. Regulations for appraisal.
5636. Definition of word "ton."
5637. What buildings may be leased.

589. (R. S. § 2899.) No delivery without appraisal.

No merchandise liable to be inspected or appraised shall be deliv-d from the custody of the officers of the customs, until the same been inspected or appraised, or until the packages sent to be ected or appraised shall be found correctly and fairly invoiced put up, and so reported to the collector. The collector may, vever, at the request of the owner, importer, consignee, or agent, e bonds, with approved security, in double the estimated value of h merchandise, conditioned that it shall be delivered to the order the collector, at any time within ten days after the package sent the public stores has been appraised and reported to the col-tor. If in the mean time any package shall be opened, without consent of the collector or surveyor given in writing, and then in presence of one of the inspectors of the customs, or if the pack-is not delivered to the order of the collector, according to the dition of the bond, the bond shall, in either case, be forfeited.

Act May 28, 1830, c. 147, § 4, 4 Stat. 410.

The effect of this section on the right of importers to make examinations to determine whether the right to abandon accrues, or whether by reason of total destruction there is a nonimportation in whole or in part, was prescribed by a proviso annexed to the amendment of the customs Administration Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 23, by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, which was re-enacted by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, III, X, post, § 5602.

Notes of Decisions

stody of merchandise.—From the nent of their arrival in port goods in legal contemplation in the cus-of the United States and every eeding which interferes with or ructs or controls that custody is iolation of the provisions. Harris Dennie (1830) 3 Pet. 292, 304, 7 L. 683.

e acknowledgment by the custom-se storekeeper that he held goods which duties had not been secured paid, subject to an attachment is-d out of a state court at the suit of reditor of the importer, is a de-ure from his duty not authorized law, and cannot vary the rights of parties. Id.

collector of the customs has a t to hold possession of imported ds until the duties are paid or se-ed according to law. Conard v. ific Ins. Co. (1832) 31 U. S. (6) 262, 8 L. Ed. 392; Tracy v. rtwout (1836) 35 U. S. (10 Pet.) 9 L. Ed. 354.

here a merchant leaves a sum of ey with the collector instead of goods, and an examination is made the appraisers before delivery, and importer binds himself to abide the lt of the appraisement "the same if the goods had been retained," , that neither party can take ad-age of the delivery as changing rights of the other. Porter v. rd (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 380, judg-t affirmed (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 554, U. S. 429, 31 L. Ed. 490.

n appeals from appraisements by local appraiser of imported mer-ndise taken by the collector of cus-s, the general appraiser who made reappraisements did not have be-e him the merchandise in question, nor samples thereof, the merchandise had passed out of the possession and control of the importers, and the collector had not ordered its return, in accordance with the terms of a bond which had been given by the importers. Held, that the reappraisements were void, and that the duties should be assessed on the basis of the values found by the local appraiser, and not those found by the general appraiser. U. S. v. Murphy (C. C. 1898) 136 Fed. 811.

The collector at the port of entry of imported goods is made by law the custodian of such goods until the payment of the duties thereon, and his duty as such custodian is to be performed within his own district. His duties are prescribed by statute, and an order from the Treasury Department instructing him to send or remove the goods out of his district, "for submission to trade experts," is without legal authority, and will not justify a removal of the goods from the collector's district. The importer, having the right to a speedy appraisal by the officers designated by law and to withdraw the goods on payment of the duties, has a substantial right to have them remain in the custody of the collector at the port of entry, and may invoke the power of the courts by injunction to prevent their removal. Bruhl Bros. & Co. v. Wilson (C. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 957.

Bond for delivery.—Bailing of property seized, see § 1564 et seq., ante.

See § 1601, ante, as to interest on bonds for duties.

The authority of the collector to require a bond from an importer for double the value of the merchandise imported, to be forfeited for the non-return unopened of any package of the invoice upon demand, includes the right to take a less stringent undertaking, such as a bond which provides for the return of any required package unopened or the payment of double its value as a condition of being discharged from the full penalty of the bond. U. S. v. Dieckerhoff (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 604, 202 U. S. 302, 50 L. Ed. 1041, reversing Dieckerhoff v. U. S. (1905) 136 Fed. 545, 69 C. C. A. 255, and affirming U. S. v. Dieckerhoff (C. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 789.

Double the value of the package of an invoice of imported merchandise ordered by the collector to be returned, and not merely the actual damages sustained by the United States by reason of its nonreturn, is the measure of recovery for the breach of the obligation incurred in a redelivery bond taken by the collector, to return any required package unopened, or to pay double its value as a condition of being discharged from the full penalty of the bond. Id.

The enforcement of the penalty prescribed in a redelivery bond taken by a collector, for the nonreturn unopened of any required package of an invoice of imported merchandise, is not precluded by the provision of section 1599, ante. Id.

Breach of a bond for the return of goods not examined by customs officials does not affect the right of the importer to an allowance for damaged merchandise. No other or different penalty is contemplated by the bond or by said section than the damages provided by the bond. Habicht, Braun & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 441.

Certain packages of merchandise having been sent to the public store for examination, the remaining packages were delivered to the importers on bond conditioned that the obligors, within 10 days after the package or packages, designated by the collector and sent to the public store to be opened and examined, had been appraised and reported to him, should return t delivered packages, on demand, to t order of the collector without havi been opened. Held, that the bond d not require the demand to be made the collector within 10 days, but th there was no breach of the bond u less the 10 days elapsed without compliance with the collector's dema for return of the merchandise so d livered. U. S. v. Psaki (C. C. 191 181 Fed. 635.

Pending the execution of an ord for a reappraisement of an import tion of gloves, the importers, an ous to get their goods, proposed leave samples on which to make t appraisement, and give a bond to p "all duties and charges" finally asse sed upon the importation, waiving objections that might be made on t ground that the goods were not r tained by the United States until fin appraisement; and this arrangeme was entered into by permission of t Secretary of the Treasury. The fin appraisement resulted in such an a dition beyond the invoice and enter values that, under ordinary circun stances, the goods would be liable additional duty (section 5527, ante Held, that by the terms of the bond included the payment of such additio al duty, and that the importers are l able therefor. (1874) 14 Op. Att Gen. 658.

Order for return of merchandise.—I computing the 10 days within whic the order of the collector for return goods must be served upon the im porter, if the tenth day falls on Sun day, that day cannot be exclude Hermann v. U. S. (C. C. 1895) 66 Fe 721, 722, following Shefer v. Magon (C. C. 1891) 47 Fed. 872.

Cited without definite applicatio Davies v. Miller (1889) 9 Sup. Ct. 56 130 U. S. 284, 32 L. Ed. 932; Earn shaw v. U. S. (1892) 13 Sup. Ct. 14 15, 146 U. S. 60, 36 L. Ed. 887; D. M Ferry & Co. v. Same (1898) 85 Fe 550, 558, 29 C. C. A. 345.

(R. S. § 2900. Repealed.)

This section provided for additions to the invoice value of merchandise en tered, to raise it to the actual market value or wholesale price, and for a additional duty if the appraised value should exceed the declared value. I was repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, 29, 26 Stat. 141, and similar and further provisions on the subject were mad by section 7 of that act, which, as amended by Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 32 30 Stat. 211, and the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 3 Stat. 95, was further amended by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c 16, § III, I, ante, § 5527.

§ 5590. (R. S. § 2901.) Number of packages to be opened.

The collector shall designate on the invoice at least one package of every invoice, and one package at least of every ten packages o merchandise, and a greater number should he or either of the appraisers deem it necessary, imported into such port, to be opened, examined, and appraised, and shall order the package so designated to the public stores for examination; and if any package be found by the appraisers to contain any article not specified in the invoice, and or a majority of them shall be of opinion that such article was ted in the invoice with fraudulent intent on the part of the ship- owner, or agent, the contents of the entire package in which article may be, shall be liable to seizure and forfeiture on convic- thereof before any court of competent jurisdiction; but if the aisers shall be of opinion that no such fraudulent intent existed, the value of such article shall be added to the entry, and the es thereon paid accordingly, and the same shall be delivered to mporter, agent, or consignee. Such forfeiture may, however, be tted by the Secretary of the Treasury on the production of evi- e satisfactory to him that no fraud was intended.

Act Aug. 30, 1842, c. 270, § 21, 5 Stat. 565.

Special provisions relating to the number of packages to be sent for examina- on and appraisement at the port of New York were made by R. S. § 2939, ost, § 5628.

The number of packages to be opened in the examination of leaf tobacco was rescribed by a provision of the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § Schedule F, par. 182, ante, § 5291, par. 182.

Forfeiture for false entry, etc., was provided for by the Customs Adminis- ative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 9, 26 Stat. 135, amended by the ayne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 97, superseded y the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, H, ante, § 5526.

The remission of forfeiture for undervaluation was prohibited by the Cus- oms Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 7, amended by Act July 4, 1897, c. 11, § 32, the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, nd the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, I, ante, § 5527.

Notes of Decisions

ure of section.—This section is andatory, and official acts are not dated for want of strict compli- therewith. Origet v. Hedden) 15 Sup. Ct. 92, 96, 155 U. S. 39 L. Ed. 130; U. S. v. Ranlett) 19 Sup. Ct. 114, 117, 172 U. 3, 43 L. Ed. 393.

amination of packages, in general. appraisal of goods imported, un- made on a personal examination the appraisers, is invalid. Greely hompson (1850) 51 U. S. (10) 225, 13 L. Ed. 397.

ere a merchant appraiser made an ination of hemp, such as is usual- ade in buying and selling the ar- and satisfactory to himself, it not open to the importer to show he adopted a mode of examination icient to detect fraudulent pack- or diversities in the qualities of fferent parts of the bales of hemp. son v. Peaslee (1857) 61 U. S. Iow.) 571, 15 L. Ed. 1022.

ere two invoices and two entries made of a single importation, each is to be deemed as a separate action for the purpose of ap- ement and the assessment of du- hereon. Id.

an action by an importer to re- an alleged excess of duties col- l, it is competent for the importer ow that the appraisement was void vidence that the examination was onducted as required by law. Oel- ann v. Merritt (1887) 8 Sup. Ct. 157, 123 U. S. 356, 31 L. Ed. 164, sing judgment (C. C. 1884) 19 408; Mustin v. Cadwalader (1887) 8 Sup. Ct. 158, 123 U. S. 369, 31 L. Ed. 169.

Nonobservance of statute vitiates appraisement. Oelbermann v. Merritt (1887) 8 Sup. Ct. 151, 156, 123 U. S. 356, 31 L. Ed. 164.

Where a package of imported goods of the same kind invoiced as free of duty is found on examination to contain a large proportion of dutiable goods, indiscriminately mixed with free goods, the customs officer is justified in assessing duty upon the entire package at the rate to which the dutiable goods are subject, and it devolves upon the importer, if dissatisfied, to ask for a re-examination, and to separate the free from the dutiable goods, or furnish evidence of the proportion of each. U. S. v. Ranlett (1898) 19 Sup. Ct. 114, 172 U. S. 133, 43 L. Ed. 393.

The provision of this section is for the benefit of the government, and is not mandatory, and an importer cannot avoid the payment of duties assessed on the ground that the examination was insufficient, or not made in accordance with the statute, but, if dissatisfied, should apply for a re-examination, and may, on appeal, prove by evidence the facts he claims. Id.

An examination of goods by the appraisers is indispensable, but a personal examination of each article is not necessary. A fair selection of samples is sufficient. Gibb v. Washington (C. C. 1858) Fed. Cas. No. 5,-380.

Where samples are fairly selected from one in ten of the packages, and are fully identified, it is of no importance whether they were drawn from the packages by the appraisers themselves, or by the official sampler of the appraisers' department. Yznaga v. Peaslee (C. C. 1860) Fed. Cas. No. 18,196.

Where the importer does not object, an appraisal by samples taken by a sampler where the appraisers did not see the packages, held sufficient. Id.

The collector may cause a re-examination and valuation of goods after an appraiser has passed the same. U. S. v. Eighty-Two Packages of Glass (D. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 15,038.

Apart from any question of the right of the importer to challenge as unfair the quantity or condition of samples of merchandise selected by the government for test purposes, where officials charged with the responsibility of assessing and collecting duties take such samples of an imported commodity as they deem necessary to insure a proper test of the goods in conformity to law and the regulations of the treasury department, no fraud being alleged, the government will not be permitted here to challenge as unsatisfactory the quantity or condition of the samples so selected. U. S. v. Seattle Brewing & Malting Co. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 362.

Packages or samples selected by the collector and deposited in public stores are to be deemed as under the immediate continuing control and in the continuing physical custody of the appraiser, the general appraiser, or board of general appraisers, respectively, before whom a case may be pending in which these samples have been selected and detached for the purpose of an examination or of inspection and appraisement. Loeb v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 385.

Reviewing the decision in Tilge & Co. v. U. S. T. D. 31507, the decision is adhered to. The court did not there hold an appraising officer had no jurisdiction to appraise any of the merchandise of a consignment unless he had examined the samples deposited at the public stores, nor did it hold that samples forming a part of the importation cannot, when duly authenticated, be accepted by appraising officers for jurisdictional purposes. It was there held, however, that no process was permissible "other than the law provides," and that while the law provides substitute processes, compliance with any of these was not averred in the case as presented for determination here, and the decision as rendered was based simply on noncompliance with the law's requirements. What would or would not constitute a proper waiver or stipulation to avoid the stricter operation of the statute will depend on the facts of record in the particular case. Tilge v. U. S. (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 149.

—— Proportion to be examined. Whether the merchant appraisers hav substantially made an examination one package in ten of an importatio is a question of fact for the jur Greely's Adm'r v. Burgess (1855) 5 U. S. (18 How.) 413, 15 L. Ed. 45

The mere fact that all the cases an importation "were by the collect ordered to the public store, and th they were there at the time of the r appraisement," does not show a speci direction by the collector that should be examined, and render void reappraisement made without exami ing all the cases, though, under th section and section 5628, post, such r appraisement would be void if the co lector directed an examination of the cases, and it was not made. Orig v. Hedden (1894) 155 U. S. 228, Sup. Ct. 92, 39 L. Ed. 130.

An appraiser may not legally advan the value of imported merchandise n actually before him, or not represen ed by sufficient samples, even thou he have before him one package in 1 If these packages do not represe every variety of goods, such represe tation must be had by securing furth packages or samples, for examinatio U. S. v. Beer (1906) 150 Fed. 566, C. C. A. 368, affirming judgment (C. 1905) 142 Fed. 199.

The appraisement is void, where t appraisers do not, in substance and e fect, open and examine at least o package in every ten. Burgess v. Co verse (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 2 154.

Plaintiff, in 1853, imported 1,3 boxes of tin plates of four differe kinds, and of different value, and o box of each kind was designated the collector for examination, and appraisal increased duties and a pena ty were imposed. Plaintiff paid t penalty and duties under protest, a brought suit to recover the amoun Held that, since no waiver of the r quirement that one in every ten box be examined and appraised was show the increased duties and penalty impo ed were illegal, and plaintiff was entitl to recover. Ystalifera Iron Co. v. Re field (C. C. 1883) 23 Fed. 650.

An examination of unstemmed Sum tra leaf tobacco by the appraiser, whi was restricted to 9 representative bal out of 54, and to about one-sixtie part of each of the 9 bales, was insuf cient to determine the dutiable grad for which reason the whole importati was dutiable at 35 cents per poun In re Rosenwald (C. C. 1894) 59 Fe 765, judgment reversed U. S. v. Rose wald (1895) 67 Fed. 323, 14 C. C. 399.

In making reappraisements of i ported merchandise the general a praisers had before them only t same packages that the collector customs had sent to the local apprai er this section, and these pack-id not represent every variety goods under reappraisement.

that the reappraisements were to the merchandise not actually nor represented by samples the general appraisers. Cur-Stiner v. U. S. (C. C. 1904)
d. 807.

mporter received two lots of ne kind of merchandise within a onths. The first, being advanc-value by the appraiser, was the of reappraisement on appeal importer, which resulted in the nce of the advance, and further aisement was waived by the im-
The appraiser also advanced ue of the later shipment, withy examination of the merchanelf or of samples thereof, though duly examine at least one pack-ten of the invoice, as requir-eld, that this appraisement was
U. S. v. Beer (C. C. 1905) 142
99, judgment affirmed (1906) 150
66, 80 C. C. A. 368.

proportion of slack in an impor-of 175 tons of coal was suffi-determined by testing a sample g 113 pounds. U. S. v. Bond 1908) 161 Fed. 165.

question of what is a "reason-mber" of skins to test in as-ing the quantity of wool there-ne that is to be determined by timony of men qualified by exe and knowledge to pass upon bject. Without such evidence, not be held to be selfevident that mate based on an examination ut of 20,000 skins was inade-
U. S. v. J. B. Thomas & Co.
1910) 178 Fed. 602.

ppraisement of a cargo of sugar, solely on samples taken after f the cargo had been sold and ed, held insufficient. U. S. v. n (D. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No.
.

gh there may have been a fail-the part of the collector strict-mply with the provisions of this and section 5628, post, never-the board of general appraisuld be in duty bound, the goods tion remaining subject to their and open to their inspection and ation, to resort, on appeal, to t means at hand for making an ement; and though it should that one package in ten was some instances examined by the there being sufficient samples of rchandise before them and these been examined, there would be ngly such a substitute process law contemplates and permits.
s & Co. v. U. S. (1911) 2 Ct.
App. 355.

Presumption.—Where importers
tly testified that the board of general appraisers made no personal examination or investigation of invoices in question, as required, and no opposing evidence was presented, the facts must be regarded as proved, notwithstanding the presumption in favor of the correctness of official action, and the appraisement must be held invalid. U. S. v. Loeb (1901) 107 Fed. 692, 46 C. C. A. 562, writ of certiorari denied Loeb v. U. S. (1901) 21 S. Ct. 923, 181 U. S. 618, 45 L. Ed. 1030.

An appraiser, in exercising discretion as to the production of packages for examination, is presumed to have acted fairly, unless the contrary is shown. Renvy, Schmidt & Pliessner v. U. S. (C. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 441, 442.

Inasmuch as this section provides for an examination of imported merchandise by customs officers, and the customs regulations provide that collectors of customs shall procure samples in cases in which protests are filed by importers, it is to be assumed that the collector complied with these provisions and had samples in such cases. Hensel v. Bruckmann & Lorbacher v. U. S. (C. C. 1907) 160 Fed. 219.

The official sample of the goods made the subject of controversy being selected by a customs officer charged with the duty of making a selection, it will be presumed the sample so chosen is fairly representative of the merchandise. Knauth v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 178.

The examiner weighed but one piece of the silk goods, though these were contained in two separate cases, the silks differing in color and in weight. The evidence clearly rebuts the presumption of correctness attaching to this official's finding, and shows, too, that the weight as stated in the importer's invoice to have been more fairly and justly determined. Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. U. S. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 447.

Adding value of article to invoice.—The provision that if appraisers find in an imported package "any article not specified in the invoice," its value shall be added to the entry does not apply to an importation of framed paintings invoiced as "paintings," where the invoice value is sufficient to include the frames, and it is customary so to describe paintings with frames. U. S. v. Hensel, Bruckmann & Lorbacher (C. C. 1896) 158 Fed. 645.

Cited without definite application, Buckley v. U. S. (1846) 4 How. 251, 261, 11 L. Ed. 961; Falk v. Robertson (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 41, 42, 137 U. S. 225, 34 L. Ed. 645; Kennedy v. Magone (1895) 15 Sup. Ct. 814, 815, 158 U. S. 212, 39 L. Ed. 954; U. S. v. Dieckerhoff (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 604, 605, 202 U. S. 302, 50 L. Ed. 1041; U. S. v. Curnen & Stiner (1906) 146 Fed. 45, 76 C. C. A. 503; U. S. v. Hunter & Whitcombe (1907) 153 Fed. 873, 874, 83 C. C. A. 55; In re Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 228, 230 (firmed [1893] 55 Fed. 383, 5 C. C. 142); Weil v. U. S. (C. C. 1902) 1 Fed. 592.

(R. S. § 2902. Repealed.)

This section prescribed the mode of appraisal of merchandise. It was pealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, Stat. 141, and similar and further provisions on the subject were made section 10 of that act, re-enacted in the same language by the Payne-Aldri Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 97, and the Underwood Ta Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, K, post, § 5591.

§ 5591. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, K.) Appraisal at actu market value and wholesale price.

K. It shall be the duty of the appraisers of the United State and every of them, and every person who shall act as such a praiser, or of the collector, as the case may be, by all reasonab ways and means in his or their power to ascertain, estimate, a appraise (any invoice or affidavit thereto or statement of cost, of cost of production to the contrary notwithstanding) the actu market value and wholesale price of the merchandise at the time exportation to the United States, in the principal markets of t country whence the same has been imported, and the number yards, parcels, or quantities, and actual market value or wholesa price of every of them, as the case may require. (38 Stat. 185

This paragraph and the paragraph next following were subdivisions of se tion III of the Underwood Tariff Act, cited above.

See notes to subdivision B of said section, ante, § 5519.

This provision, as originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 10, 26 Stat. 136, was re-enacted in the same langua by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 97, whic was re-enacted without change by this act.

This provision was a substitute for R. S. § 2902, repealed by section 29 said Customs Administrative Act, 26 Stat. 141.

The words "value," "actual market value," and "wholesale price" were d fined by section III, R, of this act, post, § 5599.

The word "merchandise" was defined by R. S. § 2766, ante, § 5462.

Provisions for estimating duties on goods, in respect to which the cost exhibited in a depreciated currency, were made by R. S. § 2903, post, § 560 Provisions for estimating duties upon the value at the date of shipment we made by R. S. § 2904, post, § 5604.

A provision for appraising the value at the period of exportation was mad by R. S. § 2906, post, § 5605.

The provisions relating to entry of merchandise, made by section III, B- of this act, are set forth ante, §§ 5293-5311.

The provisions of the Customs Administrative Act, as amended by A July 24, 1897, c. 11, were made applicable to all articles coming into the Uni ed States from the Philippine Islands, by Act March 8, 1902, c. 140, § 8, ant § 5534.

Notes of Decisions

1. Appraisal in general.
2. —— Reasonable ways and means.
3. —— Actual value.
4. —— Market value in general.
5. —— Market value as affected by local taxes.
6. —— Nondutiable buying commissions.
7. —— Time of exportation.
8. —— Principal markets.
9. —— Country from which imported.
10. Decisions under former statutes.

1. Appraisal in general.—Paragraph 845 of the treasury regulations provides that appraisers shall make advances on invoices on the unit value declared on entry, in the currency in which the invoice is made out, in a specific sum per pound, yard, or other unit of value, and not by percentage, and in the weight, gauge, or measure expressed in the invoice, but that no average valu tion shall be made, and that the add tions shall be made by writing on th invoice, opposite each item advance the words, "Add to make market value, stating in numerals the amount nece sary to make the price per unit. He directory, and not mandatory, in th sense that neglect to conform theret would create an illegal appraisal. U. v. Loeb (1901) 107 Fed. 692, 46 C. A. 562, writ of certiorari denied Loe v. U. S. (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 923, 181 U S. 618, 45 L. Ed. 1030.

The board of general appraisers mad a report as to importations of Swi laces, embroideries, and handkerchief adding percentages to value, as appea by the following example: "On items i at 18 centimes, stitch rate, add on balance of goods, add 10%." lid not, however, carry out on the the value per aune (the Swiss n francs and centimes, though this easily be computed by the custom-officers. Held, that there was no on of the statute. Id.

collector is not bound to take the valuation of goods, supported owner's oath on the entry, as utiable value. Focke v. Lawrence 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 4,894.

re on the invoice the gross value goods is stated, and a deduction of specific packing charges, and t amount is then carried out as arket value of the goods per se, raisement which simply disallows harges, or adds them again to dutiable value, or states that they be added to make market value, an appraisement of the goods per t an addition of charges, and does stify the collector in exacting duty value of the goods increased by nount of such charges. Morris v. lader (C. C. 1887) 33 Fed. 243.

chandise purchased in Bohemia, the empire of Austria-Hungary, ich country the florin was the rd currency, was invoiced to the er at New York, and the values in rix marks and florins; the val-the florin of Austria-Hungary be-ated in the United States consul's cate, annexed to the invoice, as cents, estimated in United States ollars. Held, that the value of the andise in the entry should have estimated by the collector of the f New York in florins of Austria-ry reduced to United States cur-on the basis of 34.5 cents to the as declared by the director of the l States mint, and proclaimed by cretary of the treasury on the 1st nuary previous, and not in rix , at 23.8 cents to the rix mark, al-the total value of the goods in l States money was greater by the process of calculation. In re Mc- (C. C. 1891) 46 Fed. 360.

e oil imported in tins holding from a quart to five gallons, the quan-which when sold here is reckon-ording to the quarts or gallons of rious sizes, without regard to ex-easurement, and which is return-the gauger according to the quan-f the various sizes, though this re exceeds the true measure, by $^1/_{32}$, as testified by the gauger, out $^1/_{12}$, as claimed by the im-, is properly assessed on the quan-returned, in the absence of more testimony to furnish a guide for idation. Giglio v. U. S. (C. C. 91 Fed. 758.

method of calculation prescribed regulations of the Secretary of reasury to be followed by appraisers advancing the invoice value of im-l merchandise is not mandatory, and may be departed from without invalidating an appraisement. Meyer, Ebeling & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 334.

An appraiser, in advancing the invoice value of imported merchandise to raise it to its true market value, did so by totaling the invoice price and disallowing certain discounts to which the importers were entitled, instead of adding a specific sum to the invoice value of each item on the invoice, as required by the customs regulations. Held, that the appraisement was not thereby rendered illegal, and that the importers, if dissatisfied with the findings of the appraiser, should request a reappraisement. Id.

An appraisement of merchandise was void, where the appraiser advanced its value without examining the particular portion of the importation that was advanced, though his advance of a previous importation of like merchandise was sustained on reappraisement and such reappraisement was accepted by the importer without appeal. U. S. v. Beer (C. C. 1905) 142 Fed. 199, 201, affirmed (1906) 150 Fed. 566, 80 C. C. A. 368.

When part of evidence was taken before one general appraiser and part before another, who decided the case later, but by oversight failed to consider evidence taken before the first, this was only an error of procedure, not depriving him of jurisdiction. U. S. v. Chas. M. Taylor's Sons (C. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 152.

In determining which is the component of chief value, the value of each ingredient in the domestic markets of the United States should be the guide. (1881) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 105.

This and other named sections held not to give importer the right to produce witnesses, etc., before the appraisers. (1886) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 360.

It is not the intent of Congress that the United States should in any case exact as duties an amount greater than the value of the property imported. (1896) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 326.

2. —— Reasonable ways and means.— The general regulations of the treasury department of 1884, and the instructions of the secretary of the treasury of June 9, 1885, prescribe, among other things, that a reappraisement shall not "assume the nature of a judicial inquiry," but that the appraisers shall arrive at their conclusions, from their own knowledge as experts, substantially in the same manner as in original appraisements; that no lawyers or custom-house brokers shall be present, and the importer shall be represented by "some one belonging to his house, familiar with the facts," who shall state the facts "concisely, and not argumentatively." Held, that these regulations are proper, and are consistent with the provision that the appraisers, "and every person who shall act as such," by all reasonable means in their power, shall ascertain and appraise the actual market value and wholesale price in the principal markets of the country from which the goods were imported. Auffmordt v. Hedden (1890) 137 U. S. 310, 11 Sup. Ct. 103, 34 L. Ed. 674.

Where it was the duty of the appraiser, in order to enable him to fix the duty on certain imported merchandise, to inquire into the value thereof, he was entitled to the aid afforded in such inquiry by the production of a true and correct invoice. Hoeninghaus v. U. S. (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 305, 308, 172 U. S. 622, 43 L. Ed. 576.

An appraising officer, having no knowledge as to the value of certain imported articles, sent samples to the appraiser at the port of New York for information. Held, that this was legal, and that the right so to do or to use any other available means was conferred by authority given appraising officers to "use all reasonable ways and means," in their power in ascertaining the value of merchandise. The Lace House v. U. S. (1905) 141 Fed. 869, 73 C. C. A. 103.

The appraiser, as the final and chief examining officer, has authority to ascertain, by all reasonable ways and means in his power, not only the actual value of imported merchandise but its character and quality as well, and this right of ascertainment carries with it the authority to demand and secure from sugar importers the settlement tests of all importations of sugar. (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 238.

3. —— Actual value.—Merchandise having been erroneously invoiced at an excessive value, the appraiser merely accepted that value as being sufficiently high, without making any effort to ascertain the true value. Held, that the appraisement was therefore invalid. U. S. v. Muller, Maclean & Co., 158 Fed. 405, 85 C. C. A. 515.

Where imported merchandise of a certain character was subject to specific duties at a rate to be regulated by the value thereof, and in no case less than 50 per centum ad valorem, the fact that the importation in question paid such rate did not relieve the appraiser from inquiring into and determining the value of such goods. Hoeninghaus v. U. S. (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 305, 172 U. S. 622, 43 L. Ed. 576.

Merchandise was entered on a pro forma invoice which erroneously stated its value to be greatly in excess of its real value. On appraisement the appraiser approved the value so stated, because it was found to be sufficiently high, but did not find its real value. Held, that the appraisement was invalid because not in compliance with Customs Administrative Act June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 10, 26 Stat. 136, prescribing that it was the duty of appraisers to find "the actual market value" of i ported merchandise. U. S. v. Mull MacLean & Co. (C. C. 1907) 152 F 575.

Rate of duty on wine imported bottles, each containing more than pint and less than a quart, is control by actual cost of the wine, and not its cost estimated on the supposit that each bottle contained a quart Cavaroc v. Collector (C. C. 1871) F Cas. No. 2,529.

An importer is not estopped fr going below his entry value on any s gle item of his invoice. Yanada Spalding (C. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 21.

The description of merchandise in invoice as contained in "gallon" tins not to be taken as conclusive agai the importers, as fixing the amou contained in the tins for the asse ment of duty. Such descriptions do purport to indicate exactly the amou so contained, and it is the duty of g ernment officers to ascertain as nea as possible the quantity imported. S. v. Zucca & Co. (C. C. 1907) 1 Fed. 172.

4. —— Market value in general.— fixing the value of goods a discount cash should be allowed. Arthur Goddard (1877) 96 U. S. 145, 146, L. Ed. 814; Gray v. Lawrence (C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 5,722; Godd v. Arthur (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. 5,489. But see Riess v. Redfield C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 11,821; Le sohn Importing & Trading Co. v. S. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 204.

The market value of imported goo is to be determined by the general m ket value of goods of the same descr tion, without reference to the fact th the goods cost the particular impor a less amount because of special vantages which he had. In re Cliquo Champagne (1865) 3 Wall. 114, 1 142, 18 L. Ed. 116; Muser v. Mago (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 77, 155 U. S. 2 39 L. Ed. 135, affirming judgment C. 1889) 41 Fed. 877.

The value with which the apprai is to be familiar is the current mar value or wholesale price of similar ticles in the principal markets of t country from which the merchandi has been imported.—Erhardt v. Bal (1906) 150 Fed. 529, 530, 80 C. C. 271.

The lowest cash price given by a m chant in a regular proposition for wi for export in quantities will fix a m ket value for the purpose of invoic wines in substance the same as th offered. In re Three Thousand O Hundred and Nine Cases of Cha pagne (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. 14,012.

The "actual market value" of wi at the "place" where they were proc ed or manufactured determined in case of wines dosed and prepared export. Id.

e there was no evidence that ds are ever sold in the open of the country of exportation han the price including the com- in controversy, the require- at this should be added to make value did not deprive the im- of any substantial right. The nent, accordingly, did not con- duress. Batten & Co. v. U. S. 5 Ct. Cust. App. 447.

ote on "Market value" under §

- Market value as affected by xes.—In ascertaining the mar- ue and wholesale price in Ger- f goods imported therefrom, it er to include the amount of the d "bonification of tax," which fect, a drawback or remission of y the German government on here manufactured in bond, and wn for export, and on which the uld have been payable if with- for consumption or sale in Ger- U. S. v. Passavant (1898) 18 . 219, 169 U. S. 16, 42 L. Ed.

ddition to the invoice value of trary and fictitious charge for duty at the place of exporta- erroneous. Riess v. Redfield 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 11,821.

French general internal revenue alcohol, which is not collected s exported, is a part of the du- value of such goods when pur- in the markets of France under visions of Customs Administra- 1890, but local taxes, designat- "droit de ville" and "octroi," vary with the locality, cannot y be considered as elements of value.—Rheinstrom v. U. S. (C.) 118 Fed. 303.

in regard to merchandise im- from France, that its "market does not include the amount of internal revenue imposts of that known as the "octroi tax" and oit de ville," which are not gen- their application, but vary with lity, and which are not collected nerchandise is exported. U. S. . Downing & Co. (C. C. 1904) d. 653, judgment affirmed Same llot & Co. (1905) 139 Fed. 1, C. A. 505, and Same v. R. F. g & Co. (1905) 139 Fed. 3, . A. 507.

provision that appraisers shall in "the actual market value holesale price of merchandise in the principal markets of ntry whence the same has been d," contemplates some value ing generally in the foreign coun- d not some varying local value, es not require that there should ded in the market value of goods d from France certain special known as "droit de ville" and ," which are remitted on expor- tation, but are not uniformly imposed throughout the country, nor uniform in amount. Id.

How actual market value determined in the case of wines sold by agents here for delivery at a certain sum, duty free. In re Twelve Hundred and Nine Quarter Casks, etc., of Wine (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 14,279.

6. —— Nondutiable buying commissions.—A commission paid a commissionaire for receiving goods, comparing with samples, procuring cases, packing and shipping these goods, is a commission simply and as such is nondutiable. Stein v. U. S. (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 36.

Reaffirming the doctrine that an item in an importer's invoice showing he had paid a commission to a commissionaire had been included there under duress, it is held that the figures on entered valuation certified to the appraiser by the collector wherein this payment was included did not constitute an opinion, judgment, and voluntary act of the importer, but something entirely different; the importer has been without a day in court when by a penalty threatened he is compelled to substitute the judgment of another for his own in declaring the value of his goods, and he is irremediably denied a legal right. Stein v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 478.

Commissions element of value of goods. Muser v. Magone (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 77, 79, 82, 155 U. S. 240, 39 L. Ed. 135; U. S. v. Kenworthy (1895) 68 Fed. 904, 907, 16 C. C. A. 61.

There is no authority for adding a commission paid by the importer to the market value. U. S. v. Herrman (1898) 91 Fed. 116, 33 C. C. A. 400, reversing judgment Hermann v. U. S. (C. C. 1897) 84 Fed. 151.

A so-called converters' commission was contended to have been improperly included by the appraising officers in the dutiable value of merchandise. Held, that the appraisement might be re-examined, and that evidence was admissible to show the nature of such commission. N. Erlanger, Blumgart & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 576, judgment affirmed (1907) 154 Fed. 949, 83 C. C. A. 463.

Merchandise was bought from so-called converters, who, after receiving the order, had the goods manufactured, dyed, and finished, and forwarded them, invoicing them at a certain price plus a commission. Held, that the converters were in fact the vendors of the merchandise, and that the amount of the commission should be included in the dutiable value of the goods. Id.

Leaving aside technical questions and treating the dutiability of commissions on its merits, regarding the substance rather than the form, it is clear it was not the intention of congress to impose a duty upon commissions paid in connection with the purchase of goods abroad. When a payment is a commission proper must depend on the facts in the particular case. U. S. v. Bauer (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 343.

The shippers were purchasing agents who bought the merchandise in foreign markets on cabled orders. The commissions charged for this service and included in the invoices were true nondutiable purchasing commissions in fact and in law. Vandiver v. U. S. (1915) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 80.

Commissions on imported merchandise, which do not grow out of costs, charges, and expenses, form no part of the dutiable value of merchandise under that act. (1890) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 602.

7. —— Time of exportation.—The test of chief value is to be applied as values may be at the time of importation. Evidence that goods are identical with some previously imported is unpersuasive that the relative value of their components remains the same. U. S. v. Leerburger (1908) 160 Fed. 651, 87 C. C. A. 547, affirming judgment Leerburger v. U. S. (C. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 146.

The actual value of the articles at the time and place of shipment will control in fixing the duty. Davidson v. Draper (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 3,604.

Sugar should be appraised at market value on the date of actual loading, and not at the date of sailing. U. S. v. McKean (D. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 15,681a.

Where merchandise was shipped on September 28, but was entered at the port of entry in the United States under an invoice dated and certified at the port of shipment October 1, the date of the invoice controls, and the proportion between the standard of values in the two countries as fixed by the United States Treasury Department for the quarter beginning October 1 governs in computing the actual money value of the imported goods. Masson v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 149.

8. —— Principal markets.—The provision that dutiable value shall be the market value "in usual wholesale quantities, at the time of exportation to the United States, in the principal markets of the country from whence imported," refers to the "principal market" where imported merchandise is bought and imported to the United States in wholesale quantities, rather than to markets where there may have been limited purchases. U. S. v. Haviland & Co. (C. C. 1909) 167 Fed. 414, judgment affirmed (1910) 177 Fed. 175, 100 C. C. A. 637, writ of certiorari denied (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 573, 216 U. S. 618, 54 L. Ed. 640.

The entire output of a china manufacturer in Limoges was exported d rectly to the United States, except small amount of special classes, di posed of in Paris to European trad the wholesale business in Paris bei less than 4 per cent. of said export tions to the United States. Held, th for the goods shipped to Ameri Limoges, and not Paris, was the "pri cipal market." Id.

The evidence in a reappraiseme case, relative to china exported fr Limoges, was to the effect that per cent. of the entire output of t factory was exported directly to t United States, and that there was open market for such china at moges; but it showed the values ests lished at Paris, where the remaini 20 per cent. of the Limoges output w disposed of. This latter value, ho ever, was affected somewhat by t fact that the Paris house sold at bo wholesale and retail, and that t goods handled there differed materia from those sold at Limoges for expo to the United States. Held, that the was no evidence, that Paris was t principal market for the china th exported. Id.

The defendant imported into Alas from British Columbia certain quan ties of coke which it valued at $3. per ton, and upon which it paid du at 20 per cent. ad valorem. Subs quently the United States reapprais the coke, raised the value to $5 p ton, and brought this suit to recov the sum alleged to be due on the u dervaluation. Held, the value of t coke must be fixed in the princi markets and not at the ovens whe produced. U. S. v. Brown-Alaska C (1910) 4 Alaska, 89.

Varnish, of which a component pa of chief value is "distilled spirit which had been produced in the Un ed States and exported to Cana into warehouse, and, after being co pounded into varnish, is returned the United States, should be apprais according to the general Canadi markets, and not according to Can dian markets for articles in bo (1884) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 43.

Reconsideration of former opini (18 Op. 43) in regard to the duty up certain shellac varnish imported fr Canada, and advised that the war house value in Canada is to be tak as a basis for computing the du thereon. (1885) 18 Op. Atty. Ge 109.

9. —— Country from which impo ed.—Certain goods were shipped Liverpool, landed at Bourdeaux, a when brought thence to the Unit States, were labeled as having be imported from Bourdeaux, invoiced a less sum than the actual cost there at Bourdeaux, in order to evade t duties. The information thus exclu ing all question of the continuity oyage from Liverpool, the goods restored to the claimants, upon that the price in the invoice was en price at Bourdeaux, although rice at Liverpool was then much . U. S. v. One Hundred and Crates (1818) 16 U. S. (3 .) 232, 4 L. Ed. 377.

word "country" is used with ref- to state or nation, and an arti- ported from India is to be ap- d according to the value of the pal markets of British dominion, ot at Halifax, from which place brought into the United States. v. Peaslee (1855) 59 U. S. (18 521, 15 L. Ed. 474.

value of articles imported is to timated by their value at the pal markets of the country from they are exported at the time portation, without reference to ountry of their production. Id.

te and colored wools were sold er in the Bagdad market at one without any distinction as to col- is being in accord with immemo- practice in that market. Held, oth kinds of wool should be ap- d at the same price, in accord- with the manner of purchase, ut regard to any difference in val- hich may attach to each kind in other country. G. Gulbenkian & . U. S. (1907) 153 Fed. 858, 83 A. 40.

Decisions under former statutes. Aldridge v. Williams (1845) 44 (3 How.) 9, 11 L. Ed. 469; Rank- Hoyt (1846) 45 U. S. (4 How.) 11 L. Ed. 996; Greely v. Thomp- 1850) 51 U. S. (10 How.) 225, 13 . 397; Maxwell v. Griswold (1850) ow. 242, 254, 13 L. Ed. 405; Bart- . Kane (1853) 16 How. 263, 271, Ed. 931; Stairs v. Peaslee (1855) ow. 521, 525, 527, 15 L. Ed. 474; e v. Redfield (1859) 23 How. 170, 16 L. Ed. 418; Iasigi v. Collector 3) 68 U. S. (1 Wall.) 375, 17 L. 386; Hilton v. Merritt (1884) 3 Ct. 548, 110 U. S. 97, 28 L. Ed. 83; Oelbermann v. Merritt (1887) 123 U. S. 356, 8 Sup. Ct. 151, 31 L. Ed. 164; Mustin v. Cadwalader (1887) 123 U. S. 369, 8 Sup. Ct. 158, 31 L. Ed. 169; Auffmordt v. Hedden (1890) 137 U. S. 310, 11 Sup. Ct. 103, 34 L. Ed. 674 (affirming [C. C. 1886] 30 Fed. 360); Earnshaw v. U. S. (1892) 13 Sup. Ct. 14, 15, 146 U. S. 60, 36 L. Ed. 887; U. S. v. Sixteen Packages (C. C. 1819) Fed. Cas. No. 16,303; Griswold v. Lawrence (C. C. 1850) Fed. Cas. No. 5,837; Focke v. Lawrence (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 4,894; Pierson v. Same (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 11,158; Same v. Maxwell (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 11,159; Barker v. Lawrence (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 991; Wilson v. Same (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 17,-816; Barnard v. Morton (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 1,005; Goddard v. Maxwell (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 5,492; Morlot v. Lawrence (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 9,816; Morris v. Maxwell (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 9,834; Maillard v. Lawrence (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 8,972; Crowley v. Maxwell (C. C. 1856) Fed. Cas. No. 3,449; Harriman v. Same (C. C. 1856) Fed. Cas. No. 6,105; Forman v. Peaslee (C. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 4,941; Bailey v. Goodrich (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 735; Cobb v. Hamlin (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 2,922; Morris v. Cadwalader (C. C. 1887) 33 Fed. 243; U. S. v. Gabriel (C. C. 1888) 36 Fed. 888; Muser v. Magone (C. C. 1889) 41 Fed. 877; U. S. v. Fourteen Packages of Pins (D. C. 1832) Fed. Cas. No. 15,151.

Cited without definite application, Ballard v. Thomas (1856) 19 How. 382, 383, 15 L. Ed. 690; Belcher v. Lawrason (1858) 21 How. 251, 255, 16 L. Ed. 123; Fennerstein's Champagne (1865) 3 Wall. 145, 147, 18 L. Ed. 121; U. S. v. Curnen & Stiner (1906) 146 Fed. 45, 76 C. C. A. 503; In re Schefer (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 216, 218; N. Erlanger, Blumgart & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 576, affirmed (1907) 154 Fed. 949, 83 C. C. A. 463.

92. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, L.) Ascertainment of value. When the actual market value, as defined by law, of any arti- of imported merchandise, wholly or partly manufactured and ect to an ad valorem duty, or to a duty based in whole or in on value, can not be ascertained to the satisfaction of the ap- sing officer, such officer shall use all available means in his er to ascertain the cost of production of such merchandise at time of exportation to the United States, and at the place of ufacture, such cost of production to include the cost of mate- and of fabrication, and all general expenses to be estimated at less than 10 per centum, covering each and every outlay of tsoever nature incident to such production, together with the ense of preparing and putting up such merchandise ready for ment, and an addition of not less than 8 nor more than 50 per um upon the total cost as thus ascertained; and in no case l such merchandise be appraised upon original appraisal or re- raisement at less than the total cost of production as thus ascertained. The actual market value or wholesale price, as defi by law, of any imported merchandise which is consigned for sale the United States, or which is sold for exportation to the Uni States, and which is not actually sold or freely offered for sale usual wholesale quantities in the open market of the country exportation to all purchasers, shall not in any case be appraised less than the wholesale price at which such or similar imported m chandise is actually sold or freely offered for sale in usual who sale quantities in the United States in the open market, due allo ance by deduction being made for estimated duties thereon, cost transportation, insurance and other necessary expenses from place of shipment to the place of delivery, and a commission exceeding 6 per centum, if any has been paid or contracted to paid on consigned goods, or profits not to exceed 8 per centum a a reasonable allowance for general expenses (not to exceed 8 centum) on purchased goods. (38 Stat. 185.)

See notes to subdivisions B and K of said section, ante, §§ 5519, 5591.

These provisions, as originally enacted in the Customs Administrative of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 11, 26 Stat. 136, were amended by changing language and by adding at the end of the section a provision making it "l ful for appraising officers in determining the dutiable value of such m chandise to take into consideration the wholesale price at which such or si lar merchandise is sold or offered for sale in the United States, due all ance being made for estimated duties thereon, the cost of transportation, ins ance and other necessary expenses from the place of shipment to the Uni States, and a reasonable commission if any has been paid, not exceeding per centum," by Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 32, 30 Stat. 211. The provisi of said section 11, as further amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 97, were substantially re-enacted as provisi of this act.

Section 11, as originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act, s section 19 of that act, providing for assessment of ad valorem duties, w substitutes for R. S. § 2907, repealed by section 29 of that act. Said section as amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act, was substantially re-enacted the same language by section III, R, of this act, post, § 5599.

Notes of Decisions

Cost of production, in general.—This section applies only to articles made in a foreign country, and not sold there, and does not apply to merchandise manufactured for the importer abroad, where like merchandise may be bought by any one at the same place of manufacture. Muser v. Magone (C. C. 1889) 41 Fed. 877.

In the absence of proof of sales or offers to sell, market value may be ascertained by cost of raw material at the time and place of manufacture, with the cost of manufacture and a manufacturer's profit. In re Six Cases of Silk Ribbons (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 12,914.

The cost of production, with the addition of a manufacturer's profit, is admissible as tending to show market value, when no evidence of sales can be given. U. S. v. Sixteen Cases of Silk Ribbons (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,301.

Where there was no evidence of any concealment or fraud in the importation or of the absence of the ordinary means of ascertaining the foreign market value of the goods, an inquiry as to the contract price for the future delivery of goods at a store in New York free of all charges was prima facie incompetent, and in excess of the appraiso power. U. S. v. Doherty (D. C. 18 27 Fed. 730, 731.

Wholesale price.—It is not unfair the importer to employ, as a basis computing what was the true value the commodity on export abroad, wholesale selling price of a commod fixed by himself, and the very langu of the statute authorizes this to be do Beer v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. A 484.

That part of the section relating the proper ascertainment of dutia value by an inquiry as to the sale pr of the commodity in the United Sta is a definition of the powers gran appraising officers in appraisement p ceedings, and there is nothing conta ed there to limit the scope of that p vision to cases where no foreign mar value appears; it seems rather in f intended to aid appraising officers ascertain true foreign market valu Id.

Charges, expenses, and commissio—The evidence showed that manuf turers were accustomed to sell in foreign market to others than co mission men at a fixed price, includ in the price an item which they cal nission." The item so charged he discount which the manufac- were accustomed to allow com- n merchants who purchased di- rom them. There was evidence in buying goods of a concern was a manufacturer and also mission house, the price of the purchased of them was the same those of their own manufacture or similar goods manufactured hers which they were selling on ission. Held, that the custom- officers, in appraising the goods, l properly include as a part of tual manufacturing price the en- um paid by the importers to the ission men or the manufacturers, rt of which was properly charge- s a commission. U. S. v. Herr- (1898) 91 Fed. 116, 33 C. C. A. reversing judgment Hermann v. (C. C. 1897) 84 Fed. 151.

board of general appraisers, in deducting from the price of merchandise when received in the United States all expenses, in order to determine the wholesale price after exportation in the foreign market, proceeded properly, it appearing that they were unable to find an open market price. Comacho v. U. S. (C. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 191.

In the absence of fraud or concealment in the importation, the appraiser can only inquire as to the contract price of goods for future delivery in this country, free of all charges, in the event of the ordinary means of ascertaining the market value of the goods in the country of exportation not being available. U. S. v. Doherty (D. C. 1886) 27 Fed. 730.

Cited without definite application, Cramer v. Arthur (1880) 102 U. S. 612, 618, 26 L. Ed. 259; Robertson v. Downing (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 1328, 127 U. S. 607, 32 L. Ed. 269.

93. (Act June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 12, as amended, Act May 27, 1908, c. 205, § 3, and Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28.) General appraisers; appointment, tenure, salary, and powers.

ere shall be appointed by the President, by and with the ad- and consent of the Senate, nine general appraisers of mer- dise. Not more than five of such general appraisers shall be inted from the same political party. They shall not be engaged y other business, avocation, or employment. That the office of general appraisers shall be at the port of New York, and three em shall be on duty at that port daily as a board of general ap- ers.

l of the general appraisers of merchandise heretofore or hereafter inted under the authority of said Act shall hold their office during behavior, but may, after due hearing, be removed by the Presi- for the following causes, and no other: Neglect of duty, mal- nce in office, or inefficiency.

at hereafter the salary of each of the general appraisers of mer- dise shall be at the rate of nine thousand dollars per annum.

at the boards of general appraisers and the members thereof have and possess all the powers of a circuit court of the United s in preserving order, compelling the attendance of witnesses, the production of evidence, and in punishing for contempt.

l notices in writing to collectors of dissatisfaction of any decision of, as to the rate or amount of duties chargeable upon imported handise, including all dutiable costs and charges, and as to all and exactions of whatever character (except duties on tonnage), the invoice and all papers and exhibits, shall be forwarded to the d of nine general appraisers of merchandise at New York to be ule thereof assigned for hearing or determination, or both. The ident of the United States shall designate one of the board of general appraisers of merchandise as president of said board and rs in order to act in his absence. Said general appraisers of mer- dise shall be divided into three boards of three members each, e denominated respectively Board 1, Board 2, and Board 3. The dent of the board shall assign three general appraisers to each of boards and shall designate one member of each of said boards hairman thereof, and such assignment or designation may be by changed from time to time, and he may assign or designate all ds of three general appraisers where it is now or heretofore was ided by law that such might be assigned or designated by the Secretary of the Treasury. The president of the board shall competent to sit as a member of any board, or assign one or t other members thereto, in the absence or inability of any one or t members of such board. Each of the boards of three general praisers, or a majority thereof, shall have full power to hear and termine all cases and questions arising therein or assigned there and the general board of nine general appraisers, each of the boa of three general appraisers, and each of the general appraisers merchandise, shall have all the jurisdiction and powers and proc as now, heretofore, and herein provided. The said board of n general appraisers shall have power to establish from time to ti such rules of evidence, practice and procedure, not inconsistent w the statutes, as may be deemed necessary for the conduct and u formity of its proceedings and decisions and the proceedings a decisions of the boards of three thereof; and for the production, ca and custody of samples and records of said board. The president the board shall have control of the fiscal affairs and the clerical fo of the board, make all recommendations for appointment, pron tion, and otherwise affecting said clerical force; he may at any ti before trial under the rules of said board assign or reassign any c for hearing, determination, or both, and shall designate a general praiser or a board of general appraisers, and, if necessary, a cl thereto, to proceed to any port within the jurisdiction of the Uni States for the purpose of hearing, or determining if authorized law, causes assigned for hearing at such port, and shall cause to prepared and duly promulgated dockets therefor. No member of a of said boards shall sit to hear or decide any case on appeal in decision of which he may have previously participated. The boa of three general appraisers, or a majority of them, who decided case, may, upon motion of either party made within thirty days n after their decision, grant a rehearing or retrial of said case when their opinion the ends of justice may require it. (26 Stat. 136. Stat. 406. 36 Stat. 98.)

This section as originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act of J 10, 1890, c. 407, § 12, was as follows:

"There shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and c sent of the Senate, nine general appraisers of merchandise, each of wh shall receive a salary of seven thousand dollars a year. Not more than of such general appraisers shall be appointed from the same political pa They shall not be engaged in any other business, avocation, or employme and may be removed from office at any time by the President for inefficien neglect of duty, or malfeasance in office. They shall be employed at such p and within such territorial limits, as the Secretary of the Treasury n from time to time prescribe, and are hereby authorized to exercise the p ers, and duties devolved upon them by this act and to exercise, under general direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, such other supervis over appraisements and classifications, for duty, of imported merchandise may be needful to secure lawful and uniform appraisements and classificati at the several ports. Three of the general appraisers shall be on duty a board of general appraisers daily (except Sunday and legal holidays) at port of New York, during the business hours prescribed by the Secretary the Treasury, at which port a place for samples shall be provided, under s rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may from time to ti prescribe, which shall include rules as to the classes of articles to be posited, the time of their retention, and as to their disposition, which place samples shall be under the immediate control and direction of the board general appraisers on duty at said port."

Said Customs Administrative Act was amended by Act May 27, 1908, c. 2 cited above, by adding thereto, after section 30 thereof, a new section numbe as section 31 thereof, to read as follows:

"Sec. 31. That all of the general appraisers of merchandise heretofore hereafter appointed under the authority of said act shall hold their office dur good behavior, but may, after due hearing be removed by the President for following causes, and no other: Neglect of duty, malfeasance in office, or in ficiency.

"That hereafter the salary of each of the general appraisers of merchandise shall be at the rate of nine thousand dollars per annum.

"That the said boards of general appraisers and the members thereof shall have and possess all the powers of a circuit court of the United States in preserving order, compelling the attendance of witnesses, and the production of evidence, and in punishing for contempt."

These sections were combined and amended to read as set forth here by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, cited above.

This section was saved from repeal by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, by a proviso annexed to section IV, S, of that act, ante, § 5316.

A similar saving from repeal was made by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 41, 36 Stat. 118.

Sections 13 and 14 of the Customs Administrative Act, as amended, were superseded by section III, M, N, of the Underwood Tariff Act, post, §§ 5594, 5595.

Provisions for the review of decisions of Boards of General Appraisers by the Circuit Courts, made by section 15 of the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, were superseded by provisions for such review by the Court of Customs Appeals created by section 29 added to that act by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6. The provisions of said new section 29 were incorporated in and superseded by chapter 8 of the Judicial Code of March 3, 1911, set forth ante, §§ 1179–1190, and the sections next following section 15, originally sections 16, 17, 18, as amended, were designated respectively sections 15, 16, 17, in the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act, but were re-enacted in said act without other change. These three sections were substantially re-enacted as provisions of section III, O, P, Q, of the Underwood Tariff Act, set forth post, §§ 5596–5598.

Previous provisions for appointment of general appraisers were made by R. S. § 2608, repealed by section 29 of the Customs Administrative Act, 26 Stat. 141.

Notes of Decisions

ature of office of general apprais-
-The general appraisers are offi- of the Treasury Department. 94) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 85.

ppointment and removal of ap-sers.—Where the record shows the president deemed it his duty make changes in the board of ap-isers, the court must assume that changes were such as prescribed law, and that the president was led by the statute prescribing the unds on which the officer might removed. Shurtleff v. U. S. (1901) Ct. Cl. 34, affirmed (1903) 23 Sup. 535, 189 U. S. 311, 47 L. Ed. 828.

he method of ascertaining the ses for removal is within the dis-tion of the President, and no legal ility attaches to the government his failure to assign the particular tutory cause for which he removes appraiser. Id.

general appraiser sought to be re-ved from office by the President for of the causes specified as grounds such removal, is entitled to notice hearing. Id.

he general power of the President remove a federal official for any son he may think sufficient, even ugh such official was appointed by with the advice and consent of Senate, is not restricted, as re-ds general appraisers of merchan-e, to a removal for "inefficiency, lect of duty, or malfeasance in of-." Id.

he removal of a general appraiser the President without notice or opportunity to defend will be presumed to have been made for other causes than those specified as grounds for his removal. Id.

Appraisement made invalid by removal of appraiser and substitution of another. Greely v. Thompson (1850) 10 How. 225, 240, 13 L. Ed. 397.

Proper appointment of qualified appraiser presumed. Erhardt v. Ballin (1906) 150 Fed. 529, 80 C. C. A. 271.

There is no incompatibility between the office of general appraiser and the special service of expert for which such officer was detailed, the latter service being a mere employment without compensation, and not an office. (1902) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 12.

The provision that a general appraiser "shall not be engaged in any other business, avocation, or employment," is not applicable to the case of a general appraiser detailed by the Secretary of the Treasury, without additional compensation, as "an expert to represent the United States in the international commission for the conversion of the present Chinese tariff into specific rates." That provision, in connection with other provisions of the law, means that such officer can not hold another office under the government or be engaged in other incompatible government service. Id.

Negligence or malfeasance.—If inefficiency, neglect of duty, or malfeasance in office is charged against a general appraiser, it is the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to investigate the matter. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 85.

Rehearings.—The denial by the board of a rehearing to permit the introduction of the record of another case involving similar or identical merchandise, this motion having been denied "for the present" at the hearing of the cause, and no further mention of it appearing in the record until after the publication of the board's decision, the record in this court showing with reasonable certainty the character and uses of the merchandise at bar, is not an abuse of the discretion vested in it by this section, permitting it to grant a rehearing "when in their opinion the ends of justice may require it," and rule 34 of its own rules of procedure, permitting the introduction of such record "within the discretion of the board." Bache & Co. v. U. S. (1916) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 507.

Cited without definite application, (1877) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 260.

§ 5594. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, M.) Revision of reports of assistant appraisers; reappraisement; appeal to board of general appraisers.

M. The appraiser shall revise and correct the reports of the assistant appraisers as he may judge proper, and the appraiser, or, at ports where there is no appraiser, the person acting as such, shall report to the collector his decision as to the value of the merchandise appraised. At ports where there is no appraiser the certificate of the customs officer to whom is committed the estimating and collection of duties, of the dutiable value of any merchandise required to be appraised, shall be deemed and taken to be the appraisement of such merchandise. If the collector shall deem the appraisement of any imported merchandise too low, he may, within sixty days thereafter, appeal to reappraisement, which shall be made by one of the general appraisers, or if the importer, owner, agent, or consignee of such merchandise shall deem the appraisement thereof too high, and shall have complied with the requirements of law with respect to the entry and appraisement of merchandise, he may within ten days thereafter appeal for reappraisement by giving notice thereof to the collector in writing. Such appeal shall be deemed to be finally abandoned and waived unless within two days from the date of filing thereof the person who filed such notice shall deposit with the collector of customs a fee of $1 for each entry. Such fee shall be deposited and accounted for as miscellaneous receipts, and in case the appeal in connection with which such fee was deposited shall be finally sustained, in whole or in part, such fee shall be refunded to the importer, with the duties found to be collected in excess, from the appropriation for the refund to importers of excess of deposits. The decision of the general appraiser in cases of reappraisement shall be final and conclusive as to the dutiable value of such merchandise against all parties interested therein, unless the importer, owner, consignee, or agent of the merchandise shall deem the reappraisement of the merchandise too high, and shall, within five days thereafter, give notice to the collector, in writing, of an appeal, or unless the collector shall deem the reappraisement of the merchandise too low, and shall within ten days thereafter appeal for re-appraisement; in either case the collector shall transmit the invoice and all the papers appertaining thereto to the board of nine general appraisers, to be by rule thereof duly assigned for determination. In such cases the general appraiser and boards of general appraisers shall proceed by all reasonable ways and means in their power to ascertain, estimate, and determine the dutiable value of the imported merchandise, and in so doing may exercise both judicial and inquisitorial functions. In such cases the general appraisers and the Boards of General Appraisers shall give reasonable notice to the importer and the proper representative of the Government of the time and place of each and every hearing at which the parties or their attorneys shall have opportunity to introduce evidence and to hear and cross-examine the itnesses for the other party, and to inspect all samples and all docu-entary evidence or other papers offered. Affidavits of persons whose tendance can not be procured may be admitted in the discretion of e general appraiser or Board of General Appraisers. The decision the appraiser, or the person acting as such (in case where no ob-ction is made thereto, either by the collector or by the importer, vner, consignee, or agent), or the single general appraiser in case no appeal, or of the board of three general appraisers, in all re-praisement cases, shall be final and conclusive against all parties d shall not be subject to review in any manner for any cause in y tribunal or court, and the collector or the person acting as such all ascertain, fix, and liquidate the rate and amount of the duties be paid on such merchandise, and the dutiable costs and charges ereon, according to law; and no reappraisement or re-reappraise-ent shall be considered invalid because of the absence of the mer-andise or samples thereof before the officer or officers making the ne, where no party in interest had demanded the inspection of ch merchandise or samples, and where the merchandise or samples re reasonably accessible for inspection. (38 Stat. 186.)

This paragraph and the eight paragraphs next following were subdivisions of section III of the Underwood Tariff Act, cited above.

See notes to subdivision B of said section, ante, § 5519.

These provisions were substituted for provisions of the same nature made by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 13, 26 Stat. 136, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 99.

Provisions as to the effect of the appraiser's certificate, made by R. S. § 2950, were superseded by these provisions.

Requirements similar to those of this section as to the deposit of a fee of $1 on appeal for reappraisement were made by article XI of the Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

Provisions similar to some extent to those of section 13 of said Customs Administrative Act of 1890 were made by R. S. §§ 2929, 2930, repealed by section 29 of that Act.

See notes to section 12 of said Customs Administrative Act, as amended, ante, § 5593.

Notes of Decisions

Smuggled goods.
Historical.
Notice, etc.
Presumptions.
Report of appraiser.
Conclusiveness of appraisal.
Reappraisement, in general.
— Assignment for determination.
— Examination of merchandise.
— Inspection of samples.
— Conclusiveness.
Decisions under earlier statutes.
Liquidation by collector.

Smuggled goods.—When property ect to forfeiture for smuggling or ate offenses is seized, the ap-ement should be in accordance section 5777, post, and not under section. (1903) 24 Op. Atty. 583; (1906) 25 Op. Atty. Gen.

Historical.—As to early history of lation, see Davies v. Miller (1889) p. Ct. 560, 130 U. S. 284, 32 L. 932.

Notice, etc.—Where appraisers fixed a time for a hearing, and notice thereof to the parties in-ted, the refusal to postpone the ng at the request of one of the parties is within their discretion, and the court will not interfere. U. S. v. Earnshaw (D. C. 1887) 30 Fed. 672.

4. Presumptions.—In the absence of evidence to the contrary, it will be presumed that an appraisement by a local appraiser was in conformity with law and was valid. U. S. v. Curnen & Stiner (1906) 146 Fed. 45, 76 C. C. A. 503.

5. Report of appraiser.—The appraiser may amend his report. Hilton v. Merritt (1884) 3 Sup. Ct. 548, 555, 110 U. S. 97, 28 L. Ed. 83, holding appraisal to be conclusive.

It is intended that the appraisement should be reduced to writing. The certificate of the appraising officer is the legal evidence of appraisement, and if it is not made the appraisement is illegal. The Lace House v. U. S. (1905) 141 Fed. 869, 73 C. C. A. 103.

The importers entered the goods upon affidavit and statement in the form of an invoice, giving bond as required by law. The collector sent this pro forma invoice to the appraiser, and upon the report of the assistant appraiser there appeared the words "Approved, E. S. Fowler, appraiser." Later the importers filed a consular invoice to cancel their bond, and in an accompanying verified statement asserted the incorrectness of the pro forma invoice, but made no application for reappraisement. The entry was liquidated on the basis of the value as given in the pro forma invoice. Held, the indorsement of "approved" by the appraiser shows a compliance with the requirement that he should ascertain, estimate, and appraise the actual market value of the merchandise and make a report thereon; furthermore, to hold thus is in accord with the regulations and practice in respect of pro forma invoices. U. S. v. Frank & Lambert (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 239.

The mere citation to a former decision by the board by the appraiser in his report to the collector is not sufficient to identify the merchandise in the two cases. National Hat Pin Co. v. U. S. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 435. See, also, U. S. v. Eytinge (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 266.

6. Conclusiveness of appraisal.—Appraisement conclusive as to dutiable value of goods. Bartlett v. Kane (1853) 16 How. 263, 271, 14 L. Ed. 931; Belcher v. Linn (1860) 24 How. 508, 522, 16 L. Ed. 754; Iasigi v. The Collector (1863) 1 Wall. 375, 384, 17 L. Ed. 686; Hilton v. Merritt (1884) 3 Sup. Ct. 548, 551, 110 U. S. 97, 28 L. Ed. 83; Oelbermann v. Merritt (1887) 8 Sup. Ct. 151, 154, 123 U. S. 356, 31 L. Ed. 164; Huffmordt v. Hedden (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 103, 106, 107, 137 U. S. 310, 34 L. Ed. 674; U. S. v. Kenworthy (1895) 68 Fed. 904, 905, 908, 16 C. C. A. 61; Tappan v. U. S. (C. C. 1822) Fed. Cas. No. 13,749; Stewart v. Merritt (C. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 531, 533; Yanada v. Spalding (C. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 21; U. S. v. Leng (D. C. 1883) 18 Fed. 15, 19; U. S. v. Brown-Alaska Co. (1910) 4 Alaska, 89.

Where the importers did not avail themselves of the means pointed out by this section for the correction of an error in the appraisement of duties, the collection of duties according to the appraisement cannot be held illegal since the collector was bound to proceed thereon if the appraisement remained unquestioned. Schoenfeld v. Hendricks (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 754, 755, 152 U. S. 691, 38 L. Ed. 601.

The evidence of the decision of appraisers is their official returns, and, if they acted without fraud and within their powers, their decision cannot be impeached by requiring them to disclose the reason for their conclusions, or by evidence of statements made by them. Muser v. Magone (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 77, 82, 155 U. S. 240, 39 L. Ed. 135, affirming judgment (C. C. 1889) 41 Fed. 877.

Alleged error of the appraiser or collector, in that he has proceeded on a wrong principle, as by including in the appraisement charges forming no part of dutiable value, may be attacked by protest, and reviewed by the board of general appraisers. U. S. v. Passavant (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 219, 169 U. S. 16, 42 L. Ed. 644.

While, as a general rule, the valuation of appraisers is conclusive on all parties, the appraisement may be impeached if the appraiser or collector proceeded on a wrong principle, contrary to law, or transcended the power conferred by statute, or did not comply therewith. U. S. v. Loeb (1901) 107 Fed. 692, 46 C. C. A. 562, writ of certiorari denied Loeb v. U. S. (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 923, 181 U. S. 618, 45 L. Ed. 1030.

The provision making decisions of appraising officers final and conclusive, does not prevent inquiry as to whether such officers acted legally; and evidence is admissible to show that items independent of the actual value have been included in the appraised value. Appraisers may not cut off all inquiry into their action by merely stating that an item was added "to make market value." N. Erlanger, Blumgart & Co. v. U. S. (1907) 154 Fed. 949, 83 C. C. A. 463, affirming judgment (C. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 576.

Additions to entry made by importer to obtain possession of goods are not voluntary, and appraisement is not conclusive. Benkard v. Schell (C. C.) Fed. Cas. No. 1,307.

An error of the importers in designating the appraising officers in an application for an appraisement will be disregarded. Wight v. Curtis (C. C. 1845) Fed. Cas. No. 17,628.

The validity of an appraisement can be impeached outside the award only by testimony showing that the question referred was not decided, or some misconduct in the appraisers. Tucker v. Kane (C. C. 1850) Fed. Cas. No. 14,-220.

Duty of collector to assess duties upon appraisal value of merchandise, notwithstanding there is an invoice sworn to by the owner. Thomson v. Maxwell (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 13,983.

The appraisement by the official appraiser held conclusive, notwithstanding a protest, where the importer asserted that he did not desire a reappraisement, and did not offer the fees therefor. Fielden v. Lawrence (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 4,774.

An appraisement by part only of the public appraisers is valid unless protested against; and it is only necessary that those who certify to the appraisal should actually have made it. McCall v. Lawrence (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 8,672.

An appraisement becomes of no effect only when there is another appraise-

t. Lehmaier v. Maxwell (C. C. 6) Fed. Cas. No. 8,214.

n appraisal by public appraisers is and conclusive, unless the importer s to the collector an absolute and onditional notice of his dissatis- ion with such appraisal. Schmaire Iaxwell (C. C. 1856) Fed. Cas. No. 60.

ne appraisal is not set aside by an eal, though the collector illegally ses to order a reappraisal. Id.

ne appraisers are not bound by pri- ppraisals of the value of goods of same kind imported by the same y. Goodsell v. Briggs (C. C. 1873) . Cas. No. 5,548.

n actual appraisement by the ap- ser is conclusive as to the value of importation in the absence of an eal to the merchant appraisers, the collector is required to assess duty upon such valuation. Saxon- Mills v. Russell (C. C. 1880) 1 118, 123, judgment affirmed (1885) p. Ct. 237, 116 U. S. 13, 29 L. Ed.

ne decision of the proper officer, r appeal and without fraud, as to dutiable value of imports, is final conclusive against the importer. vart v. Merritt (C. C. 1880) 2 531.

n assessment of merchandise com- ng 11 bales of hides and skins d together indiscriminately, as es of leather, raw," under Act July 1897, c. 11, § 1, Schedule N, par. will be affirmed where, notwith- ding the appraiser's demand that importers produce two bales be- s the sample bale, so as to enable to satisfy himself as to the rela- proportion of hides and skins, they to do so, and fail to show that the r bales contain the same proportion ides and skins as the sample bale. l v. U. S. (C. C. 1902) 115 Fed.

ne appraisement and liquidation of es by the appraiser and collector binding and conclusive in all collat- proceedings, and, in the absence ny reliquidation or reappraisement, not be disregarded or reviewed, ex- in the modes provided by law. r payment of the duties as liqui- d, a suit in the district court for es alleged to be due in excess of liquidation, on account of an alleg- untrue discount, fraudulently pro- d to be allowed in the appraisement value, cannot be sustained. U. S. cDowell (D. C. 1884) 21 Fed. 563.

ne rule that the appraisement and idation of duties by customs officers binding in all collateral proceed- , frequently applied in the United es district court as against impor- , must be equally applied in suits ight by the United States. Id.

the absence of material evidence he contrary, the method employed customs officials to determine the weight of commodities will be presumed to be correct. U. S. v. Gage Bros. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 439.

The board's authority was complete, and this had been properly invoked. The board was charged with the duty, and it had the power, to decide not alone the main issue concerning plateaux, but every other question of law or fact material in determining the case. The collector was without warrant of law in disregarding the board's decision. U. S. v. Kurtz, Stuboeck & Co. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 144.

Appeals are regulated or denied by statute and the determination of the tribunal of a question of law or fact is final unless an appeal be authorized either by the organic law or some effective statute. Larzelere & Co. v. U. S. (1915) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 510.

7. Reappraisement in general.—The importer had a right to appeal to another board of appraisers, differently constituted, and if he did not choose to resort to them, he cannot afterwards complain that there was an overestimate. Rankin v. Hoyt (1846) 45 U. S. (4 How.) 327, 11 L. Ed. 996.

While goods remain in the ownership of the importer, the collector of the customs has a reasonable time to fix their true dutiable value; and his right to reappraise them, in any case where, from neglect or want of evidence on the part of the appraisers, the appraisement has been under the proper dutiable value, is not lost merely because they have gone through one form of appraisement, and been delivered to the importer with a memorandum on the invoice that the entry was "right"; but the court expresses no opinion on a case where the goods "have passed beyond the reach of the collector." Iasigi v. Collector (1863) 68 U. S. (1 Wall.) 375, 17 L. Ed. 686.

An importer, having demanded a reappraisement, attended on the day set, but, the government not being ready, the hearing was adjourned indefinitely, with the understanding that the importer should be notified when a new day was fixed. About nine months later notice was mailed at New York to the importer in Philadelphia that the hearing would be held the next day at noon. The importer was then in Cuba, but the letter was received at his office by his clerk, who wrote, asking a postponement. The appraiser then telegraphed the clerk that the appraisement would take place on the fifth succeeding day, but no attention was paid thereto, and the appraisement was had soon after the day fixed, the importer being unrepresented. Held that, in view of the fact that the importer had left the country without making any provision for a hearing during his absence, the appraisers did not act unreasonably, and their decision must stand. Earnshaw v. U. S. (1892) 146 U. S. 60, 13 Sup.

Ct. 14, 36 L. Ed. 887, affirming (D. C. 1887) 30 Fed. 672.

The facts being undisputed, the reasonableness of the notice with respect to time was a question of law for the court. Id.

An importer is not entitled to be present during proceedings on appraisement, to hear or examine all the testimony, and to cross-examine the witnesses; and where he is invited by the appraisers to present his views in regard to the reappraisement, and to suggest questions to be put to the witnesses, he has no ground for complaint. Origet v. Hedden (1894) 155 U. S. 228, 15 Sup. Ct. 92, 39 L. Ed. 130.

Importers, by withdrawing their appeal to the merchant appraisers, and refusing to produce the documents connected with the importation as called for by the official appraisers, fix the correctness of the appraisement. Bartlett v. Kane (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 1,077.

A notice that the appraisement is not satisfactory, and the importers will give evidence "if desired," is not sufficient to entitle them to a reappraisement. Lehmaier v. Maxwell (C. C. 1856) Fed. Cas. No. 8,214.

Where goods are entered and warehoused at one port, intended for reshipment and rewarehousing at another port, the entry is to be completed at the former port, and the collector of the second port has no power to make a reappraisement. Spring v. Russell (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 13,261.

The reappraisement is an appraisal on view, and the reappraisers have the power to ascertain the value of the merchandise by reasonable ways and means, and to determine what witnesses, if any, it is proper for them to examine. Auffmordt v. Hedden (C. C. 1886) 30 Fed. 360, judgment affirmed (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 103, 137 U. S. 310, 34 L. Ed. 674.

A United States general appraiser, when reappraising the value of imported merchandise, is not constrained at all by the rules that pertain to courts, but may reappraise such merchandise at a higher value than that fixed by the local appraiser, even though such reappraisement be had at the instance of the importer thereof, and not at that of a collector of customs. In re Megroz (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 828.

The fact that the return to the circuit court was not signed by the board of general appraisers who took the evidence does not overcome the presumption that the appraisers who heard the case decided it. Mexican Onyx & Trading Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1895) 66 Fed. 732.

Where, in appraising goods, the appraiser made an addition to the entered value of the invoice by disallowing a commission of 2½ per cent., claimed as a discount for cash paid on the purchase, "to make market value," the discount being considered excessive, th importer's remedy was by appeal fo reappraisement, and not by protes Wanamaker v. Cooper (C. C. 1895 69 Fed. 329.

The board of general appraisers ha jurisdiction to correct a mistake in th appraisement, arising from a clerica error in invoicing the goods as wort so many marks instead of so man pfennigs. U. S. v. Benjamin (C. C 1896) 72 Fed. 51.

Under article 1126 of the treasu regulations of 1892, after an appraise ment has been completed, and a retu thereof made to the importer, and a cepted by him, the appraisement ca not be recalled, even for the corre tion of a clerical error, where the e fect of such correction is to chang the appraisal; and, if such action taken, the importer has the right t protest against the second valuatio on the ground that it amounts to new appraisement, and is without ju risdiction, and is not bound to give no tice of dissatisfaction, as provided i this section. U. S. v. Morewood & C (C. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 639.

The duty of determining whether o not the appraisement is too low is de volved upon the collector, and in th performance of such duty he acts ju dicially, and his discretion cannot b controlled by his superior officer hence, when he does not, in fact, dee the appraisement too low, an appe taken by him by direction of the se retary of the treasury confers no ju risdiction on the board of three gener appraisers to review such apprais ment, and he is a competent witne to rebut the presumption of jurisdi tion arising from the fact of appeal b showing that it was not taken in th exercise of his own judgment. U. S v. Loeb (C. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 728.

Formal notice to the board of di satisfaction by either the importer o collector was not needed to give it ju risdiction, transmission to it of th designated papers being sufficient, an hence the fact that a collector wa satisfied, but ordered a reappraisemen pursuant to instructions from th treasury department, would not null fy its action. U. S. v. Loeb (1901) 10 Fed. 692, 46 C. C. A. 562, writ of cer tiorari denied Loeb v. U. S. (1901) 2 Sup. Ct. 923, 181 U. S. 618, 45 L. Ed 1030.

Certain proceedings on reappraise ment held by general appraisers on ap peal by the importers from the finding of the local appraiser were held to b invalid because the general appraiser had not examined the merchandise o samples thereof. It appeared tha though the importers could not hav produced either the merchandise or ac tual samples thereof, they had offere evidence equivalent to the presence o the actual samples, which was rejecte by the general apraisers. Held, tha should be assessed on the im-rs' entered value, and not on that l by the local appraiser, though appraisement was valid. Curnen tiner v. U. S. (C. C. 1904) 136 807.

til there has been a legal reapement taking the place of an orig-and valid appraisement by a local aiser, such appraisement stands, is not to be affected and set aside use there was an appeal for reaisement, but no valid reappraise-was had. U. S. v. Curnen &
r (1906) 146 Fed. 45, 76 C. C. A.

here an importer appealed from appraisement, of the local apprais-o reappraisement, but the reapement proceedings were void, the aised value appealed from, and not nvoice value, becomes the dutiable
e. Id.

o months after a reappraisement ion had been made by a Board of ral Appraisers, the board amend-t in order to correct an error.
, that the correction was illegal.
. v. Thomas Leeming & Co. (C.
907) 153 Fed. 489.

here a general appraiser through sight fails to consider a portion of evidence in a reappraisement case, aggrieved party's remedy is by ap-for reappraisement by a Board of eral Appraisers, rather than by est as provided in section 5595,
U. S. v. Chas. M. Taylor's Sons
C. 1909) 171 Fed. 152.

here the original appraisement by cal appraiser is not shown incor-it is immaterial that a reappraiseheld on appeal was invalid, if the found was the same in each pro-ing; because in such event the nal appraised value would be taks the dutiable value. Grubnau v.
(C. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 284, judgaffirmed (1910) 176 Fed. 904,
C. C. A. 374.

appraisement proceedings under section are separate and distinct protest proceedings under section , post, and where the legality of a praisement is challenged by proings under the latter section, the e reappraisement record does not me a part of the record in the lat-proceedings, unless expressly ad-
ed. Harris v. U. S. (C. C. 1910)
Fed. 475.

here cannot be a reappraisement, appeal, unless there has been an y of the goods, and such entry be presumed from the circum-ces on reappraisal. In re Twenty-t Cases of Wine (D. C. 1867)
Cas. No. 14,281.

porter not liable for expenses of praisement. Iselin v. Hedden (D.
886) 28 Fed. 416, 417, reversed 31
266.

to reappraisement of goods delivered to importer, see U. S. v. Phillips (D. C. 1891) 46 Fed. 466, 467.

Under this section and sections 5595, 5714, post, where imports have been appraised by an appraiser, the collector has no jurisdiction to reappraise the same, and though authorized to institute a proceeding within a year to reliquidate the duties, and to examine the importer as a witness for that purpose, he has no jurisdiction in that proceeding to compel the importer to testify with reference to the value of the goods, and so lay a foundation for reappraisement under the guise of a reliquidation; and this though the original appraisement was induced by fraud. U. S. v. Calhoun (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 499.

Reappraisement can be conducted only by the appraising officers, and not by the collector. Id.

If a reappraisement by a board of general appraisers be held valid it is unnecessary to inquire into the validity of preceding appraisements of the same merchandise. Beer v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 484.

An appraiser, after having once performed the duty of appraisement in respect of any particular merchandise and after having made his return thereof to the collector, has no authority of his own volition to make another appraisement of the same merchandise. U. S. v. Frank & Lambert (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 239; U. S. v. Bennett & Loewenthal (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 249.

There is no contention that the reappraisement board was without jurisdiction, that it was guilty of fraud, or that it added independent items not dutiable to make the appraised value. The board had before it evidence as to the course of business of manufacturers and customers where the chocolate was handled in Switzerland and at the time this was exported. That evidence related both to the quantities and prices of the commodity in business transactions in Switzerland and it cannot acordingly be held that the board's finding was based wholly upon the "conventional agreement" by which it had been sought to control the sale of chocolate in that country. Neither the board of general appraisers sitting as a classification board nor this court has authority on the record in this case to review the appraisement as made. Wolff v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 181; Horace Day Co. v. U. S. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 152.

This section contains the word rereappraisement, appearing there once. The language of the subsection as a whole clearly indicates the word "rereappraisement" was used where it occurs in the sense of reappraisement. Gallagher & Ascher v. U. S. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 308.

Any question of the regularity of the reappraisement proceedings in this cause might have been waived. Maddaus v. U. S. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 330. The former decision was rested upon the unmistakably clear waiver in writing filed by the appellants, and this as construed in the light of a uniform current of decisions of this court. Gallagher & Ascher v. U. S. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 404.

The review of legislation affecting a collector's right to "appeal" to reappraisement reveals no statutory method governing him in making his appeal; but viewing this legislation as a whole it is held that it is an appeal if he complies with the regulation authorizing him, if he is dissatisfied with the appraisement, he may and shall transmit the invoice and all the papers appertaining thereto to the board of nine general appraisers. The transmission by a collector of another port by mailing is a compliance with the statute. Larzelere & Co. v. U. S. (1915) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 510.

The board of general appraisers, in passing upon the reappraisement of certain items of an invoice which had been referred to it for decision, had no authority to pass upon items which were not embraced in the case submitted, and should have confined itself to those items only which were covered by the importers' appeal. (1890) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 665.

A general appraiser, acting under a collector's direction for the reappraisement, must confine himself to the particular items of the importation on account of which a reappraisement was ordered. (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 39.

The action of a collector in denying a reappraisement because the importer refused to answer proper interrogatories propounded to him may be reviewed, first by the board of general appraisers on a protest, and next by the circuit court on an application for review. (1899) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 456.

8. —— Assignment for determination.—Where a board of three general appraisers has acquired jurisdiction over a case through the transmission by the collector of the papers in the case, it is then the duty of that board to "examine and decide the case thus submitted," as prescribed by said section; it may not afterward surrender its jurisdiction to another board; and a rule adopted by the general appraisers is invalid which, in order to prevent conflicting decisions, provides for the transfer of a case from one board to another when the majority of all the general appraisers is of opinion that a proposed decision in the case by one board conflicts with a previous decision. Thomas Prosser & Son v. U. S. (1907) 158 Fed. 971, 86 C. C. A. 175, reversing order (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 721.

The powers and duties of the board of appraisers and the law affecting these are stated and discussed. Th record in this case shows there wa a hearing by board 1, to whom the cas had been lawfully committed for hear ing and determination and the juris diction of which is not challenged The decision here complained of, how ever, was rendered by another board having no appellate jurisdiction ove board 1 and the assumed jurisdictio of which is directly challenged. Th judgment of the second board is voi and the case is still pending befor board 1 for determination and decision U. S. v. Park & Tilford (1913) 4 Ct Cust. App. 293.

In this cause the only warrant tha board 1 had for deciding the questio at issue was a so-called order of trans fer made by the president of the board of general appraisers. This order wa made after and not before trial, a prescribed by statute, and it conferre no authority on board 1 to determin the issues involved in the protests Moreover, as appears from the record no opportunity was given, either t the government or the importers, t appear and be heard. U. S. v. Saunders (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 270.

9. —— Examination of merchandise.—The importer has a right to be present when the reappraisers view his goods to see that they are his goods, and t make such statements as are pertinent to the case. Auffmordt v. Hedden (C. C. 1886) 30 Fed. 360, judgment affirmed (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 103, 137 U. S. 310, 34 L. Ed. 674.

A reappraisement of value may be made without a re-examination of the goods themselves, where the items to be corrected, such as an alleged false discount in the invoice, do not depend on any inspection of the goods. U. S. v. McDowell (D. C. 1884) 21 Fed. 563.

10. —— Inspection of samples.—In proving the character of imported merchandise, it is not essential that actual samples of the importations should be produced. Such proof may be supplied by witnesses familiar with the goods, testifying from their recollection as to the invoice descriptions. U. S. v. Herrmann (1907) 154 Fed. 196, 83 C. C. A. 179, affirming decree Herrmann v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 843.

On appeals from appraisements by the local appraiser of imported merchandise taken by the collector of customs, the general appraiser who made the reappraisements did not have before him the merchandise in question, nor samples thereof, the merchandise had passed out of the possession and control of the importers, and the collector had not ordered its return, in accordance with the terms of a bond which had been given by the importers under section 2899, R. S., section 5589, ante. Held, that the reappraisements were void, and that the duties should assessed on the basis of the values ınd by the local appraiser, and not ›se found by the general appraiser. S. v. Murphy (C. C. 1898) 136 Fed. L.

n the proof of the character of im- rted goods it is not established that nples should be produced. Proof other means is permissible. eims Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1909) 169 d. 662, judgment affirmed U. S. v. eims Co. (1909) 175 Fed. 778, 99 C. A. 350.

n an action by the government to ›over duties from the importer, ich action is based on a reliquida- n, the fact that the appraiser who de the re-examination cannot at trial identify particular samples as onging to particular invoices is im- terial when the goods consist of ses for optical instruments, which exactly alike in all the invoices, d at the time of making the re-ex- ination the appraiser had each sam- marked as from the particular in- ce. U. S. v. Fox (D. C. 1893) 53 d. 531.

The general rule that upon the re- amination and reliquidation of duties packages of goods must themselves present, does not apply in the case lenses for optical instruments, when ere is no question as to their value, d it appears that a single specimen is perfect representation of the whole portation. Id.

n the case at bar, it being fairly ablished by the evidence that the mber of packages required by law re sent to the public stores for ex- ination and that these were in due urse examined by the reappraise- nt board, their finding must be here irmed. Loeb v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. st. App. 385.

The changes made in the law gov- ning appraisements of merchandise ports of entry do not warrant the erence that it is unnecessary in re- praisement proceedings for a board three general appraisers to examine samples of the merchandise when appraised. Id.

Irrespective of the particular desig- tion of the official or officials to om "a case" is submitted in pro- edings to appraise merchandise, it nnot be said "the case" has been amined when the exhibits or sam- es deposited as a part of the case ve not been examined; and the stat- e is mandatory that on appraise- nt or reappraisement the exhibits samples shall be examined. Loeb U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 385, tinguishing Erhardt v. Schroeder 894) 15 Sup. Ct. 45, 155 U. S. 124, L. Ed. 94; U. S. v. Ranlett (1898) Sup. Ct. 114, 172 U. S. 132, 43 L. l. 393.

Where the goods in controversy had ne into commerce and had been ere consumed, in reappraisement proceedings, on a failure to produce the samples of these goods selected and deposited at the public stores, it is not permissible for the government to substitute consular samples forwarded according to a practice of the Treasury Department from the place of export abroad. Tilge v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 462.

That samples selected by the collector at the port of entry and deposited at the public stores should be examined on a reappraisement is a mandatory requirement of the law. Id.

An irregularity in complying with the legal requirements as to the sufficiency of samples of goods before a board of reappraisement will be deemed to have been waived if the importer was present and made no objection to the irregularity. Harris v. U. S. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 5, citing Oelrichs & Co. v. U. S. (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 355.

The decision in Oelrichs v. U. S. (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 355, does not modify the decision in Tilge v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 462. Not only was there no sample before the appraising officer or a legal substitute therefor, but the record discloses that the jurisdiction of the appraising officer was protested because of that fact. Until the jurisdictional requirements of the statute have been complied with there can be no "decision," as contemplated by the statute to be accepted as final in character. Maddaus v. U. S. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 330.

There was a chemical analysis of the glycerin of the importation. Proof of this was excluded because a sample of the glycerin analyzed was not produced. To make the production of a sample a condition precedent to the admission of proof of the analysis was error. The failure to produce a sample might affect the weight, but not the competency of the evidence offered. U. S. v. Alpers & Mott (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 19.

In view of the stipulation and waiver, the absence of samples in the proceeding on appeal before the board of three general appraisers did not invalidate this board's finding. Gallagher & Ascher v. U. S. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 308.

The protest itself shows that the reappraisement by the single general appraiser was made without a sample of the importation or the merchandise before him and there was no waiver of production of samples. The appraisement by the single general appraiser was accordingly invalid and the appraisement of the local appraiser became again operative. U. S. v. Scanlan (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 290.

11. —— Conclusiveness.—Upon a difference of opinion between the collector and the importers as to what duties should be paid upon an importation of green sugar, which was invoiced as "concentrated molasses," it was agreed that the question should be decided by the board of general appraisers at New York upon an examination of samples to be submitted to them. The sugar was subject to an export duty, but the molasses was not. The appraisers decided that the invoice and entry were erroneous both in respect to the description and value of the article in question, and, to correct the error, "added the export duty" in determining the valuation. Held that, in the absence of fraud, the decision of the appraisers as to the character of the article, and the dutiable value of the importations, was final and conclusive. Belcher v. Linn (1860) 65 U. S. (24 How.) 508, 16 L. Ed. 754.

The board of appraisers is entitled to the benefit of the general rule that some presumption is to be indulged in favor of the propriety and legality of the action of inferior tribunals, and that with respect to their methods of procedure they are vested with a certain discretion, which will be respected by the courts except in cases of manifest abuse thereof. Earnshaw v. U. S. (1892) 13 Sup. Ct. 14, 15, 146 U. S. 60, 36 L. Ed. 887.

A federal circuit court has no jurisdiction to review a decision of the board of general appraisers upon a question involving merely the valuation, and not the classification or rate of duty on imported merchandise. Passavant v. U. S. (1893) 13 Sup. Ct. 572, 574, 148 U. S. 214, 37 L. Ed. 426, affirming judgment In re Passavant (C. C. 1892) 50 Fed. 788.

It was within the power of Congress to provide that the decision of the board of general appraisers should be final as to the dutiable value of merchandise without a right of appeal to the courts. Id.

After the board of general appraisers had decided that merchandise was dutiable on the basis of the mental value of the currency of the invoice, and the entry had been reliquidated accordingly by the collector, no appeal having been taken in the time prescribed by law, the Secretary of the Treasury ordered a further reliquidation at a higher value, under the authority of section 6536, post. Held, that the action of the Secretary, rather than the unappealed decision of the board, was conclusive. Klumpp v. Thomas (1908) 162 Fed. 853, 89 C. C. A. 543, writ of certiorari denied (1908) 29 Sup. Ct. 688, 212 U. S. 579, 53 L. Ed. 659.

Under the provision that decisions by the board of general appraisers in reappraisement cases shall be "final and conclusive," it was clearly intended that such decisions shall not be open to judicial review, except to inquire whether the appraisers have exceeded the authority conferred upon them by law or have otherwise acted illegally or fraudulently; and where there was no charge that the board of appraisers had acted illegally in denying the importers a hearing and opportunity to produce testimony in the matter, and there was some evidence to support the board's conclusions as to value, its reappraisement was conclusive under said section. Grubnau v. U. S. (1910) 176 Fed. 904, 100 C. C. A. 374, affirming judgment (C. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 284.

Though a reappraisement by a board of general appraisers is "final and conclusive," it may be impeached, if based on a wrong principle or contrary to law, or power conferred by statute has been transcended; and where the board misinterprets a portion of the evidence a legal error is committed, making it necessary to see if the error works injustice, and proceedings for review may be initiated by protest under section 5595, post. U. S. v. Haviland & Co. (C. C. 1909) 167 Fed. 414, judgment affirmed (1910) 177 Fed. 175, 100 C. C. A. 637, writ of certiorari denied (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 573, 216 U. S. 618, 54 L. Ed. 640.

A reappraisement decision by a board of general appraisers was founded on indirect evidence, the result reached being based upon portions of the evidence read apart from the context, upon unwarranted deductions, and assumptions unsupported by the proof, and upon arbitrary deductions to equalize certain conditions peculiar to the case, and many of the propositions urged in support of the conclusions made were based upon conjecture and guesswork. Held, that this was not such proof as is contemplated by the statute, and that, there being no legal evidence to justify the reappraisement, it should be set aside. Id.

Where, in making a reappraisement of imported merchandise, a board of general appraisers acts outside of or contrary to law, or proceeds upon a wrong principle or without any evidence to sustain their findings, their decision may be set aside. Id.

The decision of the general appraiser, in cases of reappraisement, is final as to the dutiable value of the merchandise reappraised, against all parties interested, unless the owner, consignee, or agent of the merchandise is dissatisfied and gives the required notice to the collector of such dissatisfaction, or unless the collector deems the appraisement too low, and in either case the collector must transmit the invoice and papers to the board of general appraisers to examine and decide the case, and their decision, or that of the majority, is final and conclusive. U. S. v. Strauss (D. C. 1893) 55 Fed. 388, 390.

The provision that an appraisal of goods by an appraiser shall be final conclusive against all parties, and not be subject to review in any er for any cause, in any tribunal ourt, does not exclude a reapement previously provided for in same subsection. U. S. v. Cal- (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 499.

e power of a board of general aisers to review on appeal a find- f facts is not limited in its exer- to cases where new and addition- cts or exhibits are there submit- but embraces the case in its en- , with or without new and addi- l facts or exhibits appearing; and e finding of a collector is not usive against an importer when, ppeal to a board of general ap- ers, precisely the same case is presented for decision that was nted at the port of entry. U. S. erkins (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App.

is not the province of a classifi- n board to retry questions of determined by a board of reap- ement, and additional testimony d before the classification board properly excluded. Oelrichs & . U. S. (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. distinguishing G. Gulbenkian & . U. S. (1907) 153 Fed. 858, 83 A. 40.

e collector, acting under instruc- from the Treasury Department, ed to adopt a valuation found by general appraisers upon re-reap- ement and assessed duty upon the found by the local appraiser as ed by a single general appraiser. presumption is that the reapprais- oard of three acted in accordance law and there is nothing in the d to overcome this presumption. appeal must fail. U. S. v. Brad- & Co. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App.

e Secretary of the Treasury and tors of customs are bound by ification decisions of the board of al appraisers, when unappealed only so far as such decisions af- the goods immediately before the for classification. (1903) 25 Atty. Gen. 81.

Decisions under earlier statutes.— Greely's Adm'r v. Burgess (1855) S. (18 How.) 413, 15 L. Ed. 455; euffer v. Robertson (1886) 116 499, 6 Sup. Ct. 462, 29 L. Ed. Oelbermann v. Merritt (1887) U. S. 356, 8 Sup. Ct. 151, 31 L. 64; Mustin v. Cadwalader (1887) J. S. 369, 8 Sup. Ct. 158, 31 L. Ed. Hedden v. Iselin (1892) 142 U. 6, 12 Sup. Ct. 330, 35 L. Ed. 1155; t v. Hedden (1894) 155 U. S. 228, p. Ct. 92, 39 L. Ed. 130; Magone iget (1895) 70 Fed. 778, 17 C. C. 3, 35 U. S. App. 744; Erhardt v. n (1906) 150 Fed. 529, 80 C. C. 1; Tucker v. Kane (C. C. 1850) Cas. No. 14,220; Bangs v. Max- (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 841; Vaccari v. Same (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 16,810; Bannendahl v. Redfield (C. C. 1858) Fed. Cas. No. 964; Yznaga v. Peaslee (C. C. 1860) Fed. Cas. No. 18,-196; Yanada v. Spalding (C. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 21; Hedden v. Iselin (C. C. 1887) 31 Fed. 266; U. S. v. One Thousand Three Hundred and Eighty-Two Hogsheads of Sugar (D. C. 1862) Fed. Cas. No. 15,962; Iselin v. Hedden (D. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 416.

13. Liquidation by collector.—The value of an import is determined by the appraisal, and the duty fixed by law must be assessed by the collector upon the value so determined. Wills v. Russell (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 17,773.

In suit by the United States to recover duties as liquidated, proof of an appeal before the liquidation cannot affect the operation of the liquidation, nor can proof of a protest, unless followed by an appeal taken after the liquidation. Watt v. U. S. (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 17,292.

The "ascertainment and liquidation" of the tax implies the same thing. The term "liquidation," as used in the statute and in the law generally, signifies, to clear up; as by settlement and payment. Laidlaw v. Abraham (C. C. 1890) 43 Fed. 297, 298.

Iron ore was imported in 1881, a certain sum being then paid as duties, after the appraiser had raised the valuation. In 1890 the collector decided that an additional amount was due, and an action was brought to recover the same. The importers claimed that their original payment was a liquidation, and that the action was barred within one year thereafter. Held, that the liquidation was not complete until the collector had acted in the matter, and that there was no provision of law requiring him to liquidate within any particular time, or to give notice to the importer thereof. U. S. v. De Rivera (C. C. 1896) 73 Fed. 679.

Customs officers sent to the address given by the importer in his entry a notice of an advance on the invoice value as made by the appraiser. Held, that due diligence had been shown in this regard, and that the importer could not object to the assessment of duty on the basis of the advance, on the ground that he had not received the notice by reason of an error in the address. U. S. v. Independent Importing Co. (C. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 63.

Entry was made on a pro forma invoice and the value stated therein was approved by the appraiser, who also, however, approved the lower value given in a consular invoice subsequently produced by the importer. Held, that duty should have been assessed on the basis of the latter value. U. S. v. Bennett & Loewenthal (C. C. 1909) 176 Fed. 580.

Heavy goods were appraised on the wharf and delivered to the importer upon payment of duty as invoiced and the execution of a bond to return the goods, if required, within 10 days; no samples being retained, and no demand within the 10 days being made. Afterwards the valuation was raised, and an additional duty was assessed upon the goods, by the assessor's return, and the importers notified thereof, who made a demand for a reappraisement. A merchant appraiser having been appointed, and not reporting, and the general appraiser having stated that, owing to the lack of samples, a reappraisement was impossible a liquidation was made in accordance with the original return. Held, that the liquidation was invalid and no suit was maintainable for balance shown thereby. U. S. v. Phillip (D. C. 1891) 46 Fed. 466.

Cited without definite application Arnson v. Murphy (1883) 3 Sup. Ct 184, 186, 109 U. S. 238, 27 L. Ed. 920 U. S. v. Beebe (1901) 106 Fed. 75, 76 45 C. C. A. 230 (writ of certiorari denied [1901] 21 S. Ct. 922, 180 U. S. 640 45 L. Ed. 711).

§ 5595. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, N.) Decision of collector appeal to board of general appraisers.

N. The decision of the collector as to the rate and amount of duties chargeable upon imported merchandise, or upon merchandise on which duty shall have been assessed, including all dutiable costs and charges, and as to all fees and exactions of whatever character (except duties on tonnage), shall be final and conclusive against all persons interested therein, unless the owner, importer, consignee, or agent of such merchandise, or the person paying such fees, charges, and exactions other than duties, shall, within thirty days after but not before such ascertainment and liquidation of duties, as well in cases of merchandise entered in bond as for consumption, or within fifteen days after the payment of such fees, charges, and exactions, if dissatisfied with such decision imposing a higher rate of duty, or a greater charge, fee, or exaction, than he shall claim to be legally payable, file a protest or protests in writing with the collector, setting forth therein distinctly and specifically, and in respect to each entry or payment, the reasons for his objections thereto, and if the merchandise is entered for consumption shall pay the full amount of the duties and charges ascertained to be due thereon. Such protest shall be deemed to be finally abandoned and waived unless within thirty days from the date of filing thereof the person who filed such notice or protest shall have deposited with the collector of customs a fee of $1 with respect to each protest. Such fee shall be deposited and accounted for as miscellaneous receipts, and in case the protest in connection with which such fee was deposited shall be finally sustained in whole or in part, such fee shall be refunded to the importer, with the duties found to be collected in excess, from the appropriation for the refund to importers of excess of deposits. No agreement for a contingent fee in respect to recovery or refund under protest shall be lawful. Compliance with this provision shall be a condition precedent to the validity of the protest and to any refund thereunder, and a violation of this provision shall be punishable by a fine not exceeding $500, or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both.

Upon such payment of duties, protest, and deposit of protest fee, the collector shall transmit the invoice and all the papers and exhibits connected therewith to the board of nine general appraisers, for due assignment and determination as provided by law; such determination shall be final and conclusive upon all persons interested therein, and the record shall be transmitted to the proper collector or person acting as such, who shall liquidate the entry accordingly, except in cases where an appeal shall be filed in the United States Court of Customs Appeals within the time and in the manner provided for by law. (38 Stat. 187.)

See notes to subdivisions B and M of this section, ante, §§ 5519, 5594.

These provisions were substituted for provisions of similar nature made by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 14, 26 Stat. 137, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 at. 100.

Requirements similar to those of this section as to the deposit of a fee of $1 the filing of protest were made by article XI of the Plan of Reorganition of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

The Court of Customs Appeals, mentioned in this section, was created and jurisdiction defined by provisions of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 91, 105, which were incorporated in and superseded chapter 8 of the Judicial Code of March 3, 1911, c. 231, §§ 188–199, set rth ante, §§ 1179–1190.

Provisions relating to decisions of the collector, and appeals therefrom the Secretary of the Treasury, were made by R. S. §§ 2931, 2932, repealed section 29 of the Customs Administrative Act, 26 Stat. 141.

See note to section 12 of that act, as amended, set forth ante, § 5593.

Notes of Decisions

nality of collector's decision.
— Presumption of validity.
peal to secretary of treasury.
otest—In general.
— Specific grounds of objection.
— Sufficiency.
— Affirmance of classification where correct classification is not stated in protest.
— Alternative grounds.
— Amendment of protest.
— Abandonment of protest.
— Protest fee.
— Necessity of protest.
— Service of protest.
— Signature.
— Time for filing.
— Waiver of requirement for protest.
— Written protest.
— Decisions under earlier statutes.
— Prospective protests under Acts of 1845 and 1857.
rwarding protest to board of appraisers.
peal to board of appraisers.
quidation after decision of general appraisers.
peal to courts—Jurisdiction.
— Right to appeal.
— Security for costs.
— New evidence on appeal.
— Assignment of error.
— Review of questions of fact.
— Questions of law.
— Harmless error.
— Disposition of care.
terest on duties.

Finality of collector's decision.—A tor's decision that a yacht is an ted article is reviewable on a lior possession filed by the owner, thstanding the customs administe act. Ex parte Fassett (1892) p. Ct. 295, 298, 142 U. S. 479, 35 l. 1087.

e proclamation of the secretary of easury, of July 1, 1892, fixing the s of foreign money for the ensuing er (Act Oct. 1, 1890, § 52), fixed old florin of Austria-Hungary at 2, and the silver florin at $0.32, g the statement: "Silver, the nomtandard; paper, the actual standhe depreciation of which is measby the gold standard." The invoicecertain goods imported during the er were made out in paper florins, there was no consular certificate the value of such florins. In reducing the currency of the invoice to money of the United States, the collector estimated the paper florin at $0.482, the value of the gold florin. On appeal the board of general appraisers, after taking testimony, held that the florin should have been estimated at $0.32, the value of the silver florin. Held, that the proclamation of the secretary, and consequently the action of the collector, were conclusive, for which reason the board of appraisers had no authority to review the decision of the latter, and that, as the board acted without authority, the circuit court had jurisdiction to review their decision. U. S. v. Klingenberg (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 790, 793, 153 U. S. 93, 38 L. Ed. 647, reversing In re Klingenberg (C. C. 1893) 57 Fed. 195.

The liquidation of duties by the collector of customs is not necessarily final until after the goods have been delivered to the importer. American Cigar Co. v. U. S. (1906) 146 Fed. 484, 77 C. C. A. 40, reversing judgment Falk v. U. S. (C. C. 1904) 145 Fed. 574, and judgment reversed U. S. v. G. Falk & Bro. (1907) 27 Sup. Ct. 191, 204 U. S. 143, 51 L. Ed. 411.

A reliquidation of duties by a collector, like an original liquidation, is conclusive on the owner or importer, unless notice of objection is given within the statutory time. U. S. v. Mexican International R. Co. (1907) 151 Fed. 545, 81 C. C. A. 61.

An importer of wool subject to a duty under Tariff Act July 24, 1897; c. 11, § 1, schedule K, 30 Stat. 182, dividing wool into classes, and fixing a duty based on valuation, must conform to the statutory method, on the appraiser increasing the valuation over the amount stated in the invoice, and thereby subjecting the importer to a higher duty; and where he fails to take the requisite steps to secure a correction of the errors, if any, the decisions of the appraiser and collector as to value, classification, rate, and amount are final, and the importer may not recover excessive duties paid. Gulbenkian v. U. S. (1911) 186 Fed. 133, 108 C. C. A. 245, affirming judgment (C. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 860.

Under prior statutes, see Hutton v.

Schell (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 6,-961.

The facts that imported goods were subject to a lower rate of duty than that charged upon them, and that the action of the principal appraiser was irregular, because he did not see the goods, cannot be set up by the importer in an action to recover the difference between the amount paid and that of the final liquidation, where he was notified by the collector of the liquidation of the entries at the higher rate, and did not take an appeal to the secretary of the treasury. Chase v. U. S. (C. C. 1882) 9 Fed. 882.

The collector may reconsider his classification of imports after they have passed into consumption. George W. Knowles & Sons v. U. S. (C. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 971, decree reversed U. S. v. George Knowles & Son (1903) 126 Fed. 737, 62 C. C. A. 62.

The statute gives the importer the right of appeal if "dissatisfied" with the collector's decision. The collector's decision is not final and conclusive against the government, and under the statute is not to be deemed final and conclusive against the importer. An appeal would have for its object the judicial ascertainment and enforcement of the lawful rate for the just protection of the parties to the proceedings, of the importer as well as of the government. A review of the legislation and of the judicial constructions the pertinent clause of the statute has received, sustains the right of the importer to appeal. He has a right to have his merchandise correctly assessed. U. S. v. Schwartz & Co. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 24.

The legislative and judicial history of the customs administrative act is reviewed. The customs administrative law markedly differentiates between actual market value and dutiable actual market value, and makes it the duty of the appraising officer to determine the first, the duty of the collector to determine the last. The goods here—feathers—were packed in inside boxes and there had been additional packing charges, though all mention of these was omitted from the consular invoice. The collector, on being later apprised of the fact of omission, reliquidated the entry by adding thereto the packing charges. There was in this no interference with or change of the invoice entered or appraised valuation; the collector simply exercised his right of adding to the appraised value to make dutiable value these packing charges. U. S. v. Spingarn Bros. (1913) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 2 (citing Beard v. Porter [1888] 8 Sup. Ct. 556, 124 U. S. 437, 31 L. Ed. 492); U. S. v. Francklyn (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 54.

The words "rate and amount of duties" occurring in the statute define a class of decisions against which protest will lie for any cause distinctly and specifically stated and are not a limitation of the grounds upon which a collector's decision can be assailed. U. S. v. American Exp. Co. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 351.

2. —— Presumption of validity.—Decision of collector and Secretary of Treasury is conclusive until contrary is shown. Chicago Tire & Spring Work v. Spalding (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 498, 501 116 U. S. 541, 29 L. Ed. 720.

The presumption is in favor of the correctness of the collector's classification, and the burden is on the importer to show that it is not correct. U. S. v. Rosenwald (1895) 67 Fed. 323, 14 C. C. A. 399, reversing judgment In re Rosenwald (C. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 765.

Where an importer, on the trial of an action at law in the circuit court to recover the amount of duties paid under protest, fails to introduce any competent evidence of one of the essential facts in relation to the goods alleged in his protest, and on which he based his claim for a different classification, the presumption of correct classification will prevail, and the direction of a verdict for the defendant is proper. Davies v. Miller (1898) 91 Fed. 647, 34 C. C. A. 37.

The classification by a collector of customs of imported goods under a tariff law is presumably correct. Vandiver v. U. S. (1907) 156 Fed. 961, 84 C. C. A. 522.

In proceedings against the assessment of duty, the question to be decided is not whether the collector was wrong, but whether the importer is right; and the burden is on him to establish the correctness of his contention. Legg v. U. S. (1908) 163 Fed. 1006, 90 C. C. A. 176.

Plaintiff has the burden of proving that the chief use of the goods is such as to bring them within the schedule under which he alleges they are dutiable. Hagedon v. Seeberger (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 401, writ of error dismissed (1893) 13 Sup. Ct. 1047, 149 U. S. 776, 37 L. Ed. 962.

The presumption of correctness of a decision of a collector of customs is not rebutted by testimony of the officer making the classification that he was in much doubt as to whether he had not erred in his finding of fact on which the classification was based. J. H. Thorpe & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1892) 154 Fed. 864.

On appeal from a decision of the collector, the burden is on the importer to prove that his contention is right; and, if he fails, the action of the collector stands, even though the collector also has selected the wrong paragraph. Tiffany v. U. S. (C. C. 1901) 105 Fed. 766.

The burden of proof is on plaintiffs to show by a preponderance of testimony that the goods did not properly belong to the class to which they were assigned, and that they were dutiable only as ed in the protest. Fisk v. Seer (D. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 718; Walk-Same, Id. 724.

action of the customs officer in g goods in a class other than that ich they were entered, in deciding they were altered from the ordi-condition in which they were cusrily imported in 1883, and that alteration was made to evade duty, ma facie evidence of each of these
U. S. v. Patton (D. C. 1891)
ed. 461, judgment affirmed Patton
S. (1895) 16 Sup. Ct. 89, 159 U.
0, 40 L. Ed. 253.

re is such a presumption in fa-of a collector's finding as to the l character of a commodity that presumption is to be overcome by a preponderance of proof that rticle in question was something than it was declared by the col-to be. Fougera v. U. S. (1911)
Cust. App. 146.

collector's finding is presumpcorrect, and, in the absence of reg evidence, is final. U. S. v. Vi-& Son (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App.
Hollender & Co. v. U. S., Id. 158,
Id. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 406;
nal Hat Pin Co. v. U. S. (1914)
Cust. App. 435; U. S. v. Gerdau 1915) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 7; Same tman & Co., Id. 131; Wanamaker
S., Id. 21; Merck & Co. v. Same,
2; Mamluck & Co. v. U. S. (1916)
Cust. App. 556.

Appeal to secretary of treasury.—
ions prior to customs administra-ct: Arnson v. Murphy (1883) 109
238, 3 Sup. Ct. 184, 27 L. Ed.
John Shillito Co. v. McClung
2) 51 Fed. 868, 2 C. C. A. 526 (af-g judgment [C. C. 1891] 45 Fed.
Watt v. U. S. (C. C. 1878) Fed.
No. 17,292; Chung Yune v. Shurt-
C. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 239; U. S. v.
(C. C. 1882) 11 Fed. 76, 79; Arn-
. Murphy (C. C. 1884) 24 Fed.
(judgment affirmed [1885] 6 Sup.
85, 115 U. S. 579, 29 L. Ed. 491); r v. Merritt (C. C. 1887) 29 Fed.
writ of error dismissed Merritt v.
r [1891] 11 Sup. Ct. 1024, 140 U.
9, 35 L. Ed. 600); McLean v.
r (C. C. 1887) 31 Fed. 602, 606;
v. Cousinery (D. C. 1874) Fed.
No. 14,878; Same v. Leng (D. C.
18 Fed. 15; Same v. Earnshaw
C. 1891) 45 Fed. 782.

Protest—In general.—Alleged er-of the appraiser or collector, in he has proceeded on a wrong prin-as by including in the appraisecharges forming no part of dutivalue, may be attacked by protest, reviewed by the board of general aisers. U. S. v. Passavant (1898) up. Ct. 219, 221, 169 U. S. 16, 42
d. 644.

en an importer intends to rely the similitude clause of the tariff or the purpose of identifying his merchandise with some enumerated article of the tariff schedules, and means to place his objection to the action of the collector on the ground that collector has not given due effect to that provision, he should state the fact in his protest. Hahn v. Erhardt (1897) 78 Fed. 620, 24 C. C. A. 265, appeal dismissed Erhardt v. Hahn (1897) 89 Fed. 1016, 32 C. C. A. 606.

The board of general appraisers had before it several protests relating to the classification of certain merchandise, one of which stated objections to the collector's assessment that were not stated in the other protests. Held, that the presence of the former protest was of no moment as affecting the construction of the latter protests. U. S. v. H. Bayersdorfer & Co. (1903) 126 Fed. 732, 62 C. C. A. 16.

The general rule that an appraisement by the local appraiser is final and conclusive, unless reviewed by reappraisement proceedings, there is an exception in case the appraiser proceeded on a wrong principle, as by advancing the value of merchandise not examined by him. In such case the importer may pursue the remedy prescribed in this section. U. S. v. Beer (1906) 150 Fed. 566, 80 C. C. A. 368, affirming judgment (C. C. 1905) 142 Fed. 199.

Goods dutiable under one paragraph of a tariff act were asserted by an importer in his protest to be dutiable under another paragraph. But the language of the protest indicated an intention to cite the former. Held, that the protest should be construed as referring to the former. U. S. v. Leerburger (1908) 160 Fed. 651, 87 C. C. A. 547.

Upon an importation of ginger ale in bottles, the collector added the value of the bottles to that of the ale, for the purpose of assessing the duty. Held, that the question of the propriety of such action was one of classification, and was properly raised by protest. Dickson v. U. S. (C. C. 1895) 68 Fed. 534.

The act of the collector in stating, in his return to the board of appraisers, that the requirements of the law have been complied with by the importers, does not operate as a waiver of objections upon the ground of an insufficient protest. The protest being a statutory necessity, it is beyond the power of the collector to waive it. U. S. v. Schefer (C. C. 1896) 71 Fed. 959.

While an appraisement is final and not reviewable by the courts, yet the alleged inclusion of something not properly a part of market value, and not dutiable at all, may be challenged by protest, and re-examined by the courts on appeal. Hermann v. U. S. (C. C. 1897) 84 Fed. 151, following Oberteuffer v. Robertson (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 462, 116 U. S. 499, 29 L. Ed.

706, and judgment reversed U. S. v. Herrman (1898) 91 Fed. 116, 33 C. C. A. 400.

The action of a collector in declining to accept the proclaimed value of a foreign standard coin, and in adopting another standard, thereby increasing the amount of duty on imported merchandise, does not relate to a disputed appraisement, but to the "amount of duties," and is reviewable, on the protest of the importer, by the board of general appraisers and the circuit court. U. S. v. J. Allston Newhall & Co. (C. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 525.

Where an importer filed a protest against a tentative liquidation of an entry, this action does not preclude him from filing another protest against the final liquidation subsequently, regardless of whether, at the time of making the first protest, he regarded the first liquidation as final, and not tentative. U. S. v. Franklin Sugar Refining Co. (C. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 677.

The provision in Customs Administrative Act, that the decision of the collector of customs as to duties "shall be final and conclusive," unless the duties are paid under protest, and proceedings brought for their recovery before the board of general appraisers, does not require that on an action by the government for unpaid duties the importer should be limited to the proceedings prescribed in said section. He may defend on the ground that the assessment in question was illegal. U. S. v. Tiffany (C. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 971, judgment reversed Same v. Tiffany & Co. (1906) 151 Fed. 473, 81 C. C. A. 11.

Certain imported merchandise, covered by an entry embracing three invoices, was all subjected to the same rate of duty, which, it appeared, was excessive as to one of the invoices. In protesting against the rate of duty, the importer specified one of the two invoices on which duty was correctly assessed. Held, that the protest should be considered restricted to the invoice which it specified. U. S. v. Hartley & Graham (C. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 969.

On an action against an importer for unpaid duties, it is proper to stay the trial in order to permit the importer to pay the duties under protest, so as to allow the board of general appraisers to pass upon the correctness of the assessment in question. U. S. v. Tiffany & Co. (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 740.

Mere delay in the payment of duties on imported merchandise does not deprive the board of general appraisers of power to pass upon the question of the proper classification of imported merchandise, where protest has been filed within the time prescribed in said section. Id.

When duties paid under protest were refunded according to a second classification, the office of the protest is then fulfilled, and it could not ther after operate to extend the peri within which the government mig make a third reliquidation of the d ties. U. S. v. Fox (D. C. 1893) Fed. 531.

Where an importer has removed bond to his own warehouse a consig ment of merchandise, and it is the found that more than 10 per cent. the consignment had been rendered transit totally valueless he is not r mitted as of course to proceedi alone under section 5602, post, b may seek his remedy as well by pr test under this section. U. S. v. H bicht (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 53.

Where an assessment had been pr tested and the entry had been retain for reliquidation, and on January 1907, the collector reliquidated the i voice, a second reliquidation on D cember 4, 1908 was barred. U. S. Goldberg (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 14 citing U. S. v. Leng (D. C. 1883) 1 Fed. 15.

A protest may cover one or more en tries of goods described in more tha one invoice. U. S. v. McCoy (1914) Ct. Cust. App. 264.

The written protest or notice is re quired only for the purpose of institut ing a proceeding before the board o general appraisers to review the deci sion of a collector or appraiser (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 92.

The action of a collector in denyin a reappraisement because the importe refused to answer proper interrogato ries propounded to him may be re viewed, first, by the board of genera appraisers on a protest, and next b the circuit court on an application fo review. (1899) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 456

5. —— Specific grounds of objection —Technical precision held not require in protests, but the objections to th assessment must be stated so distinct ly and specifically that when fairl construed they will show the claims o the protestant and so notify the col lector what these claims are. Herrma v. Robertson (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 686, 687, 152 U. S. 521, 38 L. Ed. 538; Presson v. Russell (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 728, 729, 152 U. S. 577, 38 L. Ed. 559; Shaw v. Prior (C. C. 1895) 68 Fed. 421, 423; Bing & Co.'s Successors v. U. S. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 211, citing Carter v. U. S. (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 64; U. S. v. Ewing & Clancey (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 339; Same v. Bauer, Id. 343; Dieckerhoff, Raffloer & Co. v. U. S. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 230; U. S. v. Stirn (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 140, citing Lichtenstein v. U. S. (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 79; Oelrichs v. Same (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 232; U. S. v. Neustadtl (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 283; Brown & Co. v. U. S., Id. 396; U. S. v. Sheldon & Co., Id. 427; Vandiver v. U. S. (1915) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 80; U. S. v. Kuyper & Co., Id. 142; Michelin Tire Co. v. U. S. (1915) protest specifically objecting to the of 50 per cent. assessed on sweet- l chocolate, and claiming that the ls "are dutiable at two cents per nd," is sufficiently specific without ting out the particular paragraph er which the importer claims that goods should be classified, where re are but two other paragraphs ling with chocolate, under either which the duty is two cents a pound, that the collector could not have n perplexed by the omission to e a particular paragraph. U. S. v. ambier (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 771, 773, U. S. 621, 42 L. Ed. 1167.

283, distinguishing Bowling Green rage & Van Co. v. U. S. (1912) 3 Cust. App. 309.

here is no necessity for exacting n nice precision in the protest of an orter, or such accurate knowledge he law by him, as to debar him from ef from an erroneous classification excessive assessment by the col- or because he fails to designate cor- ly the provision under which the sification should have been made. S. v. Shea, Smith v. Co. (1902) 114 . 38, 51 C. C. A. 664.

ertain importers, in protesting inst the assessment of customs y, based their objections on an in- licable paragraph of the tariff act, named the correct rate of duty, appening that the rate provided in paragraph was the same as in the agraph that should have been refer- to in the protest. There was noth- in the terms of the protest to di- the attention of the collector of toms to the proper paragraph or to gest that the importers had inad- tently referred to the wrong para- ph and had intended to refer to the t one. Held, that the protest was sufficiently distinct and specific. S. v. Fleitmann (1905) 137 Fed. , 69 C. C. A. 624, reversing judg- t (C. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 396.

'here an importer protests against assessment of duty on the ground an alleged application of the simili- e clause of Tariff Act Aug. 27, 1894, 49, § 4, unless the protest contains erence to said provision, it is not iciently distinct and specific. U. S. Dearberg Bros. (1905) 143 Fed. , 74 C. C. A. 226, reversing order C. 1904) 135 Fed. 245. protest against the imposition of y on moss, under section 4 of Act 0, which claims that it should either dutiable under paragraph 24, or free er paragraph 653, as the impor- s were unable to detect that it had lergone any process of manufacture, ufficiently definite and precise, if the ss was free either under paragraph or paragraph 560. Shaw v. Prior C. 1895) 68 Fed. 421.

mporters protested against the ac- n of a collector of customs in con- sidering a certain amount as the entered value, and asserted that he had erred in failing to regard the fact that said amount included some nondutiable items. Held, that this statement of objections was sufficiently distinct and specific. A. J. Woodruff & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1896) 154 Fed. 861.

A protest by importers, which fails to show whether the objection is to the valuation or the classification, is not sufficiently definite. Cottier v. U. S. (1900) 101 Fed. 423.

Where the only question of difference between an importer and a collector with reference to the assessment for duty of goods entered on July 24, 1897, c. 11, was as to whether they were dutiable under the act of 1894 or that of 1897, they having been first appraised under the former and afterwards reclassified under the latter, a protest by the importer, on payment of the duty, which distinctly states his claim that they should have been assessed under the former act, is sufficient, although it does not specify the particular provisions of either act which were held or claimed to be applicable. In re Hagop Bogigian Co. (C. C. 1900) 104 Fed. 75.

Certain long-haired Russian calfskins were classified as dutiable as "hides of cattle," under paragraph 437, Act 1897, when they should have been classified as free of duty, under paragraph 664 of said act, covering "skins of all kinds, raw." The importers' protest against the assessment of the collector did not refer to the proper paragraph (664), but only to paragraphs 561 and 562 of said act, which relate respectively to "furs, undressed," and "fur skins." Held, that this was a sufficient compliance with the requirement that protests shall set forth "distinctly and specifically" the importer's objections to the collector's decisions. Weil v. U. S. (C. C. 1900) 124 Fed. 1006.

A protest against the assessment of duty which does not point out distinctly and specifically the proper rate of duty is not sufficient. Fuld & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 920, judgment reversed (1907) 152 Fed. 165, 81 C. C. A. 417.

In his protest against the assessment of duty, an importer asserted that the goods were "dutiable under Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 1, par. 400, at the rate or rates therein provided according to thickness, cutting size," etc. The only articles dutiable under that paragraph according to the conditions thus specified were lithographic prints. Held, that the protest was sufficiently specific and distinct, that it should be treated as a reference to the provision for lithographic prints, and that, as the collector presumably had samples of the goods and could thereby ascertain their cutting size, etc., it was not necessary to point out the particular rate that was applicable. Hensel, Bruckmann & Lorbacher v. U. S. (C. C. 1907) 160 Fed. 219.

Protests each covering 24 separate provisions of the tariff, which carry about 50 different rates of duty, are invalid, as not setting forth the importers' objections "distinctly and specifically." J. H. Lichtenstein & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 1016.

The substitution of the word "reasons" for "grounds" in the act held not to exact a more specific protest than formerly on the part of the importer. Carter v. U. S. (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 64, distinguishing Hermann Boker & Co. v. Same (C. C. 1905) 140 Fed. 115.

6. —— Sufficiency.—A protest against the payment of a duty of 60 per cent. on an importation of "cotton gloves mixed with silk, * * * although the article is only liable to a duty of 35% less 10% being composed of cotton and silk, cotton chief part, the duty of 60% being only legal where silk is the chief part," shows that it was the importers' intention to object to the goods being classified under Act June 30, 1864, § 8, as silk gloves, or Act March 3, 1865, § 3, as readymade clothing of silk, or of which silk shall be the component material of chief value, and is a sufficient compliance with the statute. Act Feb. 26, 1845. It is not necessary that the protest should specify under what provision the goods were dutiable. Heinze v. Miller (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 604, 606, 144 U. S. 28, 36 L. Ed. 333.

Goods imported in 1881, composed of calf hair and cotton, of which the hair constituted more than 85 per cent. in weight, being dutiable under R. S. § 2504, Schedule M, as "manufactures of hair," a protest against a classification of them under the first clause of section 2499, as nonenumerated, which claims only that they should be classified under the second clause of section 2499, is insufficient. Herrman v. Robertson (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 686, 152 U. S. 521, 38 L. Ed. 538, affirming Herman v. Same (C. C. 1889) 41 Fed. 881.

When an importer protests that his invoices are dutiable under a certain paragraph of the tariff act, he is not thereby concluded, so as to prevent the board of appraisers from adjudging that a part of the invoices is dutiable under that paragraph, and a part under the classification adopted by the collector. In re Crowley (1893) 55 Fed. 283, 5 C. C. A. 109, distinguishing Davies v. Arthur (1877) 96 U. S. 148, 24 L. Ed. 758, and affirming judgment (C. C. 1892) 50 Fed. 465.

A protest claiming free entry of an importation of tapioca flour under paragraph 646 of the tariff act of August 27, 1894, which provides for the free entry of tapioca, was sufficient to advise the collector that the exemption from duty was in fact claimed under paragraph 677 of the act of July 2 1897, which contains an identical pr vision, where such act was the one th in force and which governed the in portation. Shaw v. U. S. (1903) 1 Fed. 443, 58 C. C. A. 425, reversi judgment (C. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 366.

On appeal by the United States fro a decision of the board of general a praisers, which reversed the asses ment of duty by a collector of custom where no statement of error was ma by the appellant in regard to the su ficiency of the protest on which t proceedings before said board were ba ed, held that this fact constituted waiver by the United States of an a leged defect in the protest. U. S. Brown, Durrell & Co. (1903) 127 Fe 793, 62 C. C. A. 473.

No new rule obtains in respect to t terms of protests against decisions collectors of customs in the assessme of duty. If the protest fail to satis the requirements of said section, t collector's decision should be affirme U. S. v. Fleitmann (1905) 137 Fe 476, 69 C. C. A. 624.

A protest in which an importer clai ed a "refund of duty on * * skins" held a sufficient reference the provision in the free list of th tariff act for "skins of all kinds." U S. v. Helmrath (1906) 145 Fed. 36, 7 C. C. A. 261, affirming judgment Helm rath v. U. S. (C. C. 1904) 135 Fe 912.

Certain importers protested agains the assessment of duty on an impor tation, stating in their protest merel the contention that the merchandis was dutiable under a certain paragrap of the tariff act, with no mention of th grounds of their objections or of th rate of duty claimed to be applicable and the paragraph cited was the on under which duty had been assessed and was a long one, containing man subdivisions and different rates o duty. Held, that the protest was in sufficient. Hermann Boker & Co. v U. S. (1906) 145 Fed. 1022, 74 C. C A. 681, affirming judgment (C. C. 1905 140 Fed. 115.

An importer's protest read: "Pro test is hereby made against * * your decision assessing duty at 35 pe cent. ad valorem, or other rate o rates, on lithographic prints, krippen mechanical cards, etc., covered by en tries below named. * * * This pro test is intended to apply separately an collectively to every part of goods as sessed under paragraph 418, as wel as to all other goods assessed at 3 per cent. ad valorem." Held, that th protest was not insufficient because n part of the importation in question wa assessed at the rate of 35 per cent under paragraph 418 (Act July 24 1897, c. 11, § 1), or elsewhere, bu should be construed as relating to lith ographic prints and booklets assesse her rates and under another paran than were mentioned in the pro-

Fuld & Co. v. U. S. (1907) 152
165, 81 C. C. A. 417, reversing nent (C. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 920.
terial dutiable at 50 cents per l as "woven fabrics * * * in gum," under the first clause of a paragraph, were asserted in an rter's protest to be dutiable "at 60 per pound * * * under the clause, * * * being woven fabn the piece, dyed." This rate and iption ("dyed") pertained to the d clause, and not the first. Held, the protest referred sufficient-the first clause. U. S. v. Leer-er (1908) 160 Fed. 651, 87 C. C.
17, affirming judgment Leerburger
S. (C. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 146. protest referring to "hats made so-called artificial silk" cannot be rued as relating to hats made real horsehair. U. S. v. Wana-
r (1910) 175 Fed. 900, 99 C. C. A. reversing Wanamaker v. U. S. (C.
909) 169 Fed. 664.
e collector classified certain nk steel," used in the manufacture oots and shoes, under paragraph of Act Oct. 1, 1890, and also im-l an additional duty of one-quarter cent per pound on the goods, as l-rolled" steel, under paragraph The importer protested against additional duty, and on appeal the l of general appraisers held that original classification was wrong, that the goods should have been ed under paragraph 140, as "othteel," etc. They also found that were not subject to the addil duty, but that the protest was ficient, because it failed to point he proper classification. Held that, e objection was made only to the ional duty, and not to the original ification, the importer was not d to point out the error in the r, and the protest was sufficient.
e) Houdlette (C. C. 1891) 48 Fed.

protest which points out the rea-why certain goods should be ad-ed free of duty is not bad because fers to a statute not in existence e time. Boussod Valadon Co. v.
. (C. C. 1895) 66 Fed. 718, judg-
t reversed U. S. v. Boussod-Vala-
Co. (1896) 71 Fed. 503, 18 C. C.
23. protest filed by apparent strangers he goods, without any intimation it was done for the person who e in the invoice that he was the er, is ineffectual; nor will the fact the owner is connected with one he departments of the establish-t of the persons making the pro-authorize the inference that they agents of the goods. Abegg v. U.
C. C. 1896) 71 Fed. 960. ragraph 308 of Act 1894 makes lithographic prints dutiable except, inter alia, "when forming a part of a periodical or newspaper and accompanying the same." Held, that a protest against the imposition of a duty on prints, claimed to come within the exception, was not objectionable because it stated that the prints in question were "free," since, though the word "free" was not used in the paragraph, the effect of the exception was to leave them free. Richards v. U. S. (C. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 516.

The collector having classified certain glass jars containing preserves as "vials," under paragraph 88 of the act of 1894, the importers protested that under said paragraph there was no duty on any filled bottles, or on "bottles exceeding ¾ of a cent per pound. Our bottles are not vials. They are not merchandise, but the envelopes of merchandise, and pay no separate duty." Held, that this was a sufficient protest. Smith v. U. S. (C. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 757.

A protest against the classification of gloves as lambskin, under paragraph 441 of the tariff act of July 24, 1897, on the ground that they should be "assessed under paragraph 439 as Schmaschen gloves," was sufficient, and distinctly informed the collector of the position of the importer, since paragraphs 439 and 440 must necessarily be construed together. In re Claflin (C. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 944.

Where an importer has protested against the imposition of duties alleged to be excessive, and there is no way of distinguishing the merchandise properly assessed from that which is subject to the duty claimed by the importer, the protest must be overruled as to all the merchandise. John B. Ellison & Sons v. U. S. (C. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 969, judgment affirmed J. B. Ellison & Sons v. U. S. (1906) 142 Fed. 732, 74 C. C. A. 64, writ of certiorari denied Ellison v. U. S. (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 763, 202 U. S. 615, 50 L. Ed. 1172.

Where certain imported merchandise was erroneously classified as wool wearing apparel, instead of as manufactures in chief value of fur, a protest against the classification stating as reasons merely that the merchandise was "dutiable at the appropriate rate and under the proper paragraph according to the component material of chief value," held insufficient. Rosenberg v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 146 Fed. 84.

Goods, which should have been classified free of duty under a paragraph relating to "jute bagging," were asserted in the importers' protest to be free under a paragraph relating to "burlaps," and there was no suggestion that the importers at the time of filing the protest had in mind the former provision. Held, that the protest did not set forth the importers' objections "distinctly and specifically." Corbitt &

Macleay Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 648.

A protest is sufficient which, though imperfectly expressed, may be understood when read in connection with the statute referred to therein; and the fact that the collector understood the protest is relevant. Lothrop v. U. S. (C. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 99.

Where the importer protests against the rate assessed on his importation and points out the provisions of law under which he contends the articles in question are properly dutiable and indicates these with sufficient clearness for the collector by mere computation or examination of the goods to determine their classification, he has in all essential respects complied with this section. Carter v. U. S. (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 64.

Where the importer claimed his importation was dutiable as petroleum under Act 1897, at the rate of duty imposed by Germany on petroleum, and it appeared the rate was levied on the importation as paraffin and as vaseline oil, each of which was then dutiable at other and differing rates in Germany, a protest as to petroleum alone is not sufficiently exact; it does not show that that which was in the mind of the protesting importer was brought to the knowledge of the collector. Bliven v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 205.

Decisions prior to the customs administrative act, see Converse v. Burgess (1855) 59 U. S. (18 How.) 413, 416, 15 L. Ed. 455 (affirming Burgess v. Converse [C. C. 1855] Fed. Cas. No. 2,-154); Curtis v. Fiedler (1862) 67 U. S. (2 Black.) 461, 480, 17 L. Ed. 273; Gelpcke v. City of Dubuque (1863) 68 U. S. (1 Wall.) 175, 17 L. Ed. 520; Nichols v. U. S. (1868) 74 U. S. (7 Wall.) 122, 19 L. Ed. 125; Davies v. Arthur (1877) 96 U. S. 148, 152, 153, 24 L. Ed. 758; Arthur v. Morgan (1884) 112 U. S. 495, 5 Sup. Ct. 241, 244, 28 L. Ed. 825; Porter v. Beard (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 554, 555, 124 U. S. 429, 31 L. Ed. 490 (affirming judgment [C.C. 1883] 15 Fed. 380); Schell's Ex'rs v. Fauché (1891) 138 U. S. 562, 11 Sup. Ct. 376, 34 L. Ed. 1040 (affirming Fauché v. Schell [C. C. 1887] 33 Fed. 336); Rossman v. Hedden (1891) 12 Sup. Ct. 925, 145 U. S. 561, 36 L. Ed. 817 (affirming [C. C. 1888] 37 Fed. 99); Heinze v. Arthur's Ex'rs (1892) 144 U. S. 28, 12 Sup. Ct. 604, 36 L. Ed. 333; Hubbard v. Soby (1892) 13 Sup. Ct. 13, 14, 146 U. S. 56, 36 L. Ed. 886; Herrman v. Robertson (1894) 152 U. S. 521, 14 Sup. Ct. 686, 38 L. Ed. 538 (affirming [C. C. 1889] 41 Fed. 881); Presson v. Russell (1894) 152 U. S. 577, 14 Sup. Ct. 728, 38 L. Ed. 559; Willison v. Hoyt (C. C. 1841) Fed. Cas. No. 17,772; Mason v. Kane (C. C. 1851) Fed. Cas. No. 9,241; Cornett v. Lawrence (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 3,241; Durand v. Same, Id. 4,187; Focke v. Same Id. 4,894; Loewenstein v. Maxwell, Id. 8,462; Norcross v. Greely, Id. 10,294; Pierson v. Lawrence, Id. 11,158; Same v. Maxwell, Id. 11,159; Swanston v. Morton, Id. 13,677; Thomson v. Maxwell, Id. 13,983; Tucker v. Same, Id. 14,224; Wilson v. Lawrence, Id. 17,816; Bangs v. Maxwell (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 841; Christ v. Same Id. 2,698; Craig v. Same, Id. 3,334; Fielden v. Lawrence, Id. 4,774; Goddard v. Maxwell, Id. 5,492; Hertz v. Same, Id. 6,432; Kriesler v. Morton Id. 7,933; Sadler v. Maxwell, Id. 12,207; Stalker v. Same, Id. 13,283; Maillard v. Lawrence (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 8,972; Steegman v. Maxwell Id. 13,344; Vaccari v. Same, Id. 16,810; Crowley v. Same (C. C. 1856) Fed. Cas. No. 3,449; Schmaire v. Same, Id. 12,460; Schuchardt v. Lawrence, Id. 12,484; Baxter v. Maxwell (C. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 1,126; Drake v. Redfield, Id. 4,065; Lillie v. Same, Id. 8,351; Ponsot v. Maxwell Id. 11,267; Pousot v. Lawrence, Id. 11,352; Marshall v. Redfield (C. C. 1858) Fed. Cas. No. 9,131; Boker v. Same (C. C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 1,606a; Scheerdt v. Schell, Id. 12,444; Boker v. Bronson (C. C. 1860) Fed. Cas. No. 1,605; Hutton v. Schell (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 6,961; Frazee v. Moffitt (C. C. 1882) 18 Fed. 584, 585; Muser v. Robertson (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 500, 502; Herman v. Schell (C. C. 1884) 18 Fed. 891; Smith v. Same (C. C. 1886) 27 Fed. 648, 651; Cummins v. Robertson (C. C. 1886) 27 Fed. 654, 655; Legg v. Hedden (C. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 861 (judgment reversed [1892] 13 Sup. Ct. 1049, 149 U. S. 779, 37 L. Ed. 959); Laidlaw v. Abraham (C. C. 1890) 43 Fed. 297; U. S. v. Curley (C. C. 1895) 66 Fed. 720; Fisk v. Seeberger (D. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 718; Walker v. Seeberger, Id. 724; Brown v. U. S. (1865) 1 Ct. Cl. 377.

7. —— Affirmance of classification where correct classification is not stated in protest.—See Presson v. Russell (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 728, 729, 152 U. S. 577, 38 L. Ed. 559; In re Herter Bros. (1892) 53 Fed. 913, 4 C. C. A. 107 (reversing judgment [C. C. 1891] 50 Fed. 72); In re Collector of Customs (1893) 55 Fed. 276, 5 C. C. A. 101 (affirming In re Sherman [C. C. 1892] 49 Fed. 224); In re Guggenheim Smelting Co. (1901) 112 Fed. 517, 50 C. C. A. 374 (writ of certiorari denied U. S. v. Guggenheim Smelting Co. [1902] 22 Sup. Ct. 942, 186 U. S. 485, 46 L. Ed. 1260); U. S. v. H. Bayersdorfer & Co. (1903) 126 Fed. 732, 62 C. C. A. 16; U. S. v. George Knowles & Sons (1903) 126 Fed. 737, 62 C. C. A. 62 (reversing decree George W. Knowles & Sons v. U. S. [C. C. 1903] 122 Fed. 971); Willison v. Hoyt (C. C. 1841) Fed. Cas. No. 17,772; Durand v. Lawrence (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas.

4,187; Norcross v. Greely, Id. 94; Swanston v. Morton, Id. 13,-; Thomson v. Maxwell, Id. 13,983; son v. Lawrence, Id. 17,816; Kries-v. Morton (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. 7,933; Roller v. Maxwell, Id. 12,-; Burgess v. Converse (C. C. 1855) . Cas. No. 2,154; McCall v. Law-e, Id. 8,672; Maillard v. Same, Id. 2; Baxter v. Maxwell (C. C. 1857) . Cas. No. 1,126; Boker v. Redfield C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 1,606a; ies v. Arthur (C. C. 1875) Fed. No. 3,611; Chung Yune v. Kelly C. 1882) 14 Fed. 639; Legg v. den (C. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 861 (judg-t reversed [1892] 13 Sup. Ct. 1049, U. S. 779, 37 L. Ed. 959); McNab eeberger (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 759; e Austin (C. C. 1891) 47 Fed. 873; e Kursheedt Mfg. Co. (C. C. 1893) Fed. 469; U. S. v. Curley (C. C.) 66 Fed. 720; Tuska v. U. S. C. 1897) 84 Fed. 442; Hempstead . S. (C. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 484; U. Pilditch (C. C. 1900) 99 Fed. 938; le & Co. Chemists' Corp. v. U. S. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 216; In re Sol-Process Co. (C. C. 1905) 134 Fed. Vandiver v. U. S. (1912) 2 Ct. t. App. 505; Sonneborn's Sons v. e (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 54; Oel-s & Co. v. Same (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. 232 (citing Bliven v. Same [1911] t. Cust. App. 205); U. S. v. Dan-& Marston (1912) 2 Ct. Cust. App. U. S. v. Park & Tilford (1912) t. Cust. App. 350; Same v. Ringk o. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 353 (dis-uishing Tilge & Co. v. U. S. [1912] t. Cust. App. 97); U. S. v. Chat-ooga Brewing Co. (1912) 3 Ct. t. App. 375.

n action to recover back duties on certain goatskins was tried lly on the theory that the skins e classifiable either as "rugs," as claimed by the collector, or as ns dressed and finished," as stated he protest. Held, that the collec-was in no position to seek a reversal he judgment on the ground that the ds were properly classifiable as s." Seeberger v. Schlesinger (1894) U. S. 581, 14 Sup. Ct. 729, 38 L. 560.

appealing from a decision of the rd of general appraisers, an impor-set forth in his petition a claim ed on a paragraph of the tariff act referred to in his protest filed with collector and passed on by said rd. Held, that this is not permissi-U. S. v. H. Bayersdorfer & Co. 03) 126 Fed. 732, 62 C. C. A. 16, ersing decree Bayersdorfer & Co. J. S. (C. C. 1903) 122 Fed. 968.

protest not only expressly referred collector to a paragraph, but aver-the merchandise to be of a kind vided for in that paragraph alone, claim was made thereunder, Held, protestant was bound by this spe-c allegation, and his protest could not avail to give him the benefit of yet another and different paragraph of the law. U. S. v. Troy Laundry Machinery Co. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 430.

8. —— Alternative grounds.—An importer may protest against a classification on alternative grounds, where the proper classification is doubtful, and the fact that his protest is sustained on one of the grounds does not estop him from appealing on the ground that the other states the correct classification. Koechl v. U. S. (1898) 91 Fed. 110, 33 C. C. A. 363.

The voluntary refunding to an importer whose protest was in the alternative, of the excess of duty collected according to one of his claims, and the discontinuance of a suit brought for the collection of such excess, in the absence of any release or evidence of accord and satisfaction, will not preclude him from maintaining another suit to recover the remaining excess according to his other claim. Robertson v. Edelhoff (1899) 91 Fed. 642, 34 C. C. A. 34.

Calling certain articles "musical instruments" in an alternative clause of a protest does not estop the importer from claiming that they are dutiable as "toys," as asserted in another clause of his protest. Blumenthal v. U. S. (C. C. 1896) 72 Fed. 48.

While alternative grounds of dissatisfaction may properly be stated in protests against decisions by collectors of customs, this rule does not permit the enumeration of a long list of paragraphs, many of which are entirely remote, with the purpose of covering everything. It is not enough that the provision ultimately relied upon can be found somewhere in the protest. J. H. Lichtenstein & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 1016.

A protest, blanket in form, covering various classes of articles, not included in the importation or importations in question, fails to state the importer's claim with such clearness and certainty as to acquaint the collector with the real grounds of the complaint, and is insufficient. Protests are to be construed liberally and alternative claims are allowable, but the requirement of law that the importer shall set forth in the protest distinctly and specifically and in respect to each entry or payment the reason for his objection thereto may not be ignored. Lichtenstein v. U. S. (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 79.

The merchandise was classified by the collector as bagging made of jute butts and waste, and was assessed for duty under paragraph 355, Act 1909. The protest claimed alternatively under two paragraphs, to wit, 358 and 480, of that act. On the date set for hearing the government asked that a consent order sustaining the protest should be entered of record. The protestants objected to this, insisting on a hearing and a decision upon the question of law involved. The board denied this, and, directing a submission of the case without a trial of the issues of fact, sustained the protest. An assessment was ordered under the provisions of paragraph 358. The appeal was taken from the order sustaining the protest. American Manufacturing Co. v. U. S. (1913) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 495.

The order sustaining the protest was not made by the consent of both parties, nor upon the express admission by the government of any of the facts alleged in the protest. This was not a consent order in the legal acceptation of the term; it was not an order legally following on an express admission of fact by one of the contending litigants. The protestant had the right to show by evidence whether the merchandise belonged to one or the other of the two classes, as alleged in the protest. Id.

9. —— Amendment of protest.—A protest against the classification of imports and exaction of duty made within the 10 days specified by Customs Administrative Act cannot, after the expiration of the 10 days, be amended, so as to claim that the classification should have been other than first claimed in the protest. In re Sherman (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 224, judgment affirmed In re Collector of Customs (1893) 55 Fed. 276, 5 C. C. A. 101.

10. —— Abandonment of protest.—Alleged errors of the board of general appraisers detrimental to the government cannot be reviewed on an appeal taken by the importer, where he abandons his opposition to the decision, and the government itself took no steps to procure a review. U. S. v. Lies (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 780, 170 U. S. 628, 42 L. Ed. 1170, affirming judgment (1896) 20 C. C. A. 651, 74 Fed. 546.

When the board of general appraisers, upon the protest of an importer against a collector's classification of imported merchandise, has sustained such protest in one particular, and in all others affirmed the collector's decision, and the importer has thereupon duly applied to the circuit court for a review of the questions involved, no statement of errors being filed by the government, the court cannot, upon the importer's conceding that there was no error in the decision of the board of general appraisers, proceed to review that decision, so far as favorable to the importer, but must affirm it as it stands. U. S. v. Lies (1896) 74 Fed. 546, 20 C. C. A. 651.

The importers, in a protest case pending before the board of general appraisers, having failed, after due notice, to introduce the evidence necessary to sustain their contention, the board thereupon overruled the protest, and the importers appealed to the Circuit Court. Held, that the decision of the board should be affirmed, thoug it appeared that the contention of th importers was correct. John Donat Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1900) 124 Fed. 46

11. —— Protest fee.—The requir ment of payment of protest fee does n apply to cases in which the right t protest accrued under the act of 190 U. S. v. Brown & Roese (1915) 6 C Cust. App. 382.

The right to protest having accru under Act 1909 the saving clause paragraph S of section 4 of Act 191 declaring that the repeal or modific tion of existing laws shall not affe any right accrued, and that all righ under former laws may be enforced the same manner as if said repeal modification had not been made, ent tles the protestant to proceed witho new burdens not imposed by the form act. U. S. v. Brown & Roese (1915 6 Ct. Cust. App. 382, citing Becht v. U. S. (1879) 101 U. S. 597, 25 Ed. 1019.

12. —— Necessity of protest.—Pr test as condition precedent to actio against collector for duties prior to th passage of the Customs Administrativ Act of 1890, see Maxwell v. Griswol (1850) 10 How. 242, 255, 13 L. E 405; Lawrence v. Caswell (1851) 1 How. 488, 496, 14 L. Ed. 235; Curti v. Fiedler (1862) 67 U. S. (2 Black 461, 17 L. Ed. 273; Nichols v. U. S (1868) 7 Wall. 122, 126, 19 L. Ed. 125 Savage v. Same (1875) 92 U. S. 38 386, 23 L. Ed. 660; Cadwalader v Partridge (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 182, 13 U. S. 553, 34 L. Ed. 783; Saltonstall v Russell (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 733, 73 152 U. S. 628, 38 L. Ed. 576; Bur roughs v. Erhardt (1898) 88 Fed. 25 31 C. C. A. 524; Erhardt v. Winte (1899) 92 Fed. 918, 35 C. C. A. 84 Griswold v. Lawrence (C. C. 1850 Fed. Cas. No. 5,837; Kriesler v. Mor ton (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 7,934 Maillard v. Lawrence, Id. 8,972; Mar shall v. Redfield (C. C. 1858) Fed. Cas No. 9,131; Boker v. Redfield (C. C 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 1,606a; Moke v Barney (C. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No 9,698; Greenleaf v. Schell (C. C. 1868 Fed. Cas. No. 5,782; U. S. v. Schles inger (C. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 682, 68 (judgment affirmed [1887] 7 Sup. Ct 442, 444, 120 U. S. 109, 30 L. Ed. 607) U. S. v. Clement (D. C. 1843) Fed Cas. No. 14,815; Same v. Chase (D. C 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 14,787; Same v Earnshaw (D. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 283 284; Iselin v. Hedden (D. C. 1886) 2 Fed. 416; Schlesinger v. U. S. (1863) 1 Ct. Cl. 16; (1889) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 238; (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 251.

The importer may seek his remedy for erroneous assessment only through the method prescribed, which requires that the duties shall be paid under protest and the matter brought before the Board of General Appraisers for de-sion. Louisville Pillow Co. v. U. S. 1906) 144 Fed. 386, 75 C. C. A. 324.

A collector of customs reliquidated the ty on imported merchandise at an creased rate, and brought an action r the amount thus becoming due. The nporters defended on the ground that e rate assessed was illegal. Held, at questions as to rate could not be ised in such proceedings; that the ard of general appraisers was created a special tribunal having, subject to view by the courts, exclusive jurisdicon over controversies as to the rate duty on importations; that the imrters' only remedy was to pay under otest the duties found due by the llector; and that unless they did this e collector's decision was "final and nclusive" as provided in said section. S. v. Tiffany & Co. (1906) 151 Fed. 3, 81 C. C. A. 11, reversing judgment C. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 971.

The owner of a cargo of sugar brought om the Philippine Islands, who voltarily paid the duty assessed thereon imported merchandise, without obction or protest, cannot maintain an tion against the collector to recover e same on the ground that the sug was not imported, and the duty was erefore wrongfully and illegally exted. Flint Eddy & American Tradg Co. v. Bidwell (C. C. 1903) 123 ed. 200.

Where excessive customs duties are id under a mistake of law and witht protest, the payment is voluntary, d there can be no recovery. Gulbenan v. U. S. (C. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 860, dgment affirmed (1911) 186 Fed. 133, 8 C. C. A. 245.

13. —— Service of protest. — See andmange v. Schell (C. C. 1887) 32 ed. 655; Fauche v. Schell (C. C. 1887) Fed. 336, judgment affirmed Schell Fauche (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 376, 138 S. 562, 34 L. Ed. 1040.

14. —— Signature.—See Gray v. Lawnce (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 5,722; orio v. Peaslee (C. C. 1855) Fed. s. No. 4,890; Grandmange v. Schell C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 655; Brown v. S. (1865) 1 Ct. Cl. 377.

15. —— Time for filing.—A reliquidan has all the validity of the original uidation, and, when made, becomes e liquidation in lieu of the original, d must be treated as such under Cusms Administrative Act, providing that otests against the assessment of duty ust be filed within 10 days after "liquition." Louisville Pillow Co. v. U. S. 906) 144 Fed. 386, 75 C. C. A. 324; re Brown, Durrell & Co. (C. C. 1903) 1 Fed. 605 (decree affirmed U. S. v. rown, Durrell & Co. [1903] 127 Fed. 3, 62 C. C. A. 473); Dickson v. U. S. C. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 573 (judgment firmed U. S. v. Dickson [1905] 139 ed. 251, 71 C. C. A. 377).

The provision is clear and unambiguous, and was inserted for a definite purpose, and a protest filed before the ascertainment and liquidation of the duties cannot be considered. U. S. v. Charles H. Wyman & Co. (1907) 156 Fed. 97, 84 C. C. A. 123; In re Bailey (C. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 413.

When the limit fixed by the act for filing a protest expires on Sunday, it is not a seasonable compliance with the requirement when the protest is filed on the Monday ensuing. Shefer v. Magone (C. C. 1891) 47 Fed. 872; Psaki Bros. v. U. S. (1913) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 479, distinguishing Monroe Cattle Co. v. Becker (1893) 13 Sup. Ct. 217, 147 U. S. 47, 37 L. Ed. 72.

For the purpose of ascertaining the date for filing protests, importers are bound to take notice of the dates given in the liquidation bulletin publicly posted as prescribed by the customs regulations; and, in case of conflict between the bulletin and notations on the entry, they should be governed by the former. U. S. v. Charles H. Wyman & Co. (1907) 156 Fed. 97, 84 C. C. A. 123.

By a customhouse error the date of liquidation was stated in an entry as being later than it was in fact, and a representative of the importer was thereby misled; but the correct date was given in both a notice sent to the importer and the liquidation bulletin posted for inspection by importers. Held, that the error did not have the effect of extending the period for filing protests. Id.

When the practice at the customhouse permits the giving of notice of a protest by leaving it in a certain office, and such a notice is left in the proper place, after business hours, on the last day but one for giving notice, the last day being a holiday, on which the customhouse is closed by special order, though not by law, and the notice remains in the office during such last day, it is in time, and entitled to consideration. Frankenburg v. U. S. (C. C. 1896) 77 Fed. 606.

At the time of the original liquidation of duty on an importation of merchandise, the importers failed to protest against the exaction of duty on certain charges; but later, on the reliquidation of the entry solely to include a damage allowance, they filed a protest against the duty on the charges, which had not been affected in any way by the reliquidation. Held, that the protest was filed in time. Sgobel & Day v. Robertson (C. C. 1903) 126 Fed. 577.

Where, under instructions of the Secretary of the Treasury, and upon due notice to the importers, an entry of imported merchandise was tentatively liquidated, while the final liquidation was held in abeyance over a year, pending the possibility of a change of rates, held, that the final liquidation was the liquidation within 10 days after which the importers might legally file a protest, under Customs Administrative Act.

U. S. v. Franklin Sugar Refining Co. (C. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 677.

Where an importer's protest against the inclusion of certain bottles charges in an assessed valuation had been sustained and a reliquidation by the collector ordered, the importer interposed a new protest with the collector, asserting his right to a new assessment on the contents themselves of the bottles and at a lower rate than that which had been originally fixed. Held, in the proceedings that ensued on reliquidation the collector made no "decision" from which an appeal would lie; he was acting ministerially, and the importer having failed within the time prescribed by law to protest against the original assessment as to the value of the contents of the bottles and to appeal therefrom, that assessment is res adjudicata. Smith v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 489.

As to decisions under earlier statutes, see Marriott v. Brune (1850) 50 U. S. (9 How.) 619, 13 L. Ed. 282 (affirming Brune v. Marriott [C. C. 1849] Fed. Cas. No. 2,052); Curtis v. Fiedler (1862) 2 Black, 461, 479, 17 L. Ed. 273; Davies v. Miller (1888) 130 U. S. 284, 9 Sup. Ct. 560, 32 L. Ed. 932; Merritt v. Cameron (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 174, 175, 137 U. S. 542, 34 L. Ed. 772 (distinguishing Westray v. U. S. [1873] 85 U. S. [18 Wall.] 322, 21 L. Ed. 763); Cadwalader v. Partridge (1890) 137 U. S. 553, 11 Sup. Ct. 182, 34 L. Ed. 783; Barney v. Rickard (1895) 15 Sup. Ct. 642, 646, 157 U. S. 352, 39 L. Ed. 730 (following Same v. Watson [1875] 92 U. S. 449, 23 L. Ed. 730, and reversing judgment Rickard v. Barney [C. C. 1887] 32 Fed. 581); Saltonstall v. Birtwell (1895) 66 Fed. 969, 970, 14 C. C. A. 205, 33 U. S. App. 52 (affirming Birtwell v. Saltonstall [C. C. 1894] 63 Fed. 1004, and judgment affirmed [1896] 17 Sup. Ct. 19, 164 U. S. 54, 41 L. Ed. 348); American Cigar Co. v. U. S. (1906) 146 Fed. 484, 77 C. C. A. 40 (reversing judgment Falk v. U. S. [C. C. 1904] 145 Fed. 574, and judgment reversed U. S. v. G. Falk & Bro. [1907] 27 Sup. Ct. 191, 204 U. S. 143, 51 L. Ed. 411); Brune v. Marriott (C. C. 1849) Fed. Cas. No. 2,052; Crocker v. Redfield (C. C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 3,400; Moke v. Barney (C. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 9,698; Foster v. Simmons (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 4,982a; Keyser v. Arthur, Id. 7,749; Frost & Adams v. Saltonstall (C. C. 1887) 129 Fed. 481; Strange v. Barney (C. C. 1888) 35 Fed. 196, 199.

16. —— Waiver of requirement for protest.—The provision of section 14 of the customs administrative act that the decision of the collector as to the duty to be paid on imported merchandise shall be final and conclusive unless protest shall be filed "within 10 days after, but not before, such ascertainment and liquidation of duties," is peremptory, and the collector has no power to waive the same, and accept a protest filed afte the expiration of the time fixed. In re Guggenheim Smelting Co. (1901) 11 Fed. 517, 50 C. C. A. 374, writ of certiorari denied U. S. v. Guggenheim Smelting Co. (1902) 22 Sup. Ct. 942 186 U. S. 485, 46 L. Ed. 1260.

There was no evidence to prove either the handwriting or the authority o the individual who wrote the firm name to the protest and added his initial t the signature. Held, that the acceptance of the protest by the collector wa no waiver, as he was under no obligatio to inquire into the authority of the person protesting before he received th written protest. Grandmange v. Schel (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 655.

17. —— Written protest.—Written protest was required in actions to recover duties paid prior to customs administrative act of 1890. See Elliot v. Swartwout (1836) 35 U. S. (10 Pet.) 137, 9 L. Ed. 373; Curtis v Fiedler (1862) 2 Black, 461, 479, 1 L. Ed. 273; Nichols v. U. S. (1868 74 U. S. (7 Wall.) 122, 19 L. Ed. 125 Andreae v. Redfield (1878) 98 U. S 225, 228, 25 L. Ed. 158; Drake v. Redfield (C. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 4,065 Crocker v. Same (C. C. 1859) Fed Cas. No. 3,400; Greenleaf v. Schel (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 5,782; Bodart v. Same (C. C. 1888) 33 Fed. 82 (writ of error dismissed [1891] 11 Sup Ct. 1017, 140 U. S. 673, 35 L. Ed 598); U. S. v. Clement (D. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 14,815.

18. —— Decisions under earlier statutes.—See Barney v. Watson (1875) 92 U. S. 449, 23 L. Ed. 730; U. S. v Goldenberg (1897) 18 Sup. Ct. 3, 168 U. S. 95, 42 L. Ed. 394; Saltonstal v. Birtwell (1895) 66 Fed. 969, 14 C C. A. 205; Dieckerhoff v. Miller (1899) 93 Fed. 651, 35 C. C. A. 525; Ogden v Maxwell (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No 10,458; Haynes v. Brewster (D. C 1891) 46 Fed. 471; (1891) 20 Op Atty. Gen. 183.

19. —— Prospective protests under Acts of 1845 and 1857.—See Marriott v. Brune (1850) 50 U. S. (9 How.) 619, 13 L. Ed. 282 (affirming Brune v. Marriott [C. C. 1849] Fed. Cas. No. 2,052); Benkard v. Schell (C. C.) Fed. Cas. No. 1,307; Steegman v. Maxwell (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 13,344; Warren v. Peaslee, Id. 17,198; Baxter v. Maxwell (C. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 1,126; Fowler v. Redfield (C. C. 1862) Fed. Cas. No. 5,003; Hutton v. Schell (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 6,961; Ullman v. Murphy (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 14,325; Wetter v. Schell, Id. 17,470; Herman v. Schell (C. C. 1884) 18 Fed. 891; Fauche v. Schell (C. C. 1887) 33 Fed. 336 (judgment affirmed Schell v. Fauche [1891] 11 Sup. Ct. 376, 138 U. S. 562, 34 L. Ed. 1040); Sorchan v. Schell (C. C. 1887) 33 Fed. 580 (judgment affirmed Schell's Ex'rs v. Johnson [1891] 11 Sup. Ct. 1027, U. S. 697, 35 L. Ed. 598, and writ rror dismissed Schell's Ex'rs v. tz [1891] 11 Sup. Ct. 1028, 140 . 697, 35 L. Ed. 596); Haynes v. vster (D. C. 1891) 46 Fed. 471, 476.

Forwarding protest to board of aisers.—There was a delay of sev- years by customs officers in for- ing an importer's protests to the d of general appraisers for de- n, and during this period the value ne importer's evidence became im- ed. Held, that no right against government arose by reason of this , particularly when not intentional egligent. Franklin Sugar Refining v. U. S. (C. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 653.

here a collector of customs sus- ed an importer's protest against assessment of duty, instead of smitting the protest to the board eneral appraisers for decision, the isions of the act were as well com- with as they would have been by smission of the case to the board. enkian v. Stranahan (C. C. 1907) Fed. 836.

collector of customs is not liable mporters for the failure of his ecessor to send the importers' pro- to the board of general apprais- Id.

is a breach of duty for a collector ustoms to refuse to forward to the d of general appraisers protests h have been filed and for this ch the protestant is entitled to ages. Kendall v. Lyman (C. C.) 161 Fed. 652.

ly nominal damages are recover- for a breach of the duty of a col- or of customs to forward an im- er's protest to the board of gen- appraisers, where the breach is nical, and actual damage has not sustained. Id.

protest serves the purpose not of a notice to the collector of al- d errors in his classification or ssment so that he may correct his sion if so minded, but as well the ose of an appeal to the board of eral appraisers in case the col- or declines or fails to make his sion conform to the protest. And the limit fixed by the regulations in which the collector must pass the protest, namely, 30 days, has red, the jurisdiction of the board eneral appraisers attaches and the ority of the collector in the prem- is suspended, and this whether the es have been transmitted or not. S. v. Straus & Sons (1914) 5 Ct. t. App. 147.

. Appeal to board of appraisers.— sdiction of the board of general ap- sers authorizing an appeal to the d from a decision of a collector "as he rate and amount of the duties geable upon imported merchandise," aid under protest, does not extend to an appeal from a decision as to duties on goods imported from Porto Rico and the Hawaiian Islands, when the sole question is whether those places were foreign countries within the meaning of the tariff laws. Goetze v. U. S. (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 742, 743, 182 U. S. 221, 45 L. Ed. 1065, reversing judgment (C. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 72.

The remedy by an appeal to the board of general appraisers from a decision of the collector does not extend to a review of the question whether the article was imported or not, or whether it was or was not brought from a foreign country. De Lima v. Bidwell (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 743, 182 U. S. 1, 45 L. Ed. 1041.

The board of general appraisers has jurisdiction to review the action of the collector in regard to the date at which the value of foreign coin is to be estimated in determining dutiable value. Wood v. U. S. (1896) 72 Fed. 254, 18 C. C. A. 553, distinguishing U. S. v. Klingenberg (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 790, 153 U. S. 93, 38 L. Ed. 647.

The board had jurisdiction to review the action of the collector in reliquidating the entry in this case, although it was done pursuant to an order of the Secretary of the Treasury. U. S. v. Lucius Beebe & Sons (1903) 122 Fed. 762, 58 C. C. A. 562, affirming judgment U. S. v. Beebe (C. C. 1902) 117 Fed. 670.

The board of general appraisers is required first of all to determine its jurisdiction, including the validity of the protest. U. S. v. Brown, Durrell & Co. (1903) 127 Fed. 793, 62 C. C. A. 473, affirming decree In re Brown, Durrell & Co. (C. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 605.

The board of general appraisers, acting within its jurisdiction, is an independent tribunal, empowered to pass upon certain controversies between the government and the importer, and in this respect is not subordinate to the Treasury Department. Stone v. Whitridge, White & Co. (1904) 129 Fed. 33, 64 C. C. A. 47, reversed U. S. v. Whitridge (1905) 25 Sup. Ct. 406, 197 U. S. 135, 49 L. Ed. 696.

The action of a collector of customs in assessing duty on the cost of repairs of vessels, as provided in section 3114, R. S., section 5826, post, is subject to review by the board of general appraisers. U. S. v. Geo. Hall Coal Co. (1906) 142 Fed. 1039, 71 C. C. A. 685, affirming judgment (C. C. 1905) 134 Fed. 1003.

In the event that a board of general appraisers, after acquiring jurisdiction of a case, refuses to "examine and decide," as prescribed in said section, an importer would be entitled to apply to the proper court for a mandamus to require the board to exercise its jurisdiction. Thomas Prosser & Son v. U. S. (1907) 158 Fed. 971, 86 C. C. A.

175, reversing order (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 721.

Where importers rested after introducing evidence as to certain items of goods at a hearing before the board of general appraisers, the board was justified in assuming that their claim was abandoned as to other items. J. S. Plummer & Co. v. U. S. (1908) 166 Fed. 730, 92 C. C. A. 420, affirming judgment (C. C. 1907) 160 Fed. 284.

The jurisdiction conferred on the board of general appraisers to review the decision of the collector as to the rate and amount of duties extends only to merchandise lawfully entered and regularly invoiced and appraised; and they have no jurisdiction, in the case of goods seized and libeled for forfeiture in the federal courts, to review the collector's determination of duty to be paid thereon, as required by section 1564, ante, in order to secure delivery of such goods to the claimant. In re Chichester (C. C. 1891) 48 Fed. 281.

The board of general appraisers should possess expert knowledge of their own, and their decision should be based upon such knowledge and the evidence submitted, or upon no evidence at all, or in the absence of the importer and his witnesses. In re Muser (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 831, applying Rector of Holy Trinity v. U. S. (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 511, 143 U. S. 457, 36 L. Ed. 226.

A collector of customs assessed duty in accordance with the findings of the local appraiser who had examined the merchandise. In reviewing the collector's action the Board of General Appraisers reversed his decision without any new evidence, though the question involved was one of fact. Held, that the board may make a different finding from the local appraiser without taking additional evidence, and that its action was without error. U. S. v. Strauss Bros. & Co. (C. C. 1904) 128 Fed. 473, judgment reversed (1905) 136 Fed. 185, 69 C. C. A. 201.

In an action by importers against the collector of customs, in a Circuit Court, for the recovery of excessive duties, a verdict was directed for the importers for a part of the claims made, and against them for the remainder, judgment being rendered and satisfied on that basis. Held, that the entire matter thus became res adjudicata, and the importers could not by subsequent proceedings before the Board of United States General Appraisers, have a further recovery on the merchandise as to which said verdict had been adverse. U. S. v. J. G. Johnson & Co. (C. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 1018.

The board of general appraisers has jurisdiction over cases relating to the exaction of fees on packed packages, though no entry of such packages may ever have been made at the custom house. U. S. v. American Express Co. (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 996.

The board cannot properly direct the admission of merchandise free of duty under a paragraph of the law not made the basis of any claim by the importer. The burden is on the importer to show that his goods were properly dutiable according to the paragraph or paragraphs he has protested are applicable. U. S. v. Danker & Marston (1912) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 462.

A convention with Great Britain provides that the merchandise imported under it shall be subject to all customs duties or customs regulations enforced in the United States and that the merchandise shall be delivered to the addressee upon payment by him of the duties properly chargeable thereon. This provision waives the necessity of a formal entry, except when this is required, and a right of appeal to a classification board remains. U. S. v. General Electric Co. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 287.

The importer having made out a prima facie case that the goods received at his factory and used there were the goods imported, it was error to refuse to allow him to show the nature and character of the goods he did in fact receive and the use to which these were put. American Glue Co. v. U. S. (1913) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 36.

The board of general appraisers is a judicial tribunal, clothed with judicial powers to determine the classification of imported goods and the rate of duty thereon, and its decisions on questions of classification or rates are open only to direct and not collateral attack by parties to the proceedings. U. S. v. Kurtz, Stuboeck & Co. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 144.

The board has jurisdiction to hear and determine protests against a collector's decision assessing a rate and amount of duty upon imported merchandise on the ground that the appraisement is irregular or invalid, and a demand for a reappraisement operates after the manner of supersedeas. U. S. v. American Exp. Co., (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 351.

The appellant was required to pay for the services of inspectors who supervised the loading of a vessel at night and on Sundays and holidays. This section was not intended to confer jurisdiction upon the board in any cases other than those related to duties or charges on imported goods, and the charges here could not be reviewed. Atlantic Transport Co. v. U. S. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 373.

The board of general appraisers have no jurisdiction, after the lapse of nearly two years, to reconsider their decision on a protest on the ground that certain matter contained in the protest was overlooked. It was the duty of the importer to watch for the decision of the board. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 144.

The board of general appraisers has diction to decide whether cartage ges as made by a collector of cus- are proper. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. 262.

an application for an abandonment utiable goods under section 5602, the board of general appraisers jurisdiction to review the collector's ion, which review is final for all oses, since the importers did not al. (1896) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 402.

. Liquidation after decision of gen- appraisers.—Where the board of ral appraisers sustains an impor- protest against the assessment of by a collector of customs, it be- s the duty of the collector to re- date the entry in accordance with board's decision. U. S. v. Dickson 5) 139 Fed. 251, 71 C. C. A. 377, ming judgment Dickson v. U. S. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 573.

e board of general appraisers sus- ed an importer's protests, direct- that the collector should reliquidate duties at the rates appearing to pplicable "from the invoices, sam- or record," or, in the absence of cient data, should reliquidate at the of 40 per cent. ad valorem. Held, the terms of this decision did not ire the collector to consider data ide of the record made before the rd. U. S. v. Hunter & Witcombe 7) 153 Fed. 873, 83 C. C. A. 55.

. Appeal to courts—Jurisdiction.— stions arising under tonnage tax are referred to commissioner of gation. In re Laidlaw (C. C. 1890) Fed. 401; North German Lloyd S. Hedden (C. C. 1890) 43 Fed. 17, Laidlaw v. Abraham (C. C. 1890) Fed. 297, 299.

e jurisdiction of the Circuit Courts he United States in respect to cus- s duties prior to the enactment of Customs Administrative Act, was urrent with that given the Board of ed States General Appraisers by act. U. S. v. J. G. Johnson & Co. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 1018.

e penalty of a bond given for the rn of goods not examined by cus- s officials is not enforceable in a eeding of this kind, the court de- ng to assume jurisdiction of ques- s arising out of the alleged breach he conditions of such a bond. U. . Habicht (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App.

e court may at any stage raise the stion of jurisdiction of the subject- ter, and the determination of the l court that it has jurisdiction adds ing to the force of its judgment. ntic Transport Co. v. U. S. (1914) t. Cust. App. 373.

. —— Right to appeal.—Decision he board of general appraisers as the classification is subject to re- on application by the collector e without first obtaining authority n the secretary of the treasury. "Zante Currants" (C. C. 1896) 73 Fed. 183.

A reliquidation of duties, pursuant to a decision of the board of general appraisers, does not extend the time for taking an appeal from the liquidation, nor give a new right of appeal. Stern v. U. S. (C. C. 1896) 77 Fed. 607.

Where importers who failed through inadvertence to appear on the hearing of an appeal taken by them to the board of general appraisers, which entered a default, and affirmed the action of the collector, afterward applied for and obtained an order from the Circuit Court directing further testimony to be taken, and the government made no objection to such order, and appeared pursuant thereto, and cross-examined the witnesses, it waived the right to raise the objection thereafter that the appellants were concluded by the default before the board of appraisers. In re F. W. Myers & Co. (C. C. 1903) 123 Fed. 952.

Where importers had failed to proceed for the recovery of excessive duties by filing protests, and thus securing a decision by the board of general appraisers, they are precluded from recovery in the Circuit Court as a court of claims under Tucker Act March 3, 1887, ante, § 1136. Gulbenkian v. U. S. (C. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 860, judgment affirmed (1911) 186 Fed. 133, 108 C. C. A. 245.

25. —— Security for costs.—An application for review prosecuted in good faith, but without the required security for costs, will not be dismissed if the ordinary bond is filed on motion to dismiss. In re Certain Merchandise (C. C. 1894) 64 Fed. 576.

26. —— New evidence on appeal.—Where a decision of a collector of customs as to the dutiability of imported merchandise is under review by the board of general appraisers or the courts, his findings of fact, when based on no other evidence than that afforded by the articles themselves, may be reversed without any further evidence. The collector, the board, and the courts are all equally entitled to avail themselves of such information as may be derived from an inspection of the articles in connection with the facts of common knowledge and experience, of which judicial notice may be taken. U. S. v. Strauss Bros. & Co. (1905) 136 Fed. 185, 69 C. C. A. 201, reversing judgment (C. C. 1904) 128 Fed. 473.

Certain importers appeared before the board of general appraisers in support of their protests against the decision of the collector, but as to one of said protests they offered no evidence before the board. Held, that they had a right to appeal to the circuit court, and that the right to bring new evidence was coextensive with the right to appeal. Lesser v. U. S. (C. C. 1897) 89 Fed. 197.

Where the board of general appraisers overruled a protest in a case in which the importer has failed to produce any evidence in support of his contention, and the importer appeals to the Circuit Court, the court will permit the importer to introduce evidence on the appeal, if it appears that it was not the importer's fault that the evidence was not presented to the board. Cowl v. U. S. (C. C. 1900) 124 Fed. 475.

If an importer desires to have his case heard by the board of general appraisers without evidence, on the facts presented to the board by the collector of customs, he may submit it in that form; and on appeal from the board to the Circuit Court, the fact that no evidence was introduced before the board or in the Circuit Court is not ground for dismissal of the appeal. Lehigh Mfg. Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 596.

Importers should present to the board of general appraisers all the evidence which they can produce, and on appeal to the Circuit Court little weight should be given additional cumulative evidence which could easily have been laid before the board. John Bromley & Sons v. U. S. (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 399.

27. —— Assignment of error.—A question as to whether certain articles were subject to a different duty than that fixed by certain rates considered by the trial court cannot be first raised on appeal to the supreme court. Badger v. Ranlett (1882) 106 U. S. 255, 1 Sup. Ct. 346, 27 L. Ed. 194; Id. (1882) 1 Sup. Ct. 350, 154 U. S. 677, 27 L. Ed. 196, note.

Alleged errors of the board of general appraisers detrimental to the government cannot be reviewed on an appeal taken by the importer, where he abandons his opposition to the decision, and the government itself took no steps to procure a review. U. S. v. Lies (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 780, 170 U. S. 628, 42 L. Ed. 1170, affirming judgment (1896) 20 C. C. A. 651, 74 Fed. 546.

The court will not consider the question of the correctness of a general appraisers' decision as to the rate of duty imposed upon certain goods, when no statement of errors against the decision of the board of general appraisers had been filed in the circuit court by the importer. In re Crowly (C. C. 1892) 50 Fed. 465. judgment affirmed In re Crowley (1893) 55 Fed. 283, 5 C. C. A. 109.

On appeal from the board of general appraisers the Circuit Court will not consider whether a protest decided by the board was sufficient, unless the question of insufficiency is raised by the assignment of errors. U. S. v. Hempstead (C. C. 1910) 180 Fed. 956.

On appeal from the board of gener appraisers, error was assigned on th point that the board had erred in hold ing the merchandise in question to b free of duty. Held, that this assign ment related to the merits, and wa not sufficiently comprehensive to in clude the point of the sufficiency of th protest passed on by the board. Id.

This court will not review rulings o the board not assigned as error. U. S v. Halle Bros. Co. (1916) 6 Ct. Cus App. 543.

28. —— Review of questions of fac—A finding of fact made by the boar of general appraisers, while not con clusive upon the court on appeal, i entitled to the same weight as the find ing of a master in equity, and unles wholly unsupported, or clearly contra ry to the weight of evidence, shoul be sustained. Marine v. Lyon (1895 65 Fed. 992, 13 C. C. A. 268; U. S. v W. N. Proctor & Co. (1906) 145 Fed 126, 76 C. C. A. 96 (affirming judg ment W. N. Proctor & Co. v. U. S. [C C. 1905] 139 Fed. 586); In re Bing (C C. 1894) 66 Fed. 727; Morris Europe an & American Exp. Co. v. U. S. (C C. 1899) 94 Fed. 643; Myers v. Sam (C. C. 1901) 110 Fed. 940; Nevin v Same (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 423 Semon Bache & Co. v. Same (1915) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 496; U. S. v. Interna tional Forwarding Co. (1915) 6 Ct Cust. App. 25.

Findings of fact by the board of gen eral appraisers, based upon conflicting testimony, as to the commercial desig nation of certain articles, cannot be reviewed by the courts. White v. U. S. (1896) 72 Fed. 251, 18 C. C. A. 541 (affirming judgment [C. C. 1895] 65 Fed. 788); Gabriel & Schall v. Same (1903) 123 Fed. 296, 59 C. C. A. 352 (affirming judgment Gabriel v. Same [C. C. 1902] 114 Fed. 401); In re Buffalo Natural Gas Fuel Co. (C. C. 1896) 73 Fed. 191 (judgment affirmed U. S. v. Buffalo Natural Gas Fuel Co. [1897] 78 Fed. 110, 24 C. C. A. 4); Belcher v. U. S. (C. C. 1898) 91 Fed. 975; Leerburger v. Same (C. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 976; Butler Bros. v. U. S. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 90.

The circuit court of appeals will not review a finding of facts by the board of general appraisers, not controverted by new evidence in the circuit court, unless manifestly unsupported by the evidence or clearly against the weight thereof. Apgar v. U. S. (1896) 78 Fed. 332, 24 C. C. A. 113; Vandiver v. Same (1907) 156 Fed. 961, 84 C. C. A. 522; U. S. v. Komada & Co. (1908) 162 Fed. 465, 89 C. C. A. 385; A. Bader & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 541; Neresheimer v. Same (C. C. 1903) 131 Fed. 977, judgment reversed Neresheimer & Co. v. Same (1904) 136 Fed. 86, 68 C. C. A. 654.

In the circuit court the return of the board of appraisers will not be disturbed as to findings upon doubtful ques-

: of fact; but when a finding of is wholly without evidence to sup- it, or when it is clearly contrary e weight of evidence, it is the du- f the court to disregard it. In re Blankensteyn (1892) 56 Fed. 474, C. A. 579 (reversing judgment C. 1892] 49 Fed. 220); Boussod don Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1895) 66 718 (judgment reversed U. S. v. ssod-Valadon Co. [1896] 71 Fed. 18 C. C. A. 223).

der sections 14 and 15 of Cus- Administrative Act 1890, the de- n of the collector, of the board of ral appraisers, and of the circuit t on appeal therefrom is limited to rmining "the rate and amount" of s chargeable, and does not extend e question whether or not an ar- is imported merchandise. Ex par- Tassett (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 295, 142 U. S. 479, 35 L. Ed. 1087.

ngress may, as it has done, pro- for determination by a board of ral appraisers and allow the deci- s of that board to be reviewable ourts in such particulars only as be prescribed by law. Fong Yue v. U. S. (1893) 13 Sup. Ct. 1016, , 149 U. S. 698, 37 L. Ed. 905.

ndings of fact by a board of gen- appraisers were reviewed by the t on appeal, where it appeared the decision was made by general aisers who did not hear the testi- y, which was all taken before an- r general appraiser, who did not elf sign the decision. Neresheim- Co. v. U. S. (1904) 136 Fed. 86, C. C. A. 654, reversing judgment sheimer v. Same (C. C. 1903) 131 977.

here there is a conflict in the ev- ce as to the character of an im- ed article, much weight should be n to the fact that there has been arlier ruling by the Board of Gen- Appraisers which has long been iesced in by importers of that ar- . U. S. v. Komada & Co. (1908) Fed. 465, 89 C. C. A. 385.

hether an imported article is or is known in commerce by the word or s used in the act imposing the is a question of fact for the jury, not a question of construction; in the case of an appeal from a sion of the board of general ap- sers, it must be determined by the t as a question of fact. "Zante rants" (C. C. 1896) 73 Fed. 183.

here, on appeal from the decision he board of general appraisers af- ing the collector's classification of orted merchandise, there is no ev- ce to overthrow the classification, decision of the board must stand. H. Bailey & Co. v. U. S. (C. C.) 122 Fed. 751.

e method employed by administra- officers of the customs in ascer- ing the dutiable quantity of im- ed merchandise should not be dis- turbed, except upon a clear showing of unfairness or injustice. U. S. v. Zucca & Co. (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 172.

The customs laws contemplate finality at some point in all appraisement proceedings and finality is by law attached on appeal to an appraisement by the board of general appraisers, when the appeal comes to the board from a finding of a general appraiser, and a decision of that board on the actual market value of the merchandise in question is conclusive against all parties interested therein. Wolff v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 181.

Where a board of three general appraisers, with jurisdiction of the subject-matter and the persons, have proceeded in conformity to law to appraise an importation of goods, their finding is not reviewable by any classification board or by this court. Beer v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 484.

The burden of proof never shifts, but where the importer has sustained that burden prima facie, proving his case by a preponderance of evidence, the government is thereby called to offset that evidence by proof of equal weight tending either to sustain the collector's action or to prove the goods are not dutiable as claimed. U. S. v. Edson Keith & Co. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 82.

A flat rate agreed on by the government for drayage charges is not conclusive against an importer. His liability is for the payment of the regular rate for service of the sort at the same time and place. On the present record the proof, while not conclusive, is sufficient to support the board's decision that the regular rate at the port of Baltimore for services of the kind in issue was 6 cents, and not 18 cents. U. S. v. Masson (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 307, citing Id. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 363.

At the trial importers' counsel stated that as to certain protests no samples of the gloves covered by them could be had, and they were abandoned. Subsequently, however, by stipulation these protests were reopened, and it was agreed the rate on the goods in question should be determined by the rule laid down in the Wertheimer Case. This became an agreed statement of facts, and the rule in the Wertheimer Case should have been applied. Altman & Co. v. U. S. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 412, citing U. S. v. Wertheimer & Co. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 338.

No controversy being made, the board's decision that there was no proof to controvert the collector's classification of these articles was affirmed. U. S. v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1915) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 376.

29. —— Questions of law.—In an action to recover duties paid under protest, the appraisement, though conclusive in respect to errors of judgment and mistaken ideas of quality or value, or the elements entering into the cost of manufacture, may yet be inquired into in respect to any alleged illegality in the action of the appraisers, such as adding illegal items to make up increased value, or proceeding upon principles of valuation which the statutes condemn. Magone v. Origet (1895) 70 Fed. 778, 17 C. C. A. 363, following Robertson v. Frank Bros. (1889) 10 Sup. Ct. 5, 132 U. S. 17, 33 L. Ed. 236, Passavant v. U. S. (1893) 13 Sup. Ct. 572, 148 U. S. 214, 37 L. Ed. 426, and Muser v. Magone (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 77, 155 U. S. 240, 39 L. Ed. 135.

The collector classified certain window and other glass under Schedule B (paragraph 112 of Act Oct. 1, 1890) and the importer protested, claiming that on the voyage part of the glass was broken into pieces which could not be used without remanufacture, and was therefore exempt from duty, under paragraph 590 of the free list. Before the board of general appraisers the importer offered to prove the number of pounds of glass thus broken, but the board refused the offer, deciding that the claim was in legal effect one for reduction of duties on account of damages to part of the goods, and that such a claim was inadmissible, under section 5602, post. The facts were undisputed, and the board found as a fact that part of the glass was broken on the voyage. Held, that the proceeding before the board was in the nature of a demurrer by the collector to the protest; that the board had authority to determine the question of law thus presented without admitting the evidence; and that, on an appeal from its decision, the circuit court had authority to review and reverse the same, notwithstanding the absence of evidence in the record to support the finding as to the broken glass. In re Bache (C. C. 1893) 54 Fed. 371, judgment reversed U. S. v. Bache (1894) 59 Fed. 762, 8 C. C. A. 258.

The rule stated in some of the cases, that the court will not reverse the decision of the board, even if against the weight of the evidence, where there is sufficient evidence to warrant its finding, has little if any application to cases in which additional testimony of an important character is taken in the circuit court, and where the ultimate and decisive question is as much one of law as of fact. "Zante Currants" (C. C. 1896) 73 Fed. 183.

A finding by the board of general appraisers that an article is or is not similar to another article, within the similitude clause of the tariff act, is a conclusion of law rather than one purely of fact, and is therefore reviewable by the courts. Dana v. U. S. (C. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 522.

Similitude is a fact, and when found by the board of general appraisers upon competent evidence, on a proper issue, the finding should not be disturbed. But whether there was any occasion in the particular instance for resorting to the similitude section is a question of law, which the court may determine. U. S. v. Hahn (C. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 755.

The action of the collector of a port, declining to accept the proclaimed value of a foreign standard coin, and in adopting the value declared in the consular certificate, thereby increasing the amount of customs duty to be paid upon imported merchandise, although approved by the secretary of the treasury, is reviewable, on the protest of the importer, by the board of general appraisers and by the circuit court. U. S. v. Beebe (C. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 785, judgment affirmed (1901) 106 Fed. 75, 45 C. C. A. 230, writ of certiorari denied U. S. v. Lucius Beebe & Sons (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 922, 180 U. S. 640, 45 L. Ed. 711.

Liquidation of duties contrary to statute and in excess of officers' powers reviewable. U. S. v. Thurber (D. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 56, 57.

30. —— Harmless error. — Certain gummed paper for adhesive purposes was erroneously assessed for duty as surface-coated paper, under Tariff Act Aug. 28, 1894, c. 349, § 1, Schedule M, par. 308, 28 Stat. 532, and the importer protested against this assessment, claiming the merchandise to be dutiable under paragraph 313 of said act (28 Stat. 533), as a manufacture "of paper, or of which paper is the component material of chief value, not specially provided for." This claim having been sustained by the Board of General Appraisers, the government appealed, contending that the proper classification should have been under paragraph 310 of said act, which relates to "paper not specially provided for," but provides the same rate as said paragraph 313. Held that as the rate was the same in both paragraphs, the government had nothing to complain of. U. S. v. Hunter (C. C. 1900) 124 Fed. 1005.

31. —— Disposition of case. — The court, after deciding, upon the weight of evidence, the value of the matter in dispute in a revenue case, will not continue the case for the party to produce further evidence. U. S. v. The Union (1832) 8 U. S. (4 Cranch) 216, 2 L. Ed. 600.

The board sustained the more favorable of the two alternative contentions made in an importer's protest. The government appealed to the Circuit Court, asserting in the assignment of errors that the board's decision was erroneous, and that the merchandise should have been held to have been properly assessed. Held, that the court might decide the merchandise to be dutiable in accordance with importer's alternative contention, notwithstanding the absence of a specific assignment on party litigant in an appellate tri- al must stand upon the case as he le it in the lower court; and a case not be remanded because the rec- discloses simply a failure to make of. Larkin Co. v. U. S. (1912) 2 Cust. App. 483, citing Stegeman Same (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 208.

t point by the government. U. S. v. ters' Fur Exchange (C. C. 1907) Fed. 595.

2. Interest on duties.—Interest is overable by the United States on aid duties, where the amount due is idated and clearly ascertained and nand has been duly made on the im- ter. U. S. v. Mexican Internation- R. Co. (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 519; ne v. Urmston (C. C. 1907) 154 l. 522.

On the reliquidation of duties at a her rate, interest on the additional ount assessed should be computed m the date of demand on the im- ter. United States v. Mexican In- national R. Co. (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed.).

nterest recoverable by the United ites on unpaid duties should be com- ed at the rate allowed by the laws the state into which the importation made. Id.

The United States is entitled to in- est on duties due from an importer. S. v. Tiffany & Co. (C. C. 1907) 154 d. 740.

As to interest on bonds for duties, § 1601, ante.

Cited without definite application, Iasigi v. The Collector (1863) 1 Wall. 375, 382, 17 L. Ed. 686; Arthur v. Unkart (1877) 96 U. S. 118, 121, 24 L. Ed. 768, holding that burden of proof is upon the plaintiff; Wright v. Blakeslee (1879) 101 U. S. 174, 179, 25 L. Ed. 1048; James v. Hicks (1884) 4 Sup. Ct. 6, 8, 110 U. S. 272, 28 L. Ed. 144; Oberteuffer v. Robertson (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 462, 471, 116 U. S. 499, 29 L. Ed. 706; Barney v. Oelrichs (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 414, 415, 138 U. S. 529, 34 L. Ed. 1037; Schoenfeld v. Hendricks (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 754, 755, 152 U. S. 691, 38 L. Ed. 601 (affirming Loeb v. Hendricks [C. C. 1893] 57 Fed. 568); Marine v. Lyon (1894) 62 Fed. 153, 155, 10 C. C. A. 315; U. S. v. Curnen & Stiner (1906) 146 Fed. 45, 76 C. C. A. 503; Same v. Heil Chemical Co. (1910) 178 Fed. 537, 102 C. C. A. 47; Treat v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. (1911) 185 Fed. 760, 108 C. C. A. 98; Stewart v. Merritt (C. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 531, 533; White v. Arthur (C. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 80, 88; U. S. v. Seidenberg (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 227, 229; Fairbanks v. Spaulding (C. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 416; Kahn v. Herold (C. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 575, 580; U. S. v. American Express Co. (C. C. 1910) 177 Fed. 735; Same v. Campbell (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 816, 818.

Cited as to Act June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 14, 26 Stat. 137, without definite application, U. S. v. Whitridge (1905) 25 Sup. Ct. 406, 407, 197 U. S. 135, 49 L. Ed. 696.

5596. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, O.) Administration of oaths, examination of witnesses, and production of papers, etc.

O. The general appraisers, or any of them, are hereby authorized administer oaths, and said general appraisers, the boards of gen- al appraisers, the local appraisers, or the collectors, as the case ay be, may cite to appear before them, and examine upon oath any wner, importer, agent, consignee, or other person touching any mat- r or thing which they, or either of them, may deem material respect- g any imported merchandise then under consideration or previously ported within one year, in ascertaining the classification or dutiable lue thereof or the rate or amount of duty; and they, or either of em, may require the production of any letters, accounts, contracts, invoices relating to said merchandise, and may require such testi- ony to be reduced to writing, and when so taken it shall be filed d preserved for use or reference until the final decision of the col- ctor, appraiser, or said board of appraisers shall be made respecting e valuation or classification of said merchandise, as the case may ; and such evidence shall be given consideration in all subsequent oceedings relating to such merchandise. (38 Stat. 188.)

See notes to subdivisions B and M of this section, ante, §§ 5519, 5594.

This provision, originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 16, 26 Stat. 138, was designated as section 15, and re-enacted without other change, by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 100, which was substantially re-enacted by this act.

In addition to the authority of the Boards of General Appraisers and the members thereof, under this section, they were given the powers of a Circuit Court in preserving order, compelling attendance of witnesses and production of evidence, and in punishing for contempt, by section 12 of the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 12, as amended by Act May 27, 1908, c. 205, § 3, and further amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, ante, § 5593.

Provisions similar to those of this subdivision and subdivision P of th section, post, § 5597, relating to the examination of witnesses, etc., by apprai ers and other officers, were made by R. S. §§ 2922, 2924, repealed by sectio 29 of the Customs Administrative Act of 1890, 26 Stat. 141.

Notes of Decisions

Citation and commission to take testimony.—In a proceeding by a collector to reliquidate duties, where an importer whose goods have been appraised and surrendered on payment of the duty is cited for examination under this section, the collector has no power under section 5714, post, to examine into the question of valuation; the appraisal made being final and conclusive. Bornn Hat Co. v. U. S. (C. C. A. 1914) 215 Fed. 709, affirming judgment U. S. v. Calhoun (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 499.

When a general discretionary power, without qualification, is conferred by statute, the exercise of the officer's discretion is limited to the evident purposes of the act, and to a sound legal discretion, excluding all arbitrary, capricious, inquisitorial, and oppressive proceedings. U. S. v. Doherty (D. C. 1886) 27 Fed. 730.

Where a defendant corporation was cited to appear before the collector and produce books and papers for examination in a proceeding which the collector had jurisdiction to institute, it was no excuse for the corporation's disobedience of the collector's order to appear and produce books and papers that the collector intended to extend the proceedings to matters over which he had no jurisdiction. U. S. v. Calhoun (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 499.

Where proceedings were instituted by a collector to reliquidate duties on goods imported by a corporation engaged in business and having books of account, citation was properly issued therein to the corporation directing it to appear in such proceedings and produce its books of account. Id.

The right of a collector to examine an importer in a proceeding for a reliquidation of duties within a year after importation, conferred by this section, is not limited or affected by the fact that the provision for forfeiture in case of default contained in section 5597, post, does not apply to examinations in aid of reliquidation. Id.

Without considering the judicial nature of the Board of United States General Appraisers or the power that might be found to inhere in the board as a tribunal to issue commissions to take testimony, it would plainly appear that the statute under the authority of which it was established empowers the board to issue such a commission; and that a rule adopted by the board empowering one of its members to issue such a commission is well within the scope of the board's authority. U. S. v. Hoffman-La Roche Chemical Works (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 276.

Evidence in general.—It was an off of "evidence" where an importer a peared before the board of general a praisers and submitted an affida made by a person in a foreign count H. Mendelson & Co. v. U. S. (190 154 Fed. 33, 83 C. C. A. 145, reversi judgment (C. C. 1906) 146 Fed. 78.

The circuit court has no authority enjoin the appraisers from taking e dence anywhere as to the value of importation, or carrying the goods of the district for that purpose. Goo sell v. Briggs (C. C. 1873) Fed. C No. 5,548.

The provision of section 15 of A June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 15, for taki additional evidence by a single appra er, under order of the court, is inter ed, not to secure additional findings the board, but to enable the import or collector to controvert or to susta the certifications of the board as to t facts involved in the case. In re Ste bach (C. C. 1890) 44 Fed. 413, 419.

There is nothing in the law gove ing the board of general appraise which requires that there should original testimony heard by them every case on appeal, and such tes mony is unnecessary where the reco and exhibits sent up by the collect furnish sufficient basis for their de sion. In re Hempstead (C. C. 189 95 Fed. 967.

Under Act May 27, 1908, c. 205, § 35 Stat. 404, amending Customs A ministrative Act, § 15, it was prescri ed that "hereafter" the parties litiga should be required to introduce their evidence before the board of ge eral appraisers, and cut off the rig under said amended act, of a new tr in the Circuit Court on appeal fro the board. Held, that this provisi applied to cases decided by the boa after May 27, 1908, even though, pri to that date, they had arisen and bee submitted to the board for decisio Beer v. U. S. (C. C. 1910) 181 Fe 402.

The appraiser, though an officer the court, does not sit in court in th taking of testimony, but he acts on as a referee, whose duty it is to tak the evidence and return it to the cour In re Lyman (D. C. 1893) 55 Fe 29, 32.

The testimony relied upon as take in a former case should have been, af er due notice, ordered into the recor here. Failure to do this was a sub stantial irregularity, since it deprive government's counsel of the opportu nity to present opposing testimony. U S. v. Quong Chun & Co. (1914) 5 C t. App. 198, citing Same v. Lun ng & Co. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App.

he importers should not have been pelled to have their case adjudged an incomplete record of evidence y sought rightly to complete; more- r, the board erred in considering ords improperly received in evi- ce. U. S. v. Baiz & Co. (1914) 5 Cust. App. 319.

nd as there was no proof actually ore the board upon which a conclu- n could be rested that molded and blown glass was the component ma- ial of chief value, the knowledge of board itself could not support its clusion. U. S. v. Burley & Tyrrell . (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 401.

This and other named sections, con- ered, and held that, in the absence any regulation of the Secretary of Treasury to that effect, the law es not permit importers to appear fore the appraisers, with counsel or erwise, for the purpose of producing tnesses to be examined in their own half, or to cross-examine witnesses lled by such appraisers. The entire atter is under the control of the Sec- tary, and subject to such rules and gulations as he may from time to ne establish in relation thereto. 886) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 360.

The collector is the authority to de- rmine whether an interrogatory is oper and the refusal to answer is stified. (1899) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 456.

The board of general appraisers were arranted in refusing to hear and pass on the question whether the import- was justified in refusing to answer terrogatories under sections 16 and of the Customs Administrative Act.

There can be no doubt of the col- ctor's right, under section 16 of the ustoms Administrative Act, to call for ttlement tests of sugar importations, d for practical purposes it is imma- rial whether the appraiser obtains is information directly from the im- rter or through his superior, the col- ctor. (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 238.

— Competency of witnesses.—For- gn market value of goods may be roven by testimony of domestic mer- ants. Alfonso v. U. S. (C. C. 1843) ed. Cas. No. 188.

— Presumption and burden of proof. In the absence of evidence that al- hol was not used in the preparation the import, it will be presumed, support of the collector's assess- ent, that it was so used. U. S. v. chering (1903) 123 Fed. 65, 59 C. C. . 283, reversing judgment (C. C. 902) 119 Fed. 473.

Customhouse documents are prima cie evidence of the facts which call- d for their issue. McGlinchy v. U. S. C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 8,803.

— Admissibility — The board of eneral appraisers has the same pow- er which belongs to a court to allow the substitution of a copy for the original of a document forming part of the record of a case submitted to it, when such original is proved to have been lost. Marine v. Lyon (1895) 65 Fed. 992, 13 C. C. A. 268.

In determining the rate and amount of duty under a tariff act, it is competent to prove what is the commercial designation of the article known to the trade, but a witness may not testify that the commodity falls within or without a class. In re Smith (C. C. 1893) 55 Fed. 476, 478.

There is no provision for any relaxation of the ordinary rules of evidence in taking proofs before United States General Appraisers and ex parte affidavits are not admissible before a General Appraiser sitting as referee for the introduction of evidence in the Circuit Court, as provided in Customs Administrative Act, § 15. James F. White & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1896) 154 Fed. 175.

The board of general appraisers in deciding as to the polariscopic test of certain sugar drainings, based its findings on evidence of tests other than the government tests made according to the treasury regulations. Held, that the Board was not restricted to evidence of the government tests alone. U. S. v. Lueder (C. C. 1906) 146 Fed. 149, judgment reversed (1907) 154 Fed. 1, 83 C. C. A. 131.

An official report by a government chemist, which was made at the request of the board of general appraisers, and related to merchandise involved in a case pending before the board, held incompetent because ex parte, not under oath and not subject to cross-examination. U. S. v. O. G. Hempstead & Son (C. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 483.

Though Customs Administrative Act, § 15, providing appeals from the board of general appraisers to the Circuit Court, makes competent evidence admitted by the board, the court may attach very slight weight to such evidence. Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne v. U. S. (C. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 144.

Where a rule had been promulgated by the board of general appraisers providing that in classification proceedings the record and testimony in one case might be admitted as the record and testimony in another, if a like case, but providing, too, for a re-examination and cross-examination of witnesses if moved for, proceedings on such a substituted record could only be proper after due notice, so that witnesses might be re-examined or cross-examined as might or might not be desired. U. S. v. Oberle (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 527.

A board of reappraisement is not a judicial tribunal and may use information acquired on previous appraisements. Shallus v. U. S. (1913) 5 Ct.

Cust. App. 317, citing Wolff v. Same (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 181.

The board of general appraisers admitted as evidence in a case testimony taken previously in another case. This was done over the objection of counsel, who had not appeared in the previous case nor had opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses therein; and the articles involved in the two cases were not shown to be the same. Held, that such evidence should not have been admitted. Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne v. U. S. (C. C. 1907) 155 Fed. 144.

Where parol testimony does not contradict, but merely supplies an omission, the rule against its admission, in the absence of any statutory or regulative requirement of a record, will not be enforced. U. S. v. American Exp. Co. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 351.

The question at issue was whether the stem or the bowl of the imported glassware constitutes value in chief of the merchandise. The relative values were not shown by the testimony. Evidence taken on the hearing of other protests and regarded as material must be offered and received in conformity with established rules and after opportunity has been afforded counsel to re-examine or cross-examine witnesses. U. S. v. Burley & Tyrrell Co. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 401.

The reports made by local appraisers to collectors concerning merchandise, when they are made within the line of duty, become part of the record in the case, and as such may be considered upon the trial of a protest before the board. Tower Mfg. & Novelty Co. v. U. S. (1915) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 267.

A report made by an appraiser after the lapse of the 30 days fixed by law wherein reports must be made, is extraofficial, and is not entitled to be considered a part of the record in the case. Id.

—— Weight.—As to evidence required to convict of perjury at customhouse, see U. S. v. Wood (1840) 14 Pet. 430, 436, 10 L. Ed. 527.

As to an importation of mixed hides and skins, separation of the pieces weighing less than 12 pounds, which were free of duty, was made by weighers experienced in handling skins, who actually weighed only the pieces as to which they were in doubt. Held, that proof of the results by this method was sufficient to show the amount entitled to free entry. U. S. v. Helmrath (1906) 145 Fed. 36, 75 C. C. A. 261, affirming judgment Helmrath v. U. S. (C. C. 1904) 135 Fed. 912.

While commercial designation for the purpose of tariff classification is that known and used by importers and large dealers, and not that of the retail trade, a retail dealer is not for that reason incompetent to testify upon the subject, but the weight to be given to the testimony of any witness depends upon his intelligence and knowledge of the subject, and a retail dealer may, from the magnitude of his business and purchases, be better qualified to testify than some importers. Nordlinger v. U. S. (C. C. 1902) 115 Fed. 828, judgment reversed U. S. v. Nordlinger (1903) 121 Fed. 690, 58 C. C. A. 438, writ of certiorari denied Nordlinger v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 848, 191 U. S. 575, 48 L. Ed. 308.

Where importations of hides and skins, mixed together, were sorted by experienced men, who determined whether they were under or over 12 pounds, the dividing line between hides and skins, by handling alone, except with doubtful pieces, on which they used the scales, and it appeared that the pieces considered by them to be skins were treated as such, being sold on that basis, held that the evidence of these facts justified a finding that such pieces were actually skins, and not hides. Helmrath v. U. S. (C. C. 1904) 135 Fed. 912, judgment affirmed U. S. v. Helmrath (1906) 145 Fed. 36, 75 C. C. A. 261.

A series of sales or a single sale, or offers to sell in the usual course of trade, are among the best evidence of market value. In re Six Cases of Silk Ribbons (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 12,914.

Where only one witness has testified to the commercial designation of an article, this is insufficient evidence to prove an accepted use of the term in commerce. U. S. v. Oberle (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 527.

The leather bags of an importation were contained in cases that were not sent to the public stores for examination. The importer's contention was that the bags did not contain toilet articles, but were assessed for duty as if they did contain them. The goods having gone into consumption and the veracity of the witness who testified being unquestioned, it was sufficient proof of the actual character of the leather bags, when there was produced and submitted by the importer a memorandum known as a "stock list" that contained a complete and accurate description of the articles in question, with the cost and sale prices thereof. It was not necessary to corroborate this testimony by offering samples of the merchandise. Stern Bros. v. U. S. (1912) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 405 (citing U. S. v. Herrmann [1907] 154 Fed. 196, 83 C. C. A. 179); Bradley Martin v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 134.

One witness testified that the articles are porcelain pyrometer tubes and a previous decision of the board upon the rate of assessment was submitted at the hearing. The record in the former case was not put in evidence.

other witness was examined, and sample of the merchandise was in-duced in evidence or retained by e appraiser. There was a failure to stain the protest and the collector's sessment must stand as correct. U. v. Eytinge & Co. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. p. 266, distinguishing Herrmann v. S. (C. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 843, and ndegrift & Co. v. U. S. (1912) 3 . Cust. App. 219.

There was sufficient in the appraiss reports or the collector's letters, ken together, upon which to predicate a finding of fact and so to bring the particular statute into operation. Abraham & Straus v. U. S. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 311.

The testimony of a single witness unimpeached, whether or not corroborated by other circumstances in the case, may be held sufficient to sustain or reverse a judgment. Schmitt v. U. S. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 312.

Cited without definite application, Hilton v. Merritt (1884) 3 Sup. Ct. 548, 552, 110 U. S. 97, 28 L. Ed. 83.

5597. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, P.) Failure to submit to examination or to produce papers; false swearing; penalty; forfeiture.

P. If any person so cited to appear shall neglect or refuse to atnd, or shall decline to answer, or shall refuse to answer in writing ıy interrogatories, and subscribe his name to his deposition, or to roduce such papers when so required by a general appraiser, or a oard of general appraisers, or a local appraiser, or a collector, he ıall be liable to a penalty of not less than $20 nor more than $500; ıd if such person be the owner, importer, or consignee, the appraiseent which the Board of General Appraisers or local appraiser, or llector where there is no appraiser, may make of the merchandise ıall be final and conclusive; and any person who shall willfully and orruptly swear falsely on an examination before any general apraiser, or Board of General Appraisers, or local appraiser or colctor, shall be deemed guilty of perjury; and if he is the owner, imorter, or consignee, the merchandise shall be forfeited, or the value ıereof may be recovered from him. (38 Stat. 188.)

See notes to subdivisions B and M of this section, ante, §§ 5519, 5594.

This provision, originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 17, 26 Stat. 139, was designated as section 16, and re-enacted without other change, by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 100, which was substantially re-enacted by this act.

Provisions for additional duties on failure to submit books, etc., to inspection were made by subdivisions U, V, of this section, post, §§ 5600, 5601.

Notes of Decisions

Refusal to answer questions.—A colctor may, under his power to requidate duties, cite an importer to ppear for examination, and for his ailure to appear he is subject to the enalty imposed by this section. Sornn Hat Co. v. U. S. (1914) 215 'ed. 709, 132 C. C. A. 87, affirming ıdgment U. S. v. Calhoun (D. C. 911) 184 Fed. 499.

Where there was no evidence of any oncealment or fraud in the importaion, or of the absence of the ordiary means of ascertaining the maret value of the goods, and inquiry as o the contract price for the future devery of goods at a store in New York, ree of all charges was held to be rima facie incompetent, and no penlty was incurred by refusal to anwer. U. S. v. Doherty (D. C. 1886) 7 Fed. 730.

An importer refusing to answer a proper question respecting imported merchandise has not complied with the requirements of law, and is not entitled to a reappraisement, but the original appraisement becomes final and conclusive under section 17 of the act above named. (1899) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 456.

False swearing.—Importer, making affidavit that nothing had been concealed or suppressed whereby the United States might be defrauded, held guilty of perjury if he had knowledge of any document which, if known, would have led the United States to fix the customs duties higher than those based on the values stated in the consular invoice. U. S. v. Salen (D. C. 1914) 216 Fed. 420.

5598. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, Q.) Decisions of general appraiser; filing; publication of abstracts.

Q. All decisions of the general appraisers and of the boards of eneral appraisers, respecting values and rates of duty, shall be preserved and filed, and shall be open to inspection under proper regula tions to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury. All dec sions of the general appraisers shall be reported forthwith to the Sec retary of the Treasury and to the Board of General Appraisers o duty at the port of New York, and the report to the board shall b accompanied, whenever practicable, by samples of the merchandise i question, and it shall be the duty of the said board, under the direc tion of the Secretary of the Treasury, to cause an abstract to be mad and published of such decisions of the appraisers as they or he ma deem important, to be published either in full, or if full publicatio shall not be requested by the Secretary or by the board, then by a abstract containing a general description of the merchandise in ques tion, a statement of the facts upon which the decision is based, an of the value and rate of duty fixed in each case, with reference, when ever practicable, by number or other designation, to samples deposite in the place of samples at New York, and such abstracts shall b issued from time to time, at least once in each week, for the informa tion of customs officers and the public. (38 Stat. 188.)

See notes to subdivisions B and M of this section, ante, §§ 5519, 5594.

This provision, originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act o June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 18, 26 Stat. 139, was designated as section 17, an re-enacted without other change, by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 101, which was substantially re-enacted by this act.

Notes of Decisions

Decision as rule of action. — While the Treasury Department may accept decisions of the board of general appraisers as a rule of action to be followed in the classification of other importations, it is not compelled by law to do so. (1893) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 648.

The Secretary of the Treasury and collectors of customs are bound by classification decisions of the board of general appraisers, when unappealed from, only so far as such decisions affect the goods immediately before the board for classification. (1903) 25 Op. Atty. Gen. 81.

The Secretary of the Treasury has authority, and it is his duty, to instruct collectors of customs to wha extent, if at all, they are to be guided by the conclusions, general doctrines, and expressions contained in any opinion by the board of general appraisers, except as regards the merchandise concerning which the decision was made. Id.

Where there is conflict between a decision of the circuit court on appeal from the board of general appraisers, and a subsequent decision of the board, the Secretary of the Treasury should give greater consideration to the decision of the court. Id.

§ 5599. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, R.) Assessment of ad valorem duties.

R. Whenever imported merchandise is subject to an ad valorem rate of duty, or to a duty based upon or regulated in any manner by the value thereof, the duty shall be assessed upon the actual market value or wholesale price thereof, at the time of exportation to the United States, in the principal markets of the country from whence exported; that such actual market value shall be held to be the price at which such merchandise is freely offered for sale to all purchasers in said markets, in the usual wholesale quantities, and the price which the seller, shipper, or owner would have received, and was willing to receive, for such merchandise when sold in the ordinary course of trade in the usual wholesale quantities, including the value of all cartons, cases, crates, boxes, sacks, casks, barrels, hogsheads, bottles, jars, demijohns, carboys, and other containers or coverings, whether holding liquids or solids, and all other costs, charges, and expenses incident to placing the merchandise in condition, packed ready for shipment to the United States, and if there be used for covering or holding imported merchandise, whether dutiable or free, any unusual article or form designed for use otherwise than in the bona fide transportation of such merchandise to the United States, itional duty shall be levied and collected upon such material or cle at the rate to which the same would be subjected if separately orted. That the words "value," or "actual market value," or holesale price," whenever used in this Act, or in any law relating to appraisement of imported merchandise, shall be construed to be the ual market value or wholesale price of such, or similar merchandise nparable in value therewith, as defined in this Act. (38 Stat. 189.)

See notes to subdivisions B and M of this section, ante, §§ 5519, 5594.

These provisions were substituted for provisions of the same nature made by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 19, 26 Stat. 139, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 101.

Provisions of subdivision S of this section, relating to withdrawal of goods from bonded warehouse, are set forth post, § 5656.

The provisions of subdivision T of this section, relating to burden of proof in suits for enforcement of customs laws, are set forth post, § 5791.

Section 19 of the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, and section 11 of that act, were substitutes for R. S. § 2907, repealed by section 29 of that act, 26 Stat. 141; and the provisions as to the construction of the words "value" or "actual market value" were substitutes for the similar provisions of R. S. § 2952, also repealed by said section 29.

See notes to subdivision L of this section, ante, § 5592.

Notes of Decisions

Historical.
"Ad valorem" defined.
Market value in general.
Determination of value.
Coverings, containers, etc.
Containers of liquids.
Additional duty.
Costs, charges, and expenses.
Decisions under former statutes.
—— Increase in value and decrease in quantity.

. Historical.—Review of legislation ing the basis for estimating ad va- em duties, passed prior to Act rch 3, 1883 (22 Stat. 488). (1884) Op. Atty. Gen. 633.

2. "Ad valorem" defined.—The term d valorem," as used in the customs ws, does not always mean the actual lue of the article at the place of ex- rtation. U. S. v. Clement (D. C. 43) Fed. Cas. No. 14,815.

3. Market value in general.—The arket value of imported goods for rpose of assessing customs duties is be determined by the general mar- t value of goods of the same de- ription, without reference to the fact at the goods cost the particular im- rter a less amount because of spe- l advantages which he had. Muser Magone (1894) 155 U. S. 240, 15 p. Ct. 77, 39 L. Ed. 135.

"Actual market value" is the price which the manufacturer holds his ods for sale in ordinary course of ade. In re Six Cases of Silk Rib- ns (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 12,- 4.

"Market value" is the price at which e manufacturer holds the goods for le, and which purchasers are willing pay in the ordinary course of trade, d evidence is not admissible to show at there was not in fact such an ac- al market value. U. S. v. Sixteen ases of Silk Ribbons (D. C. 1870) ed. Cas. No. 16,301.

Where imported merchandise offered for entry has depreciated from its invoice value, the rate of duty is to be determined by considering not alone this section, but effect must be given section 5527, ante, and the duty should not be assessed in any case upon an amount less than the invoice or entered value. Ullman v. U. S. (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 61.

By current or actual market value or wholesale price, as used in the statute, is to be understood the amount of money the article commanded in the foreign market in the condition in which it is there customarily sold and purchased. (1884) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 633.

See note on "market value" under § 5591.

4. Determination of value.—The orders of the secretary of the treasury to a collector fixing the time at which the value of goods imported is to be taken, for the purpose of estimating ad valorem duties, are no justification to the collector as against third persons. Greely v. Thompson (1850) 51 U. S. (10 How.) 225, 13 L. Ed. 397; Maxwell v. Griswold (1850) 51 U. S. (10 How.) 242, 13 L. Ed. 405.

Where it was the duty of the appraiser, in order to enable him to fix the duty on certain imported merchandise, to inquire into the value thereof, he was entitled to the aid afforded in such inquiry by the production of a true and correct invoice. Hoeninghaus v. U. S. (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 305, 172 U. S. 622, 43 L. Ed. 576.

In determining the dutiable market value of imported merchandise, it is within the authority of the designated customs officers to inquire into the origin of disputed items claimed by the importers to be commissioned and charges, and to ascertain whether they are truly such, or part of the wholesale price which the importers paid for the merchandise. U. S. v. Kenworthy (1895) 68 Fed. 904, 16 C. C. A. 61, reversing judgment (D. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 570.

Under this section, requiring appraised value to include, besides coverings, etc., "all other costs, charges and expenses incident to placing the merchandise in condition, packed ready for shipment to the United States," an invoice item described as a "converter's commission" was so included. Held, that this inclusion was proper, so far as it covered converters' services in having the goods dyed and finished, and in the absence of evidence to the contrary it would be presumed to be correct as to any other elements of the item. N. Erlanger, Blumgart & Co. v. U. S. (1907) 154 Fed. 949, 83 C. C. A. 463, affirming judgment (C. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 576.

This section, providing in effect that imported merchandise subject to an ad valorem duty shall be valued in the condition in which it is imported, requires that the value of the added threads should be computed. Quaintance v. U. S. (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 215.

Under prior law, see (1890) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 602.

5. Coverings, containers, etc.—Chocolate and cocoa dutiable, including covering, see paragraph 231.

Cigarettes dutiable, including wrappers, see paragraph 185.

Duty on bottles at same rate as contents, etc., see § 5291, par. 83, ante.

Eggs frozen dutiable, including wrappers, see paragraph 263.

Peas in cartons, papers, etc., dutiable, including weight of covering, see paragraph 209.

Picture frames held not dutiable as coverings. See § 5291, par. 176, ante.

Poultry dutiable, including covering, see paragraph 229.

These spools were not designed for use otherwise than in the bona fide transportation of the artificial silk yarn which they contained, and as used they entered into the cost and value of their contents as appraised and assessed for duty. They are not "containers or coverings" as those terms appear in this section, and they are not ratable for duty as a separate entity under the fundamental rule that forbids double taxation. They are dutiable as a part of the contents themselves. Karthaus v. Frick (C. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 7,615; U. S. v. Ringk & Co. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 349; Same v. Vandegrift & Co. (1913) Id. 355.

Under Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 1, Schedule G, par. 281, providing for a duty on chocolate, and that "the weight and value of all coverings other than plain wooden shall be included in the dutiable weight and value" thereof, the dutiable value of chocolate packed in tin boxes should be arrived at by adding the number of pounds of the chocolate and the tin coverings and the outside wooden boxes in which it is packed for transit should not be included, pursuant to the method of estimating the value prescribed by this section, since the later statute plainly intends that the wooden coverings should be free from duty, and the interior coverings alone treated for duty purposes as if they were chocolate. U. S. v. Volkmann (1901) 107 Fed. 109, 46 C. C. A. 169, affirming judgment Volkman v. U. S. (C. C. 1900) 9[illegible] Fed. 264.

Ordinarily the containers, coverings and packing charges of goods subject to a specific duty are not dutiable unless expressly provided for by act of Congress, as in the case of bottles. James A. Hayes & Co. v. U. S. (1906) 150 Fed. 63, 80 C. C. A. 17, writ of certiorari denied U. S. v. James A. Hayes & Co. (1907) 28 Sup. Ct. 261, 207 U. S. 595, 52 L. Ed. 356.

Paper articles, resembling pocket books in outward appearance, contained pockets filled with needles, and they were completed structures before the needles were added. Held, that they were not dutiable as coverings of the needles, nor dutiable as entireties composed of paper and metal (needles), but that they and the needles they contained should be classified separately, as though imported independently. U. S. v. Dieckerhoff, Raffloer & Co. (1908) 160 Fed. 449, 87 C. C. A. 410, affirming judgment Dieckerhoff, Raffloer & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 957.

A charge of a specific duty upon an article in a particular form or vessel is a charge upon the whole article, as described, including the vessel or material described as containing it. Karthaus v. Frick (C. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 7,615.

This section, in requiring, as to imported merchandise subject to a duty regulated by its value, the inclusion in such value of the cost of the coverings, provides no method for apportioning the cost of the coverings when they contain merchandise of different kinds. Held, that such method of apportionment must be adopted as seems most equitable and just, and that, with regard to hosiery in lots of different values, contained in the same outside cases, where each dozen of the hosiery occupied about the same space, the cost of the cases should be distributed among the different lots according to the number of dozens of the hosiery and not according to value. Rice v. U. S. (C. C. 1892) 123 Fed. 195.

Tin match boxes, containing high-grade matches, and used to protect them from dampness and accidental ignition, and being of the usual quality and shape, and like those in which similar matches are sold abroad, will onsidered as designed for the bona transportation of the matches, and dutiable. Appeal of Slattery (C. 893) 59 Fed. 450.

ses containing needles, imported n entirety, and designed to be sold 'furnished needle cases," must be sified as integral articles, according their components of chief value. namaker v. Cooper (C. C. 1895) Fed. 465.

determining the market value of article purchased abroad in usual rings, such as oats in bags, the act ires that the value of the article whole, including the covering, shall aken, though the covering, if sep- ely imported, would be free of duty. S. v. Wood (C. C. 1898) 85 Fed.

cture frames of wood, fitted to the ures, are incidents of the pictures dutiable at the same rate, as part their value, and not separately, as ufactures of wood. Hensel v. U. (C. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 523.

lass jars containing preserves and ing one pint or less held not viols, dutiable as part of the market e of the merchandise as provid- y the terms of this section. Smith J. S. (C. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 757.

ottles holding more than one pint nerchandise subject to an ad valo- duty are not themselves subject to . Merck v. U. S. (C. C. 1899) Fed. 432.

s to importations of goods in bot- , which are dutiable under one pro- on of the tariff act and the bottles er another, the value of the cases taining the goods should be distrib- d between the bottles and their tents according to the value of each, value of the bottles for this pur- e being inclusive of the cost of ir fittings, consisting of corks, caps, sules, labels, and wiring. Francis Leggett & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1905) Fed. 970.

reappraisement return by a board general appraisers as to the value imported chocolate failed to state ether the value of the coverings was uded in the value stated in the re- n. Held, that it should be presum- that such value was included, not- hstanding that Tariff Act July 24, 7, c. 11, § 1, Schedule G, par. 281, vides that the dutiable value of colate shall not include the value plain wooden coverings. U. S. v. omas Leeming & Co. (C. C. 1907) Fed. 489.

he term "coverings" extends to con- ners of liquids and similar sub- nces, such as tins, kegs, jars, and rines. Kimpton v. U. S. (C. C. 08) 165 Fed. 236, 237, reversed 09) 171 Fed. 78, 96 C. C. A. 182, affirmed (1909) 171 Fed. 79, 96 C. A. 183.

elatin capsules containing a medi- cine are not "coverings," within the meaning of the tariff laws, not being for transportation, but an essential part of the article. U. S. v. Lehn & Fink (C. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 171.

The clause "shall not be dutiable unless their contents are dutiable" in a proviso to paragraph 195, Act 1909, does not affirmatively or otherwise impose any duties. U. S. v. Matagrin (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 309.

The proviso to paragraph 195, Act 1909, is perhaps broader than it was necessary to make it, but it is apt nevertheless, and it is held to have been intended to save for operation this section, making dutiable other containers than those enumerated in paragraph 195. Id.

In view of the legislative history of the clause and its judicial interpretation, and in view of the common significance of the language employed, the cylindrical containers as described in paragraph 151, § 1, Act 1909, cannot be taken to remove small tin cans with contents of tomatoes and of tomato sauce from the operation of this section, though these tins are cylindrical in shape and they were dutiable ad valorem under this section. U. S. v. Garramone (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 30.

Where the containers are cylindrical iron drums that it is necessary to cut into two parts in order to remove their contents, and when so cut in two appear to have no value and do not enter into or become a part of the merchandise of this country for any purpose whatever, they are not dutiable under paragraph 151, Act 1909, as cylindrical or tubular tanks or vessels for containing purposes and separately from their contents, but rather as usual containers possessing no value apart from their contents, and their value should be assessed along with the contained merchandise at ad valorem rates under paragraph 3, pursuant to this section. U. S. v. Braun Chemical Co. (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 57.

The provisions of existing law relative to containers impose a duty, for example, on boxes, as boxes alone, when these are imported as merchandise. When they are brought in as usual containers of ad valorem goods they are subject to the specific administrative provision applicable to them when used in that way; and boxes covered with surface-coated paper and composed wholly or in chief value of paper or papier-mâché, containing nettings, are dutiable under this section, as usual containers. Spielman v. U. S. (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 61.

This section makes provision for a duty on containers, but paragraph 195 of Act 1909 carries a specific provision for certain sorts of containers, and lacquered metal boxes, with compartments and hinged lids, containing paints, though the lids be used as palettes, are dutiable under that paragraph. Illfelder & Co. v. U. S. (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 299.

On a review of the decisions and after allowing due weight to the fact that there has been a legislative adoption of a long-continuing customs practice, it is held that the value of dutiable coverings should be added in determining the proper dividend to be used for ascertaining the rate of duty. The value of the coverings should be added to the value per se of the cement; but in the absence of express provision, may not be considered in determining the weight of the merchandise. U. S. v. Francklyn (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 54.

The legislative history of this paragraph makes it clear that containers under paragraph 195, Act 1909, are such as are ordinarily employed in the transportation of merchandise. The goods of the importation are not containers in that sense. Woolworth & Co. v. U. S. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 242.

The importer of woolens incurred certain costs for their inspection and damping in London and the collector added these costs to the entered value. In this he exceeded his authority. These costs so incurred are not charges and expenses incident to placing the merchandise in condition packed ready for shipment to the United States, as provided for in this section. U. S. v. Van Ingen & Co. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 432, distinguishing Same v. Spingarn Bros. (1913) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 2.

The dutiable value of dry colors, or paints in the form of a fine powder, imported in air-tight kegs, barrels, casks, and tins, includes the value of the containers under Act 1897, as shown by this section. Cassela Color Co. v. U. S. (1915) 6 Ct. Cust. App. 405, distinguishing Austin, Nichols & Co. v. Same (1909) 171 Fed. 79, 96 C. C. A. 183, and Austin v. Same (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 465.

6. Containers of liquids.—Glass bottles filled with merchandise liable to ad valorem duties cannot be regarded as "coverings" in view of the elaborate provision made by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 348, 28 Stat. 508, for a specific tax on glass bottles, filled or unfilled, whether their contents are subject to ad valorem or specific duties. U. S. v. Austin Nicholls & Co. (1902) 22 Sup. Ct. 918, 186 U. S. 298, 46 L. Ed. 1173.

This section does not apply to filled bottles containing olive oil, which is subject to a specific duty, though filled bottles are specifically enumerated as subject to an ad valorem duty in Tariff Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 1, Schedule B, par. 99. James A. Hayes & Co. v. U. S. (1906) 150 Fed. 63, 80 C. C. A. 17, writ of certiorari denied U. S. v. James A. Hayes & Co. (1907) 28 Sup. Ct. 261, 207 U. S. 595, 52 L. Ed. 356.

The value of stone bottles filled with ad valorem goods (ink) should not be added to the dutiable value of their contents, to make up the dutiable value of the imported merchandise; such bottles not being "coverings," within the meaning of the act. Kimpton v. U. S. (1909) 171 Fed. 78, 96 C. C. A. 182, reversing judgment (C. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 236. See (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 477.

The provision that the value of "cases * * * and similar coverings" shall be added to the dutiable value of their contents includes tin cans and stoneware receptacles. Austin, Nichols & Co. v. U. S. (1909) 171 Fed. 79, 96 C. C. A. 183, affirming judgment Kimpton v. Same (C. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 236.

The duties on filled glass bottles, prescribed by Act March 3, 1883, c. 121, Schedule B, 22 Stat. 495, were not repealed by the provision that the duty on ad valorem goods shall be assessed upon their actual market value, including the value of "all cartons, cases, crates, boxes, sacks, and coverings of any kind." U. S. v. Austin Nicholls & Co. (1902) 22 Sup. Ct. 918, 186 U. S. 298, 46 L. Ed. 1173.

Containers of liquids or semiliquids do not come within the descriptive language "cartons, cases, crates, boxes, and coverings of any kind." Austin v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 465.

The construction of section 19, Customs Administrative Act 1890, has been established in the light of the rule ejusdem generis, and the containers named have been limited to coverings of dry or solid merchandise. U. S. v. Peabody & Co. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 130.

7. Additional duty.—Small glass jars without necks, having straight inside walls and metal tops, are not unusual coverings for Roquefort cheese, nor can they be classified as bottles or bottle glassware, under paragraph 103 of Act Oct. 1, 1890. U. S. v. Leggett (1895) 66 Fed. 300, 13 C. C. A. 448.

Coverings or cases made of silk, leather, or paper, and containing needles, such cases being ornamental articles, arranged as permanent receptacles for the needles, are dutiable according to their component material of chief value, as manufactures of silk, leather, or paper, and are not entitled to free entry, as usual coverings of the needles, under this section. U. S. v. Mathews (1897) 78 Fed. 345, 24 C. C. A. 127.

The "additional duty" provided for unusual coverings used "otherwise than in the bona fide transportation" of their contents to the United States is not a substitute for the usual duty on coverings which accrues by including their cost in the dutiable value of their contents, as also provided in said section; but both duties should be imposed, the latter because the coverings subserve a use in transportation, and the former because they subserve an additional use after transportation. U. S. v. Park & Tilford (1907) 152 Fed. 142, 81 C. C. A. 360, reversing judgment (C. C. 1905) 142 Fed. 202.

heap cups and saucers were import- in paper boxes, closed by brass ps, each box containing only a sin- pair, wrapped in tissue paper. Held, er the provision, that the coverings imported goods designed for use er than in the bona fide transporta- of the goods shall pay a duty, if coverings were intended for use in nsportation only, and for no other , and were not intended to enhance value, increase the sale, or facilitate selling, they were free; otherwise, y were subject to duty. Meyer v. pper (C. C. 1890) 44 Fed. 55.

Vooden cases with cardboard parti- ns, in which opal glass bottles were ked and imported, are not subject to litional duty as "unusual coverings," as designed for any other use than bona fide transportation of said bot- s. U. S. v. Richards (C. C. 1895) Fed. 730.

Vhere needles not subject to duty imported in cases of a form in ich they have been imported for m 16 to 20 years, the court will not justified in finding that such cases re designed for a different use. erefore they are admissible free, and subject to duty according to the terials of which they are made. tthews v. U. S. (C. C. 1896) 72 Fed.

Brass boxes for mourning pins, ough costing more than the pins, held be not unusual coverings, and not erefore subject to separate or addi- nal duty. Dieckerhoff v. U. S. (C. 1897) 84 Fed. 443.

Glass tubes, in which chloride of ethyl, ed by surgeons and dentists as a al anæsthetic, is imported, are so ade that the liquid, which is very latile, can be directly applied there- om in the form of a spray or vapor to e part to be treated, being volatilized the warmth of the hand. After the ntents are exhausted, the tubes are orthless, and are thrown away. Held, at the fact of such use does not ren- r the tubes separately dutiable as an usual form of holding or covering de- gned for use otherwise than in the na fide transportation of the liquid. re Hempstead (C. C. 1899) 96 Fed. .

Certain patent tin cases or chests own as "Toohey's Patent Excelsior a Caddies," which are used as cov- ings in the transportation of tea, and hich, after having subserved that pur- se, are used, and are designed to be ed, for other purposes, are subject to ditional duty. Jackson v. Siegfried C. C. 1901) 126 Fed. 837.

Where boxes used as coverings for ported tobacco were not the usual verings in which such tobacco was ported, but were of no value, and ere thrown away or destroyed after e tobacco had been removed, they ere not taxable under additional duty provision. Laverge v. U. S. (C. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 481.

So-called furnished needle cases, consisting of books or cases for holding needles during transportation and while the needles in them are being used, are not usual coverings, being used otherwise than in bona fide transportation of the needles. Guthman, Solomons & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 148 Fed. 332.

Congress will not be presumed to have intended an importer could bring in free of duty durable metal drums of considerable value containing creosote oil, and mingle these drums when emptied of their contents with other articles of commerce in the trade of the United States; and such metal drum containers are dutiable. Pacific Creosoting Co. v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 312.

To be admitted free of duty as a container of merchandise on which a specific duty is imposed, an article should not only be a container, but should be the usual container employed in transporting the goods. The importer failed to overcome by a preponderance of evidence the presumption of the correctness of the collector's finding that the beams in question were unusual containers, if containers they were, and therefore that presumption must prevail. Further, it is admitted that the beams were designed for some other use than the bona fide transportation of the merchandise to the United States. Under such circumstances additional duty would have been properly assessable on the beams even if they had been within the category of containers described by this section. U. S. v. Stirn (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 62.

The law does not contemplate that these coverings, whose only design, purpose, or use other than for transportation is for displaying the harmonicas, should pay additional duty. The provision for additional duty must be taken to be intended to prevent the importation, under the guise of coverings or containers, of unusual articles having a substantial, material, and valuable use for other purposes than merely holding or covering merchandise in the bona fide transportation thereof. U. S. v. Hohner (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 122.

8. Costs, charges, and expenses.—Where an importer has caused rice purchased abroad by him to be ground before shipment into granules of sufficient fineness to entitle it, under the rulings of the treasury department, to be entered at a lower rate of duty than unground rice, the cost of granulation forms part of the dutiable value of the article, and cannot be deducted therefrom by the importer as a nondutiable charge. Bullock v. Magone (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 191.

A royalty fee paid for use of machinery, which formed no part of its price held not a part of its dutiable value. U. S. v. Leigh (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 764, 765.

The export tax imposed by a foreign government is not one of the "costs, charges, and expenses" referred to in this section. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 108.

9. Decisions under former statutes.—See Sampson v. Peaslee (1857) 20 How. 571, 575, 15 L. Ed. 1022; Knight v. Schell (1860) 65 U. S. (24 How.) 526, 16 L. Ed. 760 (affirming [C. C. 1860] Fed. Cas. No. 7,887); Belcher v. Linn (1860) 65 U. S. (24 How.) 533, 16 L. Ed. 758; Kimball v. Collector (1870) 77 U. S. (10 Wall.) 436, 19 L. Ed. 964; Arthur v. Goddard (1877) 96 U. S. 145, 24 L. Ed. 814; Schmidt v. Badger (1883) 1 Sup. Ct. 530, 533, 107 U. S. 85, 27 L. Ed. 328; Arthur v. Pastor (1883) 109 U. S. 139, 3 Sup. Ct. 96, 27 L. Ed. 882; Oberteuffer v. Robertson (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 462, 466, 467, 116 U. S. 499, 29 L. Ed. 706 (reversing judgment [C. C. 1885] 24 Fed. 852); Robertson v. Downing (1888) 127 U. S. 607, 8 Sup. Ct. 1328, 1329, 32 L. Ed. 269; Badger v. Cusimano (1889) 130 U. S. 39, 9 Sup. Ct. 431, 432, 32 L. Ed. 851; Robertson v. Frank Bros. Co. (1889) 132 U. S. 17, 10 Sup. Ct. 5, 33 L. Ed. 236; Same v. Bradbury (1889) 132 U. S. 491, 10 Sup. Ct. 158, 33 L. Ed. 405; U. S. v. Kenworthy (1895) 68 Fed. 904, 16 C. C. A. 61 (reversing judgment [D. C. 1894] 59 Fed. 570); Magone v. Origet (1895) 70 Fed. 778, 17 C. C. A. 363; Benkard v. Schell (C. C.) Fed. Cas. No. 1,307; Tappan v. U. S. (C. C. 1822) Fed. Cas. No. 13,749; U. S. v. May, Id. 15,752; Karthaus v. Frick (C. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 7,615; Armstrong v. Hoyt (C. C. 1841) Fed. Cas. No. 544a; Hoffman v. Williams (C. C. 1842) Fed. Cas. No. 6,579; Alfonso v. U. S. (C. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 188; Grinnell v. Lawrence (C. C. 1848) Fed. Cas. No. 5,831; Brune v. Marriott (C. C. 1849) Fed. Cas. No. 2,052; Wilbur v. Lawrence (C. C. 1851) Fed. Cas. No. 17,635; Wilson v. Maxwell, Id. 17,824; Norcross v. Greely (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 10,294; Barnard v. Morton (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 1,005; Griswold v. Maxwell, Id. 5,838; Gant v. Peaslee (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 5,212; Millar v. Millar, Id. 9,546; Munsell v. Maxwell, Id. 9,932; Vaccari v. Same, Id. 16,810; Warren v. Peaslee, Id. 17,198; Forman v. Peaslee (C. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 4,941; Gibb v. Washington (C. C. 1858) Fed. Cas. No. 5,380; Riess v. Redfield (C. C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 11,821; Bliss v. Same (C. C. 1860) Fed. Cas. No. 1,549; Davidson v. Draper (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 3,604; Cobb v. Hamlin (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 2,922; Hutton v. Schell, Id. 6,961; Harding v. Whitney (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 6,052; Saxonville Mills v. Russell (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 118, 122, 124 (judgment affirmed [1885] 6 Sup. Ct. 237, 116 U. S. 13, 29 L. Ed. 554); Russell v. Worthington (C. C. 1885) 23 Fed. 248; Meyers v. Shurtleff, Id. 577; Glanz v. Spalding (C. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 20; Tryon v. Hartranft (C. C. 1887) 31 Fed. 443; Rosenstein v. Magone (C. C. 1888) 34 Fed. 120 (judgment affirmed Magone v. Rosenstein [1892] 12 Sup. Ct. 391, 142 U. S. 604, 35 L. Ed. 1130); Bullock v. Magone (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 191; Martindale v. Cadwalader (C. C. 1889) 42 Fed. 403; Winters v. Same, Id. 405; Stephenson v. Cooper (C. C. 1890) 44 Fed. 53; Ullmann v. U. S. (C. C. 1910) 177 Fed. 567; U. S. v. Sixty-Five Packages of Glass (D. C. 1838) Fed. Cas. No. 16,305a; Same v. Clement (D. C. 1843) Fed. Cas. No. 14,815; Barnard v. Morton (D. C. 1850) Fed. Cas. No. 1,006; U. S. v. Eighty-Two Packages of Glass (D. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 15,038; Same v. Two Thousand One Hundred and Seventeen Bushels of Malt (D. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 224; Same v. Thurber (D. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 56; (1884) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 633; (1885) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 288; (1886) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 468; (1886) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 483; (1886) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 510; (1886) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 515; (1887) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 18; (1890) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 543.

10. —— Increase in value and decrease in quantity.—See § 5619, post.

Ad valorem duties are to be estimated on the quantity which arrives, and not upon the quantity shipped, even under provision (see section 5527, ante) "that under no circumstances shall the duty be assessed upon an amount less than the invoice value," these words referring to the price, and not to the quantity. Marriott v. Brune (1850) 50 U. S. (9 How.) 619, 13 L. Ed. 282; U. S. v. Southmayd (1850) 50 U. S. (9 How.) 637, 13 L. Ed. 290; Lawrence v. Caswell (1851) 54 U. S. (13 How.) 488, 14 L. Ed. 235; Schuchardt v. Lawrence (C. C. 1856) Fed. Cas. No. 12,484; Austin v. Peaslee (C. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 666; U. S. v. Nash (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 15,856; Weaver & Sterry v. Saltonstall (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 493.

And this, even if the probable loss from leakage and drainage was taken into consideration, in fixing the price abroad. U. S. v. Southmayd (1850) 50 U. S. (9 How.) 637, 13 L. Ed. 290.

Duty should be charged only on quantity which arrives here. Marriott v. Brune (1850) 9 How. 619, 632, 13 L. Ed. 282; Weaver & Sterry v. Saltonstall (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 493.

Sugar imported from Brazil, which has diminished in weight by a decrease of moisture, but improved in quality thereby, so that the quantity received here is worth as much as the original quantity shipped in Brazil, may be appraised for duties according to the grade of the sugar as it is received here, instead of its grade as it was shipped n Brazil, since the article upon which must be laid is that which is "im- ed." American Sugar-Refining Co. . S. (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 830, 181 U. 10, 45 L. Ed. 1024, affirming judg- t (1900) 99 Fed. 716, 40 C. C. A.

the appraisal for duty, under Act 4, of Brazilian sugar bought and ped when green, and which neces- y loses weight and increases in val- per pound, by drainage during the ge, such increase in value may prop- be taken into account. The pro- n of section 19 of Customs Admin- tive Act 1890, that, where merchan- is subject to an ad valorem duty, duty shall be assessed upon its val- n the principal markets of the coun- from whence imported, "and in the ition in which such merchandise is e bought and sold for exportation," ot intended to limit the appraiser n condition which existed at the of the purchase, but was immedi- y to become altered until a new lition and value were reached, but, hown by the context, is intended to y to the condition of preparedness shipment of the merchandise when ght; it being further provided that to its value in the condition bought shall be added the cost of coverings, and all other costs, charges, and expenses incident to placing it in condition for shipment. American Sugar Refining Co. v. U. S. (1900) 99 Fed. 716, 40 C. C. A. 84, affirming judgment (C. C. 1899) 91 Fed. 646, and affirmed (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 830, 181 U. S. 610, 45 L. Ed. 1024.

Duties are to be paid only on the actual quantity of merchandise which is imported and not on the original quantity bought and shipped. But, where merchandise has shrunk in weight, and such shrinkage has added a percentage of value, so that the actual quantity which arrives is worth more per pound in the markets of the country from which it came than the original quantity thereof bought and shipped was worth, the actual quantity should be appraised at its increased value per pound, and duty assessed on the value so appraised, although the invoice describes the original quantity as worth less per pound. Reiss v. Magone (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 105.

Cited without definite application, Cramer v. Arthur (1880) 102 U. S. 612, 26 L. Ed. 259.

600. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, U.) Additional duties on failure of seller, shipper, consignor, or manufacturer to submit books, etc., to inspection.

J. If any person, persons, corporations, or other bodies, selling, ping, consigning, or manufacturing merchandise exported to the ited States, shall fail or refuse to submit to the inspection of a y accredited investigating officer of the United States, when so uested to do, any or all of his books, records, or accounts per- ing to the value or classification of such merchandise, then the retary of the Treasury, in his discretion, is authorized while such ure or refusal continues to levy an additional duty of 15 per centum valorem on all such merchandise when imported into the United tes: Provided, however, That such additional duties shall not be osed in case the laws of the country of exportation provide for administration, by its duly authorized officers, of oaths to invoices, statements of cost, before certification by consuls, and for punish- nt for false swearing under said oaths, whenever consuls are di- ted by the Secretary of State, under section twenty-eight hundred sixty-two of the Revised Statutes, to require such oaths before tification of the invoices. (38 Stat. 189.)

See notes to subdivisions B and M of this section, ante, §§ 5519, 5594.

R. S. § 2862, mentioned in this section, is set forth ante, § 5546.

Provisions for additional duties when appraised value exceeds declared value were made by subdivision I of this section, ante, § 5527.

601. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, V.) Additional duties on failure of importer to submit books, etc., to inspection.

. If any person, persons, corporations, or other bodies, engaged he importation of merchandise into the United States or engaged dealing with such imported merchandise, shall fail or refuse to mit to the inspection of a duly accredited investigating officer of United States, upon request so to do from the chief officer of toms at the port where such merchandise is entered, any or all his books, records, or accounts pertaining to the value or classifi- ion of any such imported merchandise, then the Secretary of the Treasury, in his discretion, is authorized while such failure or refusal continues, to assess additional duty of 15 per centum on all merchandise consigned to or imported by, or shipped, or intended for delivery, to such person, persons, corporations, or other bodies so failing or refusing. (38 Stat. 190.)

See notes to subdivisions B and M of this section, ante, §§ 5519, 5594.

§ 5602. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, X.) Allowance for shortage, or damage; abandonment of goods.

X. No allowance shall be made in the estimation and liquidation of duties for shortage or nonimportation caused by decay, destruction, or injury to fruit or other perishable articles imported into the United States whereby their commercial value has been destroyed, unless under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury. Proof to ascertain such destruction or nonimportation shall be lodged with the collector of customs of the port where such merchandise has been landed, or the person acting as such, within ten days after the landing of such merchandise. The provisions hereof shall apply whether or not the merchandise has been entered, and whether or not the duties have been paid or secured to be paid, and whether or not a permit of delivery has been granted to the owner or consignee. Nor shall any allowance be made for damage, but the importers may within ten days after entry abandon to the United States all or any portion of goods, wares, or merchandise of every description included in any invoice and be relieved from the payment of duties on the portion so abandoned: Provided, That the portion so abandoned shall amount to 10 per centum or more of the total value or quantity of the invoice. The right of abandonment herein provided for may be exercised whether the goods, wares, or merchandise have been damaged or not, or whether or not the same have any commercial value: Provided further, That section twenty-eight hundred and ninety-nine of the Revised Statutes, relating to the return of packages unopened for appraisement, shall in no wise prohibit the right of importers to make all needful examinations to determine whether the right to abandon accrues, or whether by reason of total destruction there is a nonimportation in whole or in part. All merchandise abandoned to the Government by the importers shall be delivered by the importers thereof at such place within the port of arrival as the chief officer of customs may direct, and on the failure of the importers to comply with the direction of the collector or the chief officer of customs, as the case may be, the abandoned merchandise shall be disposed of by the customs authorities under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, at the expense of such importers. Where imported fruit or perishable goods have been condemned at the port of original entry within ten days after landing, by health officers or other legally constituted authorities, the importers or their agents shall, within twenty-four hours after such condemnation, lodge with the collector, or the person acting as collector, of said port, notice thereof in writing, together with an invoice description and the quantity of the articles condemned, their location, and the name of the vessel in which imported. Upon receipt of said notice the collector, or person acting as collector, shall at once cause an investigation and a report to be made in writing by at least two customs officers touching the identity and quantity of fruit or perishable goods condemned, and unless proof to ascertain the shortage or nonimportation of fruit or perishable goods shall have been lodged as herein required, or if the importer or his agent fails to notify the collector of such condemnation proceedings as herein provided, proof of such shortage or nonimportation shall not be med established and no allowance shall be made in the liquidation duties chargeable thereon. (38 Stat. 190.)

See notes to subdivisions B and M of this act, ante, §§ 5519, 5594.

These provisions, as originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 23, 26 Stat. 140, were as follows:

"No allowance for damage to goods, wares and merchandise imported into the United States shall hereafter be made in the estimation and liquidation of duties thereon; but the importer thereof may, within ten days after entry, abandon to the United States all or any portion of the goods, wares, and merchandise included in any invoice, and be relieved from the payment of duties on the portion so abandoned: Provided that the portion so abandoned shall amount to ten per centum or over of a total value or quantity of the invoice; and the property so abandoned shall be sold by public auction or otherwise disposed of for the account and credit of the United States under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe."

That section was amended by Act May 17, 1898, c. 341, 30 Stat. 417, by adding thereto a provision as follows:

"All merchandise so abandoned by the importer thereof shall be delivered by such importer at such place within the port of arrival as the chief officer of customs may direct, and on the failure of the importer to comply with the directions of the collector in this respect the abandoned merchandise shall be disposed of by the collector at the expense of such importer."

Said section 23 of the Customs Administrative Act was further amended, and designated as section 22, by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 102, which was re-enacted in the same language by this act.

R. S. § 2899, mentioned in this section, is set forth ante, § 5589.

Notes of Decisions

llowance for shortage or damage in eral.—See § 5619, post.

'antage in case of ale, see paragraph .

hat portion of a cargo of pine ap- found decayed on arrival at port not dutiable, though the loss was than 10 per cent. of the total in- ce. Lawder v. Stone (1902) 23 Sup. 79, 81, 187 U. S. 281, 47 L. Ed. 178.

he rule that fruit imported in a ten and wholly worthless condition s not constitute dutiable merchan- applies as well to fruit in packages to fruit in bulk, and in the assess- nt of duty on fruit imported in pack- s allowance should be made for the ayed portions. Stone v. Shallus 06) 143 Fed. 486, 74 C. C. A. 506, rming judgment (C. C. 1905) 137 l. 674.

'he rule that fruit imported in a rot- and wholly worthless condition does constitute dutiable merchandise ap- s as well to fruit in packages as to it in bulk; and in the assessment of y on fruit imported in packages al- ance should be made for the de- ed portions, even though not separat- from the sound, but all being sold ether at auction. U. S. v. Villari, chell & Co. (1908) 160 Fed. 77, 87 C. A. 233.

'he terms "quantity" and "whole ntity," in Schedule M, § 2504, R. S., ating to duties on imported fruit, l making an allowance for loss on ay which exceeds 25 per cent. of "quantity," relate to the whole im- tation of fruit, and not to the quan- y in each particular package dam- d. Scattergood v. Tutton (C. C. 80) 2 Fed. 28.

Where a part of a cargo of cocoanuts ported in bulk were found rotten and broken so as not to be countable, held, that this destruction of specific items of the invoice was not a damage to the merchandise for which no allowance could be made if under 10 per cent., but that duties could only be exacted on the number actually received, excluding the worthless débris. Shaw v. Dix (C. C. 1896) 72 Fed. 166, 168.

The rule that the duty on fruit should be assessed only on the sound and merchantable portion, allowance being made for such as is rendered worthless, and unsalable through decay, held to apply to fruit in packages, even though the decayed portion is not separated, but, after being removed for the purpose of estimating its quantity, is replaced in the package and sold with the good fruit. Courtin, Golden & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 551.

The facts disclosing that 29 cases and 59 boxes of glacé fruit, more than 10 per cent. of the entire consignment, were entered in a wholly worthless condition, there was no importation as to this portion of the merchandise, and the importer complying with all conditions as to recovery is entitled to the relief he demands. U. S. v. Habicht (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 53.

Merchandise the usefulness of which as a commercial commodity has been entirely destroyed and that has been condemned and destroyed as unsanitary is not an article of merchandise of value imported into this country and can have no dutiable status. Id.

A cargo, or part thereof, so far destroyed as to be of no commercial value at the time the importation is brought within the customs district is not, as to the destroyed portion, deemed an "importation of merchandise" within the tariff laws of the United States, and therefore no duty accrues or can be collected thereon. U. S. v. Shallus (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 332.

The section makes express provision for an allowance in the estimation and liquidation of duties upon fruit, when by reason of decay, destruction, or injury during transportation there is a shortage or in fact a nonimportation thereof, its commercial value being destroyed. Vandegrift & Co. v. U. S. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 198.

What allowance, if any, should be made on an importation is primarily a question of fact to be determined like any other relevant fact in the case. U. S. v. Zito (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 209, citing U. S. v. Shallus (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 332.

The section, relating to allowances on nonimportations, was not founded upon any previous tariff act, but originated in the absence of any express statute levying duty upon the described commodities. U. S. v. Zito (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 209, citing Lawder v. Stone (1902) 23 Sup. Ct. 79, 187 U. S. 281, 47 L. Ed. 178.

The section was intended to provide and does provide for an allowance in the estimation and liquidation of duties upon fruit when, by reason of decay, destruction, or injury during transportation, a shortage occurs, resulting, in fact, in a nonimportation, the commercial value of a designated and reasonably ascertainable quantity of the goods having been destroyed. Harris & Co. v. U. S. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 265.

From the record it appears that certain fruit was condemned on August 12th. The claim for an allowance on the fruit so condemned was made prior thereto, on August 11th. But the statute requires notice shall be given by the importer in such cases after, not before, condemnation. The notice was insufficient. Steiner v. U. S. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 24.

The importation of grapes for the Boston market were entered partly at Boston, partly at New York for transshipment thence to Boston. Were the grapes immediately transshipped from New York "landed" there or in Boston? The fair inference from the acts and regulations that govern is that the "landing" referred to in subsection 22 of section 28, Act 1909, is the landing at the port of actual destination; in this case, at the port of Boston. U. S. v. Harris & Co. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 116.

The importation was of dates and a part of the cargo was condemned and destroyed at the port of entry. Regardless of the regulations promulgated by the Secretary of the Treasury and putting aside the question of the validity or of the application here of these regulations, the importer is without remedy for the reason there was a failure to comply with the mandatory requirements of the statute itself. Houlder v. U. S. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App 247, citing Lauricella v. U. S. (1913 4 Ct. Cust. App. 253.

There was such a shortage or nonim portation here that as to that it was no to be deemed "an importation of mer chandise." U. S. v. Bush & Co. (1913 4 Ct. Cust. App. 519.

To protect the revenues, claims c this character should be clearly mad out. U. S. v. Fenton, Jr. (1914) 5 C Cust. App. 173, citing U. S. c. Brow (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 189.

Where the importers of grapes, par of which are claimed to have been rot ten, did not comply with this sectio and the regulation of the Secretary c the Treasury that notice of an intentio to claim an allowance must be file with the collector within 48 hours afte the arrival of the importing vessel, th allowance will not be made. Harris c Co. v. U. S. (1915) 6 Ct. Cust. App 420.

Where claim was seasonably filed an no evidence to support it was filed wit the collector within 10 days after th arrival of the importing vessel, as re quired by this section and regulatio the allowance will not be made; an the fact that the appraiser made no re port on the claim to the collector, as re quired by regulation, does not relie the claimant of the duty to make proo within 10 days and allow him to make i afterwards. Id.

The terms "quantity" and "whol quantity," as employed in Schedule M (R. S. [2d Ed.] p. 476), are not to b understood as covering all the frui imported in any one vessel shipped t one consignee, if coming from differen consignors. Each consignment, not onl from one party, but of each separat kind of fruit specified in the statut is to be considered as the "quantity, and as the "whole quantity," therei specified. (1881) 17 Op. Atty. Gen 203.

It is not the intent of Congress tha the United States should in any cas exact as duties an amount greater tha the value of the property imported (1896) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 326.

Duty paid upon lead contained i certain imported copper ores, which lead entirely disappeared in the smelt ing of the ore, cannot be refunded (1909) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 354.

—— Time of destruction of goods.— The general principle of law is tha duty attaches to imports immediatel after their arrival within the limits o our ports, and while to ascertain th condition of perishable merchandise w may perhaps go beyond the date whe the vessel containing the goods drop anchor, it would be going very far t go beyond the date of actual entry o the goods. G. Cuccio Di G. & Co. v U. S. (C. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 304.

An importation of lemons was not en tered until six days after arrival, an not examined until they had lain on dock for a week. Held that, as much probably occurred by rotting during period, the loss discovered at such nination is not a sufficient basis for rmining the condition of the fruit at time of importation. Id.

ne destruction or loss of the whole or part of a cargo of imported merndise after it enters the line of the oms district and before it is uned from the vessel or entered or endered from the custody of the oms is not thereby exempted from payment of duties, unless by reason express statute or regulation and n as provided in that statute or regulon. U. S. v. Shallus (1911) 2 Ct. t. App. 332.

o allowance can be made for goods have gone into the possession of importer and that are later conned by a board of health. U. S. v. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 209.

he evidence here tends to show there a shortage, but entirely fails to w that the packages when landed e in the condition they were found he time they reached the importers' e of business. U. S. v. Brown & (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 102, citing (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 189.

he destruction of goods after their ortation, although no bond has been cuted, does not absolve the importer the consignee from his personal liay to the government for the payt of duties. Wolfe v. Howard Ins. (1847) 3 N. Y. Super. Ct. (1 Sandf.)

bandonment of goods—Decisions er prior statutes.—See U. S. v. e Case Paintings, Engravings, Manufactures of Metal (1900) 99 l. 426, 39 C. C. A. 586; (1896) 21 Atty. Gen. 326; (1899) 22 Op. y. Gen. 542.

hat portion of a cargo of pineapples ch on arrival within the limits of a t of entry of the United States was nd to be so decayed as to be utterly rthless is not dutiable, though the s was less than 10 per cent. of the al invoice, as entirely worthless ares are not within the provision as abandonment. Lawder v. Stone 02) 23 Sup. Ct. 79, 187 U. S. 281, L. Ed. 178, reversing judgment ne v. Lawder (1900) 101 Fed. 710, C. C. A. 621.

Vindow glass broken in transit is dable as window glass, unless there an abandonment to the government. U. S. v. Bache (1894) 59 Fed. 2, 8 C. C. A. 258, reversing In re che (C. C. 1893) 54 Fed. 371.

here is not such a difference beeen fruit imported in bulk and that ported in packages as that this sen, relating to the abandonment of naged merchandise, should apply in e latter case, though not in the mer. The rule that fruit separable m the whole quantity, which by decay has lost all value, should be considered as not imported, and that duty should be assessed only on the quantity arriving in good condition, applies to fruit imported in packages as well as in bulk, and without regard to whether the entire package is landed in a worthless state. Stone v. Shallus (C. C. 1905) 137 Fed. 674, judgment affirmed (1906) 143 Fed. 486, 74 C. C. A. 506.

The provision forbidding an allowance for damage in the assessment of duties, unless the loss exceeds 10 per cent. of the invoice, does not apply in the case of decayed fruit which is in a wholly worthless condition when imported; and the wholly decayed fruit imported in packages may be culled out, and duty paid on the merchantable quantity remaining, regardless of its percentage. Stone v. Shallus (1906) 143 Fed. 486, 74 C. C. A. 506.

Two cargoes of cocoanuts in bulk were imported, invoiced at specified prices per thousand. On discharging, the number of cocoanuts fell short of the number stated in the invoice, the missing quantity appearing to be contained in a mass of broken and rotten cocoanuts not countable. Held, that such shortage, resulting from the entire destruction of specific items of the invoice, was not a damage to the merchandise, under this section, for which no allowance could be made unless it amounted to 10 per cent. of the total quantity of the invoice, but that duties could be exacted only on the number of cocoanuts actually received as merchandise, excluding the worthless débris. Shaw v. Dix (C. C. 1896) 72 Fed. 166, distinguishing U. S. v. Bache (1894) 59 Fed. 762, 8 C. C. A. 258.

In ascertaining the quantity of decay in imported fruit, the importers did not avail themselves of the provisions of regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury under this section. Held, that they were not obliged to do so, as that section relates to abandonment, and not to cases of allowance for nonimportation, as for fruit worthless on importation. Villari, Mitchell & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 766.

Where portions of an importation were so damaged by sea water as to be entirely valueless, nothing was left to abandon. Habicht, Braun & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 441.

Where an importer has removed in bond to his own warehouse a consignment of merchandise, and it is there found that more than 10 per cent. of the consignment had been rendered in transit totally valueless, he is not remitted as of course to proceeding alone under this section, but may seek his remedy as well by protest under section 5595, ante. U. S. v. Habicht (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 53.

Duty had accrued on these goods before delivery to the importer. By request he was given permission to unload over the vessel's side, at his own risk, and the goods passed thus out of the custody and control of the customs officers. Loss occurred by sinking in consequence of a collision after payment of duty thereon and after the receipt of the merchandise by the importer. This section provides abandonment as an additional remedy, clearly imports that the goods sought to be abandoned thereunder shall be at that very time deliverable. These goods, lost as described, were of course not deliverable, and under the facts it would have been gratuitous to give notice requiring delivery. Thomas & Pierson v. U. S. (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 51.

In an application for an abandonment of goods, the board of general appraisers had jurisdiction to review the collector's decision, which review is final for all purposes, since the importers did not appeal. (1896) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 402.

Ascertainment of damage.—In proof of the amount of decay in an importation of fruit in packages, evidence was given as to the percentage of decay in certain sample packages which represented each of the lots in question, had been used as the basis of auction sales, and consisted of at least 10 per cent. of all the packages. Held, that the percentage thus shown for the sample packages might be taken as showing the amount of decay in the other packages also. U. S. v. Villari, Mitchell & Co. (1908) 160 Fed. 77, 87 C. C. A. 233.

For the purpose of ascertaining the percentage of decay in importations of fruit, the importers opened at least one package in ten of the consignments from each shipper; and the percentage thus estimated was assumed to prevail throughout the other packages, and was accepted by the bidders at the auction sales held immediately on the dock. Held, that this method of averaging constituted a reasonably certain and sufficient mode of proof, and should be accepted by the customs officers as a proper basis for making allowance for the decayed fruit. Courtin, Golden & Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 551.

Before being unladen, but after being free from customs supervision, certain imported fruit was condemned by local health authorities whenever a considerable portion of any crate appeared to be decayed, and the entire contents of such crates were condemned, and required to be dumped in the sea, no portion thereof becoming a subject of commerce within the United States. Held, that such condemned fruit should be treated as a nonimportation, and as not dutiable. U. S. v. Courtin & Golden (C. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 594.

Evidence as to the amount of decay in imported rotten fruit consisted merely of proof as to the percentage of decay in 5 per cent. of the package imported. Held that, as the exac facts relative to the entire importatio might have been ascertained, the evi dence as to the packages examine should not be extended to the pack ages not examined. Denunzio Frui Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 90 Proof of discovery of shortage b an unofficial examination after pack ages have been discharged from vesse and after surrender of manual posses sion of the packages by customs offi cers is not sufficient by itself to sup port a claim that the goods have no been imported. U. S. v. Brown (1911 2 Ct. Cust. App. 189.

It is not contended by either part that macaroni is a perishable artic within the meaning of the first part subsection 22 of section 28, Act 190 The evidence disclosed by the reco justifies the conclusion that the ma aroni for which allowance was ma was, before arrival in port, not mere damaged, but destroyed, and that ther fore as to the destroyed portion the was no importation. U. S. v. Paste & Co. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 164.

The Secretary of the Treasury empowered to make regulations rel tive to shortage or nonimportation merchandise, but the law itself r quires that "proof to ascertain su destruction or nonimportation shall lodged with the collector of custo * * * within 10 days after the lan ing of the merchandise." A regul tion intended to exclude from the co sideration of a collector proof that h been so duly filed would be invali Vandegrift & Co. v. U. S. (1912) Ct. Cust. App. 198.

Entries in the books of a steamsh company were offered in evidence prove the condition of an importatio on its arrival. A manager who did n make the entries in question, and wh had no personal knowledge of the fact is an incompetent witness to prove th entries by. U. S. v. Brown & C (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 102.

Nonimportation of a part of th cargo of lemons was claimed. Th provision of the statute is that "proof of destruction or nonimportation "sha be lodged with the collector of cu toms," etc. There is no limitation the language of the statute of the kin of proof or otherwise save as to tim when this proof may be made by th importer. The statute allows ten day to introduce such proof; to limit th to five, as is sought in the treasur regulation, is in excess of statutor power. Lauricella v. U. S. (1913) Ct. Cust. App. 253, distinguishin Vandegrift & Co. v. U. S. (1912) Ct. Cust. App. 198.

Part of the consignment of potato was condemned at the port of entr by the board of health as unfit for use Certificates to this effect were mad by the inspector May 24, 1912. O

14, preceding, the importer had ed notice that he made application ave the merchandise assorted. No r notice was given. The requirets of the statute as to notice are datory, and they were not com- with. Shallus v. U. S. (1914) 5 Cust. App. 73, citing Houlder v. . (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 247.

ecisions under prior acts.—See ton v. Collector (1866) 72 U. S. Wall.) 113, 18 L. Ed. 544; U. S. v. ps (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 389, 107 U. S. 27 L. Ed. 505; Earnshaw v. Cadder (1892) 145 U. S. 247, 12 Sup. 851, 36 L. Ed. 693; Hollender v. one (1893) 149 U. S. 586, 13 Sup. 932, 37 L. Ed. 860; Lawder v. e (1902) 23 Sup. Ct. 79, 84, 187 S. 281, 47 L. Ed. 178; Stone v. der (1900) 101 Fed. 710, 711, 41 C. C. A. 621 (reversed [1902] 23 Sup. Ct. 79, 187 U. S. 281, 47 L. Ed. 178); Wight v. Curtis (C. C. 1845) Fed. Cas. No. 17,628; Shelton v. Austin (C. C. 1860) Fed. Cas. No. 12,752; U. S. v. Phelps (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 16,040; U. S. v. Cook (D. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 14,852; Merritt v. One Package of Merchandise (D. C. 1886) 30 Fed. 195, 198 (affirmed [C. C. 1887] 32 Fed. 111); (1875) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 7; (1881) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 203; (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 121; (1899) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 542.

Cited without definite application, Earnshaw v. Cadwalader (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 851, 855, 145 U. S. 247, 36 L. Ed. 693; American Sugar Refining Co. v. U. S. (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 830, 831, 181 U. S. 610, 45 L. Ed. 1024.

603. (R. S. § 2903.) Depreciated currency.

The President may cause to be established fit and proper regulas for estimating the duties on merchandise imported into the ited States, in respect to which the original cost shall be exited in a depreciated currency, issued and circulated under aurity of any foreign government.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 61, 1 Stat. 673.

The values of foreign coins proclaimed by the Secretary of the Treasury were required to be followed in estimating the value of merchandise by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 25, post, § 6536.

Invoices were required to be made out in the currency of the place or country from which the importation is made, or, if purchased or agreed to be purchased, in the currency actually paid or agreed upon to be paid therefor, by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 2, as amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, and further amended by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, C, ante, § 5520.

Notes of Decisions

epeal of act.—Act March 2, 1799, § in relation to regulations for estiing duties where cost is exhibited oreign depreciated currency, is not ealed by Act May 22, 1846. Grant Maxwell (C. C. 1851) Fed. Cas. No. 9.

eductions.—Deductions should be aled from nominal value of imports foreign depreciated currency. Loestein v. Maxwell (C. C. 1852) Fed. . No. 8,462; Alsop v. Same (C. C. 3) Fed. Cas. No. 263; Id. (C. C. 6) Fed. Cas. No. 264.

stablishment of regulations.—See § 6, post, as to value of foreign coins. he proclamation of Secretary of asury as to value of foreign money. mer v. Arthur (1880) 102 U. S. , 617, 26 L. Ed. 259.

ursuant to this section, regulations e established declaring that, where standard value of a foreign curren- has been proclaimed by the secre- y of the treasury in the manner proed by law, such value shall control estimating customs duties, unless lectors have been otherwise instruct- or unless a depreciation of the value that currency, "expressed in an ince from the standard of that currency, shall be shown by consular certificate thereto attached." Held, that the proclamation and certificate are conclusive. Id.

Under the power to make regulations for estimating duties in the case of depreciated foreign currency, the president cannot fix an arbitrary value for foreign currency, without regard to its intrinsic value. De Forest v. Redfield (C. C. 1860) Fed. Cas. No. 3,746.

Consular certificates accompanying invoices.—An importer is not entitled to an allowance for depreciation of the Austrian currency, unless his invoice is accompanied by a consular certificate of the value of such currency. Rich v. Maxwell (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 11,759; Dutilh v. Same (C. C. 1853) Id. 4,207, 4,208.

The presentation of the consular certificate subsequent to payment of the duties is ineffectual. Dutilh v. Maxwell (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 4,208.

The collector need not demand such certificate, but it must be offered by the importer, or a bond to produce it. Rich v. Maxwell (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 11,759.

In the case of importations about a month apart, held sufficient where a consular certificate was presented with the first importation only. Reynolds v. Same (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 11,731.

A consular certificate as to the value of foreign currency, attached to an invoice, may be contradicted by the importer. De Forest v. Redfield (C. C. 1860) Fed. Cas. No. 3,746.

Estimating value.—Board of general appraisers has jurisdiction to review the collector's action as to the date at which the value of money is to be estimated in determining dutiable value. Wood v. U. S. (1896) 72 Fed. 254, 256, 18 C. C. A. 553.

An importer has no claim to have the valuation of his goods reduced to the equivalent of a depreciated currency except in the manner indicat in this section, and where the on regulations made under the authori of this section which are produced a the treasury regulations of 1857, t importer must make out a case in t manner indicated therein entitling hi to a valuation at the reduced amou before he can recover. Cousinery Schell (C. C. 1887) 34 Fed. 272, 27

Cited without definite applicatio Heinemann v. Rollins (1887) 7 Sup. C 446, 120 U. S. 82, 30 L. Ed. 605; U. v. Whitridge (1905) 25 Sup. Ct. 40 408, 197 U. S. 135, 49 L. Ed. 696; S. v. Lucius Beebe & Sons (1903) 1 Fed. 762, 768, 58 C. C. A. 562; U. v. J. Allston Newhall & Co. (C. 1899) 91 Fed. 525, 528.

§ 5604. (R. S. § 2904.) Value at date of shipment.

When the duty upon any imports shall be subject to be levied up on the true market-value of such imports in the principal market of the country from whence the importation has been made, or a the port of exportation, the duty shall be estimated and collected upo the value on the day of actual shipment, whenever a bill of ladin shall be presented showing the date of shipment, and which shall b certified by a certificate of the United States consul, [commercia agent,] or other legally authorized deputy.

Act March 2, 1861, c. 68, § 28, 12 Stat. 197.

The words of this section, "commercial agent," inclosed in brackets, wer superseded by the abolition of the grade of commercial agent by Act April 5 1906, c. 1366, § 3, ante, § 3140.

Appraisers were required to ascertain "the actual market value and whole sale price of merchandise at the time of exportation" by the provisions o section III, K, of the Underwood Tariff Act, ante, § 5591.

Notes of Decisions

Time of valuation.—See § 5591, ante, note as to time of exportation.

A shipment of goods from one point to another within a country for transshipment beyond that country is not a true exportation, and such a shipment becomes a true exportation only and takes its valuation as of the date the vessel with these goods on board is cleared for the United States. Roessler & Hasslacher Chemical Co. v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 290, distinguishing Almy v. State of Cali fornia (1860) 24 How. 169, 16 L. Ed 644.

Cited without definite application Greely v. Thompson (1850) 51 U. S (10 How.) 225, 13 L. Ed. 397; Max well v. Griswold (1850) 51 U. S. (1 How.) 242, 13 L. Ed. 405; Fenner stein's Champagne (1865) 3 Wall. 14 18 L. Ed. 121; Saxonville Mills v. Rus sell (1885) 116 U. S. 13, 6 Sup. Ct. 237 29 L. Ed. 554.

(R. S. § 2905. Repealed.)

This section provided that merchandise subject to ad valorem duty, etc. imported from a country in which it had not been manufactured or produced should be appraised according to the current market value or wholesale price in the country of production or manufacture. It was repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, re-enacted by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 104.

§ 5605. (R. S. § 2906.) Value at period of exportation.

When an ad-valorem rate of duty is imposed on any imported merchandise, or when the duty imposed shall be regulated by, or directed to be estimated or based upon, the value of the square yard, or of any specified quantity or parcel of such merchandise, the collector within whose district the same shall be imported or entered shall cause the actual market-value, or wholesale price thereof, at the period of the exportation to the United States, in the principal markets of the country from which the same has been imported,

: appraised, and such appraised value shall be considered the : upon which duty shall be assessed.

Act March 3, 1865, c. 80, § 7, 13 Stat. 493.

Notes of Decisions

iod of exportation.—See notes un- 5591, ante, as to appraisal, etc. riod of exportation" means the hen the vessel sails, not the one hich the bill of lading is given. son v. Peaslee (1857) 61 U. S. Iow.) 571, 15 L. Ed. 1022; Ir- v. Redfield (1859) 64 U. S. (23) 170, 16 L. Ed. 418 (overruling v. McKean [D. C. 1857] Fed. Cas. 5,681a); Detrick v. Balfour (C. 81) 8 Fed. 468, 471.

ds are to be appraised as at the of their exportation. Morris v. ell (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 9,- date of consular certification of voice is only prima facie evidence date of exportation, and the pre- ion arising therefrom is rebut- Lawrence, Son & Gerrish v. U. . C. 1903) 127 Fed. 750, judg- reversed U. S. v. Lawrence, Son rrish (1905) 137 Fed. 466, 69 C. 614.

e of exportation.—The value with the appraiser is to be familiar current market value or whole- price of similar articles in the pal markets of the country from the merchandise has been import- Erhardt v. Ballin (1906) 150 529, 530, 80 C. C. A. 271.

chandise bought in Canton was ed by junk to Hong Kong, for hipment to a vessel that sailed e United States several weeks The invoice was certified by the d States consul at Canton. Held, Canton was the place of exporta- Lawrence, Son & Gerrish v. U. S. . 1903) 127 Fed. 750, judgment ed U. S. v. Lawrence, Son & Ger- (1905) 137 Fed. 466, 69 C. C. A.

§ 5591, ante, as to place of ex- ion.

alty fees.—Where machinery sub- to letters patent in the United and Great Britain was manufac- and sold to the importer in England, the royalty fees for its use paid by the purchaser in this country, which formed no part of the price in England, were not a part of its dutiable value. U. S. v. Leigh (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 764.

Conclusiveness of appraisal.—Where goods were invoiced at a certain price, with a certain discount for cash, the decision of the collector that such price without the discount should be the assessable value is not an appraisement of the market value, and hence is not conclusive. Arthur v. Goddard (1877) 96 U. S. 145, 24 L. Ed. 814.

The appraisal of imported merchandise by the customs officers is final and conclusive on the importer, unless impeached on the ground of fraud. Hilton v. Merritt (1883) 110 U. S. 97, 3 Sup. Ct. 548, 28 L. Ed. 83.

Decision of appraiser as to cost of transportation, etc., held not conclusive. Robertson v. Frank Bros. Co. (1889) 10 Sup. Ct. 5, 7, 132 U. S. 17, 33 L. Ed. 236.

The determination of appraisers that the market value can be ascertained to their satisfaction, which will be assumed from their finding such value, is conclusive. Muser v. Magone (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 77, 80, 155 U. S. 240, 39 L. Ed. 135, affirming judgment (C. C. 1889) 41 Fed. 877.

Appraisal conclusive as to value of importation in the absence of appeal. Saxonville Mills v. Russell (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 118, 119, 123, affirmed (1885) 6 Sup. Ct. 237, 116 U. S. 13, 29 L. Ed. 554.

See § 5594, ante, as to appraisal.

Cited without definite application, Ballard v. Thomas (1856) 19 How. 382, 383, 15 L. Ed. 690; Oberteuffer v. Robertson (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 462, 465, 467, 116 U. S. 499, 29 L. Ed. 706; Oelbermann v. Merritt (1887) 8 Sup. Ct. 151, 154, 123 U. S. 356, 31 L. Ed. 164; The Lace House v. U. S. (1905) 141 Fed. 869, 875, 73 C. C. A. 103; U. S. v. Curnen & Stiner (1906) 146 Fed. 45, 48, 76 C. C. A. 503; Meyers v. Shurtleff (C. C. 1885) 23 Fed. 577, 579.

(R. S. § 2907. Repealed.)

This section provided that, in determining the dutiable value of merchandise, here should be added to the cost, or to the actual wholesale price or general arket value at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the country hence the same had been imported, the cost of transportation, shipment, etc., e value of the sack, box, or covering in which the merchandise was contained, ommission, brokerage, export duty, and all other actual or usual charges for utting up, preparing, and packing for transportation or shipment. It was epealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 6 Stat. 141, and similar and further provisions on the subject were made by ections 11 and 19 of that act, amended by Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 32,) Stat. 211, and further amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 97, 101, and the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 913, c. 16, § III, L. R. ante, §§ 5592, 5599.

(R. S. §§ 2908, 2909. Repealed.)

These sections imposed additional duties,—section 2908, where additions ma to the entered value for charges, which were to be regarded as part of t actual value of the merchandise, should exceed by ten per cent. the declar value; and section 2909, where the appraised value of merchandise subject ad valorem duty, etc., should exceed by ten per cent. the invoice value. T latter section was stricken out by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 24 and both sections were repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of Ju 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, re-enacted by the Payne-Aldrich Tar Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 104; and other provisions on the su ject were made by section 7 of the Customs Administrative Act amended Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 32, 30 Stat. 211, and further amended by secti 28 of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act and section III, I, of the Underwo Tariff Act, ante, § 5527.

Notes of Decisions

See Robertson v. Bradbury (1889) 10 Sup. Ct. 158, 132 U. S. 491, 33 L. Ed. 405.

§ 5606. (R. S. § 2910.) Different values in the same invoice.

When merchandise of the same material or description, but different values, is invoiced at an average price, and not otherwis provided for, the duty shall be assessed upon the whole invoice the rate to which the highest valued goods in such invoice are su ject.

Act March 2, 1861, c. 68, § 32, 12 Stat. 197.

Notes of Decisions

Rule in general.—Though part of an importation might be subject to a lower rate of duty than the remainder, such differentiation is precluded, where the identity of such part is not proved, and the importation must be treated as a whole. J. B. Ellison & Sons v. U. S. (1906) 142 Fed. 732, 74 C. C. A. 64, affirming judgment John B. Ellison & Sons v. U. S. (C. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 969, and writ of certiorari denied Ellison v. Same (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 763, 202 U. S. 615, 50 L. Ed. 1172.

Where merchandise is dutiable at rates varying according to certain prescribed conditions, and such conditions are not determinable by the customs officers on inspection of the goods, the collector may assess duty at the highest rate which the circumstances will warrant, leaving it to the importer to inform the collector of the true conditions by satisfactory evidence. Buehne Steel Wool Co. v. U. S. (1907) 159 Fed. 107, 86 C. C. A. 297, reversing decree U. S. v. Buehne Steel Wool Co. (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 93, and writ of certiorari denied U. S. v. Buehne Steel Wool Co. (1908) 28 Sup. Ct. 763, 210 U. S. 435, 52 L. Ed. 1137.

This section is a rule for the assessment of rates of duty, and not a rule for the appraisement of values, and has no application except to cases where the goods that have been invoiced at an average rate are not merely of different values, but are also subject to different rates of duty, in which case the duty is to be assessed upon the whole invoice at the rate to which the highest valued goods are subject. (1907 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 119.

Coal.—An importation consisted of mixture of bituminous coal and slac in the proportion of about two to on Held, that the two classes of merchan dise should be subjected to the rat of duty respectively provided therefo in the tariff, on the basis of this pro portion, regardless of their intermingle condition; that, as such proportio could be fixed by the use of scale an screen on a single tub, the law woul not cast on the importer the burden the useless separation of the two kind of coal. U. S. v. Bond (C. C. 1908 161 Fed. 165.

Glassware.—In an importation of number of crates of glassware whic were consolidated on one invoice at lump sum, where the several crate were of different values, but charge able with the same rate of duty, th assessment of duty should not be mad upon the basis of the highest value goods, but all the glassware is charge able with the same rate of duty, an similarly with regard to a number o cases of pickles imported at the sam time which were also placed on on invoice though of different values, bu subject to the same rate of duty; th provisions of the section having no ap plication in either case. (1907) 26 Op Atty. Gen. 119.

Cited without definite application U. S. v. Ranlett (1898) 19 Sup. Ct. 114 118, 172 U. S. 133, 43 L. Ed. 393.

07. (R. S. § 2911.) Best article fixes value.

henever articles composed wholly, or in part, of wool or cotton, imilar kind, but different quality, are found, in the same pack- charged at an average price, it shall be the duty of the apprais- o adopt the value of the best article contained in such package, so charged, as the average value of the whole.

Act July 14, 1832, c. 227, § 13, 4 Stat. 593.

Notes of Decisions

eal of act.—This section was not led by section 10 of the adminis- e customs act, but is still in force. Schefer (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 216.

stion raised by protest.—A pro- against appraisements made of ted merchandise in accordance this section, raises, within the ing of section 5595, ante, a ques- as to the construction of the law he facts respecting the classifica- of such merchandise, and the rate ty imposed thereon under such classification. In re Schefer (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 216.

Teas.—Ascertaining weight of teas exported, where the chests were of different weights and tares, and teas of different values. U. S. v. Aymar (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 14,483.

Cited without definite application, Falk v. Robertson (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 41, 42, 137 U. S. 225, 34 L. Ed. 645; U. S. v. Ranlett (1898) 19 Sup. Ct. 114, 118, 172 U. S. 133, 43 L. Ed. 393.

08. (R. S. § 2912.) Appraisement of wool.

hen wool of different qualities is imported in the same bale, bag, ackage, it shall be appraised by the appraiser, to determine the of duty to which it shall be subjected, at the average aggregate e of the contents of the bale, bag, or package; and when bales ifferent qualities are embraced in the same invoice at the same es whereby the average price shall be reduced more than ten per um below the value of the bale of the best quality, the value of whole shall be appraised according to the value of the bale of best quality; and no bale, bag, or package shall be liable to a rate of duty in consequence of being invoiced with wool of lower e.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 197, § 1, 14 Stat. 559, 560.

Wool was included in the Free List of the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 913, c. 16, § I, par. 650, ante, § 5291, par. 650.

Notes of Decisions

raisal in general.—Where the tor under the authority of the f 1832, directed certain wool to ppraised to ascertain whether it to be imported free from duty, ust be guided by such appraise- and a subsequent finding of the that the value of the wool was than the appraisal would not ren- is acts illegal. Rankin v. Hoyt 3) 45 U. S. (4 How.) 327, 11 L. 996.

ere sheepskins are imported with ool on, the wool and pelt cannot parated, and appraised separate- Coggill v. Lawrence (C. C. 1850) Cas. No. 2,956.

ere wool is packed in hides of value therewith, which are an e of value in the market, the t of the hides will not be de- d in ascertaining the cost of the per pound. Saxonville Mills v. ell (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 3.

e provision that the rate of duty ool of different qualities imported in the same package shall be determined according to the average aggregate value of the contents of the package applies where it does not appear that the wool was mixed for the purpose of obtaining a lower rate of duty. Stone & Downer Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 603, 604.

Where two kinds of wools are changed in condition by mixing them in the same bale, in order to make the mixture subject to the lower duty provided for the poorer kind, held (1) that, within the meaning of Act 1897, par. 356, only the better kind is changed "for the purpose of evading the duty to which it would otherwise be subject," because the poorer kind would be subject to the same rate, whether mixed or not; (2) that, therefore, the further provision in the same paragraph that wool changed for such purpose shall pay "twice the duty to which it would otherwise be subject," would apply only to the better kind, and not the poorer; and (3) that the duty which is thus doubled is that which would have been applicable to the better kind if imported in its natural condition. Id.

Cited without definite application, Falk v. Robertson (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 41, 42, 137 U. S. 225, 34 L. Ed. 64 U. S. v. Ranlett (1898) 19 Sup. C 114, 118, 172 U. S. 133, 43 L. E 393.

§ 5609. (R. S. § 2913.) Appraisement of gloves.

In the appraisement of kid and all other gloves imported into th United States there shall be no discrimination in determining t appraisement the foreign market-value of such goods, wheth protected by trade-mark or not; and in no case shall gloves so pr tected by trade-mark be appraised at a less foreign market-val than the like goods not so protected; and no sale or pretended sa of such goods shall be held to fix the value of the same.

Act March 3, 1873, c. 232, § 4, 17 Stat. 559.

Cited without definite application, Mitchell Store Building Co. v. Carroll (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 410, 411, 232 S. 379, 58 L. Ed. 650.

§ 5610. (R. S. § 2914.) Grades of sugar.

The standard by which the color and grades of sugar are to regulated, shall be selected and furnished to the collectors of su ports of entry as may be necessary by the Secretary of the Treasu from time to time, and in such manner as he may deem expedient.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 171, § 1, 13 Stat. 202.

The free admission of sugar was authorized by provisos annexed to pa graphs 177, 178, of Schedule E of section I of the Underwood Tariff Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, ante, § 5291, pars. 177, 178.

Notes of Decisions

Classification of sugars.—The Treasury Department having promulgated detailed and comprehensive regulations respecting the use of the polariscope in testing sugar on importation, these regulations are to be taken not as instructions or orders to be followed at discretion, but on the contrary have the force of law, are uniform in their operation, general in application to all importations of sugar, binding alike on importers and on the officials of the Treasury. American Sugar Refining Co. v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 228.

It is the collector's duty to classify sugars, and this classification is based upon the appraiser's report, which embraces not only the question of value but the general result of his exami tion, including the character and qu ity of the sugars. (1900) 23 Op. At Gen. 238.

Under Schedule E of the tariff of July 24, 1897 (30 Stat. 168), sp cific rates of duties are laid upon i ported sugars graduated according the polariscopic tests. These tes while made by officers and expe subordinate to the appraiser, are ported to him, and by him, after certainment of the quality and va of the sugar, reported to the collec for classification. Id.

Cited without definite applicati Merritt v. Welsh (1881) 104 U. 694, 695, 26 L. Ed. 896.

§ 5611. (R. S. § 2915.) Sampling of sugar.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall, by regulation, prescri and require that samples from packages of sugar shall be taken the proper officers, in such manner as to ascertain the true qual of such sugar; and the weights of sugar imported in casks or box shall be marked distinctly by the custom-house weigher, by scori the figures indelibly on each package.

Act Dec. 22, 1870, c. 6, 16 Stat. 397.

See note to R. S. § 2914, ante, § 5610.

Cited without definite application, Merritt v. Welsh (1881) 104 U. S. 694, 695, 26 L. Ed. 896; Falk v. Robertson (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 41, 43, 1 U. S. 225, 34 L. Ed. 645.

§ 5612. (R. S. § 2916.) Samples of wool.

For the purpose of carrying into effect the classification of wo and hair of animals, prescribed by Schedule L, Title "Duties up Imports," a sufficient number of distinctive samples of the vario kinds of wool or hair embraced in each of the three classes name selected and prepared under the direction of the Secretary of t easury, and duly verified by him, the standard samples of which all be retained in the Treasury Department, shall be deposited in e custom-houses and elsewhere, as he may direct; which samples all be used by the proper officers of the customs, to determine e class to which any imported wool or hair belongs.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 197, § 1, 14 Stat. 560.
See note to R. S. § 2912, ante, § 5608.

5613. (R. S. § 2917.) Standard of vinegar.

The standard for vinegar shall be taken to be that strength which quires thirty-five grains of bicarbonate of potash to neutralize e ounce troy of vinegar; and all import duties that may be imposed law on vinegar imported from foreign countries shall be collected cording to this standard.

Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 6, 17 Stat. 237.

5614. (R. S. § 2918.) Hydrometers.

The Secretary of the Treasury may, under the direction of the esident, adopt such hydrometer as he may deem best calculated to omote the public interest for the purpose of ascertaining the proof liquors; and, after such adoption, the duties imposed by law upon stilled spirits shall be collected according to proof ascertained by y hydrometer so adopted.

Act Jan. 12, 1825, c. 4, 4 Stat. 79.

ited without definite application, Collector of Customs (1892) 49 Fed. nisville Public Warehouse Co. v. 561, 567, 1 C. C. A. 371.

5615. (R. S. § 2919.) Ascertainment of duties on grain.

For the purpose of estimating the duties on importations of grain, e number of bushels shall be ascertained by weight, instead of by easuring; and sixty pounds of wheat, fifty-six pounds of corn, y-six pounds of rye, forty-eight pounds of barley, thirty-two unds of oats, sixty pounds of pease, and forty-two pounds of buckheat, avoirdupois weight, shall respectively be estimated as a bushel.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 38, 14 Stat. 187.

5616. (Act March 2, 1895, c. 189, § 1.) Sampling and assaying lead ores.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe regulations for the mpling and assaying of lead ores imported into the United States, d such regulations shall provide that the method of sampling d assaying such ores shall be the same as that usually adopted for mmercial purposes by public sampling works in the United States; d he is authorized to incur the necessary expense out of the appropriation for the collection of the revenue from customs: Proled, That no part of the expense herein authorized and directed all be incurred for the erection of sampling works by the United ates. (28 Stat. 933.)

This was a provision of the sundry civil appropriation act for the fiscal year 1896, cited above.

The sampling of ores at bonded smelting warehouses was provided for by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, N, subsec. 1, post, § 5673.

Notes of Decisions

Assays.—This section was not realed by implication by paragraph 1 of the tariff act of 1897 (Act July 1897), which provides that ores ntaining lead on their arrival "shall sampled according to commercial thods," that the government assayshall make a "proper assay" of the mple on which the duties shall be uidated, and authorizes the secrety to make necessary regulations for enforcing such provisions. In re Puget Sound Reduction Co. (C. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 90.

It being shown by uncontradicted testimony that what is known as the "fire process," which gives the quantity of lead in an ore that can be saved by smelting, is exclusively used in making assays for commercial purposes, and is known as the "commercial method," instructions issued by the treasury department adopting for customs purposes what is known as the "wet process" of assaying, which shows the actual quantity of lead in an ore, making no allowance for loss in smelting, require the payment of a higher duty than is contemplated by the tariff act, and are in contravention of the positive requirement of the act of 1895. Id.

While paragraph 181 of the tariff act of July 24, 1897 (30 Stat. 166), which imposes a duty on imported lea ores, contemplates the determinatio of the quantity of metal in the ore b assay, by paragraph 182 of that act th determination of the quantity of met contained in imported lead bullion to be by official weighing only, and th application of assay to lead bullio under the current Treasury regula tions for bonded smelters and refine is without warrant of law. (1902) 2 Op. Atty. Gen. 45; (1903) Id. 569.

§ 5617. (Act June 8, 1896, c. 373.) Shipment of ores to samplin works.

The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to expen from the appropriation for collecting the revenue from customs, t provide for the purchase of the necessary land, and for the constru tion and equipment of sampling works thereon, or for the leasing o suitable buildings and equipment for the sampling and assaying o imported silver ores and other ores containing lead at El Pas Texas; Northport, Washington; and Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, and such other ports as in the judgment of the Secretary of the Trea ury the interests of the revenue demand, the sum of forty-five thou sand dollars, to be available for the fiscal year eighteen hundre and ninety-seven: Provided, That the Secretary of the Treasury hereby authorized, in case of importation of said ores at ports which no facilities are provided, to send a portion thereof to an port having said facilities, at which port said portion may be sample and assayed. The collector at the port of importation shall there upon liquidate the entry upon said assay. In no instance, howeve shall a less portion than one-fifth of any importation of ores b sampled and assayed. (29 Stat. 270.)

This was a provision of the deficiency appropriation act for the fiscal yea 1896, cited above.

A standard gauge for sheet and plate iron and steel, to be used in determi ing duties and taxes, was established by Act March 3, 1893, c. 221, post, 8903, 8905.

The transportation under bond of lead bearing ores was provided for b par. 152 of section I of the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, ant § 5291, par. 152.

See note to Act March 2, 1895, c. 189, § 1, ante, § 5616, as to sampling ore § 5618. (R. S. § 2920.) Expense of weighing, measuring, or gaug ing.

In all cases in which the invoice or entry does not contain th weight, or quantity, or measure of merchandise, now weighed, o measured, or gauged, the same shall be weighed, gauged, or meas ured at the expense of the owner, agent, or consignee.

Act July 30, 1846, c. 74, § 4, 9 Stat. 43.

Notes of Decisions

Expense of gauging.—In an action to recover gauger's fees paid by an importer, held, that where an importer or merchant does not accurately state the quantity of his goods, whether stated in known units employed in this country, or in known foreign units, and the result of the gauging shows that the gauging was necessary in order to determine the fact that the quantity was not accurately stated, th importer or merchant must bear th expense. Casado v. Schell (C. C 1887) 33 Fed. 332.

Cited without definite applicatio Kennedy v. Magone (1895) 15 Sup. C 814, 816, 158 U. S. 212, 39 L. Ed. 954 Balfour v. Sullivan (C. C. 1883) 1 Fed. 231, 233.

§ 5619. (R. S. § 2921.) Deficiency.

If, on the opening of any package, a deficiency of any article shal be found, on examination by the appraisers, the same shall be cer d to the collector on the invoice, and an allowance for the same made in estimating the duties.

Act Aug. 30, 1842, c. 270, § 21, 5 Stat. 565.

Notes of Decisions

lowance for deficiency.—See § 2, ante.

ie general rule is that revenue can ollected only upon the quantity or ght of the taxable subject-matter h is actually imported and receiv- by the importer so as to come in- the consumption of the country. erican Cigar Co. v. U. S. (1906) Fed. 484, 77 C. C. A. 40 (judg- t reversed U. S. v. G. Falk & Bro. 7] 27 Sup. Ct. 191, 204 U. S. 143, L. Ed. 411); Balfour v. Sullivan C. 1883) 17 Fed. 231, 233; Reiss Magone (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 105, llowance should be made for defi- cy arising from loss where value the goods is measured by weight, not from mere shrinkage. Rob- on v. Bradbury (1889) 10 Sup. Ct. , 132 U. S. 491, 33 L. Ed. 405.

he actual amount arriving, and not amount shipped is liable for duty, the absence of proof that the loss transit improved the quality of the ds. Brune v. Marriott (C. C. 1849) l. Cas. No. 2,052; Schuchardt v. vrence (C. C. 1856) Fed. Cas. No. 184; Austin v. Peaslee (C. C. 1857) l. Cas. No. 666; U. S. v. Nash (C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 15,856. lthough included in the invoice, ds lost on the voyage are not sub- to duty. U. S. v. Nash (C. C. 9) Fed. Cas. No. 15,856.

Vhere a cargo of coke, imported m Wales, by reason of evaporation the moisture contained in it during voyage, weighed several tons less n when shipped, held, that duties ld only be legally collected on the ual weight at the time of the im- tation, and not on the weight shown the invoice. Balfour v. Sullivan C. 1883) 17 Fed. 231.

'he importer is not required to show y there is a deficiency or how it urred. Id.

A treasury regulation that duties ll be collected according to the in- ce, unless the importer accounts, proofs, for the discrepancy between amount shown by the invoice and actual weight at the time of im- tation, is no defense to an action recover the duties exacted from the porter on the difference between the ount actually imported and the ount shown by the invoice to have n shipped. Id.

Vhere an importation has shrunk in ight, and such shrinkage has added percentage of value, so that the ac- l quantity which arrives is worth re per pound in the foreign market n the original quantity, the actual ntity should be appraised at its in- ased value per pound, and duty as- sessed upon the value thereof appraised, although the invoice describes the original quantity as worth less per pound. But, to warrant such an assessment of duty, the appraiser must first find that the actual quantity was worth per pound such sum as would warrant the amount of duties assessed. Reiss v. Magone (C. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 105, 108.

Section 5602, ante, is not inconsistent with the general provisions of this section. Shaw v. Dix (C. C. 1896) 72 Fed. 166, 168.

A report by the assistant appraiser that, upon examination of certain imported merchandise, he found a deficiency in the quantity called for by the invoice, is sufficient on which to base an allowance for such deficiency in estimating the duties. U. S. v. Park (C. C. 1896) 77 Fed. 608.

The Congress has by remedial statute established a rule of evidence in determining the condition of merchandise at the time this crosses the customs line, and the quantity of the merchandise existing at the precise moment of importation, if made an issue, becomes a fact to be proved, as any other fact in issue, by evidence. U. S. v. Shallus (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 332.

Where the quantity which actually arrives is found by the customs officers to be less than the invoiced quantity, a deduction of the excess of the latter over the former, in adjusting the duties, is not an allowance within the meaning of the proviso mentioned. (1883) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 613.

See note under § 5591, ante, "Increase in value and decrease in quantity."

—— Leakage.—Act 1799, c. 22, § 59, providing that "there shall be an allowance of 2 per cent. leakage on the quantity which shall appear by the gauge to be contained in any cask of liquors subject to duty by the gallon," does not now apply to brandy, then subject to a specific duty, but since subjected, by the tariff act of 1846, to an ad valorem duty. Lawrence v. Caswell (1851) 54 U. S. (13 How.) 488, 14 L. Ed. 235.

Where merchandise is detained at the custom house for the purpose of appraisement, the importer is not entitled to recover on account of leakage or deterioration. Belcher v. Linn (1860) 65 U. S. (24 How.) 508, 16 L. Ed. 754.

The word "liquors," as used in the proviso of Schedule H of the tariff act of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. 505), prohibiting any allowance for breakage, leakage, or damage in respect to

"wines, liquors, cordials, or distilled spirits," is simply a misspelling of the word "liqueurs," and does not include beer. Hollender v. Magone (1893) 149 U. S. 586, 13 Sup. Ct. 932, 37 L. Ed. 860, reversing (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 912.

Where the quantity or weight stated in the invoice has been diminished by leakage or similar loss, the duty should be chargeable on the quantity actually imported into the country. American Sugar Refining Co. v. U. S. (1900) 99 Fed. 716, 718, 40 C. C. A. 84, affirmed (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 830, 181 U. S. 610, 45 L. Ed. 1024.

The dutiable value in case of loss by leakage is ascertained by deducting from the dutiable value of the invoice amount the amount of deficiency shown by the returns of the official weigher and gauger. Brune v. Marriott (C. C. 1849) Fed. Cas. No. 2,052.

The amount of the beer in the containers not entirely filled was determined by experts, who sounded the casks and estimated the shortage. All of the half barrels were inspected for shortage by the importer, the steamship company, the customs gauger, and the customs stamper. The impo in his own behalf bottled 2,040 barrels out of 30,068 and, protes claimed the result as it appeared t the true gauge of the beer. method was liable to too much e to warrant such a finding of cont valid as against the gauger's, sust ed as that is by the collector's, d sion. Hollender & Co. v. U. S. (19 4 Ct. Cust. App. 406.

The effect of the proviso in the of March 3, 1883 (22 Stat. 505), claring "that there shall be no all ance for breakage, leakage, or dam on wines, liquors, cordials, or disti spirits," was to repeal all the pr sions previously in force which auth ized such allowance; but it nevert less permits the duties to be asses on the actual quantity of merchan imported, whether in casks or bott (1883) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 613.

Allowance for leakage, breakage, e of wines, see paragraph 244.

Cited without definite applicati Lawder v. Stone (1902) 23 Sup. 79, 82, 187 U. S. 281, 47 L. Ed. 1 Merwin v. Magone (1895) 70 Fed. 7 778, 17 C. C. A. 361.

(R. S. §§ 2922–2924. Repealed.)

R. S. § 2922, provided for the examination by the appraisers or other offic of any owner, importer, consignee, or other person, as to the market value wholesale price of any merchandise imported, and for the production of lette accounts, or invoices relating to the same. R. S. § 2923, imposed a penalty failure to submit to such examination or to produce such papers, and made appraisement conclusive. And R. S. § 2924, made false swearing on such examination perjury, and forfeited the merchandise of an owner, importer, consignee, guilty thereof. All these sections were repealed by the Customs A ministrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, and similar p visions were made by sections 16 and 17 of that act, amended by the Pay Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 100, and the Underwo Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, O, P, ante, §§ 5596, 5597.

§ 5620. (R. S. § 2925.) Bond to produce proof.

Whenever, in the opinion of the Secretary of the Treasury, may be necessary in order to carry into full effect the laws for t collection of the revenue, he may authorize the collector of any di trict into which merchandise, subject to duty, may be importe to require the owner, importer, or consignee of such merchandis to give bond, in a sum not exceeding the value of such merchandis that he will produce or cause to be produced, within a reasonab time, to be fixed by the Secretary, such proof as the Secretary ma deem necessary, and as is in the power of the owner, importe or consignee, to obtain, to enable the collector to ascertain the cla or description of manufacture, or rate of duty, to which such me chandise is justly liable.

Act May 28, 1830, c. 147, § 8, 4 Stat. 411.

§ 5621. (R. S. § 2926.) Storing goods with incomplete manifest

All merchandise, of which incomplete entry has been made, an entry without the specification of particulars, either for want the original invoice, or for any other cause, or which has receive damage during the voyage, shall be conveyed to some warehous or storehouse, to be designated by the collector, in the parcels packages containing the same, there to remain with due and re sonable care, at the expense and risk of the owner or consigne under the care of some proper officer, until the particulars, cos value, as the case may require, shall have been ascertained her by the exhibition of the original invoice thereof, or by ap-aisement, at the option of the owner, importer, or consignee; d until the duties thereon shall have been paid, or secured to be id, and a permit granted by the collector for the delivery thereof.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 52, 1 Stat. 665.

Notes of Decisions

Modification of section.—Act May 1, 6, c. 89, 19 Stat. 49, permitting the ry of packed packages without the duction of an invoice, modified this tion; and the latter provision does apply to such packages. U. S. v. erican Express Co. (C. C. 1907) Fed. 996.

Storage.—The presumption is that officers mentioned in a United tes statute, who are to carry out its visions, are officers of the United tes, if there are any officers of the ited States such as are described the statutes. (1870) 13 Op. Atty. n. 244.

The port wardens of the port of New rk, appointed under the State laws, not the officers meant by the words oper officers of the port or dis-t," found in the section as former-enacted. The officers there meant the customs officers of the port or trict, appointed pursuant to the laws the United States. Id.

See § 5647, post, as to storing goods want of invoice.

— Charges.—Where an importer oses to enter goods of less value n $1,000 without a certified invoice, rges for cartage to the appraiser's res and for storage and labor at h stores may properly be exacted the government. Kennedy v. Ma-e (C. C. 1890) 41 Fed. 768, 769, rmed (1895) 15 Sup. Ct. 814, 158 S. 212, 39 L. Ed. 954.

Where merchandise is entered by ap-isement without invoice, and the en-is incomplete for want of particu-s, and is taken into custody of the lector of the port and conveyed to warehouse, the charges for storage l labor are legal. Hemplead v. dwalader (C. C. 1890) 42 Fed. 529, .

A fee charged by a collector of customs on packed packages to defray expense incurred in administering the law relative to such packages is not such as is authorized by this section. U. S. v. American Express Co. (C. C. 1907) 154 Fed. 996.

Because of the absence of an invoice, the collector on liquidation charged, under this section, a certain sum for cartage, labor, and storage incidental to the removal and custody of the importation. The cartage was paid for by the government, while the other services were rendered by government employés. The entry was confessedly incomplete, an invoice being necessary, and so it was within the authority of the collector under the section cited to cause the merchandise to be removed at the expense of the owners to a warehouse or storehouse, there to remain until due appraisement was had or, at the option of the owners, the original invoice produced; and this is true though there was only one case of merchandise, valued at less than $100. Davies, Turner & Co. v. U. S. (1912) 3 Ct. Cust. App. 450.

Appraisement.—Where consignee, on pointing out imperfection in invoice and desiring to have it corrected, is told that he must enter goods at value expressed in invoice, and in no other way, he is not bound to ask for the appraisement provided for by this section. Robertson v. Bradbury (1889) 10 Sup. Ct. 158, 132 U. S. 491, 33 L. Ed. 405.

Penalties.—The penalties prescribed by section 51 of the act of 1799 for collecting duties do not apply to this section. Peisch v. Ware (1808) 4 Cranch, 347, 364, 2 L. Ed. 643.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Sommers (1909) 171 Fed. 57, 96 C. C. A. 299.

(R. S. § 2927. Repealed.)

This section provided for the appraisal of articles damaged during the voyage, and for allowances for such damages in estimating duties. It was repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, and allowances for damages to merchandise imported were forbidden, and abandonment of damaged merchandise after entry and relief from payment of duties thereon was provided for by section 23 of that act, which section, as amended, was re-enacted by the Underwood Tariff Act, § III, X, ante, § 5602.

(R. S. § 2928. Superseded.)

This section, providing for appraisement of merchandise taken from any wreck and of damages sustained during the course of the voyage, was superseded by the provisions of the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 23, 26 Stat. 140, which, as amended and designated as section 22 of said act, by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 91, were re-enacted by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, X, ante, § 5602.

(R. S. §§ 2929–2932. Repealed.)

These sections provided for revision by the principal appraisers of reports assistant appraisers, and for reappraisement on the order of the collector; appeals from appraisements; and for appeals from decisions of the collector the Secretary of the Treasury. They were repealed by the Customs Admi trative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141; and other visions for revision of appraisements, reappraisements, appeals from decisi of appraisers and of collectors to the board of general appraisers, and rev of their decisions, were made by sections 12–18 of that act, which, as amen by Act May 27, 1908, c. 205, § 3, and the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug 1909, c. 6, § 28, were incorporated in chapter 8 of the Judicial Code, §§ 1 199, ante, §§ 1179–1190, and the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. § III, M–Q, ante, §§ 5594–5598, except said section 12, which is set forth a § 5593.

§ 5622. (R. S. § 2933.) Examination of medicines.

All drugs, medicines, medicinal preparations, including medici essential oils and chemical preparations, used wholly or in part medicine, imported from abroad, shall, before passing the custo house, be examined and appraised, as well in reference to their qu ity, purity, and fitness for medical purposes, as to their value a identity specified in the invoice.

Act June 26, 1848, c. 70, § 1, 9 Stat. 237.

The oaths to be taken by special examiners of drugs, etc., was prescribed R. S. § 2611, ante, § 5355; and their salaries were fixed by the Plan Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to provisions of Act Aug. 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

Notes of Decisions

Standard of drugs.—The drugs and medicine act of 1848 and the food and drugs act of June 30, 1906 (34 Stat. 768), are, generally speaking, cumulative, and should both be given effect and an importation of drugs should not be admitted if it fails to conform to the standard established by the former or to the tests imposed under the latter. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 311.

In applying the drugs and medicine act of June 26, 1848, to importations originating in Italy, that standard of strength and purity to be enforced is that established by the pharmacopoeia of the United States, and not that of Italy or any other foreign country. Id.

Drugs imported from Italy, although meeting the standard required by the drugs and medicine act of 1848, are still subject to the provisions of the food and drugs act of 1906 regard adulteration, misbranding, and f labeling, and to any test that may applied to them by the direction of Secretary of Agriculture in accorda with section 11 of the latter act.

Importations originating in any the countries whose pharmacopo are mentioned in section 5624, p must conform to the pharmacopoeia the country of their origin; but if p duced in any other country, wh pharmacopoeias are not thus standa ized, then the pharmacopoeia of United States must control. Id.

Cited without definite applicat Buttfield v. Stranahan (1903) 24 S Ct. 349, 354, 192 U. S. 470, 48 L. 525; Smeltzer v. St. Louis & S. F. Co. (C. C. 1908) 158 Fed. 649, 6

§ 5623. (R. S. § 2934.) Name of proprietor to be affixed to me cines.

All medicinal preparations, whether chemical or otherwise, usu ly imported with the name of the manufacturer, shall have the tr name of the manufacturer and the place where they are prepar permanently and legibly affixed to each parcel by stamp, label, otherwise; and all medicinal preparations imported without su names so affixed shall be adjudged to be forfeited.

Act June 26, 1848, c. 70, § 2, 9 Stat. 238.

§ 5624. (R. S. § 2935.) Return upon examination.

If, on examination, any drugs, medicines, medicinal preparatio whether chemical or otherwise, including medicinal essential o are found, in the opinion of the examiner, to be so far adulterat or in any manner deteriorated, as to render them inferior in streng and purity to the standard established by the United States, Ed burgh, London, French, and German pharmacopœias and dispen tories, and thereby improper, unsafe, or dangerous to be used f edicinal purposes, a return to that effect shall be made upon the voice, and the articles so noted shall not pass the custom-house, nless, on a re-examination of a strictly analytical character, called r by the owner or consignee, the return of the examiner shall e found erroneous, and it is declared as the result of such analysis, at the articles may properly, safely, and without danger, be used r medicinal purposes.

Act June 26, 1848, c. 70, § 3, 9 Stat. 238.

Notes of Decisions

Pharmacopoeia controlling.—Importions originating in any of the counies whose pharmacopoeias are menoned in this section must conform to e pharmacopoeia of the country of eir origin; but if produced in any other country, whose pharmacopoeias are not thus standardized, then the pharmacopoeia of the United States must control. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 311.

5625. (R. S. § 2936, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Appeal from examination.

The owner or consignee shall at all times, when dissatisfied with he examiner's return, have the privilege of calling, at his own exense, for a re-examination; and the collector, upon receiving a eposit of such sum as he may deem sufficient to defray such exense, shall procure some competent analytical chemist possessing he confidence of the medical profession, as well as of the colleges f medicine and pharmacy, if any such institutions exist in the State which the collection-district is situated, to make a careful analyis of the articles included in the return, and a report upon the same nder oath. In case this report, which shall be final, shall declare he return of the examiner to be erroneous, and the articles to be f the requisite strength and purity, according to the standards eferred to in the next preceding section, the entire invoice shall e passed without reservation, on payment of the customary duties.

Act June 26, 1848, c. 70, § 4, 9 Stat. 238. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 247.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting after the word "situated" the words "to make," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

Repeal.—The provisions that imporations found to conform to standard mposed shall be "passed without resrvation, on payment of the customary uties," are repealed by implication as applied to importations which are subject to rejection under tests of the food and drugs act. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 311.

§ 5626. (R. S. § 2937.) Exportation of rejected articles.

If the examiner's return, however, shall be sustained by the analysis and report, the articles shall remain in charge of the collector, nd the owner or consignee, on payment of the charges of storage nd other expenses necessarily incurred by the United States, and n giving a bond with sureties satisfactory to the collector to and the articles out of the limits of the United States, shall have he privilege of re-exporting them at any time within the period of six months after the report of the analysis; but if the articles shall not be sent out of the United States within the time specified, the collector, at the expiration of that time, shall cause the same to be destroyed, and hold the owner or consignee responsible to the United States for the payment of all charges, in the same manner as if the articles had been re-exported.

Act June 26, 1848, c. 70, § 4, 9 Stat. 238.

§ 5627. (R. S. § 2938.) Appraiser as special examiner.

One of the assistant appraisers at the port of New York, to be appointed with special reference to his qualifications for such duties, shall, in addition to the duties that may be required of him b the appraiser, perform the duties of a special examiner of drugs medicines, chemicals, and so forth.

Act July 27, 1866, c. 284, § 3, 14 Stat. 302.

The number of assistant appraisers at the port of New York was prescribe by R. S. § 2536, the provisions of which were superseded by the Plan of Reor ganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

The oath to be taken by a special examiner of drugs, etc., was prescribed b R. S. § 2611, ante, § 5355.

§ 5628. (R. S. § 2939.) Appraisement at New York.

The collector of the port of New York shall not, under any cir cumstances, direct to be sent for examination and appraisemen less than one package of every invoice, and one package at leas out of every ten packages of merchandise, and a greater numbe should he, or the appraiser, or any assistant appraiser, deem i necessary. When the Secretary of the Treasury, however, fron the character and description of the merchandise, may be of th opinion that the examination of a less proportion of packages wil amply protect the revenue, he may, by special regulation, direct a less number of packages to be examined.

Act July 27, 1866, c. 284, § 1, 14 Stat. 302.

Notes of Decisions

Nature of section.—This section is not mandatory, so that though, without any special direction, a less number than one out of ten packages of an invoice is examined, the examination is not void. Erhardt v. Schroeder (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 45, 47, 155 U. S. 124, 39 L. Ed. 94.

This section is permissive, and not mandatory. U. S. v. Rosenwald (1895) 67 Fed. 323, 327, 14 C. C. A. 399.

Manner of appraisement.—The mere fact that all the cases of an importation "were by the collector ordered to the public store, and that they were there at the time of the reappraisement," does not show a specific direction by the collector that all should be examined, and render void a reappraisement made without examining all the cases, though, under R. S. § 2901, ante, § 5590, and this section, such reappraisement would be void if the collector directed an examination of all the cases, and it was not made. Origet v. Hedden (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 92, 155 U. S. 228, 39 L. Ed. 130.

An importer is entitled to have no greater portion of the importation produced and examined on appeal to the board of general appraisers than this section directs shall be sent to the appraiser. Renvy, Schmidt & Plussner v. U. S. (C. C. 1903) 121 Fed. 441, 442.

Though there may have been a failure on the part of the collector strictl to comply with the provisions of sec tions 2901 and 2939, R. S., section 5590 ante, and this section, governing th special designation of merchandise fo examination and appraisement, never theless the board of general appraiser would be in duty bound, the goods i question remaining subject to their con trol and open to their inspection an examination, to resort, on appeal, to th best means at hand for making an ap praisement; and though it should ap pear that one package in ten was no in some instances examined by th board, there being sufficient sample of the merchandise before them an these having been examined, ther would be accordingly such a substitut process as the law contemplates an permits. Oelrichs & Co. v. U. S. (1911) 2 Ct. Cust. App. 355.

Repeal.—Act July 27, 1866, c. 284 repealed Act March 3, 1851, c. 32, § 5 so far as that section relates to th appraisers and assistant appraisers fo the port of New York, but no further (1870) 13 Op. Atty. Gen. 312.

Cited without definite application U. S. v. Dieckerhoff (1906) 26 Sup. Ct 604, 606, 202 U. S. 302, 50 L. Ed. 1041 In re Blumlein (C. C. 1892) 49 Fed 228, 230, affirmed (1893) 55 Fed. 383 5 C. C. A. 142; Curnen & Stiner v. U S. (C. C. 1904) 136 Fed. 807, 808, 809

§ 5629. (R. S. § 2940.) Examiners at New York.

The Secretary of the Treasury may, on the nomination of the appraiser, appoint such number of examiners at the port of New York as the Secretary may in writing determine to be necessary, to aid each of the assistant appraisers in the examination, inspection, and appraisement of merchandise. No person shall be appointed such examiner who is not, at the time of his appointment, ctically and thoroughly acquainted with the character, quality, value of the article in the examination and appraisement of ch he is to be employed; nor shall any such examiner enter n the discharge of his duties, as such, until he shall have taken subscribed an oath faithfully and diligently to discharge such ies.

Act July 27, 1866, c. 284, § 4, 14 Stat. 303.

The number and compensation of examiners in the district of New York were prescribed by the Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

Notes of Decisions

port.—A report in regard to valu- n of imported merchandise signed n examiner or clerk appointed pur- t to this section, and approved by appraiser, is not in compliance with the requirements of section 2615, R. S. ante, § 5349, which requires that the assistant appraiser make such report. (1894) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 731.

530. (R. S. § 2941.) Appraisers, etc., at New York not to engage in business.

o appraiser, assistant appraiser, examiner, clerk, verifier, sam-, messenger, or other person employed in the departments of raisal at the port of New York, or any of them, shall engage be employed in any commercial or mercantile business, or act agent for any person engaged in such business, during the term his appointment.

Act July 27, 1866, c. 284, § 5, 14 Stat. 303.

General appraisers were prohibited from engaging in business by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 12, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, ante, § 5593.

631. (R. S. § 2942.) Duties of appraisers at New York.

ll provisions relating to the duties of appraisers, or to any pro- dings consequent or dependent upon the action of such ap- isers and not inconsistent with the provisions relating to the raiser and assistant appraisers at the port of New York, shall be strued to apply to them.

Act July 27, 1866, c. 284, § 8, 14 Stat. 303.

(R. S. § 2943. Repealed.)

This section provided that one of the assistant appraisers at the port of New York should be detailed for the supervision of examination of merchandise damaged on the voyage of importation, and to make examinations and appraisals and to report, etc. It was repealed, with R. S. § 2927, which provided for appraisal of such goods, and other sections, by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, re-enacted and designated as section 28 by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 104.

632. (R. S. § 2944.) Labor beyond usual hours.

f at any time, from an increase of importation, or from any other se, there shall be found upon the floors of the public stores in the of New York an accumulation of merchandise awaiting ap- isement, the appraiser shall, under regulations established by Secretary of the Treasury, direct the assistant appraisers, and ers associated with them in this branch of the public business, devote time beyond the usual business hours, in each day, during light, to their respective duties, so that the business of appraise- nt may be faithfully and more promptly dispatched.

Act July 27, 1866, c. 284, § 9, 14 Stat. 303.

(R. S. § 2945. Repealed.)

This section imposed a penalty on any merchant chosen by the collector to make any appraisement required under any act respecting imports and tonnage, who should, after due notice, decline or neglect to assess at such appraisement. This section was repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141.

Provisions for the appointment of merchant appraisers and for a penalt refusal to serve, made by R. S. §§ 2609, 2610, were superseded by provi relating to appraisers, made by the Customs Administrative Act of Jun 1890, c. 407, § 13, which, as amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, were incorporated in the Underwood Tariff Act of Oc 1913, c. 16, § III, M, ante, § 5594.

§ 5633. (R. S. § 2946.) Appraisement by revenue officers.

When merchandise is entered at ports where there are no praisers, the mode hereinbefore prescribed of ascertaining the for value thereof shall be carefully observed by the revenue officer whom is committed the estimating and collection of duties.

Act Aug. 30, 1842, c. 270, § 22, 5 Stat. 566.

§ 5634. (R. S. § 2947.) Appraisement in other districts.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall have authority to direct appraisers for any collection-district to attend in any other col tion-district for the purpose of appraising any merchandise imp ed therein.

Act March 1, 1823, c. 21, § 16, 3 Stat. 735.

Similar authority was conferred on the Secretary of the Treasury by Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provision Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

Provisions for the performance of duties of appraisers and assistant appr ers during vacancy in or absence from office were made by Act March 3, 1 c. 1413, §§ 1, 2, ante, §§ 5395, 5396.

(R. S. § 2948. Superseded.)

This section providing that additional duties are not to be deemed fines, for distribution to customs officers, became inoperative by the repeal of provisions for payment of moieties of fines, etc., to informers or officers, by Anti-Moiety Act of June 2, 1874, c. 391, § 2, set forth post, § 5796.

§ 5635. (R. S. § 2949.) Regulations for appraisal.

The Secretary of the Treasury from time to time shall establ such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with the laws of United States, to secure a just, faithful, and impartial appraisal all merchandise imported into the United States, and just and pr er entries of such actual market-value or wholesale price there and of the square yards, parcels, or other quantities, as the case m require, and of such actual market-value or wholesale price of ea of them. The Secretary of the Treasury shall report all such ru and regulations, with the reasons therefor, to the then next sessi of Congress.

Act July 14, 1832, c. 227, § 9, 4 Stat. 592. Act Aug. 30, 1842, c. 270, § 5 Stat. 566.

Notes of Decisions

Regulations in general.—An official judgment of the Secretary and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury as to the duty to be exacted on importations of sugar under Tariff Acts July 24, 1897, and Oct. 3, 1913, and the commercial treaty with Cuba of Dec. 11, 1902, as made effective by Act Dec. 17, 1903, cannot be controlled by injunction. State of Louisiana v. McAdoo (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 938, 234 U. S. 627, 58 L. Ed. 1506.

The power of the secretary of the treasury to prescribe rules and regulations does not authorize him to impose a duty not provided for by congress, in repayment of a drawback. Balfour Sullivan (C. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 578.

The secretary of the treasury, w a view to facilitate the work of lectors of the port, may not make s regulations as would seem to negat existing laws. Pascal v. Sullivan C. 1884) 21 Fed. 496.

Cited without definite applicati Hilton v. Merritt (1884) 3 Sup. Ct. 5 552, 110 U. S. 97, 28 L. Ed. 83; Oelb mann v. Merritt (1887) 8 Sup. Ct. 1 154, 123 U. S. 356, 31 L. Ed. 164; A mordt v. Hedden (1890) 11 Sup. 103, 106, 137 U. S. 310, 34 L. Ed. 6 U. S. v. Loeb (C. C. 1900) 99 F 723, 728.

(R. S. § 2950. Superseded.)

This section provided that the certificate of the appraiser should be deem to be the appraisement. It was superseded by the provisions relating to praisers made by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 13, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, and the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, M, ante, § 5594.

§ 5636. (R. S. § 2951.) Definition of word "ton."

Wherever the word "ton" is used in this chapter, in reference to weight, it shall be construed as meaning twenty-hundred-weight, each hundred-weight being one hundred and twelve pounds avoirdupois.

Act March 2, 1861, c. 68, § 26, 12 Stat. 196.

The words "merchandise," "port," and "master" were defined by R. S. §§ 2766, 2767, 2768, ante, §§ 5462–5464.

Cited without definite application, Earnshaw v. Cadwalader (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 851, 855, 145 U. S. 247, 36 L. Ed. 693.

(R. S. § 2952. Repealed.)

This section defined the words "value" and "valued" as used in this chapter. It was repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, and the construction of the words "value," or "actual market value," when used in any law relating to the appraisement of imported merchandise, was prescribed by section 19 of that act, which section, as amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, was substantially re-enacted by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, R, ante, § 5599.

§ 5637. (R. S. § 2953.) What buildings may be leased.

Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent the leasing or hiring of such buildings or accommodations as may be required for the use of the United States appraisers for the due examination and appraisal of imported merchandise at the ports where such officers are provided by law, nor to prohibit the leasing or hiring by collectors of the customs, for short periods, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, of such stores as may be required for custom-house purposes at any of the smaller revenue ports of the United States.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 7, 10 Stat. 272.

CHAPTER SEVEN

The Bond and Warehouse System

Sec.
5638. Lease of warehouses authorized.
5639. Restrictions.
5640. Use of leased warehouses.
5641. Limitation of leases.
5642. Cellars, vaults, and yards.
5643. Storage of grain.
5644. Private warehouses.
5645. Bond of proprietor.
5646. Deposit of merchandise at option of owners.
5647. Deposit for want of invoice.
5648. Deposit upon nonpayment of duties.
5649. Unclaimed merchandise may be stored in bonded warehouses.
5650. Deposit of imported liquors in bonded warehouse.
5651. Stamps and brands to be effaced on emptying packages of imported liquors; penalty for failure.
5652. Dealing in or using empty casks or packages used to contain imported liquors, with stamps, etc., thereon; penalty.
5653. Importations in vessels.
5654. For Albany.
5655. Custody of goods not unladen in time.
5656. Withdrawal for consumption; perishable or explosive articles.
5657. Withdrawal for exportation; sale of abandoned goods after custody for three years.
5657a. Extension of time during which merchandise for exportation to Mexico may remain in bonded warehouse.
5658. Distribution of proceeds.
5659. Sale after one year.
5660. Distribution of proceeds.
5661. Sale of perishable articles.
5662. Sale upon depreciation.
5663. Return of duties upon exportation from warehouse.
5664. Restriction upon exportation for drawback.
5665. Permit for exportation.
5666. Manner of withdrawal.
5667. Lien for freight.
5668. Supplies to vessels of war.

Sec.
5669. Supplies for vessels in foreign trade or in trade between Atlantic and Pacific ports.
5670. Materials for construction, etc., and supplies for vessels employed in fisheries or in whaling.
5671. Bonded warehouses for storage and cleansing of imported rice.
5671a. Bonded warehouses for storage and cleansing of imported garbanzo; withdrawals for domestic consumption; compensation of customs officers and storekeepers.
5672. Bonded manufacturing warehouses.
5673. Smelting works as bonded warehouse.
5674. Articles shipped to Philippines entitled to drawback.
5675. Drawback on articles re-exported to Philippines.
5676. No allowance for leakage, etc.
5677. Abatement and refund in case of injury by casualties.
5678. Penalty for obliterating marks.
5679. Penalty for unlawfully opening warehouse.
5680. Penalty for fraudulent remov etc.
5681. Report of merchandise in wa house.
5682. Warehouse regulations.
5683. Regulations for bonded wa houses, general order stor etc.; customs officers not have interest.
5684. Public cartage to be let to lo est bidder; regulations.
5685. Withdrawal for rewarehousing another district.
5686. Penalty for failure to transpo
5687. Withdrawal for exportation Mexico.
5688. Through port of Lavaca.
5689. By Eagle Pass.
5690. Transportation in bond to forei countries.
5691. Transportation over foreign t ritory.
5692. Exemption from fees.
5693. Forfeiture for relanding export merchandise.
5694. Bonded privileges for export tions to British Columbia Northwest Territory.

§ 5638. (R. S. § 2954.) Lease of warehouses authorized.

The Secretary of the Treasury may, at his discretion, lease suc warehouses as he deems necessary for the storage of unclaime goods, or goods which for any other reason are required by law t be stored by the Government.

Res. Feb. 14, 1850, No. 4, § 1, 9 Stat. 560.

The establishment of bonded warehouses for the storage and cleansing of i ported rice intended for exportation was authorized by Act March 24, 1874, 65, post, § 5671.

Provisions for manufacturing goods for export in bonded warehouses, and f smelting works as bonded warehouses, were made by the Underwood Tariff A of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, M, N, post, §§ 5672, 5673, which superseded simil provisions made by preceding tariff acts.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. 25 Packages of Panama Hats (1913) 34 Sup. Ct. 63, 64, 231 U. 358, 58 L. Ed. 267.

§ 5639. (R. S. § 2955.) Restrictions.

No leases shall be entered into by the United States for any war houses for the storage of warehoused or unclaimed merchandise a any port where there may exist any private bonded warehouses Provided, That such buildings may be leased as may be require for the use of appraisers for the examination and appraisal of im ported merchandise at ports where such officers are provided b law; and collectors may lease, for short periods, at any of the smal er ports, such stores as may be required for custom-house purpose with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 7, 10 Stat. 272.

Other provisions relating to the leasing or hiring of buildings, etc., for th use of appraisers, or by collectors, for short periods, for custom house pu poses, at small ports, were made by R. S. § 2953, ante, § 5637.

Customs officers were prohibited from owning or being interested in bonde warehouses by Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 24, post, § 5683.

§ 5640. (R. S. § 2956.) Use of leased warehouses.

All warehouses hired by the collector, naval officer, or surveyo shall be on public account, and paid for by the collector as suc and shall be appropriated exclusively to the use of receiving fo gn merchandise, subject, as to the rates of storage, to regulation the Secretary of the Treasury.

Act March 3, 1841, c. 35, § 6, 5 Stat. 432.

5641. (R. S. § 2957.) Limitation of leases.

No collector or other officer of the customs shall enter into any ntract or agreement for the use of any building to be thereafter ected as a public store or warehouse, and no lease of any building be so used shall be taken for a longer period than three years, r shall rent be paid, in whole or in part, in any case, in advance.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 7, 10 Stat. 272.

Cited without definite application,
Holt v. Nixon (1905) 141 Fed. 952, 953, 73 C. C. A. 268.

5642. (R. S. § 2958.) Cellars, vaults, and yards.

Cellars and vaults of stores for the storage of wines and distilled irits only, and yards for the storage of coal, mahogany, and other oods and lumber, may, at the discretion of the Secretary of the easury, be constituted bonded warehouses for the storage of such ticles under the same regulations and conditions as required in e storage of other merchandise; the cellars or vaults shall be exusively appropriated to the storage of wines or distilled spirits, d shall have no opening or entrance except the one from the eet, on which separate and different locks of the custom-house d the owner or proprietor of the cellars or vaults shall be placed.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 1, 10 Stat. 271.

5643. (R. S. § 2959.) Storage of grain.

Parts of such building as shall be approved by the Secretary of e Treasury may be bonded for the storage of grain, under such les, regulations, and conditions as he may prescribe for the serity of the revenue.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 37, 14 Stat. 187.

5644. (R. S. § 2960.) Private warehouses.

Private warehouses shall be used solely for the purpose of storg warehoused merchandise, and shall be previously approved by e Secretary of the Treasury, and be placed in charge of a proper ficer of the customs, who, together with the owner and proprietor the warehouse, shall have the joint custody of all the merchandise ored in the warehouse; and all the labor on the merchandise so ored must be performed by the owner or proprietor of the wareuse, under the supervision of the officer of the customs in charge the same, at the expense of the owner or proprietor.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 1, 10 Stat. 270.

See, also, the Warehouse Act Aug. 11, 1916, c. 313, part C, post, §§ 8747¾–8747¾pp.

Notes of Decisions

Rights and authority of warehouseman.—After the duty on imported goods ich have been deposited in a private nded warehouse has been paid and withdrawal permit issued, the govnment has no further concern with e goods, and the right to withhold or iver same rests with the warehouseen alone. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 2.

The collector of customs has no aurity to interfere or direct the United ites storekeeper to interfere in a ntroversy between the importers and e warehouseman and deliver the ods. Id.

The Secretary of the Treasury is under no obligation and can not properly grant authority to compel a warehouse company to deliver certain goods for export, where, notwithstanding the permit of the collector, delivery is refused because of the nonproduction of a warehouse certificate. (1898) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 152.

A warehouse is a private institution in charge of a public officer, and the Secretary of the Treasury may establish rules and regulations not inconsistent with law for the due execution of the laws relating thereto and to secure a just accountability under the same. Id.

The private rights of the warehouseman and those having relations with him as such are in no wise affected by this joint custody, providing the rights of the government in and about the collection of its customs are not interfered with. Id.

Under former act.—See Corkle v. Maxwell (C. C. 1856) Fed. Cas. No. 3231; Harriman v. Maxwell (C. C. 1856) Fed. Cas. No. 6,105; Clark Peaslee (C. C. 1860) Fed. Cas. 2,831; Ogden v. Barney (C. C. 18 Fed. Cas. No. 10,454.

Cited without definite applicati Franklin Sugar Refining Co. v. U. (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 720, 722, 202 U. 580, 50 L. Ed. 1153.

§ 5645. (R. S. § 2961.) Bond of proprietor.

Before any of the stores or cellars, owned or occupied by p vate individuals, shall be used as a warehouse for merchandise i ported by other merchants or importers, the owner, occupant, lessee thereof shall enter into bond, in such sums and with su sureties as may be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, e onerating and holding harmless the United States and its office from or on account of any risk, loss, or expense of any kind description, connected with or arising from the deposit or keepi of the merchandise in the warehouses; and all imports deposit in any public or private warehouse authorized by this Title sha be at the sole and exclusive risk and expense of the owner or in porter.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 3, 10 Stat. 271.

Notes of Decisions

Validity of bonds.—A bond voluntarily given to the United States as security is valid and binding, if the United States, in their political and corporate capacity, have a legal, pecuniary interest in the performance of its condition, although not expressly required or authorized by any act of congress. U. S. v. Howell (C. C. 1826) Fed. Cas. No. 15,405; Same v. Humason (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 15,420; Same v. Garlinghouse (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 15,189.

Though the bond given by the owner of a warehouse does not in all respects comply with the requirements of the statute, yet, if there be a substantial compliance and the building is constructed, secured, and used as a bond warehouse, and is entered as such the treasury "Registry of Warehouse Customs," it must be deemed a bon ed warehouse in the settlement of th collector's accounts and the ascertai ment of the compensation due to hi Ellsworth v. U. S. (1878) 14 Ct. C 382.

The validity of a bond of security gi en to the United States, so far as it de pends upon the capacity of the partie to make it, is to be governed by the la of the place where it is made. U. S v. Garlinghouse (D. C. 1870) Fed. Ca No. 15,189.

§ 5646. (R. S. § 2962.) Deposit of merchandise at option of own ers.

Any merchandise subject to duty, with the exception of perish able articles, also gunpowder, and other explosive substances, ex cept fire-crackers, which shall have been duly entered and bonde for warehousing, in conformity with existing laws, may be depos ited, at the option of the owner, importer, consignee, or agent, a his expense and risk, in any public warehouse owned or leased b the United States, or in the private warehouse of the importer, th same being used exclusively for the storage of warehoused merchan dise of his own importation or to his consignment, or in a privat warehouse used by the owner, occupant, or lessee, as a general ware house for the storage of warehoused merchandise; such place o storage to be designated on the warehouse-entry at the time o entering such merchandise at the custom-house.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 1, 10 Stat. 270. Act June 30, 1864, c. 171, 19, 13 Stat. 216.

Notes of Decisions

Reimported goods.—Where domestic merchandise, exported in good faith, has been imported back again, and is subject to duty, it is entitled to be admitted to entry for storage in a bonded warehouse. (1886) 18 Op. Atty. Ge 381.

Opium.—Smoking opium may b brought into a port of the Unite States from a foreign country on on essel and lawfully transferred to another vessel for immediate transportation to a foreign destination. (1909) 7 Op. Atty. Gen. 440.

Opium could not, under the laws xisting at the time of the passage of ie act of Feb. 9, 1909 (35 Stat. 614), e brought into a port of this country rom a foreign country and exported rom the same port on another vessel ithout being subject to duty. Id.

Since the act of Feb. 9, 1909, which rohibits absolutely the importation of pium in any form, smoking opium is ot subject to duty, and cannot under ny circumstances be entered and onded for warehousing; and the law hich made the bringing of opium nto a port an importation for such urposes is, as to smoking opium, rezaled. Id.

The entering of merchandise for imediate exportation and without any tent that it shall enter into the comerce of a country is not an imporation. Id.

Replevin of goods.—The state court as jurisdiction of a replevin suit to recover goods from the keeper of a bonded warehouse, a quasi federal official, where the United States itself does not claim them. McButt v. Murray (1860) 10 Abb. Prac. 196.

Care of warehouseman.—The provision that goods deposited in a private bonded warehouse authorized by that act shall be at the exclusive risk of the owner or importer was intended solely for the benefit of the government, and does not relieve the warehouse keeper from the duty of exercising ordinary care and prudence, nor from the liabilities of other warehousemen to their patrons. The failure of a bonded warehouseman to deliver upon demand goods deposited with him, on which the duties have been paid, casts upon him the burden of accounting for them. Schwerin v. McKie (1872) 51 N. Y. 181, 10 Am. Rep. 581, affirming (1868) 28 N. Y. Super. Ct. (5 Rob.) 404.

Cited without definite application, Saltonstall v. Russell (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 733, 734, 152 U. S. 628, 38 L. Ed. 576.

5647. (R. S. § 2963.) Deposit for want of invoice.

When merchandise, imported into the United States, has not been ntered in pursuance of the provisions of any act regulating imports nd tonnage, the same shall be deposited in the public warehouse, nd shall there remain, at the expense and risk of the owner, until uch invoice is produced. Nothing herein contained shall be undertood to prohibit the sale of such quantities of merchandise so stored s may be necessary to discharge the duties thereon, and all interening charges, at the time or times when such duties shall become ue and payable.

Act March 1, 1823, c. 21, § 3, 3 Stat. 730.

Notes of Decisions

Storage charges.—Where merchandise entered by appraisement without inoice, and the entry is incomplete for ant of particulars, and is taken into e custody of the collector and conveyd to a warehouse, the charges for torage and labor are legal. Hemptead v. Cadwalader (C. C. 1890) 42 ed. 529.

See § 5621, ante, as to storing goods with incomplete manifests.

Cited without definite application, Ex parte Fassett (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 295, 298, 142 U. S. 479, 35 L. Ed. 1087; One Pearl Chain v. U. S. (1903) 123 Fed. 371, 374, 59 C. C. A. 499.

5648. (R. S. § 2964.) Deposit upon nonpayment of duties.

In all cases of failure or neglect to pay the duties within the eriod allowed by law to the importer to make entry thereof, or henever the owner, importer, or consignee shall make entry for arehousing the same, in writing, in such form and supported by uch proof as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, he merchandise shall be taken possession of by the collector, and eposited in the public stores, or in other stores to be agreed on y the collector or chief revenue officer of the port, and the imorter, owner, or consignee, such stores to be secured under the joint ocks of the inspector and importer, there to be kept, with due and easonable care, at the charge and risk of the owner, importer, onsignee, or agent, and subject at all times to their order, upon ayment of the proper duties and expenses, to be ascertained on due ntry thereof for warehousing, and to be secured by a bond of the owner, importer, or consignee, with surety to the satisfaction o the collector, in double the amount of the duties, and in such form as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe.

Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 84, § 1, 9 Stat. 53.

Notes of Decisions

Ordering goods to public store.—The right to deposit goods and draw them out on payment of duties was confined to a port of entry, unless extended by treasury regulations to port of delivery. Tremlett v. Adams (1851) 13 How. 295, 302, 14 L. Ed. 152.

R. S. § 970, ante, § 1611, providing for a certificate of probable cause of seizure when judgment is given for the claimant, is confined to cases in which the collector or other officer makes a seizure, followed by a suit or prosecution in the name of the United States for a penalty or forfeiture, and does not apply where a vessel is simply detained, under this section, for nonpayment of duties claimed. A certificate given in such a case does not protect the collector from a judgment for damages. The Conqueror (1897) 17 S. Ct. 510, 514, 166 U. S. 110, 41 L. Ed. 937, reversing decree (D. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 99.

No custom-house officer has authority to order goods to the public store after the duties have been paid and a permit to land given to the consignee. Rowland v. Miln (1858) 2 Hilt. 150.

Bonds in general.—Under the sixty-second section of the duty act of 1799, in the case of teas, the duties are "secured to be paid" by the single bond of the importer, with a deposit of the teas. U. S. v. Three Hundred and Fifty Chests of Tea (1827) 25 U. S. (12 Wheat.) 486, 6 L. Ed. 702.

An instrument not in the form of a bond with a penal sum and condition, but containing the requirements of the statute (Act 1854, c. 30), where the obligors were not prejudiced by the form, held a sufficient bond under the statute. U. S. v. Pingree (D. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 16,050.

—— Construction and operation.—A bond to secure duties is not an extinguishment of the debt, but merely a collateral security therefor. U. S. v. Lyman (C. C. 1818) Fed. Cas. No. 15,647.

Warehouse bonds must be interpreted in reference to statutes and authorized regulations under the warehouse system, and to this extent they are regarded as parts of the contract of suretyship. U. S. v. De Visser (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 642.

—— Liability.—Where original importers have entered goods for warehouse, and given a bond to secure the duties, and have subsequently sold the goods in bond and authorized the vendees to withdraw them from warehouse on payment of duties, and the goods are withdrawn without payment of the proper duties in full, the original importers are liable on their bond, after the withdrawal of the goods, for the balance of duties unpaid, and which should have been paid on the last withdrawal. U. S. v. Minturn (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 15,783, affirmed in (1882) 106 U. S. 437, 1 Sup. Ct. 402, 27 L. Ed. 208.

—— Defenses to action.—It is no defense to an action on a duty bond for goods deposited in a public storehouse in Savannah that the principal actually paid, under compulsion, the duties to the Confederate collector. U. S. v. Low (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,634.

Nor is it a defense that there was no United States collector to whom payment could be made during the three years within which the duties were to be paid by the terms of the bond. Id.

—— Rights and priorities of sureties.—Sureties in warehouse bonds have the same rights and liabilities as ordinary sureties, except as modified by the special laws and regulations concerning the collection of revenue. U. S. v. De Visser (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 642, 647.

—— Discharge of sureties.—An importer entered sugars at the custom house, and gave bond with sureties for the "payment of the proper duties." He afterwards sold the sugars in bond, giving the purchaser, who agreed to pay the duties as part of the purchase price, a written authority on which the sugars were withdrawn; but the duties,—a less sum than that specified in the bond,—were not paid. Held, that the obligors on the bond did not become merely sureties, with the goods as primary security, and are not released because the officers of the government unlawfully parted with the goods without exacting payment of the duties. Minturn v. U. S. (1882) 106 U. S. 437, 1 Sup. Ct. 402, 27 L. Ed. 208.

A reliquidation of duties made after delivery of the goods and after the lapse of the period named in a warehouse bond held unenforceable against the surety. U. S. v. Campbell (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 816, 821.

The liquidation of duties fixes for the time being the amount of duties to which the goods are "subject by law." On a bond conditioned for withdrawal of the goods within one year, "on payment of the duties and charges to which they may be subject by law at the time of such withdrawal," held, that a payment of the duties as liquidated was a arge of the bond, and that, upon osequent reliquidation, no recovery l be had against the surety, though mporter would be liable for the adnal amount. U. S. v. Georgi (D. 890) 44 Fed. 255, 256.

Cited without definite application, Ex parte Fassett (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 295, 298, 142 U. S. 479, 35 L. Ed. 1087; American Cigar Co. v. U. S. (1906) 146 Fed. 484, 487, 77 C. C. A. 40.

549. (R. S. § 2965.) Unclaimed merchandise may be stored in bonded warehouses.

nclaimed merchandise required by existing laws to be taken session of by collectors of the customs may be stored in any lic warehouse owned or leased by the United States, or in any ate bonded warehouse authorized by this Title, and all charges storage, labor, and other expenses accruing on any such merndise, not to exceed in any case the regular rates for such obs at the port in question, must be paid before delivery of the ds on due entry thereof by the claimant or owner; or if sold nclaimed goods, to realize the import duties, the charges shall paid by the collector out of the proceeds of the sale thereof be paying such proceeds into the Treasury as required by exist laws.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 2, 10 Stat. 271.

Notes of Decisions

harges.—Where uninvoiced and unned goods of less than $100 in e are sent to a general order ehouse, and afterwards, on claim g made, are sent to the public e for examination and appraiset, the charges for cartage, and storage and labor at the pubtore, may be exacted from the imer. Kennedy v. Magone (1895) Sup. Ct. 814, 815, 158 U. S. 212, 39 Ed. 954.

Withdrawal of goods.—Goods imported before the act of August 27, 1894 (28 Stat. 509), and then deposited in store as "unclaimed merchandise," under this section, may be withdrawn for consumption at the new rates of duty at any time within three years from the date of original importation, as long as they remain unsold. If sold, however, the duties to be deducted from the proceeds of sale are those of the act of 1890. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 116.

650. (Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 11.) Deposit of imported liquors in bonded warehouse.

ll distilled spirits, wines, and malt liquors, imported in pipes, sheads, tierces, barrels, casks, or other similar packages, shall first placed in public store or bonded warehouse, and shall not removed therefrom until the same shall have been inspected, rked, and branded by a United States customs-gauger, and a np affixed to each package, indicating the date and particulars of h inspection; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby aurized to prescribe the form of, and provide, the requisite stamps, to make all regulations which he may deem necessary and proper carrying the foregoing requirements into effect. Any pipe, hogsd, tierce, barrel, cask, or other package withdrawn from public e or bonded warehouse after the thirtieth day of June, eighteen dred and seventy-nine, purporting to contain imported liquor, nd without having thereon the stamp hereby required, shall be, its contents, forfeited to the United States; and whenever any or package of imported distilled spirits of not less than five wineons is filled for shipment, sale, or delivery on the premises of any lesale liquor-dealer, the same shall be stamped with a special stamp imported spirits, under such rules and regulations as the Commisner of Internal Revenue has prescribed, or may hereafter prescribe, he case of domestic distilled spirits. (20 Stat. 342.)

This section and the two sections next following were part of "An Act to amend the laws relating to internal revenue," cited above, appearing therein under the heading "Imported-Liquor Stamps, &c." Other sections of act are incorporated in provisions set forth under Title XXXV, "Internal Re nue."

Notes of Decisions

Forfeiture.—Wine and spirits saved from a wreck and landed are not liable to forfeiture because unaccompanied by such marks and certificates as are required by law. Peisch v. Ware (1808) 8 U. S. (4 Cranch) 347, 2 Ed. 643.

Decisions under prior acts.—See U v. Halberstadt (D. C. 1832) Fed. C No. 15,276; King v. McEvoy (1862) Mass. (4 Allen) 110.

§ 5651. (Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 12, as amended, Act May 1880, c. 108, § 12.) Stamps and brands to be effaced on empt ing packages of imported liquors; penalty for failure.

Every person who empties or draws off, or causes to be empti or drawn off, the contents of any package of imported liquc stamped as above required, shall, at the time of such emptyin efface, obliterate, and destroy the stamp thereon, and also all ot er marks or brands which shall have been placed thereon accordance with the law or regulations concerning imported li uors; every cask or other package from which the stamp for in ported liquors required by this act to be placed thereon sha not be effaced, obliterated, or destroyed, on emptying such pac age, shall be forfeited, and the same may be seized by any offic of internal revenue wherever found; and all the provisions an penalties of section thirty-three hundred and twenty-four of th Revised Statutes of the United States, relating to empty casks c packages from which the marks, brands, or stamps have not bee effaced or obliterated, and relating to the removal of stamps fro packages, and to having in possession any stamps so removed, sha apply to the stamps for imported spirits herein provided for, an to the casks or other packages on which such stamps shall hav been used. (20 Stat. 342. 21 Stat. 148.)

This section was amended by striking out after the words "the law or regu lations concerning imported liquors" the words "and no cask or other packag such as is hereinbefore mentioned, in which distilled spirits, wines, or ma liquors have been imported, shall be used to contain domestic distilled spirit under penalty of the forfeiture of such reused cask or package and the co tents thereof," as set forth here, by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 12, last cite above.

R. S. § 3324, mentioned in this section, making punishable, as a felony, fai ing to efface marks, brands, or stamps, required by law to be placed on casks o packages of distilled spirits, from such casks or packages at the time of empt ing them, is set forth post, § 6105.

Notes of Decisions

Obliterating marks and stamps.—See notes under § 6105, post, as to effacing stamps and brands from empty casks.

It is not an offense to have in possession an uncanceled stamp that has been used on a package of imported liquors, unless such stamp was removed therefrom by some person intentionally, without being defaced or destroyed. U. S. v. Spiegel (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 587, 116 U. S. 270, 29 L. Ed. 664.

A person is not liable for the act of his clerk who purchased and removed to his store an empty cask, which had contained foreign distilled spirits, without removal of the marks thereon, where done without his knowledge or acquiescence. U. S. v. Halberstadt (D. C. 1832) Fed. Cas. No. 15,276.

Refilling container.—It is no cause of forfeiture that the casks marked and accompanied with the required certificates contain distilled spirits which have not been imported in the United State or a mixture of domestic with foreig spirits; it being the object of the act t secure the revenue without interferin with mercantile devices looking only t individual profit without defrauding th government. Sixty Pipes of Brand (1825) 10 Wheat. 421, 422, 6 L. Ed. 356

Effect of the change of the contents o a cask of imported spirits without fir obliterating the marks and surrenderin the certificate required by law. U. S v. Eighteen Pipes Distilled Spirits (D C. 1821) Fed. Cas. No. 15,033a.

Casks in which foreign distilled spir its have been imported cannot be use to contain domestic distilled spirit though the stamps thereon have bee effaced and destroyed. U. S. v. Hal Barrel, etc. (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. N 15,280.

It is unlawful to fill with domesti tax-paid spirits any casks in whic oreign spirits have been imported, even here the brands, stamps, and marks equired by law have been removed. . S. v. One-Half Barrel Brandy (D. C. 879) Fed. Cas. No. 15,931.

Wrecked goods.—This section and the receding sections do not comprehend recked goods. Peisch v. Ware (1808) Cranch, 347, 360, 2 L. Ed. 643.

Indictment.—As the offense described R. S. § 3324, post, § 6105, as amend-d by this section, is committed by the emoval, without destroying, of stamps om a cask containing distilled spirits, whether such spirits be foreign or domestic, it is not necessary in the indictment to describe the spirits as domestic in order to charge an offense. U. S. v. Bayaud (C. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 376.

Decision under prior act.—See U. S. v. Austin (C. C. 1864) Fed. Cas. No. 14,-480; U. S. v. Halberstadt (D. C. 1832) Fed. Cas. No. 15,276.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

5652. (Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 13, as amended, Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 13.) Dealing in or using empty casks or packages used to contain imported liquors, with stamps, etc., thereon; penalty.

If any person shall purchase or sell, with the imported-liquor tamp herein required remaining thereon, or any of the marks or rands which shall have been placed thereon in accordance with he laws or regulations concerning imported liquors remaining there-n, any cask or other package, after the same has been once used o contain imported liquors and has been emptied; or if any person hall use or have in possession such cask or package, with any imita-ion of such marks or brands, for the purpose of placing domestic istilled spirits therein for sale; every such cask or package, with its ontents, if any, shall be forfeited to the United States. And ev-ry such person who shall violate any of the provisions of this sec-ion shall be liable to a penalty of two hundred dollars for every uch cask or package so purchased, sold, used, or had in possession. 20 Stat. 343. 21 Stat. 148.)

This section was amended by striking out after the words "for the purpose of placing domestic distilled spirits therein for sale," the words "or shall, for such purpose, manufacture, use, or have in possession any cask or package made in imitation of, or intended to be in similitude of, such imported casks or packages, with any imitation of such marks or brands thereon," and by striking out after the words "package so purchased, sold," in the last sentence of the section, the word "manufactured," to make the section read as set forth here, by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 13, last cited above.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

5653. (R. S. § 2966, as amended, Act June 26, 1884, c. 121, § 24.) Importations in vessels.

When merchandise shall be imported into any port of the Unit-d States from any foreign country in vessels, and it shall appear y the bills of lading that the merchandise so imported is to be lelivered immediately after the entry of the vessel, the collector f such port may take possession of such merchandise and deposit he same in bonded warehouse; and when it does not appear by he bills of lading that the merchandise so imported is to be imme-liately delivered, the collector of the customs may take possession f the same and deposit it in the bonded warehouse, at the request f the owner, master, or consignee of the vessel, on three days' notice to such collector after the entry of the vessel.

Act Aug. 3, 1854, c. 196, 10 Stat. 344. Act June 26, 1884, c. 121, § 24, 23 Stat. 58.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out after the words "from any foreign country in vessels" the words "propelled in whole or in part by steam," as set forth here, by Act June 26, 1884, c. 121, § 24, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

Decisions under former statute.—There is no statutory provision regard-ng the time for removal, but as the weighing, gauging, numbering, identifying, etc., of the goods can best be performed while they are on the dock, and as the interests of all concerned are promoted by allowing some interval of time before removal, the collector in the absence of any regulations from his superior officer may be considered as having a lawful discretion within reasonable limits in regard to the moment of removal. The Egypt (D. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 320, 332.

Regulations No. 3230, 3259, 3278 of the Secretary of the Treasury, regarding the interval to be allowed between the landing of goods and their removal, are a proper exercise of discretion as to such time. Id.

Section 2966, Rev. St., in saying that the goods should be kept at the risk and expense of the consignees, evidently means as between the collector and the consignees, without reference to wh the parties may have agreed upon in bill of lading. Id.

The word "delivery," in this secti does not mean delivery to the consign it means delivery in the sense of unl ing or discharging from the ship. Id.

This section is designed for the b efit of the government, and not to empt the ship from any responsibili The Egypt (D. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 3 332, 333; The Surrey (D. C. 1886) Fed. 791, 797, reversed (C. C. 1889) Fed. 90.

Cited without definite applicati Constable v. National S. S. Co. (18 14 Sup. Ct. 1062, 1071, 154 U. S. 51, L. Ed. 903.

(R. S. § 2967. Superseded.)

This section provided that merchandise imported into the port of Louisvi and destined for Jeffersonville, might be landed and warehoused at Jeffers ville, under the custody and control of the surveyor of the port of Louisvil

It was superseded by the Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service p suant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

§ 5654. (R. S. § 2968.) For Albany.

The Secretary of the Treasury may extend the privileges of t provisions relating to warehouses, and the regulations of the Trea ury Department relating thereto, to the port of Albany.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 178, § 3, 14 Stat. 542.

Albany was made a port of entry by the Plan of Reorganization of the C toms Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, an § 5327.

Immediate transportation of imported merchandise to certain inland ports, bond, without appraisement, was allowed by Act June 10, 1880, c. 190, a later provisions set forth post, under chapter 7A of this Title, "Immedi Transportation in Bond to Inland Ports."

The ports at which bonded warehouses were established were named in t following list published in the Treasury Department's Circular of July 1913:

"List of ports at which bonded warehouses are established:

Albany, N. Y.	Gloucester, Mass.	Plattsburg, N. Y.
Baltimore, Md.	Grand Rapids, Mich.	Port Huron, Mich.
Bangor, Me.	Green Bay, Wis.	Portal, N. D.
Bath, Me.	Hartford, Conn.	Portland, Me.
Belfast, Me.	Honolulu, Hawaii.	Portland, Or.
Boston, Mass.	Houston, Tex.	Portsmouth, N. H.
Bridgeport, Conn.	Indianapolis, Ind.	Port Townsend, Wash.
Brownsville, Tex.	Kansas City, Mo.	Providence, R. I.
Brunswick, Ga.	Key West, Fla.	Richmond, Va.
Buffalo, N. Y.	Laredo, Tex.	Rochester, N. Y.
Burlington, Vt.	Lincoln, Neb.	St. Joseph, Mo.
Cape Vincent, N. Y	Los Angeles, Cal.	St. Louis, Mo.
Castine, Me.	Louisville, Ky.	St. Michael, Alaska.
Chattanooga, Tenn.	Memphis, Tenn.	St. Paul, Minn.
Chicago, Ill.	Minneapolis, Minn.	Salem, Mass.
Cincinnati, Ohio	Milwaukee, Wis.	San Diego, Cal.
Columbus, Ohio.	New Haven, Conn.	San Francisco, Cal.
Corry, Pa.	New London, Conn.	San Juan, P. R.
Dayton, Ohio.	New Orleans, La.	Sault Ste. Marie, Mich
Denver, Colo.	Newport News, Va.	Savannah, Ga.
Detroit, Mich.	Newark, N. J.	Seattle, Wash.
Duluth, Minn.	New York, N. Y.	Spokane, Wash.
Eagle Pass, Tex.	Niagara Falls, N. Y.	Springfield, Mass.
Eastport, Me.	Ogdensburg, N. Y.	Superior, Wis.
El Paso, Tex.	Omaha, Neb.	Syracuse, N. Y.
Evansville, Ind.	Oswego, N. Y.	Tacoma, Wash.
Everett, Wash.	Pensacola, Fla.	Tampa, Fla.
Fall River, Mass.	Perth Amboy, N. J.	Toledo, Ohio.
Fernandina, Fla.	Petersburg, Va.	Utica, N. Y.
Galveston, Tex.	Philadelphia, Pa.	Wilmington, Del.
Gladstone, Mich.	Pittsburgh, Pa.	Wilmington, N. C."

The "ports where no bonded warehouse of class 3 is established, but where the customhouse premises are used for storage of bonded merchandise," were named in the following list published in the Treasury Department's Circular of July 1, 1913:

Aguadilla, P. R.
Arecibo, P. R.
Arroyo, P. R.
Birmingham, Ala.
Charleston, S. C.
Fajardo, P. R.
Humacao, P. R.
Jacksonville, Fla.
Knoxville, Tenn.
Marquette, Mich.
Mayaguez, P. R.
Nashville, Tenn.
Norfolk, Va.
Peoria, Ill.
Ponce, P. R.
St. Augustine, Fla.
Sandusky, Ohio.
Washington, D. C. (Georgetown).
Worcester, Mass.

655. (R. S. § 2969.) Custody of goods not unladen in time.

ll merchandise of which the collector shall take possession un- the provisions relating to the time for the discharge of a ves- s cargo shall be kept with due and reasonable care at the charge l risk of the owner.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 56, 1 Stat. 669.

Notes of Decisions

jject of section.—This section is de- ed for the benefit of the government, not to exempt the ship from any re- sibility. The Egypt (D. C. 1885) Fed. 320, 333; The Surrey (D. C.) 26 Fed. 791, 797, reversed (C. 889) 40 Fed. 90.

demnity.—As a condition of grant- a definite interval for the goods to remain on the dock, the collector may demand of the ship indemnity for the obligation which the law imposes upon him during such interval. The Egypt (D. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 320, 333.

Cited without definite application, Constable v. National S. S. Co. (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 1062, 1071, 154 U. S. 51, 38 L. Ed. 903.

(R. S. § 2970. Superseded.)

This section authorized the withdrawal of merchandise, deposited in bond, for consumption within one year from the date of the original importation on payment of duties and charges to which it might be subject by law at the time of the withdrawal, and provided that merchandise might be withdrawn for consumption after the expiration of such one year and until the expiration of three years on payment of the duties assessed on the original entry and charges, and an additional duty of 10 per cent. of the amount of such duties and charges. It was superseded by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 20, 26 Stat. 140, as amended by the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 54, 26 Stat. 624, which, as further amended, was superseded by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, S, post, § 5656.

656. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, S.) Withdrawal for consumption; perishable or explosive articles.

S. Any merchandise deposited in any public or private bonded warehouse may be withdrawn for consumption within three years from date of original importation, on payment of the duties and charges which it may be subject by law at the time of such withdrawal: ovided, That nothing herein shall affect or impair existing provisions law in regard to the disposal of perishable or explosive articles. Stat. 189.)

This was a subdivision of section III of the Underwood Tariff Act, cited above.

See notes to subdivision B of said section, ante, § 5519.

This provision was originally enacted in the same language by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 20, 26 Stat. 140. That section was amended by inserting, after the words "Any merchandise" the words "in bond," by the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 54, 26 Stat. 624. A further amendment of the section by inserting therein, before the proviso set forth here, another proviso "that same rate of duty shall be collected thereon as may be imposed by law upon like articles of merchandise imported at the time of withdrawal," was made by Act Dec. 15, 1902, c. 1, 32 Stat. 753. The words "in bond" and the proviso so inserted were not included in the section as re-enacted by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 101, which was re-enacted in the same language by this act.

The disposal of perishable and explosive articles was provided for by R. § 2975, post, § 5661.

The provisions of the Customs Administrative Act of which this provision w a part, as amended by Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, were made applicable to articles coming into the United States from the Philippine Islands, by A March 8, 1902, c. 140, § 8, ante, § 5534.

Notes of Decisions

Withdrawal in general.—Merchandise on which the duties have been paid, and for the removal of which permits have been issued, which have been delivered to the storekeeper, is withdrawn from bonded warehouses for consumption, within the meaning of this section. Franklin Sugar Refining Co. v. U. S. (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 720, 721, 202 U. S. 580, 50 L. Ed. 1153.

Imported merchandise remaining in bond intended for sale and consumption held not entitled to be placed in other packages for preservation. W. H. Thomas & Sons Co. v. Barnett (1906) 144 Fed. 338, 75 C. C. A. 300; Id. (C. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 172.

An importer procured permits for the delivery of merchandise in a bonded warehouse, and filed them with the storekeeper, but did not actually withdraw the merchandise until some time later. Held, that the former action constituted a constructive withdrawal, and that the merchandise became subjected to the duties applicable at the time of the constructive withdrawal rather than of the actual withdrawal. Franklin Sugar Refining Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 563.

No officer of the government has power to extend for one year the time for the withdrawal of certain reimported whisky now in a bonded warehouse. (1893) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 642.

—— Liquidation of duties.—It is the legal duty of the collector to ascertain and liquidate the duties. U. S. v. Campbell (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 816.

Liquidation by the government is a condition precedent to the payment and withdrawal; and, in the absence of fraud, reliquidation should not be enforced against the surety after a delivery and payment of duties as once liquidated. Id.

—— Payment of duties and charges.—Imported merchandise is subjected to the rate of duty in force at the time of its withdrawal from a bonded warehouse for consumption, and not to the rate of duty in force at the time of the liquidation. Franklin Sugar Refining Co. v. U. S. (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 720, 202 U. S. 580, 50 L. Ed. 1153.

Where parts of a consignment which were warehoused under bond are fraudulently withdrawn without payment of duties, the collector may hold the remainder until duties on the entire consignment are paid. Hendricks v. Schmidt (1895) 68 Fed. 425, 15 C. C. A. 504.

The provision that merchandise in bonded warehouses may be withdrawn for consumption "on payment of t duties and charges to which it may subject by law at the time of sa withdrawal," means such payment the merchandise would be subject to imported at the time of withdraw Mosle v. Bidwell (1904) 130 Fed. 33 65 C. C. A. 533, reversing judgme (C. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 480.

The duty on tobacco entered f warehouse should be based on i weight at the time of withdrawal a not of entry. American Cigar Co. U. S. (1906) 146 Fed. 484, 77 C. A. 40, reversing judgment Falk v. S. (C. C. 1904) 145 Fed. 574, a judgment reversed U. S. v. G. Falk Bro. (1907) 27 Sup. Ct. 191, 204 U. 143, 51 L. Ed. 411.

When goods are withdrawn from warehouse, the collector may exact t proper rate of duty, where they ha been entered at too low a rate. Re mer v. Schell (C. C. 1859) Fed. Ca No. 11,676.

Imported goods, so long as they r main in a warehouse, are subject new revenue legislation, as well in r lation to duties as to alteration warehouse laws. U. S. v. Benzon (C C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 14,577; U. v. G. Amsinck & Co. (C. C. 1905) 14 Fed. 96.

By Act Oct. 1, 1890, it was provide that the duty on lumber importe should be reduced from $2 to $1 pe 1,000, but that, if any country shoul impose an export duty on logs for thi country, the duty on lumber should re main as before. The export duty o logs from Canada was removed Octo ber 13th. The lumber in question wa imported September 27th, and deposit ed in bond. It was not withdrawn un til October 16th. Held, that under th provision of section 54, that merchan dise deposited in bond may be with drawn within three years from th date of the original importation upo the payment of the duties and charge to which it may be subject by law a the time of its withdrawal, it shoul have been assessed only $1 per 1,000 In re Mathews (C. C. 1891) 45 Fed 850.

Certain goods were imported i 1893, and the duties were liquidate and paid. One case of goods of th same invoice went to a bonded ware house, and was withdrawn for con sumption, under the act of 1894, an the duties on that case were reassess ed at a reduced rate, under the latte act. The duties of the whole invoic were then added anew, without othe changes, and the entry was stamped a iquidated at that date. Held, that s action was not subject to protest, a new assessment and reliquidation. ot v. U. S. (C. C. 1897) 84 Fed. 9.

n the absence of a statute releasing m, the duties payable at the time withdrawal were such as accrued at time of importation, and hence the t that after importation from Porto co, but before withdrawal from the nded warehouse, Porto Rico had be- ne United States territory, would relieve the importer from liability customs duties. Mosle v. Bidwell . C. 1902) 119 Fed. 480, judgment ersed (1904) 130 Fed. 334, 65 C. A. 533.

The section refers exclusively to rate duty rather than weight of the mer- andise. Falk v. U. S. (C. C. 1904) 5 Fed. 574, judgment reversed nerican Cigar Co. v. U. S. (1906) 3 Fed. 484, 77 C. C. A. 40, which is versed U. S. v. G. Falk & Bros. 907) 27 Sup. Ct. 191, 204 U. S. 143, L. Ed. 411.

The liquidation of duties fixes for time being the amount of duties to ich the goods are "subject by law." a bond conditioned for withdrawal the goods within one year, "on pay- nt of the duties and charges to ich they may be subject by law at time of such withdrawal," held, t a payment of the duties as liqui- ed was a discharge of the bond, and t, upon a subsequent reliquidation, recovery could be had against the ety, though the importer would be ble for the additional amount. U. v. George (D. C. 1890) 44 Fed. 255, 3. When goods are entered or with- wn for consumption, all duties then rged against them, including penal ties, must be paid before the goods are released from government custody. (1896) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 418.

—— Date of original importation.—When goods are imported at New York and thence shipped in bond, without appraisement or liquidation, to Chicago, under the customs administrative act, the date of their arrival at New York must be considered the "date of original importation," within the meaning of the statute. Seeberger v. Schweyer (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 881, 153 U. S. 609, 38 L. Ed. 839.

As to goods which have been transported from an exterior port on first arrival to an interior port, the words "date of original importation" mean the date of arrival of the goods at the interior port of destination. Farwell v. Spalding (C. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 18.

Decisions under prior statutes.—See Fabbri v. Murphy (1877) 95 U. S. 191, 24 L. Ed. 468; Hartranft v. Oliver (1888) 125 U. S. 525, 8 Sup. Ct. 958, 31 L. Ed. 813; Sherman v. Robertson (1889) 136 U. S. 570, 10 Sup. Ct. 1063, 34 L. Ed. 540; Merritt v. Cameron (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 174, 177, 137 U. S. 542, 34 L. Ed. 772; Anglo-California Bank v. Secretary of Treasury (1896) 76 Fed. 742, 22 C. C. A. 527 (appeal dismissed [1899] 20 Sup. Ct. 19, 175 U. S. 37, 44 L. Ed. 64); Mosle v. Bidwell (1904) 130 Fed. 334, 65 C. C. A. 533 (reversing judgment [C. C. 1902] 119 Fed. 480); In re Schmid (C. C. 1893) 54 Fed. 145; Schmid v. U. S. (C. C. 1895) 66 Fed. 744; U. S. v. McGrath (D. C. 1892) 50 Fed. 404; (1890) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 668.

Cited without definite application, Saltonstall v. Russell (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 733, 734, 152 U. S. 628, 38 L. Ed. 576; U. S. v. Burr (1895) 15 Sup. Ct. 1002, 1004, 159 U. S. 78, 40 L. Ed. 82.

5657. (R. S. § 2971.) Withdrawal for exportation; sale of abandoned goods after custody for three years.

All merchandise which may be deposited in public store or bond- warehouse may be withdrawn by the owner for exportation to reign countries; or may be transshipped to any port of the Pa- ic or western coast of the United States at any time before the piration of three years from the date of original importation; ch goods on arrival at a Pacific or western port to be sub- ct to the same rules and regulations as if originally imported ere. Any goods remaining in public store or bonded warehouse yond three years shall be regarded as abandoned to the Gov- nment, and sold under such regulations as the Secretary of the easury may prescribe, and the proceeds paid into the Treasury. computing this period of three years, if such exportation or ansshipment of any merchandise shall, either for the whole or y part of the term of three years, have been prevented by reason any order of the President, the time during which such expor- tion or transshipment of such merchandise shall have been so evented shall be excluded from the computation. Merchandise thdrawn for exportation shall be subject only to the payment of ch storage and charges as may be due thereon.

Act July 14, 1862, c. 163, § 21, 12 Stat. 559. Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 4, 10 Stat. 271. Act Dec. 22, 1864, c. 9, 13 Stat. 420.

The limitation as to the period during which merchandise for exports to Mexico may remain in bonded warehouse was extended by Res. Sep 1916, No. 441, post, § 5657a.

Notes of Decisions

Repeal of section—Charges and duties.—This section was not repealed by the customs administrative act, the McKinley act, or the Wilson act; and where goods remained in warehouse beyond that time, prior to the date of the McKinley act, they could not be withdrawn from bond except by paying the duties in force at the time of their importation. Anglo-California Bank v. Secretary of Treasury (1896) 76 Fed. 742, 22 C. C. A. 527, affirming judgment In re Secretary of Treasury (C. C. 1895) 71 Fed. 505, certiorari denied Anglo-Californian Bank v. Secretary of Treasury (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 991, 166 U. S. 722, 41 L. Ed. 1188, appeal dismissed Anglo-Californian Bank v. U. S. (1899) 20 Sup. Ct. 19, 175 U. S. 37, 44 L. Ed. 64.

Act July 14, 1862, c. 163, § 21, repeals so much of the preceding laws as entitled the owners of goods remaining in bonded warehouses beyond three years from the date of their importation to claim the surplus of the proceeds of sale of such goods. (1866) 11 Op. Atty. Gen. 516.

Withdrawal for exportation, in general.—When imported goods have remained in bond beyond three years, and are thereupon deemed abandoned to the government by virtue of this section, the rights and liabilities of the parties become fixed at once, and the government is entitled to retain from the proceeds of their sale or to collect upon the bond the amount of duties according to the then existing law, though a different rate of duty goes into effect before sale. Buxbaum v. U. S. (1897) 80 Fed. 885, 26 C. C. A. 216.

Goods removed from a bonded warehouse and carried without the jurisdiction of the United States, and returned, are subject to duty, though not actually landed at a foreign port. McGlinchy v. U. S. (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 8,803; Perkins v. Same (C. C. 1875) Id. 10,990.

Goods which were imported under the tariff law of 1883, placed in a bonded warehouse, and remained therein more than three years prior to the enactment of the McKinley law (Act Oct. 1, 1890), could not be withdrawn for consumption upon payment of duties and charges at the rates prescribed in the McKinley law; nor, after the passage of the Wilson act (Aug. 28, 1894), could they be withdrawn at the rates prescribed thereby; for R. S. § 2970, and sections 2971–2973 (this compilation, §§ 5657–5659), which limit the time for leaving goods in bond to three years, and provide that thereafter the government may cause the same to be sold to enforce payment of the duties, were not repealed, either pressly or by implication, by the Kinley law or the Wilson law, and right of the government to enf payment of the duties and charges scribed by the act of 1883 was, u such circumstances, "a right accr so as to be within the saving claus section 54 of the McKinley law, the liability of the goods was "a li ity under a prior law," within the ing clause of the Wilson law. In Secretary of Treasury (C. C. 1895) Fed. 505, distinguishing In re Sch (C. C. 1893) 54 Fed. 145, and di proving U. S. v. Abbott (1885) 20 Cl. 281, and judgment affirmed An California Bank v. Secretary of Tr ury (1896) 76 Fed. 742, 22 C. C. 527.

Foreign goods once lawfully imp ed lose the character imparted to t by such admission on their re-expo tion, and cannot again be impo without a permit. Ten Cases of um (D. C. 1864) Fed. Cas. No. 13,

The provision that warehoused g not withdrawn within three y "shall be deemed abandoned to government and sold," was desig for the security of the governm and to recover its duties, and als secure the prompt payment of the ties. The sale by the governmen an incident of the abandonment, and inseparable part of the proceeding. S. v. De Visser (D. C. 1882) 10 642.

If goods remain in public store bonded warehouse beyond three ye the government acquires a right to them for the collection of charges the clearance of the warehouse. the goods are not forfeited, and be redeemed at any time before vertisement of sale. Abbot & Co. U. S. (1885) 20 Ct. Cl. 280.

Under this section the owner of m chandise in public store or bon warehouse has the right to withd it for exportation to a foreign coun whatever may be his object in d so, or whatever may be the disposi he designs to make of the merchan after it reaches its foreign destinat (1875) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 575.

The provision requiring merchan to be sold, is applicable to goods maining in public store or bon warehouse beyond three years, as where the duties thereon have b paid as where they have not been p At the end of that period they are be regarded as abandoned to the G ernment and sold. (1884) 17 Op. A Gen. 650.

The object and requirement of t provision are, however, sufficiently by the practice of the departme hereby, in lieu of a formal sale of e goods, the owner, consignee, or ent is permitted to pay the duties, arges, etc., that have accrued there- and take them away. Id.

This section places a limitation upon e privilege of exportation with re- nd of duties, and requires that it all be exercised within three years om the date of importation; other- ise the privilege is lost. Id.

Goods imported and warehoused for arly three years, then withdrawn and xported, and finally reshipped to the nited States by a different merchant, ere being no evidence that the trans- tion was a colorable one to evade e tariff laws, may be entered for arehousing as an "original importa- on" under this section. (1894) 21 Op. tty. Gen. 23.

The new rates of duty imposed by the riff act of August 27, 1894 (28 Stat. 9), do not apply to any goods there- fore entered for warehouse, unless e goods are withdrawn for consump- on within three years from the date original importation. (1895) 21 Op. tty. Gen. 116.

Smoking opium may be brought into port of the United States from a reign country on one vessel and law- lly transferred to another vessel for mediate transportation to a foreign stination. (1909) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 0.

Opium could not, under the laws ex- ing at the time of the passage of the t of February 9, 1909 (35 Stat. 614), brought into a port of this country om a foreign country and exported om the same port on another vessel thout being subject to duty. Id.

Since the act of February 9, 1909, hich prohibits absolutely the impor- tion of opium in any form, smoking ium is not subject to duty, and can- t under any circumstances be enter- and bonded for warehousing; and e law which made the bringing of ium into a port an importation for ch purposes is, as to smoking opium, pealed. Id.

The entering of merchandise for im- ediate exportation and without any tent that it shall enter into the com- erce of a country is not an importa- n. Id.

— Liability on bond.—The provisions at goods in government warehouse t withdrawn within three years shall deemed abandoned to the govern- ent and sold are a part of the contract the surety on the warehouse bond, they determine the duration of his sk. U. S. v. De Visser (D. C. 1882) Fed. 642.

The importer, being liable as prin- pal on the bond, is not discharged by postponement of the sale of aban- ned goods. Id.

Where goods not withdrawn from a vernment warehouse within three ars are deemed abandoned, and a sale directed according to the regulations of the treasury department, and the secretary of the treasury, at the request of the purchaser of the goods in bond, intervenes by order, and directs a postponement of the sale until further orders, without the consent of the surety on the warehouse bond, it discharges the latter. Id.

The statute directing a sale, the regulations for quarterly sales, and the sale of abandoned goods at the next sale, after three years, are all material parts of surety's contract, as they determine the duration of his risk. Id.

The proceeding by abandonment and sale is a substitute for the ordinary remedy upon the bond after the lapse of three years. The common-law remedy is suspended until after the sale of the goods. Id.

A surety's ordinary right to pay the debt and take possession of the goods, at the end of three years, is cut off by statute, and his right to pay any deficit, and to proceed for indemnity against his principal, is suspended till after the sale of the goods. Id.

A withdrawal and payment, according to the liquidation, is a fulfillment of the terms of the bond for the time being, and the surety cannot be held except upon the bond. U. S. v. Campbell (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 816.

The necessary continuance of a surety's risk does not exceed the three years named in the bond, or the additional period until sale of the goods not withdrawn. A reliquidation after the lapse of this period is not legal as to him, and would therefore involve an alteration in his contract. Id.

Under the provisions that warehouse goods not withdrawn within three years shall be deemed abandoned to the government and sold, the continuance of the risk of a surety on the warehouse bond does not exceed the three years named in the bond and the additional period until sale of the goods not withdrawn. Id.

Until after the sale of the goods by the customs officials the surety has no right of payment, subrogation, or suit for indemnity. His risk necessarily continues till that time. Id.

It is the duty of the collector, not of the surety, to ascertain and liquidate the duties, and such liquidation is final and conclusive upon all persons interested, unless appealed from. Id.

When the surety became liable for the withdrawal of the goods within three years, upon payment of the duties, and a reliquidation after seven years was made showing a deficiency, the surety was not liable for such deficiency. Id.

Cited without definite application, Hartranft v. Oliver (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 958, 960, 125 U. S. 525, 31 L. Ed. 813; Seeberger v. Schweyer (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 881, 882, 153 U. S. 609, 38 L. Ed. 839.

§ 5657a. (Res. Sept. 5, 1916, c. 441.) Extension of time duri which merchandise for exportation to Mexico may remain bonded warehouse.

The limitation of section twenty-nine hundred and seventy-o of the Revised Statutes of the United States as to the period du ing which merchandise may remain in bonded warehouse witho the payment of duty for exportation to Mexico be, and the sa hereby is, extended to all merchandise which was in bonded wa house on August first, nineteen hundred and sixteen, and intend for exportation to Mexico, until such time as in the opinion of t Secretary of the Treasury conditions in Mexico are such as to ma it commercially practicable to export the merchandise to that cou try. (39 Stat.)

This was a joint resolution approved September 5, 1916.

§ 5658. (R. S. § 2972.) Distribution of proceeds.

The Secretary of the Treasury, in case of any sale of any me chandise remaining in public store or bonded warehouse beyo three years, may pay to the owner, consignee, or agent of su merchandise, the proceeds thereof, after deducting duties, charge and expenses, in conformity with the provision relating to the sa of merchandise remaining in a warehouse for more than one yea

Act July 28, 1866, c. 298, § 10, 14 Stat. 330.

Notes of Decisions

Repeal of section.—This section was not repealed by the customs administrative act, the McKinley act, or the Wilson act; and where goods remained in warehouse beyond that time, prior to the date of the McKinley act, they could not be withdrawn from bond except by paying the duties in force at the time of their importation. Anglo-California Bank v. Secretary of Treasury (1896) 76 Fed. 742, 747, 22 C. C. A. 527, appeal dismissed (1899) 20 Sup. Ct. 19, 175 U. S. 37, 44 L. Ed. 64.

Sale of goods.—The Secretary of t Treasury has no power to act up proceeds of sale as in case of a fi penalty, or forfeiture incurred und act of July 14, 1862. (1866) 11 C Atty. Gen. 516.

Cited without definite applicatio Buxbaum v. U. S. (1897) 80 Fed. 88 26 C. C. A. 216; U. S. v. De Viss (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 642, 645; Abb & Co. v. U. S. (1885) 20 Ct. Cl. 280.

§ 5659. (R. S. § 2973.) Sale after one year.

If any merchandise shall remain in public store beyond one yea without payment of the duties and charges thereon, except a hereinbefore provided, then such merchandise shall be appraise by the appraisers, if there be any at such port, and if none, the by two merchants to be designated and sworn by the collector fo that purpose, and sold by the collector at public auction, on du public notice thereof being first given, in the manner and for th time to be prescribed by a general regulation of the Treasury De partment. At such public sale, distinct printed catalogues descrip tive of such merchandise, with the appraised value affixed thereto shall be distributed among the persons present at such sale. A reasonable opportunity shall be given before such sale, to person desirous of purchasing, to inspect the quality of such merchandise The proceeds of such sales, after deducting the usual rate of stor age at the port in question, with all other charges and expenses including duties, shall be paid over to the owner, importer, con signee, or agent, and proper receipts taken for the same.

Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 84, § 1, 9 Stat. 53.

Notes of Decisions

Repeal of section.—This section was not repealed by the customs administrative act, the McKinley act, or the Wilson act; and where goods remained in warehouse beyond that time, prior to the date of the McKinley act, the could not be withdrawn from bond ex cept by paying the duties in force a the time of their importation. Anglo California Bank v. Secretary of Treas

r (1896) 76 Fed. 742, 744, 22 C. C. 527, appeal dismissed (1899) 20 p. Ct. 19, 175 U. S. 37, 44 L. Ed.

Scope of act.—It is the intention and aning of the warehouse acts that the vernment should receive the same ties on goods abandoned and sold to isfy duties that it would have reved if the same goods had been withdrawn for consumption. U. S. v. Unger (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 16,595.

Cited without definite application, Ex parte Fassett (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 295, 298, 142 U. S. 479, 35 L. Ed. 1087; The Conqueror (1897) 17 Sup. Ct. 510, 515, 166 U. S. 110, 41 L. Ed. 937; U. S. v. De Visser (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 642, 645.

5660. (R. S. § 2974.) Distribution of proceeds.

The overplus, if any there be, of the proceeds of such sales, after e payment of storage, charges, expenses, and duties, remaining claimed for the space of ten days after such sales, shall be paid the collector into the Treasury of the United States; and the llector shall transmit to the Treasury Department, with the overus, a copy of the inventory, appraisement, and account of sales, ecifying the marks, numbers, and descriptions of the packages ld, their contents, and appraised value, the name of the vessel d master in which, and of the port whence, it was imported, and e time when, and the name of the person to whom such merandise was consigned in the manifest, and the duties and charges which the several consignments were respectively subject; and e receipt or certificate of the collector shall exonerate the master any vessel in which such merchandise was imported, from all aim of the owner thereof, who shall, nevertheless, on due proof his interest, be entitled to receive from the Treasury the amount any overplus paid into the same under the provisions of this Title.

Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 84, § 1, 9 Stat. 53.

5661. (R. S. § 2975.) Sale of perishable articles.

All merchandise of a perishable nature, and all gunpowder and plosive substances, except fire-crackers, deposited in any public private bonded warehouse, shall be sold forthwith.

Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 84, § 1, 9 Stat. 53. Act June 30, 1864, c. 171, § 19. 13 Stat. 216.

Notes of Decisions

Notice of sale.—Shortness of public tice of sale of warehoused goods rted perishable held not per se suffient evidence of fraud to warrant judgment against the collector. Gould v. Hammond (C. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 5,638.

5662. (R. S. § 2976.) Sale upon depreciation.

Any collector of the customs is authorized, under such directions d regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasy, to sell, upon due notice, at public auction, any unclaimed merandise deposited in public warehouse whenever the same may om depreciation in value, damage, leakage, or other cause, in the inion of such collector, be likely to prove insufficient, on a sale ereof, to pay the duties, storage, and other charges if suffered to main in public store for the period allowed by law in the case of claimed merchandise.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 2, 10 Stat. 271.

Notes of Decisions

Negligence of collector.—A collector customs who sells unclaimed goods the belief that they are deteriorat; in value, is not liable in trover, or an action on the case for negligence, en though it appears that there was substantial deterioration, if he act in good faith, and was not personally ilty of negligence. Rubens v. Robtson (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 86.

The collector cannot be charged with negligence in delegating to the appraiser the duty of examining merchandise, and reporting whether it is deteriorating in value. Id.

The collector cannot be held liable for his clerk's negligence in failing to give notice of sale in the absence of proof of negligence on his part in the selection of the particular individual who was assigned to that duty. Id.

§ 5663. (R. S. § 2977.) Return of duties upon exportation fro warehouse.

Merchandise upon which duties have been paid may remain warehouse in custody of the officers of the customs at the expen and risk of the owners of such merchandise, and if exported dire ly from such custody to a foreign country within three years, sh be entitled to return duties. But proper evidence of such mercha dise having been landed abroad shall be furnished to the collect by the importer, and one per centum of the duties shall be retain by the Government.

Act July 14, 1862, c. 163, § 21, 12 Stat. 560.

Notes of Decisions

Operation and scope of section.—This section is part of the plan for the payment of drawbacks. Franklin Sugar Refining Co. v. U. S. (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 720, 722, 202 U. S. 580, 50 L. Ed. 1153.

This section places a limitation on the privilege of exportation with refund of duties, and requires that it shall be exercised within three years from t date of the importation. (1884) 17 C Atty. Gen. 650.

Cited without definite applicati Franklin Sugar Refining Co. v. U. (C. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 563, 565; Sw & Finch Co. v. U. S. (1901) 37 C Cl. 101; (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 53 § 5664. (R. S. § 2978, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1 Restriction upon exportation for drawback.

No merchandise subject to duty shall be entered for drawbac or exported for drawback, after it is withdrawn from the custody the officers of the customs except as provided in section three tho sand and twenty-five.

Act March 3, 1849, c. 110, § 5, 9 Stat. 399. Act Sept. 28, 1850, c. 79, § 1 9 Stat. 512. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 247.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by adding the end of the section the words, "except as provided in section three thousa and twenty-five," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited abo

R. S. § 3025, post, § 5729, mentioned in this amendment, prohibited a dra back on the exportation of merchandise removed from the custody and contr of the Government, except in the cases provided in other sections specified.

Provisions authorizing the transportation of merchandise, the duties on whi have been paid or secured, from the district into which it was imported to a port of entry, and the exportation from such port with the benefit of drawba were made by R. S. § 3036, post, § 5739.

Cited without definite application, Franklin Sugar Refining Co. v. U. S. (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 720, 722, 202 U. S. 580, 50 L. Ed. 1153; (1908) 26 O Atty. Gen. 531.

§ 5665. (R. S. § 2979.) Permit for exportation.

If the owner, importer, consignee, or agent of any merchandi on which the duties have not been paid, shall give to the collect satisfactory security that the merchandise shall be landed out the jurisdiction of the United States, in the manner required by th laws relating to exportations for the benefit of drawback, the co lector and naval officer, if any, on an entry to re-export the sam shall, upon payment of the appropriate expenses, permit the me chandise, under the inspection of the proper officers, to be shippe without the payment of any duties thereon.

Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 84, § 1, 9 Stat. 53.

Notes of Decisions

Bonds.—Under this section, requiring an importer to give to the collector "satisfactory security" that the merchandise shall be landed out of the United States, and treasury department regulations (article 587) providing that, in cases of withdrawal for export, the exporter shall give bond "with satisfactory security in a penal sum equal to double the amount of the estimat duty on the goods," an export bo given in the sum of $1,000, witho containing any reference to the amou of estimated duties on the goods wit drawn, was valid, and the governme was entitled, on breach of the cond tion, to recover the whole amount the bond, and was not limited to gment for double the amount of du- s as subsequently estimated. The S. eri (1894) 67 Fed. 146, 14 C. C. A. 1.

Opium in transit held not liable to ies; the owner having offered to e the security prescribed by statute. Lean v. Hager (C. C. 1887) 31 Fed. 2, 605.

The duty of the collector to permit rchandise to be withdrawn and ship- l without payment of duties becomes perative when the requirements of statute as to giving security and ying appropriate expenses are com- ed with by the owner, whatever may his purpose in withdrawing the mer- ndise, or whatever he may intend do with it after its arrival abroad. 875) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 575.

After merchandise withdrawn and pped has been landed out of the ju- diction of the United States the bond the owner is discharged, and the rchandise itself acquires a new char- er relatively to our revenue laws; l if subsequently reimported it nds on the footing of an original im- tation. Id.

Inspection.—The Treasury Depart- nt has construed the words "under inspection of proper officers" to an that the goods are to be under constant surveillance of such offi- s from the time they leave the ware- use until they reach the ship, and h construction should be regarded weight by a federal court. U. S. v. rgott (C. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 267, 272.

Reimportations.—Where goods enter- in bond for re-exportation have been ported, passed through a foreign cus- nhouse, and are subject to retail de, they are mixed with the common rchandise of the country, and may again imported into this country. S. v. Whidden (D. C. 1861) Fed. s. No. 16,670.

Should goods of the same class or scription as those withdrawn, and sequently reimported happen then be exempt from duty, such reim- rted merchandise would be equally itled to exemption therefrom. 875) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 575.

Where a quantity of wool was im- rted at Boston from Liverpool, and o days later was withdrawn for ex- rtation to St. John, New Brunswick, ence (having been carried thither) was immediately brought back to ston, held that, if the purpose of the ove withdrawal, etc., was to create a cond port of importation with the ob- t of reducing the duty, the transac- n was fictitious, and that Liverpool nains the last port or place of ex- rtation within the meaning of the tute. (1883) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 528.

n February and March, 1886, certain uors (which had been manufactured the United States, in a bonded man- icturing warehouse established un- the provisions of section 3433, R. S., section 6339, post, out of both domestic and imported spirits that were removed to such warehouse without payment of either the internal revenue or customs duties, and which liquors had been exported therefrom) were imported into New York and assessed with the duty prescribed by the statute (Schedule H) as foreign liquors. Advised that—the liquors being of the manufacture of the United States and once exported—section 2500, R. S., affords the rule under which to levy duties thereon. (1889) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 243.

The entering of merchandise for immediate exportation and without any intent that it shall enter into the commerce of a country is not an importation. (1909) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 440.

Indictment.—Since this section contemplates, not only that the goods be deposited on ship within the time limited after their removal, but also requires that the shipment shall be under the continued inspection of the customs officers, and section 5524, ante, makes it a crime for any owner or importer to make or attempt to make any entry of goods without payment of duty, and one contemplates a crime who means to deposit, conceal, or withdraw goods removed from a warehouse for exportation and to introduce them unconditionally into the country effecting a surreptitious entry by which the duties would become due instanter, an indictment charging a conspiracy to effect such result sufficiently charged a crime. U. S. v. Ehrgott (C. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 267.

Section 5524, ante, provides that, if any importer or owner shall make or attempt to make any entry of imported merchandise by means of any fraudulent or false invoice, affidavit, letter, or other means, or shall be guilty of any willful act or omission by means whereof the United States shall be deprived of duty or any portion thereof, he shall be fined, etc. Held, in view of this section, that where the defendant was charged with having withdrawn certain imported beans from the warehouse for exportation upon bond and permit, all on January 15, 1902, and the indictment then alleged that the goods were not exported "then and there," but were withheld and concealed with the knowledge of the defendants, the goods would be regarded as "entered," and the duties therefrom due when the owners or the truckmen to whom the custody was intrusted disregarded the limitations put on them and introduced the goods into the unrestricted commerce of the country, though the time within which the goods might be properly exported had not arrived; hence the indictment was not objectionable because it did not allege that defendants concealed or withheld the goods, not only at the time of their removal, but for all the period which was allowed to export them. Id.

§ 5666. (R. S. § 2980.) Manner of withdrawal.

No merchandise shall be withdrawn from any warehouse in which it may be deposited, in a less quantity than in an entire package, bale, cask, or box, unless in bulk; nor shall merchandise so imported in bulk be delivered, except in the whole quantity of each parcel, or in a quantity not less than one ton weight, unless by special authority of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 84, § 1, 9 Stat. 53.

§ 5667. (R. S. § 2981, as amended, Act June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 10, and Act May 21, 1896, c. 217.) Lien for freight.

That whenever the collector of the port of entry of the vessel, or other proper officer of the customs, shall be duly notified in writing of the existence of a lien for freight, charges, or contribution in general average upon imported goods, wares, or merchandise in his custody, he shall, before delivering such goods, wares, or merchandise to the importer, owner, or consignee thereof for consumption, or to any vessel or vehicle for transportation or exportation, give seasonable notice to the party or parties claiming the lien; and the possession by the officers of customs shall not affect the discharge of such lien, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe; and such officer shall refuse the delivery of such merchandise from any public or bonded warehouse or other place in which the same shall be deposited until proof to his satisfaction shall be produced that the freight, charges, or contribution in general average thereon has been paid or secured; but the rights of the United States shall not be prejudiced thereby, nor shall the United States or its officers be in any manner liable for losses consequent upon such refusal to deliver. If merchandise so subject to a lien, regarding which notice has been filed, shall be forfeited to the United States and sold, the freight, charges, or contribution in general average due thereon shall be paid from the proceeds of such sale in the same manner as other charges and expenses authorized by law to be paid therefrom are paid.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 188, § 3, 14 Stat. 547. Act June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 10, 21 Stat. 175. Act May 21, 1896, c. 217, 29 Stat. 129.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"Whenever the collector or other chief officer of the customs of any port shall be notified in writing by the owner or consignee of any vessel or vehicle, arriving from any foreign port, of a lien for freight on any merchandise imported in such vessel or vehicle, and remaining in his custody, such officer may refuse the delivery of such merchandise from any public or bonded warehouse, or other place in which the same shall be deposited, until proof to his satisfaction shall be produced that the freight due thereon has been paid or secured; but the rights of the United States shall not be prejudiced thereby, nor shall the United States or its officers be in any manner liable for losses consequent upon such refusal to deliver. If merchandise so subject to a lien, regarding which notice has been filed, shall be forfeited to the United States and sold, the freight due thereon shall be paid from the proceeds of such sale in the same manner as other charges and expenses authorized by law to be paid therefrom, are paid."

It was amended by substituting for the words, "whenever the collector or other chief officer of the customs of any port shall be notified in writing by the owner or consignee of any vessel or vehicle, arriving from any foreign port, of a lien for freight on any merchandise imported in such vessel or vehicle and remaining in his custody," the following words: "That whenever the proper officer of the customs shall be duly notified in writing of the existence of a lien for freight upon imported goods, wares or merchandise in his custody, he shall, before delivering such goods, wares or merchandise to the importer, owner, or consignee thereof, give seasonable notice to the party or parties claiming the lien; and the possession by the officers of customs shall not affect the discharge of such lien, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe," by Act June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 10, cited above.

The section, as so amended, was further amended to read as set forth here, by Act May 21, 1896, c. 217, last cited above.

Notes of Decisions

Lien in general.—The terminal carrier, which, under its tariff agreements, has paid the duties exacted under the laws of the United States on bonded ds at the port of entry that the ini- carrier was forced to pay in order regain possession and forward the ds, has a lien on such goods for the unt of such duties. Wabash R. Co. Pearce (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 231, 234, U. S. 179, 48 L. Ed. 397, revers- judgment Pearce v. Wabash R. Co. 01) 89 Mo. App. 437.

he right of a terminal carrier to a for the amount paid by it to satis- the duties exacted under the laws the United States on bonded goods the port of entry is not defeated be- se the initial carrier wrongfully nged their bonded destination, to owner's damage, where the con- ct of shipment stipulated that each rier should be liable only for loss or nage accruing upon its own road, that such carriers should not be ntly liable, nor either for any loss or nage accruing upon the road of the er. Wabash R. Co. v. Pearce (1904) Sup. Ct. 231, 192 U. S. 179, 48 L. 397.

he section does not require customs cers to recognize the lien of inland riers upon goods transported in d. (1878) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 74.

he owner or consignee of a vessel iving from a foreign port is entitled er this section to a lien for freight merchandise imported on such ves- even though the merchandise is in- ded for exportation. (1894) 21 Op. y. Gen. 38.

— Possession of goods by customs er.—In an action to recover prop- y held by a customs officer under this tion, the petition should show all steps taken to secure a release of property, including the tender of ght, the tender of the bond, and proof of these facts before the col- or. Wyman v. Lancaster (C. C. 7) 32 Fed. 720, 721.

n order to recover property held by ustoms' officer under this section, consignee should first tender the unt of freight he admits to be due, if declined he should tender to the rier a sufficient bond conditioned to all freight that may be found to due. Should this be declined, proof hese tenders should be made to the ector; who if he find the bond ade- te should release the goods on the osit with him, for the use of the rier of the bond tendered. Id.

he collector's custody and posses- , though they cannot be interfered n, are not so absolute as to exclude assertion of "control, with a pres- power and intent to exercise it," the part of the owner who stands ly, subject to the rights of the government, to retake the goods for the enforcement of his lien. Two Hundred and Fifty Tons of Salt (D. C. 1880) 5 Fed. 216, 218.

— Treasury regulations.—The Secretary of the Treasury has no authority, under section 2993, R. S. (see section 5697, post), to protect the lien by a treasury regulation. (1878) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 74.

Article 309 of the Customs Regulations of 1892, providing, "* * * Nor can liens be recognized for freight on merchandise intended for export," is inconsistent with this section. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 38.

— Notice of delivery of goods.—Payment of freight to the collector's deputy without notice to the carrier, under a long-standing custom of the office, of which custom the collector was ignorant, and which payment the collector gave his deputy no express authority to receive, was not payment to the collector, so as to render him liable in an action to recover the charges paid, brought by the carrier, though the rule would be different if the action had been brought for damages for failure to give the statutory notice. Cleveland, C., C. & I. R. Co. v. McClung (1886) 119 U. S. 454, 7 Sup. Ct. 262, 30 L. Ed. 465, affirming (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 905.

In an action against a collector, the carrier alleging a failure to give the statutory notice, and that the collector had received the charges for freight from the consignees, and failed to pay it over, held, that the case made out was an action for the charges collected, and not an action of damages for failure to give the statutory notice, and that, inasmuch as the carrier failed to aver that its charges were unpaid, and as it ratified their payment by suing the collector for receiving them, the collector was not liable for not giving the notice. Id.

Collector receiving freight.—It is not the official duty of a collector of customs to receive the freights due to carriers for transportation of merchandise in bond; but if the collector agrees to receive such freight in lieu of giving notice to the carrier, as required by the statute, before delivering the goods to consignees, he would be liable for any amount so received for the use of the carrier. Cleveland, C. C. & I. Ry. Co. v. McClung (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 905.

Cited without definite application, Six Hundred Tons of Iron Ore (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 595, 598.

(R. S. § 2982. Superseded.)

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, provided that:

"The privilege of purchasing supplies from the public warehouses duty free, shall be extended under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe, to the vessels of war of any nation in ports of the United States which may reciprocate such privilege toward the vessels of war of the United States in its ports."

An amendment thereof, consisting of the insertion, after the words "The privilege of purchasing supplies," instead of the words "from the public warehouses duty free," of the words "from public warehouses, free of duty, and from bonded manufacturing warehouses, free of duty or of internal revenue tax, as the case may be," was made by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 21, 36 Stat. 88, and the section as so amended was re-enacted in the same language by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, K, post, § 5668.

§ 5668. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, K.) Supplies to vessels of war.

K. The privilege of purchasing supplies from public warehouses, free of duty, and from bonded manufacturing warehouses, free of duty or of internal-revenue tax, as the case may be, shall be extended, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe, to the vessels of war of any nation in ports of the United States which may reciprocate such privileges toward the vessels of war of the United States in its ports. (38 Stat. 197.)

This was a subdivision of section IV of the Underwood Tariff Act, cited above.

See notes to subdivision A of said section, ante, § 5292.

This provision superseded a like provision made by an amendment of R. S. § 2982, by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 21, 36 Stat. 88, which was re-enacted in the same language by this act.

Notes of Decisions

Decision under prior act.—(1901) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 418.

§ 5669. (Act June 26, 1884, c. 121, § 16, as amended, Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 14.) Supplies for vessels in foreign trade or in trade between Atlantic and Pacific ports.

All articles of foreign or domestic production needed and actually withdrawn from bonded warehouses and bonded manufacturing warehouses for supplies (not including equipment) of vessels of the United States engaged in foreign trade, or in trade between the Atlantic and Pacific ports of the United States, may be so withdrawn from said bonded warehouses, free of duty or of internal-revenue tax, as the case may be, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe; but no such article shall be landed at any port of the United States. (23 Stat. 57. 30 Stat. 207.)

This section, as originally enacted, provided that all articles of foreign production needed, and actually withdrawn from bonded warehouses, for supplies, not including equipment, of vessels of the United States engaged in the foreign trade, including the trade between the Atlantic and Pacific ports of the United States, may be withdrawn free of duty under the regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury. It was amended to read as set forth here by Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 14, last cited above.

The provisions of this section were made applicable to the construction, etc., and supplies of vessels employed in the fisheries or in whaling, by Act June 19, 1886, c. 421, § 15, set forth post, § 5670.

Notes of Decisions

"Supplies."—The term "supplies" includes coal. (1890) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 687.

"Pacific port."—Honolulu is a Pacific port of the United States within the Act 1897, and coal imported into the United States, which is afterwards used for fuel on board a vessel propelled by steam plying between the ports of New York and Honolulu and registered under the laws of the United States, is entitled to drawback under paragraph 415 of that act. (1902) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 6.

Decision of application to withdraw.—The decision of an application to withdraw warehoused goods or supplies for vessels is confided in the Secretary of the Treasury. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 92.

Cited without definite application. The Katie (D. C. 1889) 40 Fed. 480, 485, 7 L. R. A. 55.

670. (Act June 19, 1886, c. 421, § 15.) Materials for construction, etc., and supplies for vessels employed in fisheries or in whaling.

'he provisions of sections twenty-five hundred and ten and twen-ive hundred and eleven of the Revised Statutes, as the sec-ıs of Title thirty three are numbered in "An act to reduce in-ıal revenue taxation and for other purposes," approved March d, eighteen hundred and eighty-three, and the provisions of sec-ı sixteen of "An act to remove certain burdens on the American rchant marine and encourage the American foreign carrying-trade, for other purposes," approved June twenty-sixth, eighteen hun-d and eighty-four, shall apply to the construction, equipment, airs, and supplies of vessels of the United States employed in the eries or in the whaling business, in the same manner as to ves-of the United States engaged in the foreign trade. (24 Stat. 82.)

The provisions of the Morrison Tariff Act of March 3, 1883, c. 121, § 6, 22 Stat. 523, mentioned in this section, were substitutes for R. S. §§ 2513, 2514. They were superseded by the provisions of the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, §§ 8, 9, 26 Stat. 613, 614, and these were superseded by the provisions of the Wilson Tariff Act of Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, §§ 7, 8, 28 Stat. 548, which in turn were superseded by the Dingley Tariff Act of July 24, 1897, c. 11, §§ 12, 13, 30 Stat. 207, and were superseded by those of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, §§ 19, 20, 36 Stat. 88, which were superseded by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, J, subsecs. 5, 6, ante, §§ 5309, 5310.

Act June 26, 1884, § 16, also mentioned in this section, was amended by Act July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 14, and, as so amended, is set forth ante, § 5669.

Provisions for the importation in bond of materials for the construction and repair of vessels for the foreign trade were made by the previous tariff acts.

671. (Act March 24, 1874, c. 65.) Bonded warehouses for storage and cleansing of imported rice.

'rom and after the passage of this act importers' bonded ware-ıses, to be used for the storage and cleansing of imported rice in-ded for exportation to foreign countries, may be established at port of entry in the United States, under such rules and regula-ıs as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. (18 Stat. 24.)

Notes of Decisions

y-products of rice.—The act of rch 24, 1874 is still in force. (1897) Op. Atty. Gen. 474.

'arehousemen of importers' bonded ehouses for the storage and cleans-of imported rice intended for ex-tation to foreign countries may with-w for consumption, certain by-prod-s resulting from the manufacture, viz., rice meal and broken rice, instead of exporting them. Id.

The duty on these by-products should be assessed upon the proportion of uncleaned rice represented by the by-products, rather than on the latter themselves, regarded as an independent importation. Id.

5671a. (Act June 28, 1916, c. 180.) Bonded warehouses for storage and cleansing of imported garbanzo; withdrawals for domestic consumption; compensation of customs officers and storekeepers.

Under such regulations and conditions as may be prescribed by Secretary of the Treasury, bonded warehouses may be estab-hed in which imported Mexican peas, commonly called garbanzo ıy be stored, cleaned, repacked or otherwise changed in condi-n, but not manufactured, and withdrawn for exportation without payment of duty thereon: Provided, That the whole or any part such imported garbanzo, and the waste material and by-products ident to cleaning or otherwise treating said imported garbanzo, ıy be withdrawn for domestic consumption upon the payment on quantity so withdrawn of the duty imposed by law on such rbanzo in their condition as imported: And provided further,

That the compensation of customs officers and storekeepers for all services in the supervision of such warehouses shall be paid from moneys advanced by the warehouse proprietor to the collector of customs and be carried in a special account and disbursed for such purposes, and all expenses incurred shall be paid by the warehouse proprietor. (39 Stat.)

This was an act entitled "An act to provide for the storing and cleansing of imported Mexican peas commonly called garbanzo," cited above.

§ 5672. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, M.) Bonded manufacturing warehouses.

M. All articles manufactured in whole or in part of imported materials, or of materials subject to internal-revenue tax, and intended for exportation without being charged with duty, and without having an internal-revenue stamp affixed thereto, shall, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, in order to be so manufactured and exported, be made and manufactured in bonded warehouses similar to those known and designated in Treasury Regulations as bonded warehouses, class six: Provided, That the manufacturer of such articles shall first give satisfactory bonds for the faithful observance of all the provisions of law and of such regulations as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury: Provided further, That the manufacture of distilled spirits from grain, starch, molasses, or sugar, including all dilutions or mixtures of them or either of them, shall not be permitted in such manufacturing warehouses.

Whenever goods manufactured in any bonded warehouse established under the provisions of the preceding paragraph shall be exported directly therefrom or shall be duly laden for transportation and immediate exportation under the supervision of the proper officer who shall be duly designated for that purpose, such goods shall be exempt from duty and from the requirements relating to revenue stamps.

Any materials used in the manufacture of such goods, and any packages, coverings, vessels, brands, and labels used in putting up the same may, under the regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury, be conveyed without the payment of revenue tax or duty into any bonded manufacturing warehouse, and imported goods may, under the aforesaid regulations, be transferred without the exaction of duty from any bonded warehouse into any bonded manufacturing warehouse; but this privilege shall not be held to apply to implements, machinery, or apparatus to be used in the construction or repair of any bonded manufacturing warehouse or for the prosecution of the business carried on therein.

No articles or materials received into such bonded manufacturing warehouse shall be withdrawn or removed therefrom except for direct shipment and exportation or for transportation and immediate exportation in bond to foreign countries or to the Philippine Islands under the supervision of the officer duly designated therefor by the collector of the port, who shall certify to such shipment and exportation, or ladening for transportation, as the case may be, describing the articles by their mark or otherwise, the quantity, the date of exportation, and the name of the vessel: Provided, That the waste material or by-products incident to the processes of manufacture, including waste derived from cleaning rice in bonded warehouses under Act of March twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, in said bonded warehouses may be withdrawn for domestic consumption on the payment of duty equal to the duty which would be assessed and collected, by law, if such waste or by-products were imported from a foreign country. All labor performed and services rendered under these provisions shall be under the supervision of a ıly designated officer of the customs and at the expense of the manfacturer.

A careful account shall be kept by the collector of all merchandise elivered by him to any bonded manufacturing warehouse, and a vorn monthly return, verified by the customs officers in charge, shall e made by the manufacturers containing a detailed statement of all nported merchandise used by him in the manufacture of exported ticles.

Before commencing business the proprietor of any manufacturing arehouse shall file with the Secretary of the Treasury a list of all e articles intended to be manufactured in such warehouse, and ate the formula of manufacture and the names and quantities of e ingredients to be used therein.

Articles manufactured under these provisions may be withdrawn nder such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may pre-ribe for transportation and delivery into any bonded warehouse at ı exterior port for the sole purpose of immediate export therefrom:
rovided, That cigars manufactured in whole of tobacco imported om any one country, made and manufactured in such bonded man-facturing warehouses, may be withdrawn for home consumption pon the payment of the duties on such tobacco in its condition as nported under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury ay prescribe, and the payment of the internal-revenue tax accruing ı such cigars in their condition as withdrawn, and the boxes or ackages containing such cigars shall be stamped to indicate their haracter, origin of tobacco from which made, and place of manufac-ıre.

The provisions of Revised Statutes thirty-four hundred and thirty-ıree shall, so far as may be practicable, apply to any bonded manu-acturing warehouse established under this Act and to the merchan-ise conveyed therein. (38 Stat. 197.)

This was a subdivision of section IV of the Underwood Tariff Act, cited above.

See notes to subdivision A of said section, ante, § 5292.

These provisions superseded previous similar provisions of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 23, 36 Stat. 88, which superseded those of the Dingley Tariff Act of July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 15, 30 Stat. 207.

Provisions similar to those of the Dingley Tariff Act were made by the preceding tariff act, the Wilson Tariff Act of Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 9, 28 Stat. 548.

R. S. § 3433, mentioned in this section, is set forth post, § 6339.

Act March 24, 1874, c. 65, also mentioned in this section, is set forth ante, § 5671.

Articles manufactured in bonded manufacturing warehouses, in whole or in part of imported materials or of materials subject to internal revenue tax, may be shipped to the Philippine Islands, exempt from internal revenue tax, and drawback may be allowed of the internal revenue taxes or the duties paid on articles so shipped, by Act March 8, 1902, c. 140, § 6, set forth post, § 5674; and by section 7 of the same act, also set forth post, § 5675, duties paid on merchandise in bonded warehouses, etc., are to be returned on shipment thereof to the Philippine Islands, and merchandise on which duties have not been paid may be shipped to the Philippine Islands without payment of duty.

Notes of Decisions

Relief from duty on waste.—Articles f merchandise imported into the Unit-d States and held in a bonded ware-ıouse for use in the manufacture of ar-ticles for exportation in accordance vith section 15 of the tariff act of July 24, 1897, may be removed from such varehouse and destroyed in the pres-ence of an officer designated by the collector of the port and accounted for as waste, and the manufacturer relieved from the payment of duty thereon. (1902) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 58.

See, also, § 5676, post, forbidding allowance for injury, loss, or leakage sustained by merchandise in bonded warehouses, and § 5677, as to abatement in case of casualties.

§ 5673. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, N, subsec. 1.) Smelting works as bonded warehouse.

N. Subsection 1. The works of manufacturers engaged in smelting or refining, or both, of ores and crude metals, may upon the giving of satisfactory bonds be designated as bonded smelting warehouses. Ores or crude metals may be removed from the vessel or other vehicle in which imported, or from a bonded warehouse, into a bonded smelting warehouse without the payment of duties thereon and there smelted or refined, or both, together with ores or crude metals of home or foreign production: Provided, That the bonds shall be charged with the amount of duties payable upon such ores and crude metals at the time of their importation, and the several charges against such bonds may be canceled upon the exportation or delivery to a bonded manufacturing warehouse established under paragraph M of this section of an amount of the same kind of metal equal to the actual amount of dutiable metal producible from the smelting or refining, or both, of such ores or crude metals as determined from time to time by the Secretary of the Treasury: And provided further, That the said metals so producible, or any portion thereof, may be withdrawn for domestic consumption, or transferred to a bonded customs warehouse, and withdrawn therefrom, and the several charges against the bonds canceled upon the payment of the duties chargeable against an equivalent amount of ores or crude metals from which said metal would be producible in their condition as imported: And provided further, That on the arrival of the ores and crude metals at such establishments they shall be sampled and assayed according to commercial methods under the supervision of Government officers, to be appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury and at the expense of the manufacturer: Provided further, That antimonial lead produced in said establishments may be withdrawn for consumption upon the payment of the duties chargeable against it as type metal under existing law and the charges against the bonds canceled in a similar sum: Provided further, That all labor performed and services rendered pursuant to this section shall be under the supervision of an officer of the customs, to be appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury, and at the expense of the manufacturer: Provided further, That all regulations for the carrying out of this section shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury. (38 Stat. 198.)

This was part of subdivision N of section IV of the Underwood Tariff Act, cited above. See notes to subdivision A of said section, ante, § 5292.

These provisions superseded similar provisions of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 24, 36 Stat. 89, which superseded those of the Dingley Tariff Act of July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 29, 30 Stat. 210.

Provisions more or less similar to those of the Dingley Tariff Act were made by the preceding tariff acts, the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 24, 26 Stat. 617, and the Wilson Tariff Act of Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 21, 28 Stat. 551.

Provisions for manufacture of goods in bonded warehouses for export were made by section IV, M, of this act, ante, § 5672.

Provisions for the transportation under bond of lead-bearing ores were made by section I, par. 152, of this act, ante, § 5291, par. 152.

Previous provisions for sampling lead ores were made by Act March 2, 1895, c. 189, § 1, ante, § 5616.

Notes of Decisions

See, also, § 5291, par. 152, ante.

Decisions under prior acts.—See In re Guggenheim Smelting Co. (1903) 126 Fed. 728, 61 C. C. A. 646 (reversing order [C. C. 1903] 121 Fed. 153); (1898) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 119; (1898) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 285; (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 46; (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 134; (1902) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 45; (1903) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 569.

§ 5674. (Act March 8, 1902, c. 140, § 6.) Articles shipped to Philippines entitled to drawback.

All articles manufactured in bonded manufacturing warehouses whole or in part of imported materials, or of materials subject nternal-revenue tax and intended for shipment from the United tes to the Philippine Islands, shall, when so shipped, under h regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, be mpt from internal-revenue tax, and shall not be charged with duty ept the duty levied under this Act upon imports into the Philippine nds.

* * * * * * * *

Where materials on which duties have been paid are used in manufacture of articles manufactured or produced in the United tes, there shall be allowed on the shipment of said articles to the lippine Archipelago a drawback equal in amount to the duties d on the materials used, less one per centum of such duties, un- such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may scribe. (32 Stat. 55.)

This section, including provisions omitted here, and the section next following, were part of an act temporarily to provide revenue for the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes, cited above.

The provisions relating to bonded manufacturing warehouses, mentioned in this section, contained in the Dingley Tariff Act of July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 15, 30 Stat. 207, in force at the time of the passage of this act, were superseded by those of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 23, 36 Stat. 88, which were superseded by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, M, ante, § 5672.

Provisions for free admission of articles of commerce between the Philippine Islands and the United States, were made by section IV, C, of the Underwood Tariff Act, ante, § 5294.

Provisions of this section, omitted here, related to shipment to the Philippine Islands of articles subject to internal revenue taxes and benefit of drawback. They are set forth post, § 6338. A further provision for refunding taxes paid is omitted as temporary merely, and executed.

5675. (Act March 8, 1902, c. 140, § 7.) Drawback on articles re-exported to Philippines.

Merchandise in bonded warehouse or otherwise in the custody l control of the officers of the customs upon which duties ve been paid, shall be entitled, on shipment to the Philippine ands within three years from the date of the original arrival, to a urn of the duties paid less one per centum, and merchandise upon ich duties have not been paid may be shipped without the payint of duties to the Philippine Islands within said period, under such es and regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary of the easury. (32 Stat. 55.)

See notes to preceding section of this act, ante, § 5674.

5676. (R. S. § 2983.) No allowance for leakage, etc.

In no case shall there be any abatement of the duties or allowce made for any injury, damage, deterioration, loss, or leakage stained by any merchandise, while deposited in any public or vate bonded warehouse.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 4, 10 Stat. 272.

Duties based upon weight of merchandise deposited in any public or private bonded warehouse were required to be levied and collected upon the weight of such merchandise at the time of its entry, by a proviso of the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, Q, ante, § 5314, which superseded a similar provision made by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 29, 36 Stat. 108, which superseded a similar provision of Act March 8, 1902, c. 140, § 5, 32 Stat. 54.

Notes of Decisions

epeal of section.—This section was repealed by section 5656, ante, prong that merchandise withdrawn m warehouse shall be subjected to duties applicable at the time of hdrawal. Falk v. U. S. (C. C. 1904) Fed. 574, judgment reversed American Cigar Co. v. U. S. (1906) 146 Fed. 484, 77 C. C. A. 40, which is reversed U. S. v. G. Falk & Bros. (1907) 27 Sup. Ct. 191, 204 U. S. 143, 51 L. Ed. 411.

Loss of weight in warehouse.—Under this section merchandise dutiable by weight should be assessed with duty without allowance for weight lost while in warehouse. Falk v. U. S. (C. C. 1904) 145 Fed. 574, judgment reversed American Cigar Co. v. U. S. (1906) 146 Fed. 484, 77 C. C. A. 40, which is reversed U. S. v. G. Falk & Bros. (1907) 27 Sup. Ct. 191, 204 U. S. 143, 51 L. Ed. 411.

Evaporation.—This section does not include a case of shrinkage in weight through evaporation of moisture. The loss provided for relates to actual reduction in the value or quantity of the merchandise. American Cigar Co. v. U. S. (1906) 146 Fed. 484, 77 C. C. A. 40, reversing judgment Falk v. U. S. (C. C. 1904) 145 Fed. 574, and judgment reversed U. S. v. G. Falk & Bro. (1907) 27 Sup. Ct. 191, 204 U. S. 143, 51 L. Ed. 411.

The second proviso in section 50 of the tariff act of October 1, 1890, providing that, when duties are based upon the weight of merchandise deposited in any public or bonded warehouse, said duties shall be levied and collected upon the weight of said merchandise at the time of its withdrawal, applies to importations under the act generally upon which duties are levied by law, and not merely to importations made prior to the taking effect of the act. (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 80.

See §§ 5588, 5602, 5619, ante.

§ 5677. (R. S. § 2984, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Abatement and refund in case of injury by casualties.

The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized, upon production of satisfactory proof to him of the actual injury or destruction, in whole or in part, of any merchandise, by accidental fire, or other casualty, while the same remained in the custody of the officers of the customs in any public or private warehouse under bond, or in the appraisers' stores undergoing appraisal, in pursuance of law or regulations of the Treasury Department, or while in transportation under bond from the port of entry to any other port in the United States, or while in the custody of the officers of the customs and not in bond, or while within the limits of any port of entry, and before the same have been landed under the supervision of the officers of the customs, to abate or refund, as the case may be, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the amount of impost duties paid or accruing thereupon; and likewise to cancel any warehouse bond or bonds, or enter satisfaction thereon in whole or in part as the case may be.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 8, 10 Stat. 273. Act March 3, 1865, c. 80, § 13, 13 Stat. 495. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 247.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out after the words "proof to him of the actual" the word "industry," and by inserting in the place thereof the word "injury," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

A permanent appropriation for refunding duties paid on goods, etc., injured or destroyed by accidental fire or other casualty, while in the custody of the officers of the customs, in any public or private warehouse, etc., is made by R. S. § 3689, post, § 6799.

Notes of Decisions

Refund in general.—This section does not authorize the refunding of duties on merchandise destroyed after it has been delivered into the manual possession of the importer, on his giving redelivery bond. D. M. Ferry & Co. v. U. S. (1898) 85 Fed. 550, 553, 29 C. C. A. 345, followed in Cornell Steamboat Co. v. U. S. (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 480, 482, affirmed (1905) 137 Fed. 455, 69 C. C. A. 603.

This section makes the secretary the final tribunal to decide on the validity of any such claim, and his decision is not subject to review by the court of claims or any other tribunal. Id.

A suit to recover from the United States for the salvage of duties collected and paid over to the government on a cargo of sugar afterwards saved from loss by fire while on board a lighter, in the harbor of New York, and in the possession and control of the customs officers, does not arise under the revenue laws, so as to be excluded from the jurisdiction of the District Court under the Tucker act, because the liability of the United States, as having a direct pecuniary interest in the property saved, is founded on the assumption that the Secretary of the Treasury, acting under the authority of this section, and post, § 6799, would have refunded the duties if the property had been destroyed by the fire. U. S. v. Cornell Steamboat Co. (1906) 26 S. Ct. 648, 202 U. S. 184, 50 L. Ed. 987, affirming decrees (1905) 137 Fed. 455, 69 C. C. A. 603, and Cornell Steamboat Co. v. 1,883 Bags of Sugar (D. C. 1901) 108 Fed. 277.

The Secretary may not refuse to al-

w the refund arbitrarily or capricious-
Where all the facts enumerated in e section are presented to him undis-ted, it will be assumed that that uld satisfy him that the case is with-the terms of the section. U. S. v. rnell Steamboat Co. (1905) 137 Fed. 5, 69 C. C. A. 603, affirming judg-ent Cornell Steamboat Co. v. U. S. . C. 1904) 130 Fed. 480, and decree irmed (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 648, 202 S. 184, 50 L. Ed. 987.

In an action against the United States recover salvage on duties collected reason of the salving of merchandise ile in the custody of the customs of-ers, the court will not make findings law defining the powers of the Secre-ry of the Treasury in respect to re-nding the duties under this section as rmerly enacted, had the merchandise en destroyed. Cornell Steamboat Co. U. S. (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 480, dgment affirmed U. S. v. Cornell eamboat Co. (1905) 137 Fed. 455, C. C. A. 603, which is affirmed (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 648, 202 U. S. 184, 50 L. Ed. 987.

The words "under bond" have exclusive reference to, and are descriptive of, the goods, wares, and merchandise, and not the warehouse. (1868) 12 Op. Atty. Gen. 430.

The section extends to loss caused by freezing. (1887) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 519.

Refund of duties is not allowable on merchandise which, pending further examination and appraisement, and upon proper bond being given, has been delivered to the importer, who stored it in his warehouse, where it was destroyed by fire. The section contemplates merchandise which at the time of its destruction is in the custody of the officers of the customs. (1887) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 578.

Cited without definite application, Constable v. National S. S. Co. (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 1062, 1072, 154 U. S. 51, 38 L. Ed. 903; Lawder v. Stone (1902) 23 Sup. Ct. 79, 84, 187 U. S. 281, 47 L. Ed. 178.

5678. (R. S. § 2985.) Penalty for obliterating marks.

Any person convicted of altering, defacing, or obliterating any ark which has been placed by any officer of the revenue on any ckage of warehoused merchandise shall be liable to a penalty of e hundred dollars for every such offense.

Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 84, § 3, 9 Stat. 54.

5679. (R. S. § 2986.) Penalty for unlawfully opening warehouse.

If any importer or proprietor of any warehoused merchandise, any person in his employ, shall, by any contrivance, fraudulently en the warehouse, or shall gain access to the merchandise, except the presence of the proper officer of the customs, acting in the ecution of his duty, such importer or proprietor shall be liable to a nalty of one thousand dollars for every such offense.

Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 84, § 3, 9 Stat. 55.

Provisions prescribing the punishment for breaking or entering a car, vessel, warehouse, etc., containing merchandise delivered for transportation, with intent to remove such merchandise, were made by R. S. § 2998, post, § 5701.

5680. (R. S. § 2987.) Penalty for fraudulent removal, etc.

If any warehoused merchandise shall be fraudulently concealed or removed from any public or private warehouse, the same all be forfeited to the United States; and all persons convicted fraudulently concealing or removing such merchandise, or of aid-g or abetting such concealment or removal, shall be liable to the me penalties as are imposed for the fraudulent introduction of erchandise into the United States.

Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 84, § 3, 9 Stat. 55.

Fraudulent introduction of merchandise was punishable by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, G, ante, § 5524.

Notes of Decisions

Offense complete, when.—The offense eated by this section was complete the removal of goods subject to ty on which duty had not been paid m the warehouse, and subsequent ncealment outside a warehouse after moval, while admissible in proof of e fraudulent intent in the removal, did not constitute a substantive offense, nor add anything to the removal which had preceded it. U. S. v. Ehrgott (C. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 267.

"Fraudulently" construed.—The word "fraudulently" means that the acts must be done with an intent to evade the law; the intent being fully alleged. U. S. v. Ehrgott (C. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 267.

Truck as warehouse.—Where dutiable goods are removed from a warehouse without payment of duty and subsequently concealed, the truck on which the goods are removed cannot be considered to be a warehouse. U. S. v. Ehrgott (C. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 267.

Indictment.—Where an indictment alleged that the goods had been deposited in Brooklyn in a warehouse under bond, and then alleged that on a given day the importer withdrew them under a false pretense that they were to be exported, the term "false pretense" should be construed to mean at least that the defendant did not mean to export the goods when he removed them. U. S. v. Ehrgott (C. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 267.

An indictment alleging that certain beans subject to duty had been deposited in a warehouse in Brooklyn, and that on a given day defendant withdrew them under bond on the false pretense that they were to be exported, and that he removed the goods from the warehouse and concealed them in Manhattan, did not charge a crime committed in the Southern District of New York, and was therefore demurrable. Id.

§ 5681. (R. S. § 2988, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Report of merchandise in warehouse.

The collectors of the several ports of the United States shall make quarterly reports to the Secretary of the Treasury, according to such general instructions as the Secretary may give, of all merchandise remaining in the warehouses of their respective ports, specifying the quantity and description of the same.

Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 84, § 4, 9 Stat. 55. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 247.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out after the words "specifying the quantity and description of the same" the words "which returns, or tables formed thereon, the Secretary of the Treasury shall forthwith cause to be published in the principal papers of the city of Washington," by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

Provisions requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to publish quarterly statements of receipts and expenditures in the customs service were made by R. S. § 266, ante, § 399.

An account of all merchandise delivered by the collector to any bonded manufacturing warehouse was required to be kept by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, M, ante, § 5594.

§ 5682. (R. S. § 2989, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Warehouse regulations.

The Secretary of the Treasury may from time to time establish such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law, for the due execution of the provisions of this chapter, and to secure a just accountability under the same, as he may deem to be expedient and necessary.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 9, 10 Stat. 273. Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 84, § 5, 9 Stat. 55. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 247.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out after the words "of the provisions" the words "relating to warehouses," and by inserting in place thereof the words "of this chapter," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

Provisions authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to make regulations for the management of bonded warehouses and other depositories of imported merchandise were made by Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 24, post, § 5683.

The Secretary of the Treasury was authorized to make regulations for smelting works as bonded warehouses by a proviso of the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, N, subsec. 1, ante, § 5673.

Notes of Decisions

Treasury regulations in general.—A form prescribed for the carrying out of the regulations authorized by this section, by which the shipowner agrees to indemnify the consignee to an extent not required by the statute or by the regulations is not binding upon the owner. Constable v. National S. S. Co. (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 1062, 1072, 154 U. S. 51, 38 L. Ed. 903.

The customs regulation which requires that, where a shipment of goods is without an invoice, all the packages shall be sent to the public store for examination and appraisement, is a valid exercise of the authority of the treasury department. Kennedy v. Magone (1895) 158 U. S. 212, 15 Sup. Ct. 814, 39 L. Ed. 954.

Treasury regulations have the force law. U. S. v. Ehrgott (C. C. 1910) 2 Fed. 267, 272.

Where Congress by statute makes nal the violation of any regulation the Secretary of the Treasury, such gulation may form the basis of a minal prosecution, though not so if e penal provisions can only be found the regulation itself. Id.

Decisions under former acts.—See Constable v. National S. S. Co. (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 1062, 1072, 154 U. S. 51, 38 L. Ed. 903; (1876) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 128.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. 25 Packages of Panama Hats (1913) 34 Sup. Ct. 63, 64, 231 U. S. 358, 58 L. Ed. 267.

5683. (Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 24.) Regulations for bonded warehouses, general order stores, etc.; customs officers not to have interest.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall, from time to time, make ch regulations as he may deem necessary for the conduct and anagement of the bonded warehouses, general order stores, and her depositories of the imported merchandise throughout the nited States; all regulations or orders issued by collectors of customs regard thereto shall be subject to revision, alteration, or revocaon by him; and no warehouse shall be bonded and no general-order ore established without his authority and approval. And it shall the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury, in granting permits establish general-order warehouses, to require such warehouse or arehouses to be located contiguous, or as near as may be, to the nding places of steamers and vessels from foreign ports; and that officer of the customs shall have any personal ownership of, or terest in, any bonded warehouse or general-order store. (18 Stat. 1.)

This and the next following section were part of the Anti-Moiety Act, cited above, other sections of which are set forth post, §§ 5796–5804.

The provisions authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to establish rules and regulations relating to bonded warehouses contained in R. S. § 2989, ante, § 5682, may be regarded as superseded by this section.

Notes of Decisions

Erection of warehouses, etc.—The cretary of the Treasury is not auorized to employ any part of the propriation for collecting the revue from customs in the erection of temporary structure at a collection rt for the purposes of the customs service. (1890) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 607.

No building, even of a temporary character, to be used for storage purposes, can be erected at the public expense without special authority from Congress. Id.

5684. (Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 25.) Public cartage to be let to lowest bidder; regulations.

Public cartage of merchandise in the custody of the Government all be let after not less than thirty days' notice of such letting to e lowest responsible bidder giving sufficient security, and shall be bject to regulations approved by the Secretary of the Treasury. 8 Stat. 191.)

See notes to preceding section of this act, ante, § 5683.

Notes of Decisions

Contract for cartage.—Petitioners ntracted with the United States to all the cartage of merchandise in stody of the government, imported at ew York, from the vessel, and from e general order store and warehouse to the public store, for two ears, at 18 cents per package, exceptg "sample packages," which were to e carted at 1 cent each. Held, that sample packages" was not limited to ample packages containing nondutiale goods, but included all sample packges, whether dutiable or not. U. S. v. Utz (1897) 80 Fed. 848, 26 C. C. A. 184, reversing judgment Utz v. U. S. (C. C. 1896) 75 Fed. 648.

Drayage charges.—The importer here was compelled to pay drayage charges on his merchandise (matches) of 18 cents per case. The proof goes to show the regular rate for the haul was 6 cents per case. The law is that the rate "shall not exceed in any case the regular rates for such objects at the port in question." U. S. v. Masson (1913) 4 Ct. Cust. App. 363.

(R. S. §§ 2990–2997. Repealed.)

R. S. § 2990, provided that when any merchandise, except wine, distilled spirits, and perishable or explosive articles, or articles in bulk, imported at the ports of New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Portland, Me., Port Huron, Detroit, New Orleans, Toledo, and San Francisco should appear by the invoice or bill of lading and by the manifest to be consigned to and destined for any of the ports mentioned in section 2997, the collector at the port of arrival should permit the owner, agent, or consignee to make entry thereof for warehouse or immediate transportation, in triplicate, setting forth the particulars in such entry, and the route by which such merchandise was to be forwarded, and, the entry having been compared with the invoice, and duly sworn to, and the merchandise having been examined by the customs officers, so that they were satisfied that the same corresponded with the manifest and invoice, and the duties estimated on the value and quantity of the invoice, and on the execution of a bond as afterwards provided, the collector was authorized to deliver the same to be immediately transported to the port of destination at the sole cost and risk of the owner, agent, or consignee.

The privileges of R. S. §§ 2990–2997, were extended to Genesee by Act March 14, 1876, c. 23, 19 Stat. 7, and also extended to St. Paul by Act Aug. 14, 1876, c. 270, 19 Stat. 139.

R. S. § 2991, required the collector of the port of first arrival to give priority in time to the examination of merchandise destined for transportation to the ports designated in section 2997. It provided that the merchandise entered for immediate transportation should not be subject to appraisement and liquidation of duties at the port of first arrival but should there undergo such examination as the Secretary of the Treasury should deem proper to verify the invoice and entry, and the same examination and appraisement were required at the port of destination as would have been required at the port of first arrival, if such merchandise had been entered for consumption or warehouse at such port.

R. S. § 2992, provided that the bond for transportation should be in a penal sum of at least double the invoice value of the merchandise, and the duties, added, in such form, and with such sureties, not less than two, as should be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, and the sureties were required to justify in an amount at least double the penalty of the bond. The collector was required to certify to the sufficiency of the bond. It permitted the execution of such bond at the port of destination, and its transmission to the collector at the port of first arrival.

R. S. § 2993, required that merchandise entered for transportation should be delivered to and transported by common carriers designated by the Secretary of the Treasury, and such carriers were made responsible to the United States as common carriers for the safe delivery of such merchandise to the collector at the port of destination. Such carriers were required to give bonds in such form and amount, and with conditions not inconsistent with law, and such security as the said Secretary should require.

R. S. § 2994, required that cars or vehicles transporting merchandise under this Title should be securely fastened under the exclusive control of the customs officers, and required the stationing of inspectors at proper points along the designated routes, or upon any car, etc., at the discretion of the Secretary, and at the expense of the companies, respectively. It prohibited the unloading or transshipping between ports of first arrival and final destination, unless authorized by the regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury in cases which might arise from a difference in the gauge of railroads, or from accidents, or from legal intervention, or from low water, ice, or other unavoidable obstruction to navigation. It prohibited the breaking of the original packages.

R. S. § 2995, provided that merchandise destined for immediate transportation, except packages designated for examination, should be transferred under proper supervision directly from the importing vessel to the car, vessel, or vehicle in which the same was to be transported to its final destination; and if transferred from the importing vessel to any bonded or other warehouse, or to any other place than such car, vessel, or vehicle, it should be taken possession of by the collector as unclaimed, and deposited in public store, not to be removed without entry and appraisement as in ordinary cases.

R. S. § 2996, authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to establish bonded warehouses especially and exclusively designed for the reception of such merchandise in cases where its immediate transportation to the transporting car, vessel, or vehicle should be impracticable. It provided that merchandise remaining in such warehouse more than ten days should be deprived of the privileges of transportation in bond conferred by this Title, and should be taken possession of by the collector as unclaimed, and held until regularly entered and appraised.

R. S. § 2997, extended the privileges of transportation in bond to the ports of New York and Buffalo, in New York; Boston, in Massachusetts; Providence, in Rhode Island; Philadelphia and Pittsburg, in Pennsylvania; Baltimore, in Maryland; Norfolk, in Virginia; Charleston, in South Carolina; Savannah, in Georgia; New Orleans, in Louisiana; Portland, in Maine; Chicago, in Illinois; Cincinnati, Cleveland, and Toledo, in Ohio; St. Louis, in Missouri; Evansville, in Indiana; Milwaukee, in Wisconsin; Louisville, in Kentucky; San Francisco, in California; Portland, in Oregon; Memphis in Tennessee; Mobile, in Alabama; and to importations from or to Europe, and from or to Asia, or the islands adjacent thereto, by way of the United States. It was amended by Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, 18 Stat. 319, by extending such privileges to Detroit, in Michigan.

All these sections were repealed by the Immediate Transportation Act of June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 8, 21 Stat. 175, other sections of which act, making provisions for such transportation of merchandise in bond, with subsequent provisions relating thereto are set forth post, under chapter 7A of this Title, "Immediate Transportation in Bond to Inland Ports."

(R. S. §§ 2998, 2999. Transferred to Chapter 7A.)

R. S. § 2998, made opening, breaking, or entering any car, vessel, vehicle, warehouse or package containing merchandise so delivered for transportation, etc., with intent to remove unlawfully or to injure or defraud the United States, a felony, and prescribed the punishment thereof.

R. S. § 2999, authorized the appointment of special agents for the purpose of guarding against frauds upon the revenue on foreign merchandise transported between the ports of the Atlantic and those of the Pacific overland through foreign territory.

Both these sections are placed, with other provisions relating to transportation of merchandise in bond, post, under chapter 7A of this Title, "Immediate Transportation in Bond to Inland Ports."

5685. (R. S. § 3000.) Withdrawal for rewarehousing in another district.

Any merchandise, duly entered for warehousing, may be withdrawn under bond, without payment of the duties, from a bonded warehouse in any collection-district, and be transported to a bonded warehouse in any other collection-district, and rewarehoused thereat; and any such merchandise may be so transported to its destination wholly by land, or wholly by water, or partially by land and partially by water, over such routes as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, and may likewise be conveyed over any foreign territory, the government of which may have, or shall by treaty stipulations grant, a free right of way over such territory.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 5, 10 Stat. 272.

Notes of Decisions

Rewarehousing in general.—As to liability on transportation bonds, see U. S. v. Coppell (D. C. 1891) 48 Fed. 367, 370.

This section does not authorize repeated rewarehousing. (1892) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 309.

Where merchandise has been rewarehoused in conformity with the regulations and practice of the Department, the action of the Department can not be declared unauthorized. Id.

Cited without definite application, Saltonstall v. Russell (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 733, 734, 152 U. S. 628, 38 L. Ed. 576.

§ 5686. (R. S. § 3001, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Penalty for failure to transport.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe the form of the bond to be given for the transportation of merchandise from a port in one collection district to a port in another collection district as provided in the preceding section; also the time for such delivery; and for a failure to transport and deliver within the time limited any such bonded merchandise to the collector at the designated port, a duty of double the amount to which such merchandise would be liable shall be collected, which duty shall be secured by such bond, or the merchandise may be seized and forfeited for such failure, and any steam or other vessel, or vehicle, transporting such bonded merchandise, the master, owner, or conductor of which shall fail to deliver the same to the collector at the designated port, shall be liable to seizure and forfeiture. And the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to remit, in whole or in part, on such conditions, and under such regulations, not inconsistent with law, as he may prescribe, the additional duty secured by the bond given for the transportation of merchandise from a port in one collection district to a port in another collection district prescribed by the preceding section: Provided, That it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Treasury that the failure to transport and deliver the merchandise aforesaid according to the conditions of the bonds occurred without wilful negligence or fraudulent intent on the part of the obligors.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 6, 10 Stat. 272. Act July 14, 1862, c. 163, § 20, 12 Stat. 559. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 247.

This section as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by adding, at the end of the section as originally enacted, the provisions beginning with the words, "and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to remit," etc., to the end of the section, as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

Public cartage was required to be let to the lowest bidder by Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 25, ante, § 5684.

Notes of Decisions

Transportation bond.—As to liability on transportation bonds, see U. S. v. Coppell (D. C. 1891) 48 Fed. 367, 370.

Remission of penalties.—Remission of penalties no invasion of president's power of pardon. The Laura (1885) 5 Sup. Ct. 881, 883, 114 U. S. 411, 29 L. Ed. 147.

Cited without definite application, Saltonstall v. Russell (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 733, 734, 152 U. S. 628, 38 L. Ed. 576; U. S. v. Pingree (D. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 16,050.

§ 5687. (R. S. § 3002, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Withdrawal for exportation to Mexico.

Any imported merchandise in the original packages which shall have been duly entered and bonded, in pursuance of the provisions relating to warehouses, may be withdrawn from warehouse for immediate exportation, without payment of duties, to Chihuahua, in Mexico, by the route of the Arkansas River, through Van Buren, or by the route of the Red River, through Fulton, or by the route of the Missouri River, through Independence, or by such other routes as may be designated by the Secretary of the Treasury. Any imported merchandise duly entered and bonded at Brownsville, in the district of Brazos de Santiago, or imported and bonded at any other port of the United States, and transported thence in bond, and duly rewarehoused at Brownsville, may be withdrawn from warehouse for immediate exportation, without payment of duties, to ports and places in Mexico, by land or water, or partly by land and partly by water, or by such routes as may be designated by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Act Aug. 30, 1852, c. 96, § 1, 10 Stat. 37. Act March 3, 1845, c. 70, § 1, 5 Stat. 750. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 247.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out after the words "duly entered and bonded at" the words "Point Isabel," and by inserting in place thereof the word "Brownsville," and by striking out after the words "duly rewarehoused at" the words "Point Isabel," and by inserting in place thereof the word "Brownsville," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

Brownsville was made a port of entry in the district of Laredo, one of the collection districts established in lieu of the district of Brazos de Santiago, and other districts, in Texas, by the Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

§ 5688. (R. S. § 3003, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Through port of Lavaca.

Any imported merchandise duly entered and bonded in any port of the United States may be withdrawn from warehouse without payment of duties, for immediate exportation for San Fernando, Paso del Norte, and Chihuahua, in Mexico, through the port of vaca, in the collection-district of Saluria, in the State of Texas, l be transshipped inland, thence to San Antonio, in that State, l from the latter place to the destinations in Mexico, either by way Eagle Pass, the Presidio del Norte, or San Elizario, all on the o Grande; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized prescribe such regulations, not inconsistent with law, as he may em proper and necessary, respecting the packing, marking, inspec-n, proof of due delivery at their foreign destinations of the im-rts authorized by this and the foregoing section to be exported m warehouse to ports and places in Mexico, and for the due pro-tion in other respects of the public revenue.

Act Aug. 30, 1852, c. 96, § 2, 10 Stat. 37. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 247.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out after the words "the Presidio del Norte" the word "and," and by inserting in place thereof the word "or," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

Port Lavaca was made a port of entry in the district of Galveston, one of the collection districts established in lieu of the district of Saluria and other districts, in Texas, by the Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

5689. (R. S. § 3004, as amended, Act Sept. 25, 1890, c. 917, § 2.) By Eagle Pass.

Imported merchandise duly entered and bonded at a port of the ited States, and withdrawn from warehouse in accordance with sting law, for exportation for San Fernando, Paso del Norte, and ihuahua, in Mexico, may pass through Eagle Pass, the port of ry for the district of Saluria, in Texas, under such regulations as Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe, as well as through the rt of Lavaca.

Act April 30, 1872, c. 129, 17 Stat. 58. Act Sept. 25, 1890, c. 917, § 2, 26 Stat. 470.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out after the words "may pass through" the word "Indianola," and by inserting in the place thereof the words "Eagle Pass," as set forth here, by Act Sept. 25, 1890, c. 917, § 2, cited above.

Eagle Pass was made a port of entry in the district of Eagle Pass, one of the districts established in lieu of the district of Saluria and other districts, in Texas, by the Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

5690. (R. S. § 3005, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, and Act May 21, 1900, c. 487, § 1.) Transportation in bond to foreign countries.

All merchandise arriving at any port of the United States destined any foreign country may be entered at the custom-house, and nveyed, in transit, through the territory of the United States, with-t the payment of duties, under such regulations as to examination d transportation as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe.

Act July 28, 1866, c. 298, § 5, 14 Stat. 328. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 247. Act May 21, 1900, c. 487, § 1, 31 Stat. 181.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"All merchandise arriving at the ports of New York, Boston, Portland in Maine, or any other port specially designated by the Secretary of the Treasury, and destined for places in the adjacent British provinces, or arriving at the port of Point Isabel in Texas, or any other port specially designated by the Secretary of the Treasury, and destined for places in the republic of Mexico, may be entered at the custom-house, and conveyed, in transit, through the territory of the United States, without the payment of duties, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe."

It was amended by striking out the words "Point Isabel," and inserting in the place thereof the word "Brownsville," by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above. It was further amended to read as set forth here by Act May 21, 1900, c. 487, cited above.

Provisions directing the Secretary of the Treasury to suspend the operation of this section in so far as it permits the transportation of merchandise in bond through the United States into the free zone of Mexico so long as the Mexican free-zone law exists were made by Res. March 1, 1895, No. 23, 28 Stat. 973. This resolution was repealed by Act May 21, 1900, c. 487, § 2, 31 Stat. 181.

This section and other existing laws concerning the transit of merchandise through the United States was made applicable to merchandise arriving at any port of the United States destined for any of its possessions, or destined from any of them to foreign countries, by a provision of Act July 1, 1902, c. 1369, § 84, ante, § 3205.

Notes of Decisions

Criminal prosecution.—As this section prescribes no penalties, no criminal prosecution can be founded upon it for breaking open a car in transit. U. S. v. Durwood (D. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 446, 447.

Opium. — Smoking opium may be brought into a port of the United States from a foreign country on one vessel and lawfully transferred to another vessel for immediate transportation to a foreign destination. (1909) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 440.

Opium could not, under the laws existing at the time of the passage of the act of Feb. 9, 1909 (35 Stat. 614), be brought into a port of this country from a foreign country and exported from the same port on another vessel without being subject to duty. Id.

Since the act of February 9, 1909, which prohibits absolutely the importation of opium in any form, smoking opium is not subject to duty, and cannot under any circumstances be entered and bonded for warehousing; and the law which made the bringing of opium into a port an importation for such purposes is, as to smoking opium, repealed. Id.

The entering of merchandise for immediate exportation and without any intent that it shall enter into the commerce of a country is not an importation. Id.

§ 5691. (R. S. § 3006.) Transportation over foreign territory.

Imported merchandise in bond, or duty paid, and products or manufactures of the United States, may, with the consent of the proper authorities of the British provinces or republic of Mexico, be transported from one port in the United States to another port therein, over the territory of such provinces or republic, by such routes, and under such rules, regulations, and conditions as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe; and the merchandise so transported shall, upon arrival in the United States from such provinces or republic, be treated in regard to the liability to or exemption from duty, or tax, as if the transportation had taken place entirely within the limits of the United States.

Act July 28, 1866, c. 298, § 6, 14 Stat. 329.

Notes of Decisions

Collectors' certificates.—The issuance by collectors of customs of certificates showing that merchandise of domestic production shipped at ports on the Great Lakes to other ports in the United States, by routes through Canadian territory, is merchandise of domestic production, is not authorized by law. (1885) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 261.

§ 5692. (R. S. § 3007.) Exemption from fees.

Railroad-cars or other vehicles laden with merchandise, sealed by a customs officer, passing, under the provisions of the preceding section and the regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury, from one port in the United States to another therein, through foreign contiguous territory, shall be exempt from the payment of any fees for receiving or certifying manifests thereof.

Act June 4, 1872, c. 280, § 2, 17 Stat. 215.

§ 5693. (R. S. § 3008.) Forfeiture for relanding exported merchandise.

No merchandise exported to Mexico or the British North American Provinces shall be voluntarily landed or brought into the United States; and any so landed or brought into the United States shall be forfeited; and the same proceeding shall be had for its condemnation, and the distribution of the proceeds of the sales, as in other cases of forfeiture of merchandise illegally imported. Every person concerned in the voluntary landing or bringing such merchandise into the United States shall be liable to a penalty of four hundred dollars.

Act March 3, 1845, c. 70, § 9, 5 Stat. 752. Act Aug. 30, 1852, c. 96, § 4, 10 Stat. 38.

594. (Act May 14, 1898, c. 299, § 14.) Bonded privileges for exportations to British Columbia or Northwest Territory.

Inder rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary he Treasury, the privilege of entering goods, wares, and merndise in bond or of placing them in bonded warehouses at any he ports in the District of Alaska, and of withdrawing the same exportation to any place in British Columbia or the Northwest ritory without payment of duty, is hereby granted to the Govment of the Dominion of Canada and its citizens or citizens of United States and to persons who have declared their intention become such whenever and so long as it shall appear to the satision of the President of the United States, who shall ascertain declare the fact by proclamation, that corresponding privileges e been and are being granted by the Government of the Dominion Canada in respect of goods, wares and merchandise passing ough the territory of the Dominion of Canada to any point in District of Alaska from any point in said District. (30 Stat. 415.)

This was the last section of an act extending the homestead laws and providing for rights of way for railroads in Alaska, cited above.

The preceding sections of the act are set forth ante, §§ 4517, 5045, 5049, 5083–5092.

CHAPTER SEVEN A

mmediate Transportation in Bond to Inland Ports

This chapter, inserted here as additional to the chapters of this Title of the Revised Statutes, includes the provisions of the Immediate Transportation Act of June 10, 1880, c. 190, 21 Stat. 173, which repealed R. S. §§ 2990–2997, and also provisions of the Revised Statutes and of subsequent acts relating to the immediate transportation of dutiable merchandise in bond.

Sec.
5. Ports at which entry may be made for transportation in bond.
6. Examination of merchandise for transportation at port of first arrival; appraisal at port of destination.
7. Carriers; bond.
8. Transportation of merchandise in bond.
9. Cording and sealing packages in unlocked cars.
0. Transfer of merchandise directly from vessel to car or other vehicle.
1. Penalty for breaking, entering, etc.
2. Ports to which goods may be transported in bond.
5703. Merchandise liable to specific rates of duty.
5704. Transportation of merchandise landed ten days, prohibited.
5705. Special delivery and appraisement of imported articles of limited value and weight.
5706. Carriers to be responsible; return of unclaimed packages.
5707. Merchandise to be corded and sealed; record.
5708. Consignment to carrier; invoice; delivery; increased duty on reliquidation; change of destination.
5709. Special agents in foreign territory.

695. (Act June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 1, as amended, Act June 14, 1880, c. 214, and Act June 20, 1884, c. 103.) Ports at which entry may be made for transportation in bond.

When any merchandise, other than explosive articles, and articles bulk not provided for in section five of this act, imported at the ts of New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, Portland and th, in Maine, Chicago, Port Huron, Detroit, New Orleans, Norfolk, wport News, Charleston, Savannah, Mobile, Galveston, Pensacola, rida, Cleveland, Toledo, and San Francisco, shall appear by the oice or bill of lading and manifest of the importing vessel to be signed to and destined for either of the ports specified in the sevh section of this act, the collector at the port of arrival shall al the said merchandise to be shipped immediately after the entry prescribed in section two of this act has been made. (21 Stat. 173. 21 Stat. 198. 23 Stat. 48.)

This was the first section of the Immediate Transportation Act of 1880, cited above.

Sections 2, 3, 5–7, and 9 of the act are set forth post, §§ 5696–5698, 5700, 5702, 5704.

Section 4 of the act amending R. S. § 2855, is set forth ante, § 5542.

Section 8 of the act repealed R. S. §§ 2990–2997.

Section 10 of the act amended R. S. § 2981, and is incorporated in that section as set forth ante, § 5667.

Section 11 of the act provided that it should take effect July 1, 1880.

This section was amended by striking out after the words "provided for in section" the word "four," and inserting in place thereof the word "five," by Act June 14, 1880, c. 214, cited above.

It was further amended by inserting after the word "Norfolk" the words "Newport News," as set forth here, by Act June 20, 1884, c. 103, cited above.

The privileges of this section were extended to additional ports, which were continued and made ports of entry with the privileges of the Immediate Transportation Act, as "heretofore existing," by articles I–III of the Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327. The additional ports and the acts extending said privileges to each, were as follows:

Alburg, Vt. Act Feb. 24, 1908, c. 36, 35 Stat. 35.
Ashtabula, Ohio. Act May 27, 1912, c. 131, 37 Stat. 116.
Astoria, Or. Act June 5, 1900, c. 714, 31 Stat. 266.
Bangor, Me. Act July 21, 1892, c. 215, 27 Stat. 254.
Bay City, Mich. Act June 15, 1912, c. 169, 37 Stat. 133.
Beecher Falls, Vt. R. S. § 2526, as amended, Act June 4, 1897, c. 2, § 1, 30 Stat. 30.
Blaine, Wash. Act Feb. 23, 1909, c. 171, § 1, 35 Stat. 643.
Brownsville, Tex. Act Aug. 17, 1911, c. 23, 37 Stat. 22.
Brunswick, Ga. Act Feb. 6, 1907, c. 470, 34 Stat. 880.
Buffalo, N. Y. Act May 3, 1906, c. 2078, 34 Stat. 168.
Burlington, Vt. R. S. § 2526, as amended, Act June 4, 1897, c. 2, § 1, 30 Stat. 30.
Calais, Me. Act June 4, 1900, c. 623, 31 Stat. 266.
Chopaka, Wash. Act July 8, 1916, c. 234, 39 Stat.
Duluth, Minn. Act Dec. 22, 1892, c. 11, 27 Stat. 408.
Eagle Pass, Tex. Act April 12, 1900, c. 188, 31 Stat. 75.
Eastport, Idaho. Act June 13, 1910, c. 289, 36 Stat. 467.
Eastport, Me. Act June 4, 1900, c. 623, 31 Stat. 266.
El Paso, Tex. Act April 12, 1900, c. 188, 31 Stat. 75.
Everett, Wash. Act March 3, 1901, c. 857, 31 Stat. 1437.
Fernandina, Fla. Act July 14, 1892, c. 168, 27 Stat. 14.
Fort Covington, N. Y. Act Aug. 22, 1912, c. 332, 37 Stat. 326.
Gladstone, Mich. Act June 29, 1898, c. 536, 30 Stat. 522.
Honolulu, Hawaii. Act Feb. 15, 1901, c. 373, 31 Stat. 791.
Island Pond, Vt. R. S. § 2526, as amended, Act June 4, 1897, c. 2, § 1, 30 Stat. 30.
Jacksonville, Fla. Act June 16, 1916, c. 154, 39 Stat.
Key West, Fla. Res. May 1, 1886, No. 12, 24 Stat. 342.
Laredo, Tex. Act April 12, 1900, c. 188, 31 Stat. 75.
Laurier, Wash. Act July 8, 1916, c. 234, 39 Stat.
Los Angeles, Cal. Act March 31, 1892, c. 29, § 3, 27 Stat. 12.
Lowelltown (or Holeb), Me. Act May 10, 1912, c. 118, § 1, 37 Stat. 110.
Malone, N. Y. Act Feb. 17, 1905, c. 580, 33 Stat. 718.
Marquette, Mich. Act April 13, 1892, c. 44, 27 Stat. 16.
Miami, Fla. Act Feb. 21, 1899, c. 172, 30 Stat. 839.
Milwaukee, Wis. Act Feb. 20, 1901, c. 385, 31 Stat. 799.
Neche, N. D. Act June 7, 1912, c. 159, § 2, 37 Stat. 129, section 3 of which authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to withdraw the privileges.
New London, Conn. Act June 25, 1910, c. 398, 36 Stat. 828.
Newport, Vt. R. S. § 2526, as amended, Act June 4, 1897, c. 2, § 1, 30 Stat. 30.
Niagara Falls, N. Y. Act March 2, 1903, c. 982, 32 Stat. 955.
Nogales, Ariz. Act April 12, 1900, c. 188, 31 Stat. 75.
Northport, Wash. Act July 8, 1916, c. 234, 39 Stat.
Noyes, Minn. Act Aug. 7, 1916, c. 270, 39 Stat.
Nyando, N. Y. Act Feb. 24, 1915, c. 55, 38 Stat. 812.
Ogdenburg, N. Y. Act April 13, 1892, c. 43, 27 Stat. 16.
Pembina, N. D. Act Feb. 23, 1915, c. 44, 38 Stat. 811.
Portal, N. D. Act Jan. 22, 1903, c. 197, 32 Stat. 780.
Port Arthur, Tex. Act May 23, 1908, c. 187, § 4, 35 Stat. 245.

Portland, Or. Act May 1, 1886, c. 69, 24 Stat. 16.
Port Townsend, Wash. Act May 1, 1886, c. 69, 24 Stat. 16.
Providence, R. I. Act July 1, 1914, c. 134, 38 Stat. 453.
Ranier, Minn. Act Feb. 27, 1909, c. 226, 35 Stat. 659.
Richford, Vt. R. S. § 2526, as amended, Act June 4, 1897, c. 2, § 1, 30 Stat. 30.
Rouses Point, N. Y. Act Feb. 17, 1905, c. 580, 33 Stat. 718.
Saint Albans, Vt. R. S. § 2526, as amended, Act June 4, 1897, c. 2, § 1, 30 Stat. 30.
Saint John, N. D. Act June 7, 1912, c. 159, § 2, 37 Stat. 129, section 3 of which authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to withdraw the privileges.
Saint Vincent, Minn. Act May 23, 1908, c. 187, § 7, 35 Stat. 245.
San Diego, Cal. Act April 26, 1890, c. 159, 26 Stat. 66.
Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Act Feb. 13, 1889, c. 149, 25 Stat. 667.
Seattle, Wash. Act March 1, 1889, c. 310, 25 Stat. 750, Act Aug. 28, 1890, c. 814, § 2, 26 Stat. 363, Act July 1, 1902, c. 1359, 32 Stat. 636.
Sioux City, Iowa. Act Sept. 25, 1890, c. 909, § 1, 26 Stat. 466.
Sumas, Wash. Act Feb. 23, 1909, c. 171, § 1, 35 Stat. 643.
Tacoma, Wash. Act March 1, 1889, c. 310, 25 Stat. 750, Act Aug. 28, 1890, c. 814, § 2, 26 Stat. 363, Act July 1, 1902, c. 1359, 32 Stat. 636.
Tampa, Fla. Act April 3, 1890, c. 62, 26 Stat. 34.
Texas City, Tex. Act Feb. 17, 1905, c. 582, 33 Stat. 719.
Vanceboro, Me. Act July 21, 1892, c. 215, 27 Stat. 254.
Van Buren, Me. Act March 4, 1915, c. 187, 38 Stat. 1219.
Walhalla, N. D. Act June 7, 1912, c. 159, § 2, 37 Stat. 129, section 3 of which authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to withdraw the privileges.
Wilmington, N. C. Act Dec. 23, 1902, c. 11, 32 Stat. 760.
The ports entitled to the privileges of this section were named in the Treasury Department's circular of July 1, 1913, as follows:
"Ports at which merchandise may be entered for transportation to other ports without appraisement under the Act of June 10, 1880.

Alburg, Vt.
Ashtabula, Ohio.
Astoria, Or.
Baltimore, Md.
Bangor, Me.
Bath, Me.
Bay City, Mich.
Beecher Falls, Vt.
Blaine, Wash.
Boston, Mass.
Brunswick, Ga.
Buffalo, N. Y.
Burlington, Vt.
Calais, Me.
Charleston, S. C.
Chicago, Ill.
Cleveland, Ohio.
Detroit, Mich.
Duluth, Minn.
Eagle Pass, Tex.
Eastport, Idaho.
Eastport, Me.
El Paso, Tex.
Everett, Wash.
Fernandina, Fla.
Fort Covington, N. Y.
Galveston, Tex.
Gladstone, Mich.
Honolulu, Hawaii.
Island Pond, Vt.
Key West, Fla.
Laredo, Tex.
Los Angeles, Cal.
Lowelltown (or Holeb), Me.
Malone, N. Y.
Marquette, Mich.
Miami, Fla.
Milwaukee, Wis.
Mobile, Ala.
Neche, N. D.
New London, Conn.
New Orleans, La.
Newport, Vt.
Newport News, Va.
New York, N. Y.
Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Nogales, Ariz.
Norfolk, Va.
Ogdensburg, N. Y.
Pensacola, Fla.
Philadelphia, Pa.
Port Huron, Mich.
Portal, N. D.
Port Arthur, Tex.
Portland, Me.
Portland, Or.
Port Townsend, Wash.
Ranier, Minn.
Richford, Vt.
Rochester, N. Y.
Rouses Point, N. Y.
St. Albans, Vt.
St. John, N. D.
St. Vincent (Noyes), Minn.
San Diego, Cal.
San Francisco, Cal.
Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.
Savannah, Ga.
Seattle, Wash.
Sioux City, Iowa.
Sumas, Wash.
Tacoma, Wash.
Tampa, Fla.
Texas City, Tex.
Toledo, Ohio.
Vanceboro, Me.
Walhalla, N. D.
Wilmington, N. C."

Notes of Decisions

Damage to goods.—Damages received during the voyage between the foreign port and the port of arrival, by merchandise entered at the latter port for "immediate transportation" to an interior port of destination should be ascertained at the port of destination. (1875) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 7.

Port of Mobile, Ala.—Under R. S. §§ 2990, 2997, permitting duties on imports at New Orleans to be paid at Mobile when it "appears by the invoice or bill of lading and by the manifest" that the goods are "consigned to and destined for" Mobile, goods consigned to a person by name in New Orleans are not relieved from paying duties there by the words "For transportation to Mobile," or "For transshipment to Mobile." Guesnard v. Louisville & N. R. Co. (1884) 76 Ala. 453.

§ 5696. (Act June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 2.) Examination of merchandise for transportation at port of first arrival; appraisal at port of destination.

The collector at the port of first arrival shall retain in his office a permanent record of such merchandise so to be forwarded to the port of destination, and such record shall consist of a copy of the invoice and an entry whereon the duties shall be estimated as closely as possible on the merchandise so shipped, but no oaths shall be required on the said entry. Such merchandise shall not be subject to appraisement and liquidation of duties at the port of first arrival, but shall undergo such examination as the Secretary of the Treasury shall deem necessary to verify the invoice; and the same examination and appraisement thereof shall be required and had at the port of destination as would have been required at the port of first arrival if such merchandise had been entered for consumption or warehouse at such port. (21 Stat. 173.)

See notes to section 1 of this act, ante, § 5695.

§ 5697. (Act June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 3.) Carriers; bond.

Such merchandise shall be delivered to and transported by common carriers, to be designated for this purpose by the Secretary of the Treasury, and to and by none others; and such carriers shall be responsible to the United States as common carriers for the safe delivery of such merchandise to the collector at the port of its destination; and before any such carriers shall be permitted to receive and transport any such merchandise, they shall become bound to the United States in bonds of such form and amount, and with such conditions, not inconsistent with law, and such security as the Secretary of the Treasury shall require. (21 Stat. 173.)

See notes to section 1 of this act, ante, § 5695.

Notes of Decisions

Treasury regulations.—The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized by this section to modify the form of the contract made with common carriers so as to permit them to remove goods from a vessel and place them in a warehouse or other secure place, provided care be taken to stipulate that their liability as common carriers shall continue until custody and possession of the merchandise has been delivered to and accepted by the collector. (1893) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 674.

Payment of duties by carrier.—The laws of the United States do not contemplate that the carrier shall pay the import duties at all, at any time or place, but that they shall be paid at the port of entry by the consignee, and that no right of subrogation to the right or lien of the United States is conferred either expressly or impliedly by the laws of the United States upon a carrier or upon any one else. State ex rel. Wabash R. Co. v. Bland (1902) 168 Mo. 1, 67 S. W. 580.

Bonds of carriers.—The Secretary of the Treasury may require common carriers desiring to avail themselves of its privileges to file bonds to accept and transport within a definite fixed period of time all merchandise offered under the act. (1896) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 369.

Lien of terminal carrier.—The terminal carrier, which, under its tariff agreements, has paid the duties exacted under the laws of the United States on bonded goods at the port of entry that the initial carrier was forced to pay in order to regain possession and forward the goods, has a lien on such goods for the amount of such duties. Judgment, Pearce v. Wabash R. Co. (1901) 89 Mo. App. 437, reversed. Wabash R. Co. v. Pearce (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 231, 192 U. S. 179, 48 L. Ed. 397, reversing judgment Pearce v. Wabash R. Co. (1901) 89 Mo. App. 437.

The right of a terminal carrier to a lien for the amount paid by it to satisfy the duties exacted under the laws

e United States on bonded goods at port of entry is not defeated be- e the initial carrier wrongfully ged their bonded destination, to the er's damage, where the contract hipment stipulated that each carrier should be liable only for loss or damage accruing upon its own road, and that such carriers should not be jointly liable, nor either for any loss or damage accruing upon the road of the other. Id.

698. (Act June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 5, as amended, Act July 2, 1884, c. 142, and Act Feb. 23, 1887, c. 215.) Transportation of merchandise in bond.

Merchandise transported under the provisions of this act shall be veyed in cars, vessels, or vehicles securely fastened with locks seals, under the exclusive control of the officers of the cus- ns; and merchandise may also be transported under the pro- ons of this act by express companies on passenger-trains, in es, "pouches," and trunks, which shall be of such size, character, l description and secured in such manner as shall be from time time prescribed by the Secretary; and in cases where merchandise ll be imported in boxes or packages too large to be included with- the safes, trunks, or "pouches" as prescribed, such merchandise y be transported under the provisions of this act by such express npanies, "corded and sealed," in such manner as shall from time time be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury; and 'pas- ngers' baggage and effects arriving at any of the ports specified section one of this act, which shall appear by the manifest of the porting vessel, or other satisfactory evidence, to be destined to y of the ports specified in the seventh section, may also be trans- rted by express companies under the provisions of this act to any the ports specified in the seventh section thereof, in such manner d under such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Treas- y may prescribe"; and merchandise such as pig-iron, spiegle-iron, rap-iron, iron-ore, railroad-iron, and similar articles commonly nsported upon platform or flat cars may be transported under the ovisions of this act upon such platform or flat cars; and the weight such merchandise so transported shall be ascertained in all cases fore shipment, and ordinary railroad seals may be used for such rposes; and inspectors shall be stationed at proper points along e designated routes, or upon any car, vessel, vehicle, or train, at e discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, and at the expense the companies, respectively. Such merchandise shall not be un- len or transshipped between the ports of first arrival and final stination, unless authorized by the regulations of the Secretary the Treasury in cases which may arise from a difference in the uge of railroads, or "where the route is bonded for both land and ter carriage," or from accidents, or from legal intervention, or nen, by reason of the length of the route, the cars, after due inspec- on by customs officers, shall be considered unsafe or unsuitable proceed further, or from low water, ice, or other unavoidable ob- ruction to navigation; and in no case shall there be permitted y breaking of the original packages of such merchandise. (21 Stat. 4. 23 Stat. 63. 24 Stat. 411.)

See notes to section 1 of this act, ante, § 5695.

This section, as originally enacted, required that merchandise transported under the provisions of this act should be conveyed in vehicles securely fastened with locks or seals under the exclusive control of the customs officers, and authorized the transportation of merchandise by express companies on passenger trains in safes and trunks of the size, character, and description and secured in the manner prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury; and it authorized express companies to transport in a separate compartment of the car merchandise imported in boxes or packages too large to be included in safes or trunks, and when so transported, secured in the manner prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury; and merchandise such as pig iron, railroad iron, and the like, commonly transported upon flat cars, was authorized to be transported upon such cars, upon the ascertainment of the weight of the article before shipment. It also provided for the stationing of inspectors at points along the designated routes, or upon any car, vessel, vehicle, or train, at the discretion of the said Secretary, and at the expense of the respective companies. It prohibited the unloading or transshipping between ports of first arrival and final destination, unless authorized by the regulations of the said Secretary, or arising from accidents or legal intervention, or by reason of the length of the route the cars, after due inspection by customs officers, should be considered unsafe to proceed further, or from low water, ice, or other unavoidable obstruction to navigation; and it absolutely prohibited the breaking of the original packages.

This section as amended by Act July 2, 1884, c. 142, cited above, was further amended to read as set forth here by Act Feb. 23, 1887, c. 215, cited above. It was further amended so as to allow the shipment in certain cases in cars not secured by the prescribed customs fastenings, by Act Feb. 2, 1899, c. 84, set forth post, § 5699.

Notes of Decisions

Transportation of appraised goods.—Section 2994, R. S., has no application to the transportation of appraised merchandise. The word "merchandise," at the commencement thereof, is limited in its signification to such merchandise as may, under the four next preceding sections (2990 to 2993, inclusive), be entered for immediate transportation to the port of final destination, without appraisement and liquidation of duties at the port of original importation. (1876) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 128.

Jurisdiction of state courts.—Property introduced from without the United States and in the possession of a carrier for transportation in bond, is beyond the jurisdiction of the state courts. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Terrazas (Tex. Civ. App. 1914) 171 S. W. 303.

§ 5699. (Act Feb. 2, 1899, c. 84.) Cording and sealing packages in unlocked cars.

Section five of the Act approved June tenth, eighteen hundred and eighty, governing the immediate transportation of dutiable goods without appraisement, be, and the same is hereby, so amended as to allow common carriers bonded under the provisions of said Act, in instances where a sufficient quantity of such merchandise is not offered at the port of first arrival to fill an entire car, or compartment thereof, to forward such merchandise in cars not secured by the prescribed customs fastenings if the packages are corded and sealed, under regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury; in all other respects the provisions of the Act referred to to remain in full force. (30 Stat. 814.)

Section 5 of the Immediate Transportation Act, mentioned in and amended by this section, is set forth ante, § 5698.

§ 5700. (Act June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 6, as amended, Act July 2, 1884, c. 142.) Transfer of merchandise directly from vessel to car or other vehicle.

Merchandise so destined for immediate transportation shall be transferred, under proper supervision, directly from the importing vessel to the car, vessel, or vehicle specified in the entry provided for in section two of this act. (21 Stat. 174. 23 Stat. 63.)

See notes to section 1 of this act, ante, § 5695.

This section, as originally enacted, provided that merchandise destined for immediate transportation should be transferred under proper supervision directly from the importing vessel to the car or vehicle in which the same should be transported to its final destination. It was amended to read as set forth here by Act July 2, 1884, c. 142, cited above.

§ 5701. (R. S. § 2998.) Penalty for breaking, entering, etc.

Any person maliciously opening, breaking, or entering, by any means whatever, any car, vessel, vehicle, warehouse, or package containing any such merchandise so delivered for transportation, or removing, injuring, breaking, or defacing any lock or seal placed upon such car, vessel, vehicle, warehouse, or package, or aiding, abetting, or encouraging any other person or persons so to remove, break, injure, or deface such locks or seals, or to open, break, or enter such car, vessel, or vehicle, with intent to remove or cause be removed unlawfully any merchandise therein, or in any manner injure or defraud the United States; and any person receiving y merchandise unlawfully removed from any such car, vessel, or hicle, knowing it to have been so unlawfully removed, shall be ilty of felony, and in addition to any penalties heretofore pre-ribed shall be punishable by imprisonment for not less than six onths nor more than two years.

Act July 14, 1870, c. 255, § 37, 16 Stat. 271.

The words of this section, "such merchandise so delivered for transportation," refer to provisions of R. S. §§ 2990–2997, repealed by the Immediate Transportation Act of June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 8, 21 Stat. 175, other sections of which act, making provisions of like nature, are set forth ante, §§ 5695–5698, 5700, and post, §§ 5702, 5704.

Notes of Decisions

Breaking bonded freight car. — One ıo breaks into a bonded freight car, ntaining merchandise in transit rough the United States between two aces in the British provinces, is not nishable under this section. It is applicable only to cars en route between certain named ports of entry in the United States and certain other places in the United States. U. S. v. Durwood (D. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 446, 447.

5702. (Act June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 7, as amended, Act June 20, 1884, c. 103, Act Feb. 9, 1887, c. 123, and Act June 30, 1892, c. 137.) Ports to which goods may be transported in bond.

The privilege of immediate transportation shall extend to the orts of New York and Buffalo, in New York; Burlington, in ermont; Boston, in Massachusetts; Providence and Newport in hode Island; New Haven, Middletown, Bridgeport, and Hartord in Connecticut; Philadelphia and Pittsburg, in Pennsylvaia; Baltimore, Crisfield and Annapolis, in Maryland; Wilmington, nd Seaford, in Delaware; Salem, Massachusetts; Georgetown in ıe District of Columbia; Norfolk, Newport News, Richmond and etersburgh, in Virginia; Wilmington and Newberne, in North Carlina; Charleston and Port Royal, in South Carolina; Savannah and runswick, in Georgia; New Orleans, in Louisiana; Portland and ath, in Maine; Portsmouth, in New Hampshire; Chicago, Cairo, lton, and Quincy, in Illinois; Detroit, Port Huron, and Grand Haven in Michigan; Saint Louis, Kansas City, and Saint Joseph in Missouri; Saint Paul, in Minnesota; Cincinnati, Cleveland, and Toedo, in Ohio; Milwaukee, and La Crosse, in Wisconsin; Louisville, n Kentucky; San Francisco, San Diego and Wilmington in Calfornia; Portland, in Oregon; Memphis, Nashville and Knoxville, n Tennessee; Mobile, in Alabama; and Evansville, in Indiana; and Galveston, Houston, Brownsville, Corpus Christi, and Indianola, in Texas; Omaha, in Nebraska; Dubuque, Burlington and Keokuk, in owa; Leavenworth, in Kansas; Tampa Bay, Fernandina, Jacksonville, Cedar Keys, Key West, Saint Augustine, and Apalachicola, in Florida: Provided, That the privilege of transportation herein conerred shall not extend to any place at which there are not the necessary officers for the appraisement of merchandise and the collection of duties. (21 Stat. 174. 23 Stat. 48. 24 Stat. 392. 27 Stat. 61.)

See notes to section 1 of this act, ante, § 5695.

This section was amended by inserting after the word "Norfolk" the words "Newport News," by Act June 20, 1884, c. 103, cited above, and was further amended by inserting after the word "Middletown" the word "Bridgeport," by Act Feb. 9, 1887, c. 123, cited above, and was further amended by inserting after the words "Key West" the words "Saint Augustine," as set forth here, by Act June 30, 1892, c. 137, cited above.

This act was amended so as to allow merchandise liable to specific rates of duty only to be entered for immediate transportation without appraisement to the ports mentioned in section 7, by Act Feb. 23, 1887, c. 218, post, § 5703.

The privileges of this section were extended to additional ports which were made ports of entry, with the privileges of the Immediate Transportation Act, as "heretofore existing," by articles I–III of the Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327, and afterward the privileges were extended to other ports.

The ports to which said privileges were extended and the acts providing therefor were as follows:

Albany, N. Y. Act Feb. 19, 1890, c. 14, 26 Stat. 8.
Astoria, Or. Act June 5, 1900, c. 714, 31 Stat. 266.
Atlanta, Ga. Act Feb. 28, 1881, c. 92, 21 Stat. 373.
Bangor, Me. Act July 21, 1892, c. 215, 27 Stat. 254.
Bay City, Mich. Act March 4, 1915, c. 157, 38 Stat. 1186.
Bellingham, Wash. Act Jan. 25, 1907, c. 399, 34 Stat. 864.
Birmingham, Ala. Act March 3, 1911, c. 228, 36 Stat. 1086.
Calais, Me. Act June 4, 1900, c. 623, 31 Stat. 266.
Chattanooga, Tenn. Act Feb. 11, 1908, c. 20, 35 Stat. 7.
Columbus, Ohio. Act Feb. 9, 1889, c. 121, 25 Stat. 658.
Corry, Pa. Act March 3, 1909, c. 261, 35 Stat. 780.
Dallas, Tex. Act Sept. 18, 1913, c. 13, 38 Stat. 112.
Dayton, Ohio. Act April 12, 1904, c. 1246, 33 Stat. 171.
Denver, Colo. Act March 6, 1882, c. 25, 22 Stat. 13.
Des Moines, Iowa. Act April 7, 1892, c. 37, § 1, 27 Stat. 14.
Duluth, Minn. R. S. § 2595, as amended, Act May 2, 1888, c. 227, 25 Stat. 134.
Dunkirk, N. Y. Act July 27, 1892, c. 264, 27 Stat. 273.
Eagle Pass, Tex. Act April 12, 1900, c. 188, 31 Stat. 75.
Eastport, Me. Act June 4, 1900, c. 623, 31 Stat. 266.
El Paso, Tex. Act April 12, 1900, c. 188, 31 Stat. 75.
Erie, Pa. Act June 11, 1896, c. 418, 29 Stat. 393.
Everett, Wash. Act March 3, 1901, c. 857, 31 Stat. 1437.
Fall River, Mass. Act March 3, 1901, c. 837, 31 Stat. 1087.
Gladstone, Mich. Act June 29, 1898, c. 536, 30 Stat. 522.
Gloucester, Mass. Act March 1, 1905, c. 1300, 33 Stat. 822.
Grand Rapids, Mich. Act June 4, 1888, c. 341, 25 Stat. 166.
Green Bay, Wis. Act April 18, 1900, c. 246, 31 Stat. 137.
Greenwich, Conn. Act Feb. 24, 1908, c. 35, 35 Stat. 35.
Honolulu, Hawaii. Act Feb. 15, 1901, c. 373, 31 Stat. 791.
Indianapolis, Ind. Act March 3, 1881, c. 156, 21 Stat. 512.
Kansas City, Mo. Act Aug. 3, 1882, c. 377, 22 Stat. 215.
Key West, Fla. Res. May 1. 1886, No. 12, 24 Stat. 342.
Knoxville, Tenn. Act April 21, 1898, c. 186, 30 Stat. 361.
Laredo, Tex. Act April 12, 1900, c. 188, 31 Stat. 75.
Lincoln, Neb. Act Oct. 19, 1888, c. 1209, 25 Stat. 565.
Los Angeles, Cal. Act March 31, 1892, c. 29, § 3, 27 Stat. 12.
Marquette, Mich. Act April 13, 1892, c. 44, 27 Stat. 16.
Minneapolis, Minn. Act March 8, 1890, c. 29, § 1, 26 Stat. 17.
Nashville, Tenn. Act Feb. 21, 1891, c. 251, 26 Stat. 766.
Newark, N. J. Act March 8, 1892, c. 11, 27 Stat. 5.
New Bedford, Mass. Act Feb. 20, 1901, c. 383, 31 Stat. 798.
Niagara Falls, N. Y. Act March 2, 1903, c. 982, 32 Stat. 955.
Nogales, Ariz. Act April 12, 1900, c. 188, 31 Stat. 75.
Norwalk, Conn. Act Feb. 24, 1908, c. 35, 35 Stat. 35.
Noyes, Minn. Act Aug. 7, 1916, c. 270, 39 Stat.
Oakland, Cal. Act Aug. 11, 1894, c. 256, 28 Stat. 277.
Ogdensburg, N. Y. Act April 13, 1892, c. 43, 27 Stat. 16.
Oswego, N. Y. Act May 23, 1906, c. 2553, 34 Stat. 199.
Peoria, Ill. Act April 27, 1904, c. 1627, 33 Stat. 362.
Perth Amboy, N. J. Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 20, 38 Stat. 204.
Petoskey, Mich. Act May 23, 1908, c. 187, § 6, 35 Stat. 245.
Port Arthur, Tex. Act April 6, 1908, c. 135, 35 Stat. 58.
Port Townsend, Wash. Act May 1, 1886, c. 69, 24 Stat. 16.
Sabine, Tex. Act June 19, 1906, c. 3436, § 3, 34 Stat. 303.
Saginaw, Mich. Act Feb. 11, 1901, c. 351, 31 Stat. 766.
Saint Joseph, Mo. Act Aug. 3, 1882, c. 377, 22 Stat. 215.
Salt Lake City, Utah. Act March 18, 1904, c. 715, § 1, 33 Stat. 85.
San Antonio, Tex. Act April 19, 1890, c. 101, 26 Stat. 58.
Sandusky, Ohio. Act Feb. 26, 1892, c. 10, 27 Stat. 4.
Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Act Feb. 13, 1889, c. 149, 25 Stat. 667.
Seattle, Wash. Act March 1, 1889, c. 310, 25 Stat. 750. Act Aug. 28, 1890, c. 814, § 2, 26 Stat. 363. Act July 1, 1902, c. 1359, 32 Stat. 636.
Sioux City, Iowa. Act Sept. 25, 1890, c. 909, 26 Stat. 466.
South Manchester, Conn. Act March 23, 1900, c. 89, 31 Stat. 50.
Spokane, Wash. Act May 3, 1906, c. 2079, 34 Stat. 168.
Springfield, Mass. Act Sept. 25, 1890, c. 912, 26 Stat. 467.
Stamford, Conn. Act Feb. 24, 1908, c. 35, 35 Stat. 35.
Superior, Wis. Act June 29, 1906, c. 3625, 34 Stat. 631.
Syracuse, N. Y. Act May 18, 1896, c. 191, 29 Stat. 121.
Tacoma, Wash. Act March 1, 1889, c. 310, 25 Stat. 750. Act Aug. 28, 1890, c. 814, § 2, 26 Stat. 363. Act July 1, 1902, c. 1359, 32 Stat. 636.

Tampa, Fla. Res. May 1, 1886, No. 12, 24 Stat. 342.
Utica, N. Y. Act March 24, 1904, c. 815, 33 Stat. 145.
Van Buren, Me. Act March 4, 1915, c. 187, 38 Stat. 1219.
Vanceboro, Me. Act July 21, 1892, c. 215, 27 Stat. 254.
Winston-Salem, N. C. Act June 16, 1916, c. 157, 39 Stat.
Worcester, Mass. Act June 6, 1900, c. 818, 31 Stat. 682.

Georgetown, in the District of Columbia, mentioned in this section, was incorporated in and made a part of the city of Washington. Eagle Pass was made a port of entry in place of Indianola, mentioned in this section, by Act Sept. 25, 1890, c. 917, § 2, 26 Stat. 470. The port of Wilmington, Cal., mentioned in this section, was abolished by Act March 31, 1892, c. 29, § 4, 27 Stat. 12, and the ports of Seaford, Port Royal, Alton, Quincy, La Crosse, Burlington, Keokuk, and Leavenworth were abolished by the Plan of Reorganization of the Custom Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

The ports entitled to the privileges of this section were named in the Treasury Department's Circular of July 1, 1913, as follows:

"Ports to which merchandise may be transported without appraisement under the Act of June 10, 1880.

Albany, N. Y.
Astoria, Or.
Atlanta, Ga.
Baltimore, Md.
Bangor, Me.
Bath, Me.
Bellingham, Wash.
Birmingham, Ala.
Boston, Mass.
Bridgeport, Conn.
Brunswick, Ga.
Buffalo, N. Y.
Burlington, Vt.
Calais, Me.
Charleston, S. C.
Chattanooga, Tenn.
Chicago, Ill.
Cincinnati, Ohio.
Cleveland, Ohio.
Columbus, Ohio.
Corry, Pa.[1]
Council Bluffs, Iowa.[2]
Dayton, Ohio.
Denver, Colo.
Des Moines, Iowa.
Detroit, Mich.
Dubuque, Iowa.
Duluth, Minn.
Dunkirk, N. Y.
Durham, N. C.[3]
Eagle Pass, Tex.
Eastport, Me.
El Paso, Tex.
Erie, Pa.
Evansville, Ind.
Everett, Wash.
Fall River, Mass.
Fernandina, Fla.
Galveston, Tex.
Gladstone, Mich.
Gloucester, Mass.
Grand Haven, Mich.
Grand Rapids, Mich.
Greenbay, Wis.
Greenwich, Conn.
Hartford, Conn.
Honolulu, Hawaii.
Houston, Tex.
Indianapolis, Ind.
Jacksonville, Fla.
Kansas City, Mo.
Key West, Fla.
Knoxville, Tenn.
Laredo, Tex.
Lincoln, Neb.
Los Angeles, Cal.
Louisville, Ky.
Marquette, Mich.
Memphis, Tenn.
Middletown, Conn.[4]
Milwaukee, Wis.
Minneapolis, Minn.
Mobile, Ala.
Nashville, Tenn.
Newark, N. J.
New Bedford, Mass.
New Haven, Conn.
New Orleans, La.
Newport, R. I.
Newport News, Va.
New York, N. Y.
Niagara Falls, N. Y.
Nogales, Ariz.
Norfolk, Va.
Norwalk, Conn.[3]
Oakland, Cal.
Ogdensburg, N. Y.
Omaha, Neb.
Oswego, N. Y.
Peoria, Ill.
Petersburg, Va.
Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Port Arthur, Tex.
Port Huron, Mich.
Portland, Me.
Portland, Or.
Portsmouth, N. H.
Port Townsend, Wash.
Providence, R. I.
Richmond, Va.
Rochester, N. Y.
St. Augustine, Fla.
St. Joseph, Mo.
St. Louis, Mo.
St. Paul, Minn.
Sabine Pass, Tex.
Saginaw, Mich.
Salt Lake City, Utah.
San Antonio, Tex.
San Diego, Cal.
Sandusky, Ohio.
San Francisco, Cal.
Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.
Savannah, Ga.
Seattle, Wash.
Sioux City, Iowa.
South Manchester, Conn.[4]
Spokane, Wash.
Springfield, Mass.
Stamford, Conn.[3]
Superior, Wis.
Syracuse, N. Y.
Tacoma, Wash.
Tampa, Fla.
Toledo, Ohio.
Utica, N. Y.
Vanceboro, Me.
Washington, D. C.
Wilmington, Del.
Wilmington, N. C.
Worcester, Mass.

Notes of Decisions

Decisions under former statutes.—See (1880) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 548; (1885) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 120.

[1] Merchandise should be consigned on I. T. entry and manifests delivered to deputy collector of customs at Erie, who will permit delivery under article IX of reorganization.

[2] Merchandise should be consigned on I. T. entry and manifests delivered to collector of customs at Omaha, Neb., who will permit delivery under article IX of reorganization.

[3] Merchandise should be consigned on I. T. entry and manifests delivered to collector of customs at headquarters port, who will permit delivery under article IX of reorganization.

[4] Merchandise should be consigned on I. T. entry and manifests delivered to deputy collector of customs at Hartford, who will permit delivery under article IX of reorganization."

§ 5703. (Act Feb. 23, 1887, c. 218.) Merchandise liable to speci rates of duty.

The provisions of the act entitled "An act to amend the st utes in relation to the immediate transportation of dutiable goo and for other purposes," approved June tenth eighteen hundr and eighty, be, and the same are hereby, so amended as to low merchandise liable to specific rates of duty only to be e tered for immediate transportation without appraisement to a of the ports mentioned in the seventh section of said act, althou the same may not appear by the invoice, bill of lading, or manif of the importing vessel to be consigned to or destined for either said ports, when the consignee at the port of first arrival shall ma written application therefor to the collector, giving the name of t person at the port or destination to whom he desires the mercha dise to be consigned; and whenever such application and entry sh be made, the original invoice presented by the consignee at the po of first arrival shall be forwarded, with a copy of the transportati entry, to the collector at the port of destination; and a copy of su invoice shall be retained on file at the port of first arrival. T original invoice so forwarded shall be treated as the only invoi of the merchandise upon which entry shall be made at the port destination, and the person making such entry shall be held respo sible for the statements contained therein in the same manner as the merchandise had been originally consigned to him: Provide however, That the privileges herein conferred shall not extend any merchandise the duties upon which, or any portion thereof, d pend upon the value of such merchandise: And provided furth That such privilege shall be granted only in cases where no part the merchandise shall have been landed prior to entry for immedia transportation as aforesaid. (24 Stat. 414.)

The provisions of the Immediate Transportation Act, mentioned in a amended by this section, are set forth ante, §§ 5695–5698, 5700, 5702.

§ 5704. (Act June 10, 1880, c. 190, § 9.) Transportation of me chandise landed ten days, prohibited.

No merchandise shall be shipped under the provisions of th act after such merchandise shall have been landed ten days fro the importing vessel, and merchandise not entered within such tin shall be sent to a bonded warehouse by the collector as unclaime and held until regularly entered and appraised. (21 Stat. 175.)

See notes to section 1 of this act, ante, § 5695.

§ 5705. (Act June 8, 1896, c. 371, § 1.) Special delivery and a praisement of imported articles of limited value and weight.

Articles, not merchandise intended for sale, not exceeding fi hundred dollars in value, imported in packages not exceeding o hundred pounds in weight, in vessels of the United States, may l specially delivered to and appraised at the public stores, and the e try thereof liquidated by the collector under such regulations as t Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, and after such apprais ment and liquidation may be delivered, upon payment of the liqu dated duties under the bond provided for in this Act, to expre companies or other duly incorporated inland carriers bonded for t transportation of appraised or unappraised merchandise between t several ports in the United States: Provided, That not more tha one such consignment to one ultimate consignee from the same co signor shall be imported in any one vessel: And provided, That t original appraisement of and liquidation of duties on such importa tions shall be final against the owner, importer, agent, or consigne except in the case of manifest clerical errors, as provided for in se tion twenty-four of the Act of June tenth, eighteen hundred an nety: Provided, That nothing contained in this Act shall apply explosives, or any article the importation of which is prohibited by w. (29 Stat. 263.)

This and the three sections next following were an act to expedite the delivery of imported parcels and packages not exceeding five hundred dollars in value, cited above.

The Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 24, 26 Stat. 140, mentioned in this section, was superseded by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 103, which was superseded by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, G, post, § 5718.

5706. (Act June 8, 1896, c. 371, § 2.) Carriers to be responsible; return of unclaimed packages.

Such express companies or other inland carriers shall be reonsible to the United States under bond for the safe delivery such articles to the ultimate consignee: Provided, That if any ackage shall not be delivered to the ultimate consignee by the xpress company or other inland carrier, and shall be returned the collector of the port where such articles are entered under e provisions of this Act within ninety days from the date of imortation intact, the collector shall take charge of such package and spose of it as unclaimed merchandise, and the duties, including lditional duties, if any, under section seven of the Act of June tenth, ghteen hundred and ninety, paid shall be refunded by the Secrery of the Treasury out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherise appropriated; and the express company or other inland carers shall be relieved of any liability therefor under its bond; and efore any express company or other inland carrier shall be peritted to receive and transport any such articles they shall become ound to the United States in such bonds, in such form and amount, nd with such conditions not inconsistent with law as the Secretary f the Treasury may require. (29 Stat. 263.)

The Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 7, 26 Stat. 134, mentioned in this section, was amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 95, which was amended and superseded by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, I, ante, § 5527.

5707. (Act June 8, 1896, c. 371, § 3.) Merchandise to be corded and sealed; record.

Articles transported under the provisions of this Act shall be corded nd sealed in such manner as shall from time to time be prescribed y the Secretary of the Treasury; and the collector of the port of rst arrival shall retain in his office a permanent record of such merhandise so forwarded. (29 Stat. 263.)

5708. (Act June 8, 1896, c. 371, § 4.) Consignment to carrier; invoice; delivery; increased duty on reliquidation; change of destination.

Such packages may be consigned to and entered by the agents f the express company or other inland carrier or steamship comany, who shall at the time of entry state the ultimate consignee, nd in all cases where a certified or other invoice is now reuired by law such invoice may be attached to or inclosed in the ackage, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury ay prescribe; and the delivery of such articles to the express comany or other inland carrier shall not be delayed because of the onarrival of the triplicate invoice, but the ultimate consignee shall e liable for any increased duty found due on reliquidation, if any, fter receipt of said merchandise from the express company or other nland carrier or steamship company making entry under this Act; nd the provisions of section twenty-eight hundred and fifty-seven,

Revised Statutes, shall not apply to importations under this Act. Stat. 263.)

R. S. § 2857, mentioned in this section and set forth ante, § 5543, relate the entry of merchandise, where, from a change of destination after pro tion of the invoice thereof to the consul or other officer, the triplicate trans ted to the collector of the port to which such merchandise was originally tined is not received at the port where it actually arrives.

§ 5709. (R. S. § 2999.) Special agents in foreign territory.

For the purpose of better guarding against frauds upon the r enue on foreign merchandise transported between the ports of Atlantic and those of the Pacific overland through any foreign te tory, the Secretary of the Treasury may appoint special sworn age as inspectors of the customs, to reside in such foreign territory wh such merchandise may be landed or embarked, with power to sup intend the landing or shipping of all merchandise, passing coastw between the ports of the United States on the Pacific and the Atlan It shall be their duty, under such regulations and instructions as Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, to guard against the p petration of frauds upon the revenue. The compensation paid such inspectors shall not in the aggregate exceed five thousand d lars per annum.

Act March 28, 1854, c. 30, § 5, 10 Stat. 272.

CHAPTER EIGHT

Payment

Sec.
5710. Duties, how payable.
5711. Certified checks receivable for duties and internal taxes.
5712. Certified checks receivable for all public dues.
5713. Disposal of moneys paid under protest.
5714. Settlements conclusive after one year.
5715. Refunding duties paid; rest tions.
5716. Regulations.
5717. Reports to Congress; appeals Supreme Court.
5718. Refunding overpayments of ties; correction of errors; port to Congress.
5719. Judgments, how payable.

§ 5710. (R. S. § 3009, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1 Duties, how payable.

All duties upon imports shall be collected in ready money, a shall be paid in coin or coin certificates or in United States note payable on demand, authorized to be issued prior to the twenty-fif day of February, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, and l law receivable in payment of public dues.

Act March 2, 1833, c. 55, § 3, 4 Stat. 630. Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 84, § 1, Stat. 53. Act Feb. 25, 1862, c. 33, § 5, 12 Stat. 346. Act Feb. 27, 1877, 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 247.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserti after the words "paid in coin" the words "or coin certificates," as set fo here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

Provisions prescribing what currency shall be used in the payment of dut and other debts to the United States were made by R. S. § 3473, post, § 63

The application of the coin paid for duties was prescribed by R. S. § 36 post, § 6810.

Gold certificates issued on deposit of gold coin, authorized by the Curren Act of March 14, 1900, c. 41, were made receivable for customs, taxes, a all public dues, by section 6 of that act, post, § 6567.

Certificates issued on deposit of silver dollars, authorized by the Bland- lison Coinage of Silver Act of Feb. 28, 1878, c. 20, were made receivable customs, taxes, and all public dues, by section 3 of that act, post, § 6454.

Treasury notes issued in payment for purchases of silver under the Sherm

Purchase of Silver Act of July 14, 1890, c. 708, were made receivable for customs, taxes, and all public dues, by section 2 of that act, post, § 6475.

Certified checks were made receivable for duties, etc., by Act March 2, 1911, c. 191, § 1, post, § 5711.

Notes of Decisions

Accrual of duties.
Medium of payment.
What constitutes payment.
Obligation to pay duties.
Lien for duties.
Nature of action to enforce payment.
—— Evidence and trial.
Powers of collector.
Disposal of payments.
Bonds for duties.
—— Decisions under former acts.

. Accrual of duties.—The duties ae at the time of the arrival of the ods at their proper port of entry, and t at the time of the subsequent en- at the custom house. Meredith v. S. (1839) 13 Pet. 486, 493, 10 L. . 258; U. S. v. Lindsey (C. C. 1812) d. Cas. No. 15,603; Same v. Lyman . C. 1818) Fed. Cas. No. 15,647; U. v. Cobb (C. C. 1892) 11 Fed. 76; S. v. Dodge (D. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. . 14,973.

Duties accrue when the goods are imrted, though brought in as prize. ince v. U. S. (C. C. 1814) Fed. Cas. . 11,425.

2. Medium of payment.—A collector of stoms must take genuine money or tes, and he must keep a register of treasury notes received and from om received, and if any prove to be unterfeit, he has a remedy in his n name or the name of the governnt for the amount against the person o paid them in, and a collector reving treasury notes in payment for ties, which were canceled by him and terwards stolen or lost and altered, l then received by him again in paynt for other duties, is responsible to e government for the amount thereof. S. v. Morgan (1850) 11 How. 154, 9, 13 L. Ed. 643.

3. What constitutes payment.—Paynt of duties into the state treasury or the Confederate government, on ods imported at a place entirely in ntrol of the Rebel forces during the r of the Rebellion, will not discharge e duties. U. S. v. Pensacola & G. R. . (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,028; me v. Seventeen Packages, etc. (D. C. 68) Fed. Cas. No. 16,256. CONTRA, e Snodgrass v. Adams (1874) 26 La. n. 235.

4. Obligation to pay duties.—Duties e on goods imported constitute a rsonal debt due the United States m the importer, although there exs a lien on the goods and a bond the payment of the duties. Meredh v. U. S. (1839) 38 U. S. (13 Pet.) 6, 10 L. Ed. 258; U. S. v. Cobb (C. 1882) 11 Fed. 76.

The forfeiture and sale by the United ates of imported goods for underluation under the provisions of section 5527, ante, does not relieve the importer from liability for the duty thereon, so as to entitle him to a return of the duty paid. The obligation to pay the duty is incurred by the act of importation, and the importer is not relieved from such obligation by the violation of a different provision of the customs law, although he thereby incurs as a penalty a forfeiture of the entire importation. U. S. v. One Case Paintings, Engravings, and Manufactures of Metal (1900) 99 Fed. 426, 39 C. C. A. 586.

Duties are due, although the goods, for any reason, had never come into the hands of the customs officers, or the statute proceedings had never been instituted, or through accident, mistake, or fraud no duties or short duties have been paid, and the importer is not discharged from his debt by the delivery to him of the goods without payment. U. S. v. Cobb (C. C. 1882) 11 Fed. 76.

The fact that dutiable goods were allowed by the customs officers to pass through the custom house without payment of duties will not relieve the importer from liability to action for such duties. U. S. v. Koblitz (C. C. 1882) 15 Fed. 900.

The United States may maintain an action to recover the duties unpaid upon merchandise, which was subject to the payment of duties, but upon which none were paid by the importers, who procured it to be entered and delivered to them by means of false and fraudulent representations to the secretary of the treasury that the merchandise was imported for the use of the United States, which induced that officer to issue a permit for entry free of duty. U. S. v. Boyd (C. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 690, judgment reversed Boyd v. U. S. (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 524, 116 U. S. 616, 29 L. Ed. 746.

There is no authority for the practice of the Treasury Department to exact duties when forfeiture prevails only in those cases which arise under section 5527, ante, and not in other customs revenue cases involving forfeiture. (1902) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 1.

Regular duties may be exacted on an importation of foreign goods, notwithstanding the goods have been seized and forfeited for a violation of section 5526, ante, and the whole of the proceeds from their sale applied to the use of the United States. Id.

As to interest on duties, see note under § 5595, ante.

5. Lien for duties.—See § 5760, post, as to transfers of goods.

The lien on imported goods for duties is relinquished by the taking of a bond and security therefor. Conard v. Pacific Ins. Co. (1832) 31 U. S. (6 Pet.) 262, 8 L. Ed. 392; U. S. v. Murdoch (C. C. 1824) Fed. Cas. No. 15,-836; Dias v. Bouchaud (N. Y. 1843) 10 Paige, 445.

The lien for duties on imported goods cannot be enforced by libel in the admiralty, as the revenue jurisdiction of the district courts, proceeding in rem, is confined to seizures for forfeitures under the laws of impost, etc. U. S. v. Three Hundred and Fifty Chests of Tea (1827) 25 U. S. (12 Wheat.) 487, 6 L. Ed. 702.

The United States having a lien on goods imported for the payment of the duties, and being entitled to a virtual custody of them, from the time of their arrival in port, until the duties are paid or secured, any attachment by a state officer is an interference with such lien and right of custody, and, being repugnant to the laws of the United States, is void. Harris v. Dennie (1830) 3 Pet. 292, 304, 7 L. Ed. 683.

The lien of the United States for duties is restricted to the specific goods on which the duties have accrued. The government has no general lien on merchandise, the property of the importer, for duties due by him on other importations. Harris v. Dennie (1830) 28 U. S. (3 Pet.) 292, 7 L. Ed. 683; Howland v. Harris (C. C. 1827) Fed. Cas. No. 6,794; Hodges v. Harris (1828) 23 Mass. (6 Pick.) 360; Dennie v. Same (1830) 26 Mass. (9 Pick.) 364.

No creditor can, by attachment, take goods out of the possession of the United States until the duties are paid or secured. Conard v. Pacific Ins. Co. (1832) 6 Pet. 262, 280, 8 L. Ed. 392.

Imported goods may pass by sale, though duties are due thereon. They are not liable for other duties due from the consignee, but only for the duties due on such goods. Howland v. Harris (C. C. 1827) Fed. Cas. No. 6,794.

The United States is not deprived of its lien for duties unpaid by an adverse decision on an information in rem on a seizure for an alleged violation of law. U. S. v. Five Hundred Boxes of Pipes (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 15,116.

6. Nature of action to enforce payment.—Bill by United States to recover for fraud difference between duties paid and those which should have been paid must conform to general rule of pleading where recovery is sought for fraud. U. S. v. Sherman & Sons Co. (1915) 35 Sup. Ct. 520, 237 U. S. 146, 59 L. Ed. 883.

The United States may maintain assumpsit for duties not bonded. U. S. v. Lyman (C. C. 1818) Fed. Cas. No. 15,647; Same v. Howland (C. C. 1824) Fed. Cas. No. 15,406.

Debt lies against the importer for duties on smuggled goods; also where short duties only have been paid. U. S. v. Lyman (C. C. 1818) Fed. C No. 15,647.

In such cases an information of d or an information in the nature o bill of discovery and account, is a pr er remedy. Id.

Duties are a personal debt aga the importer which may be collec by civil action. U. S. v. George (C 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 15,198.

An importer who offers for goods entered free of duty as sea sto is liable to an action of debt for duties. In re An Ullage Box of Su (D. C. 1836) Fed. Cas. No. 14,324

7. —— Evidence and trial.—The ceipt of a collector acknowledging p ment is only prima facie evider Johnson v. U. S. (C. C. 1830) F Cas. No. 7,419.

In an action to recover duties, burden of proof is on the governm to show that defendant imported articles without payment of the du and also to show the quantity so ported by him, and this must be d by a fair preponderance of evider U. S. v. Koblitz (C. C. 1882) 15 F 900.

The provision in Customs Admi trative Act (section 5595, ante) t the decision of the collector of c toms as to duties "shall be final conclusive," unless the duties are p under protest, and proceedings brou for their recovery before the bo of general appraisers, does not quire that on an action by the g ernment for unpaid duties the impor should be limited to the proceedi prescribed in said section. He may fend on the ground that the asse ment in question was illegal. U. v. Tiffany (C. C. 1905) 137 F 971, judgment reversed Same v. T fany & Co. (1906) 151 Fed. 473, C. C. A. 11.

In an action against an importer unpaid duties, the Circuit Court ample power to suspend the trial til the importer, by payment of the ties assessed, may put himself in po tion to try the question as to class cation of the goods before the Bo of General Appraisers. U. S. v. T fany & Co. (1907) 153 Fed. 969, C. C. A. 81; Id. (1907) 154 Fed. 7

8. Powers of collector.—The collec cannot bind the government by acts beyond or contrary to the auth ity given him by law. Johnson v. S. (C. C. 1830) Fed. Cas. No. 7,419

9. Disposal of payments.—All dut paid to a collector must be placed the credit of the Treasurer of United States. (1896) 21 Op. At Gen. 345.

10. Bonds for duties.—As to inter on bonds for duties, see § 1601, an Act March 2, 1799, § 65 (1 St 627), in relation to granting judgme on motion in suits on bonds to t United States for duties, was pass r the purpose of interdicting a party om proceeding for the purpose of ere delay, but such act does not prent a party from setting up any good fense to the suit founded upon real d substantial merits. Ex parte Danport (1832) 31 U. S. (6 Pet.) 661, L. Ed. 537.

Under Duty Act 1799, § 65, where a nd has been given for duties, and rors in the calculation thereof are eged in affidavits, at the first term which suit has been brought on the nd, a delay of one term is allowed r examination and corrections, and, here there is a real defense to the im on the bond, an opportunity to tain evidence by a continuance must given. Ex parte U. S. (1834) 33 S. (8 Pet.) 700, 8 L. Ed. 1094.

A bond was given for duties, at the ne of importation, conditioned that a importer should pay $425—that ng the estimated duty based on the voice—or the amount which should subsequently ascertained to be due, that he should within three years thdraw and export them, or transrt them to a Pacific port. The esnated duty was paid on the withwal of the goods, but it proved to less than the duty which was afterrds regularly liquidated. In a suit ainst the surety for the balance, d, that the payment of the estimatduty was one of the alternative conions of the bond, and that its permance discharged the surety, but t the importer's liability for the du was not affected. Dumont v. U. S. 378) 98 U. S. 142, 25 L. Ed. 65.

Sureties of an insolvent debtor, in a nd for duties to the United States, e not entitled to judgment against eir principal at the first term. Johns Brodhag (C. C. 1804) Fed. Cas. No. 62.

Where goods are shipped in the imrter's vessel, consigned to a person o gave bonds for the duties, the inice showing the goods to be the operty of the importer, the sureties the consignee cannot recover from e importer the amount paid by them. ilds v. Shoemaker (C. C. 1806) Fed. s. No. 2,681.

In a several action against one of e obligors in a joint and several nd given for duties, it is no objection t a co-obligor has been taken in exution on a judgment on the same nd, and discharged under Act June 1798, c. 66. Hunt v. U. S. (C. C. 12) Fed. Cas. No. 6,900.

A bond for duties in the alternative y be discharged by payment of the m named in the condition, though s than the duties. U. S. v. Thompn (C. C. 1813) Fed. Cas. No. 16,486.

Only the owner or consignee, or his ent or factor, can enter and bond ods at the customhouse. A subpuraser, after importation, has no such ght; and the collector has no author to receive the bond of any person except those legally entitled to enter the goods. U. S. v. Lyman (C. C. 1818) Fed. Cas. No. 15,647.

A surety on a customhouse bond, after paying it, has the same priority as the United States against the estate of his principal in the hands of an assignee. U. S. v. Hunter (C. C. 1828) Fed. Cas. No. 15,426; Dias v. Bouchaud (N. Y. 1841) 3 Edw. Ch. 485.

Where a consignee gives bond for duties under the act of 1799, and fails to pay them, the United States has no remedy against the owner for whom the consignee acts as agent or trustee. Knox v. Devens (C. C. 1829) Fed. Cas. No. 7,905.

Unless the owner requested him to sign the bond, remedy is against consignee only. Id.

The cancellation of a bond for duties without receiving payment in connivance with the debtor, is void. Johnson v. U. S. (C. C. 1830) Fed. Cas. No. 7,419.

It is no defense to a bond for customs duties that it was given by the obligors, without knowledge of an alleged defense, arising from delay in demanding payment. U. S. v. McKewan (C. C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 15,692.

The bond given by the importers, in which they expressly stipulate to pay the amount which might be found due upon the final liquidation of the entry over and above the amount of the estimated duties already paid, is a distinct notice to them that a further adjustment of the duties on the entry was to be made, and that they might be called upon for a further payment. U. S. v. Cobb (C. C. 1882) 11 Fed. 76.

Mere delay by the officers of the government in selling as directed would not discharge the surety; but where, upon goods advertised for sale at a regular quarter day, the secretary of the treasury, at the request of a purchaser, directed a postponement of the sale, without the surety's consent, the latter was discharged. U. S. v. De Visser (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 642.

Where a surety in a bond for the payment of duties to the United States on goods imported, a third person being the real owner, pays the bond, he may maintain assumpsit against his co-obligor. Sluby v. Champlin (N. Y. 1809) 4 Johns. 461.

Under the act to establish the judicial courts of the United States (Act Sept. 24, 1789, c. 20, §§ 9, 11), providing that the courts of the several states shall have jurisdiction concurrent with the United States courts of all suits at common law, in which the United States is plaintiff, the supreme court of this state has jurisdiction of an action of debt by the United States, on a bond given to the collector of customs, conditioned for the payment of duties on certain imports. U. S. v. Dodge (N. Y. 1817) 14 Johns. 95.

The release of one surety in a custom-house bond by the secretary of the treasury, pursuant to an act of congress, with the consent of the other surety, is inoperative unless it be shown that all the requirements of the act of congress have been complied with; recital of the facts in the release is not evidence of such compliance. Bouchaud v. Dias (N. Y. 1846) 3 Denio, 238.

The surety on a custom-house bond, if he pay the same, has no preference where his principal absconds, unless the principal has made an assignment or has been attached or declared bankrupt. Gallagher v. Davis (Pa. 1800) 2 Yeates, 548.

The surety on a custom-house bond who has paid his principal's debt to the United States cannot bring an action against his principal after his discharge under the United States bankrupt law of April 4, 1800, but he is entitled to preference out of the estate of the bankrupt. Reed v. Emory (Pa. 1815) 1 Serg. & R. 339.

A surety on a customhouse bond who has paid it is not entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the United States as against his cosurety, so as to give his demand for contribution a pr erence over other creditors of the surety. Bank of South Carolina Adger (S. C. 1835) 2 Hill, Eq. 262.

Where A. gives his bond for dut on goods imported into the Uni States for B., the importer, and B. not bound in the bond, if A. discharg the bond, it seems that he cannot placed in the condition of the Uni States, as to priority, in a claim agai A., under the law of Congress. End v. Brune (Va. 1826) 4 Rand. 438.

11. —— Decisions under former a —See Olney v. Arnold (1796) 3 U. (3 Dall.) 308, 1 L. Ed. 614; Me dith v. U. S. (1839) 38 U. S. (13 Pe 486, 10 L. Ed. 258; U. S. v. Pres (C. C. 1824) Fed. Cas. No. 16,0 Same v. Howell (C. C. 1826) Fed. C No. 15,405; Johnson v. U. S. (C. 1830) Fed. Cas. No. 7,419; U. S. Williams (D. C. 1830) Fed. Cas. 16,724; Same v. Linn (D. C. 18 Fed. Cas. No. 15,605; (1837) 3 Atty. Gen. 279; Jones v. Moore Y. 1833) 1 Edw. Ch. 632; Morton Ludlow (N. Y. 1835) 5 Paige, 519, firming (N. Y. 1833) 1 Edw. Ch. 6

§ 5711. (Act March 2, 1911, c. 191, § 1.) Certified checks receiv ble for duties and internal taxes.

It shall be lawful for collectors of customs and of internal re enue to receive for duties on imports and internal taxes cer fied checks drawn on national and State banks, and trust co panies during such time and under such regulations as the Sec tary of the Treasury may prescribe. No person, however, who m be indebted to the United States on account of duties on imports internal taxes who shall have tendered a certified check or checks provisional payment for such duties or taxes, in accordance with t terms of this Act, shall be released from the obligation to make ul mate payment thereof until such certified check so received has be duly paid; and if any such check so received is not duly paid by t bank on which it is drawn and so certifying, the United States sha in addition to its right to exact payment from the party originally i debted therefor, have a lien for the amount of such check upon the assets of such bank; and such amount shall be paid out of assets in preference to any or all other claims whatsoever against sa bank, except the necessary costs and expenses of administration a the reimbursement of the United States for the amount expended the redemption of the circulating notes of such bank. (36 Stat. 96

This was an act to authorize the receipt of certified checks for duties on i ports and internal taxes, etc. It was amended by Act March 3, 1913, c. 11 post, § 5712.

Section 2 of this act provided that it should be effective on and after Ju 1, 1911.

§ 5712. (Act March 3, 1913, c. 119.) Certified checks receivab for all public dues.

It shall be lawful for collecting officers to receive certified chec drawn on national and State banks and trust companies, during su time and under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasur may prescribe, in payment for duties on imports, internal taxes, an all public dues, including special customs deposits; and the Act o March second, nineteen hundred and eleven, entitled "An Act to a orize the receipt of certified checks for duties on imports and in-nal taxes," is hereby amended accordingly. (37 Stat. 733.)

This was an act to extend the authority to receive certified checks.

Act March 2, 1911, c. 191, mentioned in this act, is set forth ante, § 5711.

5713. (R. S. § 3010.) Disposal of moneys paid under protest.

All money paid to any collector of the customs, or to any person ting as such, for unascertained duties or for duties paid under otest against the rate or amount of duties charged, shall be placed the credit of the Treasurer of the United States, and shall not held by the collector, or person acting as such, to await any as-rtainment of duties, or the result of any litigation in relation to e rate or amount of duty legally chargeable and collectible in any se where money is so paid.

Act March 3, 1839, c. 82, § 2, 5 Stat. 348.

(R. S. §§ 3011–3013. Repealed.)

R. S. § 3011, provided that any person having made payment, under protest, in order to obtain possession of merchandise imported for him to any collector, of any money as duties, when such amount of duties was not wholly authorized by law, might maintain an action, in the nature of an action at law, which should be triable by jury, to ascertain the validity of the payment of duties and to recover back any excess so paid; but that no recovery should be allowed in such action unless a protest in writing, signed by the claimant or his agent, was made and delivered at or before the payment, setting forth distinctly and specifically the grounds of objection to the amount claimed. It was amended by striking out the provision relating to the making and delivery of the written protest, and by inserting a provision that an appeal should be taken as prescribed in section 2931, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 247.

R. S. § 3012, provided that no suit should be maintained for the recovery of duties alleged to have been erroneously or illegally exacted by collectors, unless plaintiff, within 30 days after notice of appearance of defendant, served a bill of particulars of plaintiff's demand, giving prescribed particulars; and it directed that, if the bill of particulars should not be served, judgment should be rendered against plaintiff.

R. S. § 3012½, provided that when it should be shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Treasury that in case of unascertained duties, or duties or other moneys paid under protest, and appeal, as before provided, more money had been paid to the collector than the law required, the said Secretary should draw his warrant upon the Treasurer in favor of the person entitled to the overpayment, directing the Treasurer to refund the same out of any money not otherwise appropriated.

R. S. § 3013, provided that when it should be shown to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Treasury that more money had been paid to the collector than the law required, and the party had failed to comply with the requirement relating to appeals to the Secretary, and the Secretary should be satisfied that such non-compliance was owing to circumstances beyond the control of the importer, consignee, or agent making such payment, he might draw his warrant upon the Treasurer in favor of the person entitled to the overpayment, directing the Treasurer to refund the same out of any money not otherwise appropriated.

All these sections were repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141.

Notes of Decisions

Disposal of moneys.—All moneys id to collectors of customs for unas-rtained duties, must be placed to the edit of the Treasurer of the United ates. (1896) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 345.

Action for return of duties paid.—e § 5530, ante, as to abolition of ac-n against collector.

Since the passage of this act, an ac-n of assumpsit for money had and ceived will not lie against the collec-r for the return of such duties. Cary Curtis (1845) 44 U. S. (3 How.) 235, L. Ed. 576; Curtis v. Fiedler (1863) U. S. (2 Black) 461, 17 L. Ed. 273; Richardson v. Curtis (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 11,781; Knoedler v. Schell (C. C. 1861) Fed. Cas. No. 7,889.

Cited without definite application, Hager v. Swayne (1893) 13 Sup. Ct. 841, 842, 149 U. S. 242, 37 L. Ed. 719; Schoenfeld v. Hendricks (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 754, 755, 152 U. S. 691, 38 L. Ed. 601; Saltonstall v. Birtwell (1895) 66 Fed. 969, 971, 14 C. C. A. 205 (affirmed [1896] 17 Sup. Ct. 19, 164 U. S. 54, 41 L. Ed. 348); White v. Arthur (C. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 80, 85; De Celis's Adm'r v. U. S. (1877) 13 Ct. Cl. 117.

§ 5714. (Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 21.) Settlements conclu after one year.

Whenever any goods, wares, and merchandise shall have b entered and passed free of duty, and whenever duties upon any ported goods, wares, and merchandise shall have been liquidated paid, and such goods, wares, and merchandise shall have been livered to the owner, importer, agent, or consignee, such entry passage free of duty and such settlement of duties shall, after expiration of one year from the time of entry, in the absence fraud and in the absence of protest by the owner, importer, ag or consignee, be final and conclusive upon all parties. (18 Stat. 1

This section was part of the Anti-Moiety Act, cited above.

Provisions making the decision of the appraiser final and conclusive as to dutiable value of the merchandise appraised, unless appealed from withi time prescribed, and making the decision of the collector final and con sive as to the rate and amount of duties chargeable upon such merchan unless appealed from within a time prescribed were made by the Cust Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, §§ 13, 14, 26 Stat. 136, which provisions were amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 99, 100, and further amended and superseded by Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, M, N, ante, §§ 5594, 5

Notes of Decisions

Nature and operation of section in general.—See § 5718, post.

If articles were purchased by defendant after they had been imported and passed the custom house, without the payment of duty by others, he is not liable for the duty, unless he connived at and is shown to be privy to the importation. U. S. v. Koblitz (C. C. 1882) 15 Fed. 900.

Where an oil painting that would have been entitled to be passed free as an "antiquity," under the act of March 3, 1883 (clause 669, Heyl, part 2, p. 38), if regularly entered as free, has been brought in by the owner without such entry, or payment of duty, but with full opportunity to the customhouse officials for examination and demand of duty, and with no intent on the part of the owner to defraud, and in the actual belief that it was not subject to duty, a proceeding to forfeit it will be barred by this section if not brought within one year from the time of its importation. U. S. v. One Oil Painting (C. C. 1887) 31 Fed. 881.

This section applies to actions to recover from the government alleged excessive or illegal duties. Gulbenkian v. U. S. (C. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 860, judgment affirmed (1911) 186 Fed. 133, 108 C. C. A. 245.

The statute limiting the time for liquidation is designed to apply to past liquidations; and a reliquidation cannot, in the absence of fraud, be made more than one year after settlement. U. S. v. Campbell (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 816.

This section is in the nature of a statute of limitations, as respects the government's right to reliquidate duties, and limits this right, if the duties have been paid, to one year after entry, in the absence of fraud or protest, and any such reliquidation after that period is void; but, if such reli dation be lawfully made within year, the statute is not a limita upon a suit to collect the duties cordingly, and such suit may be bro at any time afterwards. U. S Leng (D. C. 1883) 18 Fed. 15.

There is no limitation fixed by section except a limitation which ar only in the absence of fraud and in absence of protest. So far as the tion contains implied authority reliquidation, it imports the right reliquidate in case of fraud and in of protest after the lapse of one equally with the right so to reliqui within the period of a year. U. S Vitelli & Son (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. A 151.

This section is intended to limit time within which errors in the li dation and payment of duties may corrected. It has no application claims under the provisions of sec 20 of said act of June 30, 1864, refund of additional duties exacted paid upon importations made on 29th and 30th of April, 1864. (18 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 122.

Repeal of section.—Section 57 post, does not repeal or modify section; and a reliquidation m more than a year after entry is v though within a year after the p ment of duty. U. S. v. F. B. Van grift & Co. (C. C. 1908) 166 F 1017, judgment affirmed (1909) Fed. 772, 99 C. C. A. 598.

Conclusiveness of settlement in g eral.—A reliquidation of duties bas not on a reappraisement of the va of the merchandise by the local praiser, but on a change in the ra and by a disallowance of a discou and made more than one year af settlement without protest, will sustain a demand by the governm r additional duties, such settlement ing final. Beard v. Porter (1888) 4 U. S. 437, 8 Sup. Ct. 556, 31 L. l. 490, 492, affirming (C. C. 1883) 15 ed. 380, 382.

Importer held not concluded by a reuidation for fraud a year after reval of goods, but under this section, d Tariff Act Aug. 5, 1909, § 28, subc. 14, he may, when sued for amount e under reliquidation, set up his dense as in other cases. U. S. v. Sherin & Sons Co. (1915) 35 Sup. Ct. 0, 237 U. S. 146, 59 L. Ed. 883.

This section does not give rise to y presumption that the collector ade a liquidation within one year ter entry, nor require a liquidation be made within one year, but only events a reliquidation after a year s elapsed from the entry. Gandolfi United States (C. C. A.) 74 Fed. 9, 20 C. C. A. 652.

This section does not operate to prent the liquidation of duties on an ticle at any time after its entry in nd upon or after its withdrawal r consumption when there had been previous liquidation. Abner Doble . v. United States (1902) 119 Fed. 2, 56 C. C. A. 40.

By virtue of this section, within one ar after entry, the duties may be liquidated at a higher rate, though ey may have been paid and the merandise have been withdrawn for conmption. Louisville Pillow Co. v. U. (1906) 144 Fed. 386, 75 C. C. A. 4; U. S. v. Mexican International Co. (1907) 151 Fed. 545, 81 C. C. 61.

Under this section a collector of stoms may liquidate duties before after one year from entry of imrts, but, after once liquidating, he nnot, in the absence of fraud or prost, reliquidate after a year from date entry. Pacific Creosoting Co. v. nited States (1912) 196 Fed. 35, 116 C. A. 50.

In a proceeding by a collector to reuidate duties, where an importer hose goods have been appraised and rrendered on payment of the duty cited for examination under section 96, ante, the collector has no power, der this section, to examine into the estion of valuation; the appraisal ing final and conclusive. Bornn Hat o. v. U. S. (1914) 215 Fed. 709, 132 C. A. 87, affirming judgment U. S. Calhoun (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 499.

A promise, without consideration, of collector of customs not to plead e statute of limitations is enforcea- e neither in law nor equity. Andrae Redfield (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 8; Id. (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 7.

Within a year from the entry a colctor may make a reliquidation, notithstanding a previous liquidation and yment of the duties, which will be nding upon the importer in the absence of an appeal. U. S. v. Phelps (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 16,039.

Where the secretary of the treasury instructed the collector of customs to continue to classify jute rejections as jute butts, under the provisions of the Revised Statutes (section 2499) known as the "similitude clause," after jute butts had ceased to be dutiable and could no longer be a standard of comparison under that clause, and the collector delivered the jute rejections free of duty under said similitude clause, and the secretary of the treasury, having subsequently discovered his error, in a second instruction to the collector directed him to collect the prescribed duty on the jute rejections, held, that the secretary had an undoubted right to change his first erroneous ruling. U. S. v. Cobb (C. C. 1882) 11 Fed. 76.

A reweighing of goods made by the collector and the regular weighers, at which a difference from the original weights in favor of the government was found, but of which no notice or order was given, and no record made, was not a reliquidation of the duties on said goods. U. S. v. Seidenberg (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 227.

Certain merchandise was imported, assessed for duty, passed into the possession of the owners, and was sold, and protests against the assessment were made by the importers. Subsequently, but within one year after the original liquidation of the entry, and while the protests were still pending before the Board of General Appraisers, the collector of customs reliquidated the entry, and collected duty at an increased rate. Held, that this action of the collector was lawful, under the provision in this section. Neresheimer v. U. S. (C. C. 1903) 131 Fed. 977, judgment reversed Neresheimer & Co. v. Same (1904) 136 Fed. 86, 68 C. C. A. 654.

After the duties have been liquidated and paid, and the goods delivered, the collector cannot make a reliquidation upon the subsequent report of an appraiser who never saw the goods. U. S. v. Frazer (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 15,161.

The liquidation is final on all parties interested, unless appealed from. U. S. v. Campbell (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 816.

Where, in January, February, and April, 1880, three entries on importations were made, and the estimated duties paid at the time of entry, but the duties were liquidated at a larger sum, which, on appeal to the secretary, was set aside, and the importer's classification sustained, and the duties paid accordingly, and afterwards the secretary gave a contrary order to the collector, who again, in April, 1881, reliquidated the duties according to his first liquidation, and the government thereupon sued for the excess, held, that the payment of the duties upon the first two entries had become a binding settlement by the lapse of a year before the last liquidation, under the act but not as to the third entry. Held, also, as respects the third entry, that the decision on appeal in favor of the importer, under R. S. § 2931 (see section 5595, ante), was binding and conclusive upon the government, and that the subsequent order of the secretary and the last liquidation were invalid and void. U. S. v. Leng (D. C. 1883) 18 Fed. 15.

Collector is entitled within year to institute reliquidation proceedings, in which the importer may be cited for examination, though there can be no reappraisement by him. U. S. v. Calhoun (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 499.

"Entry."—"Entry" is the original entry provided for, regulated, and defined by sections 2785–2790, R. S., sections 5481–5487, ante. U. S. v. Seidenberg (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 227.

"Entry" does not mean the entire transaction leading up to the liquidation, but the act of the importer in presenting to the collector the document known as an "entry." Cassel v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 146 Fed. 146.

Protest.—The filing of a protest suspends the running of the statute until the protest is decided. Klumpp v. Thomas (1908) 162 Fed. 853, 89 C. C. A. 543, writ of certiorari denied (1908) 29 Sup. Ct. 688, 212 U. S. 579, 53 L. Ed. 659.

One who entered at the custom house as imported merchandise a cargo brought from a Porto Rican port after the treaty with Spain of April 11, 1899, and before the passage of the Foraker act, and paid the duties assessed thereon without objection or protest, either written or verbal, or notice of an intention to sue for their recovery, is precluded by such voluntary payment from recovering the money paid from the collector after he has paid the same into the treasury in the usual course of his duty. Dewell v. Mix (C. C. 1902) 116 Fed. 664.

The presence of a protest relating to a portion of an importation does not give the collector the right to reliquidate as to another portion to which the protest does not relate. Cassel v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 146 Fed. 146.

The provision of finality "in the absence of * * * protest" does not apply where a protest has been filed, even though it has been sustained, and is no longer pending. Gulbenkian v. Stranahan (C. C. 1907) 158 Fed. 836.

Where a protest that had been filed by an importer had been sustained by the collector of customs and was no longer pending, and more than one year after entry of the importat in dispute the collector reliquida the entry pursuant to instructions the Secretary of the Treasury. H that, as a protest had been filed, t action was not in conflict with t section. Kendall v. Lyman (C. 1908) 161 Fed. 652.

Where, with no protest other th an oral complaint, importers acquie ed in customs ruling that involved increase in the duties on their goo there was no "protest" within this se tion. Gulbenkian v. U. S. (C. C. 190 175 Fed. 860, judgment affirmed (191 186 Fed. 133, 108 C. C. A. 245.

"Absence of protest" means the a sence of any existing protest pendi and in force at the time of the reliq dation. U. S. v. Leng (D. C. 188 18 Fed. 15.

Fraud.—Where less than a year a er settlement of duties without prote the collector had the goods reappra ed, and more than a year after settl ment reliquidated the duties, but t reliquidation was not based on t second appraisal, the first settleme was conclusive in the absence of frau Beard v. Porter (1888) 8 Sup. C 556, 558, 124 U. S. 437, 31 L. Ed. 49

It was not fraud by the governmen where subordinate customs office without notice to importers or instru tions from their superior officer made a change in the method of a sessing duties, after years of unifor practice. Gulbenkian v. U. S. (C. 1909) 175 Fed. 860, judgment affirm (1911) 186 Fed. 133, 108 C. C. 245.

Where duties on raw sugar had bee liquidated and paid, the findings of collector, who succeeded in office t one regularly liquidating the dutie that such liquidation was fraudule in that the sugar had been underweig ed, was not conclusive of the questio of fraud in an action by the Unite States against the importer to reco er additional duties under a reliquida tion occurring more than a year afte the entry. U. S. v. Federal Sugar R fining Co. (D. C. 1913) 211 Fed. 101

Computation of time.—Where dutie on imported goods have been liquida ed and paid, and the payment wa made before the passage of this se tion, the one year begins to run fro the time the act took effect. U. S. Campbell (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 816.

The year within which the collecto can reliquidate the duty runs from th time of the presentation to the co lector of the entry by the importe and not from the time of the firs liquidation of the duty. U. S. v. Fra zer (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 15 161.

§ 5715. (Act March 3, 1875, c. 136, § 1.) Refunding duties paid restrictions.

No moneys collected as duties on imports, in accordance wit any decision, ruling, or direction previously made or given b ıe Secretary of the Treasury, shall, except as hereinafter proded, be refunded or repaid, unless in accordance with the judg-ent of a circuit or district court of the United States giving onstruction to the law, and from which the Attorney-General shall ertify that no appeal or writ of error will be taken by the United tates; or unless in pursuance of a special appropriation for the parcular refund or repayment to be made: Provided, That whenever e Secretary shall be of opinion that such duties have been assessed ıd collected under an erroneous view of the facts in the case, he may ıthorize a re-examination and reliquidation in such case, and make ıch refund in accordance with existing laws as the facts so ascer-ined shall, in his opinion, justify; but no such reliquidation shall allowed unless protest and appeal shall have been made as required law: Provided further, That the restrictive provisions of this act all not apply to such personal and household effects and other arties, not merchandise, as are by law exempt from duty: And proded also, That this act shall not affect the refund of excess of deosits based on estimated duties nor prevent the correction of errors liquidation, whether for or against the Government, arising solely on errors of fact discovered within one year from the date of yment, and, when in favor of the Government, brought to the noe of the collector within ten days from the date of discovery. (18 at. 469.)

This was the first section of an act restricting the refunding of customs duties, cited above.

Section 2 of this act, which restricted the reversal or modification, adversely to the United States, of a ruling or decision once made by the Secretary of the Treasury, giving construction to any law imposing customs duties, is set forth ante, § 383.

Provisions creating the Court of Customs Appeals, with exclusive jurisdiction in customs cases, and forbidding appeals to other courts, were made by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 91, 105, and were incorporated in and superseded by chapter 8 of the Judicial Code of March 3, 1911, c. 231, §§ 188–199, ante, §§ 1179–1190.

Provisions for the appraisement of merchandise and for appeals from the decisions of the appraisers and collectors were made by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, §§ 13, 14, 26 Stat. 136, 137, amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 99, 100, and by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, M, N, ante, §§ 5594, 5595.

Provisions defining the power of the Secretary of the Treasury to refund overpayments of estimated duties or payments made on appeal were made by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 24, 26 Stat. 140, re-enacted in the same language, but designated as section 23, by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 103, which were re-enacted by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, Y, post § 5718.

Notes of Decisions

Refund of duties in general.—See tes under § 5718, post.

This section, instead of conferring w powers upon the Secretary of e Treasury in regard to the refund-; of customs duties, restricts those eady possessed by him under sec-ns 3012½ and 3013, R. S. But ses in which the Secretary has made ruling or decision are not within operation. (1876) 15 Op. Atty.
n. 126.

The Secretary of the Treasury is t restricted to an application of a cision of the Supreme Court to such ticles only as are specifically em-aced in this section, but may properly tend his official action to all articles thin the principle of the decision.
878) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 20.

—— Decisions under prior acts.—See (1875) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 560; (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 194; (1884) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 650.

Protest.—Decision under prior act, see (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 183.

The decision of an application to withdraw warehoused goods or supplies for vessels under section 16 of the act of June 26, 1884 (ante, § 5669), is confided by law in the Secretary of the Treasury; hence the protest required by this section is not required where duties were paid by mutual mistake of law on coal withdrawn as above. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 92.

The cases in which the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to make refunds, in the absence of a proper protest, are the following: First, when the duties, as provisionally fixed and paid upon entry of the goods, called "unascertained duties," are reduced upon the final liquidation (section 5718, post); second, for mere clerical error; third, for errors of fact. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 225.

A mistake on the part of the Treasury Department in estimating the equivalent of the Spanish pound, or libra, in the absence of due protest by the importers, is not sufficient to warrant a refund of the excess of duties paid under such erroneous estimate. (1896) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 454.

—— Mistake of fact or law.—In an invoice of reimported grain bags of American manufacture, a mistake in naming the vessel may be corrected by filing a new invoice, and the duties may then be remitted. U. S. v. Brewer (C. C. 1897) 84 Fed. 147.

The collector is authorized, notwithstanding the payment of duties on a regular liquidation and the delivery of goods to the importer, to make a reliquidation, although the error is one of law only. U. S. v. Comarota (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 145, 146.

Importers, before being concluded, are entitled to a ruling of the Secretary, if they have taken the proper steps to obtain it; which ruling, after it is made, can only be declared erroneous in law as to duties actually paid under it, by the judgment of a court. (1876) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 126.

The Secretary of the Treasury has no authority to refund duties erroneously collected, but without formal protest, on certain warehoused coal; but he is authorized to make such refund on coal withdrawn for use on ocean steamers, where the duties were paid by mutual mistake of law. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 92.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to order a reliquidation of the assessment of duties in the interest of the importer and to direct a return of the papers by the board of general appraisers to the collector where the duties were assessed and collected upon errors of fact, discovered within one year from the date of payment, protest and appeal having been duly made. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 152.

For a mutual mistake of law the importer has no remedy. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 225.

The "errors of fact" referred to are mistakes of fact within the meaning of the common law—that is, mutual mistakes of facts. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 226.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to make a refund of duties where there was an error due to a mutual mistake of fact. (1896) Op. Atty. Gen. 454.

The authority of the Secretary the Treasury to refund duties erro ously collected, on the ground of m take, is to be restricted to mistake fact. (1906) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 34.

The question whether another co try pays a bounty on the exportat of sugar can not properly be calle pure question of fact. It is a quest of mixed fact and law. Id.

A mistake in such a question d not arise upon an error of fact wit the meaning of the concluding prov to this section, to be a common-mistake of fact. Id.

Custom house duties paid by mist on property not belonging to the pla tiff may be recovered back. Derby Pierce (Mass. 1792) 1 Dane Avr. 1 Reliquidation of duties.—Both bef and since the passage of the custo administrative act, the collector mi reliquidate at any time within one y from the entry, irrespective of whet or not the duties had been paid and goods withdrawn for consumpti Louisville Pillow Co. v. U. S. (190 144 Fed. 386, 387, 75 C. C. A. 324.

The act of March 3, 1875, does authorize a reliquidation against importer, in the absence of any pe ing protest and appeal, except for rors arising solely on matters of fa and not for an erroneous constructi of the tariff law or classification goods. U. S. v. Leng (D. C. 1883) Fed. 15.

The fact that duties paid under pr test have been refunded upon a recla sification will not prevent the gove ment from recovering under a seco reliquidation, whereby the original d ties were restored, if the suit brought before the expiration of o year from the entry of the goods. S. v. Fox (D. C. 1893) 53 Fed. 531

The collector is entitled within ye to institute reliquidation proceedin in which the importer may be cit for examination, though there can no reappraisement by him. U. S. Calhoun (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 499.

Section 14 of the act of June 1 1890, did not in any way limit t power of the collector of customs reliquidate duties in the interest the government within one year aft entry. (1896) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 33

Where, notwithstanding the instru tion of the Secretary of the Treasu that collectors of customs should d lay final liquidation of duties on certa merchandise until further orders, d ties were nevertheless liquidated a subsequently reliquidated, held su original liquidation was complete a subsisting until changed by reliquid tion. (1902) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 34.

5716. (Act March 3, 1875, c. 136, § 3.) Regulations.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall have power to make such egulations, not inconsistent with law, as may be necessary to car- y this act into effect. (18 Stat. 469.)

See notes to section 1 of this act, ante, § 5715.

5717. (Act March 3, 1875, c. 136, § 4.) Reports to Congress; appeals to Supreme Court.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall, in his annual report to Congress, give a detailed statement of the various sums of money efunded under the provisions of this act or of any other act of Congress relating to the revenue, together with copies of the rulings nder which repayments were made: Provided, That in all cases vhere the Secretary of the Treasury shall so request the Attorney-General shall take an appeal to the Supreme Court. (18 Stat. 469.)

The provisions of this section requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to give, in his annual report to Congress, a detailed statement of the sums refunded, together with copies of the rulings under which the payments were made, were superseded by the similar provisions of the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 24, 26 Stat. 140, re-enacted, but designated as section 23, by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 103, which were re-enacted by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, Y, post, § 5718.

See notes to section 1 of this act, ante, § 5715, as to appeal to courts.

5718. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, Y.) Refunding overpayments of duties; correction of errors; report to Congress.

Y. Whenever it shall be shown to the satisfaction of the Secre- ary of the Treasury that, in any case of unascertained or esti- nated duties, or payments made upon appeal, more money has been aid to or deposited with a collector of customs than, as has been ascertained by final liquidation thereof, the law required to be paid r deposited, the Secretary of the Treasury shall direct the Treasurer o refund and pay the same out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. The necessary moneys therefor are hereby appropriated, and this appropriation shall be deemed a permanent in- lefinite appropriation; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby uthorized to correct manifest clerical errors in any entry or liquida- ion for or against the United States, at any time within one year of he date of such entry, but not afterwards: Provided, That the Sec- etary of the Treasury shall, in his annual report to Congress, give a letailed statement of the various sums of money refunded under the provisions of this Act or of any other Act of Congress relating to the revenue, together with copies of the rulings under which repayments were made. (38 Stat. 191.)

This was a subdivision of section III of the Underwood Tariff Act, cited above.

See notes to subdivision B of this section, ante, § 5519.

The provision was originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 24, 26 Stat. 140, re-enacted in the same language, but designated section 23, by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, 36 Stat. 103, which was re-enacted without change by this act.

Provisions requiring the refunding of duties improperly paid, in case of unascertained or estimated duties or payments under protest, were made by R. S. § 3012½, which was repealed by section 29 of the Customs Administrative Act.

Provisions requiring the Secretary of the Treasury to give, in his annual report to Congress, a detailed statement of the sums refunded under any law relating to the revenue, together with copies of rulings under which payments were made, were also made by Act March 3, 1875, c. 136, § 4, ante, § 5717.

Permanent appropriations to repay the excess of deposits for unascertained duties, or duties, etc., paid under protest, and to refund duties to parties otherwise entitled thereto, were made by R. S. § 3689, post, § 6799.

Provisions for abatement and refund of duties in case of injury to g while in the custody of the officers of the customs in any public or pri warehouse under bond, were made by R. S. § 2984, ante, § 5677.

Notes of Decisions

Refund of duties in general.—See notes under § 5715, ante.

Where the government repaid duties which had been improperly exacted by its agent, a collector of customs, this did not constitute a payment by a stranger which could not inure to the benefit of the collector. Bidwell v. Preston (1908) 160 Fed. 653, 88 C. C. A. 19.

On the refund of duties that had been improperly exacted, interest was withheld on the ground that there was no appropriation for payment of interest; so that the sum repaid was the exact equivalent of the principal. Held, that the acceptance of this sum by the importer was tantamount to a waiver of the claim of interest, and could not be considered as a general payment on account, which the payee was entitled to apply, first, to the extinguishment of the interest and, next, to part payment of the principal. Id.

The refunding of moneys in compliance with decisions of the board of general appraisers and the Circuit Court is a function of the Treasury Department, and a suit does not lie to restrain the collector of customs from disposing of such moneys. Joannidis v. Loeb (C. C. 1911) 191 Fed. 93.

Where there was no compliance with customs regulations governing goods in transit, and the goods were taken out of the customs custody by the importer or his agent and into his own possession while in the United States, no refund of duties could be had. U. S. v. Cornett (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 334.

The Secretary of the Treasury has power to refund excess of duties erroneously exacted, upon the dismissal of the suits brought to recover such excess. (1884) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 657.

Refund due an importer in case of judgment against the United States for illegal assessment of duties does not include costs. (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 273.

The Secretary of the Treasury has no power to remit any part of duties strictly so called, however erroneously they may have been assessed, but he may remit the "additional duties" provided for by section 5527, ante, as they are penalties and not duties. (1893) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 660.

The cases in which the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to make refunds, in the absence of a proper protest, are the following: First, when the duties, as provisionally fixed and paid upon entry of the goods, called "unascertained duties," are reduced upon the final liquidation; second, for mere clerical error; third, for errors of fact (section 5715, ante). (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 225.

The Secretary of the Treasury no power to refund penal duties w have been paid into the Treasury the ground that they were incu without willful negligence or an in tion of fraud on the part of the porter. (1896) 21 Op. Atty. Gen.

—— Manifest clerical error.— also, notes on "Manifest clerical er under § 5527, ante.

A manifest clerical error in a li dation made within one year a original entry cannot be corrected n that one year after such entry, cause not within the provision aut izing the Secretary of the Treasur correct such errors "within one y from the date of such entry," as term "entry," as there used, refer the document filed by the importer entry. U. S. v. F. B. Vandegrift & (C. C. 1908) 166 Fed. 1017, judgm affirmed (1909) 175 Fed. 772, 99 C. A. 598.

Where, in liquidation, the clerk n calculated the number of square ya in an imported fabric, this constitu a "manifest clerical error," within act. Id.

Inasmuch as this act, relating to correction of "manifest clerical rors," is the latest deliverance on t subject and relates most specifica thereto, it controls over section 57 ante, relative to the "settlement duties," and section 5715, ante, re tive to the "correction of errors liquidation." Id.

The entrants at the time of en had before them the shippers' invoic upon which two prices were indicat one purporting to be the unit co price and the other the unit mark value, and intentionally entered t merchandise at a value correspondi to such cost price. Held not to ma a case of manifest clerical error. S. v. Kuppenheimer & Co. (1915) 6 C Cust. App. 389.

Where a customs entry was made June, 1900, and the additional duti levied and collected thereon were r mitted by the Secretary of the Trea ury on the ground of a manifest cle ical error, but at the time of the r mission such duty had been paid in the Treasury, held, that the Secreta of the Treasury has authority to r fund out of an appropriation for th purpose the additional duties which a crued by reason of a manifest cleric error upon an entry within a yea from the time of their payment. Th authority to refund in such case is necessary consequence of the authorit to remit. (1901) 23 Op. Atty. Ge 442.

—— Decisions under prior statute —See Cantzler v. Gordon (1834) 6 L

58; Post v. U. S. (1913) 49 Ct. Cl. 05; (1840) 3 Op. Atty. Gen. 583; 1841) 3 Op. Atty. Gen. 613; (1882) 7 Op. Atty. Gen. 336; (1884) 17 Op. tty. Gen. 642; (1890) 19 Op. Atty. en. 646; (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 251.

Cited without definite application, Hager v. Swayne (1893) 13 Sup. Ct. 841, 842, 149 U. S. 242, 37 L. Ed. 719; Schoenfeld v. Hendricks (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 754, 755, 152 U. S. 691, 38 L. Ed. 601.

5719. (R. S. § 3014.) Judgments, how payable.

In all proceedings brought by the United States in any court for ue recovery as well of duties upon imports alone as of penalties for he non-payment thereof, the judgment shall recite that the same s rendered for duties, and such judgment, interest, and costs shall e payable in the coin by law receivable for duties, and the execu- ion issued on such judgment shall set forth that the recovery is or duties, and shall require the marshal to satisfy the same in the oin by law receivable for duties; and in case of levy upon and ale of the property of the judgment debtor, the marshal shall re- use payment from any purchaser at such sale in any other money han that specified in the execution.

Act March 3, 1865, c. 80, § 12, 13 Stat. 494.

Provisions similar to those of this section were made by R. S. § 962, ante, § 1600.

See note to R. S. § 3009, ante, § 5710, as to what is receivable for duties.

CHAPTER NINE

Drawback

Sec.
5720. Allowance of drawback.
5721. Restrictions upon allowance.
5722. Limitation of time for exportation.
5723. Exportation of drugs.
5724. Articles made wholly or in part from imported materials; medicinal or toilet preparations; vessels.
5725. Railroad-iron.
5726. Salt for curing fish.
5727. Duty on gaugeable merchandise.
5728. Duty upon weighable articles.
5729. No drawback after removal from custody.
5730. No drawback allowed on discriminating duties.
5731. Exportation in same package.
5732. Change from casks.
5733. Change of package.
5734. Notice of change.
5735. Deposit of invoice.
5736. Comparison with invoice.
5737. Appraisement when duty ad valorem.
5738. Inspection and lading.
5739. Transportation to another district for exportation.
5740. Extension of time for entry.
5741. Debentures, to whom payable.
5742. Suit on refusal of payment.
5743. Debentures assignable.
5744. Exportation from another district.
5745. Refusal of debenture.
5746. Bond for delivery of merchandise at a foreign port.
5747. Discharge of bond.
5748. Consul's certificate.
5749. Consul's fee.
5750. Other proof.
5751. Permanent appropriation for payment of debentures.
5752. Penalty for relanding goods entered for drawback.
5753. Penalty for false entry.
5754. No forfeiture for accident or mistake.
5755. Exportation and transportation of bonded goods not prevented.
5756. Importations from British North America.
5757. Transportation to ports in British North America.
5758. Exportation to British North America.
5759. Drawback regulations.

§ 5720. (R. S. § 3015.) Allowance of drawback.

A drawback of duties, as prescribed by law, shall be allowed and paid on all merchandise imported into the United States, in respect to all such merchandise as shall be exported to any foreign port other than the dominions of any foreign state immediately adjoining to the United States, either from the district of original importation, or from certain other districts; and all duties, drawbacks, and allowances which shall be payable, or allowable, on any specific quantity of merchandise, shall be deemed to apply in proportion to any greater or less quantity, except as herein otherwise provided.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 75, 1 Stat. 680.

Provisions requiring the return of duties on exportation of merchandise from warehouses in the custody of customs officers were made by R. S. § 2977 ante, § 5663.

Provisions prohibiting the entering or exporting for drawback of merchandise withdrawn from the custody of customs officers, except as provided in R. S. § 3025, were made by R. S. § 2978, ante, § 5664.

Provisions authorizing the transportation of merchandise, the duties on which have been paid or secured, from the district into which it was imported to any port of entry, and the exportation from such port with the benefit of drawback, were made by R. S. § 3036, post, § 5739.

Notes of Decisions

Drawback moneys.—Drawback moneys are duties repaid to the importer or the person to whom he has transferred his rights. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 255.

Imposing duty in repayment of drawback.—Grain bags manufactured in this country from imported materials were exported full of California wheat. The exporter demanded and received according to law, out of the public treasury, the drawback due him on account of the duty formerly collected upon the materials of which the bags were made. Upon the return of the grain bags, held, that they were entitled to pass free of duty. The power of the secretary to prescribe rules and regulations does not authorize him to impose a duty, not provided for by congress, in repayment of the drawback. Balfour v. Sullivan (C. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 578.

Cited without definite application, Downs v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 222, 224, 187 U. S. 496, 47 L. Ed. 275; Thomas & Son Co. v. Barnett (1906) 144 Fed. 338, 339, 75 C. C. A. 300; I (C. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 172; Swan Finch Co. v. U. S. (1901) 37 Ct. Cl. 10

§ 5721. (R. S. § 3016.) Restrictions upon allowance.

No merchandise imported shall be entitled to a drawback of the duties paid, unless the duties so paid shall amount to fifty dollars at least; nor unless they shall be exported in the original casks, cases, chests, boxes, trunks, or other packages, in which they were imported, without diminution or change of the articles which were therein contained, at the time of importation, in quantity, quality or value, necessary or unavoidable wastage or damage only excepted.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 75, 1 Stat. 681.

Drawback of duties paid on materials used in manufactures was provided for by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, O, post § 5724.

Cited without definite application, Downs v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 222, 224, 187 U. S. 496, 47 L. Ed. 275; Thomas & Son Co. v. Barnett (190 144 Fed. 338, 339, 75 C. C. A. 300.

§ 5722. (R. S. § 3017.) Limitation of time for exportation.

No drawback of the duties shall be allowed on merchandise entitled to debenture under existing laws, unless such merchandise shall be exported from the United States within three years from the date of the importation of the same. One per centum on the amount of all drawbacks allowed shall be retained for the use of the United States by the collectors paying such drawbacks, respectively.

Act Aug. 30, 1842, c. 270, § 15, 5 Stat. 563. Act March 3, 1845, c. 7 § 10, 5 Stat. 752. Act July 14, 1862, c. 163, § 21, 12 Stat. 560.

Provisions authorizing the withdrawal of merchandise in bond for consumption were made by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 189 c. 407, § 20, 26 Stat. 140, which, as amended by Act Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, 54, 26 Stat. 624, and Act Dec. 15, 1902, c. 1, 32 Stat. 753, were furthe amended by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, Stat. 101, and were re-enacted by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 191 c. 16, § III, S, ante, § 5656.

Provisions authorizing the withdrawal of merchandise in bond for exportation were made by R. S. § 2971, ante, § 5657.

Cited without definite application, Downs v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 222, 224, 187 U. S. 496, 47 L. Ed. 275; Thomas & Son Co. v. Barnett (1906) 144 Fed. 338, 339, 75 C. C. A. 30 Wheeler v. U. S. (D. C. 1896) 75 Fe 654, 655; (1843) 4 Op. Atty. Gen. 19

§ 5723. (R. S. § 3018.) Exportation of drugs.

All drugs, medicines, and chemical preparations entered for exportation and deposited in warehouse or public store, may be exported by the owner thereof in the original package, or otherwise, subject to such regulations as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Act July 14, 1862, c. 163, § 21, 12 Stat. 559.

Cited without definite application,
Downs v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 222, 224, 187 U. S. 496, 47 L. Ed. 275.

(R. S. §§ 3019, 3020. Superseded.)

R. S. § 3019, was as follows:

"There shall be allowed on all articles wholly manufactured of materials imported, on which duties have been paid when exported, a drawback equal in amount to the duty paid on such materials, and no more, to be ascertained under such regulations as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury. Ten per centum on the amount of all drawbacks so allowed shall, however, be retained for the use of the United States by the collectors paying such drawbacks respectively."

R. S. § 3020, as originally enacted, was as follows:

"Where fire-arms, scales, balances, shovels, spades, axes, hatchets, hammers, plows, cultivators, mowing-machines, and reapers, manufactured with stocks or handles made of wood grown in the United States, are exported for benefit of drawback under the preceding section, such articles shall be entitled to such drawback in all cases when the imported material exceeds one-half of the value of the material used."

The words "And where cans manufactured in whole or in part of imported material, filled with products grown or produced in the United States, are exported for benefit of such drawback, the same shall, in all cases, be entitled to the drawback provided for in the preceding section where the imported material used in the manufacture of such cans shall equal seventy per centum of the value of all the material used in the manufacture thereof," were added thereto by amendment by Act March 10, 1880, c. 37, 21 Stat. 67.

These sections and the amendatory act were superseded by provisions of the same nature made by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, O, post, § 5724.

§ 5724. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, O.) Articles made wholly or in part from imported materials; medicinal or toilet preparations; vessels.

O. Upon the exportation of articles manufactured or produced in the United States by the use of imported merchandise or materials upon which customs duties have been paid, the full amount of such duties paid upon the quantity of materials used in the manufacture or production of the exported product shall be refunded as drawback, less 1 per centum of such duties: Provided, That where a principal product and a by-product result from the manipulation of imported material and only the by-product is exported, the proportion of the drawback distributed to such by-product shall not exceed the duty assessable under this Act on a similar by-product of foreign origin if imported into the United States. Where no duty is assessable upon the importation of a corresponding by-product, no drawback shall be payable on such by-product produced from the imported material; if, however, the principal product is exported, then on the exportation thereof there shall be refunded as drawback the whole of the duty paid on the imported material used in the production of both the principal and the by-product, less 1 per cent, as hereinbefore provided: Provided further, That when the articles exported are manufactured in part from domestic materials, the imported materials or the parts of the articles manufactured from such materials, shall so appear in the completed articles that the quantity or measure thereof may be ascertained: And provided further, That the drawback on any article allowed under existing law shall be continued at the rate herein provided. That the imported materials used in the manufacture or production of articles entitled to drawback of customs duties when exported shall, in all cases where drawback of duties paid on such m terials is claimed, be identified, the quantity of such materials us and the amount of duties paid thereon shall be ascertained, the fac of the manufacture or production of such articles in the United Stat and their exportation therefrom shall be determined, and the dra back due thereon shall be paid to the manufacturer, producer, or e porter, to the agent of either or to the person to whom such man facturer, producer, exporter, or agent shall in writing order su drawback paid, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Trea ury shall prescribe.

On the exportation of flavoring extracts, medicinal or toilet pre arations (including perfumery) hereafter manufactured or produc in the United States in part from domestic alcohol on which an i ternal-revenue tax has been paid, there shall be allowed a drawba equal in amount to the tax found to have been paid on the alcohol used: Provided, That no other than domestic tax-paid alcohol sh have been used in the manufacture or production of such preparatio Such drawback shall be determined and paid under such rules a regulations, and upon the filing of such notices, bonds, bills of ladin and other evidence of payment of tax and exportation, as the Secr tary of the Treasury shall prescribe.

The provisions of this section shall apply to materials used in t construction and equipment of vessels built for foreign account a ownership, or for the government of any foreign country, notwit standing that such vessels may not within the strict meaning of t term be articles exported. (38 Stat. 200.)

This was a subdivision of section IV of the Underwood Tariff Act, cit above.

See notes to subdivision A of this section, ante, § 5292.

Provisions similar to those of this subdivision were made by the precedi tariff acts, the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 25, 36 Sta 90, the Dingley Tariff Act of July 24, 1897, c. 11, § 30, 30 Stat. 211, t Wilson Tariff Act of Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 22, 28 Stat. 551, and the M Kinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 25, 26 Stat. 617.

These provisions superseded provisions of similar nature made by R. S. 3019, 3020, 3026.

The provision that this section shall apply to materials used in the co struction and equipment of vessels built for foreign account, superseded similar provision of Act June 26, 1884, c. 121, § 17, 23 Stat. 57.

Provisions for the importation in bond of materials for the constructio and repair of vessels for foreign trade were made by subdivision J, subsec 5, 6, of this section, ante, §§ 5309, 5310. Similar provisions were made b the preceding tariff acts.

The re-importation of any article on which an allowance of drawback h been made was prohibited except on the payment of duties equal to suc drawback, by a proviso annexed to paragraph 404 of section I of this ac set forth ante, § 5291, par. 404. Similar provisions were made by precedi tariff acts.

Drawback of duties paid on materials used in the manufacture of article manufactured or produced in the United States, on the shipment of said a ticles to the Philippine Archipelago, and of duties paid on merchandise i bonded warehouse or otherwise in the custody and control of the officers the customs, on shipment to the Philippine Islands within three years fro the date of the original arrival, was provided for by Act March 8, 1902, 140, §§ 6, 7, ante, §§ 5674, 5675.

Notes of Decisions

1. Purpose of act.
2. Goods consumed on voyage—Prior statutes.
3. Jurisdiction of Secretary of the Treasury.
4. Identity of imported material and ascertainment of quantity and measure —In general.
5. —— "Appear."
6. —— "Ascertained."
7. —— Flour.
8. —— Lead.
9. —— Oil cake.
10. —— Sugar in canned fruit.
11. Leased bags.
12. "Manufacture" and materials used i manufacture—In general.
13. —— Automobile used in constructio of express wagon.
14. —— Blended flour.
15. —— Borax used as preservative fo meat.

6. —— Bottles, corks, etc.
7. —— Boxes made from imported shooks.
8. —— Burlap used for covering cotton.
9. —— Camels hair noils.
10. —— Equipment of railroad cars.
11. —— Syrup manufactured from raw sugar.
12. Persons entitled to drawback—What constitutes exportation and importation.
13. Authority to collect drawbacks.
14. —— Decisions under prior acts.

1. Purpose of act.—The general purpose of the section was to provide that, whenever materials are brought into the United States under such circumstances that they are subject to the payment of duty and used here in the manufacture of finished articles, upon the subsequent exportation of such manufactured articles to a foreign country a drawback shall be allowed upon the material on which duty has been paid. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 355.

2. Goods consumed on voyage—Prior statutes.—See U. S. v. Allen (1896) 163 U. S. 499, 16 Sup. Ct. 1071, 41 L. Ed. 242, reversing (D. C. 1892) 52 Fed. 575, and (1893) 58 Fed. 864, 7 C. C. A. 547, 15 U. S. App. 252; (1902) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 6.

3. Jurisdiction of Secretary of the Treasury.—The jurisdiction to allow or refuse drawbacks is vested in the Secretary of the Treasury, and it would seem incongruous to vest in another tribunal the decision of questions relating to the charges connected with the exportation of drawback goods, which in effect result in a reduction of the allowance of drawback. Atlantic Transport Co. v. U. S. (1914) 5 Ct. Cust. App. 373.

4. Identity of imported material and ascertainment of quantity and measure—In general.—Of a claim for drawback on exported articles under Act Aug. 5, 1861, § 4 (12 Stat. 292), which provides that the drawback shall be "ascertained under such regulations as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury," the Court of Claims has not jurisdiction; there being no fixed right to any specific sum of money until the amount of the drawback is ascertained under the regulations prescribed. Campbell v. U. S. (1876) 12 Ct. Cl. 470.

Drawback is allowable under section 25, Act 1890, only in cases where the article manufactured or produced can be so separated chemically or mechanically into its component materials that the relative portions of each material may be ascertained without reference to past books of account. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 110.

The provision of section 25, Act 1890, allowing a drawback on articles exported which are made in part from imported and in part from domestic materials, deals only with the ascertainment of the quantity or measure of the imported material existing in the completed article, and has nothing to do with the identification of such materials. The proviso does not prescribe how the imported materials shall appear, except that they shall so appear that the quantity and measure thereof may be ascertained. Ascertainment of quantity and measure is an act of the mind, and the required appearance is therefore not a visual, but a mental, presentation. The meaning of the proviso is that where the article exported is made in part from domestic materials, the imported materials shall so appear in the completed article—that is, be shown to the satisfaction of the customs officers to exist in the completed article—that the quantity or measure thereof may be ascertained. (1898) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 111.

Where upon the exportation of a product manufactured in the United States from a combination of domestic material and foreign material which has paid duty, the quantity or measure of the foreign material actually present in the completed article can be identified to the satisfaction of the customs officials by the evidence of books of account, or otherwise, the exporter is entitled under section 30, Act 1897, to drawback of the duties paid upon the imported material thus ascertained to be actually present in the completed article. (1905) 25 Op. Atty. Gen. 344.

5. —— "Appear."—The word "appear" does not require that the imported materials should appear in the sense of being seen in the completed articles, but only in the sense of being proven to be present in the completed article. (1905) 25 Op. Atty. Gen. 344.

6. —— "Ascertained." — The word "ascertained" is obviously used to describe knowledge which is obtained from evidence, and not merely that which is obtained from the exercise of the senses. (1905) 25 Op. Atty. Gen. 344.

7. —— Flour.—In computing the drawback on the export of flour made from imported wheat, the relative values of the flour and other products at the time and place of manufacture should be used as the basis of calculation. And where only a part of the products from imported wheat is exported, the proportionate value of the same for drawback purposes should be determined without allowing anything for the increased price such part would bring in domestic markets because of the privilege of drawback. (1905) 25 Op. Atty. Gen. 374.

8. —— Lead.—In a mass of lead, of which 90 per cent. is foreign in origin and 10 per cent. domestic, the domestic lead can be regarded neither as a mere incident to the other nor as small enough in amount to be disregarded and is not entitled to drawback. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 110.

Satisfactory proof having been presented to the customs officers to establish the identity of certain imported lead ore used in the manufacture of pig lead, to ascertain the quantity thereof, and to compute the duties paid thereon, and it being satisfactorily shown that the imported lead so appears in the exported product that the quantity or measure thereof may be ascertained, a drawback is allowable. (1898) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 111.

White lead made in this country from a mixture of domestic and imported pig lead, obtained from foreign and domestic lead ores, held not entitled upon exportation to drawback under Act 1890, because that part of the lead which came from the imported ore does not so appear in the completed product that its quantity or measure can be ascertained in the manner contemplated by that act. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 229.

A drawback may be allowed of the duties paid on imported lead, refined, in a bonded warehouse, subsequently withdrawn therefrom on payment of duties, for domestic consumption, as provided in section 29, Act 1897 (see ante, § 5673), upon the exportation of articles manufactured wholly from such lead under the provision of section 30. (1898) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 119.

The drawback to be allowed under section 30, Act 1897, on refined lead withdrawn from bond, manufactured and exported, the same being originally part of a quantity of base bullion that had been imported and upon which regular duties had been paid under paragraph 182 of the same act, should be based on the quantity of refined lead thus used, plus 2 per cent. for waste (that is, an amount equal to the duties paid on the materials actually used), less the statutory 1 per cent. of such duties. (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 131.

9. —— Oil cake.—Where linseed, on which a duty of 20 cents per bushel had been paid, was manufactured into oil and oil cake, and the oil cake exported, the drawback, under section 22 of the act of August 27, 1894, should be computed in proportion to the value which the oil cake bears to the oil, and not in proportion to the weight which the exported oil cake bears to the weight of the imported linseed. U. S. v. Dean Linseed Oil Co. (1898) 87 Fed. 453, 31 C. C. A. 51, reversing Dean Linseed Oil Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1897) 78 Fed. 467, and certiorari denied Id. (1898) 19 Sup. Ct. 884, 172 U. S. 647, 43 L. Ed. 1181.

Oil cake made from imported flaxseed is not waste, but a manufactured article entitled to drawback. U. S. v. Dean Linseed Oil Co. (1898) 87 Fed. 453, 454, 31 C. C. A. 51 (writ of certiorari denied [1898] 19 Sup. Ct. 884, 172 U. S. 647, 43 L. Ed. 1181); Dean Linseed Oil Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1897) 78 Fed. 467.

A drawback is allowable on oil cake made from imported linseed. (189 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 109. See, a (1901) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 395, a (1904) 25 Op. Atty. Gen. 115.

10. —— Sugar in canned fruit.—It ing possible to ascertain the quantity imported sugar present in fruit can for export, drawback on such su should be allowed. (1898) 22 Op. At Gen. 127.

11. Leased bags.—No right of dra back arises under R. S. § 3019, wh bags made of imported materials leased to steamers for foreign voya with the understanding that they to be brought back again to the Uni States. Kennedy v. U. S. (1899) Fed. 127, 37 C. C. A. 25, affirming ju ment (C. C. 1897) 79 Fed. 893.

12. "Manufacture" and materials us in manufacture—in general.—To enti an importer to a refund of duties und those statutes it is necessary that t ultimate completed article shall wholly manufactured in this count and the mere combination of a compl ed motor with or its construction in a vehicle does not constitute a new a distinct manufacture within the mea ing of the drawback laws. (1902) Op. Atty. Gen. 625.

The drawback law contemplates t manufacture of a separate and co plete article which is not merely t finished material of a further stag (1902) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 53.

13. —— Automobile used in constru tion of express wagon.—An import held not entitled to a refund of duti paid upon an automobile imported f use in the construction of an expre wagon upon the reexportation of t completed wagon, such wagon not bei a manufacture. (1902) 23 Op. Att Gen. 625.

14. —— Blended flour.—Blended flo is a "manufacture" within the a (1908) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 68.

15. —— Borax used as preservati for meat.—Borax used as a preserv tive of hams and bacon during shipme to foreign destination and then wash out held not a part of the product, a no drawback was allowable under A 1897. Nor could the drawback be a lowed in such case on the theory th the borax exported is itself a man facture because it was imported lumps, and ground or powdered befo being applied to the meat; since it not exported in the form of powder borax, but is absorbed into the surfa of the meat. Anglo-American Provisi Co. v. U. S. (1902) 116 Fed. 248, C. C. A. 28, writ of certiorari deni (1903) 23 Sup. 854, 190 U. S. 558, L. Ed. 1184.

16. —— Bottles, corks, etc.—Impor ed bottles and corks, re-exported fill with beer made in this country, are n "materials * * * used in the man facture of articles manufactured or pr uced in the United States." Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co. v. U. S. (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 740, 741, 181 U. S. 584, 45 L. Ed. 1013; Anheuser-Busch Brewing Ass'n v. U. S. (1908) 28 Sup. Ct. 204, 205, 207 U. S. 556, 52 L. Ed. 336 affirming judgment [1906] 41 Ct. Cl. 389); Wheeler v. U. S. (D. C. 1896) 75 Fed. 654; Beadleston v. U. S. (1899) 104 Fed. 295; Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co. v. U. S. (1900) 35 Ct. Cl. 110; Anheuser-Busch Brewing Co. v. U. S. (1906) 41 Ct. Cl. 389.

17. —— Boxes made from imported shooks.—Boxes put together in this country from imported shooks, and with nails made here from imported rods, are not "wholly manufactured" in this country, so as to be entitled to a drawback, under Rev. St. § 3019; and, while the nails may be considered as wholly manufactured here, they lost their identity in the box, so that no separate drawback can be allowed on them. Tidewater Oil Co. v. U. S. (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 837, 171 U. S. 210, 43 L. Ed. 139.

Boxes made of shooks manufactured in Canada held not a domestic manufacture within the statute. Tidewater Oil Co. v. U. S. (1896) 31 Ct. Cl. 90.

18. —— Burlaps used for covering cotton.—Imported burlaps, on which duty has been paid, when used as coverings on the so-called "roundlap" bales of cotton, held not entitled to drawback, for the reason that the bale is not an article manufactured or produced within this section. (1903) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 175.

19. —— Camel's hair noils.—Camel's hair noils, resulting from the separation of imported camel's hair and noils, were not entitled to drawback as a manufactured article. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 159.

20. —— Equipment of railroad cars.—Certain car brakes, springs, and lighting apparatus were imported into the United States for the purpose of being used as parts of the equipment of certain railroad cars to be manufactured in this country for export. They were not installed in the cars, but were present for inspection and were shipped in their original packages, or were repacked and shipped, with the parts of the cars to which they were subsequently to be attached. Held, that such articles were not used "in the manufacture of articles manufactured or produced within the United States." (1904) 25 Op. Atty. Gen. 125.

21. —— Syrup manufactured from raw sugar.—Drawback should be allowed upon the exportation to Europe of syrup manufactured from raw sugar which was brought into the United States from the Philippine Islands and upon which duties were paid under the Philippine revenue act of March 8, 1902. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 355.

22. Persons entitled to drawback—What constitutes exportation and importation.—The shipment of manufactured articles upon a foreign-going vessel for use and consumption upon the voyage is not "exportation." In all drawback statutes foreign destination is intended. Swan & Finch Co. v. U. S. (1901) 37 Ct. Cl. 101, judgment affirmed (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 702, 190 U. S. 143, 47 L. Ed. 984.

The drawback provided "on the exportation" of articles manufactured from imported materials on which duties had been paid will not be allowed on goods placed on board a vessel bound for a foreign port, to be used and consumed on board the vessel during its voyage, and in fact so used and consumed. Swan & Finch Co. v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 702, 703, 190 U. S. 143, 47 L. Ed. 984, affirming judgment (1901) 37 Ct. Cl. 101.

The terms "export" and "exportation" defined. Swan & Finch Co. v. U. S. (1901) 37 Ct. Cl. 101.

Imported articles of domestic origin were to be regarded as "imported materials" when their prior importation was not merely colorable. If, however, the exportation was genuine, and with intent to dispose of the alcohol abroad, so that upon its arrival there it is to be regarded as absorbed in the general mass of foreign commodities, the subsequent importation of the goods in such cases is proper. The exportation of alcohol with the intention of its reimportation, in order to take advantage of the drawback privilege, is to be regarded as colorable only. The alcohol is forfeitable, the persons engaged in the transaction are punishable and there is no right to drawback. (1897) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 501.

Although most of the definitions of the words "import" and "export" refer to the taking of goods from one country to another, they being ordinarily the only cases in which import or export duties are imposed, these words may be also used in reference to the taking of goods from one part of a country to another or from one state to another. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 355.

The word "imported" does not necessarily imply that the materials in which drawback is to be allowed must have come from a foreign country in a technical sense. Id.

Materials brought into the United States from the Philippine Islands on which duty has been paid under the Philippine revenue act of March 8, 1902 (32 Stat. 54), are to be regarded as "imported materials," although not brought in from a foreign country. Id.

23. Authority to collect drawbacks.—Nonresidents, generally, may perform by agents the acts necessary to the benefit of drawback. (1829) 2 Op. Atty. Gen. 260.

The authority to collect drawback may be delegated by a manufacturer to a general selling agent or to some attorney at law, but such a person must conduct his business through a licensed broker unless he obtains himself a license. (1895) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 255, 258.

24. —— Decisions under prior acts. See U. S. v. Five Casks of Files (D. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 15.112; (1876) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 147; (1890) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 638; (1909) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 228.

§ 5725. (R. S. § 3021.) Railroad-iron.

Railroad-iron, partially or wholly worn, may be imported into the United States without payment of duty, under bond to be withdrawn and exported after such railroad-iron shall have been repaired or remanufactured. The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed to prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary to protect the revenue against fraud, and secure the identity, character, and weight of all such importations when again withdrawn and exported, restricting and limiting the export and withdrawal to the same port of entry where imported, and also limiting all bonds to a period of time of not more than six months from the date of the importation.

Act March 2, 1861, c. 68, § 27, 12 Stat. 197.

Cited without definite application, Downs v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 222, 224, 187 U. S. 496, 47 L. Ed. 275.

§ 5726. (R. S. § 3022.) Salt for curing fish.

Imported salt in bond may be used in curing fish, taken by vessels licensed to engage in the fisheries, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury shall prescribe; and upon proof that the salt has been used in curing fish, the duties on the same shall be remitted.

Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 11, 17 Stat. 238.

Salt was included in the Free List of the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § I, par. 593, ante, § 5291, par. 593.

Cited without definite application. Downs v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 222, 224, 187 U. S. 496, 47 L. Ed. 275; U. S. v. Fifty-Nine Demijohns of Aguadiente and Four Barrels of Cigarettes (D. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 401, 402.

§ 5727. (R. S. § 3023.) Duty on gaugeable merchandise.

Upon all merchandise gaugeable by law, hereafter exported, upon which drawback or return duty is allowed, and upon all merchandise gaugeable by law, withdrawn from bonded warehouses for export, there shall be collected by the collectors of the several ports ten cents per cask.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 168, § 3, 14 Stat. 470.

Notes of Decisions

Abrogation of section.—The charges here provided held fees, and as such abrogated by the Customs Administrative Act June 10, 1890, § 22. (See section 5327 IV, ante, and note under section 5393, ante.) U. S. v. Jahn (1895) 65 Fed. 792, 13 C. C. A. 134.

The board of general appraisers sustained the action of a collector in exacting a charge of 10 cents per cask for gauging molasses withdrawn by importers from warehouse, and exported for the benefit of the drawback, to the payment of which the importers objected, on the ground that such charge was abolished by Customs Administrative Act. Held, that the circuit court of the United States, on appeal from such decision, had jurisdiction to hear and determine the questions of law and fact involved therein. U. S. v. Jahn (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 39, 41, 155 U. S. 109, 39 L. Ed. 87, following Same v. Klingenberg (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 790, 153 U. S. 93, 38 L. Ed. 647.

Cited without definite application, Downs v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 222, 224, 187 U. S. 496, 47 L. Ed. 275.

§ 5728. (R. S. § 3024.) Duty upon weighable articles.

Upon all weighable articles hereafter exported, upon which a drawback or return duty is allowed, and upon all weighable merchandise withdrawn from bonded warehouses for export, there shall e collected by the collectors of the several ports three cents per undred pounds, to be determined by the returns of the weighers.

Act July 26, 1866, c. 269, § 1, 14 Stat. 289.

Notes of Decisions

Abrogation of section.—The charges ere provided held fees, and as such orogated by Customs Administrative ct June 10, 1890, § 22. (See section 327 IV, ante, and note under section 5393, ante.) U. S. v. Jahn (1895) 65 Fed. 792, 13 C. C. A. 134.

Cited without definite application, Downs v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 222, 224, 187 U. S. 496, 47 L. Ed. 275.

5729. (R. S. § 3025.) No drawback after removal from custody.

No return of the duties shall be allowed on the export of any nerchandise after it has been removed from the custody and control of the Government, except in the cases provided in sections hree thousand and nineteen, three thousand and twenty, three thousand and twenty-two, and three thousand and twenty-six.

Act July 14, 1862, c. 163, § 21, 12 Stat. 560.

Provisions authorizing the transportation of merchandise, the duties on which have been paid or secured, from the district into which it was imported to any port of entry, and the exportation from such port, with the benefit of drawback, were made by R. S. § 3036, post, § 5739.

Notes of Decisions

Equipment used in cars to be manufactured.—Car brakes, springs, and ighting apparatus for use in railroad ars to be manufactured held within he inhibition of this section. (1904) 5 Op. Atty. Gen. 125.

—— Decisions under prior acts.—(1849) 5 Op. Atty. Gen. 81; (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 36; (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 531.

Cited without definite application, Downs v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 222, 224, 187 U. S. 496, 47 L. Ed. 275.

(R. S. § 3026. Superseded.)

This section provided for a drawback on foreign saltpeter, manufactured into gunpowder. It was superseded by provisions for drawback on articles made wholly or in part from imported materials, made by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, O, ante, § 5724.

§ 5730. (R. S. § 3027.) No drawback allowed on discriminating duties.

No part of the additional or discriminating duty imposed by law on merchandise on account of its importation in foreign vessels shall be allowed to be drawback, but the whole shall be retained.

Act May 13, 1800, c. 64, § 2, 2 Stat. 83. Act Aug. 30, 1842, c. 270, § 15, 5 Stat. 563.

Provisions authorizing a discriminating duty on goods imported in foreign vessels were made by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, T, subsec. 1, ante, § 5305, which superseded similar provisions of preceding tariff acts.

Cited without definite application, Downs v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 222, 224, 187 U. S. 496, 47 L. Ed. 275.

§ 5731. (R. S. § 3028.) Exportation in same package.

Where articles are imported in bulk they shall be exported in the packages, if any, in which they were landed; for which purpose the officer delivering the same shall return the packages they may be put into, if any, with their marks and numbers, and they shall not be entitled to drawback, unless exported in such packages, which shall be deemed the packages of original importation, nor unless they fully agree with the return made by the officer.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 75, 1 Stat. 681.

§ 5732. (R. S. § 3029.) Change from casks.

It shall be lawful for the exporter of any liquors in casks, or any unrefined sugars, to fill up the casks or packages out of other casks or packages included in the same original importation, or into new casks or packages corresponding therewith, to be marked and numbered as the original casks or packages, in case the original casks or packages shall, in the opinion of the officer appointed to examine the same, be so injured as to be rendered unfit for exportation, and in no other case. The filling up or change of package must, however, be done under the inspection of a proper officer, appointed for that purpose by the collector and naval officer, where any, of the port from which such liquors or unrefined sugars are intended to be exported; and the drawback on articles so filled up, or of which the packages have been changed, shall not be allowed without such inspection.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 75, 1 Stat. 681.

Cited without definite application,
Thomas & Son Co. v. Barnett (1906)
144 Fed. 338, 341, 75 C. C. A. 300.

§ 5733. (R. S. § 3030.) Change of package.

When the owner, importer, consignee, or agent, of any merchandise entitled to debenture, may wish to transfer the same into packages, other than those in which the merchandise was originally imported, the collector of the port where the same may be shall permit the transfer to be made, if necessary for the safety or preservation thereof.

Act March 1, 1823, c. 21, § 32, 3 Stat. 738.

Notes of Decisions

Change of package for preservation.—Imported merchandise remaining in bond and intended for sale and consumption here is not "merchandise entitled to debenture," within the meaning of this section, and such section does not authorize its transfer into new packages for its preservation. The importer's only remedy is to remove the merchandise into his own possession. Thomas & Son Co. v. Barnett (1906) 144 Fed. 338, 339, 75 C. C. A. 300; Thomas & Son v. Same (C. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 172, 173.

§ 5734. (R. S. § 3031.) Notice of change.

Due notice of the wish to make such transfer, in writing, setting forth sufficient cause for the transfer, shall be given to the collector, who shall appoint an inspector of the revenue to ascertain if the allegation be true, and, if found correct, to superintend the transfer, and to cause the marks and numbers upon the original packages to be inscribed upon the packages into which the merchandise shall be transferred.

Act March 1, 1823, c. 21, § 32, 3 Stat. 738.

§ 5735. (R. S. § 3032.) Deposit of invoice.

Every importer, owner, consignee, agent, or exporter, who shall enter merchandise for importation, or for exportation, or transportation from one port to another, with the right of drawback, shall deposit with the collector the original invoice of such merchandise, if not before deposited with the collector, and in that case an authenticated copy thereof, to be filed and preserved by him in the archives of the custom-house, which shall be signed by such importer, owner, consignee, agent, or exporter, and the oath to be made on the entry of such merchandise shall be annexed thereto.

Act May 28, 1830, c. 147, § 5, 4 Stat. 410.

§ 5736. (R. S. § 3033.) Comparison with invoice.

It shall be the duty of the collector to cause all merchandise entered for re-exportation, with the right of drawback, to be inspected, and the articles thereof compared with their respective invoices, before a permit shall be given for lading the same; and where the merchandise so entered shall be found not to agree with the entry it shall be forfeited.

Act May 28, 1830, c. 147, § 5, 4 Stat. 410.

5737. (R. S. § 3034.) Appraisement when duty ad valorem.

All merchandise, subject to ad-valorem duty, and intended for exportation, with benefit of drawback, which shall be transported from ne district to another, shall be accompanied by a copy from the voice, of the cost thereof, certified by the collector of the district om which it may have been last reshipped, which certified copy all be produced to the collector of the district from which such erchandise is intended to be exported; and such merchandise, as ell as all such merchandise subject to ad-valorem duty, as shall e exported from the district into which it may have been originally nported, shall be inspected by the appraisers at the time of exportaon, in the same manner as on the importation of such merchandise; nd if the same is found not to correspond with the original invoice, e merchandise shall be subject to forfeiture.

Act March 1, 1823, c. 21, § 29, 3 Stat. 738.

5738. (R. S. § 3035.) Inspection and lading.

The collector shall direct the surveyor, where any, to inspect, or use to be inspected, the merchandise notified for exportation, and it is found to correspond fully with the notice and proof concerning e same, the collector, together with the naval officer, if any, shall rant a permit for lading the same on board of the vessel named such notice and entry. Such lading shall be performed under the perintendence of the officer by whom the same has been so inspectd; and the exporter shall make oath that the merchandise, so noced for exportation, and laden on board such vessel, previous to e clearance thereof, or within ten days after such clearance, is uly intended to be exported to the place whereof notice has been iven, and is not intended to be relanded within the United States; therwise the merchandise shall not be entitled to the benefit of rawback.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 76, 1 Stat. 682.

5739. (R. S. § 3036.) Transportation to another district for exportation.

All merchandise imported into the United States, the duties on hich have been paid, or secured to be paid, may be transported by nd, or partly by land and partly by water, or coastwise, from the istrict into which it was imported to any port of entry and exported om such port of entry with the benefit of drawback.

Act March 1, 1823, c. 21, § 28, 3 Stat. 737. Act Feb. 12, 1831, c. 24, 4 Stat. 442.

Provisions prohibiting the entering or exporting for drawback of merchandise withdrawn from the custody of customs officers, except as provided in R. S. § 3025, were made by R. S. § 2978, ante, § 5664.

Provisions authorizing the withdrawal of merchandise entered for warehousing for rewarehousing in another district were made by R. S. § 3000, ante, § 5685.

5740. (R. S. § 3037.) Extension of time for entry.

Whenever the exporter entering any merchandise, for the benefit f drawback, shall not have completed such entry, by taking the oath r giving the bond required by the existing laws, within the period rescribed by law, but shall offer to complete the entry after the exiration of the period, the Secretary of the Treasury may, upon aplication to him made, by the exporter, setting forth the cause of his mission, under oath, and accompanied by a statement of the colector of all the circumstances attending the transaction within the nowledge of such collector, if he shall be satisfied that the failure o complete the entry was accidental, without any intention to evade he law or defraud the revenue, direct the entry to be completed, nd the certificates or debentures, as the case may be, to issue in the same manner, as if such entry had been completed within the period described by the existing laws of the United States.

Act March 3, 1825, c. 45, 4 Stat. 95.

Notes of Decisions

Application by attorney in fact.—The application authorized by the act may be made by the attorney in fact of the exporter, who may, under proper circumstances, make the oath and give the bond. (1829) 2 Op. Atty. Gen. 260.

Cited without definite application, (1825) 1 Op. Atty. Gen. 707.

§ 5741. (R. S. § 3038.) Debentures, to whom payable.

All debentures shall be issued and made payable to the original importer of the merchandise, entered for exportation, whenever the same shall be requested, in writing, by the exporter, and not otherwise. In respect to any merchandise, on which the duties shall have been paid prior to an entry for exportation, the debenture for the amount of the drawback of such duties shall be made payable in fifteen days, to be computed from the time of signing the bond, to be given as hereinafter directed.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 80, 1 Stat. 687.

Notes of Decisions

Debentures.—A "debenture," as the term is used in these sections, means a certificate given in pursuance of law by the collector of a port of entry for a certain sum due by the United States, payable at a time therein mentioned, to an importer for drawback of duties on merchandise imported and exported by him, provided the duties on the said merchandise shall have been discharged prior to the time aforesaid. W. H. Thomas & Son Co. v. Barnett (C. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 172, affirmed (1906) 144 Fed. 338, 75 C. C. A. 300.

§ 5742. (R. S. § 3039.) Suit on refusal of payment.

Whenever payment of any debenture is refused by the collector of the district where it was granted, for a longer time than three days, after the same shall have become payable, such refusal to be proved in the same manner as the non-payment of a bill of exchange, the possessor or assignee of such debenture may bring suit thereupon against the person to whom it was originally granted or against any indorser thereof.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 80, 1 Stat. 689.

Jurisdiction of the district courts in suits on debentures was conferred by R. S. § 563, subsec. 10, superseded by chapter 2 of the Judicial Code of March 3, 1911, c. 231, § 24, subsec. 10, ante, § 991 (10).

Provisions for taking judgment at the return term in suits for the recovery of money upon debentures issued by the collectors of customs under any act for the collection of duties were made by R. S. § 959, ante, § 1597.

Interest was to be allowed in such suits at 6 per cent. per annum from the time when such debenture became due, by R. S. § 965, ante, § 1603.

Notes of Decisions

Persons entitled to sue.—The plaintiff exported certain cans of oil purchased of the defendants, who acted as his agents in shipping it, doing so in their own name, and entering the goods for drawback in their own name. The certificate issued by the collector, showing the right to the drawback, was delivered by the plaintiff to the defendants, and the latter thereby obtained the debentures given under the treasury regulations for the drawback. Held, that the plaintiff could maintain an action to recover the amount of the drawback received by the defendants. Lake v. Devoe Mfg. Co. (N. Y. 1877) 7 Daly, 161.

Cited without definite application, Thomas & Son Co. v. Barnett (1906) 144 Fed. 338, 340, 75 C. C. A. 300.

§ 5743. (R. S. § 3040.) Debentures assignable.

Debentures shall be assignable by delivery and indorsement of the parties who may receive the same.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 80, 1 Stat. 688.

Cited without definite application, Thomas & Son Co. v. Barnett (1906) 144 Fed. 338, 340, 75 C. C. A. 300.

§ 5744. (R. S. § 3041.) Exportation from another district.

Where any merchandise is exported from any other district than the one into which it was originally imported, the collector of such district, together with the naval officer thereof, where there is one, shall grant to the exporter a certificate, expressing that such merchandise was exported from such district, with the marks, numbers, and descriptions of the packages and their contents, the names of the master and vessel in which and the port to which it was exported, and by whom, and the names of the vessel and master in which it was brought, and by whom shipped at the district from whence it came, and the amount of the drawback to which it is entitled. Such certificate shall entitle the possessor thereof to receive from the collector of the district with whom the duties on the merchandise were paid, a debenture or debentures, for the amount of the drawback expressed in the certificate, payable at the same time, and in like manner as is herein directed for debentures on merchandise exported from the port of original importation.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 80, 1 Stat. 687.

Cited without definite application,
Thomas & Son Co. v. Barnett (1906)
144 Fed. 338, 341, 75 C. C. A. 300.

§ 5745. (R. S. § 3042.) Refusal of debenture.

The collector may refuse to grant such debenture, in case it shall appear to him that any error has arisen, or any fraud has been committed; and in case of such refusal, if the debenture claimed shall exceed one hundred dollars, it shall be the duty of the collector to represent the case to the Secretary of the Treasury, who shall determine whether such debenture shall be granted or not. In no case, moreover, of an exportation of goods shall a drawback be paid, until the duties on the importation thereof shall have been first received.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 80, 1 Stat. 687.

§ 5746. (R. S. § 3043.) Bond for delivery of merchandise at a foreign port.

Before the receipt of any debenture, in case of exportation from the district of original importation, and in case of exportation from any other district before the receipt of any such certificate, as is hereinbefore required to be granted, the person applying for such debenture or certificate shall, previous to such receipt, and before the clearance of the vessel in which the merchandise was laden for exportation, give bond, with one or more sureties, to the satisfaction of the collector, who is to grant such debenture or certificate, as the case may be, in a sum equal to double the amount of the sum for which such debenture or certificate is granted, conditioned that such merchandise, or any part thereof, shall not be relanded in any port within the limits of the United States, and that the exporter shall produce, within the time herein limited, the proofs and certificates required of such merchandise having been delivered without such limits.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 81, 1 Stat. 689.

Notes of Decisions

"Relanding."—Where the goods are fraudulently relanded, and the marks changed, so as to show a greater amount than that actually put on board, the transaction is a relanding, within the meaning of the bond. U. S. v. Heckscher (C. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 15,338.

Surety on bond.—The surety on a bond given on the entry for exportation of goods entitled to a drawback is estopped to deny that the quantity specified therein was in fact laden upon the vessel. U. S. v. Heckscher (C. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 15,338.

Cited without definite application,
The S. Oteri (1894) 67 Fed. 146, 149, 14 C. C. A. 344.

§ 5747. (R. S. § 3044.) Discharge of bond.

All bonds which may be given for any merchandise exported from the United States, and on which any drawback of duties or allowance shall be payable, in virtue of such exportation, shall and may be discharged, and not otherwise, by producing within one year from the date thereof, if the exportation be made to any port of Europe or America, or within two years, if made to any part of Asia or Africa, a certificate under the hand of the consignee at the foreign port to whom the merchandise shall have been addressed, therein particularly setting forth and describing the articles so exported, their marks, numbers, description of packages, the number thereof, and their actual contents, and declaring that the same have been received by them from on board the vessel, specifying the names of the master and vessel from which they were so received; and where such merchandise is not consigned or addressed to any particular person at the foreign port to which the vessel is destined, or may arrive, but where the master, or other person on board such vessel may be the consignee of such merchandise, a certificate from the person to whom such merchandise may be sold or delivered, by such master or other person, shall be produced to the same effect as that required if the person receiving the same were originally intended to be the consignee thereof.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 81, 1 Stat. 690.

§ 5748. (R. S. § 3045.) Consul's certificate.

In addition to such certificate, it shall be necessary to produce a certificate under the hand and seal of the consul or agent of the United States, residing at the place, declaring either that the facts stated in the certificate of such consignee, or other person, are to his knowledge true, or that such certificate is deserving of full faith and credit; which certificates of the consignee, or other person, and consul or agent, shall, in all cases, as respects the landing or delivery of the merchandise, be confirmed by the oath of the master and mate, if living, or, in case of their death, by the oath of the two principal surviving officers of the vessel in which the exportation shall be made. Where there is no consul or agent of the United States residing at the place of delivery, the certificate of the consignee, or other person hereinbefore required, shall be confirmed by the certificate of two reputable American merchants residing at the place, or if there are no such American merchants, then by the certificate of two reputable foreign merchants, testifying that the several facts stated in such consignee or other person's certificate, are, to their knowledge, just and true, or that such certificate is, in their opinion, worthy of full faith and credit; and such certificate shall also be supported by the oath of the master and mate, or other principal officers of the vessel, in manner as before prescribed. The oath of the master and mate, or other principal officers, shall, in all cases, when taken at a foreign port, be taken and subscribed before the consul or agent of the United States residing at such foreign port, if any such consul or agent reside thereat.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 81, 1 Stat. 690.

§ 5749. (R. S. § 3046.) Consul's fee.

It shall be lawful for the consuls or agents of the United States, residing at the foreign ports, to demand twenty-five cents for administering each oath and one dollar for granting each certificate required by the preceding section, and if any consul or agent shall demand other or greater fees than are thus allowed, his bond shall be forfeited.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 81, 1 Stat. 692.

Consular officers were required to account for fees by Act April 5, 1906, c. 1366, § 8, ante, § 3186.

§ 5750. (R. S. § 3047.) Other proof.

In cases of loss by sea, or by capture or other unavoidable accident, or when, from the nature of the trade, the proofs and certificates before required are not, and cannot be, procured, the exporter shall be allowed to adduce to the collector of the port of exportation such other proofs as they may have, and as the nature of the case will admit; which proofs shall, with a statement of all the circumstances attending the transaction within the knowledge of such collector, be transmitted to the Secretary of the Treasury, who shall have power to allow a further reasonable time for obtaining such proofs; or if he be satisfied with the truth and validity of the proofs adduced, to direct the bond of such exporter to be canceled. If the amount of such bond shall not exceed the penal sum of two hundred dollars, the collector, with the naval officer, when there is one, and alone, where there is none, may, pursuant to such rules as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, admit such proof as may be adduced; and if they deem the same satisfactory, cancel such bond accordingly.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 81, 1 Stat. 690.

§ 5751. (R. S. § 3048.) Permanent appropriation for payment of debentures.

So much money as may be necessary for the payment of debentures or drawbacks and allowances which may be authorized and payable, is hereby appropriated for that purpose out of any money in the Treasury, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of that Department, according to the laws authorizing debentures or drawbacks and allowances. The collectors of the customs shall be the disbursing agents to pay such debentures, drawbacks, and allowances. All debenture certificates issued according to law shall be received in payment of duties at the custom-house where the same have been issued, the laws regulating drawbacks having been complied with.

Act March 3, 1849, c. 110, § 2, 9 Stat. 398.

Permanent appropriations to pay debentures and other charges arising from duties, drawbacks, bounties, and allowances were made by R. S. § 3689, post, § 6799.

§ 5752. (R. S. § 3049.) Penalty for relanding goods entered for drawback.

If any merchandise entered for exportation, with intent to drawback the duties, or to obtain any allowance given by law on the exportation thereof, shall be landed within any port within the limits of the United States, all such merchandise shall be subject to seizure and forfeiture, together with the vessel from which such merchandise shall be landed, and the vessels or boats used in landing the same; and all persons concerned therein shall, upon indictment and conviction thereof, suffer imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months. For discovery of frauds and seizure of merchandise relanded contrary to law, the several officers established by this Title shall have the same powers, and, in case of seizure, the same proceedings shall be had, as in the case of merchandise imported contrary to law.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 82, 1 Stat. 692.

Provisions that no vessel used as a common carrier should be liable to seizure or forfeiture, unless it should appear that the owner or master of such vessel at the time of the illegal act was a consenting party or privy thereto, were made by Act Feb. 8, 1881, c. 34, post, § 5766.

The reimportation of articles on which drawback has been allowed on exportation was prohibited, except upon payment of duties equal to the drawbacks allowed, by a proviso annexed to paragraph 404 of the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § 1, ante, § 5291, par. 404, which superseded similar provisions of preceding tariff acts.

Notes of Decisions

Forfeiture.—Goods on board a ship, which have been entered for exportation, are forfeited by being put on board a lighter alongside the ship, though no bond has been given or debenture issued. Act March 2, 1799. Two Thousand Tin Cans (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 14,303.

It is no defense that claimant caused the goods to be relanded simply to correct a mistake in entering the wrong quality of goods for export. Id.

§ 5753. (R. S. § 3050.) Penalty for false entry.

If any merchandise, of which entry shall have been made in the office of a collector, for the benefit of drawback or bounty upon exportation, shall be entered by a false denomination, or erroneously as to the time when and the vessel in which it was imported, or shall be found to disagree with the packages, quantities, or qualities, as they were at the time of original importation, except such disagreement as may have been occasioned by necessary or unavoidable wastage or damage only, and except also in cases where permission shall have been obtained according to law to alter or change the quantities or packages thereof, all such merchandise, or the value thereof to be recovered of the owner or person making such entry, shall be forfeited, and the person making such false entry shall also forfeit a sum equal to the value of the articles mentioned or described in such entry.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 84, 1 Stat. 694. Act Feb. 20, 1819, c. 36, 3 Stat. 486.

Cited without definite application, Barlow v. U. S. (1833) 7 Pet. 404, 406, 8 L. Ed. 728.

§ 5754. (R. S. § 3051.) No forfeiture for accident or mistake.

No forfeiture shall be incurred under the preceding section if it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the collector and naval officer of the district, if there be a naval officer, and if there be no naval officer, to the satisfaction of the collector, or of the court in which a prosecution for the forfeiture shall be had, that such false denomination, error, or disagreement happened by mistake or accident, and not from any intention to defraud the revenue.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 84, 1 Stat. 694.

Notes of Decisions

Ignorance of law.—A party is not exempted from the penalties attached to the law of drawbacks by his ignorance. Barlow v. U. S. (1833) 32 U. S. (7 Pet.) 404, 8 L. Ed. 728.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Curtis (D. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 184, 188.

§ 5755. (R. S. § 3052.) Exportation and transportation of bonded goods not prevented.

None of the provisions of this Title shall operate to prevent the exportation of bonded merchandise from warehouse within three years from the date of original importation, nor its transportation in bond from the port into which it was originally imported to any other port for the purpose of exportation.

Act March 14, 1866, c. 17, § 2, 14 Stat. 8.

Provisions authorizing the withdrawal of bonded merchandise for exportation were made by R. S. § 2971, ante, § 5657.

§ 5756. (R. S. § 3053.) Importations from British North America.

Any merchandise imported from the British North American provinces adjoining the United States, which shall have been duly entered and the duties thereon paid or secured according to law at either of the ports of entry in the collection-districts situated on the northern, northeastern, and northwestern frontiers of the United States, may be transported by land or by water, or partly by land and partly by water, to any port or ports from which merchandise may be exported for benefit of drawback, and be thence exported with such privilege to any foreign country. The laws relating to the transportation of merchandise entitled to drawback, and the due exportation and proof of landing thereof, and all regulations which the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe for the security of the revenue, must, however, be complied with.

Act Aug. 8, 1846, c. 102, 9 Stat. 77.

Cited without definite application, Swan & Finch Co. v. U. S. (1901) 37 Ct. Cl. 101.

§ 5757. (R. S. § 3054.) Transportation to ports in British North America.

Any imported merchandise, in the original packages, which shall have been duly entered and warehoused in pursuance of the provisions relating to warehouses, may be exported therefrom in conformity with law, and be transported, in the manner indicated, to ports in the adjoining British provinces, and become entitled to the benefits of those provisions.

Act Sept. 28, 1850, c. 79, § 18, 9 Stat. 512.

(R. S. § 3055. Superseded.)

This section was as follows:

"Merchandise imported into the United States and exported from the port of Lake Pontchartrain shall be entitled to the benefit of a drawback of the duties upon exportation to any foreign port, under the same provisions, regulations, restrictions, and limitations, as if such merchandise had been exported directly from New Orleans by way of the Mississippi river."

It was superseded by the Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

§ 5758. (R. S. § 3056.) Exportation to British North America.

Any imported merchandise which has been entered, and the duties paid or secured according to law, for drawback, may be exported to the British North American provinces adjoining the United States.

Act March 3, 1845, c. 70, § 7, 5 Stat. 751.

Cited without definite application, Swan & Finch Co. v. U. S. (1901) 37 Ct. Cl. 101.

§ 5759. (R. S. § 3057.) Drawback regulations.

The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby further authorized to prescribe such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with the laws of the United States, as he may deem necessary to carry into effect the provisions of the laws relating to drawbacks, and to prevent the illegal re-importation of any merchandise which shall have been exported as herein provided.

Act March 3, 1845, c. 70, § 11, 5 Stat. 752.

Provisions authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to establish regulations relating to the bond and warehouse system were made by R. S. § 2989, and Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 24, ante, §§ 5682, 5683.

Cited without definite application, W. H. Thomas & Son Co. v. Barnett (1906) 144 Fed. 338, 339, 75 C. C. A. 300; Swan & Finch Co. v. U. S. (1901) 37 Ct. Cl. 101.

CHAPTER TEN

Enforcement of Duty-Laws and Punishment for Violations

Sec.
5760. Transfers; salvors recognized as owners.
5761. Who may make searches.
5762. Special appointments, how filed.
5763. Search of vehicles and persons.
5764. Forfeitures.
5765. Privity of owner.
5766. Forfeiture of vessels; privity of owner or master.
5767. Search of baggage.
5768. Entering buildings, etc.
5769. Warrant to search dwelling-house or other place.
5770. Authority to go on board vessels.
5771. Penalty for obstructing officers in going on board of vessels.
5772. Articles separate from the cargo.
5773. Locks and fastenings.
5774. Officers to make character known.
5775. Seizures.
5776. Persons making seizures may plead general issue and give special matter in evidence.
5777. Appraisement.
5778. Notice of seizure.
5779. Claim for property seized.
5780. Sale of property seized.
5781. Application for remission of forfeiture, etc.
5782. Distribution.
5783. Sale of perishable articles.
5784. Release on payment of appraised value.
5785. Concealing or buying, etc., goods liable to seizure.
5786. Notice to Solicitor of the Treasury.
5787. Collectors to report to district attorneys.
5788. Duty of district attorneys.
5789. Custody of goods.
5790. Institution of suits.
5791. Burden of proof on claimant of property, and on defendant in action.
5792. Lien on vessels for violations.
5793. Costs of prosecution in certain cases.
5794. Distribution of forfeitures.
5795. Fines, etc., fees, and other receipts to be covered into the Treasury.
5796. Moieties to informers and officers abolished.
5797. Compensation in lieu of moieties.
5798. Compensation to officers and others detecting smuggling.
5799. Compulsory production of books, etc., in civil suits.
5800. Compensation to informers.
5801. Officers prohibited from receiving informer's compensation; penalty.
5802. Officers, informers, and defendants may be witnesses.
5803. Reports of violations of customs laws; district attorneys to prosecute.
5804. Compromise of claims for fines, etc.
5805. Dismissal of proceedings.
5806. No exemption from taking other oaths.

§ 5760. (R. S. § 3058, as amended, Act Feb. 23, 1887, c. 221.) Transfers; salvors recognized as owners.

All merchandise imported into the United States shall, for the purpose of this title, be deemed and held to be the property of the person to whom the merchandise may be consigned; but the holder of any bill of lading consigned to order and properly indorsed shall be deemed the consignee thereof; and in case of the abandonment of any merchandise to the underwriters, the latter may be recognized as the consignee; and under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, merchandise saved from a vessel wrecked or abandoned at sea, or on or along the coasts of the United States, and promptly brought into a port of the United States by or in possession of the salvors of the same, can, for the purpose of its title, be regarded as the property of such salvors, and the valuation thereof and payment of duties thereon can be made accordingly and with due reference to the condition of the said merchandise as thus saved and the necessities of the case: Provided, however, That such bringing in by salvors shall be in good faith and without intent to evade the just payment of duty: And provided further, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to prejudice in any other respect the rights of property, or of or through abandonment or allowance of the owner, or any other person interested in said merchandise.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 62, 1 Stat. 675. Act Feb. 23, 1887, c. 221, 24 Stat. 415.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"All merchandise imported into the United States shall, for the purpose of this Title, be deemed and held to be the property of the person to whom the merchandise may be consigned, any sale, transfer, or assignment, prior to the entry and payment of the duties on such merchandise, and the payment of all bonds then due and unsatisfied by the consignee, to the contrary notwithstanding."

It was amended to read as set forth here by Act Feb. 23, 1887, c. 221, cited above.

The consignee was deemed the owner of imported merchandise, the holder of the bill of lading consigned to order and indorsed by the consignor was deemed the consignee, and the underwriters were recognized as consignees in case of the abandonment of merchandise to them, by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 1, 26 Stat. 131, for the purposes of said act, which section was re-enacted as a part of the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, B, ante, § 5519.

The provisions of this section in respect to the abandonment of merchandise to underwriters, or the salvors of property, and the ascertainment of duties thereon, were not repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, by a proviso annexed to section 29 of said act, which section was re-enacted by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 104.

Provisions for the entry free of duty of merchandise taken from abandoned or sunken vessels after two years were made by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, L, ante, § 5592.

Notes of Decisions

Ownership of goods in general.—See § 5710, ante, as to lien on goods.

See § 5519, ante.

No person but the owner or original consignee, or, in his absence, his agent, is entitled to enter goods at the custom house or give bond for the duties or to pay the duties. Harris v. Dennie (1830) 3 Pet. 292, 304, 7 L. Ed. 683.

The statute does not purport to create any lien upon goods for duties due upon other goods, but merely ascertains who shall be deemed the owner, for the purpose of entering the goods and securing the duties. Id.

Prize goods brought in by government war vessels are liable to the payment of duties, as to the moiety belonging to the officers and crew of the capturing ship. The Liverpool Hero (C. C. 1814) Fed. Cas. No. 8,405.

Where property that is dutiable imported contrary to law, it is liable to seizure, and it does not follow from the fact of ownership that the owner would be entitled to possession. Von Cotzhausen v. Nazro (C. C. 1879) 15 Fed. 891, 898.

Purchasers of goods who were fully informed by the seller of the making and forwarding of false invoices, and who acquiesced therein, and availed themselves thereof, are liable and are estopped to say that they did not themselves perpetrate the unlawful act. U. S. v. Merriam (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,759.

Where such purchasers knew that the article would be invoiced to them as owners, and so presented for entry, and did not protest or inform the government officers, they are estopped to claim that they were not owners at the time of the entry. U. S. v. Merriam (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,759.

Consignees as owners.—That the consignees of merchandise were indebted on duty bonds at the time of the importation of the merchandise, did not, under Act March 2, 1799, § 62, make the merchandise as to the United States, the property of the consignee, where it had been assigned to another. Harris v. De Wolf (1830) 4 Pet. 147, 151, 7 L. Ed. 811.

Importers become personally indebted to the United States for duties on goods. The consignee is for this purpose treated as the owner and importer. Meredith v. U. S. (1839) 13 Pet. 486, 493, 10 L. Ed. 258; U. S. v. Dodge (D. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 14,973.

One cannot be made the consignee of goods without accepting the consignment; and the government acquires no rights against him, as virtual importer, for the duties, if he choose to renounce that character and refuses to have anything to do with the goods. Du Peirat v. Wolfe (1864) 29 N. Y. 436.

It is no defense to an action against the consignee for duties that the consignor or any other party, who at the request or with the consent of the consignee, procured the importation, failed to obey the latter's instructions or to comply with the terms of the contract between them. U. S. v. Bishop (1903) 125 Fed. 181, 182, 60 C. C. A. 123.

Salvaged goods.—An admiralty court held to have power, in distributing the proceeds of property salved from a vessel wrecked or abandoned at sea, to give priority to the claim for salvage over that of the government for customs duties. The Lugano (1915) 222 Fed. 230, 138 C. C. A. 60, affirming decree Albury v. Cargo of The Lugano (D. C. 1913) 215 Fed. 963.

Goods brought into the United States by salvors who have salved them within the limits of the United States, are not imported goods, in the sense of the customs laws, so as to necessarily attach the right to duties. Lewis v. Sixty-Five Packages of Merchandise (C. C. 1887) 32 Fed. 111, affirming (D. C. 1886) 30 Fed. 195.

Where salved goods brought within the United States by the salvors, subsequently, by virtue of a sale, pass into consumption within the United States, an equitable right on the part of the government to be paid duties arises, not taking precedence, however, of the salvage claims. Id.

The United States has an equitable claim for customs duties on the proceeds of foreign goods brought into an American port by salvors from a wrecked vessel, and which on being sold in the salvage proceedings enter into the consumption of the country, but not with respect to such goods as on such sale are exported. Albury v. Cargo of The Lugano (D. C. 1913) 215 Fed. 963.

Cited without definite application, Fabbri v. Murphy (1877) 95 U. S. 191, 34 L. Ed. 468.

§ 5761. (R. S. § 3059.) Who may make searches.

It shall be lawful for any officer of the customs, including inspectors and occasional inspectors, or of a revenue-cutter, or authorized agent of the Treasury Department, or other persons specially appointed for the purpose in writing by a collector, naval officer, or surveyor, to go on board of any vessel, as well without as within his district, and to inspect, search, and examine the same, and any person, trunk, or envelope on board, and to this end to hail and stop such vessel if under way, and to use all necessary force to compel compliance; and if it shall appear that any breach or violation of the laws of the United States has been committed, whereby or in consequence of which such vessel, or the merchandise, or any part thereof, on board of or imported by such vessel, is liable to forfeiture, to make seizure of the same, or either or any part thereof, and to arrest, or in case of escape, or any attempt to escape, to pursue and arrest any person engaged in such breach or violation.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 2, 14 Stat. 178.

Provisions defining and punishing the offense of resisting revenue officers in the execution of their duties were made by R. S. § 5447, which was incorporated in the Criminal Code, in section 65 thereof, post, § 10233, and was repealed by section 341 thereof, post, § 10515.

The powers of inspectors were conferred on keepers of life-saving and lifeboat stations and houses of refuge by Act June 18, 1878, c. 265, § 4, post, § 8531.

The Secretary of the Treasury was authorized to expend, out of the appropriation for defraying the expenses of collecting the revenue from customs, such amount as he might deem necessary, not exceeding $100,000 per annum, for the detection and prevention of frauds upon the customs revenue, by a provision of Act March 3, 1879, c. 182, § 1, post, § 6796, which act, as amended by Act April 27, 1904, c. 1630, § 1, post, § 6797, was further amended so as to increase the amount to be so expended for the fiscal year 1914 to $200,000, by Act June 23, 1913, c. 3, § 1, 38 Stat. 23.

Notes of Decisions

Right to make searches and seizures.—A right of seizure on the high seas may exist independently of any right of search. U. S. v. The La Jeune Eugenie (C. C. 1822) Fed. Cas. No. 15,551.

The right of search is not allowable in times of peace, except against pirates or other offenders against the law of nations. The Tigris (D. C. 1841) Fed. Cas. No. 14,038.

The court will entertain the question of damages, as well as costs, at the same time with the principal question of the legality of the arrest of the vessel. The Malaga (D. C. 1849) Fed. Cas. No. 8,985.

Reasonable ground for a seizure is a defense to a libel for damages. Id.

Restitution and acceptance held a mutual release, barring a claim for damages for unlawful seizure. Id.

Customs inspectors are authorized to receive imported goods found concealed on a vessel, and a libel alleging a seizure by the collector may be amended to show the facts. U. S. v. Two Trunks (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 16,591.

The agents of the Department of Commerce and Labor have power under Act March 3, 1899, c. 429, § 174, 30 Stat. 1280 (see post, § 8846), upon reasonable ground for suspecting that a violation of the laws for the protection of the Alaska seal fisheries has occurred, to search any vessel within the three-mile limit, according to the practice of customs officers when acting under this section, and to seize such vessels and any property on board. They may also make arrests of persons on board such vessels reasonably believed to be guilty of a crime, and need not previously obtain a warrant. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 243.

Cited without definite application, Gelston v. Hoyt (1818) 3 Wheat. 246, 310, 4 L. Ed. 381; U. S. v. A Lot of Jewelry, etc. (D. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 684, 686.

§ 5762. (R. S. § 3060.) Special appointments, how filed.

The original appointment in writing of any person specially appointed under the provisions of the previous section shall be filed in the custom-house where such appointment is made.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 2, 14 Stat. 178.

§ 5763. (R. S. § 3061.) Search of vehicles and persons.

Any of the officers or persons authorized to board or search vessels may stop, search, and examine, as well without as within their respective districts, any vehicle, beast, or person, on which or whom he or they shall suspect there is merchandise which is subject to duty, or shall have been introduced into the United States in any manner contrary to law, whether by the person in possession or charge, or by, in, or upon such vehicle or beast, or otherwise, and to search any trunk or envelope, wherever found, in which he may have a reasonable cause to suspect there is merchandise which was imported contrary to law; and if any such officer or other person so authorized shall find any merchandise on or about any such vehicle, beast, or person, or in any such trunk or envelope, which he shall have reasonable cause to believe is subject to duty, or to have been unlawfully introduced into the United States, whether by the person in possession or charge, or by, in, or upon such vehicle, beast, or otherwise, he shall seize and secure the same for trial.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 3, 14 Stat. 178.

Provisions defining and punishing the offense of resisting revenue officers in the execution of their duties were made by R. S. § 5447, which was incorporated into the Criminal Code, in section 65 thereof, post, § 10233, and was repealed by section 341 thereof, post, § 10515.

Notes of Decisions

Goods imported in mails.—Under the international postal treaty of Berne of October 9, 1874 (19 Stat. 604, art. 25), dutiable goods cannot lawfully be imported in the foreign mail, but are liable to seizure in the hands of the person receiving them from the post office by the officers of customs; and it is immaterial that there was no intent on the part of the sender or receiver to defraud the government. Von Cotzhausen v. Nazro (1882) 107 U. S. 215, 2 Sup. Ct. 503, 27 L. Ed. 540, affirming (C. C. 1879) 15 Fed. 891.

Dutiable goods imported in the foreign mail are in the hands of the receiver of them from the post office, liable to seizure by the officers of customs, and the fact that there was no intent on the part of the sender or receiver to defraud the United States of the duty does not render the officer liable to an action for making the seizure. Von Cotzhausen v. Nazro (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 503, 505, 107 U. S. 215, 27 L. Ed. 540.

Precious stones and other articles, where the same are liable to customs duty, are prohibited by the Universal Postal Union Convention of June 1, 1878, to be sent through the mail, and if imported by mail they become subject to seizure and forfeiture under this section. (1886) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 457.

Seizure of vehicle.—The clear intention of Congress in adopting this section was to provide for the seizure of property which had been smuggled into the United States, whether by a person in charge of it or upon a vehicle, and it was clearly the intention of the Legislature that a vehicle which had been used, whether in importation or transportation of smuggled property, should be seized. U. S. v. One Black Horse (D. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 167.

There is no authority for the practice of the Treasury Department to exact duties, when forfeiture prevails, only in those cases which arise under section 5527, ante, and not in other customs revenue cases involving forfeiture. (1902) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 1.

Bar to forfeiture proceedings.—An acquittal upon the charge of smuggling, under section 5548, ante, and of illegal importation under section 5785, post, is not a bar to a proceeding in rem to forfeit the goods, the subject of the charge of smuggling and illegal importation, under this section. (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 63.

Cited without definite application, Von Cotzhausen v. Nazro (C. C. 1879) 15 Fed. 891, 894; U. S. v. A Lot of Jewelry, etc. (D. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 684, 686.

§ 5764. (R. S. § 3062.) Forfeitures.

Every such vehicle and beast, or either, together with teams or other motive-power used in conveying, drawing, or propelling such vehicle or merchandise, and all other appurtenances, including trunks, envelopes, covers, and all means of concealment, and all the equipage, trappings, and other appurtenances of such beast, team, or vehicle, shall be subject to seizure and forfeiture. If any person who may be driving or conducting, or in charge of any such carriage or vehicle or beast, or any person traveling, shall willfully refuse to stop and allow search and examination to be made as herein provided, when required so to do by any authorized person, he shall be punishable by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, nor less than fifty dollars.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 3, 14 Stat. 178.

Notes of Decisions

Construction in general.—This statute should be construed to give full force to all its language, but the meaning of the words must be derived from a consideration of the entire section. U. S. v. One Black Horse (D. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 167.

Intent.—Under this section, section 5763, ante, and section 5765, post, a team used in the transportation of smuggled merchandise is forfeitable, regardless of the fact that its owner and its driver did not have knowledge of the purposes for which it was being used. Such knowledge is unnecessary, except in the case of common carriers. U. S. v. One Black Horse (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 770, Id. (D. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 167.

A proceeding in rem to forfeit under this section presents a civil liability rather than an offense, and does not require proof of criminal intent. (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 64.

Time of forfeiture.—Where property is forfeited, it does not vest in the government until after a seizure, which then relates back to the time of forfeiture. Clark v. Protection Ins. Co. (C. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 2,832.

The forfeiture takes effect at the time when the offense is committed, if the denunciation is expressed in direct terms. U. S. v. The Reindeer (C. C. 1861) Fed. Cas. No. 16,144; Same v. Sixty-Four Barrels of Distilled Spirits (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,306; Same v. Fifty-Six Barrels of Whisky (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 15,095; Same v. Twenty-One Barrels of High Wines (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 16,567; The Mary Celeste (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 9,202; U. S. v. One Copper Still (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,928.

The attempt to transport property, in violation of the customs laws, works the forfeiture of the property, and immediately vests the title in the United States. Bulkly v. Orms (Vt. 1815) Brayt. 124.

Vehicle forfeited.—A team let by a liveryman, and used wholly within the United States, for the transportation of liquor illegally brought across the Canadian border, held subject to forfeiture, though the liveryman had no knowledge of the purpose for which the team was to be used. U. S. v. One Black Horse (D. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 167.

Fines.—Where a fine imposed under this section was not paid, the court had common-law jurisdiction, according to local usage since the original judiciary act, to commit the defendant to jail until the fine was paid or he should be otherwise discharged according to law. Ex parte Barclay (C. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 669.

Cited without definite application, Scow No. 9 (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 548.

§ 5765. (R. S. § 3063.) Privity of owner.

No railway-car or engine or other vehicle, or team, used by any person or corporation, as common carriers, in the transaction of their business as such common carriers, shall be subject to forfeiture by force of the provisions of this Title unless it shall appear that the owner, superintendent, or agent of the owner in charge thereof at the time of such unlawful importation or transportation thereon or thereby was a consenting party, or privy to such illegal importation or transportation.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 3, 14 Stat. 179.

Provisions similar to those of this section, relating to the seizure and forfeiture of vessels violating the provisions of this Title, were made by Act Feb. 8, 1881, c. 34, post, § 5766.

Cited without definite application, Heidritter v. Elizabeth Oil Cloth Co. (C. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 138, 141, (affirmed [1884] 5 Sup. Ct. 135, 112 U. S. 294, 28 L. Ed. 729); U. S. v. One Black Horse (D. C. 1906) 147 Fed. 770.

§ 5766. (Act Feb. 8, 1881, c. 34.) Forfeiture of vessels; privity of owner or master.

No vessel used by any person or corporation, as common carriers, in the transaction of their business as such common carriers, shall be subject to seizure or forfeiture by force of the provisions of title thirty-four of the Revised Statutes of the United States unless it shall appear that the owner or master of such vessel, at the time of the alleged illegal act, was a consenting party or privy thereto. (21 Stat. 322.)

This was a provision of the act to amend the law relative to the seizure and forfeiture of vessels for breach of the revenue laws, cited above.

Provisions for the seizure and forfeiture of vessels from which goods entered for drawback are relanded were made by R. S. § 3049, ante, § 5752.

Provisions for the seizure and forfeiture of foreign vessels carrying imports which are not the growth, production, or manufacture of the country to which such vessels belong, were made by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, J, subsec. 2, ante, § 5306, which superseded similar provisions of preceding tariff acts.

Notes of Decisions

"Seizure."—See § 5565, ante.

The word "seizure" embraces seizures by the marshal under legal process for the enforcement of a penalty pursuant to section 5792, post, as well as seizures by revenue officers for the purposes of forfeitures. The Saratoga (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 322, 323.

Refusal of clearance to vessel which did not include in its manifest merchandise brought into the United States is not a seizure, and this section is inapplicable. (1881) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 82.

A seizure implies an actual caption of the thing seized; open, visible possession, taken and maintained. (1881) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 82, 83.

Privity of owner or master.—In order to recover any penalty or forfeiture, the government must allege and prove that, at the time of the alleged illegal act charged, the master or owner was a consenting party or privy thereto. The Saratoga (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 382; The Snow Drop (C. C. 1887) 30 Fed. 79.

§ 5767. (R. S. § 3064.) Search of baggage.

The Secretary of the Treasury may from time to time prescribe regulations for the search of persons and baggage, and for the employment of female inspectors for the examination and search of persons of their own sex; and all persons coming into the United States from foreign countries shall be liable to detention and search by authorized officers or agents of the Government, under such regulations.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 3, 14 Stat. 178.

Provisions for the examination of wearing apparel and personal effects of residents of the United States returning from abroad were made by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § 1, par. 642, ante, § 5291, par. 642. Provisions similar to those of this paragraph were made by preceding tariff acts.

§ 5768. (R. S. § 3065.) Entering buildings, etc.

Any person authorized by this Title to make searches and seizures, or any person assisting him or acting under his directions, may, if deemed necessary by him or them, enter into or upon or pass through the lands, inclosures, and buildings, other than the dwelling-house of any person whomsoever, in the night or in the day time, in order to the more effectual discharge of his official duties.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 5, 14 Stat. 179.

§ 5769. (R. S. § 3066, as amended, Act April 25, 1882, c. 89.) Warrant to search dwelling-house or other place.

If any collector, naval officer, surveyor, or other person specially appointed by either of them, or inspector, shall have cause to suspect a concealment of any merchandise in any particular dwelling-house, store-building, or other place, they, or either of them, upon proper application on oath to any justice of the peace, or district judge of cities, police justice, or any judge of the circuit or district court of the United States, or any Commissioner of the United States circuit court, shall be entitled to a warrant to enter such house, store, or other place, in the day time only, and there to search for such merchandise; and if any shall be found, to seize and secure the same for trial. And all such merchandise, upon which the duties shall not have been paid, or secured to be paid, shall be forfeited.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 68, 1 Stat. 678. Act Feb. 28, 1865, c. 67, § 2, 13 Stat. 442. Act April 25, 1882, c. 89, 22 Stat. 49.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"If any collector, naval officer, surveyor, or other person specially appointed by either of them, or inspector, shall have cause to suspect a concealment of any merchandise in any particular dwelling-house, store-building, or other place, they, or either of them, upon proper application on oath to any justice of the peace, shall be entitled to a warrant to enter such house, store, or other place, in the day-time only, and there to search for such merchandise; and if any shall be found, to seize and secure the same for trial; and all such merchandise, on which the duties shall not have been paid, or secured to be paid, shall be forfeited."

It was amended to read as set forth here by Act April 25, 1882, c. 89, cited above.

Provisions conferring on keepers of life-saving and life-boat stations and houses of refuge the powers of inspectors of customs were made by Act June 18, 1878, c. 265, § 4, post, § 8531.

Notes of Decisions

Scope of section.—The section reaches cases where, by a false and fraudulent undervaluation, less than the amount of duties required by law has been paid, as well as those where no duties at all have been paid. Taylor v. U. S. (1845) 3 How. 197, 211, 11 L. Ed. 559.

Concealment of merchandise.—The term "concealed" applies only to articles intended to be secreted and withdrawn from public view on account of the duties not having been paid, or secured to be paid, or from some other fraudulent motive. The forfeiture does not extend to a case where goods bonded and stored were fraudulently remove from the storehouse by some person other than the claimants, who were bona fide purchasers of the goods, and without their knowledge and consent, to another port, where the goods were found stowed on board the vessel in which they were transported, in the usual manner of stowing. U. S. v. Three Hundred and Fifty Chests of Tea (1827) 12 Wheat. 486, 492, 6 L. Ed. 702.

What constitutes a concealment of goods. U. S. v. Farnsworth (C. C. 1815) Fed. Cas. No. 15,072.

The concealment which works a forfeiture need not be with the concurrence, knowledge, or consent of the owner or consignee. U. S. v. Fifty-Eight Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty Cigars (C. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 15,092.

Property stolen from a friendly foreign sovereign, and smuggled into the United States, is not subject to forfeiture for illegal importation. In re Princess of Orange (D. C. 1831) Fed. Cas. No. 11,431.

In a suit for forfeiture the government must prove that the goods were "concealed," and the mere fact that they were not entered on the manifest is not sufficient. U. S. v. Twenty-Six Diamond Rings (D. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 16,572.

The concealment in such case must be a concealment from the customs officers. Id.

Trunks containing dutiable goods, found in a stateroom after all the passengers and baggage had been landed, marked in the purser's name, without his authority, and not entered on the manifest, held subject to forfeiture as concealed. U. S. v. Two Trunks (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 16,591.

Search warrant.—Warrant protection to officers from liability. Taylor v. U. S. (1845) 3 How. 197, 207, 11 L. Ed. 559.

A United States commissioner, in issuing search warrants to a customs inspector, does not act judicially, and the warrant is not issued under authority of a court. In re Chin K. Shue (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 282.

If an officer, in execution of a warrant from lawful authority to search for goods, break and enter a dwelling house and carry away goods, and the warrant, by reason of its irregularity, be insufficient to justify him, he will, nevertheless, be permitted to show, in mitigation of damages, that no goods were taken except those which were proper objects of the search, and that no violence or injury was done but what was necessary to obtain possession of the goods. Sandford v. Nichols (1816) 13 Mass. 286, 7 Am. Dec. 151.

A warrant for the seizure of smuggled goods merely describing the goods seized as "goods, wares, and merchandise," in a certain place, is insufficient, under Const. U. S. Amend. art. 6, requiring warrants to particularly describe the property to be seized. Id.

In the case of smuggled goods, it may be difficult to describe them with minuteness, nor can this be required; but it would be necessary to mention the kind of goods to be searched for, or at least to describe them as having been taken out of some certain vessel, so that the officer, who should undertake the search, might not conceive himself at liberty to rifle the house and disturb the arrangements of the family occupying it. Id.

A warrant authorizing customs inspectors to search for goods illegally imported held not to authorize the removal of letters, books, and papers from the premises. In re Chin K. Shue (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 282.

Forfeiture of goods.—See § 5526, ante, and § 5785, post.

Forfeiture may be enforced before the time has passed for the owner to enter the goods, and is unaffected by a subsequent offer, made as soon as the owner was aware of the arrival of the goods. U. S. v. Fifty-Eight Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty Cigars (C. C. 1857) Fed. Cas. No. 15,092.

Title to forfeited goods.—The title of the government to the goods forfeited is not consummated until after condemnation, but the right to them relates back to the time the offense was committed, so as to avoid all intermediate sales of them between the commission of the offense and condemnation. Caldwell v. U. S. (1850) 8 How. 366, 381, 12 L. Ed. 1115.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. A Lot of Jewelry, etc. (D. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 684, 687.

§ 5770. (R. S. § 3067.) Authority to go on board vessels.

It shall be lawful for all collectors, naval officers, surveyors, inspectors, and the officers of the revenue-cutters, to go on board of vessels in any port of the United States, or within four leagues of the coast thereof, if bound to the United States, whether in or out of their respective districts, for the purposes of demanding the manifests, and of examining and searching the vessels; and those officers respectively shall have free access to the cabin and every other part of a vessel.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 54, 1 Stat. 668.

Collectors were authorized to provide and employ small boats for the use of surveyors and inspectors in going on board vessels, by R. S. § 2763, ante, § 5451.

§ 5771. (R. S. § 3068.) Penalty for obstructing officers in going on board of vessels.

If any master of a vessel coming into or having arrived at any port within the United States shall obstruct or hinder, or shall intentionally cause any obstruction or hinderance to any officer in lawfully going on board such vessel, for the purpose of carrying into effect any of the revenue laws of the United States, he shall for every such offense be liable to a penalty of not more than five hundred dollars nor less than fifty dollars.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 71, 1 Stat. 678.

Notes of Decisions

What constitutes obstruction.—If the customs officer acts without probable cause in making a seizure, an indictment will not lie for resisting him. U. S. v. Gay (C. C. 1815) Fed. Cas. No. 15,193.

On an indictment for forcibly obstructing a customs officer in the discharge of his duties, it is no defense that the object was personal chastisement merely, if defendant knew the officer to be so engaged. U. S. v. Keen (C. C. 1830) Fed. Cas. No. 15,511.

A person is not liable for carrying away goods under seizure, unless a seizure has been lawfully made and possession taken and continued by the officer, and the goods are carried away forcibly, knowing them to be under seizure. U. S. v. Cook (D. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 14,852.

A ship's failure to heed signals from the revenue cutter held to constitute a hindrance and obstruction to the boarding officer. The Barraconta (D. C. 1890) 42 Fed. 160.

Officers obstructed.—An inspector is an officer of the customs, the obstruction of whom is an offense, under this section. U. S. v. Sears (C. C. 1812) Fed. Cas. No. 16,247.

Proof that an inspector was commissioned and sworn, and in the actual execution of the duties of the office, with the knowledge of the treasury department, is sufficient proof of his appointment to support an indictment for obstructing him in the performance of his duties. Id.

It is not necessary to produce the commission of appointment to prove such appointment. Id.

The office of an inspector ceases with that of the collector who appointed him, and an indictment for resisting such inspector after the resignation of the collector, and before his reappointment to office by the succeeding collector, cannot be sustained. U. S. v. Wood (C. C. 1815) Fed. Cas. No. 16,754.

Indictment.—Where an indictment for resisting a customs officer improperly describes the office, the variance is fatal. U. S. v. Phelps (C. C. 1810) Fed. Cas. No. 16,041.

Sufficiency of allegation of a forcible impeding. U. S. v. Bachelder (C. C. 1814) Fed. Cas. No. 14,490.

Cited without definite application, Ex parte Marquand (C. C. 1815) Fed. Cas. No. 9,100.

§ 5772. (R. S. § 3069.) Articles separate from the cargo.

If any box, trunk, chest, cask, or other package shall be found in the cabin, steerage, or forecastle of a vessel, or in any other place separate from the residue of the cargo, the officer of the customs shall take a particular account of such package, and of the marks and numbers thereof, if any, and a description thereof, and, if he judges proper, shall seal every such package; and such account and description shall be by him forwarded without delay to the collector of the district to which such vessel is bound. If upon her arrival at the port of her entry, the packages so described, or any of them, are missing, or if any seal put thereon has been broken, the master shall be liable to a penalty for every package missing, or on which any seal shall be broken, of two hundred dollars.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 54, 1 Stat. 668.

Notes of Decisions

"Arrival."—The word "arrival," in the section authorizing customhouse officers to board a vessel and put seals on boxes, and imposing a penalty if on the vessel's arrival the seals are found broken, means an arrival to enter for business. Harrison v. Vose (1850) 9 How. 372, 380, 13 L. Ed. 179.

Penalties.—The statement that the "master took all precaution in his power to prevent smuggling" held insufficient to prevent enforcement of the penalty against the vessel of the value of goods found concealed in the purser's room and the ship's storeroom. The Helvetia (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 6,345.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Curtis (D. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 184, 188.

§ 5773. (R. S. § 3070.) Locks and fastenings.

The inspector who may be put on board of any vessel shall secure, after sunset in each evening, or previous to his quitting the vessel, the hatches and other communications with the hold of such vessel, or any other part thereof he may judge necessary, with locks or other proper fastening, which locks or other fastenings shall not be opened, broken, or removed until the morning following, or after the rising of the sun, and in the presence of the inspector by whom the same were affixed, except by special license from the collector of the port, and the naval officer, if any, first obtained. If the locks or other fastenings, or any of them, are broken or removed contrary to this section, or if any merchandise or packages are clandestinely landed, notice thereof shall be immediately given by the inspector to the collector and naval officer, if any, of the port where the vessel may be; and the master of such vessel shall, for each or every such offense, be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 54, 1 Stat. 668.

Provisions requiring the attendance of inspectors on the delivery of cargoes were made by R. S. § 2877, ante, § 5568.

Notes of Decisions

Operation of section.—This section applies to vessels in the coasting as well as foreign trade. U. S. v. Mantor (C. C. 1820) Fed. Cas. No. 15,719.

§ 5774. (R. S. § 3071.) Officers to make character known.

Every officer or other person authorized to make searches and seizures by this Title, shall, at the time of executing any of the powers conferred upon him, make known, upon being questioned, his character as an officer or agent of the customs or Government, and shall have authority to demand of any person within the distance of three miles to assist him in making any arrests, search, or seizure authorized by this Title, where such assistance may be necessary; and if such person shall, without reasonable excuse, neglect or refuse so to assist, upon proper demand, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of not more than two hundred dollars, nor less than five dollars.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 10, 14 Stat. 180.

Provisions defining and punishing the offense of falsely assuming to be a revenue officer were made by R. S. § 5448, which was incorporated into the Criminal Code, in section 66 thereof, post, § 10234, and was repealed by section 341 thereof, post, § 10515.

§ 5775. (R. S. § 3072.) Seizures.

It shall be the duty of the several officers of the customs to seize and secure any vessel or merchandise which shall become liable to seizure by virtue of any law respecting the revenue, as well without as within their respective districts.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 70, 1 Stat. 678.

Notes of Decisions

Jurisdiction.—It is the right of an officer of customs to seize goods which are suspected to have been introduced into the country in violation of the revenue laws, not only in his own district, but also in any other district than his own. Taylor v. U. S. (1845) 44 U. S. (3 How.) 197, 11 L. Ed. 559.

Jurisdiction of a proceeding for the forfeiture of smuggled goods exists only in the district of seizure, which is the district in which the goods, if on land, are found. A collector cannot, by carrying them into another district and there making the formal seizure, confer jurisdiction of the proceeding on the court in such district. U. S. v. Larkin (1907) 153 Fed. 113, 115, 82 C. C. A. 247.

See § 5789, post.

Exhibition of commission by collector.—The United States collector of a port is not required to exhibit his commission in court in order to justify his seizure of property under the revenue laws; but, if the seizure be made by his deputy, who is constituted such by private appointment of the collector, such deputy's commission must be shown. Jacques v. Griswold (Vt. 1803) 2 Tyler, 235.

In an action of trespass by an inspector, for taking goods by him seized in execution of his office, evidence is not necessary to show that the plaintiff was appointed by the approbation of the secretary of the treasury, or that he was sworn into office. Jones v. Gibson (1818) 1 N. H. 266.

Any unofficial person may seize property as forfeited to the United States, and the government, if it chooses, may adopt the seizure and make it the basis of legal proceedings. (1870) 13 Op. Atty. Gen. 253.

Probable cause for seizure.—The collector of revenue is justified in making any seizure where he has reasonable ground to suspect that a fraud on the revenue or a violation of the revenue laws is meditated, and on showing probable cause for the seizure the burden of proof is on the claimant. Sixty Pipes of Brandy (1825) 10 Wheat. 421, 426, 6 L. Ed. 356.

It is immaterial who makes the seizure, or whether it was irregularly made or not, or whether the cause assigned originally for the seizure be that for which the condemnation takes place, provided the adjudication is for a sufficient cause. Wood v. U. S. (1842) 16 Pet. 342, 358, 10 L. Ed. 987; Taylor v. U. S. (1845) 3 How. 197, 204, 11 L. Ed. 559.

It is the duty of a revenue officer of the United States to make a seizure whenever he has probable cause to believe the property to be forfeited. McGuire v. Winslow (C. C. 1886) 26 Fed. 304.

Where a vessel was seized for violating the revenue laws, and the district judge before whom the case was brought decided in favor of the claimants, but refused the officers a certificate that there was reasonable cause for seizure, held, that the appeal from such decision should be prosecuted before the Supreme Court. (1852) 5 Op. Atty. Gen. 658.

The vessel of A. was seized by B., an officer of the customs, under the revenue laws of the United States, and was directed by the collector to be detained. During the detention, C., another officer of the customs, who was interested in the seizure and knew the facts, used the vessel, with the consent of B., for his own private purposes, and afterwards restored her to B. The vessel was afterwards acquitted in the district court, and a certificate of probable cause of seizure granted by the judge. In an action of trespass by A. against C., it was held that C., not being implicated in the first taking, either as an actor or standing in such a relation to B. as would make him a party in the act of seizure, could not be made a trespasser ab initio. Van Brunt v. Schenck (N. Y. 1814) 11 Johns. 377; (N. Y. 1816) Id., 13 Johns. 414.

Mistake in seizing goods.—Goods seized by mistake are liable to forfeiture, if a good cause of forfeiture existed at the time of the seizure, but without the knowledge of the seizing officer. Wood v. U. S. (1842) 41 U. S. (16 Pet.) 342, 10 L. Ed. 987.

Attachment of seized goods.—Goods held by a collector of customs to enforce the payment of duties due on such goods are not liable to be attached at the suit of a private creditor of the importer. Dennie v. Harris (1830) 26 Mass. (9 Pick.) 364.

Subrogation to rights of United States.—Where, upon the importation of brandy, a bond for the duties has been given, and such brandy is afterwards sold by the collector for the duties, a prior purchaser thereof is not thereby entitled to be subrogated to the rights and priorities of the United States in relation to the duties, though both principal and sureties in the bond had become insolvent, without having paid such duties. Dias v. Bouchaud (N. Y. 1843) 10 Paige, 445.

Goods liable to seizure.—Goods imported fraudulently and collusively under cover of Indians are liable to seizure. (1830) 2 Op. Atty. Gen. 340.

Under prior statutes.—Gelston v. Hoyt (1818) 16 U. S. (3 Wheat.) 246, 4 L. Ed. 381; McGuire v. Winslow (C. C. 1886) 26 Fed. 304; Sailly v. Smith (N. Y. 1814) 11 Johns. 500.

Cited without definite application, The Josefa Segunda (1825) 10 Wheat. 312, 327, 6 L. Ed. 329; U. S. v. Spraul & Co. (1911) 185 Fed. 405, 107 C. C. A. 569; U. S. v. A Lot of Jewelry, etc. (D. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 684, 686.

§ 5776. (R. S. § 3073.) Persons making seizures may plead general issue and give special matter in evidence.

If any officer, or other person, executing or aiding or assisting in the seizure of goods, under any act providing for or regulating the collection of duties on imports or tonnage, is sued for anything done in virtue of the powers given thereby, or by virtue of a warrant granted by any judge, or justice, pursuant to law, he may plead the general issue and give such act and the special matter in evidence.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 71, 1 Stat. 678.

Notes of Decisions

Defenses.—See § 5530, ante, as to liability of officers.

The owner of a ship and cargo seized for breach of the revenue laws and libeled in the court of vice admiralty compounded with the government officers by leave of that court by paying half the value of the property, and then sued the collector in trespass for seizure. The jury, against the express instructions of the superior court, returned a verdict for plaintiff, and the court gave judgment upon it. Erving v. Cradock (Mass. 1761) Quincy, 553.

In trespass de bonis asportatis against a collector of the customs, it is a good justification that defendant, suspecting the goods to have been imported contrary to the act, seized them, and that they were condemned in the district court. Sailly v. Smith (N. Y. 1814) 11 Johns. 500.

To trespass for entering and carrying away goods, plea of seizure by the defendant, as inspector of the customs, held good; and the description in the warrant, viz. "several bales of goods, calicoes, chintzes, etc.," held sufficiently particular. Steel v. Fisk (Vt. 1816) Brayt. 230.

§ 5777. (R. S. § 3074.) Appraisement.

In all cases of seizure of property subject to forfeiture for any of the causes named in any provision of law relating to the customs, or for the registering, enrolling, or licensing of vessels, when, in the opinion of the collector or other principal officer of the revenue making such seizure, the value of the property seized does not exceed five hundred dollars, he shall cause a list and particular description of the property seized to be prepared in duplicate, and an appraisement of the same to be made by two sworn appraisers under the revenue laws, if there are such appraisers at or near the place of seizure; but if there are no such appraisers, then by two competent and disinterested citizens of the United States, to be selected by him for that purpose, residing at or near the place of seizure; which list and appraisement shall be properly attested by such collector or other officer and the persons making the appraisal. For such services of the appraisers they shall be allowed out of the revenue one dollar and fifty cents each, for every day necessarily employed in such service.

Act April 2, 1844, c. 8, § 1, 5 Stat. 653. Act Aug. 8, 1846, c. 110, 9 Stat. 82. Act Feb. 28, 1865, c. 67, § 4, 13 Stat. 442. Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 11, 14 Stat. 180. Act July 28, 1866, c. 293, § 6, 14 Stat. 309.

Notes of Decisions

Operation of section.—This section may properly be held to refer to such provisions as existed when the Revised Statutes took effect. (1901) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 377.

Method of appraisement.—Merchandise seized for violation of section 5527, ante, should be appraised under section 5594, ante, and not under this section. Id.

The appraisement procedure in undervaluation cases which aims at the levy of additional duties is none the less civil because forfeiture may be insured as a possible ultimate result. (1901) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 377.

When property subject to forfeiture for smuggling or cognate offenses is seized, the appraisement should be in accordance with this section, and not under section 5594, ante. (1903) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 583.

Cited without definite application, Von Cotzhausen v. Nazro (C. C. 1879) 15 Fed. 891, 894; McGuire v. Winslow (C. C. 1886) 26 Fed. 304, 307.

§ 5778. (R. S. § 3075.) Notice of seizure.

If the amount of the appraisal of property so seized as forfeited shall not exceed the sum of five hundred dollars, the collector or other principal officer shall publish a notice once a week for three successive weeks in some newspaper of the county or place where such seizure shall have been made, if any newspaper shall be published in such county; but if no newspaper shall be published in such county, then such notice shall be published in some newspaper of the county in which the principal customs office of the district shall be situated; and if no newspaper shall be published in such county, then notices shall be posted in proper public places, which notices shall describe the articles seized, and state the time, cause, and place of seizure, and shall require any person claiming such articles to appear and file with such collector or other officer his claim to such articles within twenty days from the date of the first publication of such notice.

Act April 2, 1844, c. 8, § 1, 5 Stat. 653. Act Feb. 28, 1865, c. 67, § 4, 13 Stat. 442. Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 11, 14 Stat. 180.

Cited without definite application, McGuire v. Winslow (C. C. 1886) 26 Fed. 304, 307.

§ 5779. (R. S. § 3076.) Claim for property seized.

Any person claiming the property so seized may, at any time within twenty days from the date of such publication, file with the collector or other officer a claim, stating his interest in the articles seized, and, upon depositing with such collector or other officer a bond to the United States in the penal sum of two hundred and fifty dollars, with two sureties, to be approved by such collector or other officer, conditioned that, in case of the condemnation of the articles so claimed, the obligors shall pay all the costs and expenses of the proceedings to obtain such condemnation. Such collector or other officer shall transmit the same, with the duplicate list and description of the articles seized and claimed, to the United States district attorney for the district, who shall proceed for a condemnation of the property in the ordinary mode prescribed by law.

Act April 2, 1844, c. 8, § 1, 5 Stat. 653. Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 12, 14 Stat. 181.

Notes of Decisions

Bond given by claimant.—See §§ 1564, 1566, ante, as to bailing of property seized under customs laws.

Where a bond is given upon the return of goods libeled as upon a seizure, and the libel is afterwards, by amendment, changed to an information, and the goods condemned, a compliance with the stipulations in the bond may be enforced by attachment against the obligors. U. S. v. Four Part Pieces of Woollen Cloth (C. C. 1825) Fed. Cas. No. 15,150.

Where the claimant is not a party to the bond, all the obligors are to be deemed principals. Id.

Condemnation of property.—An entry was made at the custom house of certain packages in behalf of the owner, who afterwards made a second entry of certain things in the packages, but not enumerated in the first entry. It was held, that although no seizure was made until after the second entry, the collector had a right to seize, under Collection Law March 2, 1799, § 67, for any variance between the contents of the packages and the first entry, and that such seizure would be valid, and must be followed by sentence of condemnation, unless such difference proceeded from accident or mistake, and not from any intention to defraud the revenue. U. S. v. Six Packages (1821) 19 U. S. (6 Wheat.) 521, 5 L. Ed. 321.

On an information for the condemnation of goods as fraudulently imported, the jury are not restricted, in the condemnation of the goods, to any entered goods which they found to be undervalued, but they may find either the whole package or the invoice forfeited, though containing other goods correctly valued, providing they find that such package or invoice had been made up with intent to defraud the revenue. Buckley v. U. S. (1846) 45 U. S. (4 How.) 251, 11 L. Ed. 961.

This section points out the way in which the party interested may proceed to arrest the sale of his property, and where the statutory things are done the summary proceeding is stopped, and the district attorney is authorized to proceed to condemn the property in the ordinary mode prescribed by law. Conway v. Stannard (1873) 17 Wall. 398, 404, 21 L. Ed. 649.

In a suit for condemnation of goods brought into the United States, and not entered for duty, a refusal to charge that, in the absence of fraudulent intent on the part of the owners in the importation of goods, the government could not recover, was proper. Four Packages v. U. S. (1878) 97 U. S. 404, 24 L. Ed. 1031.

In proceedings by the government to condemn opium claimed to have been smuggled into this country, a letter written by one whom the evidence tended to implicate to other parties in China, two months after the seizure, apparently referring to the transaction, and left by the writer with the claimant of the opium, who added a paragraph thereto also seemingly referring to the transaction, held admissible in evidence as an admission. Three Thousand Eight Hundred and Eighty-Eight Boxes of Opium v. U. S. (C. C. 1883) 23 Fed. 367.

Property returned on bond after seizure is subject to forfeiture for causes subsequently arising, but its liability to condemnation in the suit in which it was bonded is not affected by the fact of its condemnation for the subsequent forfeiture. U. S. v. Eighteen Bales of Blankets (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,032.

Irregularity of seizure.—An irregularity in the seizure is not available to claimants in the suit for forfeiture for violation of the customs laws. U. S. v. Twenty-Five Cases of Cloths (D. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 16,563.

Cited without definite application, McGuire v. Winslow (C. C. 1886) 26 Fed. 304, 307.

§ 5780. (R. S. § 3077.) Sale of property seized.

If no such claim shall be filed or bond given within the twenty days above specified, such collector or other officer shall give not less than fifteen days' notice of the sale of the property so seized, by publication in the manner before mentioned; and, at the time and place specified in such notice, he shall sell at public auction the property so seized, and shall deposit the proceeds, after deducting the actual expenses of such seizure, publication, and sale, in the Treasury of the United States, as shall be directed by the Secretary of the Treasury. The collector, however, shall have power to adjourn such sale from time to time for a period not exceeding thirty days in all.

Act April 2, 1844, c. 8, § 1, 5 Stat. 653. Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 12, 14 Stat. 181.

Notes of Decisions

Operation and effect of sale.—See §§ 1564, 1565, 1566, ante, as to bailing and sale of property seized under customs laws.

A sale of seized property pursuant to the statutes is in legal effect and operation equivalent to a sale under a judicial decree of condemnation. McGuire v. Winslow (C. C. 1886) 26 Fed. 304, 307.

Purchase by owner.—There being no effort on the part of the owner of property sold for customs duties to defraud the government of its duties, nor any conspiracy entered into for that purpose, there is no law denying the owner the right to bid in the property at the sale. Ney v. Ladd (Tex. Civ. App. 1902) 68 S. W. 1014.

Patented goods.—Goods smuggled into the United States may be seized and sold by a collector of customs although protected by patents. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 72.

—— Decisions under prior statutes.—Beers v. Botsford (Conn. 1808) 3 Day, 159; Blake v. Johnson (1817) 1 N. H. 91.

§ 5781. (R. S. § 3078.) Application for remission of forfeiture, etc.

Any person claiming to be interested in the property sold under the provisions of the preceding section may, within three months after such sale, apply to the Secretary of the Treasury for a remission of the forfeiture and a restoration of the proceeds of such sale, and the same may be granted by the Secretary upon satisfactory proof, to be furnished in such manner as he shall direct, that the applicant, at the time of the seizure and sale of the property in question, did not know of the seizure, and was in such circumstances as prevented him from knowing of the same, and that such forfeiture was incurred without willful negligence or any intention of fraud on the part of the owner of such property.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 13, 14 Stat. 181.

Provisions for the remission of fines, etc., were made by Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, §§ 17, 18, 20, post, §§ 10132–10134.

Notes of Decisions

Power to remit forfeitures. — The rights of seizing officers do not conflict with the power to remit fines, penalties, and forfeitures under the revenue laws, since, as against the United States, no such right is vested until after condemnation and the payment over to the collector of the proceeds of such fines, penalties, etc., for distribution. (1830) 2 Op. Atty. Gen. 330.

Pardoning power of president. — Remission of penalties no invasion of president's power of pardon. The Laura (1885) 5 Sup. Ct. 881, 883, 114 U. S. 411, 29 L. Ed. 147.

The case considered is one in which the exercise of the pardoning power is rendered proper from the entire absence of all criminal intent in the commission of the act from whence the forfeiture arises. (1830) 2 Op. Atty. Gen. 330.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Morris (1825) 23 U. S. (10 Wheat.) 246, 6 L. Ed. 314; McGuire v. Winslow (C. C. 1886) 26 Fed. 304, 307.

§ 5782. (R. S. § 3079.) Distribution.

If no application for such remission or restoration shall be made within three months after such sale, the Secretary of the Treasury shall then cause the proceeds of such sale to be distributed in the same manner as if such property had been condemned and sold in pursuance of a decree of a competent court.

Act April 2, 1844, c. 8, § 3, 5 Stat. 654. Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 14, 14 Stat. 181.

Notes of Decisions

Distribution.—See § 5794, post.

Freight charges.—Where freight is earned before the government makes its election whether to declare the merchandise, of which a false and fraudulent entry has been made, forfeited, or to recover its value by suit against the parties making the entry, and the former proceeding is finally chosen and the property is sold, held, that such freight must be paid out of the proceeds of the sale; the owners of the vessel having no knowledge before it was earned of any offense committed or premeditated.

Six Hundred Tons of Iron Ore (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 595.

Cited without definite application. McGuire v. Winslow (C. C. 1886) 26 Fed. 304, 307.

§ 5783. (R. S. § 3080.) Sale of perishable articles.

Whenever seizure shall be made of any property which, in the opinion of the appraisers, is liable to perish or waste, or to be greatly reduced in value by keeping, or which cannot be kept without great disproportionate expense, whether such property consists of live animals or merchandise, and when the property thus seized shall not exceed five hundred dollars in value, and when no claim shall have been interposed therefor as is hereinbefore provided, the appraisers, if requested by the collector or principal officer making the seizure, at the time when such appraisal is made, shall certify on oath in their appraisal their belief that the property seized is liable to speedy deterioration, or that the expenses of its keeping will largely reduce the net proceeds of the sale; and in case the appraisers thus certify, such collector or other officer may proceed to advertise and sell the same at auction, by giving notice for such time as he may think reasonable, but not less than one week, of such seizure and intended sale, by advertisement as is hereinbefore provided; and the proceeds of such sale shall be deposited to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States, subject, nevertheless, to the payment of such claims as shall be presented within three months from the day of sale, and allowed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 15, 14 Stat. 181, 182.

Notes of Decisions

Time of sale.—In the case of unclaimed perishable property, or property the expense of keeping which would reduce the proceeds of sale (as horses) of less value than $500, used in smuggling, the collector need not give the 20 days allowed by previous sections in the case of like property, nonperishable, for the claimant to prefer his claim to it, and allow 15 days' notice of sale, but may publicly advertise it for sale at once, on seizure, and proper certificate by appraisers of its value and character, and after not less than one week's notice may sell it. Conway v. Stannard (1873) 17 Wall. 398, 402, 21 L. Ed. 649.

§ 5784. (R. S. § 3081.) Release on payment of appraised value.

The collectors of the several districts of the United States, in all cases of seizure of any merchandise for violation of the revenue laws, the appraised value of which, in the district wherein such seizure shall be made, does not exceed one thousand dollars, are hereby authorized, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to release such merchandise on payment of the appraised value thereof.

Act March 3, 1863, c. 76, § 5, 12 Stat. 740.

Notes of Decisions

Operation of section.—This section applies to the revenue features of the law, and does not affect its criminal feature. U. S. v. Ortega (D. C. 1895) 66 Fed. 713, 714.

A knit woolen shawl sent as a present through the mail from Germany in a registered package, on which was indorsed the contents of the package and the words "Suspected liable to customs duty," was opened by the party to whom it was addressed, at the post office, in the presence of a deputy collector, who took it from her, had it appraised, and refused to deliver it until she had paid the appraised value or received permission from the secretary to pay the duty and to receive the package. In an action for wrongful conversion, held, that it was the duty of the proper officer, if he had reasonable cause to believe it was subject to duty, or had unlawfully been introduced into the United States, to sieze it, and, having done so, he was by law the custodian of the property; that the owner could only reclaim it by payment of the appraised value or appeal to the secretary of the treasury for relief; and that there was not a wrongful conversion of the property. Von Cotzhausen v. Nazro (C. C. 1879) 15 Fed. 891.

Where property that is dutiable is imported contrary to law it is liable to seizure, and it does not follow from the fact of ownership that the owner would be entitled to possession. Id.

Payment of fine.—The Secretary of the Treasury may release cigars imported in violation of section 5500, ante, on payment of a fine equal to the duty, when in his opinion the importation does not involve fraud. (1903) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 588.

"Home value."—The purpose of the law as to smuggled or unentered goods requires the exaction of the so-called "home value" as the condition of release on payment of the appraised value, but not as implying the assessment of duties on such goods. (1903) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 583.

Recovery back of overcharge.—A payment of an overcharge of custom dues as a compromise whereby the parties obtained possession of their goods then under seizure cannot be recovered back. Shantz v. U. S. (1888) 23 Ct. Cl. 384.

§ 5785. (R. S. § 3082.) Concealing or buying, etc., goods liable to seizure.

If any person shall fraudulently or knowingly import or bring into the United States, or assist in so doing, any merchandise, contrary to law, or shall receive, conceal, buy, sell, or in any manner facilitate the transportation, concealment, or sale of such merchandise after importation, knowing the same to have been imported contrary to law, such merchandise shall be forfeited and the offender shall be fined in any sum not exceeding five thousand dollars nor less than fifty dollars, or be imprisoned for any time not exceeding two years, or both. Whenever, on trial for a violation of this section, the defendant is shown to have or to have had possession of such goods, such possession shall be deemed evidence sufficient to authorize conviction, unless the defendant shall explain the possession to the satisfaction of the jury.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 69, 1 Stat. 678. Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 4, 14 Stat. 179.

The entry or introduction of imported merchandise by means of false invoice, etc., or by means of any false or fraudulent practice, was punishable by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, G, H, ante, §§ 5524, 5526.

Provisions that in suits or informations, where any seizure has been made pursuant to any act relating to the collection of duties, a person claiming the property has the burden of proof, were made by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 21, 26 Stat. 140, which were amended by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, T, post, § 5791.

Notes of Decisions

1. Repeal of section.
2. —— Other sections by this section.
3. Operation of section.
4. Nature of offense.
5. "Contrary to law."
6. "Import or bring."
7. "Merchandise."
8. Concealment or possession of goods.
9. Dutiable articles in baggage.
10. Intent or knowledge.
11. Penalty or fine—Remedy.
12. —— Indictment.
13. Acquittal as a bar.
14. Forfeiture—In general.
15. —— Information for forfeiture.
16. —— Evidence.

1. Repeal of section.—This section authorizes a suit in rem for forfeiture, and has not been repealed. U. S. v. A Lot of Jewelry, etc. (D. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 684, 685.

The criminal features of this section were not repealed by the act of February 27, 1887, "to perfect the revision of the statutes." U. S. v. Ortega (D. C. 1895) 66 Fed. 713, 714.

2. —— Other sections by this section.—The punishment for smuggling, imposed by Act March 3, 1823 (3 Stat. 781), of a forfeiture of "a sum double the amount or value of the goods," etc., is not repealed by Act July 18, 1866 (14 Stat. 179), imposing a forfeiture of the goods smuggled, with fine and imprisonment. Stockwell v. U. S. (1871) 80 U. S. (13 Wall.) 531, 20 L. Ed. 491. CONTRA, see U. S. v. Claflin (1878) 97 U. S. 546, 24 L. Ed. 1082.

3. Operation of section.—The design of this act was to punish as a crime that which before had subjected its perpetrator to civil liability, or quasi civil liability. Stockwell v. U. S. (1871) 13 Wall. 531, 551, 20 L. Ed. 491.

This section does not authorize a civil action. U. S. v. Claflin (1878) 97 U. S. 546, 547, 24 L. Ed. 1082.

A carrier which transported smuggled goods has no lien on them for the freight, as against the government, though innocent of the fraud. U. S. v. Fifty-Three Bales of Rags (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 15,097.

The criminal provisions of this section apply to cases of smuggling cigars in quantities less than 1,000, notwithstanding the provisions of sections 5784, 5500, 5392, ante, which relate only to the revenue features of the law, and do not affect its criminal features. U. S. v. Ortega (D. C. 1895) 66 Fed. 713, 714.

The proceedings contemplated by this section are criminal. U. S. v. Chesbrough (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 778, 785.

Smuggled goods are to be associated with prohibited goods and are not liable to duty. The government should, therefore, limit its action to forfeiture of the goods and prosecution of the offender. (1903) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 583.

4. Nature of offense.—The offense of receiving smuggled goods described in this section is not to be classed as a felony, so as to entitle defendant to ten peremptory challenges, although it is punishable by fine and two years' imprisonment, which may be inflicted in a state penitentiary, since the offense is subordinate to that of smuggling itself, which is expressly declared a misdemeanor. Reagan v. U. S. (1895) 15 Sup. Ct. 610, 157 U. S. 301, 39 L. Ed. 709.

A violation of sections 5496–5499, ante, imposing a penalty where there is found, in the baggage of a person arriving within the United States, any dutiable article not mentioned to the collector at the time of making entry for the baggage, becomes the misdemeanor denounced in this section when done fraudulently or knowingly. U. S. v. Chesbrough (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 778.

5. "Contrary to law."—The phrase "contrary to law" relates to legal provisions not found in the section. Keck v. U. S. (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 254, 172 U. S. 434, 43 L. Ed. 505; One Pearl Chain v. U. S. (1903) 123 Fed. 371, 373, 59 C. C. A. 499.

The words "contrary to law" relate to legal provisions other than those found in such section. Rogers v. U. S. (1910) 180 Fed. 54, 103 C. C. A. 408, 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 264; U. S. v. Chesbrough (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 778.

Cattle brought into the United States without complying with R. S. § 3100 (post, § 5812), as to inspection by customs officer, though not dutiable, held imported contrary to law, within this section. Estes v. U. S. (1915) 227 Fed. 818, 142 C. C. A. 342.

The offense of bringing merchandise into the United States "contrary to law" does not include frauds or illegalities concerning the invoicing of the same, or the payment of duties thereon. U. S. v. Kee Ho (D. C. 1887) 33 Fed. 333.

On proceedings for the forfeiture of merchandise, it may not be maintained in defense that the regulations have not been promulgated, and that therefore the importer was justified in importing the merchandise according to his own convenience, independently of the requirements of law. Such an importation would be "contrary to law," under said section. U. S. v. Fifty Waltham Watch Movements (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 291.

The seizure directed under this section relates to property imported contrary to law. U. S. v. Chesbrough (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 778.

Violation of section 5499, ante, relating to importation of dutiable articles in baggage, held "contrary to law" within this section. Id.

6. "Import or bring."—When property afloat is feloniously taken from the possession of the owner, and is brought ashore in contravention of the revenue laws and then seized by the officers of customs, it will not be forfeited as against the true owner. U. S. v. Two Hundred and Eight Bags of Kainit (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 326.

The term "import or bring" held to include the whole act of bringing dutiable articles into the United States. U. S. v. Chesbrough (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 778, 780.

7. "Merchandise."—This section comprehends any merchandise imported contrary to law, and is not limited to merchandise sent or received for sale. Von Cotzhausen v. Nazro (C. C. 1879) 15 Fed. 891, 898.

Where goods subject to duty are mixed with other goods upon which duties have been paid at an earlier port of entry with an intention to smuggle them, the latter are not subject to forfeiture, unless there was an intent to defraud by importing them. U. S. v. Two Thousand Four Hundred and Nineteen Sheepskins (D. C. 1880) Fed. Cas. No. 16,589a.

The term "merchandise" held not limited to general merchandise, as distinguished from baggage, especially in view of sections 5462, 5496, and 5499, ante. U. S. v. Chesbrough (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 778, 780.

As to what is embraced within the term "merchandise." Id.

8. Concealment or possession of goods.—A resistance of the seizure of goods, whereby the same are removed from the custody of the officer, is not a concealment. U. S. v. Farnsworth (C. C. 1815) Fed. Cas. No. 15,072.

Possession of goods is not sufficient to authorize conviction until it is otherwise proved that they were imported contrary to law. U. S. v. Lot of Jewelry (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 15,626.

Where a plan to smuggle is shown by the manner of packing and invoicing, imported merchandise is liable to forfeiture, though the invoice may have been corrected before entry. U. S. v. One Bag of Crushed Wheat (D. C. 1908) 166 Fed. 562, 563.

9. Dutiable articles in baggage.—Dutiable goods, imported as passenger's baggage, where no attempt was made to have them passed as such, and the owner, without knowledge of their seisure, offered them with correct bills of lading and moneys for entry at the customhouse, held not forfeitable. U. S. v. Ninety-Five Boxes, etc. (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 15,891.

This section applies to dutiable merchandise brought into the United States in the baggage of a passenger, and such goods, when discovered after their entry, are subject to forfeiture thereunder. U. S. v. Five Packages of Tapestry (D. C. 1902) 114 Fed. 496.

That section 5499, ante, imposes penalty for bringing in dutiable articles in baggage held not to indicate that the offense is not within this section, imposing a greater penalty. U. S. v. Chesbrough (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 778, 780.

10. Intent or knowledge.—Dutiable goods imported in the foreign mail are in the hands of the receiver of them from the post office, liable to seizure by the officers of customs; and the fact that there was no intent on the part of the sender or receiver to defraud the United States of the duty does not render the officer liable to an action for making the seizure. Von Cotzhausen v. Nazro (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 503, 505, 107 U. S. 215, 27 L. Ed. 540.

Goods brought in with intent to smuggle may not be seized while there remains opportunity for change of intent before the time for due entry has passed. U. S. v. One Pearl Chain (1905) 139 Fed. 513, 71 C. C. A. 500.

An actual intention to defraud is an essential question in a suit to enforce a forfeiture. Lewey v. U. S. (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 8,309.

Guilty knowledge on the part of the impostor must be averred. U. S. v. Ninety Demijohns of Rum (C. C. 1880) 8 Fed. 485, 487.

The receipt or concealment of smuggled goods is not an offense, unless they are known to be smuggled. U. S. v. Sauer (D. C. 1896) 73 Fed. 671, 678.

Merchandise may be forfeited under this section, though the United States was not defrauded, and there was no intent to defraud. U. S. v. Fifty Waltham Watch Movements (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 291, 292.

Where an importer knowingly brought in merchandise in evasion of the customs laws, it became liable to forfeiture under this section, though, if duly imported, it would have been free of duty. U. S. v. Fifty Waltham Watch Movements (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 291, 292.

It is only when the act is done fraudulently or knowingly that the crime specified in this section is committed. U. S. v. Chesbrough (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 778.

The offense described in a similar section of the Opium Act is committed whenever smoking opium is fraudulently and knowingly brought by the offender within the territorial limits of the United States, though it is not landed from the ship, or carried across the customs lines. U. S. v. Caminata (D. C. 1912) 194 Fed. 903, 905.

There must be sufficient evidence of a criminal intent. (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 63.

To support indictment under this section there must be sufficient evidence of a criminal intent. (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 64.

Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, par. 16, 18 Stat. 189, making it the duty of the court, in all actions, to declare the forfeiture of merchandise by reason of a violation of the revenue laws, to submit to the jury whether the acts were done with intent to defraud the government, is repealed by Act June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, and hence the intent of the person violating the revenue laws is immaterial. Six Parcels of Placer Gold v. U. S. (1904) 76 P. 473, 8 Ariz. 389.

11. Penalty or fine—Remedy.—The act provides for a criminal prosecution only, and an action of debt will not lie by the United States to recover the penalty. U. S. v. Claflin (1878) 97 U. S. 546, 24 L. Ed. 1082, affirming (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 14,799.

Under prior statutes, see Stockwell v. U. S. (1871) 13 Wall. 531, 543, 20 L. Ed. 491; Walsh v. U. S. (C. C. 1847) Fed. Cas. No. 17,116.

12. —— Indictment.—An indictment, under section 5548, ante, making it an offense to smuggle into the country any "goods, wares, or merchandise subject to duty by law," and this section, sufficiently describes the article as "prepared opium, subject to duty by law, to wit, the duty of $12 per pound," where the only opium subject to a duty of $12 per pound is "opium containing less than nine per cent. of morphia, and opium prepared for smoking" (Act Oct. 1, 1890, § 1, par. 48); especially where no objection was made to the indictment till after verdict, and in view of section 1691, ante, providing that "no indictment * * * shall be deemed insufficient * * * by reason of any defect or imperfection in matter of form only, which shall not tend to the prejudice of the defendant." Dunbar v. U. S. (1895) 156 U. S. 185, 15 Sup. Ct. 325, 39 L. Ed. 390.

Indictment held insufficient. Keck v. U. S. (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 254, 172 U. S. 434, 43 L. Ed. 505.

Indictment for concealing and facilitating transportation and concealment of cattle imported without inspection, as required by regulations authorized by law, held to have properly charged importation contrary to law. Estes v. U. S. (1915) 227 Fed. 818, 142 C. C. A. 342.

A count for illegally receiving, concealing, or buying may be joined with one for illegally importing. Stockwell v. U. S. (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 13,466.

An indictment for smuggling, describing the goods as "six cases containing silk goods of the value of $30,000, a more particular description of which is to the jurors unknown," being dutiable goods introduced into the port of New York from France, held sufficient. U. S. v. Claflin (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 14,798.

It is not a sufficient description of the illegality of the original importation to say merely that the goods had been imported and brought into the United States contrary to law. Id.

It is not sufficient to charge the defendant in the language of the statute, with importing merchandise into the United States "contrary to law," or with having received or bought the same, after being so imported, but the indictment must state, with reasonable certainty, in what the illegality of the importation consists. U. S. v. Kee Ho (D. C. 1887) 33 Fed. 333.

Indictment held sufficient. U. S. v. Chesbrough (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 778; Rogers v. U. S. (1910) 180 Fed. 54, 103 C. C. A. 408, 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 264.

13. Acquittal as a bar.—Where a person charged to have fraudulently imported certain merchandise with intent to defraud the United States of duty legally payable thereon was tried and acquitted, such acquittal was a bar to a further proceeding to forfeit the merchandise as against him. U. S. v. A Lot of Precious Stones and Jewelry (1905) 134 Fed. 61, 68 C. C. A. 1.

An information having been filed to forfeit certain merchandise and money for fraudulent importation, with intent to defraud the United States of duty, indictments were found against the alleged importer and his wife; and on trial thereof the importer was acquitted, after which the indictment against the wife was nolled. Held, that such a nolle prosequi was not a judgment of acquittal, and was therefore no bar to the proceeding to forfeit as against the wife. Id.

Acquittal on charge of smuggling under section 5548, ante, and of illegal importation under this section, is not a bar to a proceeding in rem to forfeit the goods under sections 5499, 5763, ante. (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 63.

14. Forfeiture — In general. — Proceeding in rem does not lie under this section to forfeit money arising from the sale in this country of goods fraudulently imported. U. S. v. A Lot of Precious Stones and Jewelry (1905) 134 Fed. 61, 68 C. C. A. 1.

Where it was charged that certain precious stones and jewelry were imported with intent to defraud the United States of duty thereon, a proceeding in rem to forfeit the same was properly brought under this section. U. S. v. A Lot of Precious Stones and Jewelry (1905) 134 Fed. 61, 68 C. C. A. 1.

Jurisdiction of a proceeding for the forfeiture of smuggled goods exists only in the district of seizure, which is the district in which the goods, if on land, are found; a collector cannot, by carrying them into another district and there making the formal seizure, confer jurisdiction of the proceeding on the court in such district. U. S. v. Larkin (1907) 153 Fed. 113, 116, 82 C. C. A. 247.

A false entry does not subject the goods to forfeiture. U. S. v. Fifty-Three Boxes of Havana Sugar (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 15,098.

15. —— Information of forfeiture.—An information of forfeiture is sufficient to support a verdict when it contains averments that certain persons named received the goods, knowing them to have been imported contrary to law; that they were seized by the collector within the district; that they were subject to duty, were brought from a foreign port into the port of New York, without being invoiced or entered at the custom house, and without payment of any duty; and that they were imported contrary to law, by persons named, fraudulently and knowingly. U. S. v. A Lot of Jewelry, (D. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 684.

An information of forfeiture will not be judged of, after verdict, with the strictness applicable to indictments. Id. 685.

16. —— Evidence.—See § 5791, post.

If the entry does not contain a part of the goods consigned by the same invoice and bill of lading, it is prima facie evidence that the duties have not been paid. U. S. v. Certain Hogsheads of Molasses (C. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 14,766.

Statements made by one who for a time had possession of goods claimed as the property of another, in respect to certain alleged violations of the customs laws made after he had parted with the possession thereof, held incompetent evidence, as being merely narrative or historical, and in derogation of the title of the alleged owner. U. S. v. Lot of Jewelry (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 15,626.

A letter written by a third party, whom the evidence tended to implicate, to other parties in China two months after the seizure, apparently referring to the transaction, and left by the writer with the claimant, who added a paragraph thereto, also seemingly referring to the transaction, and a letter written by a Chinaman to another Chinaman in China, supposed to refer to passages in the other letter, both letters being put in the same envelope, and directed and mailed to the party in China, held admissible. Three Thousand Eight Hundred and Eighty Boxes of Opium v. U. S. (C. C. 1883) 23 Fed. 367.

Declarations of the steward of a ship, on which it is claimed certain opium was smuggled, made to the officers seizing such opium an hour after the seizure, but while the opium was in their possession near the place of seizure, waiting to be transported, held admissible, in an action to condemn such opium, as part of the res gestæ, though not made in the presence of, or by authority or with the knowledge of, the claimant. Id.

In a suit to condemn merchandise as forfeited, where the proofs show probable cause for the seizure, and the claimant makes no offer to explain damaging circumstances, such as that the goods were shipped under a false designation, and show when, where, how, or from whom he acquired the ownership he claims, such withholding of evidence is a circumstance sufficient to complete the case for the government, and casts the burden of proof upon the claimant. U. S. v. Seven Hundred and Forty Tins of Opium (D. C. 1891) 44 Fed. 798.

Evidence held insufficient to warrant a finding as a matter of law that a passenger had fraudulently attempted to import a pearl chain without declaring same, so as to authorize its forfeiture for nonpayment of duty. One Pearl Chain v. U. S. (1903) 123 Fed. 371, 373, 59 C. C. A. 499.

On a suit for forfeiture under this section, the burden of proof is not on the claimant of the articles seized, unless there was probable cause for seizing them. If at the close of the government's case there is not enough evidence to go to the jury, there is not such probable cause as to put the burden of proof upon the claimant. U. S. v. One Pearl Chain (D. C. 1904) 139 Fed. 510.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Sixty-Seven Packages of Dry Goods (1854) 17 How. 85, 91, 15 L. Ed. 54; Friedenstein v. U. S. (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 838, 839, 125 U. S. 224, 31 L. Ed. 736; Amado v. Same (1904) 25 Sup. Ct. 13, 14, 195 U. S. 172, 49 L. Ed. 145; U. S. v. One Pearl Necklace (1901) 111 Fed. 164, 169, 49 C. C. A. 287, 56 L. R. A. 130; Same v. Ah Fook (1910) 183 Fed. 33, 105 C. C. A. 325; Tilley v. Savannah F. & W. R. Co. (C. C. 1881) 5 Fed. 641, 659; Boxes of Opium v. U. S. (C. C. 1883) 23 Fed. 366, 392; U. S. v. Mitchell (C. C. 1905) 141 Fed. 666; Same v. Curtis (D. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 184, 188; In re H. L. Evans & Co. (D. C. 1907) 158 Fed. 153, 161; U. S. v. Six Hundred and Forty-Six Half Boxes of Figs (D. C. 1908) 164 Fed. 778, 779.

§ 5786. (R. S. § 3083, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Notice to Solicitor of the Treasury.

Whenever any seizure shall be made for the purpose of enforcing any forfeiture, the collector or other person causing such seizure to be made shall immediately give information thereof to the Solicitor of the Treasury.

Act May 29, 1830, c. 153, § 4, 4 Stat. 415. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 247.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out, after the words "information thereof to the" the word "Solioctir" and inserting in place thereof the word "Solicitor," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

§ 5787. (R. S. § 3084.) Collectors to report to district attorneys.

The several collectors of customs shall report within ten days to the district attorney of the district in which any fine, penalty, or forfeiture may be incurred for the violation of any law of the United States relating to the revenue, a statement of all the facts and circumstances of the case within their knowledge, or which may come to their knowledge from time to time, stating the names of the witnesses, and the provisions of the law believed to be violated, and on which a reliance may be had for condemnation or conviction. If any collector shall in any case fail to report to the proper district attorney, as prescribed in this section, such collector's right to any compensation, benefit, or allowance in such case shall be forfeited to the United States, and the same may, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, be awarded to such persons as may make complaint and prosecute the same to judgment or conviction.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 7, 14 Stat. 179. Act March 3, 1873, c. 244, 17 Stat. 580.

The duties of district attorneys in the prosecution of frauds on the revenue were prescribed by R. S. § 838, ante, § 1297.

Officers of customs detecting violations of the customs laws were required to report to the collectors, and the latter were required to report to the district attorneys, by Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 15, post, § 5803.

§ 5788. (R. S. § 3085.) Duty of district attorneys.

District attorneys, upon receiving the report of a collector, shall cause suit and prosecution to be commenced and prosecuted without delay for the fines and personal penalties by law in such case provided, unless upon inquiry and examination they shall decide that a conviction cannot probably be obtained, or that the ends of public justice do not require that a suit or prosecution should be instituted, in which case they shall report the facts to the Secretary of the Treasury for his direction. For expenses incurred and services rendered in prosecutions for such fines and personal penalties, they shall receive such allowance as the Secretary of the Treasury shall deem just and reasonable, upon the certificate of the judge before whom such prosecution was had.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 7, 14 Stat. 179. Act March 3, 1873, c. 244, 17 Stat. 581.

The duties of district attorneys in making returns of fees and expenses were prescribed by R. S. §§ 833, 834, ante, §§ 1394, 1395.

Limitations of suits for recovery of penalties and forfeitures under customs revenue laws were prescribed by Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 22, ante, § 1713.

Notes of Decisions

Services and expenses.—Payment for services is not intended, unless prosecutions have been commenced. Stanton v. U. S. (C. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 252, 262, modified (1895) 70 Fed. 890, 17 C. C. A. 475.

An action cannot be maintained by the district attorney for services and expenses until the secretary of the treasury has determined what sum is just and reasonable. Ruhm v. U. S. (C. C. 1895) 66 Fed. 531, 534.

Cited without definite application, Waters v. U. S. (1897) 32 Ct. Cl. 277.

§ 5789. (R. S. § 3086.) Custody of goods.

All merchandise or property of any kind seized under the provisions of any law of the United States relating to the customs, shall, unless otherwise provided for by law, be placed and remain in the custody of the collector or other principal officer of the customs of the district in which the seizure shall be made, to abide adjudication by the proper tribunal, or other disposition according to law.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 31, 14 Stat. 186.

Notes of Decisions

Right to custody in general.—It is no abandonment of vessel seized on the high seas to permit her master and crew to alone navigate her to port. The Abby (C. C. 1818) Fed. Cas. No. 14.

The government is not liable for the loss of the goods while in the public store awaiting the trial. Schmalz v. U. S. (1868) 4 Ct. Cl. 142.

If a revenue officer whose official duty it is to make seizures of property for violation of the revenue laws actually makes a seizure of merchandise while it is in his custody for the purpose of administering the customs laws, such officer is, nevertheless, to be regarded as the seizing officer. (1870) 13 Op. Atty. Gen. 253.

Collector's right to custody.—Goods of a maritime character seized under the collection act were at one time required to be put into the custody of the collector, and as to such goods the collector was the keeper and responsible for any loss sustained by his neglect. Averill v. Smith (1872) 17 Wall. 82, 92, 21 L. Ed. 613.

Where customs officers examined imported goods at the vessel's pier in Hoboken, and from there sent them to the seizure room of the custom house, in the city of New York, the seizure was made in New York, and not in Hoboken. Four Packages v. U. S. (1878) 97 U. S. 404, 411, 24 L. Ed. 1031.

Jurisdiction of a proceeding for the forfeiture of smuggled goods exists only in the district of seizure, which is the district in which the goods, if on land, are found. A collector cannot, by carrying them into another district and there making the formal seizure, confer jurisdiction of the proceeding on the court in such district. U. S. v. Larkin (1907) 153 Fed. 113, 116, 82 C. C. A. 247.

It is the court, and not the collector, who is to decide how property once libeled is to be disposed of—whether delivered to the claimant or sold—and the custody of the collector is terminated by such decision. The G. G. King (D. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 921.

In legal contemplation, the goods are in the custody of the court as soon as the process is issued; and though the actual possession and care of them are committed to the collector, he holds them as the official keeper for the court, and is bound to obey its order and direction. (1831) 2 Op. Atty. Gen. 477.

Whenever the prosecution ceases the collector ceases to be the officer of the court; but as collector of the customs he holds the property by the same right which he exercised before the filing of the libel. (1832) 2 Op. Atty. Gen. 496.

Seizures by collectors are not made pursuant to or by virtue of any judicial authority; and courts have no control over the property seized until the same is libeled. When libeled the property seized is in the custody of the courts, and is held by the collector as their officer, and subject to their direction pendente lite. Id.

A vessel and her cargo were seized by a collector of customs, for a breach of the United States revenue laws. Upon the petition of the owner, a remittitur was granted by the secretary of the treasury, and an order for the restoration of the property was issued from the district court; but the secretary of the treasury, upon further consideration of the case, being satisfied that the claimant was not entitled to relief, wrote to the district attorney to return the certificate of remittitur, that it might be revoked, of which orders the collector was notified. Upon demand upon him for the property, by the deputy marshal, under the order for its restoration, the collector refused to deliver it on account of the proceedings of the secretary. Afterwards the remittitur was revoked, and subsequently the owner obtained possession of the property, under an order of the court, by giving a bond therefor, and brought trover against the collector, alleging as a conversion the refusal to deliver the property upon the demand of the marshal. Held, that the property in the hands of the collector was in the custody of the law, and that his refusal to deliver it was not a conversion. Barnes v. Taylor (1849) 29 Me. (16 Shep.) 514.

—— Under prior statutes.—In re Hoyt (1839) 13 Pet. 279, 290, 10 L. Ed. 161; U. S. v. One Case of Silk (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,925; (1831) 2 Op. Atty. Gen. 477.

Military's right to custody.—This section is not to be considered as embraced in the proceedings contemplated in section 4117, ante, so as to permit the military employed in making seizures to retain the custody of the property to abide adjudication. (1887) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 544.

Cited without definite application, Von Cotzhausen v. Nazro (C. C. 1879) 15 Fed. 891; In re Chin K. Shue (D. C. 1912) 199 Fed. 282.

§ 5790. (R. S. § 3087.) Institution of suits.

The collector within whose district any seizure shall be made or forfeiture incurred for any violation of the duty laws is hereby enjoined to cause suits for the same to be commenced without delay, and prosecuted to effect; and is, moreover, authorized to receive from the court within which such trial is had, or from the proper officer thereof, the sum recovered, after deducting all proper charges to be allowed by the court; and on receipt thereof he shall pay and distribute the same without delay, according to law.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 89, 1 Stat. 695.

Limitations of suits for recovery of penalties and forfeitures under customs revenue laws are prescribed by Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 22, ante, § 1713.

The proceeds of all fines, penalties, or forfeitures were required to be paid into the United States Treasury by Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 2, post, § 5796.

Notes of Decisions

What law governs.—The law which is in force at the time of entry and presentment of the invoice is that which must control the proceedings and forfeitures in consequence thereof. (1830) 2 Op. Atty. Gen. 358.

Nature of suit.—Informations in rem on the exchequer side of the court are not criminal proceedings. United States v. Three Hundred and Ninety-Six Barrels Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 16,503.

In trial of cases of the seizure of goods for violation of the custom laws, the proceeding is at common law. U. S. v. 150 Head of Cattle and 52 Calves (1889) 77 Pac. 489, 3 Ariz. 134.

Jurisdiction.—Jurisdiction of a proceeding for the forfeiture of smuggled goods exists only in the district of seizure, which is the district in which the goods, if on hand, are found; a collector cannot, by carrying them into another district and there making the formal seizure, confer jurisdiction of the proceeding on the court in such district. U. S. v. Larkin (1907) 153 Fed. 113, 82 C. C. A. 247.

Pleading.—The petition in a proceeding by the government for the forfeiture of goods imported into the country contrary to law, which alleged that the goods were imported without being invoiced or entry made with any collector of customs, and without declaration to the proper revenue officer, and that some person fraudulently brought into the country from a foreign country goods which should have been invoiced, declared, and entered according to the law, with intent to defraud the government, sufficiently charged a violation of R. S., § 2851 et seq., providing that all merchandise imported into the country must be invoiced, which invoice shall be produced to the consul, and requiring that a declaration shall be filed with the collector of the port at the time of entry. Six Parcels of Placer Gold v. U. S. (1904) 76 Pac. 473, 8 Ariz. 389.

The information to induce a seizure need not be as full as the evidence in the case would authorize. It is sufficient if it induce the prosecution. Sawyer v. Steele (C. C. 1819) Fed. Cas. No. 12,406.

A libel in rem for a forfeiture under the customs laws must allege that the property has been seized by the collector. A plea of no forfeiture puts that allegation in issue. The Silver Spring (D. C. 1854) Fed. Cas. No. 12,858.

An information of forfeiture need not show that the case was not within the exemption of a proviso of the statute. This is a matter of defense. The Mary Merritt (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 9,-222.

Cited without definite application, Stockwell v. U. S. (1871) 13 Wall. 531, 542, 20 L. Ed. 491.

§ 5791. (Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, T.) Burden of proof on claimant of property, and on defendant in action.

T. In all suits or informations brought, where any seizure has been made pursuant to any Act providing for or regulating the collection of duties on imports or tonnage, if the property is claimed by any person, the burden of proof shall lie upon such claimant, and in all actions or proceedings for the recovery of the value of merchandise imported contrary to any Act providing for or regulating the collection of duties on imports or tonnage, the burden of proof shall be upon the defendant: Provided, That probable cause is shown for such prosecution, to be judged of by the court. (38 Stat. 189.)

This was a subdivision of section III of the Underwood Tariff Act, cited above.

See notes to subdivision B of said section, ante, § 5519.

These provisions, originally enacted in the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 21, 26 Stat. 140, were re-enacted in the same language by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 28, 36 Stat. 101, and were amended by inserting after the word "claimant" the words "and in all actions or proceedings for the recovery of the value of merchandise imported contrary to any act for or regulating the collection of duties on imports or tonnage, the burden of proof shall be upon the defendant," as set forth here, by this act.

In prosecutions for bringing goods into the United States contrary to law, or for receiving, buying, etc., such merchandise after importation, proof of defendant's possession of such goods was made sufficient to authorize a conviction, by R. S. § 3082, ante, § 5785.

Notes of Decisions

Fraudulent invoice.—Where goods imported are fraudulently invoiced, and are seized by the United States, the burden of proof is on the claimants. Wood v. U. S. (1842) 41 U. S. (16 Pet.) 342, 10 L. Ed. 987.

Method of importation and smuggling.—In an action to condemn a vessel for smuggling, the consignee of the goods testified that, in a foreign port, he suggested the enterprise to the shipowner, who neither declined nor accepted, but that later witness received word from a third person to send the goods to the port, and subsequently a letter from the shipowner stating that the goods were safely on board. Witness testified that he paid the shipowner for his services, which testimony was corroborated by an unimpeached witness. The shipowner denied receiving the money, but did not positively deny writing the letter, but said it might have referred to his seeing the goods on another ship. Impeaching evidence as to the consignee's veracity was conflicting. The consignee had made a statement before the trial to the owner's attorney that the goods had not been brought in the former's vessel, but this he said was made under the offer of a bribe. Held, that under Act March 2, 1799, putting the onus probandi in such cases on the claimant to the vessel, the case was sufficiently made out against the owner. The John Griffin (1872) 82 U. S. (15 Wall.) 29, 21 L. Ed. 80.

Where the claimant knew that his method of importation was contrary to law, the burden is upon him to show affirmatively that he did not adopt such method with intent to evade the payment of duties. U. S. v. Nine Trunks (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No, 15,886.

Nonliability for duties.—It is the duty of an importer to make affirmative proof of a state of facts relieving his merchandise from duty to which it would otherwise be subject, and to segregate from the same class of goods such portions as are claimed to be free. He cannot require the officers to separate free from dutiable goods indiscriminately mingled, and in such case duty should be assessed on all. U. S. v. Brewer (1899) 92 Fed. 343, 34 C. C. A. 390.

Where a quantity of opium was seized by officers, the burden of proof is on the claimant to show that it was of domestic manufacture and not liable for customs duties, and if he fails to explain the difficulties of the case by the production of proofs within his power to produce condemnation follows; and where he has it in his power to produce the best and most satisfactory evidence to repel the presumption of law against him, and he omits to do so, the presumption is that such evidence would not be favorable to the defense. U. S. v. Three Thousand Eight Hundred and Eighty Boxes (D. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 402.

Prima facie case.—Where the burden of proof is thrown on the claimant in a revenue case by a prima facie case on the part of the prosecutor, and the claimant fails to explain the difficulties of the case by the production of papers and other evidence in his possession or under his control, condemnation follows. The Luminary (1823) 21 U. S. (8 Wheat.) 407, 5 L. Ed. 647.

The presumption of the correctness of the decisions of customs officers must be overcome by a fair preponderance of proof as to the commercial use of the term at the date of the act. Hutton v. Schell (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 6,962.

Probable cause.—The collector of revenue is justified in making any seizure where he has reasonable ground to suspect that a fraud on the revenue or a violation of the revenue laws is meditated, and on showing probable cause for the seizure, the burden of proof is on the claimant. Sixty Pipes of Brandy (1825) 10 Wheat. 421, 426, 6 L. Ed. 356.

Where the claimant sets up mistake as an excuse for disagreement with the entries, the fact that probable cause of seizure has been made out does not impose upon him the necessity of making out an unusually clear case of mistake. U. S. v. Nine Packages of Linen (C. C. 1818) Fed. Cas. No. 15,884.

Where probable cause is shown for the forfeiture of goods, the burden of proof is upon claimants to show their innocence. U. S. v. Twenty-Five Cases of Cloths (D. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 16,563; In re Twelve Hundred and Nine Quarter Casks, etc., of Wine (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 14,279; In re Six Cases of Silk Ribbons (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 12,914; U. S. v. Sixteen Cases of Silk Ribbons (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,301; Same v. Six Hundred and Sixty-One Bales of Tobacco (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 16, 297.

Where the seizure is under circumstances warranting suspicion, the collector is entitled to a certificate of probable cause. Act 1799, §§ 71, 89; Act 1807, § 1. U. S. v. Three Bales of Cloth (D. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 16,495.

Burden of proof held not shifted to claimants on production of reports on file in the customhouse showing that a certain lot of goods seized were found on the vessel not entered on the manifest. The Missouri (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 9,653.

In a suit to condemn merchandise as forfeited where the proofs show probable cause for the seizure, and the claimant makes no offer to explain damaging circumstances, such as that the goods were shipped under a false designation, and show when, where, how, or from whom he acquired the ownership he claims, such withholding of evidence is a circumstance sufficient to complete the case for the government and cast the burden of proof upon the claimant. U. S. v. Seven Hundred and Forty Tins of Opium (D. C. 1891) 44 Fed. 798; Same v. Ten Hundred and Sixty Tins of Opium, Id. 799.

Under Customs Administrative Act 1890, § 21, which casts the burden of proof, in cases of seizure, upon the person claiming the goods, provided probable cause for the prosecution be shown, the words "probable cause" import circumstances which create suspicion. U. S. v. A Lot of Jewelry (D. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 684, distinguishing Boyd v. U. S. (1886) 6 S. Ct. 524, 116 U. S. 616, 29 L. Ed. 746.

On a suit for forfeiture under section 5785, ante, the burden of proof is not on the claimant of the articles seized, unless there was probable cause for seizing them. If at the close of the government's case there is not enough evidence to go to the jury, there is not such probable cause as to put the burden of proof upon the claimant. U. S. v. One Pearl Chain (D. C. 1904) 139 Fed. 510.

Rate of duty imposed.—A collector who has compelled an importer to pay a higher rate of duty than that imposed by law on such articles as are named in the invoice has the burden of proof to show the authority under which such higher duty was exacted. Wilkinson v. Greely (C. C. 1853) Fed. Cas. No. 17,672.

§ 5792. (R. S. § 3088.) Lien on vessels for violations.

Whenever a vessel, or the owner or master of a vessel, has become subject to a penalty for a violation of the revenue laws of the United States, such vessel shall be holden for the payment of such penalty, and may be seized and proceeded against summarily by libel to recover such penalty.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 8, 14 Stat. 180.

Provisions restricting the seizure and forfeiture of vessels used as common carriers, by force of the provisions of this Title, were made by Act Feb. 8, 1881, c. 34, ante, § 5766.

Notes of Decisions

Operation of section in general.—See § 5506, ante, for cases of enforcement against vessel of penalty under that section.

This section does not render the vessel liable for a penalty imposed on its mate under section 5555, ante, making the master and mate respectively liable for a penalty where the cargo is unladen without authority of the customs officer. The C. G. White (1894) 64 Fed. 579, 580, 12 C. C. A. 314.

A vessel receiving smuggled goods is not liable to forfeiture. Clark v. Protection Ins. Co. (C. C. 1840) Fed. Cas. No. 2,832.

Secret introduction of prohibited articles on board ship by hands, in defiance of regulations, no ground of forfeiture of vessel, as the owners of the vessel are not liable for the acts of persons employed by the master. The Governor Cushman (D. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 5,646.

Revenue laws are those laws only whose principal object is the raising of revenue, and not those under which revenue may incidentally arise. The Nashville (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 10,023.

Lien in general.—Where the vessel is not used as a common carrier, the government has by virtue of this section a lien on the vessel for the penalty thus incurred by the master, and may enforce that lien by libel and seizure; but where the vessel is used as a common carrier, and the owner or master thereof is not a consenting party to the illegal act, or privy thereto, the only remedy appears to be an action against the master. (1912) 29 Op. Atty. Gen. 364.

A vessel may be proceeded against in rem, in the admiralty, to enforce the lien for importing goods not included in her manifest. U. S. v. The Missouri (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 15,785.

Whenever a vessel, or the owner or master of a vessel, has become subject to a penalty for a violation of the revenue laws of the United States, such vessel shall be holden for the payment of such penalty, and may be seized and proceeded against summarily by libel to recover such penalty. The Saratoga (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 382.

Where a vessel employed as a common carrier was seized to enforce a lien for a penalty there being probable cause for the seizure, but no charge of wrongdoing against the owner, held that, in the absence of rebutting evidence, proof that packages supposed to contain the contraband goods were received, transported, and delivered as freight in due course of business, and that the master had no knowledge with reference thereto, makes a sufficient case for the claimant, and the vessel must be released. U. S. v. The Walla Walla (D. C. 1891) 44 Fed. 796.

Seizure of vessel.—The word "seizure," used in section 5766, ante, embraces seizures by the marshal under legal process for the enforcement of a penalty pursuant to this section, as well as seizures by revenue officers for the purposes of forfeitures. The Saratoga (D. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 322, 323.

Conditions precedent to enforcement of lien.—The lien may be enforced by libel of the vessel without judgment being first obtained against the master. The C. G. White v. U. S. (1894) 64 Fed. 579, 12 C. C. A. 314.

In an action against a vessel for smuggling foreign goods liable to customs duties, a judgment of condemnation entered. U. S. v. The Henrietta Esch (C. C. 1882) 12 Fed. 483.

A seizure before bringing suit is not necessary in order to give jurisdiction to the court. The Paolina (C. C. 1882) 11 Fed. 171.

As to whether previous seizure was necessary as a jurisdictional fact, quære. The Snow Drop (C. C. 1887) 30 Fed. 79, 80.

A libel against a vessel for the penalty for smuggling must show ownership of vessel and value of goods. The Antilles (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 489.

Cited without definite application, The Strathairly (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 609, 616, 124 U. S. 558, 31 L. Ed. 580.

§ 5793. (R. S. § 3089.) Costs of prosecution in certain cases.

Whenever a seizure, condemnation, and sale of merchandise takes place within the United States, and the value thereof is less than two hundred and fifty dollars, that part of the forfeiture which ac-crues to the United States, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be applied to the payment of the cost of prosecution.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 91, 1 Stat. 697.

The proceeds of all fines, penalties, and forfeitures were required to be paid into the United States Treasury by Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 2, post, § 5796.

Notes of Decisions

Application of forfeited property to costs.—Where the value of the property forfeited is less than $250, the government's share is to be applied to the costs of the prosecution. In re One Large Water Tub (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 10,532.

Cited without definite application, Francis v. U. S. (1866) 5 Wall. 338, 341, 18 L. Ed. 603.

§ 5794. (R. S. § 3090, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Distribution of forfeitures.

From the proceeds of fines, penalties, and forfeitures incurred under the provisions of the laws relating to the customs, there shall be deducted such charges and expenses as are by law in each case authorized to be deducted; and in addition, in case of the forfeiture of imported merchandise of a greater value than five hundred dollars on which duties have not been paid, or in case of a release thereof, upon payment of its appraised value, or of any fine or composition in money, there shall also be deducted an amount equivalent to the duties in coin upon such merchandise, including the additional duties, if any; which shall be credited in the accounts of the collector as duties received; and the residue of the proceeds shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States, and distributed, under the direction of the Secretary, in the manner following, to wit: One-half to the United States; one-fourth to the person giving the information which has led to the seizure, or to the recovery of the fine or penalty, and if there be no informer other than the collector, naval officer, or surveyor, then to the officer making the seizure; and the remaining one-fourth to be equally divided between the collector, naval officer, and surveyor, or such of them as are appointed for the district in which the seizure has been made, or the fine or penalty incurred, or if there be only a collector, then to such collector. But where any fine, penalty, or forfeiture, incurred by virtue of the laws relating to customs, shall be recovered in consequence of any information given by an officer of a revenue-cutter, the proceeds thereof shall, after the legal deductions, including the deductions herein authorized, have been made, be disposed of as follows: One-fourth to the United States; one-fourth to the officers of the customs, as hereinbefore provided; and the remainder to the officers of such revenue-cutter, to be divided among them in proportion to their pay.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 91, 1 Stat. 697. Act March 2, 1867, c. 188, § 1, 14 Stat. 546. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 248.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out after the words "there shall be" the word "dedcted," and inserting in lieu thereof the word "deducted," and by striking out after the words "legal deductions," the word "ncluding," and inserting in lieu thereof the word "including," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

The provisions of this section for the distribution of fines, penalties, or forfeitures to informers, custom officers, or other officers of the United States, were repealed by Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 2, post, § 5796.

Notes of Decisions

Distribution in general.—See § 5782, ante.

The claimant is entitled to have the penalty illegally exacted returned upon the distribution of the proceeds of the property on condemnation. U. S. v. Linens (D. C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 15,604; Same v. Segars (D. C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 16,249.

The marshal's commissions for the sale of property, and collecting and paying over the proceeds, form part of the expenses to be deducted before paying the proceeds into court. U. S. v. Fifty-One Dozen Pieces of Merchandise (D. C. 1864) Fed. Cas. No. 15,094.

Act July 18, 1866, § 24, post, § 7775, is not an act relating to the customs, within the meaning of this section. The Monte Christo (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 9,720.

The power of the secretary of the treasury to distribute the proceeds of fines, penalties, and forfeitures, under this section, which provides that they shall be "distributed under the direction of the secretary," examined. Bradley v. U. S. (1876) 12 Ct. Cl. 578.

Decisions prior to anti-moiety act.—See Jones v. Shore (1816) 14 U. S. (1 Wheat.) 462, 4 L. Ed. 136; Van Ness v. Buel (1819) 17 U. S. (4 Wheat.) 74, 4 L. Ed. 516; Buel v. Van Ness (1823) 21 U. S. (8 Wheat.) 312, 5 L. Ed. 624; U. S. v. Morris (1825) 10 Wheat. 246, 290, 6 L. Ed. 314; McLane v. U. S. (1832) 6 Pet. 404, 426, 8 L. Ed. 443; Hoyt v. Same (1850) 51 U. S. (10 How.) 109, 13 L. Ed. 348; Ring v. Maxwell (1854) 58 U. S. (17 How.) 147, 15 L. Ed. 25; Hahn v. U. S. (1888) 107 U. S. 402, 2 Sup. Ct. 494, 27 L. Ed. 527; Sawyer v. Steele (C. C. 1819) Fed. Cas. No. 12,406; Westcot v. Bradford (C. C. 1824) Fed. Cas. No. 17,429; Brewster v. Gelston (C. C. 1825) Fed. Cas. No. 1,853; Robinson v. Hook (C. C. 1826) Fed. Cas. No. 11,956; U. S. v. Collier (C. C. 1855) Fed. Cas. No. 14,833; Same v. Tilden (C. C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 16,523; Same v. Fanjul (C. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 15,069; Same v. George (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,197; Id. Fed. Cas. No. 15,198; U. S. v. Chassell (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 14,789; Same v. George (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 15,198; In re Webster (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 17,332; Anonymous (D. C.) Fed. Cas. No. 455; Hooper v. Fifty-One Casks of Brandy (D. C. 1848) Fed. Cas. No. 6,674; U. S. v. The Planter (D. C. 1852) Fed. Cas. No. 16,054; In re Fifty Thousand Cigars (D. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 4,782; U. S. v. One Hundred Barrels of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,946; Same v. Stockwell (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 16,406; The Monte Christo (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 9,720; Bradley v. U. S. (1876) 12 Ct. Cl. 578; Kellogg v. Same (1879) 15 Ct. Cl. 372; (1819) 1 Op. Atty. Gen. 259; (1819) 5 Op. Atty. Gen. 721; (1867) 12 Op. Atty. Gen. 291; (1870) 13 Op. Atty. Gen. 253; (1873) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 336; (1874) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 377; (1877) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 387; Lapham v. Almy (1866) 95 Mass. (13 Allen) 301; Steele v. Bennet (Pa. 1817) 3 Serg. & R. 553; Buel v. Van Ness (Vt. 1815) Brayt. 59; Same v. Enos (Vt. 1820) Brayt. 56.

Cited without definite application. U. S. v. 1960 Bags of Coffee (1814) 8 Cranch, 398, 407, 3 L. Ed. 602; Francis v. U. S. (1866) 5 Wall. 338, 341, 18 L. Ed. 603; In re Joyne (D. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 419, 422; In re Ghazal (D. C. 1908) 163 Fed. 602, 604; Hahn v. U. S. (1878) 14 Ct. Cl. 305.

§ 5795. (Act March 4, 1907, c. 2918, § 1.) Fines, etc., fees, and other receipts to be covered into the Treasury.

From and after the close of the fiscal year nineteen hundred and seven all sums received from fines, penalties, and forfeitures, connected with the customs, and from fees paid into the Treasury by customs officers, and from storage, cartage, drayage, labor, and services, shall be covered into the Treasury as are other miscellaneous receipts. (34 Stat. 1315.)

These were provisions accompanying an appropriation to defray the expenses of collecting the revenue from customs in the sundry civil appropriation act for the fiscal year, 1908, cited above.

All moneys collected or received by collectors of customs, "whether as fees, storage, commissions," etc., were required to be covered into the Treasury by article IV of the Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

(R. S. §§ 3091–3093. Repealed.)

R. S. § 3091, authorized the issuance of a warrant, upon complaint and affidavit of fraud on the revenue, directing the marshal of the district to enter any place and seize books or papers relating to merchandise in respect to which the alleged fraud was committed, and produce them before the judge.

R. S. § 3092, provided that no warrant for such seizure should be issued unless the complaint should set forth the character of the fraud alleged, its nature, the importations in respect to which it was committed, and the papers to be seized, and required the return of such warrant as other warrants are returned.

R. S. § 3093, provided that books and papers so seized should be subject to the order of the judge, who should allow the examination of the same by the collector or any officer authorized by him, and authorized the retention by the judge of such books and papers as he might deem necessary.

The provisions of Act July 18, 1866, § 39, and of Act March 2, 1867, § 2, which were incorporated into these three sections, were repealed by the Anti-Moiety Act of June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 1, 18 Stat. 186. These sections were repealed, therefore, by that act, it having effect as subsequent to the Revised Statutes, and as repealing any portion of the revision inconsistent therewith, by virtue of R. S. § 5601, post, § 15598.

§ 5796. (Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 2.) Moieties to informers and officers abolished.

All provisions of law under which moieties of any fines, penalties, or forfeitures, under the customs-revenue laws, or any share therein, or commission thereon, are paid to informers, or officers of customs, or other officers of the United States, are hereby repealed; and from and after the date of the passage of this act the proceeds of all such fines, penalties, and forfeitures shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States. (18 Stat. 186.)

This was the second section of the Anti-Moiety Act of 1874, cited above.

The first section of this act repealed Act July 18, 1866, § 39, and Act March 3, 1867, § 2, which were incorporated into R. S. §§ 3091–3093. See note to said sections, ante.

Sections 3–8 of this act are set forth post, §§ 5797–5802.

Sections 9–12 of this act related to invoices, or affidavits in the absence thereof, on entry of dutiable goods and proceedings thereon, and penalties, forfeitures, etc., for making fraudulent or false invoices, etc. They were repealed, and other provisions substituted therefor, by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141, which, as amended, were further amended by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § III, C–H, ante, §§ 5520–5524, 5526.

Section 13 of this act, providing for seizure of merchandise as security for fines, is set forth ante, § 5525.

Section 14 of this act provided that the failure, without intent to defraud the revenue, to add to the invoice of merchandise imported the cost of packing, shipping, etc., should not cause a forfeiture of the merchandise, but the collector or appraiser should add such cost and 100 per cent. of the amount so added, which should be collected as duties are collected. It was repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141.

Section 15 of this act is set forth post, § 5803.

Section 16 of this act, providing for special findings, was repealed by the Customs Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, c. 407, § 29, 26 Stat. 141.

Sections 17 and 18 of this act, relating to remission of fines, are set forth post, §§ 10132, 10133.

Section 19 of this act is set forth post, § 5804.

Section 20 of this act, relating to remission of fines, is set forth post, § 10134.

Section 21 of this act, making settlements of duties after one year conclusive, in absence of fraud or protest, is set forth ante, § 5714.

Section 22 of this act, requiring suits to recover a pecuniary penalty or forfeiture under the customs laws to be commenced within three years, is set forth ante, § 1713.

Section 23 of this act, fixing the salaries of designated collectors, naval officers, and surveyors, was superseded by the Plan of Reorganization of the Customs Service pursuant to the provisions of Act Aug. 24, 1912, c. 355, § 1, ante, § 5327.

Sections 24 and 25 of this act, relating to bonded warehouses and cartage of merchandise, are set forth ante, §§ 5683, 5684.

Section 26 of this act, saving existing rights, is omitted as temporary merely, and executed.

Section 26 of this act repealed all acts, etc., inconsistent with the provisions of this act, and provided that nothing therein should affect existing rights of the United States, and also provided for making compensation, in all cases in which prosecutions had been commenced for forfeitures incurred, to persons who would, under former laws, have been entitled to share in the distribution of such forfeitures. It is omitted as temporary merely and executed.

Provisions for the distribution of fines, penalties, and forfeitures were made by R. S. § 3090, ante, § 5794.

Notes of Decisions

Commissions to customs officers.—In suits brought to enforce forfeitures, the clerk is entitled to tax 1 per cent. on the proceeds (section 1383, ante), and the district attorney 2 per cent. (section 1379, ante), notwithstanding the repeal by this section in relation to payments of commissions, etc., to federal officers. U. S. v. One Horse (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 15,932.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Matthews (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 413, 415, 173 U. S. 381, 43 L. Ed. 738.

§ 5797. (Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 3.) Compensation in lieu of moieties.

It shall hereafter be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury, out of any money specifically appropriated by Congress, to make suitable compensation in certain cases under the customs-revenue laws, as hereinafter provided, and not otherwise; and for the purpose of making such compensation for the next fiscal year, the sum of one hundred thousand dollars is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated; and he shall annually report to Congress, in detail, all payments by him for such purpose. (18 Stat. 186.)

See notes to section 2 of this act, ante, § 5796.

Appropriations for compensation in lieu of moieties were made by subsequent appropriation acts. Such an appropriation was made in the sundry civil appropriation act for the fiscal year 1917, by Act July 1, 1916, c. 209, 39 Stat.

§ 5798. (Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 4.) Compensation to officers and others detecting smuggling.

Whenever any officer of the customs or other person shall detect and seize goods, wares, or merchandise, in the act of being smuggled, or which have been smuggled, he shall be entitled to such compensation therefor as the Secretary of the Treasury shall award, not exceeding in amount one-half of the net proceeds, if any, resulting from such seizure, after deducting all duties, costs, and charges connected therewith: Provided, That for the purposes of this act smuggling shall be construed to mean the act, with intent to defraud, of bringing into the United States, or, with like intent, attempting to bring into the United States, dutiable articles without passing the same, or the package containing the same, through the custom house, or submitting them to the officers of the revenue for examination. And whenever any person not an officer of the United States shall furnish to a district attorney, or to any chief officer of the customs, original information concerning any fraud upon the customs-revenue, perpetrated or contemplated, which shall lead to the recovery of any duties withheld, or of any fine, penalty, or forfeiture incurred, whether by importers or their agents, or by any officer or person employed in the customs-service, such compensation may, on such recovery, be paid to such person so furnishing information as shall be just and reasonable, not exceeding in any case the sum of five thousand dollars; which compensation shall be paid, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, out of any money appropriated for that purpose. (18 Stat. 186.)

See notes to section 2 of this act, ante, § 5796.

Notes of Decisions

Smuggling defined.—Invoices describing large quantities of valuable woolen, silk, and velvet goods as cotton goods, and so entering them and attempting to pass them through the customhouse is a case of smuggling. Eager v. U. S. (1897) 32 Ct. Cl. 571.

Smuggling is the actual passage of dutiable goods through the lines of the customhouse without paying or securing the payment of the duties thereon. (1903) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 583.

The application of secret springs to the mechanism of the government scales, by means of which the full weight of a dutiable article was not registered, constituted "smuggling" within the meaning of the statute. (1910) 28 Op. Atty. Gen. 329.

"Chief officers of customs."—The phrase "chief officers of the customs" refers to the collector or acting collector of each collection district, including the surveyor of any district in which there is no collector, and also to the officer legally in charge of any statutorily recognized port, not being the headquarters of a collection district. (1893) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 675.

Neither inspectors nor general agents are "chief officers of the customs," within the meaning of this section. Id.

A deputy collector of customs, with headquarters in the customs district of Vermont, but stationed for service at Montreal, Canada, is a "chief officer of customs" within the meaning of this section. (1902) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 61.

United States officers.—One receiving pay from the government, whose duty it is to disclose any information he may receive, is "an officer of the United States" within the meaning of the act of 1874, and therefore cannot be an informer. U. S. v. Simons (D. C. 1881) 7 Fed. 709.

Where an inspector on duty at a freight depot is advised by another inspector that certain importers are suspected of fraudulent practices, and that a number of packages of their goods are in the depot and that he had better examine them, it is not a case of detection by the officer thus acting upon the information and suggestion of another and in the due performance of his duty. Eager v. U. S. (1897) 32 Ct. Cl. 571.

Informers who are appointed special inspectors without compensation except their interest as informers in the result of seizures are not officers of the United States within this section; neither are persons on the weighers' pay roll as temporary laborers but at the time off duty—that is, receiving no pay. (1894) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 754.

Where the result of an inspector's visit to a station is the examination of a broken package belonging to a suspected firm, and the examination is in the line of the officer's duty, it would be inequitable to permit him to recover a reward. Eager v. U. S. (1900) 35 Ct. Cl. 447.

Informers.—Secretary of the treasury is the sole judge as to whether there is an informer who is entitled to a reward, so that until the secretary acts the informer has merely an expectancy of reward. In re Ghazal (1909) 174 Fed. 809, 98 C. C. A. 517, reversing order (D. C. 1909) 169 Fed. 147.

An informer's expectancy of reward being nonassignable by R. S. § 3477, post, § 6383, prior to allowance by Secretary of Treasury, does not pass to the trustee in bankruptcy, where the informer was adjudicated a bankrupt prior to allowance of the reward. Id.

Sums recovered on forfeited bail bonds are not "fines, penalties, or forfeitures," within this section, and the petitioner is not entitled under its provisions to compensation as an informer. In re Brittingham (D. C. 1880) 5 Fed. 191.

Where a secretary determined as a matter of law that an informer was only entitled to the sum of $5,000 as maximum compensation, and a subsequent secretary transmitted the claim under the Bowman Act, it must be held that the decision of the former was conclusive upon the latter, and that no further action can be taken by the department. Jackson v. U. S. (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 504.

Though the first information of a fraud on the customs was communicated to the government from the individual discovery and knowledge of one of the claimants, yet if the act of information subsequently assumed the form of authoritative communication, in being reduced to writing and put in the name of all, it became the joint act of all, and gave to each an individual inchoate interest in the result. Jayne v. U. S. (1886) 21 Ct. Cl. 311.

Where a claimant was both seizor and informer in the case of goods forfeited for violation of the customs laws, compensation may be allowed him by the Secretary of the Treasury in either capacity; and the fact that the claimant originally presented his claim as seizor does not estop him from subsequently changing its form and making claim as informer. (1884) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 69.

The fact that a person has procured testimony, be it ever so valuable, does not entitle such person to an informer's share, where the fraud has been disclosed by others, and proceedings have been commenced in consequence of such information. U. S. v. Simons (D. C. 1881) 7 Fed. 709.

An informer is one who gives the first information to the government of a violation of law which induces the prosecution, and contributes to the conviction of the offender, or the recovery of a fine, penalty, or forfeiture. Id.

Where an informer procures the arrest and conviction of certain members of a conspiracy, who, upon their examination, confess and implicate other conspirators engaged in the same fraudulent transaction, and these in turn are also arrested, convicted, and fined solely upon such information, the original informer is entitled to share in such fine. Id.

The Secretary of the Treasury can make regulations for the future covering cases where it is desirable that informers should communicate with the collector otherwise than personally. (1893) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 690.

Informers are not entitled to compensation under this section, unless the information is conveyed directly to the chief officer of the customs. Giving information to an inferior officer is not necessarily equivalent thereto. Id.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized under this section, notwithstanding the absence of the certificate provided for by section 5800, post, to award compensation to a Canadian customs official who furnished information which resulted in a forfeiture of certain diamonds for violation of section 5785, ante. (1902) 24 Op. Atty. Gen. 61.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to make an award to Richard Parr for his services in detecting the fraudulent weighing of sugars by the American Sugar Refining Company, and for his seizure of the appliances used in committing this fraud and seizure of the cargo of the ship which was discharging at the time of the detection. No other person is entitled to an award in this matter. (1910) 28 Op. Atty. Gen. 329.

Cited without definite application, Keck v. U. S. (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 254, 263, 172 U. S. 434, 43 L. Ed. 505.

§ 5799. (Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 5.) Compulsory production of books, etc., in civil suits.

In all suits and proceedings other than criminal arising under any of the revenue-laws of the United States, the attorney representing the Government, whenever, in his belief, any business-book, invoice, or paper, belonging to or under the control of the defendant or claimant, will tend to prove any allegation made by the United States, may make a written motion, particularly describing such book, invoice, or paper, and setting forth the allegation which he expects to prove; and thereupon the court in which suit or proceeding is pending may, at its discretion, issue a notice to the defendant or claimant to produce such book, invoice, or paper in court, at a day and hour to be specified in said notice, which, together with a copy of said motion, shall be served formally on the defendant or claimant by the United States marshal by delivering to him a certified copy thereof, or otherwise serving the same as original notices of suit in the same court are served; and if the defendant or claimant shall fail or refuse to produce such book, invoice, or paper in obedience to such notice, the allegations stated in the said motion shall be taken as confessed unless his failure or refusal to produce the same shall be explained to the satisfaction of the court. And if produced, the said attorney shall be permitted, under the direction of the court, to make examination (at which examination the defendant or claimant, or his agent, may be present) of such entries in said book, invoice, or paper as relate to or tend to prove the allegation aforesaid, and may offer the same in evidence on behalf of the United States. But the owner of said books and papers, his agent or attorney, shall have, subject to the order of the court, the custody of them, except pending their examination in court as aforesaid. (18 Stat. 187.)

See notes to section 2 of this act, ante, § 5796.

Notes of Decisions

Constitutionality of section.—This section is unconstitutional as applied to suits for penalties, or to establish the forfeiture of a party's goods, as being repugnant to the fourth and fifth amendments of the constitution. Boyd v. U. S. (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 524, 527, 116 U. S. 616, 29 L. Ed. 746.

Operation of section.—This section applies to cases arising under the internal revenue laws. U. S. v. Distillery No. 28 (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 14,966.

Effect of failure to produce books.—The penalty for not complying with an order to produce books and papers is that the allegations in the motion shall be taken as confessed. U. S. v. Distillery No. 28 (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 14,966.

Examination of papers.—The mode of separating and examining papers determined. In re Jordan (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 7,512.

Decisions under prior statutes.—See U. S. v. Twenty-Eight Packages of Pins (D. C. 1832, 1833) Fed. Cas. No. 16,-561; In re Lippman (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 8,382; U. S. v. Three Tons of Coal (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 16,-515.

Cited without definite application, Counselman v. Hitchcock (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 195, 205, 142 U. S. 547, 35 L. Ed. 1110; Fairbank v. U. S. (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 648, 655, 181 U. S. 283, 45 L. Ed. 862; Hale v. Henkel (1906) 26 Sup. Ct. 370, 377, 201 U. S. 43, 50 L. Ed. 652; In re Chin K. Shue (D. C. 1912) 149 Fed. 282.

§ 5800. (Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 6.) Compensation to informers.

No payment shall be made to any person furnishing information in any case wherein judicial proceedings shall have been instituted, unless his claim to compensation shall have been established to the satisfaction of the court or judge having cognizance of such proceedings, and the value of his services duly certified by said court or judge for the information of the Secretary of the Treasury; but no certificate of the value of such services shall be conclusive of the amount thereof. And when any fine, penalty, or forfeiture shall be collected without judicial proceedings, the Secretary of the Treasury shall, before directing payment to any person claiming such compensation, require satisfactory proof that such person is justly entitled thereto. (18 Stat. 187.)

See notes to section 2 of this act, ante, § 5796.

Notes of Decisions

Constitutionality of section.—This section is an attempt to confer on the judiciary power not judicial, which congress is without power to confer. Ex parte Gans (D. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 471; Ex parte Riebeling (D. C. 1895) 70 Fed. 310.

This section seeks to impose upon the court duties which are administrative, and not judicial, and is unconstitutional. U. S. v. Queen (D. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 269.

Operation of section.—This section has no application to the act of June 16, 1880. In re Brittingham (D. C. 1880) 5 Fed. 191, 192.

This section does not apply to claims for information furnished in cases in which proceedings were instituted before the passage of the act, and hence the court of claims has jurisdiction of a claim for furnishing such information, though the United States recovered judgment for the penalty and forfeiture incurred, and the court rendering the judgment failed to certify to the value of the informer's services, where such judgment was recovered prior to the passage of said act. In re Jayne (D. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 419.

Certificate of judge.—Where, after a final decree has been made in a smuggling case, and executed by paying a fine imposed into the United States treasury, a petition was filed in the court which had made the decree, by a party claiming to be the original informer in said case, praying for a certificate from the court as to the value of his services, for the information of the secretary of the treasury, the court had no jurisdiction. Ex parte Gans (D. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 471.

The certificate of a judge, contemplated by this section, is not required in the case of an officer making the discovery and seizure. Eager v. U. S. (1897) 32 Ct. Cl. 571.

Cited without definite application, In re Ghazal (D. C. 1909) 169 Fed. 147, reversed (1909) 174 Fed. 809, 98 C. C. A. 517.

§ 5801. (Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 7.) Officers prohibited from receiving informer's compensation; penalty.

Except in cases of smuggling as aforesaid, it shall not be lawful for any officer of the United States, under any pretense whatever, directly or indirectly, to receive, accept, or contract for any portion of the money which may, under any of the provisions of this or any other act, accrue to any such person furnishing information; and any such officer who shall so receive, accept, or contract for any portion of the money that may accrue as aforesaid shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, in the discretion of the court, and shall not be thereafter eligible to any office of honor, trust, or emolument. And any such person so furnishing information as aforesaid, who shall pay to any such officer of the United States, or to any person for his use, directly or indirectly, any portion of said money, or any other valuable thing, on account of or because of such money, shall have a right of action against such officer or other person, and his legal representatives, to recover back the same, or the value thereof. (18 Stat. 187.)

See notes to section 2 of this act, ante, § 5796.

Provisions prescribing a penalty for customs officers receiving any other or greater fee, compensation, or reward than is allowed by law were made by R. S. § 2636, ante, § 5377.

Notes of Decisions

Operation of section.—The anti-moiety act debars treasury officials from receiving moieties under section 4233, R. S., section 7942, post. (1893) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 592.

§ 5802. (Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 8.) Officers, informers, and defendants may be witnesses.

No officer, or other person entitled to or claiming compensation under any provision of this act, shall be thereby disqualified from becoming a witness in any action, suit, or proceeding for the recovery, mitigation, or remission thereof, but shall be subject to examination and cross-examination in like manner with other witnesses, without being thereby deprived of any right, title, share, or interest in any fine, penalty, or forfeiture to which such examination may relate; and in every such case the defendant or defendants may appear and testify and be examined and cross-examined in like manner. (18 Stat. 188.)

See notes to section 2 of this act, ante, § 5796.

§ 5803. (Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 15.) Reports of violations of customs laws; district attorneys to prosecute.

It shall be the duty of any officer or person employed in the customs-revenue service of the United States, upon detection of any violation of the customs-laws, forthwith to make complaint thereof to the collector of the district, whose duty it shall be promptly to report the same to the district attorney of the district in which such frauds shall be committed. Immediately upon the receipt of such complaint, if, in his judgment, it can be sustained, it shall be the duty of such district attorney to cause investigation into the facts to be made before a United States commissioner having jurisdiction thereof, and to initiate proper proceedings to recover the fines and penalties in the premises, and to prosecute the same with the utmost diligence to final judgment. (18 Stat. 189.)

See notes to section 2 of this act, ante, § 5796.

The collectors were required to report to the district attorneys violations of the revenue laws, by R. S. § 3084, ante, § 5787.

Notes of Decisions

Operation of section.—This section modifies R. S. § 838, ante, § 1297, so as to require the district attorney to commence proceedings in all cases except only when a cause in his judgment cannot be sustained. (1875) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 523.

Actions for duties, see § 5710, ante.

§ 5804. (Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 19.) Compromise of claims for fines, etc.

It shall not be lawful for any officer or officers of the United States to compromise or abate any claim of the United States arising under the customs laws, for any fine, penalty, or forfeiture incurred by a violation thereof; and any officer or person who shall so compromise or abate any such claim, or attempt to make such compromise or abatement, or in any manner relieve or attempt to relieve from such fine, penalty, or forfeiture, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and, on conviction thereof, shall suffer imprisonment not exceeding ten years, and be fined not exceeding ten thousand dollars: Provided, however, That the Secretary of the Treasury shall have power to remit any fines, penalties, or forfeitures, or to compromise the same, in accordance with existing law. (18 Stat. 190.)

See notes to section 2 of this act, ante, § 5796.

This section did not affect the authority of courts, judges, or district attorneys to discontinue proceedings to obtain testimony of accomplices in crime, by Act Jan. 22, 1875, c. 22, set forth post, § 5805.

Notes of Decisions

Operation of section.—The prohibition contained in this section against compromising or abating any claim of the United States for any fine, penalty, or forfeiture incurred does not apply to such arrangements as are ordinarily made by district attorneys for obtaining the testimony of accomplices in criminal cases, whereby an assurance is given to the accomplice, who is to be used as a witness, of exemption from prosecution in case he acts in good faith and makes a full disclosure. (1874) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 511.

Although the case may belong to that class of cases for relief in which special provisions are found in this section, yet this does not prevent an application for compromise thereof being made under the more general provision in section 6375, post. (1879) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 259.

Acceptance of offer of compromise.—While a suit for penalties was pending against an importer, he offered to pay to the government $55,000 in settlement of all claims and causes of action, which offer was accepted by the secretary of the treasury. Soon afterwards the importer died, before either he had paid the money or the government had tendered a release. Held, that the acceptance conformed to the offer, and that as no tender of a release had been made by the government before the death of the importer, and the occasion for a release had passed, the contract was not binding on the executors. U. S. v. Richardson (C. C. (1882) 9 Fed. 804.

§ 5805. (Act Jan. 22, 1875, c. 22.) Dismissal of proceedings.

Nothing in the nineteenth section of the act entitled "An act to amend the customs-revenue laws, and to repeal moieties," approved June twenty-second, eighteen hundred and seventy-four, shall be construed to affect any authority, power, or right which might theretofore have been lawfully exercised by any court, judge, or district attorney of the United States to obtain the testimony of an accomplice in any crime against, or fraud upon the customs-revenue laws, on any trial or proceeding for a fine, penalty, or forfeiture under said laws, by a discontinuance or dismissal, or by an engagement to discontinue or dismiss any proceedings against such accomplice. (18 Stat. 303.)

This was a provision of the declaratory act, cited above.

Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 19, mentioned in this act, is set forth ante, § 5804.

§ 5806. (R. S. § 3094.) No exemption from taking other oaths.

Nothing contained in this Title shall be construed to exempt the masters or owners of vessels from making and subscribing any oaths required by any laws of the United States not immediately relating to the collection of the duties on the importation of merchandise into the United States.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 110, 1 Stat. 703.

Provisions for the forfeiture of property owned by trusts engaged in importing the same into this country were made by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, §§ 73-76, post, §§ 8831-8834.

Violations of provisions for marking, stamping, branding or labeling of imported articles or packages, were punishable by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, F, subsec. 2, ante, § 5298.

The importation of obscene books, etc., was punishable by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, G, ante, §§ 5299-5301.

Violations of provisions relating to importation of cattle were punishable by the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, H, ante, §§ 5302, 5303.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Provisions Applying to Commerce with Contiguous Countries

Sec.
5807. Manner of importation.
5808. Vessels and vehicles.
5809. Entry on the northern and northwestern frontiers.
5810. Delivery of manifests.
5811. Penalty for non-delivery of manifest.
5812. Inspection of merchandise.
5813. Penalty for obstructing inspection.
5814. Sealing cars and vessels.
5815. Regulations for sealing.
5816. Penalty for not proceeding to port of destination, etc.
5817. Penalty for opening sealed packages.
5818. Forfeiture of vessel, etc.
5819. Search, etc., of buildings on boundary-line.
5820. Penalty for receiving, etc., into such building.
5821. Report by masters of foreign vessels.
5822. Forfeiture for transportation by foreign vessels.
5823. Report of sea-stores.
5824. Duty on excess of stores.
5825. Duty on saloon stores.
5826. Duty on equipments for vessels.
5827. Remission for necessary repairs.
5828. Manifests of vessels in the coasting trade.
5829. Entry for goods taken or delivered at intermediate ports.
5830. Departure for place where there is no custom-house.
5831. Report and unlading of cargoes.
5832. Time for delivery of merchandise taken from one port to another; regulations for coasting-trade.
5833. Landing permit for vessel from foreign port.
5834. Departure from place where there is no custom-house.
5835. Steam-tugs.
5836. Forms.
5837. Penalty for neglect.
5838. Registered vessels may touch at foreign ports.
5839. No duty by reason of touching at foreign port.
5840. Lake Champlain.
5841. Entry of foreign vessels from British North American Provinces.

§ 5807. (R. S. § 3095, as amended, Act April 27, 1904, c. 1625, § 1.) Manner of importation.

Except in the districts on the northern, northwestern, and western boundaries of the United States, adjoining to the Dominion of Canada or into the districts adjacent to Mexico, no merchandise of foreign growth or manufacture subject to the payment of duties shall be brought into the United States from any foreign port in any other manner than by sea, nor in any vessel of less than thirty net register tons, or landed or unladen at any other port than is directed by law, under the penalty of seizure and forfeiture of all such vessels and of the merchandise imported therein, laden or unladen in any other manner.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 92, 1 Stat. 697. Act April 27, 1904, c. 1625, § 1. 33 Stat. 362.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by omitting the words "hereinbefore described," before the word "on" in the first line, by changing the words "thirty tons burden, agreeably to the admeasurement directed for ascertaining the tonnage of vessels," to read "thirty net register tons," and by changing the words "this title" to read "law," as set forth here, by Act April 27, 1904, c. 1625, § 1, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

Districts to which applicable.—The exception specified in this section, prohibiting the introduction of foreign products into the United States in vessels of less than 30 tons burden, held not to apply to Brazos de Santiago nor to the district in which it is situated, which runs up the Rio Grande on the boundary line between the United States and Mexico, and adjacent to Mexico; and the prohibition of the statutes applies to all such vessels arriving by sea at the port of Brazos de Santiago from any foreign port, including the port of Tampico, Mexico. This section must be read in connection with section 5809, post. U. S. v. The Theophile (D. C. 1882) 11 Fed. 696.

Effect of forfeiture.—Property seized by a collector in violation of this section and reported for libel and forfeiture under section 5789, ante, is in the custody of the collector as keeper, and may be delivered to the claimant on payment of duties under section 1564, ante. The G. G. King (D. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 921, 933.

When goods are imported into the United States in violation of the customs laws, the forfeiture of the goods takes place at the time the offense is committed, and a subsequent purchaser is not protected in his title, although he purchased the property without notice of the fact that it had been unlawfully imported. Kneeland v. Willard (1871) 59 Me. 445.

Evidence.—The defense that the party has been prevented by inevitable accident, necessity, or distress from complying with the requisitions of this section and sections 5563–5565, ante, is not admissible under a plea which simply puts in issue a denial of the facts constituting a forfeiture thereunder. U. S. v. Hayward (C. C. 1815) Fed. Cas. No. 15,336.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. One Gasoline Launch (1904) 133 Fed. 42, 66 C. C. A. 148 (dissenting opinion); Same v. Fifty Waltham Watch Movements (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 291, 294.

§ 5808. (R. S. § 3096.) Vessels and vehicles.

All persons may import any merchandise of which the importation shall not be entirely prohibited, into the districts which are or may be established on the northern and northwestern boundaries of the United States, in vessels or boats of any burden, and in rafts or carriages of any kind or nature whatsoever.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 105, 1 Stat. 702.

Cited without definite application. U. S. v. One Gasoline Launch (1904) 133 Fed. 42, 66 C. C. A. 148 (dissenting opinion).

§ 5809. (R. S. § 3097.) Entry on the northern and northwestern frontiers.

All vessels, boats, rafts, and carriages, of what kind soever, arriving in such districts, on the northern and northwestern frontiers, containing merchandise subject to duties, on being imported into any port of the United States, shall be reported to the collector, or other chief officer of the customs at the port of entry in the district into which it shall be so imported; and such merchandise shall be accompanied with like manifests, and like entries shall be made, by the persons having charge of any such vessels, boats, rafts, and carriages, and by the owners or consignees of the merchandise laden on board the same; and the powers and duties of the officers of the customs shall be exercised and discharged in the districts last mentioned, in like manner as is prescribed in respect to merchandise imported in vessels from the sea; and generally, all such importations shall be subject to like regulations, penalties, and forfeitures as in other districts, except as is hereinafter specially provided.

Act March 2, 1799, c. 22, § 106, 1 Stat. 702.

Notes of Decisions

Construction in general.—This section must be read in connection with section 5807, ante. U. S. v. The Sloop Theophile (D. C. 1882) 11 Fed. 696.

Fraudulent invoice.—In a proceeding to forfeit 11 stallions and a jack, the information charged that certain Canadians were engaged in importing animals from Canada for sale; that they were not engaged in breeding or raising animals; and that they caused certain citizens of Indiana to make their affidavit to the collector of customs that they were the owners of the animals, and had imported them expressly for breeding purposes, when in fact the animals were the property of the Canadians, who imported them for sale and profit. Held, that the fact that the animals were fit for breeding purposes did not entitle the importers to exemption from duties, under the act of March 3, 1883, exempting from duty animals specially imported for breeding purposes, if the animals were in fact imported for sale and that the information sufficiently charged an offense against the customs laws. U. S. v. Eleven Horses (C. C. 1887) 30 Fed. 916.

An allegation, in an information of forfeiture, that the master neither did nor would deliver a true manifest of merchandise, but, on the contrary, delivered a false and fraudulent invoice, with a view to evade the revenue laws, does not present a case within Act 1821, but within Act 1799, § 106. U. S v. The Margaret Yates (D. C. 1849) Fed. Cas. No. 15,720.

Gasoline launch.—This section, held to apply to an open clinker-built gasoline launch, about 18½ feet long. U. S v. One Gasoline Launch (1904) 133 Fed. 42, 43, 66 C. C. A. 148.

§ 5810. (R. S. § 3098.) Delivery of manifests.

The master of any vessel, except registered vessels, and every person having charge of any boat, canoe, or raft, and the conductor or driver of any carriage or sleigh, and every other person, coming from any foreign territory adjacent to the United States into the United States, with merchandise subject to duty, shall deliver, immediately on his arrival within the United States, a manifest of the cargo or loading of such vessel, boat, canoe, raft, carriage, or sleigh, or of the merchandise so brought from such foreign territory, at the office of any collector or deputy collector which shall be nearest to the boundary-line, or nearest to the road or waters by which such merchandise is brought; and every such manifest shall be verified by the oath of such person delivering the same; which oath shall be taken before such collector or deputy collector; and such oath shall state that such manifest contains a full, just, and true account of the kinds, quantities, and values of all the merchandise so brought from such foreign territory.

Act March 2, 1821, c. 14, § 1, 3 Stat. 616. Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 9, 14 Stat. 180.

Notes of Decisions

Horses.—A horse brought in from adjacent foreign territory as a mere instrument of conveyance in the prosecution of a temporary journey is not within this section, and no manifest thereof is necessary. U. S. v. One Sorrel Horse (D. C. 1847) Fed. Cas. No. 15,953.

The statute applies to a horse and stallion borrowed temporarily from a neighbor across the Mexican line, the one for herding stock and the other for breeding purposes. U. S. v. One Sorrel Stallion and One Roan Horse (D. C. 1892) 51 Fed. 877.

Delivery of manifest.—The duty of delivering a manifest of imported merchandise devolves upon him who has charge of it, whether he be the master or not. Steinham v. U. S. (C. C.) Fed. Cas. No. 13,355.

It is not essential that such person should be actually on board the vessel when it enters the waters of the United States. Id.

An indictment for smuggling goods from Canada into the United States without an invoice cannot be maintained under Act Aug. 30, 1842, § 19 (section 5548, ante), as such importations are governed by this act which requires only the delivery to the collector of the manifest of the goods imported from adjacent territory. U. S. v. Nolton (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 15,897.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Claflin (1878) 97 U. S. 546, 24 L. Ed. 1082; Same v. One Gasoline Launch (1904) 133 Fed. 42, 66 C. C. A. 148 (dissenting opinion); Rogers v. U. S. (1910) 180 Fed. 54, 59, 103 C. C. A. 408, 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 264; U. S. v. A Lot of Jewelry, etc. (D. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 684, 687.

§ 5811. (R. S. § 3099.) Penalty for non-delivery of manifest.

If the master, or other person having charge of any vessel, boat, canoe, or raft, or the conductor or driver of any carriage or sleigh, or other person bringing such merchandise, shall neglect or refuse to deliver the manifest required by the preceding section, or pass by or avoid such office, the merchandise subject to duty, and so imported, shall be forfeited to the United States, together with the vessel, boat, canoe, or raft, the tackle, apparel, and furniture of the same, or the carriage or sleigh, and harness and cattle drawing the same, or the horses with their saddles and bridles, as the case may be; and such master, conductor, or other importer shall be subject to a penalty of four times the value of the merchandise so imported.

Act March 2, 1821, c. 14, § 1, 3 Stat. 616. Act March 3, 1823, c. 58, § 1, 3 Stat. 781. Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 9, 14 Stat. 180.

Notes of Decisions

Borrowed horses.—The statute applies to a horse and stallion borrowed temporarily from a neighbor across the Mexican line, the one for herding stock and the other for breeding purposes. U. S. v. One Sorrel Stallion and One Roan Horse (D. C. 1892) 51 Fed. 877.

Forfeiture.—A forfeiture is incurred if no manifest is presented, immediately on the arrival of the vessel. One Hundred and Thirty-Four Thousand Nine Hundred and One Feet of Pine Lumber (C. C. 1858) Fed. Cas. No. 10,523.

Innocence of an intent to defraud the revenue will not prevent a forfeiture where a violation of the statute is clearly proven. The Fame (D. C. 1858) Fed. Cas. No. 4,633.

The innocent buyer of smuggled merchandise is under no liability to enter it for the payment of duty. Such payment would not relieve a forfeiture already incurred, nor would failure to pay revive it when once barred. U. S. v. One Dark Bay Horse (D. C. 1904) 130 Fed. 240.

Cited without definite application, Stockwell v. U. S. (1871) 13 Wall. 531, 542, 20 L. Ed. 491; U. S. v. Claflin (1878) 97 U. S. 546, 548, 24 L. Ed. 1082; Rogers v. U. S. (1910) 180 Fed. 54, 59, 103 C. C. A. 408, 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 264; U. S. v. A Lot of Jewelry, etc. (D. C. 1894) 59 Fed. 684, 687.

§ 5812. (R. S. § 3100, as amended, Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, § 1, and Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Inspection of merchandise.

All merchandise, and all baggage and effects of passengers, and all other articles imported into the United States from any contiguous foreign country, except as hereafter provided, as well as the vessels, cars, and other vehicles and envelopes in which the same shall be imported, shall be unladen in the presence of, and be inspected by, an inspector or other officer of the customs, at the first port of entry or custom-house in the United States where the same shall arrive; and to enable the proper officer thoroughly to discharge this duty, he may require the owner or his agent, or other person, having charge or possession of any trunk, traveling-bag, or sack, valise, or other envelope, or of any closed vessel, car, or other vehicle, to open the same, or to deliver to him the proper key.

Act June 27, 1864, c. 164, § 1, 13 Stat. 197. Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, 18 Stat. 319. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 248.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by transposing certain lines therein, to correct a typographical error in printing the section in the first edition of the Revised Statutes, and to make it read as set forth here, by Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, § 1, and by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

Cattle.—Cattle brought into the United States without complying with this section, though not dutiable, held imported contrary to law, within section 5785, ante, as to concealing merchandise so imported. Estes v. U. S. (1915) 227 Fed. 818, 142 C. C. A. 342.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Fifty Waltham Watch Movements (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 291.

§ 5813. (R. S. § 3101.) Penalty for obstructing inspection.

If any owner, agent, or other person shall refuse or neglect to comply with his demands, allowed by the preceding section, the officer shall retain such trunk, traveling-bag, or sack, valise, or whatsoever it may be, and open the same, and, as soon thereafter as may be practicable, examine the contents; and if any article subject to the payment of duty shall be found therein, the whole contents, together with the envelope, shall be forfeited to the United States, and disposed of as the law provides in other similar cases. If any such dutiable merchandise or article shall be found in any such vessel, car, or other vehicle, the owner, agent, or other person in charge of which shall have refused to open the same or deliver the key as herein provided, the same, together with the vessel, car, or other vehicle, shall be forfeited to the United States, and shall be held by such officer, to be disposed of as the law provides in other similar cases of forfeiture.

Act June 27, 1864, c. 164, § 1, 13 Stat. 197.

Provisions restricting the seizure and forfeiture of vessels by force of the provisions of this Title were made by Act Feb. 8, 1881, c. 34, ante, § 5766.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Fifty Waltham Watch Movements (D. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 291.

§ 5814. (R. S. § 3102.) Sealing cars and vessels.

To avoid the inspection at the first port of arrival, the owner, agent, master, or conductor of any such vessel, car, or other vehicle, or owner, agent, or other person having charge of any such merchandise, baggage, effects, or other articles, may apply to any officer of the United States duly authorized to act in the premises, to seal or close the same, under and according to the regulations hereinafter authorized, previous to their importation into the United States; which officer shall seal or close the same accordingly; whereupon the same may proceed to their port of destination without further inspection. Every such vessel, car, or other vehicle, shall proceed, without unnecessary delay, to the port of its destination, as named in the manifest of its cargo, freight, or contents, and be there inspected. Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to exempt such vessel, car, or vehicle, or its contents, from such examination as may be necessary and proper to prevent frauds upon the revenue and violations of this Title.

Act June 27, 1864, c. 164, § 2, 13 Stat. 197.

Notes of Decisions

Continuous passage of sealed cars.—The provision of this section as to continuous passage of goods imported in sealed cars, applies as well to merchandise imported into a contiguous country and then imported into the United States as to merchandise produced in that foreign country and then imported into the United States. (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 26.

Examination of cars sealed.—The Secretary of the Treasury may have an examination made of cars sealed in a foreign country for passage through this country. (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 26.

Powers of secretary of the treasury in general.—See notes under § 5815, post.

Power to prohibit transfer of goods.—The Secretary of the Treasury has no power to prohibit the transfer of goods through the United States destined to Mexico. (1894) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 725.

Sealing cars.—This and the following section probably contemplated that the sealing of cars should be performed by consular officers. The Secretary of the Treasury had no authority by law, and therefore was not required, to appoint new officers especially charged with the duty. (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 26.

Treaty as affecting inspection.—There was no obligation by force of the treaty of Washington which prevented a modification of the regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury authorized by articles 29 and 30 thereof, in so far as they affected goods and merchandise imported into this country for our consumption. That treaty had no reference whatever to the manner of the inspection and examination of such goods and merchandise in the country of their destination. (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 26.

Certificate as to domestic production of goods.—In the case of merchandise of domestic production shipped at ports on the Great Lakes to other ports in the United States, by routes through Canadian territory, the issuance of a certificate by the collector of customs showing that the merchandise so shipped is of domestic production is not authorized by law. (1885) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 261.

§ 5815. (R. S. § 3103.) Regulations for sealing.

The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and required to make such regulations, and from time to time so to change the same as to him shall seem necessary and proper, for sealing such vessels, cars, and other vehicles, when practicable, and for sealing, marking, and identifying such merchandise, baggage, effects, trunks, traveling-bags, or sacks, valises, and other envelopes and articles; and also in regard to invoices, manifests, and other pertinent papers, and their authentication.

Act June 27, 1864, c. 164, § 3, 13 Stat. 197.

Notes of Decisions

Entry of goods sealed.—While the Secretary of the Treasury cannot require a formal entry of goods sealed in a foreign country at a frontier port, he is not concluded by the seals from requiring an examination of the contents of the cars so secured on arrival at the frontier ports, and he may direct such an examination, notwithstanding the seals, as may seem to him best adapted to prevent fraud. (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 26.

Invoices for cars sealed.—The Secretary of the Treasury had authority to impose similar regulations as to invoices for cars sealed in a contiguous foreign country as were imposed by Immediate-Transportation Act 1880 (chapter 7A, ante), and an entry such as was required under the immediate-transportation act might be required by regulation under Anti-Smuggling Act (18 Stat. 186). (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 86.

Special inspectors.—This and the preceding section probably contemplated that the sealing of cars should be performed by consular officers. The Secretary of the Treasury had no authority by law, and therefore was not required to appoint new officers especially charged with the duty. (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 26.

Treaty regulations.—The Secretary of the Treasury may modify the regulations authorized by articles 20 and 30 of the treaty of Washington with regard to sealed cars. (1891) 20 Op. Atty. Gen. 26.

§ 5816. (R. S. § 3104.) Penalty for not proceeding to port of destination, etc.

If the owner, master, or person in charge of any vessel, car, or other vehicle so sealed, shall not proceed to the port or place of destination thereof named in the manifest of its cargo, freight, or contents, and deliver such vessel, car, or vehicle to the proper officer of the customs, or shall dispose of the same by sale or otherwise, or shall unload the same, or any part thereof, at any other than such port, or place, or shall sell or dispose of the contents of such vessel, car, or other vehicle, or any part thereof, before such delivery, he shall be deemed guilty of felony, and on conviction thereof, before any court of competent jurisdiction, pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or shall be imprisoned for a term not exceeding five years, or both, at the discretion of the court; and such vessel, car, or other vehicle, with its contents, shall be forfeited to the United States, and may be seized wherever found within the United States, and disposed of and sold as in other cases of forfeiture. Nothing in this section, however, shall be construed to prevent sales of cargo, in whole or in part, prior to arrival, to be delivered as per manifest, and after due inspection.

Act June 27, 1864, c. 164, § 4, 13 Stat. 197.

Provisions restricting the seizure and forfeiture of vessels by force of the provisions of this title were made by Act Feb. 8, 1881, c. 34, ante, § 5766.

§ 5817. (R. S. § 3105, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Penalty for opening sealed packages.

If any unauthorized person or persons shall willfully break, cut, pick, open, or remove any wire, seal, lead, lock, or other fastening or mark attached to any vessel, car, or other vehicle, crate, box, bag, bale, basket, barrel, bundle, cask, trunk, package, or parcel, or anything whatsoever, under and by virtue of this Title and regulations authorized by it, or any other law, or shall affix or attach, or any way willfully aid, assist, or encourage the affixing or attaching, by wire or otherwise, to any vessel, car, or other vehicle, or to any crate, box, bale, barrel, bag, basket, bundle, cask, package, parcel, article, or thing of any kind, any seal, lead, metal, or anything purporting to be a seal authorized by law, such person or persons shall be deemed guilty of felony, and shall be imprisoned for a term not exceeding five years, or shall pay a fine of not exceeding one thousand dollars, or both, at the discretion of the court.

Act June 27, 1864, c. 164, § 5, 13 Stat. 198. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 248.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out, after the word "affixing," the word "in," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

Removal of seal.—The removal of an official seal in ignorance of its character, and in the honest execution of a supposed duty, will not render the person liable. U. S. v. Three Railroad Cars (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 16,513.

§ 5818. (R. S. § 3106.) Forfeiture of vessel, etc.

Each vessel, car, or other vehicle, crate, box, bag, basket, barrel, bundle, cask, trunk, package, parcel, or other thing, with the cargo, or contents thereof, from which the wire, seal, lead, lock, or other fastening or mark shall have been broken, cut, picked, opened, or removed by any such unauthorized person or persons, or to which such seal, or other thing purporting to be a seal, has been wrongfully attached, shall be forfeited.

Act June 27, 1864, c. 164, § 5, 13 Stat. 198.

Provisions restricting the seizure and forfeiture of vessels by force of the provisions of this Title were made by Act Feb. 8, 1881, c. 34, ante, § 5766.

§ 5819. (R. S. § 3107.) Search, etc., of buildings on boundary-line.

If any store, warehouse, or other building shall be upon or near the boundary-line between the United States and any foreign country, and there is reason to believe that dutiable merchandise is deposited or has been placed therein or carried through or into the same without payment of duties, and in violation of law, and the collector, deputy collector, naval officer, or surveyor of customs, shall make oath before any magistrate competent to administer the same, that he has reason to believe, and does believe, that such offense has been therein committed, such officer shall have the right to search such building and the premises belonging thereto; and if any such merchandise shall be found therein, the same, together with such building, shall be seized, forfeited, and disposed of according to law, and the building shall be forthwith taken down or removed.

Act Feb. 28, 1865, c. 67, § 3, 13 Stat. 442.

§ 5820. (R. S. § 3108.) Penalty for receiving, etc., into such building.

Any person who shall have received or deposited in such building upon the boundary-line between the United States and any foreign country, or carried through the same, any merchandise, or shall have aided therein, in violation of law, shall be punishable by a fine of not more than ten thousand dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than two years, or by both.

Act Feb. 28, 1865, c. 67, § 3, 13 Stat. 442.

§ 5821. (R. S. § 3109, as amended, Act Feb. 17, 1898, c. 26, § 4.) Report by masters of foreign vessels.

The master of any foreign vessel, laden or in ballast, arriving, whether by sea or otherwise, in the waters of the United States from any foreign territory adjacent to the northern, northeastern, or northwestern frontiers of the United States, shall report at the office of any collector or deputy collector of the customs, which shall be nearest to the point at which such vessel may enter such waters; and such vessel shall not transfer her cargo or passengers to another vessel or proceed farther inland, either to unlade or take in cargo, without a special permit from such collector, or deputy collector, issued under and in accordance with such general or special regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may, in his discretion, from time to time prescribe. This section shall also apply to trade with or through Alaska. For any violation of this section such vessel shall be seized and forfeited.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 41, 14 Stat. 188. Act Feb. 17, 1898, c. 26, § 4, 30 Stat. 248.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting, after the words "laden or in ballast, arriving," the words "whether by sea or otherwise," and by inserting, after the words "and such vessel shall not," the words "transfer her cargo or passengers to another vessel or," and by inserting, after the words "from time to time prescribe," the words "This section shall also apply to trade with or through Alaska," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 17, 1898, c. 26, § 4, cited above.

Provisions restricting the seizure and forfeiture of vessels by force of the provisions of this Title were made by Act Feb. 8, 1881, c. 34, ante, § 5766.

Notes of Decisions

Gasoline launch.—An "open clinker-built gasoline launch, about 18½ feet," is not required to report by this section which applies only to foreign vessels "laden or in ballast." U. S. v. One Gasoline Launch (1904) 133 Fed. 42, 43, 66 C. C. A. 148.

Intent to proceed inland.—This section is not violated by merely bringing a foreign vessel, without such permit, within the limits of the United States casually, and without intent to unlade or take on cargo there, and without, in fact, proceeding further inland. The Coquitlam (1896) 77 Fed. 744, 23 C. C. A. 438, reversing decree (D. C. 1893) 57 Fed. 706.

§ 5822. (R. S. § 3110.) Forfeiture for transportation by foreign vessels.

If any merchandise shall, at any port in the United States on the northern, northeastern, or northwestern frontiers thereof, be laden upon any vessel belonging wholly or in part to a subject of a foreign country, and shall be taken thence to a foreign port to be reladen and reshipped to any other port in the United States on such frontiers, either by the same or any other vessel, foreign or American, with intent to evade the provisions relating to the transportation of merchandise from one port of the United States to another port of the United States, in a vessel belonging wholly or in part to a subject of any foreign power, the merchandise shall, on its arrival at such last-named port, be seized and forfeited to the United States, and the vessel shall pay a tonnage-duty of fifty cents per ton on her admeasurement.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 20, 14 Stat. 182.

Notes of Decisions

Construction in general.—This section expresses the legislative intention on the subject of the evasion of R. S. § 4347 (see post, after section 8095) and furnishes conclusive proof that the subject was brought to the attention of Congress, and, its will having been expressed by this enactment, transportation by the method specified between all other domestic ports is by implication excluded from the prohibition. U. S. v. Two Hundred and Fifty Kegs of Nails (1894) 61 Fed. 410, 412, 9 C. C. A. 558; Id. (D. C. 1892) 52 Fed. 231, 232.

§ 5823. (R. S. § 3111.) Report of sea-stores.

If any vessel enrolled or licensed to engage in the foreign and coasting trade on the northern, northeastern, and northwestern frontiers of the United States shall touch at any port in the adjacent British provinces, and the master of such vessel shall purchase any merchandise for the use of the vessel, the master of the vessel shall report the same, with cost and quantity thereof, to the collector or other officer of the customs at the first port in the United States at which he shall next arrive, designating them as "sea-stores;" and in the oath to be taken by such master of such vessel, on making such report, he shall declare that the articles so specified or designated "sea-stores" are truly intended for the use exclusively of the vessel, and are not intended for sale, transfer, or private use. If any other or greater quantity of dutiable articles shall be found on board such vessel than are specified in such report or entry of such articles, or any part thereof shall be landed without a permit from a collector or other officer of the customs, such articles, together with the vessel, her apparel, tackle, and furniture, shall be forfeited.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 22, 14 Stat. 183. Act Feb. 10, 1871, c. 45, 16 Stat. 408.

Provisions restricting the seizure and forfeiture of vessels by force of the provisions of this Title were made by Act Feb. 8, 1881, c. 34, ante, § 5766.

Notes of Decisions

"Merchandise."—The word "merchandise" covers any tangible personal property. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 92.

Sea stores.—Ship's stores, and seamen's common stock, are not subject to entry at the custom house, under the laws of Virginia, and the omission to enter them will not render the vessel liable to forfeiture. Douglass v. Roan (Va. 1790) 4 Call. 353.

§ 5824. (R. S. § 3112.) Duty on excess of stores.

If, upon examination and inspection by the collector or other officer of the customs, such articles are not deemed excessive in quantity for the use of the vessel, until an American port may be reached by such vessel, where such sea-stores can be obtained, such articles shall be declared free of duty; but if it shall be found that the quantity or quantities of such articles, or any part thereof so reported, are excessive, it shall be lawful for the collector or other officer of the customs to estimate the amount of duty on such excess, which shall be forthwith paid by the master of the vessel, on penalty of paying a sum of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than four times the value of such excess, or such master shall be punishable by imprisonment for not less than three months, and not more than two years.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 22, 14 Stat. 183. Act Feb. 10, 1871, c. 45, 16 Stat. 408.

§ 5825. (R. S. § 3113.) Duty on saloon stores.

Articles purchased for the use of or for sale on board any such vessel, as saloon stores or supplies, shall be deemed merchandise, and shall be liable, when purchased at a foreign port, to entry and the payment of the duties found to be due thereon, at the first port of arrival of such vessel in the United States; and for a failure on the part of the saloon-keeper or person purchasing or owning such articles to report, make entries and pay duties, as hereinbefore required, such articles, together with the fixtures and other merchandise, found in such saloon or on or about such vessel belonging to and owned by such saloon-keeper or other persons interested in such saloon, shall be seized and forfeited, and such saloon-keeper or other person so purchasing and owning shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars and not more than five hundred, and shall be punishable by imprisonment for not less than three months, and not more than two years.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 22, 14 Stat. 183. Act Feb. 10, 1871, c. 45, 16 Stat. 409.

Notes of Decisions

"Merchandise."—The word "merchandise" means property imported into the country, whether for sale or not. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 92.

§ 5826. (R. S. § 3114.) Duty on equipments for vessels.

The equipments, or any part thereof, including boats, purchased for, or the expenses of repairs made in a foreign country upon a vessel enrolled and licensed under the laws of the United States to engage in the foreign and coasting trade on the northern, northeastern, and northwestern frontiers of the United States, or a vessel intended to be employed in such trade, shall, on the first arrival of such vessel in any port of the United States, be liable to entry and the payment of an ad-valorem duty of fifty per centum on the cost thereof in such foreign country; and if the owner or master of such vessel shall willfully and knowingly neglect or fail to report, make entry, and pay duties as herein required, such vessel, with her tackle, apparel, and furniture, shall be seized and forfeited.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 23, 14 Stat. 183.

Provisions restricting the seizure and forfeiture of vessels by force of the provisions of this title were made by Act Feb. 8, 1881, c. 34, ante, § 5766.

Notes of Decisions

Cost of repairs of vessels.—The action of a collector in assessing duty on the cost of repairs of vessels is subject to review by the board of general appraisers under section 5595, ante. U. S. v. George Hall Coal Co. (C. C. 1905) 134 Fed. 1003, 1004, affirmed (1906) 142 Fed. 1039, 71 C. C. A. 685.

§ 5827. (R. S. § 3115.) Remission for necessary repairs.

If the owner or master of such vessel shall, however, furnish good and sufficient evidence that such vessel, while in the regular course of her voyage, was compelled, by stress of weather or other casualty, to put into such foreign port and purchase such equipments, or make such repairs, to secure the safety of the vessel to enable her to reach her port of destination, then it shall be competent for the Secretary of the Treasury to remit or refund such duties, and such vessel shall not be liable to forfeiture, and no license or enrollment and license, or renewal of either, shall hereafter be issued to any such vessel until the collector to whom application is made for the same shall be satisfied, from the oath of the owner or master, that all such equipments and repairs made within the year immediately preceding such application have been duly accounted for under the provisions of this and the preceding sections, and the duties accruing thereon duly paid; and if such owner or master shall refuse to take such oath, or take it falsely, the vessel shall be seized and forfeited.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 23, 14 Stat. 184.
See note to preceding section.

Cited without definite application,
The Laura (1885) 5 Sup. Ct. 881, 883, 114 U. S. 411, 29 L. Ed. 147.

§ 5828. (R. S. § 3116.) Manifests of vessels in the coasting trade.

The master of every vessel enrolled or licensed to engage in the foreign and coasting trade on the northern, northeastern, and northwestern frontiers of the United States, except canal-boats employed in navigating the canals within the United States, shall, before the departure of his vessel from a port in one collection-district to a port in another collection-district, present to the collector at the port of departure duplicate manifests of his cargo, or, if he have no cargo, duplicate manifests setting forth that fact; such manifests shall be subscribed and sworn to by the master before the collector, who shall indorse thereon his certificate of clearance, retaining one for the files of his office; the other he shall deliver for the use of the master.

Act July 1, 1870, c. 185, § 1, 16 Stat. 176.

§ 5829. (R. S. § 3117.) Entry for goods taken or delivered at intermediate ports.

If any vessel so enrolled or licensed shall touch at any intermediate port in the United States, and there discharge cargo taken on board at an American port, or at such intermediate ports shall take on board cargo destined for an American port, the master of such vessel shall not be required to report such lading or unlading at such intermediate ports, but shall enter the same on his manifest obtained at the original port of departure, which he shall deliver to the collector of the port at which the unlading of the cargo is completed, within twenty-four hours after arrival, and shall subscribe and make oath as to the truth and correctness of the same.

Act July 1, 1870, c. 185, § 1, 16 Stat. 176.

§ 5830. (R. S. § 3118.) Departure for place where there is no custom-house.

The master of any vessel so enrolled or licensed shall, before departing from a port in one collection-district to a place in another collection-district, where there is no custom-house, file his manifest, and obtain a clearance in the same manner, and make oath to the manifest, which manifest and clearance shall be delivered to the proper officer of customs at the port at which the vessel next arrives after leaving the place of destination specified in the clearance.

Act July 1, 1870, c. 185, § 1, 16 Stat. 176.

§ 5831. (R. S. § 3119.) Report and unlading of cargoes.

Nothing contained in the three preceding sections shall exempt masters of vessels from reporting, as now required by law, any merchandise destined for any foreign port. No permit shall be required for the unlading of cargo brought from an American port.

Act July 1, 1870, c. 185, § 1, 16 Stat. 177.

§ 5832. (R. S. § 3120, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Time for delivery of merchandise taken from one port to another; regulations for coasting trade.

No merchandise taken from any port in the United States on the northern, northeastern, or northwestern frontiers thereof, to a port in another collection-district of the United States on such frontiers, in any vessel, shall be unladen or delivered from such vessel within the United States, but in open day, that is to say, between the rising and setting of the sun, except by special license from the collector or other principal officer of the port for the purpose. The owner of every vessel whose master or manager shall neglect to comply with the provisions of this section shall be liable to a penalty of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred. The Secretary of the Treasury may, from time to time, make such regulations as to him shall seem necessary and expedient for unloading at and clearance from any port or place on such frontiers of ships or vessels at night. And that the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized, in his discretion, to make such regulations as shall enable vessels engaged in the coasting-trade between ports and places upon Lake Michigan exclusively, and laden with American productions and free merchandise only, to unlade their cargoes without previously obtaining a permit to unlade.

Act July 18, 1866, c. 201, § 26, 14 Stat. 184. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 248.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by adding, at the end of the section as originally enacted, the provisions beginning with the words "And that the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized," etc., to the end of the section as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

§ 5833. (R. S. § 3121.) Landing permit for vessel from foreign port.

The master of any vessel with cargo, passengers, or baggage from any foreign port, shall obtain a permit and comply with existing laws, before discharging or landing the same.

Act July 1, 1870, c. 185, § 1, 16 Stat. 177.

§ 5834. (R. S. § 3122.) Departure from place where there is no custom-house.

The master of any vessel so enrolled or licensed, destined with a cargo from a place in the United States, at which there may be no custom-house, to a port where there may be a custom-house, shall, within twenty-four hours after arrival at the port of destination, deliver to the proper officer of the customs a manifest, subscribed by him, setting forth the cargo laden at the place of departure, or laden or unladen at any intermediate port, or place, to the truth of which manifest he shall make oath before such officer. If the vessel, however, have no cargo, the master shall not be required to deliver such manifest.

Act July 1, 1870, c. 185, § 2, 16 Stat. 177.

§ 5835. (R. S. § 3123.) Steam-tugs.

Steam-tugs duly enrolled and licensed to engage in the foreign and coasting trade on the northern, northeastern, and northwestern frontiers of the United States, when exclusively employed in towing vessels, shall not be required to report and clear at the custom-house.

When such steam-tugs, however, are employed in towing rafts or other vessels without sail or steam motive-power, not required to be enrolled or licensed under existing laws, they shall be required to report and clear in the same manner as is hereinbefore provided in similar cases for other vessels.

Act July 1, 1870, c. 185, § 3, 16 Stat. 177.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. One Gasoline Launch (1904) 133 Fed. 42, 66 C. C. A. 148 (dissenting opinion).

§ 5836. (R. S. § 3124.) Forms.

The manifests, certificates of clearance, and oaths, provided for by the eight preceding sections, shall be in such form, and prepared, filled up, and executed in such manner as the Secretary of the Treasury may from time to time prescribe.

Act July 1, 1870, c. 185, § 4, 16 Stat. 177.

§ 5837. (R. S. § 3125.) Penalty for neglect.

If the master of any enrolled or licensed vessel shall neglect or fail to comply with any of the provisions or requirements of the nine preceding sections, such master shall forfeit and pay to the United States the sum of twenty dollars for each and every failure or neglect, and for which sum the vessel shall be liable, and may be summarily proceeded against, by way of libel, in any district court of the United States.

Act July 1, 1870, c. 185, § 5, 16 Stat. 177.

§ 5838. (R. S. § 3126.) Registered vessels may touch at foreign ports.

Any vessel, on being duly registered in pursuance of the laws of the United States, may engage in trade between one port in the United States and one or more ports within the same, with the privilege of touching at one or more foreign ports during the voyage, and land and take in thereat merchandise, passengers and their baggage, and letters, and mails. All such vessels shall be furnished by the collectors of the ports at which they shall take in their cargoes in the United States, with certified manifests, setting forth the particulars of the cargoes, the marks, number of packages, by whom shipped, to whom consigned, at what port to be delivered; designating such merchandise as is entitled to drawback, or to the privilege of being placed in warehouse; and the masters of all such vessels shall, on their arrival at any port of the United States from any foreign port at which such vessel may have touched, as herein provided, conform to the laws providing for the delivery of manifests of cargo and passengers taken on board at such foreign port, and all other laws regulating the report and entry of vessels from foreign ports, and be subject to all the penalties therein prescribed.

Act May 27, 1848, c. 48, § 1, 9 Stat. 232.

The collector's fees for granting permits to vessels licensed for the fisheries to trade between ports of the United States, with the privilege of touching at foreign ports, were abolished by Act June 19, 1886, c. 421, § 1, post, § 8138.

Notes of Decisions

Levy of pilotage charge by state.— State held to be without power to levy pilotage charges on registered vessels, though they made calls at a foreign port. The Queen (1910) 186 Fed. 725, 108 C. C. A. 595.

Cited without definite application, Anderson v. Pacific Coast S. S. Co. (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 626, 631, 225 U. S. 187, 56 L. Ed. 1047; U. S. v. The Walla Walla (D. C. 1891) 44 Fed. 796.

§ 5839. (R. S. § 3127.) No duty by reason of touching at foreign port.

Any foreign merchandise taken in at one port of the United States to be conveyed in registered vessels to any other port within the same, either under the provisions relating to warehouses, or under

[illegible] coastwise of merchandise en- [illegible] merchandise not entitled to draw- [illegible] chargeable by law shall have [illegible] any import duty by reason [illegible] having touched at a foreign [illegible]

[illegible] imported from Canada into the [illegible] Lake Champlain, and the mer- [illegible] duties thereon paid at the [illegible] Lake Champlain, it shall [illegible] same or any other district [illegible]

[illegible] foreign vessels from British [illegible]

[illegible] approbation of the Presi- [illegible] similar privileges are [illegible] the colonies hereinafter [illegible] such regulations as he may [illegible] to permit vessels laden [illegible] Nova Scotia, New- [illegible] of them, to lade or [illegible] of the United States [illegible] vessel entering a port so [illegible] refuse to comply with [illegible] of the Treasury, such [illegible] shall be subject to the [illegible] section had been granted [illegible]

[illegible] in the Revised Statutes: [illegible] following, begins with section [illegible]

TITLE XXXV

INTERNAL REVENUE

Chap.		Sec.
1.	Officers of internal revenue	5842
2.	Of assessments and collections	5895
3.	Special taxes	5955
4.	Distilled spirits and wines	5981
5.	Fermented liquors	6138
6.	Tobacco and snuff	6162
7.	Cigars	6197
7A.	Oleomargarine, adulterated butter, and process or renovated butter	6215
7B.	Filled cheese	6242
7C.	Mixed flour	6258
7D.	White phosphorus matches	6271
7E.	Opium for smoking	6287a
7F.	Opium, coca leaves, and compounds, manufacturers, etc., thereof	6287g
8.	Banks and bankers	6288
8A.	Special excise tax on corporations	6300
8B.	Excise tax on dealings in cotton futures	6309a
9.	Stamp-taxes on specific objects	6310
9A.	Incomes	6319
9B.	Munition Manufacturer's Tax	6336¼a
10.	Legacies and successions
10A.	Estate Tax	6336½a
11.	Provisions common to several objects of taxation	6337
11A.	Increase of internal revenue	6371a

CHAPTER ONE

Officers of Internal Revenue

Sec.
5842. Definition of the word "State" and the word "person."
5843. Collection districts.
5844. Limit of number of districts and collectors.
5845. Hawaii; collection district; collector, etc.
5846. Collectors.
5847. Collectors' bonds.
5848. Collectors as disbursing agents.
5849. Deputy collectors; compensation; allowances for collectors' salaries and office expenses.
5850. Allowances for collector's expenses.
5851. Accounts of collectors adjusted according to fiscal year.
5852. Detail of deputy collectors for special duty in other districts.
5853. Certificate as to reports before payment to collector.
5854. Disability or vacancy in office of collector.
5855. Deputy collector, when entitled to collector's salary.
5856. Internal revenue agents.
5857. Limitation of number of agents.
5858. Additional agents.
5859. Additional agents.
5860. Limit of compensation of agents; per diem in lieu of subsistence.

Sec.
5861. Compensation of agents assigned to duty of examining accounts.
5861a. Employees engaged in field work, etc.; designation of posts of duty; per diem.
5862. Store-keepers and their salaries.
5863. Assignment and transfer of storekeepers.
5864. Temporary store-keeper.
5865. Gaugers.
5866. Gaugers' fees.
5867. Limit of gauger's compensation.
5868. Compensation of gaugers employed in gauging fruit brandy, or detailed for special duty.
5869. Store-keepers and gaugers; compensation; performance of duties by one officer.
5870. Storekeeper-gauger's compensation.
5871. Compensation of storekeepers at small distilleries; storekeeper-gaugers.
5872. Compensation of storekeepers, gaugers and storekeeper-gaugers, at small distilleries.
5873. Compensation of storekeepers, storekeeper-gaugers, and gaugers, when traveling.
5874. Duties of storekeeper-gauger; bond.

Sec.
5875. Assignment to duty and transfer of gaugers.
5876. Detail of gaugers, etc., for duty in other districts; accounts.
5877. Leave of absence to storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers.
5877a. Internal revenue agents granted leave of absence with pay.
5878. Limit of number of revenue officers.
5879. Statement under oath of fees, etc.; penalty.
5880. Officers in charge of exportations and drawbacks.
5881. Superintendents of exports and drawbacks may administer oaths.
5882. Commissioner may transfer or suspend officers.
5883. Duties of collectors and agents; power of Commissioner.
5884. Duty of collectors to report violations of law to district attorney.
5885. Revenue officers who may administer oaths and take evidence.
5886. Revenue officers authorized to make seizures.
5887. Revenue officers disclosing operations of manufacturers, etc., punishable.
5888. Officers not to be interested in certain manufactures; penalty.
5889. Officers of internal revenue guilty of extortion, receiving unlawful fees, and other unlawful acts.
5890. Laws imposing fines applicable to all persons in service.
5891. Collector, etc., issuing stamps before payment punishable.
5892. Meaning of term "Revised Statutes."
5893. District attorney or marshal accepting or demanding anything for compromise of violation of internal revenue laws.
5894. Officers suffering injuries may maintain suit for injuries.

§ 5842. (R. S. § 3140, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Definition of the word "State" and the word "person."

The word "State," when used in this Title, shall be construed to include the Territories and the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out its provisions. And where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof, the word "person," as used in this title, shall be construed to mean and include a partnership, association, company, or corporation, as well as a natural person.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 182, 13 Stat. 306. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 248.

This section as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by adding, at the end of the section as originally enacted, the provision defining the word "person," from the words "and where not otherwise distinctly expressed" to the end of the section as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

See, also, notes under § 5955, post.

Application of law to territories.—See, also, § 6350, and notes thereunder.

See Rasmussen v. U. S. (1905) 25 Sup. Ct. 514, 516, 197 U. S. 516, 49 L. Ed. 862.

Although the Revision of 1878, omitted the word "territory" from the provision, as found in the statute of 1864, that no license should be construed "to authorize any business within any state or territory prohibited by the laws thereof," yet the word "state" is by the express provision of this section made to include the territories. Hence it does not appear that congress intended, by omitting the word "territory," to protect liquor licensees in the territories. Territory v. O'Connor (1889) 5 Dak. 397, 41 N. W. 746, 3 L. R. A. 355.

Application of law to District of Columbia.—An application of the war revenue act of June, 1898, to the District of Columbia is secured by section 31, which incorporates therein the laws relating to the assessment of taxes, thereby including this section. Knowlton v. Moore (1900) 20 Sup. Ct. 747, 773, 178 U. S. 41, 44 L. Ed. 969.

Application of law to Indians or Indian country.—See, also, notes under §§ 6162 and 6174, post.

Cotton belonging to a Choctaw Indian, produced by him in the territory of his nation and found beyond its limits, is not subject to the internal revenue tax. (1867) 12 Op. Atty. Gen. 132.

The internal revenue system of the United States has not, in any instance or for any purpose, been extended over the Indian country. (1867) 12 Op. Atty. Gen. 208.

Cotton raised in the Choctaw Nation, by an Indian of that nation, is not liable to taxation, under the internal revenue laws, either while in the Indian country, or in transit through any collection district, or in the collection district where it may have been found or may have been sold. Id.

Property belonging to an Indian may be seized in the Indian Territory for a violation of the internal revenue laws. (1871) 13 Op. Atty. Gen. 546.

Meaning of word "country." — The word "country," as employed in the revenue laws of the United States, embraces and applies to all the territorial possessions of a foreign state, however widely separated, which are subject to the same supreme executive and legislative control. Sonneborn Sons v. U. S. (1911) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 443.

Application of law to corporation.— Under the amendment made by Act Feb. 27, 1877, the word "person," as used in chapter 4 of this title, is to be understood as so including a corporation engaged in distilling spirits that it may give the bond and perform other acts required by the internal revenue law of distillers, in its corporate capacity. The existence of a penalty in certain sections of that title, prescribing imprisonment as a part of the punishment, is not incompatible with an intent to include under the word "person," as therein employed, a corporation. (1877) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 230.

Application of law to dispensing and selling agents of state.—The dispensing and selling agents of a state, taking charge of the selling of intoxicating liquors, are fairly within the scope of this section and sections 5955 and 5971(4), post, and are subject to an excise tax. South Carolina v. U. S. (1905) 26 Sup. Ct. 110, 111, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. Ed. 261, 4 Ann. Cas. 737.

DECISIONS RELATING TO LAW IN GENERAL

Construction of law in general.—Revenue statutes are not to be regarded as penal to be strictly construed, but are remedial in character and to be liberally construed to carry out their purpose. U. S. v. Hodson (1870) 10 Wall. 395, 406, 19 L. Ed. 937.

Statutes to prevent fraud on the revenue are enacted for the public good, and though they impose penalties, they are not to be construed strictly in favor of the defendant, like penal laws generally, but are to be so construed as to carry out the intention of the legislature. U. S. v. Stowell (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 244, 246, 133 U. S. 1, 33 L. Ed. 555.

There is no reason requiring a statute imposing special internal revenue taxes to be construed liberally in favor of the government, but it should be construed fairly and judicially with reference to both parties. De Bary v. Souer (1900) 101 Fed. 425, 41 C. C. A. 417.

Imposition by the government of a tax is a burden on private interests laid on private property, and where the question is whether given property is subject to a tax the statute must clearly cover the property. Gill v. Bartlett (1915) 224 Fed. 927, 140 C. C. A. 405, affirming judgment Bartlett v. Gill (D. C. 1915) 221 Fed. 476.

The revenue laws are for the purpose of aiding the collection of the government revenue and taxes, and they should not be construed by the courts so as to become odious or oppressive to the people. U. S. v. Howell (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 718.

A revenue law authorizing a forfeiture of property for violation thereof is not a penal statute which is to be construed with strictness in favor of defendant. U. S. v. Three Tons of Coal (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 16,515.

The rule that the internal revenue law should be strictly construed in favor of exemption is but a rule of construction, which yields when the intent of the statute is manifest. In re Hawley (D. C. 1915) 220 Fed. 372.

When the language of a revenue law would indicate that certain words had been employed by the Congress because the processes of a particular art were changing processes, dictionaries and treatises may be referred to for the purpose of showing the state of that art. Rotograph Co. v. U. S. (1910) 1 Ct. Cust. App. 82.

An internal revenue law should be construed fairly for the government and justly for the citizen, and so as to carry out the intention of the legislature gathered from the language used, read in connection with the general purpose of the law, the nature of the property on which the tax is imposed, and the legal relation of the taxpayer to it. Hubbard v. Brainard (1869) 35 Conn. 563.

An internal revenue law should not be construed liberally like laws intended to effect directly some great public object. Id.

An internal revenue law should not be construed strictly because it takes money or property in invitum, for it is taken as a share of a necessary public burden. Id.

Harmonizing with tariff laws.—Internal revenue acts should be interpreted in harmony with the tariff legislation of the country. Taylor v. Treat (C. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 656, judgment affirmed Treat v. Taylor (1908) 166 Fed. 1021, 91 C. C. A. 330.

Extension of law by construction.—A tax law cannot be extended by construction to things not described as the subject of taxation. Boyd v. Hood (1868) 57 Pa. 98.

Legislative adoption of construction.— The decisions of the internal revenue commissioner are not judicial constructions within the rule that when a judicial construction has been given a statute, the re-enactment of the statute is in effect a legislative adoption of that construction. Dollar Sav. Bank v. U. S. (1873) 19 Wall. 227, 237, 22 L. Ed. 80.

Evidence to aid construction.—Evidence of foreign trade-names is not material to the question of the meaning of terms used in United States revenue acts. Taylor v. Treat (C. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 656, judgment affirmed Treat v. Taylor (1908) 166 Fed. 1021, 91 C. C. A. 330.

Judicial notice of statute.—The courts are bound to take judicial notice of the federal statute relating to internal revenue. Kessel v. Albetis (N. Y. 1870) 56 Barb. 362.

§ 5843. (R. S. § 3141, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Collection districts.

For the purpose of assessing, levying, and collecting the taxes provided by the internal-revenue laws, the President may establish convenient collection-districts, and for that purpose he may subdivide any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or may unite two or more States or Territories into one district, and may from time to time alter said districts: Provided, That the number of districts in any State shall not exceed the number of Representatives in Congress to which such State was entitled in the Thirty-seventh Congress, except in such states as were entitled to an increased representation in the Thirty-eighth Congress, in which States the number of districts shall not exceed the number of Representatives to which any such State was so entitled: And provided further, That in the State of California the President may establish a number of districts not exceeding the number of Senators and Representatives to which said State was entitled, in the Thirty-seventh Congress.

Act July 1, 1862, c. 119, § 2, 12 Stat. 433. Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 7, 13 Stat. 224. Act July 12, 1870, c. 251, § 1, 16 Stat. 230. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 248.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by changing the words of the last proviso as originally enacted, "said State is entitled," to read "said State was entitled," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

The President was authorized and directed to reduce the number of internal revenue districts to not exceed 131, by a provision of Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, 19 Stat. 152; such reduction to take effect Sept. 1, 1876, or as soon thereafter as practicable. A further limitation of the number to 126 was made by a provision of Act March 3, 1877, c. 102, § 1, 19 Stat. 303, which was superseded by Act Aug. 23, 1912, c. 350, § 1, and Act July 16, 1914, c. 141, § 1, 38 Stat. 475, post, § 5844.

The Territory of Hawaii was constituted a district for the collection of internal revenue, with a collector at Honolulu, and deputy collectors in other places of the islands as directed by the Secretary of the Treasury, by Act April 30, 1900, c. 339, § 87, post, § 5845.

Notes of Decisions

Power to change established system.—The President, under the authority of Internal Revenue Act July 1, 1862, c. 119, having divided the United States into convenient collection districts, the arrangement which he made became a part of the system established by the statute, and can be changed only by the law-making power. (1863) 10 Op. Atty. Gen. 469.

Consolidation of states to collect cotton tax.—The existing internal revenue laws do not authorize the consolidation of the cotton-growing states into a single collection district for the purpose of collecting the cotton tax. (1866) 12 Op. Atty. Gen. 55.

Limitation of districts.—The provision in the second section of Act July 1, 1862, c. 119, readopted by the seventh section of Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, limiting the number of internal-revenue collection districts in any state, is unrepealed by the provision in Act July 12, 1870, c. 251, authorizing the President, at his discretion, to "divide the States and Territories respectively into convenient collection districts, or alter the same," etc. The restriction as to the number of such districts imposed by the former provision is still in force. (1873) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 215.

§ 5844. (Act July 16, 1914, c. 141, § 1.) Limit of number of districts and collectors.

On and after October first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, the whole number of collection districts for the collection of internal revenue and the whole number of collectors of internal revenue shall not exceed sixty-four. (38 Stat. 475.)

This was a provision of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1915, cited above.

It superseded provisions on the same subject made by Act March 3, 1877, c. 102, § 1, 19 Stat. 303, and Act Aug. 23, 1912, c. 350, § 1, 37 Stat. 381.

The number of revenue officers was limited by a provision of Act March 3, 1885, c. 343, § 1, post, § 5878.

§ 5845. (Act April 30, 1900, c. 339, § 87.) Hawaii; collection district; collector, etc.

The Territory of Hawaii shall constitute a district for the collection of the internal revenue of the United States, with a collector, whose office shall be at Honolulu, and deputy collectors at such other places in the several islands as the Secretary of the Treasury shall direct. (31 Stat. 158.)

The section was part of the act to provide a government for the Territory of Hawaii, cited above.

§ 5846. (R. S. § 3142.) Collectors.

The President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint for each collection-district a collector, who shall be a resident of the same. When two or more collection-districts are united by him, he may designate from among the existing officers of such districts one collector for the new district, or, at his discretion, he may make a new appointment of such officer for said district.

Act July 1, 1862, c. 119, § 2, 12 Stat. 433. Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 7, 13 Stat. 224. Act July 14, 1870, c. 255, § 18, 16 Stat. 261.

Notes of Decisions

Repeal of statute as vacating offices of collectors.—Act June 30, 1864, § 173, repealing most of the provisions of Act July 1, 1862, relating to internal revenue, but providing that "the officers heretofore appointed shall continue to hold the said offices without reappointment," does not vacate the offices of collectors appointed under the earlier act. Pickering v. Day (Del. 1867) 3 Houst. 474, 95 Am. Dec. 291.

Cited without definite application, King v. U. S. (1878) 99 U. S. 229, 232, 25 L. Ed. 373.

§ 5847. (R. S. § 3143, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2.) Collectors' bonds.

Every collector, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall execute a bond for such amount as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, with not less than five sureties, to be approved by the Solicitor of the Treasury, conditioned that said collector shall faithfully perform the duties of his office according to law, and shall justly and faithfully account for and pay over to the United States, in compliance with the order or regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury, all public moneys which may come into his hands or possession; and he shall, from time to time, renew, strengthen, and increase his official bond, as the Secretary of the Treasury may direct, with such further conditions as the said commissioner shall prescribe; and he shall execute a new bond whenever required so to do by the Secretary of the Treasury, with such conditions as may be required by law or prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with not less than five sureties; which new bond shall be in lieu of any former bond or bonds of such collector in respect to all liabilities accruing after the date of its approval by the Solicitor of the Treasury. Said bonds shall be filed in the office of the First Comptroller of the Treasury.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 9, 13 Stat. 225. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, 20 Stat. 327.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting, after the words "as the said commissioner shall prescribe," the provision beginning with the words "and he shall execute a new bond," and ending with the words "approval by the Solicitor of the Treasury," which is followed by the provision of the original section, "Said bonds shall be filed in the office of the First Comptroller of the Treasury," as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, cited above.

The designation of the First Comptroller of the Treasury, referred to in the last clause of this section, was changed to Comptroller of the Treasury, by the Dockery Act of July 31, 1894, c. 174, § 4, ante, § 402.

General provisions for the examination and renewal of official bonds were made by Act March 2, 1895, c. 177, § 5, ante, §§ 3288-3290.

Notes of Decisions

1. Necessity of bond.
2. Form, requisites, and validity of bond.
3. Execution of bond.
4. Liability of sureties in general.
5. Embezzlement by deputy.
6. Moneys received for taxes.
7. Charges for unaccounted stamps.
8. Payment of storekeepers.
9. Moneys paid to informers.
10. Refunding overpayment by sureties.
11. Lien in favor of government.
12. Judgment against collector as binding sureties or constituting lien.
13. Fraudulent conveyance by surety.
14. Discharge of sureties.
15. Action on bond—Defense in general.
16. —— Set-off.
17. —— Pleading.
18. —— Evidence.
19. —— Questions for jury.
20. —— Judgment and execution.

1. Necessity of bond.—Act June 30, 1864, providing that a collector of the internal revenue, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall execute an official bond, does not apply to collectors appointed under a prior act, but continued in office under a saving clause in such prior act. Pickering v. Day (1866) 2 Del. Ch. 333.

Act June 30, 1864, § 173, directing the collector of internal revenue to execute a bond in an amount fixed by a commissioner of internal revenue, does not make the execution of such a bond by a collector a condition precedent to his authority to exercise the powers of his office. Pickering v. Day (Del. 1867) 3 Houst. 474, 95 Am. Dec. 291.

2. Form, requisites, and validity of bond.—Where a bond given by the collector of internal revenue is objectionable in form, a new bond given by direction of the commissioner of internal revenue cannot be considered as having been extorted by duress from the collector and his sureties, contrary to the statute. Soule v. U. S. (1879) 100 U. S. 8, 25 L. Ed. 536.

Omission in a bond of the place or district in which the duties are to be performed does not render it void. U. S. v. Jackson (1881) 104 U. S. 41, 42, 26 L. Ed. 651.

A bond given to the United States by a collector of internal revenue, conditioned for the faithful performance of their duties by all deputies appointed by him, is valid and enforceable, although such condition is not required by the statute. Laffan v. U. S. (1903) 122 Fed. 333, 58 C. C. A. 495.

A bond given under a statute is void so far as it exceeds the requirements thereof. Armstrong v. U. S. (C. C. 1811) Fed. Cas. No. 549.

The addition of a condition not specifically named in the act, that the obligor should not be liable if each and every deputy appointed by the collectors shall faithfully execute all the duties of such deputy according to law, did not relieve the sureties. Chadwick v. U. S. (C. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 750, 754.

A bond that the officer has faithfully and truly discharged his duties is not authorized under a statute requiring a bond for the true and faithful discharge of duties. U. S. v. Brown (D. C. 1830) Fed. Cas. No. 14,663.

See (1885) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 274, holding that, where the form of the bond is not prescribed by statute, its form may be determined by the officer whose duty it is to approve the same.

3. Execution of bond.—A collector's bond, accepted in the belief that it had been properly executed, held binding on a surety who signed the printed form and delivered it to the principal, with authority to fill blanks and perfect the instrument. Butler v. U. S. (1874) 21 Wall. 272, 274, 22 L. Ed. 614.

The execution of a collector's bond by the sureties with the date left blank authorizes the principal to fill the blank at his discretion. U. S. v. Halsted (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 15,287.

4. Liability of sureties in general.—A bond given by a collector appointed to hold office till the end of the next session of the senate, and then reappointed with the advice and consent of the senate, is to be restricted, as to the liability of the sureties, to the obligations created by the collection acts passed before the date of the bond and to the term of office under the original appointment, not including the term under reappointment. U. S. v. Kirkpatrick (1824) 9 Wheat. 720, 730, 6 L. Ed. 199.

Under 15 Stat. 147, gauging fees to be paid to the collector of internal revenue by the owner or producer of the articles to be gauged, and to be retained by him until the last day of each month, when they were to be paid to the officers performing their duty at a certain fixed rate, the sureties on the collector's bond were liable on his failure to account to the United States for any excess, received and not paid out, over such fixed rate. Soule v. U. S. (1879) 100 U. S. 8, 25 L. Ed. 536.

The certificate of the commissioner of internal revenue that the collector used due diligence to collect is a condition precedent to the allowance of the credit on the books of the treasury by the first comptroller, before a suit on his bond is brought. U. S. v. Kimball (1879) 101 U. S. 726, 25 L. Ed. 835.

The sureties on an official bond of an internal revenue collector are liable for taxes collected during the term covered by their bond upon assessment rolls recovered during a prior term, or for moneys or stamps on hand at the expiration of a former term, and remaining in possession of the collector at the beginning of the new term, when retained by him as his own successor, as when received from any other predecessor. U. S. v. Stone (1882) 1 Sup. Ct. 287, 106 U. S. 525, 27 L. Ed. 163.

An internal revenue collector is not responsible for more than ordinary care and diligence in the collection of bonds for duties placed in the hands of an attorney by his predecessor for suit by direction of the commissioner of revenue. U. S. v. Snyder (C. C. 1825) Fed. Cas. No. 16,351.

In such case the collector is not bound by a treasury statement charging him with the amount of such bonds. Id.

An officer has the right at any time to resign his office without the consent of the president, and his surety will not be bound beyond the time if the resignation is received at the proper department, and is to take effect. U. S. v. Wright (C. C. 1839) Fed. Cas. No. 16,775.

The ordinary rule applies that the sureties are liable for the faithful performance of all duties imposed by law, whether enacted previous or subsequent to the bond. U. S. v. McCartney (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 104, 106.

The bond of a collector of internal revenue is a bond for the indemnity of the government alone, and not for the protection of private persons who may be injured by the torts of the principal or his deputies. Clark v. U. S. (1878) 60 Ga. 156.

5. Embezzlement by deputy.—A collector of internal revenue is liable on his bond for any failure to account for public money or property in his hands, from whatever cause, unless it be the act of God or the public enemy; and it is no defense to an action on his bond, expressly conditioned, in accordance with the statute, for the faithful performance of the duties of the office by himself and his deputies, that the money sued for was embezzled by a deputy without the collector's fault or negligence. Pond v. U. S. (1901) 111 Fed. 989, 49 C. C. A. 582.

6. Moneys received for taxes.—Where a tax long past due to the United States has been paid to the collector of internal revenue, he and his sureties are liable therefor, though the amount so paid had not been then returned to the assessor's office or passed upon by him, nor had a sworn return of the taxpayer been delivered. The tax so paid is public money, covered by the terms of the bond. King v. U. S. (1878) 99 U. S. 229, 25 L. Ed. 373.

The sureties on a collector's bond are liable for the sum received by a collector under Act June 30, 1864, § 122, though there was no assessment or return made of the tax. U. S. v. Chase (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 14,-788.

Bond of internal revenue collector not binding as to collections previously made. Armstrong v. U. S. (C. C. 1811) Fed. Cas. No. 549.

Act June 30, 1864, § 173, repealing most of the provisions of Act July 1, 1862, relating to internal revenue, but providing that "the officers heretofore appointed shall continue to hold the said offices without reappointment," does not affect the liabilities of the sureties on their bonds for their failure to account for money collected. Pickering v. Day (Del. 1867) 3 Houst. 474, 95 Am. Dec. 291.

7. Charges for unaccounted stamps.—A collector of internal revenue gave bond September 16, 1864, with sureties, to the United States, conditioned for the payment of the money received by him for stamps sold, and the return of those not sold, which had been or might be delivered to him under Act March 3, 1863, c. 74, which had been repealed by Act June 30, 1864. Held, that the liability of the sureties was limited to the stamps delivered to him before the last-mentioned date. U. S. v. Hough (1880) 103 U. S. 71, 26 L. Ed. 305.

Sureties on a collector's bond are liable for charges for unaccounted stamps, although the collector was not liable to account for such stamps at the date of the bond. Chadwick v. U. S. (C. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 750, 755.

8. Payment of storekeepers.—The official bond of a collector of internal revenue is applicable to the payment of certain storekeepers, under an act of congress providing for the appointment and payment of such storekeepers, enacted subsequently to the execution of such bond. U. S. v. McCartney (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 104, 106.

9. Moneys paid to informers.—Where a forfeiture is decreed in a suit for breach of internal revenue law, and defendant on a compromise pays a sum of money into court, and informers are entitled to a portion of the money, and the court makes a final order of distribution, and issues checks to the collector of internal revenue of the district, and no appeal is taken, and he pays the informers the amounts to which they are entitled, he cannot be held liable on his official bond for the amounts so paid, whether the informers are legally entitled thereto or not. U. S. v. Krum (C. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 823.

10. Refunding overpayment by sureties.—Where the sureties more than make good to the government the amount of the officer's defalcation, the overpayment is in the nature of a mutual mistake of fact, of which he cannot take advantage. If the government refund it to the sureties, no action will lie by the principal to recover it as a balance due to him. Pope v. U. S. (1878) 14 Ct. Cl. 446.

11. Lien in favor of government.—There is no lien in favor of the United States on the property of a collector of internal revenue or of his sureties from the execution of his official bond, or from the date of a default thereon. U. S. v. Ingate (C. C. 1891) 48 Fed. 251.

12. Judgment against collector as binding sureties or constituting lien.—A judgment rendered in favor of the United States against a delinquent collector of the internal revenue in a proceeding against him alone does not bind the sureties on his bond, nor constitute a lien on their property. U. S. v. Ingate (C. C. 1891) 48 Fed. 251.

13. Fraudulent conveyance by surety.—The United States is merely a simple contract creditor of the sureties on the official bond of a collector of internal revenue, after he has defaulted, and cannot sue to set aside a fraudulent conveyance by a surety before judgment has been rendered against him. U. S. v. Ingate (C. C. 1891) 48 Fed. 251.

14. Discharge of sureties.—The sureties on a collector's bond are discharged where, without their knowledge, the proper officers of the treasury took bonds and mortgages on time to secure the payment of a balance due from him. U. S. v. Hillegas (C. C. 1811) Fed. Cas. No. 15,366.

15. Action on bond—Defense in general.—See, also, note under § 5942, post.

Though the certificate of the commissioner of internal revenue that the collector used due diligence to collect is a condition precedent to the allowance of a credit on the books of the treasury by the first comptroller before a suit on his bond is brought, it is not a condition precedent to a defense on the trial. U. S. v. Kimball (1879) 101 U. S. 726, 25 L. Ed. 835.

It is not a ground of defense by the sureties on the bond of a collector of internal revenue to an action for the recovery of the amount of defalcations of the collector that officers of the treasury department failed to notify the sureties of such defalcations until long after they acquired knowledge of them, and after the collector had become insolvent, both because Act Aug. 8, 1888 (section 3291, ante), while making it the duty of the department to give such notice at once, expressly provides that a failure to do so shall not discharge the sureties, and for the further reason that under the general principles of law the government is not responsible to others for the laches or wrongful acts of its officers. Pond v. U. S. (1901) 111 Fed. 989, 49 C. C. A. 582.

In an action on a collector's bond on account of his breach of duty in allowing spirits to be removed from a warehouse without the furnishing of proper bonds, it is no defense that he did not act corruptly, but only negligently. U. S. v. Thorn (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 16,493.

16. —— Set-off.—In a suit on the official bond of a collector of internal revenue to recover a balance due to the United States on a settlement of his accounts, items of set-off for his extra services and expenses are properly excluded. Hall v. U. S. (1875) 91 U. S. 559, 23 L. Ed. 446.

A collector of internal revenue appointed under Act July 1, 1862 (12 Stat. 432), is entitled, in a suit against him on his bond, brought to recover public money collected by him and not paid over, to have allowed, as a set-off, money paid by him for publishing advertisements required to be made by section 19 of that act, if the amount is found to be reasonable and proper, although the item was not formally allowed or certified by the accounting officers in the treasury department, or otherwise. U. S. v. Flanders (1884) 5 Sup. Ct. 67, 112 U. S. 88, 28 L. Ed. 630.

17. —— Pleading.—In an action of debt on the bond of a collector of internal revenue, a replication to a plea of performance of the condition of the bond, charging defendant with moneys not collected, is bad. U. S. v. Arthur (1809) 9 U. S. (5 Cranch) 257, 3 L. Ed. 94.

A declaration on a tax collector's bond held demurrable for not alleging of what district he was collector. U. S. v. Jackson (1881) 104 U. S. 41, 26 L. Ed. 651.

Where the breach of an official bond alleged is the failure to pay over or account for a certain sum, a dereliction of duty in not collecting such sum cannot be shown. U. S. v. Glenn (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 15,217.

A declaration on an official bond of a tax collector held insufficient where the bond did not identify the officer's district, the date of his commission, the sort of taxes he was to collect, or the date of the statute under which it was given. U. S. v. Jackson (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,456.

18. —— Evidence.—In a suit on the bond of an internal revenue collector for failure to turn over money collected, a duly-certified treasury transcript of his accounts was admissible in evidence, though it contained no dates as to when the money was collected; it being certified to cover the period of his bond. U. S. v. Hunt (1881) 105 U. S. 183, 26 L. Ed. 1037.

In an action against sureties on an official bond of an internal revenue collector, it is competent for defendants to show, by certified transcripts of the books of the treasury department, that the balance charged against their principal upon the adjustment of his accounts, during the period when they were liable for his defaults, had in fact arisen by virtue of a default during his prior term. U. S. v. Stone (1882) 1 Sup. Ct. 287, 106 U. S. 525, 27 L. Ed. 163.

A judgment against a collector of internal revenue and the sureties on his bond, conditioned that he would faithfully execute and discharge all the duties of his office according to law, account for and pay over all moneys which might come into his hands, and be responsible for the acts of his deputies, is justified by evidence showing that he received certain stamps from the government, for which he failed to account; and the measure of recovery is the face value of such stamps, as charged to him in his account. Such an action is not one for the conversion of property, but one for a breach of official duty, and is governed by the terms and conditions of the bond and the statutes which prescribe such duty; and the government is not required to prove that the stamps unaccounted for were sold, and the money received therefor, even though such fact is unnecessarily alleged in the complaint. Pond v. U. S. (1901) 111 Fed. 989, 49 C. C. A. 582.

A statement of the account of a public officer from the books of the Treasury Department, properly certified, and showing a balance due the United States, is sufficient prima facie evidence of a breach of his bond in failing to account for public money or property. Laffan v. U. S. (1903) 122 Fed. 333, 58 C. C. A. 495.

The contents of a letter from a collector of internal revenue to the commissioner in an action on the collector's bond can only be proved by a copy of the same duly certified from the treasury department. Chadwick v. U. S. (C. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 750.

A certified transcript of the account of a collector of internal revenue is admissible in evidence in a separate action against his sureties. Id.

The copy of a collector's bond is sufficiently authenticated by the certificate of the secretary of the treasury, in a suit upon the bond, where the original was in the custody of that department, and was wholly disconnected from the transcript certified by the register of the treasury. Id.

Evidence is admissible, in a suit upon the bond of an internal revenue collector, to show that the collector received money to await the result of an attempt to compromise, and that the same was retained by him. Id.

19. —— Questions for jury.—Whether an additional bond executed at the request of the commissioner was a substitute or a strengthening bond should be left to the jury. Chadwick v. U. S. (C. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 750, 759.

20. —— Judgment and execution.—To support a judgment on a collector's bond at the return term, it must appear by the record that the writ was executed fourteen days before the return day according to Act July 11, 1798, § 14. Dobynes & Morton v. U. S. (1806) 7 U. S. (3 Cranch) 241, 2 L. Ed. 427.

On a joint judgment obtained against all the parties to the bond of a revenue collector, the personal estate of all liable to the execution must be exhausted before the land of any one of them can be reached. 3 Stat. 83. U. S. v. Graves (C. C. 1828) Fed. Cas. No. 15,250.

§ 5848. (R. S. § 3144, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2.) Collectors as disbursing agents.

It shall be the duty of collectors of internal revenue to act as disbursing agents of the Treasury for the payment of all expenses of collection of taxes and other expenditures for the internal-revenue service within their respective districts, under regulations and instructions from the Secretary of the Treasury, on giving good and sufficient bond, with such sureties, in such form, and in such penal sum, as shall be prescribed by the First Comptroller of the Treasury, and approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, for the faithful performance of their duties as such disbursing agents; but no additional compensation shall be paid to collectors for such services.

Act March 3, 1865, c. 78, § 4, 13 Stat. 483. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, 20 Stat. 328.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by changing the words at the beginning of the section as originally enacted, "It shall be the duty of such collectors of internal revenue as may be designated by the Secretary of the Treasury to act as disbursing agents," to read, "It shall be the duty of collectors of internal revenue to act as disbursing agents," as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, cited above.

General provisions for the examination and renewal of official bonds were made by Act March 2, 1895, c. 177, § 5, ante, §§ 3288–3290.

Notes of Decisions

Bond as disbursing agent.—A collector of internal revenue directed by the secretary of the treasury to act as disbursing agent must give a bond as such disbursing agent separate from and additional to his bond as collector, and the accounts of collectors and of collectors as disbursing agents are kept in separate books at the treasury. Sauner v. U. S. (1881) 17 Ct. Cl. 39.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. McCartney (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 104.

(R. S. § 3145. Superseded.)

This section provided for the compensation of collectors by salaries and commissions, and for the payment of charges for advertising, stationery, blank books, and postage, and for further allowances. It was superseded by the provisions for the same purposes made by sections 12, 13, Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, set forth post, §§ 5849, 5850. Provisions for equalizing and reducing the aggregate of allowances under this section, made by Act March 3, 1877, c. 102, § 1, 19 Stat. 303, were also superseded by said amendment.

Cited without definite application, See Hall v. U. S. (1875) 91 U. S. 559, 564, 23 L. Ed. 446; Folger v. U. S. (1880) 103 U. S. 30, 39, 26 L. Ed. 364; U. S. v. Dominici (1897) 78 Fed. 334, 336, 24 C. C. A. 116; U. S. v. Hall (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 15,284; Patton v. U. S. (1871) 7 Ct. Cl. 362; Landram v. U. S. (1886) 21 Ct. Cl. 128.

§ 5849. (Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 12, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2.) Deputy collectors; compensation; allowances for collectors' salaries and office expenses.

Each collector of internal revenue shall be authorized to appoint, by an instrument in writing under his hand, as many deputies as he may think proper, to be compensated for their services by such allowances as shall be made by the Secretary of the Treasury, upon the recommendation of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Allowances shall also be made in like manner for salary and office expenses of collectors, all of which shall be in lieu of the salary and commissions heretofore provided by law: Provided, however, That the salaries of collectors shall be fixed at two thousand dollars each per annum where the annual collections amount to twenty-five thousand dollars or less, and shall, by the Secretary, on the recommendation of the Commissioner, be graduated up to the maximum limit of four thousand five hundred dollars; which latter sum shall be allowed in all cases where the collections amount to one million of dollars or upward; and the collector shall have power to revoke the appointment of any such deputy, giving such notice thereof as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe, and to require and accept bonds or other securities from any deputy; and actions upon such bonds may be brought in any appropriate district or circuit court of the United States; which courts are hereby given jurisdiction of such actions concurrently with the courts of the several States. Each such deputy shall have the like authority in every respect to collect the taxes levied or assessed within the portion of the district assigned to him which is by law vested in the collector himself; but each collector shall, in every respect, be responsible, both to the United States and to individuals, as the case may be, for all moneys collected, and for every act done or neglected to be done, by any of his deputies while acting as such. (18 Stat. 309. 20 Stat. 329.)

This section was part of an act to amend the laws relating to internal revenue, cited above.

The first part of this section, as originally enacted, provided that "each collector of internal revenue shall be authorized to appoint, by an instrument in writing under his hand, as many deputies as he may think proper, to be by him compensated for their services," etc. The words quoted were changed to read as set forth here by amendment by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, last cited above.

This section and section 13 of the same act, post, § 5850, superseded provisions of R. S. §§ 3145, 3147, 3148. See notes to those sections, ante.

Limitations of the number of deputy collectors to be appointed were made by a provision of Act March 3, 1885, c. 343, § 1, post, § 5878.

The detail of deputies in one district for special duty in other districts was authorized by a provision of Act April 17, 1900, c. 192, § 1, set forth post, § 5876.

The appointment of a deputy-collector, to be stationed at San Juan, Porto Rico, was provided for, and his duties in connection with the payment of all internal-revenue taxes on articles of Porto Rican manufacture coming into the United States by affixing stamps thereto, were prescribed, by Act June 29, 1906, c. 3613, set forth ante, §§ 3750, 3751.

Appropriations for salaries and expenses of collectors, deputy collectors, surveyors, and clerks and other employés in internal-revenue offices, are made in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation acts for each year. The provision for the fiscal year 1917, was by Act May 10, 1916, c. 117, § 1, 39 Stat.

All laws or parts of laws inconsistent with rates of salaries or compensation appropriated by the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation acts are repealed, and the rates of salaries or compensation of officers or employés appropriated for in said acts are to constitute the rate of salary or compensation of such officers or employés, respectively, until otherwise fixed by an annual rate of appropriation or other law, by Act July 16, 1914, c. 141, § 6, post, § 3228a.

The officers and employés of the United States whose salaries are appropriated for in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1916, Act March 4, 1915, c. 141, 38 Stat. 1049, are established and continued from year to year to the extent that they are appropriated for by Congress, by § 6 of said act, post, § 3228b.

Notes of Decisions

1. Repeal of Rev. St. § 3314.
2. Application of proviso in § 5850.
3. Deputies as officers or employés.
4. Appointment and removal of deputies.
5. Vacancies in offices of deputies.
6. Bonds of deputies—Right to require.
7. —— Construction in general.
8. —— Liability of sureties.
9. —— Discharge from liability.
10. —— Actions on.
11. Compensation of collectors.
12. Compensation of deputies and allowances therefor.
13. Authority and duties of deputies.

1. Repeal of Rev. St. § 3314.—R. S. § 3314, post, § 6096, allowing commissions to collectors of internal revenue on taxes collected by the sale of tax-paid spirit stamps, was not repealed by Act March 1, 1879, § 2; the intention of congress that it should remain in force being unmistakably expressed by the re-enactment verbatim of section 3314 in section 5 of said act of 1879. U. S. v. Landram (1886) 6 S. Ct. 954, 118 U. S. 81, 30 L. Ed. 58.

2. Application of proviso in § 5850.—The proviso attached to Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 13, by Act March 1, 1879 (20 Stat. 329), cannot be applied to anything contained in that section. It must be regarded as independent legislation, applicable to the provisions of section 12. Ryan v. U. S. (1881) 17 Ct. Cl. 47.

3. Deputies as officers or employés.—Deputy collectors of internal revenue cannot be considered employés of the collector. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 363.

Deputy collectors of internal revenue would seem to be officers of the United States, at least in the sense that they are subject to classification under the civil service law; but if not officers, they are employés of the United States, and, considered as either, the President has the right to include them in the competitive classified service. Id.

4. Appointment and removal of deputies.—Equity has no jurisdiction to restrain the collector of internal revenue from removing his deputies in violation of the rules promulgated by the commissioner of internal revenue, as provided by R. S. § 3148. Page v. Moffett (C. C. 1898) 85 Fed. 38.

Under this section the rules of the commissioner have no such authority as law that a deputy collector can invoke the equitable interference of the courts to restrain his removal in violation of them. Id.

The power of removal cannot be reviewed by an appeal to the courts. Id.

Section 5854, post, seems to require that a deputy collector of internal revenue should be appointed by the collector in commission, by an instrument in writing under his hand. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 363.

A newly appointed collector of internal revenue has a legal right, upon taking office, to drop from the service any deputy collector in commission and to appoint deputies of his own selection, in accordance with the rules of the civil service commission. Id.

United States collectors of revenues may appoint a particular deputy for a particular county, though his principal district embraces other counties as well. Schuster v. Weissman (1876) 63 Mo. 552.

5. Vacancies in offices of deputies.—A vacancy occurring in the office of collector of internal revenue and the appointment of a successor would seem to have the effect, under section 5854, post, of vacating the offices of the deputy collectors. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 363.

It is the duty of the newly appointed collector to fill the offices thus vacated, either by recommissioning the deputies in service by an instrument in writing given under his hand, or by selections either from the eligible register or by transfer from other positions in the classified service, the precise method to be adopted being within the administrative discretion of the collector. Id.

6. Bonds of deputies—Right to require.—There is nothing in the civil service law which in any way interferes with the right of the collector, under section 12, Act Feb. 8, 1875 (18 Stat. 307), to require bonds of his deputies payable to himself, for his protection against their neglect, default, or wrongdoing. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 363.

7. —— Construction in general.—The undertaking of sureties on the bonds of a deputy collector of internal revenue must receive a strict interpretation, both as to time and terms. Halsey v. Paulison (1874) 37 N. J. Law (8 Vroom) 205.

8. —— Liability of sureties.—The payment of money to a deputy collector as a tax on brandy without receiving stamps therefor is not a payment of the tax; and, where the collector converts the money to his own use, the sureties on his bond are not liable therefor. U. S. v. Hermance (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,355; Id. (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 15,356.

Act July 1, 1862, § 5, authorizing a collector to appoint deputies and to require and accept bonds from such deputies, does not render such deputies or their sureties liable to the public or to any individual other than the collector. Pickering v. Day (Del. 1867) 3 Houst. 474, 95 Am. Dec. 291.

Where by the terms of his bond, a deputy collector was obliged to account for all collections in the collector's district, including Jackson county, and that county was, at the date of the instrument, known as "division 1," and it was afterwards divided into two districts for assessment, such partition was held not to impair the liability of the sureties of the deputy for his breaches of the bond. Schuster v. Weissman (1876) 63 Mo. 552.

The sureties of a deputy United States collector are responsible for taxes assessed in the county for which he is appointed, though collected from persons residing outside of the county. Id.

9. —— Discharge from liability.—Mere neglect of an internal revenue collector to comply with the laws and regulations requiring him to frequently examine and verify the accounts of his deputy, and see that he faithfully discharges his duty, will not release the sureties on the deputy's official bond from liability for defalcations, which a strict performance of these duties might have prevented. Williams v. Lyman (1898) 88 Fed. 237, 31 C. C. A. 511.

Mere negligence or failure of the obligee in an official bond, in the discharge of some duty to a third party or in enforcing compliance with its condition, will not release the sureties. Id.

The mere fact that a collector of internal revenue failed to discharge his deputy immediately on discovering that he was a defaulter does not discharge the deputy's surety from liability to the collector. Pickering v. Day (Del. 1867) 3 Houst. 474, 95 Am. Dec. 291.

A collector of internal revenue, consenting to the use of public funds by his deputy in his private business of speculating in grain, is thereby guilty of such fraud on his deputy's sureties as to discharge them from liability to the collector, occasioned by the deputy's failure to account for such funds. Id.

10. —— Actions on.—In an action by a district collector of internal revenue against the deputy and the sureties on his official bond for moneys received by such deputy ex officio, it is not a good defense that the money received by him was for taxes not levied, and not due at the time paid to him, coming into his hands by virtue of his office. He is bound to pay over the same to the collector. Fuller v. Calkins (1867) 22 Iowa, 301.

A district collector of internal revenue may recover against a deputy and the sureties in his official bond, in an action thereon, for moneys received by such deputy ex officio, without first showing that he has paid over to the government the amount for which he brings suit. Id.

In an action brought by a collector of internal revenue upon a bond given by his deputy, as such, the appointment of such deputy should be averred; the recital of such appointment, in a copy of the bond set out in the pleadings, is not a sufficient allegation of such appointment. Hall v. Williams (1868) 13 Minn. 260 (Gil. 242).

11. Compensation of collectors.—The secretary of the treasury may fix the amount of an extra allowance of a collector of internal revenue in advance of the services rendered. U. S.

v. Morgan (1879) 131 U. S. (Append.) clxiv, 25 L. Ed. 519.

An adjusted account of an internal revenue collector at the treasury, showing the amount finally allowed as extra compensation, is conclusive. Id.

A person appointed and commissioned as a collector of internal revenue, under the act of July 1, 1862 (12 Stat. 432), is entitled to the compensation, provided for by section 34 of that act, of a percentage commission to be computed on the moneys accounted for and paid over by him, from the time he enters on the duties of his office and his services are accepted, and not merely from the time he takes the oath of office and files his official bond. U. S. v. Flanders (1884) 5 Sup. Ct. 67, 112 U. S. 88, 28 L. Ed. 630.

12. Compensation of deputies and allowances therefor.—Where the secretary of the treasury made such allowance as he saw fit to a collector for the payment of deputies, and the collector appointed them and paid them, and the treasury had no accounts with them, no privity existed between them and the government. Herndon v. U. S. (1879) 15 Ct. Cl. 446.

Prior to Act March 1, 1879, § 2, 20 Stat. 329, deputy collectors of internal revenue were employés of the collector by whom they were appointed and compensated, and the government was not liable to them for their services. Id.

The secretary of the treasury may prescribe the compensation to be allowed to deputy collectors of internal revenue either by regulations or instructions. Landram v. U. S. (1880) 16 Ct. Cl. 74.

An allowance for the salary of a deputy collector, made by the secretary of the treasury, unimpeached for fraud or mistake, is binding upon the government and upon the courts. Ryan v. U. S. (1881) 17 Ct. Cl. 47.

The power of the secretary to make such allowances is unlimited as to time, unless it be limited by the proviso attached to Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 13, by Act March 1, 1879 (20 Stat. 329), which prohibits certain allowances "if more than one year has elapsed since the close of the fiscal year in which the services were rendered." Id.

13. Authority and duties of deputies.—See, also, notes under § 5889, post.

A deputy is authorized to act as such when his commission has been signed and placed in the mail, and he is notified thereof by telegram. U. S. v. Sykes (D. C. 1893) 58 Fed. 1000.

The revenue act provides that deputy collectors should have the same authority in every respect to collect the duties and taxes levied and assessed as the collector himself, and that in case of sickness or temporary disability of a collector the duties may devolve on one of the deputies. Held that, during the sickness or temporary disability of the collector, the deputy collector could exercise his power of stamping unstamped instruments. Deskin v. Graham (1866) 19 Iowa, 553.

The exercise of such power affords a presumption of such disability, in the absence of affirmative evidence to the contrary. Id.

A deputy collector has no power, except by special authority of the collector, to remit penalties and stamp instruments left unstamped by mistake. Brown v. Crandal (1867) 23 Iowa, 112; McAfferty v. Hale (1868) 24 Iowa, 355.

The authority of a deputy to stamp unstamped instruments will not be presumed from the mere stamping of the instrument, when the certificate of the deputy thereto is not authenticated by the collector's seal. City of Muscatine v. Sterneman (1871) 30 Iowa, 526, 6 Am. Rep. 685.

A deputy has no power to stamp instruments left unstamped by inadvertence or mistake, except when, in case of sickness or inability of the collector, he acts by special authority in his place. Id.

A deputy collector of the duty on carriages made a distress under Act Dec. 15, 1814, § 4, and, contrary to law, sold it at auction for less than one-half of its value, within two hours after the seizure and without giving public notice of the time of sale. Held that, in making such illegal sale, he was a trespasser ab initio and liable for damages. Blake v. Johnson (1817) 1 N. H. 91.

A deputy collector of the direct tax, appointed under Act July 22, 1813, providing for the collection of internal taxes, was not authorized to collect the taxes imposed by the acts of subsequent years without a new appointment and qualification. Preble v. Young (1827) 4 Me. (4 Greenl.) 431.

§ 5850. (Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 13, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2.) Allowances for collectors' expenses.

There shall be further paid, after the account thereof has been rendered to and approved by the proper officers of the Treasury, to each collector, his necessary and reasonable charges for advertising, stationery, and blank books used in the performance of his official duties, and for postage actually paid on letters and documents received or sent and exclusively relating to official business, but no such account shall be approved or allowed unless it states the date and the particular items of every such expenditure, and shall be verified by the oath of the collector; Provided, That the Secretary of the Treasury, on the recommendation of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, be authorized to make such further allowances, from time to time, as may be reasonable, in cases in which, from the territorial extent of the district, or from the amount of internal duties collected, it may seem just to make such allowances; but no such allowance shall be made if more than one year has elapsed since the close of the fiscal year in which the services were rendered. But the total net compensation of a collector shall not in any case exceed four thousand five hundred dollars a year; and no collector shall be entitled to any portion of the salary pertaining to the office unless such collector shall have been confirmed by the Senate, except in cases of commissions to fill vacancies occurring during the recess of the Senate. (18 Stat. 309. 20 Stat. 330.)

This section was part of the act to amend the laws relating to internal revenue, cited above.

This section, as originally enacted, was amended, by substituting for the words "except within one year after such services are rendered," the words "if more than one year has elapsed since the close of the fiscal year in which the services were rendered," and by substituting for the words "which may have happened by death or resignation" the word "occurring," making the section read as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, last cited above.

This section superseded part of the provisions of R. S. § 3145. See note to that section, ante, following § 5848.

Notes of Decisions

Power and discretion of secretary of the treasury as to allowances.—Additional allowances could not be made by the accounting officers of the treasury, unless previously approved by the secretary, under the second proviso of section 25, Act June 30, 1864 (R. S. § 3145). Hall v. U. S. (1875) 91 U. S. 559, 564, 23 L. Ed. 446.

The discretion of the secretary of the treasury in making additional allowances to collectors (Act June 30, 1864, § 25) cannot be judicially revised. U. S. v. Hall (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 15,284.

Under Internal Revenue Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 25, 13 Stat. 231 (R. S. § 3145), the Secretary of the Treasury might make further allowances of compensation to collectors, and it rested wholly in his discretion to do so; but when he had exercised that discretion, and the increased salary had been paid to the collector, he had no legal right to exact a return of any portion of it as a condition to allowing to the collector a reimbursement of the expenses of his office. In such a case the order for reimbursement stood, and the collector might maintain his action to recover the amount of salary withheld by the treasury on the final settlement of his accounts. Patton v. U. S. (1870) 7 Ct. Cl. 362.

The power of the secretary to make such allowances is unlimited as to time, unless it be limited by the proviso attached to Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 13, by Act March 1, 1879 (20 Stat. 329), which prohibits certain allowances "if more than one year has elapsed since the close of the fiscal year in which the services were rendered." Ryan v. U. S. (1881) 17 Ct. Cl. 47.

The proviso attached to Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 13, by Act March 1, 1879 (20 Stat. 329), cannot be applied to anything contained in that section. It must be regarded as independent legislation, applicable to the provisions of section 12. Id.

§ 5851. (R. S. § 3146.) Accounts of collectors adjusted according to fiscal year.

In adjusting the accounts of collectors, accruing after June thirtieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and in the payment of their compensation for services, the fiscal year of the Treasury shall be observed.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 106.

§ 5852. (Act April 17, 1900, c. 192, § 1.) Detail of deputy collectors for special duty in other districts.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue is authorized to detail deputy collectors of internal revenue in one district for special duty in other districts, and the deputy collectors so detailed shall be paid by the collector of internal revenue and disbursing agent for the district for which they are appointed and for which the allowance for their salary and expenses is made, the same as if all their services had been performed and expenses incurred in that district. (31 Stat. 107.)

This was a provision annexed to an appropriation for salaries and expenses of collectors, deputy collectors, etc., in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1901, cited above.

The detail in like manner of gaugers, storekeeper-gauges, and storekeepers, appointed in one district, for duty in other districts, was authorized by further provisions of the same act, post, § 5876.

§ 5853. (R. S. § 3147.) Certificate as to reports before payment to collector.

No payment shall be made to collectors, on account of salaries or commissions, without the certificate of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue that all reports required by law or regulation have been received, or that a satisfactory explanation has been rendered to him of the cause of delay.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 26, 13 Stat. 232. Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 106.

Provisions of this section preceding those set forth here authorized apportionment of commissions due, in consequence of a new appointment, to more than one collector within the same year. It was rendered inoperative by the provision for allowances for salary, etc., in lieu of salary and commissions previously provided for made by Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 12, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, ante, § 5849.

(R. S. § 3148. Superseded.)

This section provided for the appointment, etc., of deputy collectors. It was superseded by other provisions for the same purpose made by Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 12, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, ante, § 5849.

Cited without definite application, See U. S. v. Farden (1878) 99 U. S. 10, 16, 25 L. Ed. 267; Chadwick v. U. S. (C. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 750; U. S. v. Patrick (C. C. 1893) 54 Fed. 338, 344.

§ 5854. (R. S. § 3149, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2.) Disability or vacancy in office of collector.

In case of the sickness or absence of a collector, or in case of his temporary disability to discharge his duties, they shall devolve upon his senior deputy, unless he shall have devolved them upon another of his deputies; and for the official acts or defaults of such deputies the collector and his sureties shall be held responsible to the United States.

In case of a vacancy occurring in the office of collector, the deputies of such collector shall continue to act until his successor is appointed; and until a successor is appointed, the deputy of such collector senior in service shall discharge all the duties of collector, and also the duties of disbursing agent; and of two or more deputies appointed on the same day, the one residing nearest the residence of the collector when the vacancy occurred shall discharge the said duties until another collector is appointed. When it appears to the Secretary of the Treasury that the interest of the government so requires, he may, by his order, direct the said duties to be performed by such other one of the said deputies as he may designate. For the official acts and defaults of the deputy upon whom said duties are devolved, remedy shall be had on the official bond of the collector, as in other cases; and for the official acts and defaults of such deputy as acting disbursing agent, remedy shall be had on the official bond of the collector as disbursing agent. And any bond or security taken from a deputy by a collector, pursuant to section twelve of "An act to amend existing customs and internal-revenue laws, and for other purposes," approved February eighth, eighteen hundred and seventy-five, shall be available to his legal representatives and sureties to indemnify them for loss or damage accruing from any act or omission of duty by the deputy so continuing or succeeding to the duties of such collector.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, §§ 39, 40, 13 Stat. 238. Act March 3, 1865, c. 78, § 1, 13 Stat. 471. Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 9, 14 Stat. 473. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, 20 Stat. 328.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended principally by changing the provision at the beginning of the section as originally enacted, that, "In case of the sickness of a collector or of his temporary disability to discharge his duties they may be devolved by him upon one of his deputies," to read, "In case of the sickness or absence of a collector, or in case of his temporary disability to discharge his duties, they shall devolve upon his senior deputy, unless he shall have devolved them upon another of his deputies"; by inserting, after the words "shall discharge all the duties of collector," the words, "and also the duties of disbursing agent"; by omitting the words, "Provided that," before the words, "When it appears to the Secretary of the Treasury"; by changing the provision of the original section, "For the official acts and defaults of such senior deputy, remedy shall be had on the official bond of the collector, as in other cases," to read, "For the official acts and defaults of the deputy upon whom said duties are devolved remedy shall be had on the official bond of the collector, as in other cases; and for the official acts and defaults of such deputy as acting disbursing agent, remedy shall be had on the official bond of the collector as disbursing agent"; and by changing the words in the last provision, "pursuant to the preceding section," to "pursuant to section twelve of 'An act to amend existing customs and internal-revenue laws, and for other purposes,' approved February eighth, eighteen hundred and seventy-five," as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, cited above.

Section 12 of Act Feb. 8, 1875, mentioned in this section, is set forth ante, § 5849.

Notes of Decisions

Suspension of collector as creating vacancy.—Where a supervisor of internal revenue suspends a collector for fraud and the Secretary of the Treasury recognizes the suspension and designates a deputy to act as collector "vice F. W., the collector, suspended," there is a vacancy in the office and the deputy will be entitled to the compensation of a collector. Farden v. U. S. (1877) 13 Ct. Cl. 347.

Effect of vacancy in office and appointment of successor.—A vacancy occurring in the office of collector of internal revenue and the appointment of a successor would seem to have the effect, under this section, of vacating the offices of the deputy collectors. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 363.

Appointment of deputies.—It is the duty of the newly appointed collector to fill the offices thus vacated, either by recommissioning the deputies in service by an instrument in writing given under his hand, or by selections either from the eligible register or by transfer from other positions in the classified service, the precise method to be adopted being within the administrative discretion of the collector. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 363.

Deputies should be appointed by collector by an instrument in writing, and this section seems to require that a deputy collector of internal revenue should be appointed by the collector in commission, by an instrumennt in writing under his hand. Id.

Sickness or disability of collector.—The revenue act provides that deputy collectors should have the same authority in every respect to collect the duties and taxes levied and assessed as the collector himself, and that in case of sickness or temporary disability of a collector the duties may devolve on one of the deputies. Held that, during the sickness or temporary disability of the collector, the deputy collector could exercise his power of stamping unstamped instruments. Deskin v. Graham (1866) 19 Iowa, 553.

The exercise of such power affords a presumption of such disability, in the absence of affirmative evidence to the contrary. Id.

The deputy collector of internal revenue has no power to stamp instruments left unstamped by inadvertence or mistake, except when, in case of sickness or inability of the collector, he acts by special authority in his place. City of Muscatine v. Sterneman (1871) 30 Iowa, 526, 6 Am. Dec. 685.

Power of collector after removal.—A collector of internal revenue, after removal from office, has no power to collect the duties outstanding at the time of his removal, and which had accrued while he remained in office, but the power and duty devolve on his successor. Streshley v. U. S. (1807) 8 U. S. (4 Cranch) 169, 2 L. Ed. 584.

Liability of acting collector for public money.—An acting collector of internal revenue is liable for whatever public money he personally took and appropriated to his own use. Hiland v. U. S. (1885) 20 Ct. Cl. 410.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Farden (1878) 99 U. S. 10. 18, 25 L. Ed. 267; Pond v. U. S. (1901) 111 Fed. 989, 49 C. C. A. 582.

§ 5855. (R. S. § 3150.) Deputy collector, when entitled to collector's salary.

Any deputy collector who has performed or may perform, under authority of law, the duties of any collector in consequence of a vacancy in the office of said collector, shall be entitled to receive the salary and commissions allowed by law to such collector, or the allowance in lieu of said salary and commissions allowed by the Secretary of the Treasury to such collector, and the Secretary of the Treasury may make to such deputy collector such allowance in lieu of salary and commissions as he might lawfully make to such collector. And such deputy shall not be debarred from receiving such salary and commissions, or allowances in lieu thereof, by reason of the holding of another Federal office by said collector during the time for which such deputy acts as collector. But all payments to such deputy collector shall be upon duly audited vouchers.

Act March 1, 1869, c. 57, § 1, 15 Stat. 282. Act July 1, 1870, c. 187, 16 Stat. 179.

Subsequent provisions relating to allowances for compensation of deputy collectors and for collectors' salaries and expenses were made by Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, §§ 12, 13, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, ante, §§ 5849, 5850.

Notes of Decisions

Repeal of former statute.—Act March 1, 1869 (15 Stat. 282), precluding a deputy collector of internal revenue in any case from receiving the compensation to which the collector is entitled for services rendered during a period for which the collector is entitled to compensation, is repealed by Act July 1, 1870 (16 Stat. 179), relating to the compensation of such officers and omitting such provision. U. S. v. Farden (1878) 99 U. S. 10, 25 L. Ed. 267.

Compensation of deputy on suspension of collector.—Act March 1, 1869 (15 Stat. 282), precluding a deputy collector of internal revenue from receiving compensation as collector while the collector is entitled to compensation for his services, does not preclude a deputy collector from receiving such compensation for acting as collector while the collector is suspended for fraud. U. S. v. Farden (1878) 99 U. S. 10, 25 L. Ed. 267.

A deputy internal revenue collector, appointed to assume the duties of a collector until some person is appointed and qualified for the office, is entitled to compensation so long as he discharges the duties of the office, and until a person appointed takes possession of the office, though such person takes the oath and gives the required bond several days before taking possession of the office. Id.

The suspension of a collector by the supervisor of internal revenue, on the ground of alleged fraud, and the action of the secretary of the treasury directing a deputy to continue in office until a successor to the suspended officer was appointed and qualified, created a vacancy within the meaning of the act entitling the deputy to the compensation. Id.

Where a collector was suspended for alleged fraud and the deputy was acting, the deputy was not to be deprived of the salary by virtue of the first section of the original act providing that no such payment should be made where the collector had received or was entitled to receive the compensation, even if such provision is not repealed. The better opinion is that that provision is not in force. It was left out of the act passed the next year to define the true intent of the provision and is not contained in section 3150. Id.

Where the Secretary of the Treasury directs a deputy collector of internal revenue to perform the duties of collector, "vice F. W., suspended," the person so designated is entitled to the compensation of a collector under this section. Farden v. U. S. (1877) 13 Ct. Cl. 347.

Time for which deputy is entitled to compensation.—After a deputy collector has been designated by the Secretary of Treasury to act as collector during a vacancy, he is entitled to the compensation of a collector until the subsequently appointed collector enters upon the discharge of his duties and appoints his own deputy; i. e., his compensation as collector is not stopped by the new collector taking the oath and giving bonds. Farden v. U. S. (1877) 13 Ct. Cl. 347.

Action for compensation.—When a deputy collector of internal revenue performs under authority of law the duties of collector, a privity arises, and he may maintain an action for his compensation as collector. Herndon v. U. S. (1879) 15 Ct. Cl. 446.

(R. S. § 3151. Repealed.)

This section provided for the appointment of inspectors of tobacco and cigars. It was repealed by Act Aug. 4, 1886, c. 896, § 2, 24 Stat. 218.

The appointment of twelve inspectors to aid in the ascertainment of the amount of sugar bounty payable under the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 1, pars. 231–236, 26 Stat. 583, was authorized by Act March 3, 1891, c. 541, § 1, 26 Stat. 925. The provisions authorizing the payment of sugar bounties were repealed by the Wilson Tariff Act of Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 1, par. 182, 28 Stat. 521, and therefore the authority to appoint such inspectors may be regarded as impliedly repealed.

Cited without definite application,
See Hartson v. U. S. (1886) 21 Ct. Cl. 451.

§ 5856. (R. S. § 3152, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2.) Internal revenue agents.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue may, whenever in his judgment the necessities of the service so require, employ competent agents, not exceeding at any time thirty-five in number, to be paid such compensation as he may deem proper, not exceeding in the aggregate any appropriation made for that purpose; and he may, at his discretion, assign any such agent to duty under the direction of any officer of internal revenue, or to such other special duty as he may deem necessary; and no general or special agent or inspector, by whatever designation he may be known, of the Treasury Department, in connection with the internal revenue, except inspectors of tobacco, snuff, and cigars and except as provided for in this title, shall be appointed, commissioned, employed, or continued in office.

The agents whose employment is authorized by this section shall be known and designated as internal-revenue agents, and they shall have all the powers of entry and examination conferred upon any officer of internal revenue, by sections thirty-one hundred and seventy-seven, thirty-two hundred and seventy-seven, thirty-two hundred and eighty-six, and thirty-three hundred and eighteen of the Revised Statutes; and all the provisions of said sections, including those imposing fines, forfeitures, penalties, or other punishments for the enforcement thereof, are hereby made applicable to the action of internal-revenue agents, in the same manner as if such agents were specially named in each of said sections.

And all the provisions of sections thirty-one hundred and sixty-seven, thirty-one hundred and sixty-eight, thirty-one hundred and sixty-nine, and thirty-one hundred and seventy-one of the Revised Statutes shall apply to internal-revenue agents as fully as to internal-revenue officers.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 7, 14 Stat. 473. Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 50, 15 Stat. 145. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 241. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, 20 Stat. 329.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by increasing the limit of the number of internal-revenue agents from twenty-five, as originally authorized, to thirty-five, and by adding at the end of the section, as originally enacted, the provisions beginning with the words, "The agents whose employment is authorized," to the end of the section as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, cited above.

The number of internal revenue agents was limited to twenty by a provision of Act July 7, 1884, c. 331, § 1, set forth post, § 5857. Ten additional agents were authorized by a provision of Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 3, 30 Stat. 450, and additional clerks and agents, not to exceed twenty, necessary to carry into effect sections 35–49 of that act, were authorized by section 47 thereof. Said sections 3 and 47 were superseded by provisions of Act April 28, 1902, c. 594, § 1, 32 Stat. 142, and subsequent acts set forth post, §§ 5858–5861.

The compensation of internal-revenue agents was more definitely prescribed by provisions of Act March 3, 1885, c. 343, § 1, 23 Stat. 404, and Act April 17, 1900, c. 192, § 1, post, § 5860.

R. S. §§ 3177, 3277, 3286, 3318, mentioned in the second paragraph of this section, are set forth post, §§ 5900, 6017, 6027, 6100; and sections 3167– 3169, 3171, mentioned in the last paragraph of this section, are set forth post, §§ 5887–5889, 5894.

Falsely assuming to be a revenue officer, and in such character demanding or receiving money, was punishable by R. S. § 5448, which was incorporated into the Criminal Code, in section 66 thereof, post, § 10234, and was repealed by section 341 thereof, post, § 10515.

Notes of Decisions

Revocation of appointment of agent.—Where the commissioner appoints a person to be an agent during the pleasure of the commissioner, his appointment may be revoked at any time. Wheelock v. U. S. (1910) 46 Ct. Cl. 1.

Compensation of agent.—Where a person was appointed agent on a per diem compensation, and by the terms of the appointment was to be paid only when actually employed, and a telegraphic order in effect, placed him on waiting orders, he will not be entitled to compensation if not actually employed. Wheelock v. U. S. (1910) 46 Ct. Cl. 1.

Detectives as revenue officers.—Detectives whom the commissioner of internal revenue is authorized to employ by the fiftieth section of Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, are not internal revenue officers. (1870) 13 Op. Atty. Gen. 229.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Fifty-Nine Demijohns of Aguadiente and Four Barrels of Cigarettes (D. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 401, 402.

§ 5857. (Act July 7, 1884, c. 331, § 1.) Limitation of number of agents.

Hereafter there shall not be employed exceeding twenty agents, in lieu of the number now authorized by law. (23 Stat. 172.)

This was a provision of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1885, cited above.

Additional agents were authorized by provisions of Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, §§ 3, 47, 30 Stat. 450, 469, which were superseded by the provisions of Act April 28, 1902, c. 594, § 1, 32 Stat. 142, and other subsequent acts, set forth post, §§ 5858–5861.

The number of internal revenue agents authorized under R. S. § 3152, ante, § 5856, and the provisions of this act and Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, §§ 3, 47, 30 Stat. 450, 469, was affected by the provisions of Act April 28, 1902, c. 594, § 1, 32 Stat. 142, and subsequent acts, set forth post, §§ 5858–5861.

§ 5858. (Act Feb. 25, 1903, c. 755, § 1.) Additional agents.

For salaries and expenses of twenty additional internal revenue agents to be appointed and employed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and these twenty agents to be in lieu of the agents provided for and appointed under the provisions of sections three and forty-seven of the act of June thirteenth, eighteen hundred and ninety-eight, providing for war revenue expenditures and other purposes, and these to be the only internal revenue agents employed in addition to those provided for in section three thousand one hundred and fifty-two of the Revised Statutes. The existing provisions of law with regard to internal revenue agents shall apply to the duties, compensation, and expenses of these twenty additional agents. (32 Stat. 877.)

This was a provision of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1904, cited above, which repeated a provision of the similar act for the preceding fiscal year, Act April 28, 1902, c. 594, § 1, 32 Stat. 142.

An appropriation "for continuing salaries and expenses of twenty additional internal revenue agents" was made for the fiscal year 1905, by Act March 18, 1904, c. 716, § 1, set forth post, § 5859. And for subsequent fiscal years an appropriation was made "for salaries and expenses of forty revenue agents provided for by law," as in Act Feb. 3, 1905, c. 297, § 1, also set forth post, § 5861.

§ 5859. (Act March 18, 1904, c. 716, § 1.) Additional agents.

For continuing salaries and expenses of twenty additional internal-revenue agents appointed and employed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the employment of this force being made necessary by the increased collections of internal revenue. The existing provisions of law with regard to internal-revenue agents shall apply to the duties, compensation, and expenses of these twenty additional agents. (33 Stat. 106.)

This was a provision of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1905, cited above.

The corresponding provision for the year next following, by Act Feb. 3, 1905, c. 297, § 1, is set forth post, § 5861.

§ 5860. (Act April 17, 1900, c. 192, § 1.) Limit of compensation of agents; per diem in lieu of subsistence.

The compensation of the chief of the internal-revenue agents shall not exceed ten dollars per day, and of the other agents not exceeding seven dollars per day each; [and for per diem in lieu of subsistence, when absent on duty from their legal residence, said agents shall receive, at a rate to be fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury, not exceeding three dollars per day]. (31 Stat. 107.)

This was a proviso annexed to an appropriation for salaries and expenses of agents, etc., in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year ending 1901, cited above.

This proviso was a repetition of a proviso annexed to a provision of Act March 3, 1885, c. 343, § 1, post, § 5878.

The limitation imposed by this provision on the per diem to be allowed to agents was extended, as to agents assigned to the duty of examining accounts of collectors, by a provision of Act Feb. 3, 1905, c. 297, § 1, set forth post, § 5861.

The detail of gaugers, etc., was authorized by another proviso of this act, set forth post, § 5876.

The words in brackets are superseded by Act Aug. 1, 1914, c. 223, § 13, 38 Stat. 680, ante, § 3236b. But the latter provision is in turn superseded as to employés of the internal revenue service by Act May 10, 1916, c. 117, § 1, post, § 5861a.

§ 5861. (Act Feb. 3, 1905, c. 297, § 1.) Compensation of agents assigned to duty of examining accounts.

For salaries and expenses of forty revenue agents provided for by law, * *: Provided, That internal-revenue agents assigned to the duty of examining the accounts of collectors of internal revenue shall receive for per diem in lieu of subsistence, when absent from their legal residences on duty, a sum, to be fixed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, not to exceed four dollars. (33 Stat. 652.)

This was a provision of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1906, cited above.

The appropriation by this act "for salaries and expenses of forty revenue agents provided for by law" was repeated in the similar subsequent appropriation acts. The provision for the fiscal year 1917 was by Act May 10, 1916, c. 117, § 1, 39 Stat.

Previous provisions relating to per diem to be allowed to internal revenue agents, were made by Act April 17, 1900, c. 192, § 1, ante, § 5860.

§ 5861a. (Act May 10, 1916, c. 117, § 1.) Employees engaged in field work, etc.; designation of posts of duty; per diem.

Hereafter the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall determine and designate the posts of duty of all employees of the Internal Revenue Service engaged in field work or traveling on official business outside of the District of Columbia, and when ordered from their designated posts of duty all internal revenue agents appointed under Section thirty-one hundred and fifty-two, Revised Statutes, as amended, and cotton-futures attorneys, may be granted per diem in lieu of subsistence not exceeding $4, and, when ordered from their designated posts of duty, income-tax agents and inspectors, special gaugers, and special employees may be granted a per diem in lieu of subsistence not exceeding $3, the per diem in lieu of subsistence to be fixed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. (39 Stat.)

See § 3236b, ante, for a provision relating to all executive departments.

§ 5862. (R. S. § 3153.) Store-keepers and their salaries.

There shall be appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury such number of internal-revenue store-keepers as may be necessary, who shall each receive such compensation, not exceeding five dollars a day, to be paid monthly by the United States, as may be determined by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. No store-keeper shall be engaged in any other business while in the service of the United States, without the written permission of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Every store-keeper shall take an oath faithfully to perform the duties of his office, and shall give a bond, to be approved by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, for the faithful discharge of his duties, in such form and for such amount as the Commissioner may prescribe.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 52, 15 Stat. 145. Res. March 29, 1869, No. 5, 16 Stat. 52. Act July 12, 1870, c. 251, § 1, 16 Stat. 239. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 14, 17 Stat. 244.

The duties of store-keeper and gauger may be imposed upon one officer by provisions of Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, and Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 64, post, §§ 5869, 5874.

The compensation of store-keepers and of store-keepers and gaugers was prescribed by provisions of Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, Act June 21, 1879, c. 34, § 2, Act March 3, 1885, c. 343, § 1, as amended by Act Feb. 24, 1911, c. 149, Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 63, as amended by Act May 13, 1910, c. 236, and Act July 7, 1898, c. 571, § 1, post, §§ 5868, 5869, 5871–5873.

The officer holding the combined office of storekeeper and gauger was denominated storekeeper-gauger, and his compensation was prescribed by Act June 28, 1902, c. 1312, set forth post, § 5870.

Notes of Decisions

Expenses and salary of storekeepers.—Per diem wages paid to storekeepers for taking charge of distillery warehouses on Sundays, are expenses within the joint resolution of March 29, 1869, which declares that the proprietors of all internal revenue bonded warehouses shall reimburse to the United States the expenses of storekeepers put by it in charge of them. U. S. v. Powell (1871) 81 U. S. (14 Wall.) 493, 20 L. Ed. 726.

The "distillery warehouses" which distillers are required by Act July 20, 1868, § 15 (15 Stat. 128), to provide, situated on their distillery premises are "bonded warehouses," within the joint resolution of March 29, 1869 (16 Stat. 52), which declares that the proprietors of all "internal revenue bonded warehouses" shall reimburse to the United States the expenses and salary of all storekeepers put by it in charge of them. Id.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. McCartney (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 104, 105.

§ 5863. (R. S. § 3154.) Assignment and transfer of store-keepers.

One or more store-keepers shall be assigned by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to every bonded or distillery warehouse established by law; and any store-keeper may be transferred by the supervisor on duty in the district, or by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, from one warehouse to another.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 52, 15 Stat. 146. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 241.

On the abolition of the office of supervisor of internal revenue by Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, the power of transfer of officers conferred on supervisors by R. S. § 3163, as originally enacted, was vested in the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, by a provision of that act, post, § 5882; and the Commissioner was further authorized to make such transfer by R. S. § 3163, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, post, § 5883.

The transfer of gaugers from one place of duty to another was provided for by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 65, post, § 5875.

§ 5864. (R. S. § 3155.) Temporary store-keeper.

In case of the absence of any internal-revenue store-keeper by reason of sickness or other cause, the collector having control of the warehouse may designate a person to have temporary charge thereof, who shall, during such absence, perform the duties and receive the pay of the store-keeper for the time he may be so employed, and shall for any violation of the law be subject to the same punishment as store-keepers.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 52, 15 Stat. 146.

§ 5865. (R. S. § 3156.) Gaugers.

The Secretary of the Treasury shall appoint in every collection-district where they may be necessary, one or more internal-revenue gaugers, who shall each take an oath faithfully to perform his duties, and shall give bond, with one or more sureties, satisfactory to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, for the faithful discharge of the duties assigned to him by law or regulations; and the penal sum of said bond shall not be less than five thousand dollars, and said bond shall be renewed or strengthened as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may require. The duties of every such gauger shall be performed under the supervision and direction of the collector of the district to which he may be assigned, or of the collector in charge of exports at any port of entry to which he may be assigned.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 53, 15 Stat. 147.

Provisions for the performance of duties of storekeeper and gauger by one officer were made by Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, post, § 5869.

The officer holding the combined office of storekeeper and gauger was denominated storekeeper-gauger, and his compensation was prescribed by Act June 28, 1902, c. 1312, set forth post, § 5870.

Provisions of Act March 3, 1885, c. 343, § 1, and Act Aug. 28, 1894, c. 349, § 63, relating to compensation of storekeepers and storekeeper-gaugers, were amended, by Act May 13, 1910, c. 236, and Act Feb. 24, 1911, c. 149, set forth post, §§ 5872, 5874.

A gauger employing distiller, etc., to use brands or perform his duties, was punishable by R. S. § 3290, post, § 6031.

Gaugers were required to make daily returns by R. S. § 3291, post, § 6032.

Fraudulent inspection, gauging, etc., was punishable by R. S. § 3292, post, § 6033.

Notes of Decisions

Gauger as officer.—A gauger is an officer. Hedrick v. U. S. (1880) 16 Ct. Cl. 88.

Form of bond.—See (1885) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 274, holding that, where the form of the bond is not prescribed by statute, its form may be determined by the officer whose duty it is to approve the same.

Regulations as to gaugers and gauging.—The commissioner of internal revenue has a right to make regulations concerning gauging and in relation to gaugers obligatory upon them. U. S. v. Bittinger (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 14,599.

Mistake in overgauging spirits.—A distiller cannot avail himself of any mistake of the officer in overgauging the spirits. U. S. v. Dutcher (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,014.

Liability for negligence.—A United States gauger in charge of plaintiff's warehouse is bound to use ordinary care; and, if whisky is lost through his gross negligence, he is liable. Rock Springs Distilling Co. v. Thruston (1897) 39 S. W. 253, 19 Ky. Law Rep. 166.

To establish the defense that defendant left open a stopcock (causing the loss), at plaintiff's request, it must appear that he was so requested by one authorized to act for plaintiff. Id.

Where it was the duty of a United States gauger in charge of plaintiff's warehouse to lock the box inclosing the faucets through which the whisky was drawn, unless he was requested not to do so by one authorized to act for plaintiff, if the faucet obstructed the locking of the box, he should have removed the obstruction, or required it to have been removed. Id.

Cited without definite application, Soule v. U. S. (1879) 100 U. S. 8, 10, 25 L. Ed. 536.

§ 5866. (R. S. § 3157.) Gaugers' fees.

Gaugers shall be entitled to receive such fees, to be determined by the quantity gauged, as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; and said fees, together with their actual and necessary traveling expenses, shall be verified by their oaths, and shall be paid by the United States monthly.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 53, 15 Stat. 147. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 14, 17 Stat. 244.

The compensation of gaugers and of storekeepers and gaugers was prescribed by provisions of Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, Act June 19, 1878, c. 329, § 1, Act June 21, 1879, c. 34, § 2, Act March 3, 1885, c. 343, § 1, as amended by Act Feb. 24, 1911, c. 149, Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 63, as amended by Act May 13, 1910, c. 236, and Act July 7, 1898, c. 571, § 1, set forth post, §§ 5867–5869, 5871–5873.

Notes of Decisions

Gauging fees paid to collector.—Under 15 Stat. 147, gauging fees to be paid to the collector of internal revenue by the owner or producer of the articles to be gauged, and to be retained by him until the last day of each month, when they were to be paid to the officers performing their duty at a certain fixed rate, the sureties on the collector's bond were liable on his failure to account to the United States for any excess, received, and not paid out, over such fixed rate. Soule v. U. S. (1879) 100 U. S. 8, 25 L. Ed. 536.

§ 5867. (Act June 19, 1878, c. 329, § 1.) Limit of gauger's compensation.

Hereafter the compensation of gaugers shall not exceed five dollars per day while actually employed. (20 Stat. 187.)

This was a provision following an appropriation for salaries, fees, and expenses of internal-revenue officers in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1879, cited above.

The pay of gaugers employed in gauging fruit brandy was limited by Act July 7, 1898, c. 571, § 1, set forth post, § 5868.

The fees of gaugers were fixed by R. S. § 3157, ante, § 5866.

The compensation of gaugers assigned to supervise the fortification of wines was prescribed by Act June 7, 1906, c. 3046, § 3, as amended by Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 2, 38 Stat. 750, post, § 6119. See, also, Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 402[g], post, § 6114d and notes thereunder.

§ 5868. (Act July 7, 1898, c. 571, § 1.) Compensation of gaugers employed in gauging fruit brandy, or detailed for special duty.

Gaugers employed in gauging fruit brandy, and gaugers specially detailed for special duty under the direction of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, may be paid, at the discretion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, either by fees to be determined by the quantity gauged, or by a daily compensation not to exceed five dollars per diem while actually employed; and in calculating the daily compensation of all gaugers paid by fees, the quantity gauged for which fees are paid may be determined by dividing the aggregate gallons of spirits gauged by the number of days on which the gauger was actually employed during the month. (30 Stat. 656.)

This was a provision following an appropriation for detecting and punishing violations of internal revenue laws in the deficiency appropriation act for the fiscal year 1898, cited above.

The compensation of gaugers generally was limited by Act June 19, 1878, c. 329, § 1, set forth ante, § 5867.

Bonded warehouses for the manufacture of fruit brandy were established by Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 6, Act Oct. 18, 1888, c. 1194, post, §§ 6039–6050, 6091.

§ 5869. (Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1.) Store-keepers and gaugers; compensation; performance of duties by one officer.

Hereafter no storekeeper shall receive a greater compensation than four dollars per day; and said gaugers and storekeepers, respectively shall only receive compensation when rendering actual service.

* * * * * * * *

The Secretary of the Treasury may, upon the recommendation of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, impose the duties of storekeeper and gauger upon one officer, where the amount of spirits produced at the distillery, to which such officer may be assigned, is not sufficient, in the judgment of the Commissioner to warrant the employment of two officers to perform the separate duties of storekeeper and gauger. The Secretary of the Treasury may issue a commission to such officer as storekeeper and gauger, but the compensation for his services as storekeeper and gauger shall be that of storekeeper only. (19 Stat. 152.)

These were provisions following an appropriation for salaries, fees, and expenses of internal-revenue officers in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1877, cited above.

The pay of store-keepers was limited to five dollars a day by R. S. § 3153, ante, § 5862.

The pay of store-keepers and of store-keepers and gaugers at distilleries that mash less than sixty bushels of grain a day was limited by Act June 21, 1879, c. 34, § 2, set forth post, § 5871. The pay of store-keepers and of store-keepers and gaugers at distilleries with a registered capacity of twenty bushels or less was fixed by Act March 3, 1885, c. 343, § 1, as amended by Act Feb. 24, 1911, c. 149, set forth post, § 5872. The pay of gaugers and storekeeper-gaugers at wineries is fixed by Act June 6, 1906, c. 3046, § 3, as amended by Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 2, 38 Stat. 750, post, § 6119, and by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 402[g], post, § 6114d.

A further provision at the end of the second paragraph of this act, set forth here, requiring the officer appointed storekeeper and gauger to give a bond in the penal sum of not less than $5,000 for the faithful performance of the combined duties of store-keeper and gauger, was superseded by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 64, post, § 5874.

The duties of storekeeper-gaugers were prescribed by said Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 64, post, § 5874.

Notes of Decisions

Compensation of storekeeper.—The declaration that internal revenue storekeepers "shall only receive compensation when rendering actual service" excludes compensation during intervals when a storekeeper is not assigned to duty. McNeil v. U. S. (1888) 23 Ct. Cl. 413.

Under the statute a storekeeper is entitled to receive a per diem compensation only while "rendering actual service," and hence during such time as he is not assigned to duty and does not perform duty no compensation can be allowed him. (1886) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 398.

§ 5870. (Act June 28, 1902, c. 1312.) Storekeeper-gauger's compensation.

The internal-revenue officer holding the combined office of storekeeper and gauger shall hereafter be known and denominated as a storekeeper-gauger, and when performing the combined duties of storekeeper-gauger, or when assigned by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to perform the duties of a storekeeper only at any distillery, or at any general or special bonded warehouse, he shall receive for his services the compensation of storekeeper only; but when assigned by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to perform the duties of gauger only, under the internal-revenue laws, as provided by those laws, he shall receive only the compensation for his services and the traveling expenses which are allowed by law to United States gaugers. (32 Stat. 492.)

This was a provision of an Act to amend the internal-revenue laws in regard to storekeepers and gaugers, cited above.

Previous provisions for the performance of the duties of storekeeper and gauger by one officer were made by Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, ante, § 5869.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 6009, post.

§ 5871. (Act June 21, 1879, c. 34, § 2.) Compensation of storekeepers at small distilleries; storekeeper-gaugers.

Hereafter storekeepers at distilleries that mash less than sixty bushels of grain per day shall be allowed not exceeding fifty dollars per month. But when one person acts as storekeeper and gauger, his salary shall not exceed four dollars per day for the time actually employed. (21 Stat. 27.)

This was a provision following an appropriation to meet a deficiency in the appropriation for salaries, fees, and expenses of internal revenue officers in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1880, cited above.

The duties of store-keeper and gauger may be imposed upon one officer by Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, ante, § 5869, and Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 64, set forth post, § 5874.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 6009, post.

§ 5872. (Act March 3, 1885, c. 343, § 1, as amended, Act Feb. 24, 1911, c. 149.) Compensation of storekeepers, gaugers and storekeeper-gaugers, at small distilleries.

Hereafter storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers who are assigned to distilleries with a registered capacity of twenty bushels or less, or who are assigned to other places where the compensation is now less than three dollars a day, shall receive three dollars a day for services. (23 Stat. 404. 36 Stat. 928.)

This was a provision of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1886, first cited above.

The provision as originally enacted was as follows:

"Hereafter storekeepers, or storekeepers and gaugers, who are assigned to distilleries whose registered capacity is twenty bushels or less, shall receive two dollars per day for their services."

It was amended to read as set forth here by Act Feb. 24, 1911, c. 149, last cited above.

The number of revenue officers was limited by a further provision of said Act March 3, 1885, c. 343, § 1, set forth post, § 5878.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 6009, post.

§ 5873. (Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 63, as amended, Act May 13, 1910, c. 236.) Compensation of storekeepers, storekeeper-gaugers, and gaugers, when traveling.

Storekeepers, storekeeper-gaugers, and gaugers, when traveling to or from assignments, or when transferred from one assignment to another, either in the same district or in different districts, shall receive the same compensation per day during the time necessarily occupied in traveling that they would be entitled to if on duty at the place to which assigned or transferred, or from which relieved, together with actual and necessary traveling expenses. (28 Stat. 567. 36 Stat. 369.)

This section and the two sections next following were part of the Wilson Tariff Act of 1894, first cited above.

This section, as originally enacted, provided that storekeepers, and storekeepers and gaugers, when transferred from one distillery to another, should receive "compensation not exceeding four dollars per day during the time necessarily occupied in traveling from one distillery to the other, together with actual and necessary traveling expenses." It was amended to read as set forth here by Act May 13, 1910, c. 236, last cited above.

The compensation of storekeepers and of storekeepers and gaugers was prescribed by Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, and subsequent acts set forth ante, §§ 5869–5872.

A general limitation on subsistence allowances, or money in lieu thereof, is made by §§ 3236a, 3236b, ante.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 6009, post.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 5874. (Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 64.) Duties of storekeeper-gauger; bond.

The officer holding the combined office of storekeeper and gauger, under the provisions of the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation Act, approved August fifteenth, eighteen hundred and seventy-six (Nineteenth Statutes, page one hundred and fifty-two), may be assigned by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to perform the separate duties of a storekeeper at any distillery, or at any general or special bonded warehouse, or to perform any of the duties of a gauger under the internal-revenue laws. And the said officer, before entering upon the discharge of such separate duties, shall give a bond to be approved by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for the faithful discharge of his duties in such form and for such amount as the Commissioner may prescribe. (28 Stat. 567.)

See notes to section 63 of this act, ante, § 5873.

The duties of storekeeper and gauger may be imposed upon one officer, by Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, set forth ante, § 5869.

The provisions of this section as to the bond to be given superseded the provisions on the same subject made by Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, 19 Stat. 152.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 5875. (Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 65.) Assignment to duty and transfer of gaugers.

Internal-revenue gaugers may be assigned to duty at distilleries, rectifying houses, or wherever gauging is required to be done, and transferred from one place of duty to another, by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, in like manner as storekeepers and storekeepers and gaugers are now assigned and transferred. (28 Stat. 567.)

The transfer of storekeepers was provided for by R. S. § 3154, ante, § 5863.

Gaugers, storekeepers and storekeeper-gaugers may be transferred from one place of duty to another, or from one district to another, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, incorporated into R. S. § 3163, post, § 5883.

The assignment of gaugers for the supervision of fortification of wines was provided for by Act June 7, 1906, c. 3046, § 3, as amended by Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 2, post, § 6119. See, also, in this connection, § 6114d, and notes thereunder.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 5876. (Act April 17, 1900, c. 192, § 1.) Detail of gaugers, etc., for duty in other districts; accounts.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue is authorized to detail gaugers, storekeeper-gaugers, and storekeepers, appointed in one district, for special or regular duty in other districts, and the accounts of gaugers, storekeeper-gaugers, and storekeepers so detailed shall be adjusted and paid in the district where they are appointed the same as if assigned to regular duty, without regard to the number of districts in which they may have been employed in any one month, the same as if all their services had been performed and expenses incurred in the district in which appointed, and the order of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue transferring gaugers, storekeeper-gaugers, or storekeepers to special work shall be accepted by the accounting officers of the Treasury Department as full authority for proper expenses incurred by said gaugers, storekeeper-gaugers, or storekeepers, while so assigned. (31 Stat. 107.)

This was a proviso following an appropriation for salaries, fees, and expenses of agents, gaugers, and storekeepers, and of storekeepers and gaugers, in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1901, cited above.

The proviso preceding this proviso, as to the pay of agents and a per diem allowance in lieu of subsistence, which was a repetition of a proviso annexed to a provision of Act March 3, 1885, c. 343, § 1, 23 Stat. 404, is set forth ante, § 5852.

The detail of deputy collectors in one district for duty in other districts was authorized by other provisions of this act, ante, § 5852.

The Commissioner was authorized to transfer gaugers, storekeeper-gaugers, and storekeepers, by R. S. § 3154, Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 65, set forth ante, §§ 5863, 5875, and by R. S. § 3163, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, set forth post, § 5883.

§ 5877. (Act June 23, 1910, c. 356.) Leave of absence to storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers.

Storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers shall be, and are hereby, granted a cumulative annual leave of absence, with pay, not to exceed in the aggregate fifteen days for any one year: Provided, That said leave of absence is so computed as not to exceed one and one-quarter days for each twenty-six days said storekeepers, gaugers, and storekeeper-gaugers are actually assigned to duty: Provided further, That such leave shall be operative under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe. (36 Stat. 592.)

§ 5877a. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 413.) Internal revenue agents granted leave of absence with pay.

That all internal revenue agents and inspectors be granted leave of absence with pay, which shall not be cumulative, not to exceed thirty days in any calendar year, under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe. (39 Stat.)

This is a provision of "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," cited above. By section 412, post, § 5980m, this section takes effect the day following its passage.

§ 5878. (Act March 3, 1885, c. 343, § 1.) Limit of number of revenue officers.

No collector in any district shall recommend, nor shall there be appointed or commissioned, more deputy collectors, storekeepers, storekeepers and gaugers, gaugers, inspectors, or other officers, or allowed to remain in commission more of any of said officers, at any one time, than fifteen per centum in excess of the number actually engaged in performing duty at the time and indispensably necessary for the performance of said duty. (23 Stat. 404.)

This was part of a provision following an appropriation for salaries and expenses of internal-revenue officers in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1886, cited above.

A preceding provision, limiting the compensation of storekeepers, and storekeeper-gaugers, at small distilleries, was amended by Act Feb. 24, 1911, c. 149, as set forth ante, § 5872.

A proviso, following this provision, limiting the compensation of internal-revenue agents, and for a per diem in lieu of subsistence, omitted here, was repeated by Act April 17, 1900, c. 192, § 1, ante, § 5860.

The number of collectors was limited by Act Aug. 23, 1912, c. 350, § 1, ante, § 5844.

§ 5879. (R. S. § 3158, as amended, Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, § 1.) Statement under oath of fees, etc.; penalty.

Every internal-revenue officer, whose payment, charges, salary, or compensation are composed, wholly or in part, of fees, commissions, allowances, or rewards, from whatever source derived, shall be required to render to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, under regulations to be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, a statement under oath setting forth the entire amount of such fees, commissions, emoluments, or rewards of whatever nature, or from whatever source received, during the time for which said statement is rendered; and any false statement knowingly and willfully rendered under the requirements of this section, or regulations established in accordance therewith, shall be deemed willful perjury, and punished in the manner provided by law for the crime of perjury. And any neglect or omission to render such statement when required shall be punished by a fine of not less than two hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, in the discretion of the court.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 42, 13 Stat. 239. Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 60, 14 Stat. 168. Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, § 1, 18 Stat. 319.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting after the words "of not less than" the word "two," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, § 1, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

Accounting for fees.—Officers' fees need not be immediately paid over to the internal revenue department, but may be accounted for in the semiannual returns of the officers. U. S. v. Cigars, etc. (D. C. 1880) Fed. Cas. No. 14,793a.

Indictment for false return and for perjury—Election.—Where indictments are found under Act June 30, 1864, both for making false returns (section 15) and for perjury (section 42), the prosecution must elect between them. U. S. v. Rumsey (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 16,207.

(R. S. §§ 3159, 3160. Repealed.)

These sections authorized the appointment of supervisors of internal revenue, not exceeding ten, at an annual salary not exceeding $3,000 a year each, in addition to necessary expenses, for assignment to duty in any part of the United States, and subject to transfer from place to place. They were repealed by a provision of Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, set forth, post, § 5882.

§ 5880. (R. S. § 3161.) Officers in charge of exportations and drawbacks.

In any port of the United States where there is more than one collector of internal revenue, the Secretary of the Treasury may designate one of them to have charge of all matters relating to the exportation of articles subject to tax under the internal-revenue laws; and at any port where he may deem it necessary, there shall be appointed by him an officer to superintend all matters of exportation and drawback, under the direction of the collector. The compensation of the officers last named shall be prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, but shall not exceed, in any case, an annual rate of two thousand dollars, excepting at New York, where such compensation shall be at the annual rate of three thousand dollars. At any port where there is no superintendent of exports, all the duties and services required of such officers shall be performed by the collector of internal revenue designated to have charge of exportation. All the books, papers, and documents in the bureau of drawbacks in the respective ports, relating to the drawback of taxes paid under the internal-revenue law, shall be delivered to the collector of internal revenue in charge of exportation.

Act March 3, 1865, c. 78, § 15, 13 Stat. 486. Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, §§ 20, 41, 14 Stat. 153, 161.

Provisions relating to drawback were made by R. S. §§ 3015–3057, ante, §§ 5720–5759.

Notes of Decisions

Claim for drawback.—Where the commissioner of internal revenue has not acquired jurisdiction of a claim for drawback because certain papers were not filed with the proper officer within the time prescribed by law, his certificate is a nullity, and an action cannot be maintained upon it. Davis v. U. S. (1881) 17 Ct. Cl. 292.

§ 5881. (R. S. § 3162.) Superintendents of exports and drawbacks may administer oaths.

Every collector of internal revenue and every superintendent of exports and drawbacks is authorized to administer such oaths and to certify to such papers as may be necessary under any regulation prescribed under the authority of the internal-revenue laws.

Act March 3, 1865, c. 78, § 15, 13 Stat. 486. Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 20, 14 Stat. 153.

§ 5882. (Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1.) Commissioner may transfer or suspend officers.

Sections thirty-one hundred and fifty-nine, and thirty-one hundred and sixty of the Revised Statutes, and all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of the foregoing paragraphs relating to the internal revenue service, are hereby repealed. The powers of transfer, and of suspension, of officers conferred upon supervisors by section thirty-one hundred and sixty-three of the Revised Statutes, are hereby vested in the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; and all other powers conferred, and duties imposed, by said section upon supervisors, are hereby conferred and imposed upon collectors of internal revenue within their respective districts. In case of the supervision of a collector, under the power hereby conferred, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall, as soon thereafter as practicable, report the case to the President through the Secretary of the Treasury for such action as he may deem proper. (19 Stat. 152.)

This was a provision following an appropriation for salaries, fees, and expenses of internal-revenue officers in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1877, cited above.

A provision immediately preceding this repealed R. S. §§ 3159, 3160, and all laws in conflict with foregoing paragraphs relating to the internal-revenue service.

In the last sentence of this provision, the word "supervision" is intended, apparently, for the word "suspension."

The powers and duties of said supervisors were defined by section 3163, as originally enacted, as follows:

"Every supervisor, under the direction of the Commissioner, shall see that all laws and regulations relating to the collection of internal-taxes are faithfully executed and complied with; and shall aid in the prevention, detection, and punishment of any frauds in relation thereto, and examine into the efficiency and conduct of all officers of internal revenue; and for such purposes he shall have power to examine all persons, books, papers, accounts, and premises, to administer oaths, and to summon any person to produce books and papers, or to appear and testify under oath before him, and to compel a compliance with such summons in the same manner as collectors may do. He shall report in writing to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue any neglect of duty, incompetency, delinquency, or malfeasance in office of any internal-revenue officer of which he may obtain knowledge, with a statement of all the facts in each case, and any evidence sustaining the same. He may, by notice in writing, suspend from duty any inspector, gauger, or storekeeper, and he may suspend any collector for fraud, or gross neglect of duty, or abuse of power. In case of the suspension of any inspector, gauger, or storekeeper, he shall immediately notify the collector of the proper district and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and within three days thereafter report his action and his reasons therefor, in writing, to the Commissioner. In case of the suspension of any collector, he shall immediately report his action to the Commissioner, with his reasons therefor, in writing, and the Commissioner, in all cases of suspension, shall thereupon take such action as he may deem proper. Every supervisor may also transfer any inspector, gauger, or storekeeper from one distillery, or other place of duty, or from one collection-district, to another."

The powers and duties of the Commissioner and collectors were modified by the amendment of R. S. § 3163, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, incorporated into that section, post, § 5883.

Notes of Decisions

Supervisors under former law.— There was no privity of contract between the clerk of a supervisor of internal revenue and the government. The supervisor, and not the clerk, was the proper party to bring an action for the clerk's salary. Hedrick v. U. S. (1880) 16 Ct. Cl. 88.

§ 5883. (R. S. § 3163, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2.) Duties of collectors and agents; power of Commissioner.

Every collector within his collection-district and every internal-revenue agent shall see that all laws and regulations relating to the collection of internal taxes are faithfully executed and complied with, and shall aid in the prevention, detection, and punishment of any frauds in relation thereto. And it shall be the duty of every collector and of every internal-revenue agent to report to the Commissioner in writing any neglect of duty, incompetency, delinquency, or malfeasance in office of any internal-revenue officer or agent of which he may obtain knowledge, with a statement of all the facts in each case, and any evidence sustaining the same. The Commissioner may also transfer any inspector, gauger, storekeeper, or storekeeper and gauger, from one distillery or other place of duty, or from one collection-district, to another.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, §§ 49, 51, 15 Stat. 144, 145. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 241. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, 20 Stat. 328.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by transferring the powers and duties of the supervisors as defined in the section as originally enacted, upon the Commissioner, collectors, and agents, as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, cited above. This amendment was in consequence of the abolition of the office of supervisor by the repeal of R. S. §§ 3159, 3160, by Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, ante, § 5882. This section, as originally enacted, is set forth in the note to said provision, ante, § 5882.

The office of inspector, referred to in the last sentence of this section, was abolished by the repeal of R. S. § 3151, by Act Aug. 4, 1886, c. 896, § 2, 24 Stat. 218.

The Commissioner was authorized to detail deputy collectors for special duty in other districts by a provision of Act April 17, 1900, c. 192, § 1, ante, § 5852, and the detail in like manner of gaugers, storekeeper-gaugers, and storekeepers, was authorized by a further provision of that act set forth ante, § 5876.

The authority, power, and jurisdiction, in relation to the exclusion from the United States, of Chinese, vested by law or treaty in the collectors of internal revenue, were conferred upon such officers under the control of the Commissioner-General of Immigration as the Secretary of Commerce and Labor might designate therefor, by provisions of Act Feb. 14, 1903, c. 552, § 7, ante, § 858.

Notes of Decisions

Authority of commissioner to define and limit duties.—The commissioner of internal revenue has no authority to define and limit the official duties of deputy collectors and internal revenue agents by providing that, while it shall be a part of their official duties to appear before United States commissioners and federal grand juries in cases involving frauds against the revenue laws, up to the time when the parties charged are bound over to or held by a grand jury, after a prima facie case has been made out and the accused has been so bound over or held, such attendance shall not be a part of their official duties, and they should respond, in such cases, as a rule, only to a regular subpœna and attend "simply as a witness." (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 518.

There is no sound distinction between such officers testifying to facts within their knowledge before a United States commissioner or a federal grand jury, for the purpose of having the accused bound over to court or indicted, and their afterwards testifying upon the trial in the court. Id.

The secretary of the treasury would not be authorized to approve of such a definition and limitation of the duties of deputy collectors and internal revenue agents, for the reason that this section makes it the duty of all such officers to aid in the prevention, detection, and punishment of any frauds in relation to the collection of internal revenue taxes, and these duties are not finished when a "prima facie case has been made" against the offender. Id.

Section 492, ante, while relating generally to "matters pertaining to the assessment and collection of internal revenue," does not authorize a limitation of the duties of internal revenue officers and agents in special matters otherwise provided by law. Id.

Transfer of gaugers and storekeepers to more subordinate positions.—This section is mandatory and binding on every officer who comes within its terms, but it does not authorize the transfer of gaugers and storekeepers to more subordinate positions, but only from one place of duty to another. Butler v. White (C. C. 1897) 83 Fed. 578, 584, reversed (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 949, 171 U. S. 379, 43 L. Ed. 204.

Effect of civil service law.—Since the passage of the Civil Service Act the power of removal is limited and controlled by it, and, being subsequent to this section, it limits and controls it. Butler v. White (C. C. 1897) 83 Fed. 578, 584, reversed (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 949, 171 U. S. 379, 43 L. Ed. 204.

Cited without definite application, Stacey v. Emery (1878) 97 U. S. 642, 24 L. Ed. 1035; U. S. v. Farden (1878) 99 U. S. 10, 18, 25 L. Ed. 267.

§ 5884. (R. S. § 3164.) Duty of collectors to report violations of law to district attorney.

It shall be the duty of every collector of internal revenue to report within ten days to the district attorney of the district in which any fine, penalty, or forfeiture may be incurred for the violation of any law of the United States relating to the revenue, a statement of all the facts and circumstances of the case within his knowledge, together with the names of the witnesses, and which may come to his knowledge from time to time, stating the provisions of the law believed to be violated, and on which a reliance may be had for condemnation or conviction; and if any collector shall in any case fail to report to the proper district attorney as prescribed in this section, his right to any compensation, benefit, or allowance in such case shall be forfeited to the United States, and the same may, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, be awarded to such persons as may make complaint and prosecute the same to judgment or conviction.

Act March 3, 1873, c. 244, 17 Stat. 580.

The duties of district attorneys in the prosecutions of violations of internal revenue laws were prescribed by R. S. § 838, ante, § 1297.

Notes of Decisions

Duties of deputy collector.—Under this section, and under sections 5889, 5962, 5693, and 5971, post, one of the duties imposed on a deputy internal revenue collector is to see to it that retail liquor dealers shall place and keep conspicuously in their establishments or places of business stamps denoting the payment of the special tax, and the information as to the names of persons in whose places of business the special tax stamps are posted or the places in which they are posted was obtained in his official capacity, and he could not be compelled by a court to disclose such names as a witness. In re Lamberton (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 446, 448, 449.

Cited without definite application, Waters v. U. S. (1897) 32 Ct. Cl. 277.

§ 5885. (R. S. § 3165, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2.) Revenue officers who may administer oaths and take evidence.

Every collector, deputy collector, and inspector is authorized to administer oaths and to take evidence touching any part of the administration of the internal-revenue laws with which he is charged, or where such oaths and evidence are authorized by law or regulation authorized by law to be taken.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 52, 13 Stat. 242. Act March 3, 1865, c. 78, § 1, 13 Stat. 471. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, 20 Stat. 329.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting, after the words "are authorized by law," the words "or regulation authorized by law," as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, cited above.

The office of inspector, referred to in this section, was abolished by the repeal of R. S. § 3151, by Act Aug. 4, 1886, c. 896, § 2, 24 Stat. 218.

Notes of Decisions

Authority to require oath.—The section establishes the authority of a deputy to administer oaths, but does not establish the authority of the department to require an oath in returns by wholesale dealers made under the Oleomargarine Act. U. S. v. Lamson (C. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 80.

Perjury.—Where, pursuant to this section and section 492, ante, a regulation required collectors of taxes on distilled spirits to examine distiller's sureties, and to require them to "justify" on a prescribed form, an oath taken by a surety with reference to his qualifications before a deputy collector, was held to be an oath taken in a case in which "a law of the United States authorizes an oath to be administered," within section 10295, post, defining perjury. U. S. v. Hardison (D. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 419, 420, 421.

§ 5886. (R. S. § 3166.) Revenue officers authorized to make seizures.

Any officer of internal revenue may be specially authorized by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to seize any property which may by law be subject to seizure, and for that purpose such officer shall have all the power conferred by law upon collectors; and such special authority shall be limited in respect of time, place, and kind and class of property, as the Commissioner may specify: Provided, That no collector shall be detailed or authorized to discharge any duty imposed by law upon any other collector.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 19, 14 Stat. 482. Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 51, 15 Stat. 145.

Notes of Decisions

Liability for officer's negligence.—The United States is not responsible for the negligence of an internal revenue officer, by reason of which spirits seized for nonpayment of the tax by the distiller were lost. U. S. v. Sisk (1910) 176 Fed. 885, 100 C. C. A. 355.

Cited without definite application, Agnew v. Haymes (1905) 141 Fed. 631, 72 C. C. A. 325.

§ 5887. (R. S. § 3167, as amended, Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 34, Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § II, I, and Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 16.) Revenue officers disclosing operations of manufacturers, etc., punishable.

It shall be unlawful for any collector, deputy collector, agent, clerk, or other officer or employee of the United States to divulge or to make known in any manner whatever not provided by law to any person the operations, style of work, or apparatus of any manufacturer or producer visited by him in the discharge of his official duties, or the amount or source of income, profits, losses, expenditures, or any particular thereof, set forth or disclosed in any income return, or to permit any income return or copy thereof or any book containing any abstract or particulars thereof to be seen or examined by any person except as provided by law; and it shall be unlawful for any person to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law any income return or any part thereof or source of income profits, losses, or expenditures appearing in any income return; and any offense against the foregoing provision shall be a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, at the discretion of the court; and if the offender be an officer or employee of the United States he shall be dismissed from office or discharged from employment. (39 Stat.)

This section was part of § 16 of an act entitled an "Act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," cited above. It amends R. S. § 3167, as amended, which read as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for any collector, deputy collector, agent, clerk, or other officer or employé of the United States to divulge or to make known in any manner whatever not provided by law to any person the operations, style of work, or apparatus of any manufacturer or producer visited by him in the discharge of his official duties, or the amount or source of income, profits, losses, expenditures, or any particular thereof, set forth or disclosed in any income return by any person or corporation, or to permit any income return or copy thereof or any book containing any abstract or particulars thereof to be seen or examined by any person except as provided by law; and it shall be unlawful for any person to print or publish in any manner whatever not provided by law any income return or any part thereof or the amount or source of income, profits, losses, or expenditures appearing in any income return; and any offense against the foregoing provision shall be a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, at the discretion of the court; and if the offender be an officer or employé of the United States he shall be dismissed from office and be incapable thereafter of holding any office under the Government." Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, §§ 36, 38, 13 Stat. 238. Act March 3, 1865, c. 78, § 1, 13 Stat. 471. Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 34, 28 Stat. 557. Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § II, I, 38 Stat. 177.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"If any collector or deputy collector, or any inspector, or other officer acting under the authority of any revenue law of the United States, divulges to any party, or makes known in any other manner than may be provided by law, the operations, style of work, or apparatus of any manufacturer or producer visited by him in the discharge of his official duties, he shall be subject to a fine of not exceeding one thousand dollars, or to be imprisoned for not exceeding one year, or to both, at the discretion of the court, and shall be dismissed from office, and be forever thereafter incapable of holding any office under the Government."

It was amended to read as set forth here by a provision of the Wilson Tariff Act of Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 34, cited above, which amendment was re-enacted in the same language as a part of the income tax provisions of the Underwood Tariff Act, cited above.

The amending section so re-enacted was a part of the income tax provisions in the Wilson Tariff Act of 1894, held unconstitutional in Pollock v. Trust Co., 157 U. S. 429, 15 Sup. Ct. 673, 39 L. Ed. 759.

The inspection of returns made for assessment of income tax was authorized by a provision of section 14 (b), of Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, set forth post, § 6336n (b).

The provisions of this section were made applicable to internal-revenue agents by an amendment of R. S. § 3152, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, ante, § 5856.

Notes of Decisions

Reports to collector as public records.—Reports to a collector are not public records, but are the private property of the government. In re Comingore (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 552, 555, affirmed (1900) 20 Sup. Ct. 701, 177 U. S. 459, 44 L. Ed. 846.

Refusal to produce records or copies in court.—Under this section and regulations of the treasury department a collector might refuse the commands of a state court to produce his records or copies. Boske v. Comingore (1900) 20 Sup. Ct. 701, 703, 177 U. S. 459, 44 L. Ed. 846.

There is no statute of the United States requiring or permitting a collector of internal revenue to make or certify copies of reports on file in his office, and a state has no authority, either in its sovereign capacity or as a litigant, to impose such duty upon him. In re Comingore (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 552, judgment affirmed Boske v. Comingore (1900) 20 Sup. Ct. 701, 177 U. S. 459, 44 L. Ed. 846.

Information not to be divulged by storekeeper or gauger.—A storekeeper and gauger may not divulge information in regard to the business of a distiller, even when called as a witness in a state court. Stegall v. Thurman (D. C. 1910) 175 Fed. 813, 819.

§ 5888. (R. S. § 3168, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Officers not to be interested in certain manufactures; penalty.

Any internal-revenue officer who is or shall become interested, directly or indirectly, in the manufacture of tobacco, snuff, or cigars, or in the production, rectification, or redistillation of distilled spirits, shall be dismissed from office; and every officer who becomes so interested in any such manufacture or production, rectification, or redistillation, or in the production of fermented liquors, shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 59, 14 Stat. 167. Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 97, 15 Stat. 164. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 248.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out after the word "distilled," the word "spriits," and inserting in place thereof the word "spirits," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

The provisions of this section were made applicable to internal-revenue agents by an amendment of R. S. § 3152, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, ante, § 5856.

Notes of Decisions

Compromise of case.—Where an assessor of internal revenue was indicted upon the provisions of section 10201, post, and of sections 97 and 98 of the act of July 20, 1868 (this section and section 5889, post), for having entered into a corrupt arrangement with certain distillers to defraud the government, and before trial proposed terms of compromise to the commissioner of internal revenue, under section 102 of the last-mentioned act (section 5952, post), it was held that the case did not come within the purview of the latter section. (1872) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 43.

§ 5889. (R. S. § 3169.) Officers of internal revenue guilty of extortion, receiving unlawful fees, and other unlawful acts.

Every officer or agent appointed and acting under the authority of any revenue law of the United States—

First. Who is guilty of any extortion or willful oppression under color of law; or,

Second. Who knowingly demands other or greater sums than are authorized by law, or receives any fee, compensation, or reward, except as by law prescribed, for the performance of any duty; or,

Third. Who willfully neglects to perform any of the duties enjoined on him by law; or,

Fourth. Who conspires or colludes with any other person to defraud the United States; or,

Fifth. Who makes opportunity for any person to defraud the United States; or,

Sixth. Who does or omits to do any act with intent to enable any other person to defraud the United States; or,

Seventh. Who negligently or designedly permits any violation of the law by any other person; or,

Eighth. Who makes or signs any false entry in any book, or makes or signs any false certificate or return, in any case where he is by law or regulation required to make any entry, certificate, or return; or,

Ninth. Who, having knowledge or information of the violation of any revenue law by any person, or of fraud committed by any person against the United States under any revenue law, fails to report, in writing, such knowledge or information to his next superior officer and to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; or,

Tenth. Who demands, or accepts, or attempts to collect, directly or indirectly, as payment or gift, or otherwise, any sum of money or other thing of value for the compromise, adjustment, or settlement of any charge or complaint for any violation or alleged violation of law, except as expressly authorized by law so to do, shall be dismissed from office, and shall be held to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and be imprisoned not less than six months nor more than three years. The court shall also render judgment against the said officer or agent for the amount of damages sustained in favor of the party injured, to be collected by execution. One-half of the fine so imposed shall be for the use of the United States, and the other half for the use of the informer, who shall be ascertained by the judgment of the court.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 98, 15 Stat. 165.

Extortion by internal-revenue informers was punishable by R. S. § 5484, which was incorporated in the Criminal Code, in section 145 thereof, post, § 10315, and was repealed by section 341 thereof, post, § 10515.

The provisions of this section were made applicable to internal-revenue agents by an amendment of R. S. § 3152, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, ante, § 5856.

Notes of Decisions

See, also, notes under § 10201, post.

Violation of law in general.—A revenue officer cannot disregard a requirement of the law as useless, or because he deems the government protected by other provisions. U. S. v. Allen (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 14,432.

A deputy collector who accepted a bond for the withdrawal of whisky from a warehouse, knowing that the signatures thereto have been forged, was subject to punishment under Act July 13, 1866, § 42. Id.

The repealing clause of Act Jan. 11, 1868, did not operate to prevent conviction and punishment for an offense, under Act July 13, 1866, § 42. In re Callicot (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 2,-323.

A deputy collector of the duty on carriages made a distress under Act Dec. 15, 1814, § 4, and contrary to law sold it at auction for less than half its value, within two hours after seizure and without giving public notice of the time of sale. Held, that he was a trespasser ab initio and liable for damages. Blake v. Johnson (1817) 1 N. H. 91.

Violations of subdivisions 1 and 2.—A Chinese inspector, appointed by the treasury department to assist the collector of a port in enforcing the Chinese exclusion laws, is not a person acting under authority of any "revenue" or "customs" law, within the meaning of this section, or of section 5890, post, so as to be subject to indictment thereunder for extorting money under color of his office. The words "extortion or willful oppression under color of law," and the knowingly demanding "other or greater sums than are authorized by law," or the receiving "any fee, compensation or reward, except as by law prescribed, for the performance of any duty," illegal acts described in subdivisions 1 and 2 of this section, refer to offenses committed by officers or agents "appointed and acting under the authority of any revenue law of the United States." The accused, in his capacity of Chinese inspector, did not act under any law that could properly be regarded as a revenue law. He was appointed pursuant to acts of congress appropriating money to be used by the treasury department "to prevent unlawful entry of Chinese." Williams v. U. S. (1897) 18 Sup. Ct. 92, 94, 168 U. S. 382, 42 L. Ed. 509, reversing (D. C. 1896) 76 Fed. 223.

Illegal acts described in subdivisions 1 and 2 refer to offenses committed by officers or agents appointed and acting under authority of the revenue law of the United States. Williams v. U. S. (1897) 18 Sup. Ct. 92, 93, 168 U. S. 382, 42 L. Ed. 509.

A collector with whom money has been deposited by a distiller to pay for patented meters is a mere stakeholder, and the distiller cannot recover such deposit. Nusbaum v. Emery (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 10,380.

A government officer, who after seizing property used for illegal purposes, discontinued a suit brought to enforce forfeiture of the property, but retained possession thereof afterwards without color of process, is liable to the owner of the property for damages for the wrongful retention thereof, though he acted in good faith. Crawford v. Eidman (C. C. 1902) 129 Fed. 992.

A person who carries on business without having paid the special tax is not a delinquent of whom mileage may be collected. U. S. v. Highleyman (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,361.

Where an officer willfully and knowingly makes false representations to his superior officers as to the violent and lawless condition of the country, and thus induces his superior officer to send soldiers, which were unnecessary for the proper execution of the law, he is guilty of oppression. The law invests its officers with the necessary power to execute its mandates, and affords them protection while properly performing official duties. U. S. v. Deaver (D. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 595.

Where a revenue officer collects from parties sums of money as special taxes as wholesale and retail dealers in spirits, when no such taxes have been regularly assessed against them, he is guilty of oppression, although such parties had been guilty of selling spirits at wholesale and retail without a license, as required by law; and the fact that he reported such taxes to the collector of the district as received, and the collector of the district, in his settlement with the revenue department, was required to pay the sums collected after the manner of their collection was fully known to the department, will not render legal the acts of the defendants knowingly and willfully done, without authority of law. Id.

Extortion is the taking or obtaining of anything from another by a public officer by means of illegal compulsion or oppressive exaction. The offense of extortion, under subdivision 1, is the same as the offense of extortion in the common law. Id.

Oppression is an act of cruelty, severity, unlawful exaction, domination, or use of excessive authority. Id.

To make an act oppressive on the part of an officer, under the statute, it must be done willfully, "under color of law," and "without legal authority." Id.

Destruction of a still by a revenue officer before it has been condemned by proper decree is an act of oppression. Id.

Extortion and the mere taking of money in excess of lawful fee are not the same. U. S. v. Harned (D. C. 1890) 43 Fed. 376, 378.

Violations of subdivision 7.—On the trial of a government storekeeper and gauger at a distillery, charged under this section with having negligently and designedly permitted a violation of the law by another person by leaving the door of a cistern room unlocked, in consequence of which distilled spirits were unlawfully removed therefrom, proof that the room was negligently left open or unlocked is sufficient to warrant a conviction, and it is not essential that it should have been with intent that the spirits should be removed. Mason v. U. S. (1908) 162 Fed. 23, 89 C. C. A. 63, writ of certiorari denied (1909) 29 Sup. Ct. 700, 214 U. S. 519, 53 L. Ed. 1065.

On an indictment charging a storekeeper with having "negligently and designedly" left a door unlocked, so that distilled spirits were unlawfully removed, it is not essential to show that the act was done with intent that the spirits should be removed. Id.

Under this section and section 5884, ante, and sections 5962, 5963, and 5971, post, a collector of internal revenue cannot be compelled by a court to disclose as a witness the names of the persons in whose places of business special tax stamps are posted, or the places in which they are posted, this information being obtained in an official capacity. In re Lamberton (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 446, 448, 449.

Effect of subdivision 10 as extending common law.—The principle and policy of the common law, that a ministerial officer, who had arrested a person, and who takes from such person money or other reward, under a pretense or promise of getting the offender discharged, is guilty of a criminal offense, was intended to be extended by subdivision 10 to the officers of the revenue; and any subordinate revenue officer who demands or accepts, or attempts to collect, directly or indirectly, as payment or gift, or otherwise, any sum of money, or other thing of value, for a compromise of the violation of the revenue laws, is guilty of a misdemeanor. U. S. v. Deaver (D. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 595.

Damages for injuries.—Where a government officer injures a citizen by an official act, he is liable, not only for actual damages, but for exemplary damages as well, if he proceeded in malicious or wanton disregard of the citizen's rights. Crawford v. Eidman (C. C. 1902) 129 Fed. 992.

A suit for forfeiture of property seized by a government officer for violation of law was discontinued by the officer. Held, in an action by the owners against the officer for damages for his wrongful detention of the property after such discontinuance, the costs incurred by plaintiff in the former proceeding could not be recovered as a part of his damages. Id.

Prosecution and punishment.—Counts charging a defendant with the forgery of Chinese duplicate certificates, and with violating this section as an officer in the revenue service, by negligently and designedly permitting the commission of such offenses, may properly be joined in the same indictment, under section 2164, ante, since they cover "acts or transactions connected together." Dillard v. U. S. (1905) 141 Fed. 303, 72 C. C. A. 451.

An internal revenue officer, named as such in the indictment, cannot be jointly indicted with a private person for conspiracy to defraud the revenue. U. S. v. McDonald (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,670.

Quære, whether one charged in different counts, under this section, with knowledge of separate frauds upon the revenue, may be punished by cumulative sentences. U. S. v. Maguire (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,708.

The United States have an option, where custom officers and individuals have combined, to proceed against the custom officers under this and other sections. U. S. v. Grunberg (C. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 137, 139.

So officers who conspire with others to defraud the United States may be prosecuted therefor under this section, or they may be joined with the individual conspirators in an indictment under the Criminal Code. Grunberg v. U. S. (1906) 145 Fed. 81, 76 C. C. A. 51.

Two offenses—the conspiracy to defraud, and a knowledge of a violation of law without reporting the same—may be committed by a revenue officer, and may be joined in the same indictment. Ex parte Joyce (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 7,556.

The words "willful, and corruptly," in an indictment herein, tend to uncertainty, in view of the use of the word "knowingly" in the statute. U. S. v. Williams (D. C. 1896) 76 Fed. 223, 225, 226.

Under subdivision 2, providing for the punishment of any revenue officer who demands or receives any fee, except as prescribed by law, "for the performance of any duty," an indictment which charged the receiving of such fee for services rendered "under color of his office" is insufficient. Id.

Where an assessor of internal revenue was indicted upon the provisions of section 10201, post, and of sections 97 and 98 of the act of July 20, 1868 (this section, and section 5888, ante), for having entered into a corrupt arrangement with certain distillers to defraud the government, and before trial proposed terms of compromise to the commissioner of internal revenue, under section 102 of the last-mentioned act (section 5952, post), it was held that the case did not come within the purview of the latter section. (1872) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 43.

Cited without definite application, Wichsler v. U. S. (1907) 158 Fed. 579, 86 C. C. A. 37; U. S. v. Van Leuven (D. C. 1894) 62 Fed. 62, 69; U. S. v. Sandefuhr (D. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 49.

§ 5890. (Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 23.) Laws imposing fines applicable to all persons in service.

All acts and parts of acts imposing fines, penalties, or other punishment for offenses committed by an internal revenue officer or other officer of the Department of the Treasury of the United States, or under any bureau thereof, shall be, and are hereby, applied to all persons whomsoever, employed, appointed, or acting under the authority of any internal revenue or customs law, or any revenue provision of any law of the United States, when such persons are designated or acting as officers or deputies, or persons having the custody or disposition of any public money. (18 Stat. 312.)

This section was part of an Act to amend the customs and internal-revenue laws, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

Acting under authority of law.—A Chinese inspector appointed by the treasury department to assist in enforcing Chinese exclusion laws does not act under authority of a "revenue" or "customs" law, within this section, so as to subject him to indictment under this section for extorting money under color of office. Williams v. U. S. (1897) 18 Sup. Ct. 92, 93, 168 U. S. 382, 42 L. Ed. 509, reversing (D. C. 1896) 76 Fed. 223.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Dominici (1897) 78 Fed. 334, 336, 24 C. C. A. 116.

§ 5891. (Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 1.) Collector, etc., issuing stamps before payment punishable.

Any collector of internal revenue, or any deputy collector or other employee of, or person acting for, such collector, who shall issue any stamp or stamps indicating the payment of any internal-revenue tax, before payment in full therefor has been made to the officer or person issuing the same, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined for each stamp thus issued an amount equal to the face value thereof, in addition to the liability of the collector on his official bond on account of such stamp; and such collector, deputy collector, or employee shall be dismissed from office. (20 Stat. 327.)

This section was part of an act to amend the laws relating to internal revenue, cited above.

Other provisions amending the Revised Statutes and other laws relating to internal revenue were made by sections 2–22 of this act. The provisions of these sections which are in force are set forth in other chapters of this Title and in the preceding Title.

Section 23 of the act, defining the words "Revised Statutes" as used in the preceding sections thereof, is set forth post, § 5892.

Cited without definite application,
U. S. v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411, 415.

§ 5892. (Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 23.) Meaning of term "Revised Statutes."

Wherever in any of the foregoing sections of this act the Revised Statutes are referred to, it shall be held to mean the "edition of eighteen hundred and seventy-eight." (20 Stat. 352.)

See notes to section 1 of this act, ante, § 5891.

§ 5893. (R. S. § 3170.) District attorney or marshal accepting or demanding anything for compromise of violation of internal revenue laws.

Every district attorney or marshal who demands, or accepts, or attempts to collect, directly or indirectly, as payment or gift or otherwise, any sum of money or other property of value for the compromise, adjustment, or settlement of any charge or complaint for any violation or alleged violation of any provision of the internal-revenue laws, except as expressly authorized by law to do so, shall be held to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined in double the sum or value of the money or property received or demanded, and be imprisoned for not less than one nor more than ten years.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 26, 14 Stat. 483.

§ 5894. (R. S. § 3171, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2.) Officers suffering injuries may maintain suit for injuries.

If any officer appointed under and by virtue of any act to provide internal revenue, or any person acting under or by authority of any such officer, shall receive any injury to his person or property, in the discharge of his duty, under any law of the United States for the collection of taxes, he shall be entitled to maintain suit for damage therefor, in the circuit court of the United States, in the district wherein the party doing the injury may reside or shall be found.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 67, 14 Stat. 172. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, 20 Stat. 329.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out, after the words "person or property," the words "for or on account of any act by him done," and inserting in place thereof the words "in the discharge of his duty," as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, cited above.

The provisions of this section were made applicable to internal revenue agents by an amendment of R. S. § 3152, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, ante, § 5856.

This provision is probably superseded by Act Sept. 7, 1916, c. 458, set forth post, §§ 8932a–8932uu, providing for compensation in case of injury or death of employés of the government.

Notes of Decisions

Civil remedy as consistent with criminal statute.—The civil remedy for recovery of damages is in no way inconsistent with R. S. § 5508, post, § 10183. U. S. v. Patrick (C. C. 1893) 54 Fed. 338, 349.

CHAPTER TWO

Of Assessments and Collections

Sec.
5895. Canvass of districts for objects of taxation.
5896. Annual returns of persons liable to tax.
5897. Summons, form and manner of service of.
5898. Failure to obey summons, proceedings on.
5899. When collector to make returns; further time allowed for filing returns; assessment of taxes on returns made by collector; amounts added for failure to file returns.
5900. Officers may enter premises where taxable articles are kept.
5901. Making false return, or refusing to produce books; penalty.
5902. Taxable property owned by nonresidents.
5903. Lists, when taken and how denominated.
5904. Commissioner of Internal Revenue to make assessments; correction of incomplete or imperfect lists.
5905. Duty and authority of collectors and deputies to collect all taxes.
5906. Notice and demand of taxes.
5907. Monthly returns and special returns, when to be made, and when tax payable.
5908. Lien for taxes.
5909. Taxes collectible by distraint.
5910. Mode of levying distraint.
5911. Delinquents must exhibit evidences relating to property distrained.
5912. Proceedings on distraint.
5913. When property sold under distraint is subject to tax, and tax not paid.
5914. When property sold under distraint may be purchased for United States, etc.
5915. Property distrained to be restored on payment before sale.
5916. Effect of certificate of sale on distraint.
5917. When property distrained is not divisible.
5918. When real estate may be sold to satisfy taxes.
5919. Proceedings for seizure and sale of real estate for taxes.
5920. Certificate of purchase; deed.
5921. Collector's deed to be prima-facie evidence, etc.
5922. Collector may seize lands of delinquent in any district of same State.
5923. Redemption of land prior to sale.
5924. Redemption of lands after sale.
5925. Record of sales; transmission of copy to Commissioner.
5926. Redemptions to be entered on record.
5927. Successive seizures may be made, when.
5928. Fees and charges in seizure cases.
5929. Proceedings in chancery to subject real estate to payment of tax.
5930. Commissioner to have charge of real estate acquired by United States under internal-revenue laws.
5931. List to be sent to district where the party taxed resides or has property, when.
5932. Collections to be paid into Treasury daily.
5933. All collections to be covered into Treasury as internal revenue collections.
5934. Depositories.
5935. Collector's monthly statement; final accounts.
5936. Collectors to render accounts quarterly.
5937. Suits, etc., for fines, penalties, and forfeitures, and for taxes.
5938. Suits for taxes, etc., not to be brought without sanction of Commissioner.
5939. Regulations as to suits, for government of officers.
5940. Moneys recovered by suits to be paid to collectors.
5941. Dues from delinquent collector to be collected by distraint and sale.
5942. Collectors charged with what.
5943. Death, etc., of collector; uncollected balances.
5944. Refundment of taxes, penalties, etc.
5945. Taxes on spirits accidentally destroyed.
5946. When tax on lost spirits is indemnified by insurance.
5947. Suits to restrain assessments or collection of taxes.
5948. Suits to recover taxes collected under second assessment; burden of proof to show fraud.
5949. Suits for recovery of taxes wrongfully collected.
5950. Limitation of suits for recovery of taxes wrongfully collected.
5951. Claims for refundment; limitation.
5952. Compromises.
5953. Discontinuances of criminal prosecutions.
5954. Continuances of internal-revenue cases.

§ 5895. (R. S. § 3172, as amended, Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 34, Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § II, I, and Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 16.) Canvass of districts for objects of taxation.

Every collector shall, from time to time, cause his deputies to proceed through every part of his district and inquire after and concerning all persons therein who are liable to pay any internal-revenue tax, and all persons owning or having the care and management of any objects liable to pay any tax, and to make a list of such persons and enumerate said objects. (39 Stat.)

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 12, 13 Stat. 225. Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 1, 14 Stat. 471. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401. Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 34, 28 Stat. 558. Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § II, I, 38 Stat. 178. Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 16.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"Every collector shall, from time to time, cause his deputies to proceed through every part of his district and inquire after and concerning all persons therein who are liable to pay a special tax, and all persons owning or having the care and management of any objects liable to pay any tax, and to make a list of such persons and enumerate said objects."

It was amended to read as set forth here by the Wilson Tariff Act of Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 34, cited above, which amendment was re-enacted as a part of the income tax provisions of the Underwood Tariff Act, last cited above.

This amendment, as originally enacted, was a part of the income tax provisions in the Wilson Tariff Act of 1894, cited above, held unconstitutional in Pollock v. Trust Co., 157 U. S. 429, 15 Sup. Ct. 673, 39 L. Ed. 759.

This section, as above set forth, was part of § 16 of an act entitled "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," cited above. It amends R. S. § 3172, as amended. It is in the exact language of the section as amended by Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § II, I.

Notes of Decisions

Effect of statute on settlement of income taxes.—Effect of this section and sections 5896–5904, post, on settlements of income taxes. In re Archer (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 506.

Effect of this and following sections as to title under deed from collector.—A deed from a collector of internal revenue is, under section 5921, post, only prima facie evidence of the facts required by statute to be stated therein. In order to establish title thereunder, the prerequisites prescribed by this section et seq., to the right to seize and sell, also the assessment of the tax and the notice of the sale, must be shown by evidence aliunde. Brown v. Goodwin (1878) 75 N. Y. 409.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 103; U. S. v. Patrick (C. C. 1893) 54 Fed. 338, 344.

§ 5896. (R. S. § 3173, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 34, Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § II, I, and Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 16.) Annual returns of persons liable to tax.

It shall be the duty of any person, partnership, firm, association, or corporation, made liable to any duty, special tax, or other tax imposed by law, when not otherwise provided for, (1) in case of a special tax, on or before the thirty-first day of July in each year, (2) in case of income tax on or before the first day of March in each year, or on or before the last day of the sixty-day period next following the closing date of the fiscal year for which it makes a return of its income, and (3) in other cases before the day on which the taxes accrue, to make a list or return, verified by oath, to the collector or a deputy collector of the district where located, of the articles or objects, including the amount of annual income charged with a duty or tax, the quantity of goods, wares, and merchandise, made or sold and charged with a tax, the several rates and aggregate amount, according to the forms and regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, for which such person, partnership, firm, association, or corporation is liable: Provided, That if any person liable to pay any duty or tax, or owning, possessing, or having the care or management of property, goods, wares, and merchandise, article or objects liable to pay any duty, tax, or license, shall fail to make and exhibit a list or return required by law, but shall consent to disclose the particulars of any and all the property, goods, wares, and merchandise, articles, and objects liable to pay any duty or tax, or any business or occupation liable to pay any tax as aforesaid, then, and in that case, it shall be the duty of the collector or deputy collector to make such list or return, which, being distinctly read, consented to, and signed and verified by oath by the person so owning, possessing, or having the care and management as aforesaid, may be received as the list of such person: Provided further, That in case no annual list or return has been rendered by such person to the collector or deputy collector as required by law, and the person shall be absent from his or her residence or place of business at the time the collector or a deputy collector shall call for the annual list or return, it shall be the duty of such collector or deputy collector to leave at such place of residence or business, with some one of suitable age and discretion, if such be present, otherwise to deposit in the nearest post office, a note or memorandum addressed to such person, requiring him or her to render to such collector or deputy collector the list or return required by law within ten days from the date of such note or memorandum, verified by oath. And if any person, on being notified or required as aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect to render such list or return within the time required as aforesaid, or whenever any person who is required to deliver a monthly or other return of objects subject to tax fails to do so at the time required, or delivers any return which, in the opinion of the collector, is erroneous, false, or fraudulent, or contains any undervaluation or understatement, or refuses to allow any regularly authorized Government officer to examine the books of such person, firm, or corporation, it shall be lawful for the collector to summon such person, or any other person having possession, custody, or care of books of account containing entries relating to the business of such person, or any other person he may deem proper, to appear before him and produce such books at a time and place named in the summons, and to give testimony or answer interrogatories, under oath, respecting any objects or income liable to tax or the returns thereof. The collector may summon any person residing or found within the State or Territory in which his district lies; and when the person intended to be summoned does not reside and can not be found within such State or Territory, he may enter any collection district where such person may be found and there make the examination herein authorized. And to this end he may there exercise all the authority which he might lawfully exercise in the district for which he was commissioned: Provided, That "person," as used in this section, shall be construed to include any corporation, joint-stock company or association, or insurance company when such construction is necessary to carry out its provisions. (39 Stat.)

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, §§ 11, 13, 13 Stat. 225, 226. Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 101. Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 1, 14 Stat. 471. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, 20 Stat. 330. Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 34, 28 Stat. 558. Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § II, I, 38 Stat. 178. Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 16, 39 Stat.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, cited above, by striking out, after the words "when not otherwise provided for," the words "on or before the first Monday of March of each year," and inserting in place thereof the words "in case of a special tax on or before the thirteenth day of April in each year," and by striking out, after the words "and in other cases before the day," the words "of levy," and inserting in place thereof the words "on which the taxes accrue," making the section read as follows:

"It shall be the duty of any person, partnership, firm, association, or corporation, made liable to any duty, special tax, stamp, or tax imposed by law, when not otherwise provided for, in case of a special tax, on or before the thirteenth day of April in each year, and in other cases before the day on which the taxes accrue, to make a list or return, verified by oath or affirmation, to the deputy collector of the district where located, of the articles or objects charged with a special duty or tax, the quantity of goods, wares, and merchandise made or sold, and charged with a specific or ad valorem duty or tax, the several rates and aggregate amount, according to the forms and regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, for which such person, partnership, firm, association or corporation is liable: Provided, That if any person liable to pay any duty or tax, or owning, possessing, or having the care or management of property, goods, wares, and merchandise, articles or objects liable to pay any duty, tax, or license, shall fail to make and exhibit a list or return required by law, but shall consent to disclose the particulars of any and all the property, goods, wares, and merchandise, articles and objects liable to pay any duty or tax, or any business or occupation liable to pay any special tax as aforesaid, then, and in that case, it shall be the duty of the deputy collector to make such list or return, which, being distinctly read, consented to, and signed and verified by oath or affirmation by the person so owning, possessing, or having the care and management as aforesaid, may be received as the list of such person: Provided further, That in case any person shall be absent from his or her residence or place of business at the time a deputy collector shall call for the annual list or return and no annual list or return has been rendered by such person to the deputy collector as required by law, it shall be the duty of such deputy collector to leave at such place of residence or business, with some one of suitable age and discretion, if such be present, otherwise to deposit in the nearest post-office, a note or memorandum, addressed to such person, requiring him or her to render to such deputy collector the list or return required by law, within ten days from the date of such note or memorandum, verified by oath or affirmation. And if any person on being notified or required as aforesaid shall refuse or neglect to render such list or return within the time required as aforesaid or whenever any person who is required to deliver a monthly or other return of objects subject to tax fails to do so at the time required, or delivers any return which, in the opinion of the collector, is false or fraudulent, or contains any under-valuation or under-statement, it shall be lawful for the collector to summon such person, or any other person having possession, custody, or care of books of account containing entries relating to the business of such person, or any other person he may deem proper, to appear before him and produce such books, at a time and place named in the summons, and to give testimony or answer interrogatories, under oath, respecting any objects liable to tax or the returns thereof. The collector may summon any person residing or found within the State in which his district lies; and when the person intended to be summoned does not reside and cannot be found within such State, he may enter any collection district where such person may be found, and there make the examination herein authorized. And to this end he may there exercise all the authority which he might lawfully exercise in the district for which he was commissioned."

It was further amended to read as set forth here, by the Wilson Tariff Act of Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 34, cited above, which amendment was re-enacted in the same language as a part of the income tax provisions of the Underwood Tariff Act, last cited above.

This amendment, as originally enacted, was a part of the income tax provisions in the Wilson Tariff Act of 1894, cited above, held unconstitutional in Pollock v. Trust Co., 157 U. S. 429, 15 Sup. Ct. 673, 39 L. Ed. 759.

The requisites of returns for the assessment and collection of the income tax imposed by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, §§ 8, 13, are set forth post, §§ 6336h, 6336m.

Provisions requiring returns to show whether the rates and amounts were stated according to their values in legal-tender currency or according to their values in coined money were made by R. S. § 3178, now obsolete.

This section and the two following sections are extended to and made applicable in the enforcement of the Cotton Futures Act, post, § 6309n.

This section, in its present form, was part of § 16 of an act entitled "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," cited above. It amends R. S. § 3173, as amended. The section as amended by Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § II, I, read as follows:

"It shall be the duty of any person, partnership, firm, association, or corporation, made liable to any duty, special tax, or other tax imposed by law, when not otherwise provided for, in case of a special tax, on or before the thirty-first day of July in each year, in case of income tax on or before the first day of March in each year, and in other cases before the day on which the taxes accrue, to make a list or return, verified by oath or affirmation, to the collector or a deputy collector of the district where located, of the articles or objects, including the amount of annual income charged with a duty or tax, the quantity of goods, wares, and merchandise made or sold and charged with a tax, the several rates and aggregate amount, according to the forms and regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, for which such person, partnership, firm, association, or corporation is liable: Provided, That if any person liable to pay any duty or tax, or owning, possessing, or having the care or management of property, goods, wares, and merchandise, articles or objects liable to pay any duty, tax, or license, shall fail to make and exhibit a list or return required by law, but shall consent to disclose the particulars of any and all the property, goods, wares, and merchandise, articles, and objects liable to pay any duty or tax, or any business or occupation liable to pay any tax as aforesaid, then, and in that case, it shall be the duty of the collector or deputy collector to make such list or return, which, being distinctly read, consented to, and signed and verified by oath or affirmation by the person so owning, possessing, or having the care and management as aforesaid, may be received as the list of such person: Provided further, That in case no annual list or return has been rendered by such person to the collector or deputy collector as required by law, and the person shall be absent from his or her residence or place of business at the time the collector or a deputy collector shall call for the annual list or return, it shall be the duty of such collector or deputy collector to leave at such place of residence or business, with some one of suitable age and discretion, if such be present, otherwise to deposit in the nearest post office, a note or memorandum, addressed to such person, requiring him or her to render to such collector or deputy collector the list or return required by law within ten days from the date of such note or memorandum, verified by oath or affirmation. And if any person, on being notified as aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect to render such list or return within the time required as aforesaid, or whenever any person who is required to deliver a monthly or other return of objects subject to tax fails to do so at the time required, or delivers any return which, in the opinion of the collector, is false or fraudulent, or contains any undervaluation or understatement, it shall be lawful for the collector to summon such person, or any other person having possession, custody, or care of books of account containing entries relating to the business of such person, or any other person he may deem proper, to appear before him and produce such books, at a time and place named in the summons, and to give testimony or answer interrogatories, under oath, respecting any objects liable to tax or the returns thereof. The collector may summon any person residing or found within the State in which his district lies; and when the person intended to be summoned does not reside and cannot be found within such State, he may enter any collection district where such person may be found and there make the examination herein authorized. And to this end he may there exercise all the authority which he might lawfully exercise in the district for which he was commissioned."

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 5895, ante, and § 5937, post.

Constitutionality of former statute.—Act July 20, 1868, § 49 (15 Stat. 144), giving supervisors the right to examine books and papers, etc., is not unconstitutional, either as purporting to authorize an unreasonable seizure and search, or as compelling a party to testify against himself. Stanwood v. Green (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 13,301.

Production of books and papers in general.—A tobacco manufacturer will be required to produce his books before the assessor, notwithstanding a criminal proceeding against him; but he will be allowed to object to the exhibit of any particular entry as tending to criminate himself. In re Lippman (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 8,382.

A corporation is not bound to produce its books to the assessor on an inquiry into the income of its shareholders. In re Chadwick (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 2,570.

R. S. § 860, is modified and partially repealed by Act June 22, 1874, § 5, in relation to the production of books and papers. U. S. v. Three Tons of Coal (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 16,515.

Right to examine or require production thereof.—An assessor has no right, in order to determine liability for income tax, to examine books of third persons who have had dealings with the taxpayer. In re Chadwick (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 2,570.

The supervisor of internal revenue is entitled to examine the books and papers belonging to banks, bankers, brokers, and banking associations, and is not bound to inform the owners of his purpose in making such examination. Act July 20, 1868, § 49. Stanwood v. Green (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 13,301.

The government has the right to examine all books kept by the distiller or rectifier pertaining to the business—private, as well as those required by law. U. S. v. Mason (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 15,735.

The business of distillers and rectifiers, being wholly within control of the government, it may require the production of, and, if necessary, seize, any or all the books and papers kept by them in their business. U. S. v. Three Tons of Coal (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 16,515.

A collector of internal revenue has no authority, under this section, to require a wholesale dealer in oleomargarine to produce his books for examination and inspection. In re Kearns (D. C. 1894) 64 Fed. 481.

The provisions of the statute authorizing a collector to summon before him for examination any person charged by the law with the duty of making returns of "objects subject to tax" do not apply to persons required under the oleomargarine law to make returns of "materials and products." Such provisions relate only to objects of taxation upon which the tax is collected by the method of return and assessment, and not to those upon which the tax is required to be paid by a stamp, and a collector has no power under section 3173 to compel a person to appear and testify to the correctness of the returns made under the oleomargarine law. In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468.

Summons and service thereof.—See § 5897, post, and note thereunder.

The service by a supervisor of internal revenue, in person, of a summons upon a clerk of a railroad company to produce certain books and papers, and submit to examination under Act July 20, 1868, § 49, held sufficient. Perry v. Newsome (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 11,009.

Adjournment of hearing does not necessitate a new summons. In re Becker (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 1,208.

Authority of supervisor to issue summons to produce books and papers, made coextensive with that of assessors (Act July 20, 1868), is not affected by subsequent transfer of assessor's authority to collectors. Id.

Summons reciting appropriate statute and section as authority need not refer to section of statutes embodying it. Id.

Order for production of books.—The order need not specify the books, but the officers may take all books found on the premises; the presumption being that they belong to the distilling business. U. S. v. Mason (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 15,735.

In an order for the production of books and papers of a distiller or rectifier, the same need not be more specifically described than as those used and kept in his business as distiller or rectifier between certain dates named. U. S. v. Three Tons of Coal (D. C. 1875) Cas. No. 16,515.

Order to open vaults containing books.—If a distiller refuse to produce his books, the court may order the vaults containing them to be opened by its officers. U. S. v. Mason (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 15,735.

Examination of books or papers.—Claimants and their counsel have the right to be present at the examination of their books and papers. U. S. v. Mason (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 15,735; Same v. Three Tons of Coal (D. C. 1875) Id. 16,515.

Examination of witness or taxpayer.—The taxpayer cannot be examined as to returns and payments made prior to the passage of Act June 30, 1864. In re Brown (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 1,977.

A witness, summoned for examination before an assessor, may be compelled to answer questions touching the falsity of tax returns of tobacco manufacturers, as disclosures or admissions thus made cannot be used against him in criminal prosecutions under Act Feb. 25, 1868. In re Phillips (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 11,097.

Remission of penalty for failure to render return or list property.—It is within the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, under R. S. § 5293, post, § 10131, to remit a penalty imposed under R. S. § 3176, post, § 5899, for failure to render a return or list of taxable property, required by this section. (1882) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 433.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 103.

§ 5897. (R. S. § 3174.) Summons, form and manner of service of. Such summons shall in all cases be served by a deputy collector of the district where the person to whom it is directed may be found, by an attested copy delivered to such person in hand, or left at his last and usual place of abode, allowing such person one day for each twenty-five miles he may be required to travel, computed from the place of service to the place of examination; and the certificate of service signed by such deputy shall be evidence of the facts it states on the hearing of an application for an attachment. When the summons requires the production of books, it shall be sufficient if such books are described with reasonable certainty.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 14, 13 Stat. 226. Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 101. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, 17 Stat. 401.

This section has been made applicable to the cotton futures provisions of Act Aug. 11, 1916, c. 313. See § 6309n, post.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5895, ante.

Summons.—See notes under § 5896, ante.

A summons issued to a person not engaged in a business particularly affected by revenue laws must be limited to books and papers concerning the subject of investigation, and describe them with reasonable certainty. In re Becker (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 1,208.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 103; In re Kearns (D. C. 1894) 64 Fed. 481.

§ 5898. (R. S. § 3175.) Failure to obey summons, proceedings on. Whenever any person summoned under the two preceding sections neglects or refuses to obey such summons, or to give testimony, or to answer interrogatories as required, the collectors may apply to the judge of the district court or to a commissioner of the circuit court of the United States for the district within which the person so summoned resides for an attachment against him as for a contempt. It shall be the duty of the judge or commissioner to hear the application, and, if satisfactory proof is made, to issue an attachment, directed to some proper officer, for the arrest of such person, and upon his being brought before him to proceed to a hearing of the case; and upon such hearing the judge or commissioner shall have power to make such order as he shall deem proper not inconsistent with existing laws for the punishment of contempts, to enforce obedience to the requirements of the summons and to punish such person for his default or disobedience.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 14, 13 Stat. 226. Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 101. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401.

The office of commissioner of the circuit court, mentioned in this section, was abolished, and the appointment of United States commissioners, to have the same powers and perform the same duties, was provided for, by Act May 28, 1896, c. 252, § 19, ante, § 1333.

This section has been made applicable to the cotton futures provisions of Act Aug. 11, 1916, c. 313. See § 6309n, post.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under §§ 5895, 5896, ante.

Application to oleomargarine law.—This procedure is not applicable to the oleomargarine law. In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468, 471.

Right to issue writ.—Where a summons for the production of books has not been complied with, the district judge, upon application, may issue a writ of attachment. Stanwood v. Green (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 13,301.

Application for attachment.—A supervisor may procure an attachment to compel a person liable to taxation to appear and testify, without showing that he acted under special instructions from the commissioner in issuing the summons. In re Meador (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 9,375.

The court has power to authorize an assessor to amend his application for attachment for contempt against a taxpayer for not producing his books, and giving evidence concerning his liability for the income tax. In re Chadwick (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 2,570.

Order to show cause.—On the application by an assessor for an attachment for contempt against a taxpayer for not producing his books and giving evidence as to his liability for the income tax, the court may issue an order to show cause, instead of proceeding ex parte. In re Chadwick (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 2,570.

Order for attachment.—Order for attachment for failure to obey summons to produce books and papers will be conditional. In re Becker (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 1,208.

When banking firm not punishable.—A banking firm held not punishable for a contempt in refusing to produce their books on the demand of a supervisor of the internal revenue, and in not appearing in response to a summons, where they asked a short delay to consult counsel, and there was no place of return in the summons. U. S. v. Fordyce (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,130.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 103; In re Kearns (D. C. 1894) 64 Fed. 481.

§ 5899. (R. S. § 3176, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 34, Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § II, I, and Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 16.) When collector to make returns; further time allowed for filing returns; assessment of taxes on returns made by collector; amounts added for failure to file returns.

If any person, corporation, company, or association fails to make and file a return or list at the time prescribed by law, or makes, willfully or otherwise, a false or fraudulent return or list, the collector or deputy collector shall make the return or list from his own knowledge and from such information as he can obtain through testimony or otherwise. Any return or list so made and subscribed by a collector or deputy collector shall be prima facie good and sufficient for all legal purposes.

If the failure to file a return or list is due to sickness or absence the collector may allow such further time, not exceeding thirty days, for making and filing the return or list as he deems proper.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall assess all taxes, other than stamp taxes, as to which returns or lists are so made by a collector or deputy collector. In case of any failure to make and file a return or list within the time prescribed by law or by the collector, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall add to the tax fifty per centum of its amount except that, when a return is voluntarily and without notice from the collector filed after such time and it is shown that the failure to file it was due to a reasonable cause and not to willful neglect, no such addition shall be made to the tax. In case a false or fraudulent return or list is willfully made, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall add to the tax one hundred per centum of its amount.

The amount so added to any tax shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner and as part of the tax unless the tax has been paid before the discovery of the neglect, falsity, or fraud, in which case the amount so added shall be collected in the same manner as the tax. (39 Stat.)

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 14, 13 Stat. 226. Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 101. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 2, 17 Stat. 402. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, 20 Stat. 331. Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 34, 28 Stat. 559. Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § II, I, 38 Stat. 179. Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 16, 39 Stat.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, cited above, by striking out, after the words "The amount so added to the tax shall," the words "in all cases," and by inserting, after the words "same manner as the tax," the words "unless the neglect or falsity is discovered after the tax has been paid, in which case the amount so added shall be collected in the same manner as the tax," making the section read as follows:

"The collector or any deputy collector in every district shall enter into and upon the premises, if it be necessary, of every person therein who has taxable property and who refuses or neglects to render any return or list required by law, or who renders a false or fraudulent return or list, and make, according to the best information which he can obtain, including that derived from the evidence elicited by the examination of the collector, and on his own view and information, such list or return, according to the form prescribed, of the objects liable to tax, owned or possessed or under the care or management of such person, and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall assess the tax thereon, including the amount, if any, due for special tax, and in case of any return of a false or fraudulent list or valuation, he shall add one hundred per centum to such tax; and in case of a refusal or neglect, except in cases of sickness or absence, to make a list or return, or to verify the same as aforesaid, he shall add fifty per centum to such tax. In case of neglect occasioned by sickness or absence as aforesaid, the collector may allow such further time for making and delivering such list or return as he may deem necessary, not exceeding thirty days. The amount so added to the tax shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner as the tax unless the neglect or falsity is discovered after the tax has been paid, in which case the amount so added shall be collected in the same manner as the tax; and the list or return so made and subscribed by such collector or deputy collector shall be held good and sufficient for all legal purposes."

It was further amended as set forth here by the Wilson Tariff Act of Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 34, cited above, which amendment was re-enacted in the same language as a part of the income tax provisions of the Underwood Tariff Act, cited above.

This amendment, as originally enacted, was part of the income tax provisions in the Tariff Act of 1894, cited above, held unconstitutional in Pollock v. Trust Co., 157 U. S. 429, 15 Sup. Ct. 673, 30 L. Ed. 759.

This section was part of § 16 of an act entitled "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," cited above. It amends R. S. § 3176, as amended. That section, as amended by Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § II, I, read as follows:

"When any person, corporation, company, or association refuses or neglects to render any return or list required by law, or renders a false or fraudulent return or list, the collector or any deputy collector shall make, according to the best information which he can obtain, including that derived from the evidence elicited by the examination of the collector, and on his own view and information, such list or return, according to the form prescribed, of the income, property and objects liable to tax owned or possessed or under the care or management of such person or corporation, company or association, and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall assess all taxes not paid by stamps, including the amount, if any, due for special tax, income or other tax, and in case of any return of a false or fraudulent list or valuation intentionally he shall add 100 per centum to such tax; and in case of a refusal or neglect, except in cases of sickness or absence, to make a list or return, or to verify the same as aforesaid, he shall add 50 per centum to such tax. In case of neglect occasioned by sickness or absence as aforesaid the collector may allow such further time for making and delivering such list or return as he may deem necessary, not exceeding thirty days. The amount so added to the tax shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner as the tax unless the neglect or falsity is discovered after the tax has been paid, in which case the amount so added shall be collected in the same manner as the tax; and the list or return so made and subscribed by such collector or deputy collector shall be held prima facie good and sufficient for all legal purposes."

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5895, ante.

Nature of authority under statute.—The provisions of section 14 of the internal revenue act of 1864, as amended by the act of 1866, which authorize the assessor to do various things in order to get at the taxable property of a party whom he is seeking to assess and who will not make proper returns of his estate, do not make it obligatory on him to do so. Bailey v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co. (1874) 89 U. S. (22 Wall.) 604, 22 L. Ed. 840.

The assessor may investigate returns made by a distiller, and increase the amount of the assessment in all cases of fraud or omission, and assess the amount of tax for which the party is liable (Act June 30, 1864, §§ 14, 20, amended by Act July 13, 1866); and such authority is in its nature judicial. U. S. v. Hodson (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,376.

Penalty of 100 per cent.—The assessor himself must find a false and fraudulent omission whereby the penalty was incurred. Merely adding the penalty, by order of his superior officer, is illegal. Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Slack (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 9,527.

The penalty of 100 per cent. on reassessment for fraudulent omissions from the return to the assessor (Act March 2, 1867) is not collectible if a sum not legally taxed is included in the reassessment. Id.

An addition of 100 per cent. is authorized for an untrue return, although the return is not willfully false. German Sav. Bank v. Archbold (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 5,364.

Under Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 14, the assessor has power, in all cases of false or fraudulent lists or valuations, to add the penal duty of 100 per cent. before the lists have been returned to the collector; but such power terminates on the transmission of such lists to the collector. (1865) 11 Op. Atty. Gen. 280.

Penalty of 50 per cent.—The 50 per centum required by the statute is a penalty, not a tax. (1882) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 398, 433.

Presumption from threats of penalties under statute.—The fact that persons of whom a tax was demanded refused to make return or pay the tax, notwithstanding threats of penalties imposed by this section, afforded no warrant for a legal presumption that the refusal was based on illegality of the tax. Beer v. Moffatt (D. C. 1912) 192 Fed. 984.

Remission of penalty.—It is within the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, under R. S. § 5293, post, § 10131, to remit a penalty imposed under this section for failure to render a return or list of taxable property, required by the internal revenue laws (R. S. § 3173, ante, § 5896). (1882) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 433.

In the case presented, where the delinquent, a private banker, was not guilty of fraud or willful negligence, but in ignorance of the statute failed to make his semiannual return, and obeyed the law as soon as he knew its requirements, held, that the facts bring it within the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, given by section 10131, to remit fines, penalties, etc. Id.

The Secretary of the Treasury has authority, under section 10131, post, to remit the penalty imposed under this section on a national bank for its failure to make a timely return of its liability for the special tax levied under section 2 of the War Revenue Act of June 13, 1898 (30 Stat. 448). (1901) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 398.

Application to oleomargarine tax.—This section does not apply to the Oleomargarine Act. Craft v. Schafer (1907) 153 Fed. 175, 82 C. C. A. 349 (affirming judgment Schafer v. Craft [D. C. 1906] 144 Fed. 907); Tucker v. Grier (1908) 160 Fed. 611, 87 C. C. A. 513 (affirming [C. C. 1907] 150 Fed. 658).

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 103; Eaton v. Calhoun (C. C. 1880) 15 Fed. 155; U. S. v. Patrick (C. C. 1893) 54 Fed. 338, 344; Hastings v. Herold (C. C. 1910) 184 Fed. 759.

§ 5900. (R. S. § 3177.) Officers may enter premises where taxable articles are kept.

Any collector, deputy collector, or inspector may enter, in the day-time, any building or place where any articles or objects subject to tax are made, produced, or kept, within his district, so far as it may be necessary, for the purpose of examining said articles or objects. And any owner of such building or place, or person having the agency or superintendence of the same, who refuses to admit such officer, or to suffer him to examine such article or articles, shall, for every such refusal, forfeit five hundred dollars. And when such premises are open at night, such officers may enter them while so open, in the performance of their official duties. And if any person shall forcibly obstruct or hinder any collector, deputy collector, or inspector, in the execution of any power and authority vested in him by law, or shall forcibly rescue or cause to be rescued any property, articles, or objects after the same shall have been seized by him, or shall attempt or endeavor so to do, the person so offending, excepting in cases otherwise provided for, shall, for every such offense, forfeit and pay the sum of five hundred dollars, or double the value of the property so rescued, or be imprisoned for a term not exceeding two years, at the discretion of the court.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, §§ 37, 38, 13 Stat. 238.

The provisions of this section were made applicable to internal revenue agents by an amendment of R. S. § 3152, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, ante, § 5856.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5895, ante.

Entry into distillery building.—A collector, deputy collector, or inspector of internal revenue may, without process, enter any building where distilled spirits subject to tax are produced or kept, so far as may be necessary for examining the same, and may without process seize illicit distilled spirits. U. S. v. Fears (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,080.

Examination of bank.—In a suit against the cashier of a national bank for refusing to permit the collector to examine bank checks drawn upon and paid by it, the declaration was bad in not alleging that the paid checks on the bank remaining in its possession were not duly stamped at the time they were signed and issued. U. S. v. Mann (1877) 95 U. S. 580, 581, 24 L. Ed. 531.

A national bank is not exempt from examination by the internal revenue officers under this section. U. S. v. Rhawn (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 16,150. But see U. S. v. Parkhill (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 15,994.

A clerk of a supervisor of internal revenue cannot make such examination. U. S. v. Rhawn (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 16,150.

Search of premises at night.—Instructions that search warrant did not authorize internal revenue officers to enter and search plaintiff's premises at night held properly refused, as ignoring their rights, under this section, where the premises were open at night. Kercheval v. Allen (1915) 220 Fed. 262, 135 C. C. A. 1.

Collection of oleomargarine tax.—This section and section 6364, post, apply to the collection of special taxes imposed by the Oleomargarine Act. Kercheval v. Allen (1915) 220 Fed. 262, 135 C. C. A. 1.

Violation of statute.—A declaration to recover the penalty imposed by this section, on a person in charge of a building or place where articles or objects subject to taxation are produced or kept, who refuses to admit the collector or inspector of internal revenue to such building for the purpose of examining such articles, must allege all the facts necessary to show that the articles in the building where the revenue officer was refused admission were subject to taxation. U. S. v. Mann (1877) 95 U. S. 580, 24 L. Ed. 531.

Persons other than the owner of a building or place of business cannot be held liable to the penalty prescribed in this section, unless it be alleged and proved that he had at the time the agency or superintendence of the same, and that it was a building or place where articles subject to taxation were made, produced or kept, and that the person accused of having violated the prohibition of the section then and there refused to allow the officer to enter the building for the described purpose, or to suffer him to examine the articles or objects subject to taxation then kept in the building. Id.

The express extension of the provisions of R. S. §§ 3232–3241, 3243 (this compilation, § 5955 et seq.), which deal with special taxes, to the special tax on oleomargarine, made by Act Aug. 2, 1886, § 3, c. 840, 24 Stat. 209, imposing such tax, and not purporting to be complete in itself, is not an implied exclusion of the general provisions of this section for the entry by revenue officers of any building or place where any articles or objects subject to tax are made, produced, or kept, for the purpose of examining such articles or objects. U. S. v. Barnes (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 117, 222 U. S. 513, 56 L. Ed. 291.

A person may be guilty under this statute of obstructing a revenue officer in entering a building, etc., although he does not own the building or the articles subject to tax, and did not make, produce, or keep them. U. S. v. Fears (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,080.

A dealer in tobacco has no right to forcibly eject a customs officer from his premises after the officer has fulfilled his errand. U. S. v. Mosely (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,823.

One who, knowing that certain casks of whisky are without revenue stamps, obstructs an officer attempting to seize the same, in order that opportunity may be given for another to escape therewith, is guilty under the statute. United States v. Sykes (D. C. 1893) 58 Fed. 1000.

Indictment.—Sufficiency of indictment under this section. U. S. v. Fears (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,080.

An indictment in the words of the section that defendant "did forcibly attempt to rescue" property assessed by a collector, did not state with sufficient certainty the acts done by defendant. U. S. v. Ford (D. C. 1888) 34 Fed. 26, 29.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Patrick (C. C. 1893) 54 Fed. 338, 344; U. S. v. Gibson (D. C. 1891) 47 Fed. 833, 834; In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468, 471.

(R. S. § 3178. Obsolete.)

This section required the returns or lists of objects charged with an internal tax to show whether the several rates and amounts were stated according to their values in legal tender currency or according to their values in coined money. It is omitted as obsolete.

§ 5901. (R. S. § 3179.) Making false return, or refusing to produce books; penalty.

Whenever any person delivers or discloses to the collector or deputy any false or fraudulent list, return, account, or statement, with intent to defeat or evade the valuation, enumeration, or assessment intended to be made, or, being duly summoned to appear to testify, or to appear and produce such books as aforesaid, neglects to appear or to produce said books, he shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or be imprisoned not exceeding one year, or both, at the discretion of the court, with costs of prosecution.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 15, 13 Stat. 226.

Making false return to evade the income tax is punishable by a provision of Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, §§ 14c, 18, post, §§ 6336n (c), 6336q.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5895, ante.

Repealing act as preserving prosecution for false return.—Act March 31, 1868, § 2, which repeals Act June 30, 1864, §§ 94, 95, and acts amendatory thereof, does not operate to preserve a prosecution for a false return commenced, but not carried to judgment, before the repeal took effect. U. S. v. Finlay (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 15,099.

Return of income.—A false return of income for taxation made with an intent to be acted upon by the government, will subject the party to an indictment, though he make a subsequent correct return. U. S. v. Bens (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 14,576.

Return by tobacco manufacturers.—Tobacco manufacturers may be indicted for making a false and fraudulent return under the internal revenue laws. U. S. v. McGinnis (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 15,678.

Indictment—Election.—Where indictments are found, both for making false returns and for perjury, the prosecution must elect between them. U. S. v. Rumsey (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 16,207.

Evidence.—The government, claiming that a distiller must have used more material and manufactured more spirits than he returned is bound to prove that such was necessarily the fact, and must exclude any other conclusion. U. S. v. Furlong (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 15,178.

To sustain the theory that a given amount of material will produce a certain quantity of spirits, it must be shown that this is a necessary and unavoidable inference from the facts proved. Id.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 103.

§ 5902. (R. S. § 3180.) Taxable property owned by non-residents.

Whenever there are in any district any articles not owned or possessed by or under the care or control of any person within such district, and liable to be taxed, and of which no list has been transmitted to the collector, as required by law, the collector or one of his deputies shall enter the premises where such articles are situated and shall take such view thereof as may be necessary, and make lists of the same, according to the form prescribed. Said lists, being subscribed by such collector or deputy, shall be taken as sufficient lists of such articles for all purposes.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 16, 13 Stat. 227. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5895, ante.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed 97, 103.

§ 5903. (R. S. § 3181, as amended, Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, § 1.) Lists, when taken and how denominated.

The lists or returns aforesaid shall, where not otherwise specially provided for, be taken with reference to the day fixed for that purpose by this Title as aforesaid; and where duties accrue at other and different times, the list shall be taken with reference to the time when said taxes become due, and shall be denominated annual, monthly, and special lists or returns.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 18, 13 Stat. 228. Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, § 1, 18 Stat. 319.

This section, as originally enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out, after the words "and different times, the," the word "last," and inserting in the place thereof the word "list," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, § 1, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5895, ante.

§ 5904. (R. S. § 3182.) Commissioner of Internal Revenue to make assessments; correction of incomplete or imperfect lists.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue is hereby authorized and required to make the inquiries, determinations, and assessments of all taxes and penalties imposed by this Title, or accruing under any former internal-revenue act, where such taxes have not been duly paid by stamp at the time and in the manner provided by law, and shall certify a list of such assessments when made to the proper collectors respectively, who shall proceed to collect and account for the taxes and penalties so certified. Whenever it is ascertained that any list which has been or shall be delivered to any collector, is imperfect or incomplete in consequence of the omission of the name of any person liable to tax, or in consequence of any omission, or understatement, or undervaluation, or false or fraudulent statement contained in any return made by any person liable to tax, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may, at any time within fifteen months from the time of the delivery of the list to the collector as aforesaid, enter on any monthly or special list the name of such person so omitted, together with the amount of tax for which he may have been or shall become liable, and also the name of any such person in respect to whose return, as aforesaid, there has been or shall be any omission, undervaluation, understatement, or false or fraudulent statement, together with the amount for which such person may be liable, above the amount for which he may have been or shall be assessed upon any return made as aforesaid; and he shall certify and return such list to the collector as required by law. And all provisions of law for the ascertainment of liability to any tax, or the assessment or collection thereof, shall be held to apply, so far as may be necessary, to the proceedings herein authorized and directed.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 20, 13 Stat. 229. Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 103. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 2, 17 Stat. 402.

Notes of Decisions

1. Construction with other statutes.
2. Proceedings of commissioner in general.
3. Decisions of commissioner as judicial constructions.
4. Mistake or irregularity in proceedings.
5. Assessment as protecting collector from personal liability.
6. Assessment of tax on notes used for circulation.
7. Reassessment on supplementary assessment and correction of error.
8. Increase of amount in case of fraud or omission.
9. Evidence of assessment.
10. Presumption as to assessment.
11. Assessment as evidence of amount of tax.
12. Impeachment of assessment.
13. Remedy for illegal assessment.

See note under § 5895, ante, and §§ 5905, 5937, post.

1. Construction with other statutes.—Act June 13, 1898, imposing an internal revenue tax on certain legacies, required the executor to sign a statement to the collector and to pay the tax to him, and section 30 gave the commissioner of internal revenue control of the assessment. This section and section 5905, post, require the collector to pay the tax into the treasury, and declare that on the death of the collector all lists should be transferred to his successor; and section 1594, ante, declares that an action against such collector should not abate by his death, but his successor should be substituted as defendant. Held that, where the collector wrongfully received an inheritance tax on bequests which were not taxable, on his death the liability to refund was enforceable against his successor in office; it being the duty of the commissioner to pay any judgment rendered against the collector as provided by section 5944, post. Armour v. Roberts (C. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 846.

2. Proceedings of commissioner in general.—Under this section and sections 5907, 5910, and 5920, post, it was held that a purchaser claiming land under a sale for internal revenue taxes against the owner cannot sustain his title under a collector's deed where he fails to show, independently of the mere recitals in the records or in the deed, that a return was made by the person liable to be assessed, that the commissioner of internal revenue had made the assessment, that a warrant of distraint had issued, or that a certificate of purchase had been given to him. Stewart v. Pergusson (1903) 45 S. E. 585, 133 N. C. 276.

3. Decisions of commissioner as judicial constructions.—The decisions of the internal revenue commissioner are not judicial constructions, within the rule that, when a judicial construction has been given a statute, the re-enactment of the statute is in effect a legislative adoption of that construction. Dollar Sav. Bank v. U. S. (1873) 19 Wall. 227, 237, 22 L. Ed. 80.

4. Mistake or irregularity in proceedings.—The assessor acts judicially in determining what persons and things are subject to taxation, and a mistake in this respect, or an irregularity of proceedings, does not invalidate his action so as to make the collector a trespasser. Delaware R. Co. v. Prettyman (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 3,767.

The power of assessing taxes on tobacco necessarily covers the question of quantity, rate of tax, amount of tax, and persons liable to taxation; and mistakes in any of these respects are only errors, and do not make the assessment void. Kensett v. Stivers (C. C. 1880) 10 Fed. 517.

5. Assessment as protecting collector from personal liability.—An assessment duly certified to the collector by the assessor in the exercise of the latter's jurisdiction will protect the collector from personal liability for the levy. Erskine v. Hohnbach (1871) 81 U. S. (14 Wall.) 613, 20 L. Ed. 745.

A tax collector of the United States cannot revise or refuse to enforce an assessment regularly made by the assessor in the exercise of the latter's jurisdiction; his duties in this respect being merely ministerial. Id.

6. Assessment of tax on notes used for circulation.—In an action under section 6289, post, levying on every person, firm, or association, other than a national bank, a tax of 10 per cent. on the amount of their notes used for circulation, recovery may be had without an assessment of the taxes by the commissioner of internal revenue. U. S. v. Warrick (C. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 138.

7. Reassessment or supplementary assessment and correction of error.—Under Act June 30, 1864, § 20, as amended by Act July 13, 1866, § 9, it is unnecessary that an assessor, in making a reassessment for deficiencies, should make his reassessment coincide, month by month, in the terms which it covers, with the monthly returns of the manufacturer; that is to say, it is not requisite that he should make a separate specification of deficiency for each defective return. Dandelet v. Smith (1873) 85 U. S. (18 Wall.) 642, 21 L. Ed. 758.

Nor under the terms of the act of 1866, when the reassessment was made within 15 months from the passage of the act, was it necessary that the reassessment should have reference only to returns made within 15 months prior to the reassessment. Id.

Nor under Act March 2, 1867 (R. S. § 3437), conceding that since the act of 1866 brewers are taxable, in the first instance, by stamps per barrel, and not on monthly returns, would a reassessment for deficiency be void, even though it had been made out on the principle of an assessment for false returns, under the previous act of July 13, 1866. Id.

An assessor has power to reassess the income tax of a citizen who has already paid the tax first assessed against him. Doll v. Evans (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 3,969.

Assessor has power to make a supplementary assessment, increasing amount of distiller's tax. Barker v. White (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 996.

Where the assessment is too small, the assessor may make an assessment of an additional tax to cover the deficiency. U. S. v. Black (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 14,600.

Under this section the commissioner, in making a reassessment upon distilled spirits, for the purpose of rectifying an error, is not confined to a period of 15 months last past. U. S. v. O'Neill (C. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 567, 571.

The assessment cannot be re-examined after the assessor has accepted the returns, assessed the tax, made a return, and the tax has been paid. In re Brown (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 1,977.

The assessable capacity of a distillery, as determined by survey (Act July 20, 1868), cannot be raised by the assessor or the government, except by a new survey directed by the commissioner of internal revenue. U. S. v. King (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,-533.

The fact that, in the aggregate, there is no excess in the number of matches on which a tax is paid will not prevent the commissioner from assessing an additional tax on those boxes of the lot which overrun. Schmitt v. Trowbridge (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 12,-468.

An assessment of internal revenue tax on distilled spirits based on an estimate is lawful, and is not rendered invalid by a voluntary correction of errors in the estimate. U. S. v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 866, judgment reversed (C. C. A. 1907) United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. U. S. (1907) 158 Fed. 604, 85 C. C. A. 426.

8. Increase of amount in case of fraud or omission.—The assessor may investigate returns made by a distiller, and increase the amount of the assessment in all cases of fraud or omission, and assess the amount of tax for which the party is liable (Act June 30, 1864, §§ 14, 20, amended by Act July 13, 1866); and such authority is in its nature judicial. U. S. v. Hodson (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,376.

9. Evidence of assessment.—In the assessment of special taxes the officers of the internal revenue act in a quasi judicial capacity, and in an action to recover such taxes the introduction in evidence of the assessment list, regular in form, makes a prima facie case for the government. Western Express Co. v. U. S. (1905) 141 Fed. 28, 72 C. C. A. 516.

The original assessment list signed by the commissioner, and on file in office of collector, is evidence of assessment. U. S. v. Bristow (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 378.

The defendants in a suit on a distiller's bond, instituted for the recovery of internal-revenue taxes assessed under section 5988, post, have no legal right to the use at the trial of the reports, documents, and other papers on file in the office of the commissioner, upon which the commissioner acted in making the inquiries and determinations contemplated by this section, and from which he derived the information that, in whole or in part, formed the basis of the assessment. Nor has the court authority to compel the production of such papers. (1878) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 24.

10. Presumption as to assessment.—Two assessments, covering partially the same period, will be presumed to be for different liquors till the contrary is shown. U. S. v. O'Neill (C. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 567.

11. Assessment as evidence of amount of tax.—An internal revenue assessment by the commissioner on liquors distilled held prima facie evidence of the amount of the tax due against both the distiller and the surety on his bond. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. U. S. (1912) 201 Fed. 91, 119 C. C. A. 429.

The assessor's original list, transmitted to the collector, is prima facie evidence of the amount of the tax due. U. S. v. Butler (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 14,702.

12. Impeachment of assessment.—In a suit on a distiller's bond for the amount of an assessment, defendant may impeach the assessment, though he has not first appealed to the commissioner. U. S. v. Myers (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,846.

13. Remedy for illegal assessment.—See, also, §§ 5944 and 5947, post, and notes thereunder.

A federal court has power to prevent, by injunction, the imposition of an illegal tax under Act June 30, 1864. See Act March 2, 1833, § 2, and Act June 30, 1864, § 50. Cutting v. Gilbert (C. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 3,519.

The taxpayer has a remedy by an action at law against an assessor making an illegal assessment. Id.

Cited without definite application, Bergdoll v. Pollock (1877) 95 U. S. 337, 338, 24 L. Ed. 512; U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 103.

§ 5905. (R. S. § 3183, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3.) Duty and authority of collectors and deputies to collect all taxes.

It shall be the duty of the collectors, or their deputies, in their respective districts, and they are authorized, to collect all the taxes imposed by law, however the same may be designated. And every collector and deputy collector shall give receipts for all sums collected by him, excepting only when the same are in payment for stamps sold and delivered; but no collector or deputy collector shall issue a receipt in lieu of a stamp representing a tax.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, §§ 36, 41, 13 Stat. 238, 239. Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 110. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, 20 Stat. 331.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by adding, at the end of the section as originally enacted, the provision beginning with the words "excepting only when the same are in payment," to the end of the section, as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, cited above.

Collectors were required to give receipts for the payment of taxes, except when represented by stamps, by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 17, post, § 6336p.

Certified checks on banks, etc., were made receivable for internal taxes, as well as for duties on imports, by Act March 2, 1911, c. 191, § 1, ante, § 5711.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under the preceding section.

Power and duty to collect after removal from office.—See, also, § 5943, and note thereunder.

A collector of internal revenue, after removal from office, has no power to collect the duties outstanding at the time of his removal, and which had accrued while he remained in office, but the power and duty devolve on his successor. Sthresh v. U. S. (1807) 8 U. S. (4 Cranch) 169, 2 L. Ed. 584.

Duty to collect by distraint.—A tax collector of the United States cannot revise or refuse to enforce an assessment regularly made by the assessor in the exercise of the latter's jurisdiction; his duties in this respect being merely ministerial. Erskine v. Hohnbach (1871) 81 U. S. (14 Wall.) 613, 20 L. Ed. 745.

An assessment duly certified to the collector by the assessor in the exercise of the latter's jurisdiction will protect the collector from personal liability for the levy. Id.

The duty imposed on the collector to collect by distraint is not suspended by an action by the government on the distiller's bond for the collection of the same taxes. Harding v. Woodcock (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 6, 137 U. S. 43, 34 L. Ed. 580.

The doctrine that a ministerial officer will be protected in the enforcement of process regular on its face, issued by an officer or tribunal possessing jurisdiction over the subject-matter, and having the power to issue process for the enforcement of its judgment, applies to a collector of internal revenue in enforcing against a distiller an assessment for taxes, regular on its face, made by the commissioner of internal revenue, and duly certified to the collector, though such assessment may in fact have been invalid. Id.

Collection of duties on imported spirits.—Under Act March 7, 1864, imposing an additional duty on imported spirits, the duty is to be collected in such manner as the secretary of the treasury may direct, and he has power to direct it to be paid to a collector of internal revenue. Westfall v. Shook (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 17,448.

Power of collectors to make commutation.—Internal revenue collectors cannot make a commutation so as to affect the government. Martin's Adm'rs v. U. S. (1827) 20 Ky. (4 T. B. Mon.) 487.

Cited without definite application, Armour v. Roberts (C. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 846.

§ 5906. (R. S. § 3184.) Notice and demand of taxes.

Where it is not otherwise provided, the collector shall in person or by deputy, within ten days after receiving any list of taxes from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, give notice to each person liable to pay any taxes stated therein, to be left at his dwelling or usual place of business, or to be sent by mail, stating the amount of such taxes and demanding payment thereof. If such person does not pay the taxes, within ten days after the service or the sending by mail of such notice, it shall be the duty of the collector or his deputy to collect the said taxes with a penalty of five per centum additional upon the amount of taxes, and interest at the rate of one per centum a month.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 106. Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 8, 14 Stat. 473. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 2, 17 Stat. 402.

Notes of Decisions

Strict construction and enforcement of statute.—This section must be strictly construed and enforced. U. S. v. Allen (C. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 263, 265.

So, when land has been sold and bid in by the United States for taxes due from a firm of distillers in 1867, but not assessed until the interest and penalty exceeded the tax, and not enforced until 1876, and no formal notice and demand of payment could be proved, the United States acquires no title, and a conveyance made before such sale to an innocent purchaser will not be set aside. Id.

Notice.—This notice is not part of the assessment, nor a condition precedent thereto, but is necessary before the taxpayer can be charged with the penalty and interest. U. S. v. Bristow (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 378, 379.

Plaintiffs deposited distilled spirits in their bonded warehouse in December, 1880, and gave bond under section 6034, post, to pay the tax within three years from entry. The tax was not paid within three years, and on February 24, 1884, the collector gave them notice to pay the tax as required by this section, stating, as in the section provided, that unless the tax was paid within 10 days it would be the collector's duty to collect a penalty of 5 per centum in addition, and interest. By section 5982, post, the tax attaches as soon as the spirits come into existence. Held, that the tax and penalty were due and payable before March 5, 1884. Clay v. Swope (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 396.

In absence of any prescribed method of giving the notice of the assessment of the special excise tax on corporations, this section is applicable. U. S. v. General Inspection & Loading Co. (D. C. 1913) 204 Fed. 657, 658.

Penalty and interest.—The interest is not a penalty, but is recoverable as interest, and the limitation of five years, prescribed by R. S. § 1047, ante, § 1712, for suits to recover penalties, does not apply to a suit to recover such interest as a part of the debt. U. S. v. Guest (1906) 143 Fed. 456, 458, 74 C. C. A. 590, judgment affirmed (1906) 150 Fed. 121, 80 C. C. A. 75.

Plaintiffs did not pay the tax within the 10 days, and on March 15th the collector gave notice that the tax and penalty were due and unpaid, and unless paid within 10 days he would distrain and sell the spirits. The penalty was afterwards paid. After March 5th permission to plaintiffs to export the spirits was given, and they gave their bond, and afterwards the spirits were exported. Held, that the penalty is imposed on the person for default, and is not a tax or duty on spirits which have been exported, and that the penalty was not discharged by the exportation. Clay v. Swope (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 396, 399.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 103.

§ 5907. (R. S. § 3185.) Monthly returns and special returns, when to be made, and when tax payable.

All returns required to be made monthly by any person liable to tax shall be made on or before the tenth day of each month, and the tax assessed or due thereon shall be returned by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to the collector on or before the last day of each month. All returns for which no provision is otherwise made shall be made on or before the tenth day of the month succeeding the time when the tax is due and liable to be assessed, and the tax thereon shall be returned as herein provided for monthly returns, and shall be due and payable on or before the last day of the month in which the assessment is so made. When the said tax is not paid on or before the last day of the month, as aforesaid, the collector shall add a penalty of five per centum, together with interest at the rate of one per centum per month, upon such tax from the time the same became due; but no interest for a fraction of a month shall be demanded: Provided, That notice of the time when such tax becomes due and payable is given in such manner as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. It shall then be the duty of the collector, in case of the non-payment of said tax on or before the last day of the month, as aforesaid, to demand payment thereof, with five per centum added thereto, and interest at the rate of one per centum per month, as aforesaid, in the manner prescribed by law; and if said tax, penalty, and interest, are not paid within ten days after such demand, it shall be lawful for the collector or his deputy to make distraint therefor, as provided by law.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 11, 14 Stat. 150. Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 8, 14 Stat. 473. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, §§ 1, 2, 17 Stat. 401, 402.

Notes of Decisions

Construction and operation in general.—This section must be strictly construed and complied with. U. S. v. Allen (C. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 263, 265.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Wilson (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 991, 992, 118 U. S. 86, 30 L. Ed. 110; Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co. (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 825, 829, 135 U. S. 326, 34 L. Ed. 162.

§ 5908. (R. S. § 3186, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, and Act March 4, 1913, c. 166.) Lien for taxes.

If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same after demand, the amount shall be a lien in favor of the United States from the time when the assessment list was received by the collector, except when otherwise provided, until paid, with the interest, penalties, and costs that may accrue in addition thereto upon all property and rights to property belonging to such person: Provided, however, That such lien shall not be valid as against any mortgagee, purchaser, or judgment creditor until notice of such lien shall be filed by the collector in the office of the clerk of the district court of the district within which the property subject to such lien is situated: Provided further, Whenever any State by appropriate legislation authorizes the filing of such notice in the office of the registrar or recorder of deeds of the counties of that State, or in the State of Louisiana in the parishes thereof, then such lien shall not be valid in that State as against any mortgagee, purchaser, or judgment creditor, until such notice shall be filed in the office of the registrar or recorder of deeds of the county or counties, or parish or parishes in the State of Louisiana, within which the property subject to the lien is situated.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 107. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, 20 Stat. 331. Act March 4, 1913, c. 166, 37 Stat. 1016.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out, after the words "in favor of the United States," the words "from the time it was due until paid," and inserting in place thereof the words "from the time when the assessment-list was received by the collector, except when otherwise provided, until paid," as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, cited above.

It was further amended by adding, after the word "person," the provisos beginning with the words, "Provided however, that such lien," etc., to the end of the section as set forth here, by Act March 4, 1913, c. 166, last cited above.

Notes of Decisions

1. Creation of lien in general.
2. Receipt of assessment list.
3. Deficiency of distilled spirits exported.
4. Extent of lien in general.
5. Corporate assets as subject to lien.
6. Tax on ships under former law.
7. Direct tax.
8. Income tax.
9. Oleomargarine tax.
10. Tax on spirits about to be exported.
11. Record of lien.
12. Priority of lien.
13. Loss of lien.
14. Satisfaction of lien.
15. Enforcement of lien.
16. Forfeiture passing land to United States on nonpayment of tax in insurrectionary district under law of 1862.
17. Recovery of taxes paid under protest.

1. Creation of lien in general.—A demand for the payment of taxes is necessary, under the statute to create and bring into operation a lien therefor, and such demand must state the amount of the tax. U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 15,984.

The nonpayment of the internal revenue tax under this section is and continues a mere personal liability until its payment is demanded, when, if payment is refused or neglected, it becomes a lien on property, and can be satisfied thereout. Brown v. Goodwin (N. Y. 1876) 1 Abb. N. C. 452.

2. Receipt of assessment list.—The receipt of the ascertainment of deficiency by the collector of internal revenue from the collector of customs is, in effect, his receipt of an assessment list of the tax, within the meaning of the statute. (1879) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 634.

3. Deficiency of distilled spirits exported.—The "tax on deficiency" in the quantity of distilled spirits exported is secured by a lien, under the general provision contained in this section, upon all the property of the person liable therefor. The special provisions found in section 5985, post, do not forbid the application of the general provision of this section to all cases where there is nothing in such special provisions to contradict. (1879) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 634.

4. Extent of lien in general.—A lien of the government is limited to the property belonging to the tax debtor, and it is only such property that the collector can levy on and sell. A sale for the collection of a tax does not cut off the title of a third person. Sheridan v. Allen (1907) 153 Fed. 568, 82 C. C. A. 522.

5. Corporate assets as subject to lien.—Assets of a corporation are subject to a lien for the payment of taxes, provided the corporation has not been dissolved and all its assets distributed prior to the time the list of assessments came into the hands of the collector. (1910) 28 Op. Atty. Gen. 241.

Where the corporation is dissolved before the taxes become due, and no lien attaches to the assets of a corporation, as in the case first above referred to, the tax imposed may be collected by the government by pursuing the assets into the hands of the stockholders, in the same manner as any other creditor might obtain satisfaction of his debt. Id.

6. Tax on ships under former law.—Where a tax on ships was changed to a tax on hulls only, pending completion of a vessel, and after it was sold by the builder for a price "in full" the purchaser is not liable for the tax. Size v. Curtis (C. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 12,920.

7. Direct tax.—Act Jan. 9, 1815, providing that the direct tax laid thereby shall remain a lien on land during two years after it shall become payable, does not restrain the collector from selling the land after the two years have expired, where there has been no alienation of it by the owner. Holden v. Eaton (1828) 24 Mass. (7 Pick.) 15.

8. Income tax.—Allegations in bill against commissioner of internal revenue to enjoin collection of taxes imposed by income tax law, that by the provision, making tax a lien on plaintiff's property, its assessment would constitute a cloud on plaintiff's title, do not take case out of rule that by section 5947, post, collection of tax cannot be enjoined because of alleged unconstitutionality of act imposing it. Dodge v. Osborn (1916) 36 Sup. Ct. 275.

The lien of the income tax (Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, 14 Stat. 107), relates back, upon demand, to the time when the tax was due, but only attaches to the property belonging to the person from whom the tax was due at the time when the demand for the payment of the tax was made. U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 100.

The assessment of such tax by the assessor, in the mode prescribed by law, is essential to the creation of such lien. Id.

9. Oleomargarine tax.—The preceding sections not applying to the Oleomargarine Act, a lien for penalty and interest under this section could not stand in an attempted application to that act. Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658, 661.

10. Tax on spirits about to be exported.—As the internal revenue laws imposing a tax, with a penalty for nonpayment, on distilled spirits, create a lien on all other property of the delinquent, and the same, with a certain exception, may be seized therefor, there is no presumption that the delinquent was coerced into payment of the penalty by reason of a lien claimed on spirits about to be exported so as to entitle him to maintain an action to recover the same. Clay v. Swope (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 396.

11. Record of lien.—A state law, requiring that all liens on real estate must be recorded to affect third parties, does not apply to tax liens in favor of the United States. U. S. v. Snyder (1893) 13 Sup. Ct. 846, 847, 149 U. S. 210, 37 L. Ed. 705.

Such lien, though not recorded, may be enforced against the lands in the hands of innocent purchasers. Id.

12. Priority of lien.—Bona fide purchaser of distillery property for value and without notice takes subject to existing liens for taxes. U. S. v. Turner (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 16,548; Alkan v. Bean (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 202.

This lien is superior to a mortgage or deed of trust executed subsequently to the demand for payment, and embraces every species of property subject to ownership. Blacklock v. U. S. (1906) 41 Ct. Cl. 89.

A mortgagee may protect his security against the prior lien of the government or may redeem the premises, if sold. Id.

13. Loss of lien.—Lien on distillery for unpaid taxes is not lost by a bonding and release of the property in forfeiture proceedings afterwards discontinued without judicial action. Alkan v. Bean (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 202.

14. Satisfaction of lien.—Where a municipal corporation, by its officers and agents, distills spirits, and, without paying the gallon tax on them, removes them from the place of distillation to a place other than the United States bonded warehouse, and sells them and converts the money into its treasury, a payment of the taxes under protest and under threat of distraint is a satisfaction of a lien held by the United States, and the money cannot be recovered in an action against the United States collector. Salt Lake City v. Hollister (1882) 3 Utah, 200, 2 Pac. 200.

15. Enforcement of lien.—The government is not estopped by statements of its collector to enforce existing liens for unpaid taxes. Alkan v. Bean (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 202.

An action to enforce the statutory lien for internal revenue taxes alleged to have been evaded by defendant is "a civil action in which the United States are concerned," and which it is the duty of the district attorney to prosecute under R. S. § 771, ante, § 1296. Bliss v. U. S. (C. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 191.

Where an executor fails to pay a legacy tax under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, the United States may sue him to impose a lien on the property bequeathed if he had it in his possession, and, if not, may institute proceedings against the person having the property in possession. U. S. v. Priest (D. C. 1914) 210 Fed. 332.

Where an executor paid to a legatee the balance of her legacy after paying part of a legacy tax owing to the United States under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, the legatee was not liable in assumpsit for the balance of the tax which could be collected only by suit to enforce the government's lien on the property so transferred. Id.

Act March 3, 1865, § 1, amending Act June 30, 1864, providing that, if any person liable to pay an internal revenue duty fail to pay it after demand, the amount shall be a lien on all property and rights of property, and the collector may levy on all property and rights of property belonging to such person, does not make such amount payable out of the proceeds of a sale of the taxpayer's property under an execution on a judgment in the common pleas in favor of another creditor. Bosset v. Miller (Pa. 1871) 2 Woodw. Dec. 40.

16. Forfeiture passing land to United States on nonpayment of tax in insurrectionary district under law of 1862.—Act June 7, 1862, § 4, for the collection of taxes in insurrectionary districts, does not, on failure to pay the same, create such a forfeiture that the property in the land passes ipso facto, on the nonpayment of taxes for 60 days, from the former owner to the United States. Martin v. Snowden (Va. 1868) 18 Grat. 100.

17. Recovery of taxes paid under protest.—Plaintiff company, having leased all the property, and taking over the entire business of another company, and agreeing to pay taxes against it, and, to avoid threatened distraint and sale of the leased property under this and sections following, having paid the tax under protest, held to have paid under duress, and entitled to sue for its recovery. Cambria Steel Co. v. McCoach (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 278.

Cited without definite application, Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co. (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 825, 829, 135 U. S. 326, 34 L. Ed. 162.

§ 5909. (R. S. § 3187.) Taxes collectible by distraint.

If any person liable to pay any taxes neglects or refuses to pay the same within ten days after notice and demand, it shall be lawful for the collector or his deputy to collect the said taxes, with five per centum additional thereto, and interest as aforesaid, by distraint and sale, in the manner hereafter provided, of the goods, chattels, or effects, including stocks, securities, and evidences of debt, of the person delinquent as aforesaid: Provided, That there shall be exempt from distraint and sale, if belonging to the head of a family, the school-books and wearing apparel necessary for such family; also arms for personal use, one cow, two hogs, five sheep and the wool thereof, provided the aggregate market-value of said sheep shall not exceed fifty dollars; the necessary food for such cow, hogs, and sheep, for a period not exceeding thirty days; fuel to an amount not greater in value than twenty-five dollars; provisions to an amount not greater than fifty dollars; household furniture kept for use to an amount not greater than three hundred dollars; and the books, tools, or implements, of a trade or profession, to an amount not greater than one hundred dollars shall also be exempt; and the officer making the distraint shall summon three disinterested householders of the vicinity, who shall appraise and set apart to the owner the amount of property herein declared to be exempt.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 106, 107, 108. Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 8, 14 Stat. 473.

Notes of Decisions

See, also, notes under the preceding section.

Application to oleomargarine tax.—This section does not apply to the Oleomargarine Act. Tucker v. Grier (1908) 160 Fed. 611, 87 C. C. A. 513; Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658.

Enforcement of lien.—The United States held not required to enforce the lien of internal revenue taxes against the taxpayer's chattels and personal effects under this section and sections 5910–5918, post, before resorting to a sale of his real estate and leaseholds. U. S. v. Curry (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 371.

Warrant as equivalent to demand.—The issue of the warrant to a collector of internal revenue tax is not an equivalent for the demand required by the statute, where the person taxed has had no notice of it. Brown v. Goodwin (N. Y. 1876) 1 Abb. N. C. 452.

Warrant as justification for distraint.—The assessor's warrant is a justification to a collector distraining the taxpayer's property. Haffin v. Mason (1872) 15 Wall. 671, 675, 21 L. Ed. 196.

Execution of erroneous assessment.—A collector of the direct tax will not be liable for executing an erroneous assessment by distress, if the house be liable to be assessed. Henderson v. Brown (N. Y. 1803) 1 Caines, 92, 2 Am. Dec. 164.

Bank taxes.—Where a national bank refuses to pay taxes assessed upon its income and profits (Act July 14, 1870, §§ 15, 17), a collector or his deputy, after notice and demand, may distrain therefor. State Nat. Bank of Minneapolis v. Morrison (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 13,325.

Cited without definite application, Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co. (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 825, 829, 135 U. S. 326, 34 L. Ed. 162; U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 103; U. S. v. Howell (C. C. 1881) 9 Fed. 674, 678.

§ 5910. (R. S. § 3188.) Mode of levying distraint.

In such case of neglect or refusal, the collector may levy, or by warrant may authorize a deputy collector to levy, upon all property and rights to property, except such as are exempt by the preceding section, belonging to such person, or on which the said lien exists, for the payment of the sum due as aforesaid, with interest and penalty for non-payment, and also of such further sum as shall be sufficient for the fees, costs, and expenses of such levy.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 107.

Notes of Decisions

See, also, notes under §§ 5908, 5909, ante.

Spirits in bonded warehouse before withdrawal by purchaser.—See Sheridan v. Allen (1907) 153 Fed. 568, 82 C. C. A. 522. See note under § 396.

Nothing can be plainer in legal decision than the proposition that the lien in the case of an assessment for taxes under section 6089, post, attaches to the distillery, the distilled spirits, and the real and personal property used in connection with the distillery, and that it may be enforced against the distilled spirits at any time before the purchaser of the same withdraws them from the bonded warehouse. Hartman v. Bean (1878) 99 U. S. 393, 397, 25 L. Ed. 455.

Land in hands of bona fide purchaser from delinquent.—Lien on real estate of a delinquent internal revenue tax under this section held enforceable against the land in the hands of subsequent bona fide purchasers from the delinquent without notice. U. S. v. Curry (D. C. 1912) 201 Fed. 371.

Cotton captured as prize.—Cotton captured as prize, and in the custody of the marshal under a warrant from the prize court is not liable to be proceeded against for the internal revenue tax while in his custody. The Victory (D. C. 1863) Fed. Cas. No. 16,938.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 103.

§ 5911. (R. S. § 3189.) Delinquents must exhibit evidences relating to property distrained.

All persons, and officers of companies or corporations, are required, on demand of a collector or deputy collector about to distrain or having distrained on any property, or rights of property, to exhibit all books containing evidence or statements relating to the subject of distraint, or the property or rights of property liable to distraint for the tax due as aforesaid.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 107.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5909, ante.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 103.

§ 5912. (R. S. § 3190.) Proceedings on distraint.

When distraint is made, as aforesaid, the officer charged with the collection shall make or cause to be made an account of the goods or effects distrained, a copy of which, signed by the officer making such distraint, shall be left with the owner or possessor of such goods or effects, or at his dwelling or usual place of business, with some person of suitable age and discretion, if any such can be found, with a note of the sum demanded, and the time and place of sale; and the said officer shall forthwith cause a notification to be published in some newspaper within the county wherein said distraint is made, if a newspaper is published in said county, or to be publicly posted at the post-office, if there be one within five miles nearest to the residence of the person whose property shall be distrained, and in not less than two other public places. Such notice shall specify the articles distrained, and the time and place for the sale thereof. Such time shall not be less than ten nor more than twenty days from the date of such notification to the owner or possessor of the property and the publication or posting of such notice as herein provided, and the place proposed for the sale shall not be more than five miles distant from the place of making such distraint. Said sale may be adjourned from time to time by said officer, if he deems it advisable, but not for a time to exceed in all thirty days.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 107.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5909, ante.

Notice of sale.—Where a collector of the duty on carriages made a distress under Act Dec. 15, 1814, § 4, and sold it, at auction, for less than half the value, in two hours after seizure, without giving public notice of the time and place of sale, such sale was void. Blake v. Johnson (1817) 1 N. H. 91.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 97, 103.

§ 5913. (R. S. § 3191.) When property sold under distraint is subject to tax, and tax not paid.

When property subject to tax, but upon which the tax has not been paid, is seized upon distraint and sold, the amount of such tax shall, after deducting the expenses of such sale, be first appropriated out of the proceeds thereof to the payment of the tax. And if no assessment of such tax has been made upon such property, the collector shall make a return thereof in the form required by law, and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall assess the tax thereon.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 108. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 2, 17 Stat. 402.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5909, ante.

§ 5914. (R. S. § 3192.) When property sold under distraint may be purchased for United States, etc.

When any property advertised for sale under distraint, as aforesaid, is of a kind subject to tax, and the tax has not been paid, and the amount bid for such property is not equal to the amount of the tax, the collector may purchase the same in behalf of the United States for an amount not exceeding the said tax. All property so purchased may be sold by the collector, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The collector shall render to the Commissioner a distinct account of all charges incurred in such sales, and, in case of sale, shall pay into the Treasury the surplus, if any there be, after defraying all lawful charges and fees.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 108.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5909, ante.

§ 5915. (R. S. § 3193.) Property distrained to be restored on payment before sale.

In any case of distraint for the payment of the taxes aforesaid, the goods, chattels, or effects so distrained shall be restored to the owner or possessor, if, prior to the sale, payment of the amount due is made to the proper officer charged with the collection, together with the fees and other charges; but in case of non-payment as aforesaid, the said officers shall proceed to sell the said goods, chattels, or effects at public auction, and shall retain from the proceeds of such sale the amount demandable for the use of the United States, and a commission of five per centum thereon for his own use, with the fees and charges for distraint and sale, rendering the overplus, if any there be, to the person who may be entitled to receive the same.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 106.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5909, ante.

Commission of 5 per cent. under former law.—Under Act Jan. 9, 1815, § 26, providing that, in case of distress to enforce a direct tax, the goods shall be restored on payment of the amount demanded, with reasonable expenses, and, if the property is sold, allowing 5 per cent. commission to the collector, he is not entitled to the 5 per cent., except in case of actual distress and sale. Stow v. Converse (1820) 3 Conn. 325, 8 Am. Dec. 189.

§ 5916. (R. S. § 3194.) Effect of certificate of sale on distraint.

In all cases of sale, as aforesaid, the certificate of such sale shall be prima-facie evidence of the right of the officer to make such sale, and conclusive evidence of the regularity of his proceedings in making the sale, and shall transfer to the purchaser all right, title, and interest of such delinquent in and to the property sold; and where such property consists of stocks, said certificate shall be notice, when received, to any corporation, company, or association of said transfer, and shall be authority to such corporation, company, or association to record the same on their books and records in the same manner as if transferred or assigned by the party holding the same, in lieu of any original or prior certificates, which shall be void, whether canceled or not. And said certificates, where the subject of sale is securities or other evidences of debt, shall be good and valid receipts to the person holding the same, as against any person holding, or claiming to hold, possession of such securities or other evidences of debt.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 107. Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 45, 13 Stat. 240.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5909, ante.

Title of purchaser.—A sale of property by an internal revenue officer under a distraint warrant for the collection of a tax does not cut off the title of a third person who does not owe the tax and against whose property the warrant is not directed, and the true owner may assert his title and right of possession by replevin against the purchaser after the officer has made the sale and transferred possession, and has thus completed his official acts with respect to the property. A sale of property by a collector under a distraint warrant is clearly distinguishable from a sale of property seized and condemned in forfeiture proceedings for violation of the customs or internal revenue laws, and passes only the interest of the tax debtor. Sheridan v. Allen (1907) 153 Fed. 568, 82 C. C. A. 522, reversing order Allen v. Sheridan (C. C. 1906) 145 Fed. 963.

Cited without definite application. Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co. (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 825, 829, 135 U. S. 326, 34 L. Ed. 162; Blacklock v. U. S. (1908) 28 Sup. Ct. 228, 233, 208 U. S. 75, 52 L. Ed. 396.

§ 5917. (R. S. § 3195.) When property distrained is not divisible. When any property liable to distraint for taxes is not divisible, so as to enable the collector by a sale of part thereof to raise the whole amount of the tax, with all costs, charges, and commissions, the whole of such property shall be sold, and the surplus of the proceeds of the sale, after satisfying the tax, costs, and charges, shall be paid to the person legally entitled to receive the same; or, if he cannot be found, or refuses to receive the same, shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States, to be there held for his use until he makes application therefor to the Secretary of the Treasury, who, upon such application and satisfactory proofs in support thereof, shall, by warrant on the Treasury, cause the same to be paid to the applicant.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 108.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5909, ante.

Sale of land as a whole.—Where the collector acted in good faith, it was not improper for him, in the exercise of his discretion, to sell as an entirety the lands, consisting of two town lots, which were inclosed and occupied as a single homestead, a dwelling house being upon one and a barn on the other. The state statute under which they were separately assessed has no application to his proceedings. Springer v. U. S. (1880) 102 U. S. 586, 26 L. Ed. 253.

Act 1815, c. 174, provides that where property, liable to a direct tax under that act, shall not be divisible, so that the collector may, by a sale of part thereof, raise the whole amount of the tax, etc., the whole of such property shall be sold, etc. In the case of certain real estate capable of such division, all of which was owned by the party assessed, it was held that the sale of an undivided portion of such estate for the payment of the tax was invalid. Loud v. Penniman (1837) 36 Mass. (19 Pick.) 539.

A law of congress which requires that the whole land shall be sold in all cases for payment of taxes, without regard to the fact that it may be divided without injury to it and the tax paid by a sale of a part of it, is unconstitutional. Martin v. Snowden (Va. 1868) 18 Grat. 100.

Surplus proceeds of sale for direct tax.—Where application by the owner of land sold for direct taxes and not redeemed was made to the secretary of the treasury for the $929.50 surplus, and, no action being taken thereon, he sued in the court of claims to recover that sum, it was held that he was entitled to recover it. U. S. v. Lawton (1884) 110 U. S. 146, 3 Sup. Ct. 545, 28 L. Ed. 100.

Until an application has been made to the treasury, the statute does not begin to run against a claim for the surplus proceeds of a sale under Act Aug. 5, 1861, relative to the sale of property which was subject to direct taxes, and which proceeds have, under the statute, been deposited in the treasury to be held until called for by the owner. U. S. v. Cooper (1887) 120 U. S. 124, 7 Sup. Ct. 459, 30 L. Ed. 606.

§ 5918. (R. S. § 3196.) When real estate may be sold to satisfy taxes.

When goods, chattels, or effects sufficient to satisfy the taxes imposed upon any person are not found by the collector or deputy collector, he is authorized to collect the same by seizure and sale of real estate.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 108.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5909, ante.

Cited without definite application, Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co. (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 825, 829, 135 U. S. 326, 34 L. Ed. 162.

§ 5919. (R. S. § 3197, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, and Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3.) Proceedings for seizure and sale of real estate for taxes.

The officer making the seizure mentioned in the preceding section shall give notice to the person whose estate it is proposed to sell by giving him in hand, or leaving at his last or usual place of abode, if he has any such within the collection-district where said estate is situated, a notice, in writing, stating what particular estate is to be sold, describing the same with reasonable certainty, and the time when and place where said officer proposes to sell the same; which time shall not be less than twenty nor more than forty days from the time of giving said notice. The said officer shall also cause a notification to the same effect to be published in some newspaper within the county where such seizure is made, if any such there be, and shall also cause a like notice to be posted at the post-office nearest to the estate seized, and in two other public places within the county; and the place of said sale shall not be more than five miles distant from the estate seized, except by special order of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. At the time and place appointed, the officer making such seizure shall proceed to sell the said estate at public auction, offering the same at a minimum price, including the expense of making such levy, and all charges for advertising and an officer's fee of ten dollars. When the real estate so seized consists of several distinct tracts or parcels, the officer making sale thereof shall offer each tract or parcel for sale separately, and shall, if he deem it advisable, apportion the expenses, charges, and fees aforesaid to such several tracts or parcels, or to any of them, in estimating the minimum price aforesaid. If no person offers for said estate the amount of said minimum price, the officer shall declare the same to be purchased by him for the United States; otherwise the same shall be declared to be sold to the highest bidder. And in case the same shall be declared to be purchased for the United States, the officer shall immediately transmit a certificate of the purchase to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and, at the proper time, as hereafter provided, shall execute a deed therefor, after its preparation and the indorsement of approval as to its form by the United States district attorney for the district in which the property is situate, and shall without delay, cause the same to be duly recorded in the proper registry of deeds, and immediately thereafter shall transmit such deed to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. And said sale may be adjourned from time to time by said officer for not exceeding thirty days in all, if he shall think it advisable so to do. If the amount bid shall not be then and there paid, the officer shall forthwith proceed to again sell said estate in the same manner. And it is hereby provided, That all certificates of purchase, and deeds of property purchased by the United States under the internal-revenue laws, on sales for taxes, or under executions issued from United States courts, which now are, or hereafter may be, found in the office of any collector, United States marshal, or United States district attorney, shall be immediately transmitted by such officers respectively to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. And it is hereby further provided, That for the preparation and approval by the United States district attorney of each deed as above required, a fee of five dollars shall be allowed to that officer, to be paid by the United States, and which he shall account for in his emolument returns.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 109. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 248. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, 20 Stat. 331.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out, after the words "post-office nearest to the estate," the words "to be," by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

It was further amended by striking out, after the words "by him for the United States," the words "and shall deposit with the district attorney of the United States a deed thereof, as hereafter provided," and by inserting, after the words "sold to the highest bidder," the provisions beginning with the words "And in case the same," and ending with the words "shall transmit such deed to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue," and by adding, after the words "proceed to again sell said estate in the same manner," the provisions beginning with the words "And it is hereby provided," etc., to the end of the section, as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, cited above.

The last proviso of this section was superseded as to all district attorneys, except in and for the District of Columbia, by the abolition of fees in addition to salary by Act May 28, 1896, c. 252, §§ 7, 24, and Act March 3, 1905, c. 1483, § 1, ante, §§ 1419, 1431, 1435.

Notes of Decisions

Effect of provisions for proceedings in chancery.—The remedy of sale by distraint was not superseded by the provisions for suits in chancery to sell real estate (section 5929, post). Blacklock v. U. S. (1908) 28 Sup. Ct. 228, 230, 208 U. S. 75, 52 L. Ed. 396.

Necessity of sale for direct tax.—Act June 7, 1862, for the collection of direct taxes in insurrectionary districts, provides that, unless the taxes therein mentioned shall be paid within 60 days from the time of levying the same, the title to the property taxed shall "become forfeited" to the United States. Held; that there was no effectual forfeiture until sale had been made pursuant to the act. Dickerson v. Acosta (1876) 15 Fla. 614; Soutter v. Miller, Id. 625.

Necessity of strict compliance with statute.—In the sale of lands by a collector of the taxes imposed by Act 1798, the collector must comply strictly with the requisitions of the act in his proceedings preparatory to the sale. Allen v. Smith (Va. 1829) 1 Leigh, 231.

Notice.—When the owner of land, on account of which a United States succession tax has been assessed, resides in the same collection district with the land, but not upon it, a collector's notice of seizure and sale of the same to pay the tax is not lawfully served upon him by leaving a copy at the domicile on the land. Peyrie v. Schreiber (1877) 66 Mo. 38.

Where it appears that, in the case of land sold for nonpayment of an internal revenue tax, the 20 days' notice of sale required by the statute was not given, the collector's deed is void on its face. Dow v. Chandler (1884) 85 Mo. 245.

Act Jan. 1, 1815, § 28, enacts that with respect to property lying within any collection district, not owned by a resident thereof and on which the tax was unpaid, the collector shall transmit lists of the same to one of the collectors designated for that purpose, and the latter shall cause notifications of the tax to be published for 60 days. Section 4 prescribes that the secretary of the treasury shall establish regulations necessary for carrying the act into effect. Held, that where a collector sold land belonging to a nonresident, and the only notification which he published was that he had received lists of taxes due and that he was authorized to receive them, but did not state what taxes remained unpaid, the notification, though in the form prescribed by the secretary of the treasury, was insufficient, and a sale thereunder void. Eastman v. Little (1830) 5 N. H. 290.

Where the military power of the United States had not been so firmly established that citizens could safely obey its laws, and go without danger to the headquarters of the commissioners to pay their taxes, and have free benefit of the mails to receive notice of advertisement of sales, a sale of land for nonpayment of the direct taxes imposed by the acts of congress was void. Buck v. Williams (1872) 57 Tenn. (10 Heisk.) 264.

Sale of nonresident's land in custodia legis.—A sale of land for nonpayment of direct taxes may be valid, though, when it and the assessment were made, the lands belonged to a nonresident, and were in custodia legis; the state court in which the lis was pending having enjoined all creditors from interfering with or selling them, and they were sold as an entirety, notwithstanding the fact that the tax bore but a small proportion to their value. A description of the lands in the notice of sale, which identifies them so that the owner may have information of the claim thereon, is all that the law requires. Keely v. Sanders (1878) 99 U. S. 441, 25 L. Ed. 327; Sherry v. McKinley (1878) 99 U. S. 496, 25 L. Ed. 330.

Sale of succession without offering and adjudication.—A sale by the United States tax collector of land of a succession without an offering and adjudication of the land, but made 25 miles from where the distraining was effected, by a mere naked transfer by a notarial act from the tax collector, is an absolute nullity, since not in compliance with the act of congress. Johnson v. Dunbar (1874) 26 La. Ann. 188.

Sale of land as a whole.—See note under § 5917, ante.

Purchase by government and subsequent sale.—Act June 7, 1862 (12 Stat. 422, § 7), in regard to the collection of a direct tax in insurrectionary districts after the Civil War, provided, inter alia, that the board of tax commissioners should, on nonpayment of the tax, advertise the land charged therewith for sale, and at the time and place of sale cause the same to be sold to the highest bidder for a sum not less than the taxes, interest, penalty, and costs, or, in the absence of a bid amounting to such sum, to bid it off for the United States. As amended by Act Feb. 6, 1863 (12 Stat. 640), it provided that, where payment of the taxes, or a request that the property be struck off to a purchaser for a less sum than two-thirds of its assessed value, was not made before the day of sale, the commissioners should be "authorized" at the sale to bid off the property for the United States at a sum "not exceeding two-thirds of the assessed value thereof," unless some person shall bid a larger sum. Held, that the commissioners were not bound to bid two-thirds of the assessed value, but could sell the property for any sum over the amount of taxes, interest, and costs. Turner v. Smith (1871) 81 U. S. (14 Wall.) 553, 20 L. Ed. 724, reversing (Va. 1868) 18 Grat. 830.

Where land subject to a direct tax was sold for its nonpayment, and bought in by the United States for $1,100, under Act June 7, 1862, c. 98, § 7, as amended by Act Feb. 6, 1863, c. 21 (12 Stat. 640), the tax, penalty, interest, and costs being $170.50, but no money was paid, and the United States took possession of the land and leased it, and afterwards sold all but 50 acres for $130, under Act June 8, 1872, c. 337 (17 Stat. 330), and the land was not redeemed, an action would lie in the court of claims by the landowner to recover $929.50, representing the surplus which must be regarded as being in the treasury of the United States, under section 36 of the act of 1861, for the use of the owner, in like manner as if it were the surplus of purchase money received by the United States from a third person on a sale of the land to such person for the nonpayment of the tax: U. S. v. Lawton (1884) 3 Sup. Ct. 545, 547, 110 U. S. 146, 28 L. Ed. 100.

Where a debt originally due to the United States by virtue of an assessment of an internal revenue tax has been merged in the tax sale and purchase in pursuance thereof by the United States, the United States holds the legal title to the land, and has a full, complete, and adequate remedy at law in the action of ejectment against the original owners in possession, or against any grantee in possession who became such subsequent to the assessment of the tax. U. S. v. Wilson (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 991, 992, 118 U. S. 86, 30 L. Ed. 110.

As the purchase of the wife gave her possession of the property, her devisee will recover back one-third of the purchase money paid by or for her, that being the share in the land which she would be entitled to under the law of South Carolina, as widow. Chisolm v. U. S. (1896) 31 Ct. Cl. 328.

A purchase of such property by the wife of the owner or her trustee cannot operate to defeat the right of his heirs to relief under the statute. Id.

Where a lot in Beaufort, S. C., sold under the direct-tax acts, was afterwards purchased from the United States by the trustee of the owner's wife, so that he lost the land in law by the tax sale, and in fact by not repurchasing it, his children will recover half of the assessed value, under the act of March 2, 1891 (26 Stat. 822); and the purchase by the wife's trustee will be regarded as that of a stranger, as against the children. Id.

Commissioners selling land for taxes under Act Feb. 6, 1863, are bound to bid off the land for the United States, if no person will bid more than two-thirds of its assessed value, unless the owner request it to be struck off to some other person at a less price. Turner v. Smith (Va. 1868) 18 Grat. 830.

Collateral attack on sale.—A sale by the United States revenue tax collector of land of a succession, without an offering and adjudication of the land, may be attacked collaterally by the administrator, since an absolute nullity Johnson v. Dunbar (1874) 26 La. Ann. 188.

Surplus proceeds of direct tax sale to be held in treasury for owner.—See U. S. v. Taylor (1881) 104 U. S. 216. 26 L. Ed. 721.

§ 5920. (R. S. § 3198.) Certificate of purchase; deed.

Upon any sale of real estate, as provided in the preceding section, and the payment of the purchase-money, the officer making the seizure and sale shall give to the purchaser a certificate of purchase, which shall set forth the real estate purchased, for whose taxes the same was sold, the name of the purchaser, and the price paid therefor; and if the said real estate be not redeemed in the manner and within the time hereafter provided, the said collector or deputy collector shall execute to the said purchaser, upon his surrender of said certificate, a deed of the real estate purchased by him as aforesaid, reciting the facts set forth in said certificate, and in accordance with the laws of the State in which such real estate is situate upon the subject of sales of real estate under execution.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 109.

Notes of Decisions

Certificate of sale by deputy collector.—A certificate of sale by the deputy collector of internal revenue, for internal revenue taxes, is not evidence that title has passed, but only that the holder has a right to acquire title by deed, or to receive the money necessary to effect redemption. Flemister v. Flemister (1889) 83 Ga. 79, 9 S. E. 724.

Certificate of direct tax commissioners.—A certificate signed by only two of the direct tax commissioners appointed under Act June 7, 1862, authorizing the appointment of three commissioners to sell at public sale lots on which direct taxes had been levied in any state where, by reason of insurrection or rebellion, the civil authority of the federal government was obstructed, and requiring commissioners to give the purchaser a certificate of sale, that land charged with taxes had been sold to the United States is admissible in evidence in an action brought to try title to the land. Cooley v. O'Connor (1870) 79 U. S. (12 Wall.) 391, 20 L. Ed. 446.

The certificate given by the commissioners to the purchaser of lands at a sale for direct taxes under Act June 7, 1862 (12 Stat. 422), as amended by Act Feb. 6, 1862 (12 Stat. 640), is prima facie evidence of the regularity of the sale, and of all antecedent facts essential to its validity and to that of his title thereunder, and can only be affected by establishing that the lands were not subject to tax, or that it had been paid prior to the sale, or that they had been redeemed. De Treville v. Smalls (1878) 98 U. S. 517, 25 L. Ed. 174; Keely v. Sanders (1878) 99 U. S. 441, 25 L. Ed. 327; Sherry v. McKinley (1878) 99 U. S. 496, 25 L. Ed. 330.

The certificate of the sale of lands by the United States direct tax commissioners under Act June 7, 1862, for the nonpayment of taxes, is prima facie evidence of the regularity and validity of the sale and of the title of the purchaser. Billings v. McDermott, (1875) 15 Fla. 60; Hill v. Vanderpool, Id. 128; Billings v. Stark, Id. 297.

A certificate of lands sold by the United States direct tax commissioners, under Act June 7, 1862, for unpaid taxes charged thereon, signed by only two of the three tax commissioners, is admissible in evidence in an action to try the title to the land, as an authority given to several for public purposes may be executed by a majority of their number. Hill v. Vanderpool (1875) 15 Fla. 128.

A certificate of the clerk of the United States direct tax commissioners is not evidence of a sale by them for taxes. Billings v. Stark (1875) 15 Fla. 297.

A tax certificate signed by two of the United States direct tax commissioners on sale of property for taxes, as authorized by Act June 7, 1862, is prima facie evidence of regularity and validity of the sale and of the purchaser's title, though one of the three commissioners forming the board refused to act and dissented from the proceedings of the majority. Id.

A tax certificate issued by United States direct tax commissioners cannot affect the question of the ownership of lands by including them within its boundaries. State v. Pinckney (1885) 22 S. C. 484.

Under a certificate of sale of island lands by United States commissioners for nonpayment of direct taxes, the vacant marshes surrounding such island, being property of the state, and therefore not taxable under the act of congress, did not pass, and evidence could be introduced to show the state's ownership. Id.

A commissioner's certificate which shows on its face that the land was sold to a purchaser other than the United States for less than two-thirds its assessed value is void and of no effect. Turner v. Smith (Va. 1868) 18 Grat. 830.

Title of purchaser in general.—Act June 7, 1862 (12 Stat. 422), entitled an act for the collection of direct taxes in insurrectionary districts, provided that the lands therein should be charged with a direct tax, which should be a lien thereon without further proceedings. Section 3 provided that the owners of said lands might pay the tax within a certain time. Section 4 provided that the title to each piece of land on which said tax has not been paid shall become forfeited to the United States, and on the sale provided for shall vest in the United States or in the purchasers at such sale, in fee simple, free and discharged from all prior liens, incumbrances, and claims whatsoever. Sections 5–7 provided for sales by a board of tax commissioners after advertisement. Held, that the tax was a direct one, and the sale passed all the interest in the land, by whomsoever held, subject only to a right of redemption within a certain time as permitted by the statute. Turner v. Smith (1871) 81 U. S. (14 Wall.) 553, 20 L. Ed. 724.

Where land is sold for taxes due from a distiller, who does not own the fee, only his interest passes under the collector's deed. Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co. (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 825, 829, 135 U. S. 326, 34 L. Ed. 162.

A tax sale conveys to the purchaser no other interest in the property than that belonging to the delinquent tax debtor at the time the government's lien attached. Blacklock v. U. S. (1906) 41 Ct. Cl. 89.

It is not necessary for the purchaser of lands sold for nonpayment of the direct tax of the year 1813, in an action between him and the original owner of the land, to show that the collector had given bond for the faithful performance of his duty; this being intended only for the security of the United States. Hale v. Cushing (1823) 2 Me. (2 Greenl.) 218.

Act June 7, 1862, for the collection of direct taxes in insurrectionary districts, provides that "the title of, in, and to each and every piece or parcel of land upon which said tax has not been paid * * * shall thereupon become forfeited to the United States, and, upon the sale hereinafter provided for, shall vest in the United States, or in the purchasers at such sale, in fee simple, free, and discharged from all prior liens, incumbrances, right, title, and claim whatsoever." Under this provision, where the plaintiff shows title under a certificate of sale by the tax commissioners, the evidence of the defendant's good title anterior to the tax, assessment and sale, or of a title by deed from the former owner, is not a defense. Billings v. Stark (1875) 15 Fla. 297.

There is no power vested by law in the officers of the United States treasury department to set aside a sale, or vacate a title acquired by a purchaser at a sale, for direct taxes; and the assent of the purchaser to the setting aside of the sale, after he had conveyed the premises to a third person, cannot affect the rights of such third person, unless he also assented. Id.

Deed of marshal for land sold for direct tax.—A deed from a United States marshal to the purchaser of land sold for the nonpayment of the direct tax imposed by congress is not sufficient evidence to support the title of the purchaser, in ejectment, without additional proof of the authority of the marshal to make such conveyance. Christy v. Minor (Va. 1815) 4 Munf. 431.

One claiming land under a sale by a collector of taxes imposed by Act 1798, must prove the regularity thereof. The marshal's deed to him is not even prima facie evidence of the regularity of the collector's proceedings; nor shall the regularity be presumed from 22 years' quiet possession under the sale, or from any time short of that from which any other link of the chain of title to real estate may be presumed. Allen v. Smith (Va. 1829) 1 Leigh, 231.

Collector's deed.—A deed of land sold for nonpayment of United States taxes by a collector of internal revenue is of no effect without proof of the collector's authority and of his performance of the statute prerequisites. Emery v. Harrison (1850) 13 Pa. (1 Harris) 317.

A party claiming title under a deed from the collector of the United States for land sold for the direct tax must show that every thing was done which the law required to be done before making the sale; and the deposition of the collector, in general terms, that the sale was made in exact pursuance of the act of congress, without specifying what was done, is not proper evidence of the fact. Evidence of the various proceedings required by law before the sale was made should be adduced, to enable the court to determine, on the facts so proved, whether the authority to sell was properly exercised in the particular case. Jesse v. Preston (Va. 1848) 5 Grat. 120.

—— As prima facie evidence.—The recitals, in a collector's deed of land sold for taxes, under a statute of the United States for the assessment, etc., of a direct tax, of the proceedings required by the statute previous to the sale, are not even prima facie evidence. Proof must be made that those proceedings were had, independently of the deed and the recitals therein. Williams v. Peyton (1819) 17 U. S. (4 Wheat.) 77, 4 L. Ed. 518; Jackson v. Shepard (N. Y. 1827) 7 Cow. 88, 17 Am. Dec. 502; Powell v. Brown (Vt. 1802) 1 Tyler, 286.

The recital in a collector's deed of lands sold for taxes under Direct Tax Act July 22, 1813, c. 554, § 546, that the tax was demanded, the dwelling house of the person to whom it was assessed, and that sufficient goods to satisfy the taxes could not be found, is not prima facie evidence of such facts, which must be proved in an action of a judgment against the purchaser by evidence independent of the deed. Jackson v. Shepard (N. Y. 1827) 7 Cow. 88, 17 Am. Dec. 502.

A deed given to the purchaser at a sale of land for taxes by a United States collector of internal revenue is prima facie evidence only of those facts which are by law authorized or required to be stated therein. A plaintiff who claims under such a deed must, to prove title, show aliunde that a lien was acquired by the United States on the land by notice and demand of the tax, and neglect to pay, and also a failure to find personal estate to satisfy the tax. Brown v. Goodwin (N. Y. 1878) 56 How. Prac. 301.

A deed from a collector of internal revenue is, under section 5921, post, only prima facie evidence of the facts required by statute to be stated therein. In order to establish title thereunder, the prerequisites prescribed by section 5895 et seq., ante, to the right to seize and sell, also the assessment of the tax and the notice of the sale, must be shown by evidence aliunde. Id.

The provisions of this and the following section do not make the collector's deed prima facie evidence of any facts other than those which the statute requires to be stated therein. Fox v. Stafford (1884) 90 N. C. 296.

Under section 5921, post, the deed is not prima facie evidence as to other recitals than those recited pursuant to this section. Stewart v. Pergusson (1903) 45 S. E. 585, 133 N. C. 276.

The deed of the collector, made under the act of January 9, 1815, imposing direct taxes, does not furnish prima facie evidence of the regularity of the collector's proceedings, though the recitals in the deed state specifically all the proceedings which the law requires to be had to make the sale of the land conveyed by the deed legal, and also recites that all the proceedings had been had. Jesse v. Preston (Va. 1848) 5 Grat. 120.

Cited without definite application, Blacklock v. U. S. (1908) 28 Sup. Ct. 228, 230, 208 U. S. 75, 52 L. Ed. 396.

§ 5921. (R. S. § 3199.) Collector's deed to be prima-facie evidence, etc.

The deed of sale given in pursuance of the preceding section shall be prima-facie evidence of the facts therein stated; and if the proceedings of the officer as set forth have been substantially in accordance with the provisions of law, shall be considered and operate as a conveyance of all the right, title, and interest the party delinquent had in and to the real estate thus sold at the time the lien of the United States attached thereto.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 109.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under the preceding section.

Cited without definite application, Blacklock v. U. S. (1908) 28 Sup. Ct. 228, 233, 208 U. S. 75, 52 L. Ed. 396.

§ 5922. (R. S. § 3200.) Collector may seize lands of delinquent in any district of same State.

Any collector or deputy collector may, for the collection of taxes imposed upon any person, and committed to him for collection, seize and sell the lands of such person situated in any other collection-district within the State in which such officer resides; and his proceedings in relation thereto shall have the same effect as if the same were had in his proper collection-district.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 110.

§ 5923. (R. S. § 3201.) Redemption of land prior to sale.

Any person whose estate may be proceeded against as aforesaid shall have the right to pay the amount due, together with the costs and charges thereon, to the collector or deputy collector at any time prior to the sale thereof, and all further proceedings shall cease from the time of such payment.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 109.

Notes of Decisions

Prior payment or tender of tax as invalidating sale.—Though an act of congress may provide that, unless the "owner" shall appear in person and pay the tax, the commissioners shall proceed to sell the land, the sale would be void if the tax had been paid or tendered by any person before the sale. Martin v. Snowden (Va. 1868) 18 Grat. 100.

Payment of direct tax.—Under Act June 7, 1862, as amended Feb. 6, 1863, "for the collection of the direct tax in insurrectionary districts," the tax imposed could be paid by some friend or agent of the owner, as well as by the owner in person. Bennett v. Hunter (1869) 76 U. S. (9 Wall.) 326, 19 L. Ed. 672; Lee v. Chase (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 8,185; Atwood v. Weems (1878) 99 U. S. 183, 25 L. Ed. 471; Lee v. Kaufman (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 8,192, affirmed Kaufman v. Lee (1882) 106 U. S. 196, 1 Sup. Ct. 240, 27 L. Ed. 171.

Under Act June 7, 1862, relating to the collection of direct taxes in insurrectionary districts within the United States, etc., the right to pay the tax and relieve the land from sale is not limited to 60 days after the fixing of the amount. Payment of the tax before sale is sufficient. Bennett v. Hunter (1869) 76 U. S. (9 Wall.) 326, 19 L. Ed. 672.

Where the tax commissioners have made an illegal rule that a payment of taxes on property advertised for sale under Act June 7, 1862, for the collection of taxes in insurrectionary districts must be made in person, and that a tender by a relative will not be received, it is a sufficient tender if a relative of the owner went to the office of the commissioner to see about the payment of the taxes, though he made no formal tender. Tracey v. Irwin (1873) 85 U. S. (18 Wall.) 549, 21 L. Ed. 786.

§ 5924. (R. S. § 3202.) Redemption of lands after sale.

The owners of any real estate sold as aforesaid, their heirs, executors, or administrators, or any person having any interest therein, or a lien thereon, or any person in their behalf, shall be permitted to redeem the land sold, or any particular tract thereof, at any time within one year after the sale thereof, upon payment to the purchaser, or, in case he cannot be found in the county in which the land to be redeemed is situate, then to the collector of the district in which the land is situate, for the use of the purchaser, his heirs or assigns, the amount paid by the said purchaser and interest thereon at the rate of twenty per centum per annum.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 109.

Notes of Decisions

Redemption by minors.—In the absence of a provision in Act June 7, 1862, relating to tax sales and providing for redemption by minors, as to the right of a minor on redemption to recover rents and profits, Code Tenn. § 2135, relating to execution sales, and providing that, if the debtor redeems after possession taken by the purchaser, the debtor is entitled to "the fair rent of the premises during the term they were in the purchaser's possession," is applicable to such tax sales. Shelton v. Sears (1872) 57 Tenn. (10 Heisk.) 303.

Redemption by trustee.—Act March 3, 1865 (13 Stat. 502), precluding an "owner" of land in insurrectionary districts from redeeming from a sale for taxes, if he assisted in the rebellion against the United States, does not preclude a trustee of a decedent's estate from redeeming for the benefit of his cestui que trust, though the trustee assisted in such rebellion. Corbett v. Nutt (1870) 77 U. S. (10 Wall.) 464, 19 L. Ed. 976, affirming (Va. 1868) 18 Grat. 624.

Under Act June 7, 1862 (12 Stat. 423, 424), enabling a person "having charge" of the estate of the owner of lands sold for taxes in insurrectionary districts to redeem them, a person named in a decree as a trustee, being thereby clothed with prima facie authority, may make a valid redemption, though his appointment was in fact invalid. Id.

Validity of redemption as depending on return of purchase money into treasury.—The validity of the redemption of lands sold for taxes under the acts of 1862-63 does not depend on the return of the purchase money into the treasury by the commissioners. The owner's title may be made complete, though the secretary should refuse to refund the money to the purchaser. Corbett v. Nutt (Va. 1868) 18 Grat. 624.

Cited without definite application, Blacklock v. U. S. (1908) 28 Sup. Ct. 228, 230, 208 U. S. 75, 52 L. Ed. 396.

§ 5925. (R. S. § 3203, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3.) Record of sales; transmission of copy to Commissioner.

It shall be the duty of every collector to keep a record of all sales of land made in his collection-district, whether by himself or his deputies, or by another collector, in which shall be set forth the tax for which any such sale was made, the dates of seizure and sale, the name of the party assessed and all proceedings in making said sale, amount of fees and expenses, the name of the purchaser and the date of the deed; and said record shall be certified by the officer making the sale. And on or before the fifth day of each succeeding month he shall transmit a copy of such record of the preceding month to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. And it shall be the duty of every deputy making sale, as aforesaid, to return a statement of all his proceedings to the collector, and to certify the record thereof. In case of the death or removal of the collector, or the expiration of his term of office from any other cause, said record shall be delivered to his successor in office; and a copy of every such record, certified by the collector, shall be evidence in any court of the truth of the facts therein stated.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 110. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, 20 Stat. 332.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting, after the words "and said record shall be certified by the officer making the sale," the provision requiring a transmission to the Commissioner of a copy of such record, beginning with the words "And on or before the fifth day," and ending with the words "Commissioner of Internal Revenue," as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, cited above.

Collectors were required to make a monthly statement of collections, by R. S. § 3212, post, § 5935.

Notes of Decisions

Return for direct tax sale.—Where no return has been made to the clerk of the district court for a sale of land by a deputy collector for the United States direct tax of 1815, as provided by act of Congress, it must be shown that the tax was granted by Congress and duly assessed, and that all the proceedings necessary to give validity to the sale, except those which it was the duty of the defendant to perform, were legally had. Holden v. Eaton (1829) 25 Mass. (8 Pick.) 436.

§ 5926. (R. S. § 3204.) Redemptions to be entered on record.

When any lands sold, as aforesaid, are redeemed as heretofore provided, the collector shall make entry of the fact upon the record mentioned in the preceding section, and the said entry shall be evidence of such redemption.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 108.

§ 5927. (R. S. § 3205.) Successive seizures may be made, when.

Whenever any property, personal or real, which is seized and sold by virtue of the foregoing provisions, is not sufficient to satisfy the claim of the United States for which distraint or seizure is made, the collector may, thereafter, and as often as the same may be necessary, proceed to seize and sell, in like manner, any other property liable to seizure of the person against whom such claim exists, until the amount due from him, together with all expenses, is fully paid.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 110.

Cited without definite application, Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co. (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 825, 829, 135 U. S. 326, 34 L. Ed. 162.

§ 5928. (R. S. § 3206.) Fees and charges in seizure cases.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall by regulation determine the fees and charges to be allowed in all cases of distraint and other seizures; and shall have power to determine whether any expense incurred in making any distraint or seizure was necessary.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 108.

Notes of Decisions

Per diem for watching seized property.—The collector will not be allowed a per diem for watching seized property, where he fails to turn it over to the district attorney, to have proceedings commenced, for 37 days after the seizure. Fifteen Empty Barrels (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 4,778.

§ 5929. (R. S. § 3207.) Proceedings in chancery to subject real estate to payment of tax.

In any case where there has been a refusal or neglect to pay any tax, and it has become necessary to seize and sell real estate to satisfy the same, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may direct a bill in chancery to be filed, in a district [or circuit] court of the United States, to enforce the lien of the United States for tax upon any real estate, or to subject any real estate owned by the delinquent, or in which he has any right, title, or interest, to the payment of such tax. All persons having liens upon or claiming any interest in the real estate sought to be subjected as aforesaid, shall be made parties to such proceedings, and be brought into court as provided in other suits in chancery therein. And the said court shall, at the term next after the parties have been duly notified of the proceedings, unless otherwise ordered by the court, proceed to adjudicate all matters involved therein, and finally determine the merits of all claims to and liens upon the real estate in question, and, in all cases where a claim or interest of the United States therein is established, shall decree a sale of such real estate, by the proper officer of the court, and a distribution of the proceeds of such sale according to the findings of the court in respect to the interests of the parties and of the United States.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 106, 15 Stat. 167.

The words of this section "or circuit," inclosed in brackets, were superseded by the abolition of circuit courts by Jud. Code, §§ 289–291, ante, §§ 1266–1268.

Jurisdiction of suits in equity to enforce internal-revenue taxes was conferred upon the district courts by R. S. § 563, subsec. 5, which was incorporated into the Judicial Code, § 24, subsec. 5, ante, § 991 (5).

Notes of Decisions

Statute as directory.—This statute is directory. Blacklock v. U. S. (1906) 41 Ct. Cl. 89.

Remedy as cumulative.—The remedy of sale by distraint was not superseded by this act. Blacklock v. U. S. (1908) 28 Sup. Ct. 228, 231, 208 U. S. 75, 52 L. Ed. 396, affirming judgment (1906) 41 Ct. Cl. 89.

The remedy in equity to collect assessments is cumulative. Alkan v. Bean (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 202.

Enforcement of liens as against bona fide purchasers.—Though liens are not recorded as required by a state law relating to liens, they may be enforced against the lands in the hands of purchasers for value without notice. U. S. v. Snyder (1893) 13 Sup. Ct. 846, 847, 149 U. S. 210, 37 L. Ed. 705.

Validity of assessment as subject of inquiry.—The validity of an assessment against a distiller may be inquired into by defendant's answering a bill by the United States to subject to the payment of such assessment lands transferred to them. U. S. v. Rindskopf (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 16,166.

Where defendants have rebutted the presumption of law as to the validity of the assessment, the burden of proof is shifted upon the government to establish its validity. Id.

Cited without definite application, Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co. (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 825, 829, 135 U. S. 326, 34 L. Ed. 162; U. S. v. Nebraska Distilling Co. (1897) 80 Fed. 285, 286, 25 C. C. A. 418.

§ 5930. (R. S. § 3208, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3.) Commissioner to have charge of real estate acquired by United States under internal-revenue laws.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall have charge of all real estate which is now or shall become the property of the United States by judgment of forfeiture under the internal-revenue laws, or which has been or shall be assigned, set off, or conveyed by purchase or otherwise to the United States in payment of debts or penalties arising under the laws relating to internal revenue, or which has been or shall be vested in the United States by mortgage or other security for the payment of such debts, and of all trusts created for the use of the United States in payment of such debts due them; and, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may, at public vendue, and upon not less than twenty day's notice, sell and dispose of all real estate owned or held by the United States aforesaid; and until such sale the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may lease such real estate owned as aforesaid on such terms and for such period as they shall deem expedient. And in cases where real estate has or may become the property of the United States by conveyance or otherwise, in payment of or as security for a debt arising under the laws relating to internal revenue, and such debt shall have been paid, together with the interest thereon, at the rate of one per centum per month, to the United States, within two years from the date of the acquisition of such real estate, it shall be lawful for the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury to release by deed, or otherwise convey such real estate to the debtor from whom it was taken, or to his heirs or other legal representatives.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 4, 14 Stat. 472. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, 20 Stat. 332.

This section as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting, after the words "charge of all real estate which," the words "is now or shall become the property of the United States by judgment of forfeiture under the internal-revenue laws, or which," and by inserting, after the words "payment of debts," the words "or penalties," and by inserting, after the words "relating to internal revenue" the words "or which has been or shall be vested in the United States by mortgage or other security for the payment of such debts," and by inserting, after the words "sell and dispose of," in place of the words "lands assigned or set off to the United States in payment of such debts, or vested in them by mortgage or other security, for the payment of such debts," the provisions beginning with the words "all real estate owned or held," and ending with the words "for such period as they shall deem expedient," which are followed by the provisions of the original section, beginning with the words "And in cases where," to the end of the section, as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, cited above.

The Solicitor of the Treasury was to have charge of property transferred to the United States for debts, except property transferred in payment of debts under internal-revenue laws, by R. S. § 3750, post, § 6946.

Notes of Decisions

Forfeited real estate.—This section does not devolve upon the commissioner of internal revenue the charge of real estate forfeited under the internal revenue laws where the forfeiture is enforced by proceedings in rem. (1878) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 186.

But the custody of real estate acquired in satisfaction of a pecuniary forfeiture arising under those laws is thereby devolved upon the commissioner. Id.

Land acquired by judgments on official bonds.—The commissioner of internal revenue is not authorized by law to take charge of lands acquired by the United States in satisfaction of judgments recovered on the official bonds of collectors of internal revenue, and, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, to dispose of the same by sale or otherwise. (1878) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 144.

§ 5931. (R. S. § 3209.) List to be sent to district where the party taxed resides or has property, when.

Whenever a collector has on any list duly returned to him the name of any person not within his collection-district who is liable to tax, or of any person so liable who has, in the collection-district in which he resides, no sufficient property subject to seizure or distraint, from which the money due for tax can be collected, such collector shall transmit a statement containing the name of the person liable to such tax, with the amount and nature thereof, duly certified under his hand, to the collector of any district to which said person shall have removed, or in which he shall have property, real or personal, liable to be seized and sold for tax. And the collector to whom the said certified statement is transmitted shall proceed to collect the said tax in the same way as if the name of the person and objects of tax contained in the said certified statement were on any list of his own collection-district; and he shall, upon receiving said certified statement as aforesaid, transmit his receipt for it to the collector sending the same to him.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 32, 13 Stat. 236.

§ 5932. (R. S. § 3210.) Collections to be paid into Treasury daily.

The gross amount of all taxes and revenues received or collected by virtue of this Title, or of any law hereafter enacted providing internal revenue, shall be paid, by the officers receiving or collecting the same, daily into the Treasury of the United States, under the instructions of the Secretary of the Treasury, without any abatement or deduction on account of salary, compensation, fees, costs, charges, expenses, or claims of any description; and a certificate of such payment, stating the name of the depositor and the specific account on which the deposit was made, signed by the Treasurer, assistant treasurer, designated depositary, or proper officer of a deposit bank, shall be transmitted to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue: Provided, That in districts where, from the distance of the officer, collector, or agent receiving or collecting such taxes and revenues from a proper Government depository, the Secretary of the Treasury may deem it proper, he may extend the time for making such payment, not exceeding, however, in any case a period of one month.

Act March 3, 1865, c. 78, § 3, 13 Stat. 483.

See § 5933, post, and notes thereunder.

Notes of Decisions

Effect of statute as to recovery of taxes paid and interest.—The statute does not make a suit against a collector for taxes collected one against the United States, so as to preclude recovery of interest. Kinney v. Conant (1909) 166 Fed. 720, 92 C. C. A. 410, affirming (C. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 581, certiorari denied (1909) 29 S. Ct. 703, 214 U. S. 526, 53 L. Ed. 1068.

The internal revenue law, as shown by this section and sections 5949–5951, post, substitutes a statutory remedy for the common-law remedy to recover taxes paid; but, differing from customs cases, the action remains an action at law against the collector individually. Treat v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. (1911) 185 Fed. 760, 108 C. C. A. 98.

Payment.—It is not ordinarily necessary to the consummation of payment that money received by public officers in discharge of a debt be formally covered into the treasury; but where one public officer charges a sum of money in payment of a tax to the official account of another public officer without his consent, and takes a certificate of deposit for it, but requests the secretary to suspend covering it into the treasury, and the three agree that the matter be suspended, it must be held that payment was not intended to be consummated. Johnston v. U. S. (1881) 17 Ct. Cl. 157.

Recovery of collection as money had and received.—Money collected by a collector of internal revenue under Act March 3, 1791, and paid over by him to the inspector, cannot be recovered back by the collector as money had and received to his use. Wells v. Neville (C. C. 1818) Fed. Cas. No. 17,403.

Cited without definite application. U. S. v. Real Estate Sav. Bank (1881) 104 U. S. 728, 731, 26 L. Ed. 908; Coudert v. U. S. (1899) 20 Sup. Ct. 56, 57, 175 U. S. 178, 44 L. Ed. 122.

§ 5933. (Act May 10, 1916, c. 117, § 1.) All collections to be covered into Treasury as internal revenue collections.

Collectors of internal revenue shall pay daily into the Treasury of the United States, under instructions of the Secretary of the Treasury, the gross amounts of all collections of whatever nature, made by authority of law (including sums offered in compromise under the provisions of section thirty-two hundred and twenty-nine, Revised Statutes, as well as all other money received for which they are accountable under their respective collection bonds required to be given under section thirty-one hundred and forty-three, Revised Statutes), and the same shall be covered into the Treasury as internal-revenue collections: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be construed as affecting the provisions of subsection "D" of Section II, Act of October third, nineteen hundred and thirteen, in the matter of withholding the normal income tax at the source. (39 Stat.)

From legislative, executive and judicial appropriation act, cited above.

R. S. § 3229, mentioned above, is set forth post, § 5952.

Subsection D of section II, Act Oct. 3, 1913, referred to, was repealed by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, set forth post, §§ 6336a–6336x.

This section supersedes Act May 27, 1908, c. 200, § 1, 35 Stat. 325, which read as follows:

"After June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and eight, collectors of internal revenue shall pay daily into the Treasury of the United States, under instructions of the Secretary of the Treasury, the gross amounts of all collections of whatever nature, made by authority of law, and the same shall be covered into the Treasury as internal-revenue collections."

§ 5934. (R. S. § 3211.) Depositories.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to designate one or more depositories in each State, for the deposit and safe-keeping of the money collected by virtue of the internal-revenue laws; and the receipt of the proper officer of such depository to a collector for the money deposited by him shall be a sufficient voucher for such collector in the settlement of his accounts at the Treasury Department.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 33, 13 Stat. 236.

The Secretary of the Treasury was directed to discontinue the depositories at Buffalo, Santa Fé, and Pittsburg by a provision of Act Aug. 15, 1876, c. 287, § 1, 19 Stat. 155.

The failure of custodians to safely keep the public moneys is punishable by R. S. § 5490, which was incorporated into the Criminal Code, in section 89 thereof, post, § 10257, and was repealed by section 341 thereof, post, § 10515.

§ 5935. (R. S. § 3212.) Collector's monthly statement; final accounts.

Every collector shall, at the expiration of each month after he commences his collections, transmit to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue a statement of the collections made by him within the month. And every collector shall complete the collection of all sums assigned to him for collection, and shall pay over the same into the Treasury, and shall render his accounts to the Treasury Department as often as he may be required.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 33, 13 Stat. 236.

Collectors were required to transmit to the Commissioner monthly a copy of the record of sales of land for taxes, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, incorporated into R. S. § 3203, ante, § 5925.

§ 5936. (Act May 27, 1908, c. 200, § 1.) Collectors to render accounts quarterly.

Collectors of internal revenue shall render their revenue accounts quarterly. (35 Stat. 325.)

This was a provision of the sundry civil appropriation act for the fiscal year 1909, cited above.

§ 5937. (R. S. § 3213.) Suits, etc., for fines, penalties, and forfeitures, and for taxes.

It shall be the duty of the collectors, in their respective districts, subject to the provisions of this Title, to prosecute for the recovery of any sums which may be forfeited by law. All suits for fines, penalties, and forfeitures, where not otherwise provided for, shall be brought in the name of the United States, in any proper form of action, or by any appropriate form of proceeding, qui tam or otherwise, before any [circuit or] district court of the United States, for the district within which said fine, penalty, or forfeiture may have been incurred, or before any other court of competent jurisdiction; and taxes may be sued for and recovered in the name of the United States, in any proper form of action, before any [circuit or] district court of the United States for the district within which the liability to such tax is incurred, or where the party from whom such tax is due resides at the time of the commencement of the said action.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 110.

The words of this section "circuit or," inclosed in brackets, were superseded by the abolition of circuit courts by Jud. Code, §§ 289–291, ante, §§ 1266–1268.

Settlements of duties upon imports were made conclusive after one year, in absence of fraud, by Act June 22, 1874, c. 391, § 21, ante, § 5714.

Suits for penalties or forfeitures under customs-revenue laws must be commenced within three years by section 22 of said act, ante, § 1713.

Notes of Decisions

1. Application to oleomargarine tax.
2. Application to stamp tax.
3. Application to capacity tax on distillers.
4. Right of action and defenses in general.
5. Set-off.
6. Limitation or laches.
7. Assessment as condition precedent.
8. Suit against executor or administrator personally or in representative capacity.
9. Suit against legatee or cestui que trust.
10. Form of action.
11. Pleading.
12. Evidence.
13. Trial.

See, also, notes as to informers under § 6365, post.

See notes under § 5997, ante.

See U. S. v. Belding (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 14,562.

1. Application to oleomargarine tax. This section does not apply to the Oleomargarine Act. Tucker v. Grier (1908) 160 Fed. 611, 87 C. C. A. 513.

Section 19 of the Oleomargarine Act, section 6231, post, accomplishes the same purpose as this section, and would not have been enacted if it was intended that the general internal revenue law applied to the Oleomargarine Act. Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658, 662.

2. Application to stamp tax.—The stamp tax which, under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 6, 30 Stat. 451, is to be "levied, collected, and paid" upon the execution of a conveyance, may be recovered by the United States in an action of debt, notwithstanding the further provisions of the statute imposing fine or imprisonment for issuing an unstamped conveyance, and making such unstamped instrument inadmissible in evidence, incapable of record, and invalid and of no effect, which must be deemed made in order to induce the payment of the tax, and not as substitutes for payment. U. S. v. Chamberlin (1911) 31 Sup. Ct. 155, 219 U. S. 250, 55 L. Ed. 204, reversing judgment (1907) 156 Fed. 881, 84 C. C. A. 461, 13 A. & E. Ann. Cas. 720.

Express statutory authority for an action by the United States to recover the stamp tax which, under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 6, was to be levied, collected, and paid upon the execution of a conveyance, was given by section 31 of that act, making applicable all administrative, special, or stamp provisions of law, including the laws in relation to the assessment of taxes not heretofore specifically repealed, which comprehended the authority conferred by this section. Id. See, also, U. S. v. Jourden (1912) 193 Fed. 986, 113 C. C. A. 606.

3. Application to capacity tax on distillers.—Taxes assessed by commissioner of internal revenue under section 6089, post, may be sued for under this section. U. S. v. Bristow (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 378.

4. Right of action and defenses in general.—The recovery of an assessment and the penalty for a failure to make return of income held no bar to an action to recover the tax on income, under Act March 2, 1867, § 13. U. S. v. Hazard (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,337.

An assessment and payment are not a bar to a suit for the recovery of an amount claimed to be due over and above the amount which has been thus assessed and paid. U. S. v. Little Miami, C. & X. R. Co. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 700, 701, reversed (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 727, 108 U. S. 277, 27 L. Ed. 724.

Taxes assessed by the commissioner of internal revenue under section 6089, post, may be sued for under this section. U. S. v. Bristow (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 378.

A verdict in a prosecution by the United States, which necessarily negatives the allegation that defendant was "a wholesale dealer in malt liquors," does not estop the United States to allege that fact in a civil action for special taxes due from defendant as such dealer. U. S. v. Schneider (C. C. 1888) 35 Fed. 107.

The causes of action for unpaid taxes on income arising under the Acts of 1862 et seq. are not barred by delays in discovering imperfections in the return after the tax was paid, or by the fact that no return was made, and a tax and penalty was assessed and paid. U. S. v. Tilden (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 16,519.

5. Set-off.—In a suit for taxes defendant cannot plead a set-off, legal or equitable, growing out of independent claims. U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 15,983.

In a suit by the United States for the recovery of taxes, the defendant is entitled to a deduction of any amount admitted by the plaintiff to have been previously overpaid, even though there is no plea of offset. Missouri R., F. S. & G. R. Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 66.

6. Limitation or laches.—The limitation of 15 months within which an assessment may be made has no application to an action against a corporation for taxes imposed by statute. U. S. v. Little Miami, C. & X. R. Co. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 700, 701, reversed (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 627, 108 U. S. 277, 27 L. Ed. 724.

As it was made the duty of the railroad company, under the acts of 1866 and 1870, to make returns to the proper internal revenue officer of the amount of income, profits, and taxes, when no returns have been made by the company, a failure on the part of the United States to demand such tax, or to institute proceedings to recover the same, until 1881, cannot constitute a bar to an action to recover such tax when it does not appear that the delay has prejudiced the company by the disappearance or loss of evidence essential to its defense. U. S. v. Marquette, H. & O. R. Co. (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 719, judgment reversed Marquette, H. & O. R. Co. v. U. S. (1887) 8 Sup. Ct. 319, 123 U. S. 722, 31 L. Ed. 302.

7. Assessment as condition precedent.—An assessment was not required by Act 1864, c. 173, and, if made, is not conclusive on either party, and in an action against a railroad corporation under section 122 thereof, as amended by Act 1866, c. 184, to recover the unpaid taxes on undivided profits, the controlling question was not what had been assessed, but what was by law due. U. S. v. Philadelphia & R. Co. (1887) 8 Sup. Ct. 77, 123 U. S. 113, 31 L. Ed. 138.

An action of debt may be maintained to recover taxes without an assessment, where the statute describes the subject of the taxes and fixes the rates, so that the amount may be ascertained by evidence. U. S. v. Little Miami, C. & X. R. Co. (C. C. 1880) 1 Fed. 700, 701, reversed (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 627, 108 U. S. 277, 27 L. Ed. 724.

In an action under section 6289, post, levying on every person, firm, or association, other than a national bank, a tax of 10 per cent. on the amount of their notes used for circulation, recovery may be had without an assessment of the taxes by the commissioner of internal revenue. U. S. v. Warrick (C. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 138.

Under the revenue acts of 1862 and 1864 the United States may sue for and collect a tax on income without a prior assessment in the mode specified in the act creating the tax. U. S. v. Tilden (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 16,519.

8. Suit against executor or administrator personally or in representative capacity.—Before a suit can be maintained under this section, the taxes must be due from the party against whom the suit is instituted; hence, where an executor was not personally liable for war taxes imposed by United States, suit could not be maintained against him personally. U. S. v. Fitts (D. C. 1912) 197 Fed. 1007.

The legacy tax imposed by War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, §§ 29, 30, is not a debt of the decedent's estate, and the United States cannot maintain an action at law to recover the same against the executor or administrator in his representative capacity. Id.

9. Suit against legatee or cestui que trust.—The legatee or cestui que trust is not liable in personam for the legacy tax imposed by Act July 1, 1862, §§ 111, 112, and an action will not lie against him to recover it. U. S. v. Allen (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 14,430.

10. Form of action.—An indictment will lie to recover a penalty for failure to affix a revenue stamp to a package sold, under Act July 13, 1866, § 9. U. S. v. Abbott (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 14,416; Same v. Fenelon (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,085.

The United States are not prohibited from adopting the action of debt or any other remedy for the collection of internal revenue taxes and penalties due them, and taxes may be sued for and recovered in any proper form of action. Dollar Sav. Bank v. U. S. (1873) 19 Wall. 227, 237, 22 L. Ed. 80.

Although in practice suits in rem for forfeitures for violations of the internal revenue laws are more frequently brought in the district courts, yet cases are to be found of such suits originally brought in the circuit courts, where jurisdiction was taken and not questioned. Coffey v. U. S. (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 432, 435, 116 U. S. 427, 29 L. Ed. 681.

An action in personam to recover the forfeiture of $500 under Act July 1, 1862, § 54, will lie, although the seizure provided for therein has not taken place. U. S. v. Mynderse (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 15,850.

The obligation or duty to pay taxes is one which may be enforced by suit, by an action at law, or a bill in equity, according to the nature of the relief sought. U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 15,983.

A common-law action cannot be maintained to enforce the payment of legacy and succession taxes imposed by the act of June 30, 1864. That act provides a remedy which the United States must pursue where the tax has not been paid. U. S. v. Truck's Adm'x (C. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 846.

For failure to take out a license to refine petroleum, both a criminal prosecution and an action qui tam are authorized, and the institution of one is no bar to the other. U. S. v. Trobe (D. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 16,541.

When the punishment prescribed for violation of the internal revenue laws is a pecuniary penalty or fine only, and the act fixes the exact amount, an action of debt will lie to recover it. U. S. v. Ebner (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 15,020.

The penalty declared under section 6019, post, is recoverable in a civil action under this section. U. S. v. Thompson (D. C. 1881) 45 Fed. 468, 469.

The statute authorizes fines, forfeitures, and penalties incurred under the laws of the United States to be recovered by indictment. U. S. v. Craft (D. C. 1890) 48 Fed. 374.

11. Pleading.—In an action for a penalty against a bank cashier for refusing the revenue officer leave to inspect the pay checks of the bank, the declaration must aver that the checks were unstamped, since otherwise they were not subject to taxation. U. S. v. Mann (1877) 95 U. S. 580, 24 L. Ed. 531.

Proceedings in rem under the revenue laws being kindred to such proceedings in admiralty, so far as the pleadings are concerned, no reply or replication to the answer is necessary to raise an issue of fact on the matters averred in it, but new matter is considered as denied. Hence an issue of fact as to a former conviction raised by the answer must be held to have been covered by the verdict; and no question in regard to the defense set up can be raised, in the absence of a demurrer to the answer and of a bill of exceptions raising specific questions. Coffey v. U. S. (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 432, 116 U. S. 427, 29 L. Ed. 681.

In a proceeding by the United States for the forfeiture of certain property for an alleged violation of the internal revenue laws, the claimants answered denying the unlawful acts charged in the information. They subsequently filed an amended and supplemental answer setting up an additional defense, but expressly reserving the right to rely on the denials of the original answer. A demurrer to the amended answer was overruled, and the cause was submitted to the court generally on an admission of the facts alleged in the amended answer and on the pleadings. Held that, in the absence of proof of the allegations of the information, a judgment of dismissal was proper, and could not be reversed, and the sufficiency of the amended answer and the correctness of the ruling on the demurrer thereto became immaterial. U. S. v. One Distillery (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 624, 174 U. S. 149, 43 L. Ed. 929.

To a suit to recover the balance of a tax the defense that the amount already paid was determined to be the true amount by the assessor cannot be tried upon demurrer. U. S. v. New York Guaranty & Indemnity Co. (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 15,872.

Where the complaint in an action to recover arrears of income tax due from a national bank failed to state that defendant had "neglected or omitted to make a return of dividends or additions to its surplus or contingent funds as often as once in six months," it is insufficient. U. S. v. Central Nat. Bank (D. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 612, judgment affirmed Central Nat. Bank v. U. S. (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 126, 137 U. S. 355, 34 L. Ed. 703.

In an action for the penalty imposed by Act April 19, 1816, on distillers of spirituous liquors, the sum claimed for double duties should be stated in the declaration. Buckwalter v. U. S. (Pa. 1824) 11 Serg. & R. 193.

The term during which the defendant used the still should also be stated in the declaration. Id.

12. Evidence.—In action for penalties for alleged frauds in the payment of the internal revenue tax on liquor, certificate books of canal collectors, which show the amount of liquor shipped over the canal, but not by whom it was shipped, the collector having no personal knowledge of the entries made in such books, were incompetent as evidence against the defendant. Chaffee v. U. S. (1873) 85 U. S. (18 Wall.) 516, 21 L. Ed. 908, reversing U. S. v. Chaffee (1867) Fed. Cas. No. 14,772 [2 Bond, 110].

In the assessment of special taxes the officers of the internal revenue act in a quasi judicial capacity, and in an action to recover such taxes the introduction in evidence of the assessment list, regular in form, makes a prima facie case for the government. Western Express Co. v. U. S. (1905) 141 Fed. 28, 72 C. C. A. 516.

The assessor's original list, transmitted to the collector, is prima facie evidence of the amount of the tax due. U. S. v. Butler (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 14,702.

Sufficiency of complaint in an action against a bank for the $1,000 penalty for failing to make return of its net earnings, incomes, or gains under Act June 30, 1864, § 120 (13 Stat. 223), as re-enacted July 14, 1870 (16 Stat.

274). U. S. v. State Nat. Bank of Minneapolis (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 16,380.

In an action by the United States to recover a tax of one twenty-fourth of 1 per centum each month upon the capital stock of a bank, under section 3408, subsec. 2, of the Revised Statutes as originally enacted, the assessment list made by the commissioner of internal revenue, and not appealed from, is not conclusive evidence, but the defendant may show that the assessment was excessive or illegal. U. S. v. Bank of America (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 730.

Evidence that the pecuniary circumstances of a distiller were apparently improved while engaged in distilling, during a period when such business was not profitable, is not admissible to show fraud. U. S. v. Chaffee (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 14,772.

An action for a penalty for the violation of the internal revenue act is a civil action and the jury are to find according to the preponderance of the evidence. U. S. v. Brown (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 14,662.

A duebill given for the capacity tax on stills is prima facie evidence that a demand for such tax was made as required by Act March 3, 1871, imposing such duty. Miller v. Probst (Pa. 1797). Add. 344.

13. Trial.—A general verdict, on an information in several counts for a single forfeiture, under the internal revenue laws, is valid, if one count is good. Snyder v. U. S. (1884) 5 Sup. Ct. 118, 112 U. S. 216, 28 L. Ed. 697.

In an action under section 6289, post, levying on every person, firm, or association other than a national bank a tax of 10 per cent. on the amount of their own notes used for circulation, it must be shown that the defendant intended to put his notes in circulation as money, and paid them out for that purpose; but, in showing such intention, his declarations when he paid out the notes are not the only proper evidence thereof, and it is not error to instruct the jury that paying out the notes, knowing that they would be used and circulated as money, is evidence from which they may infer the intention to pay them out for that purpose. U. S. v. Warrick (C. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 138.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Payne (D. C. 1884) 22 Fed. 426, 427.

§ 5938. (R. S. § 3214.) Suits for taxes, etc., not to be brought without sanction of Commissioner.

No suit for the recovery of taxes, or of any fine, penalty, or forfeiture, shall be commenced unless the Commissioner of Internal Revenue authorizes or sanctions the proceedings: Provided, That in case of any suit for penalties or forfeitures brought upon information received from any person, other than a collector or deputy collector, the United States shall not be subject to any costs of suit.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 111.

Notes of Decisions

Application to war revenue tax.—This section held applicable to suits for taxes under War Revenue Act, June 13, 1898, c. 448. U. S. v. Chamberlin (1911) 31 Sup. Ct. 155, 162, 219 U. S. 250, 55 L. Ed. 204.

Informers.—See notes under § 6365, post.

§ 5939. (R. S. § 3215.) Regulations as to suits, for government of officers.

It shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to establish such regulations, not inconsistent with law, for the observance of revenue officers, district attorneys, and marshals, respecting suits arising under the internal-revenue laws in which the United States is a party, as may be deemed necessary for the just responsibility of those officers and the prompt collection of all revenues and debts due and accruing to the United States under such laws.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 3, 14 Stat. 472.

The Solicitor of the Treasury was required to establish regulations respecting suits in which the United States is a party, except suits arising under the internal-revenue laws, by R. S. § 377, ante, § 553.

Notes of Decisions

Regulations as having force of statutes.—Regulations issued by the secretary have the force of statutes. Stegall v. Thurman (D. C. 1910) 175 Fed. 818.

§ 5940. (R. S. § 3216.) Moneys recovered by suits to be paid to collectors.

All judgments and moneys recovered or received for taxes, costs, forfeitures, and penalties, shall be paid to collectors as internal taxes are required to be paid.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 111.

Notes of Decisions

Payment of stamp taxes.—In view of this section the satisfaction of a judgment for the recovery of the stamp tax which, under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, was to be levied, collected, and paid upon the execution of a conveyance, must be deemed the equivalent of the payment of the price of the stamps under section 13 of that act, as amended, validating unstamped instruments on making the prescribed payment. U. S. v. Chamberlin (1911) 31 Sup. Ct. 155, 219 U. S. 250, 55 L. Ed. 204, reversing judgment (1907) 156 Fed. 881, 84 C. C. A. 461, 13 Ann. Cas. 720.

Costs, fees, etc.—The "receiving, keeping, and paying out" of money by the clerk under an execution issued on a judgment in an action under the internal revenue laws, for which section 1383, ante, allows the clerk 1 per cent. commission (2 in California, by section 1405, ante), is a service rendered the government, for which the government is liable; and such commissions are to be paid, under this section, through the collector of internal revenue, into the treasury, as are the clerk's fees, that are taxed and included in the judgment and collected from the defendant. U. S. v. Wolters (C. C. 1892) 51 Fed. 896, disapproving Same v. Cigars, etc. (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 494.

Under this section and section 1462, ante, it was held that, on motion for an order for payment to a local collector of internal revenue the fees, costs, charges, and expenses of the officers of the court, recovered by the government in certain revenue cases, the above provisions relate only to cases in which the government is unsuccessful, and to cases in which it has paid fees in the progress of the cause, and subsequently recovered them as costs. U. S. v. Cigars (D. C. 1800) 2 Fed. 494, 495.

This statute does not require the officers' fees, which are the emoluments of their offices, to be paid over to the collectors of internal revenue. Id.

Cited without definite application, Howard v. U. S. (1900) 102 Fed. 77, 81, 42 C. C. A. 169, affirmed (1902) 22 Sup. Ct. 543, 184 U. S. 676, 46 L. Ed. 754.

§ 5941. (R. S. § 3217.) Dues from delinquent collector to be collected by distraint and sale.

When any collector fails either to collect or to render his account, or to pay over in the manner or within the times provided by law, the First Comptroller of the Treasury shall, immediately after evidence of such delinquency, report the same to the Solicitor of the Treasury, who shall issue a warrant of distress against such delinquent collector, directed to the marshal of the district, expressing therein the amount with which the said collector is chargeable, and the sums, if any, which have been paid over by him, so far as the same are ascertainable. And the said marshal shall, himself, or by his deputy, immediately proceed to levy and collect the sum which may remain due, with five per centum thereon, and all the expenses and charges of collection, by distress and sale of the goods and chattels, or any personal effects of the delinquent collector, giving at least five days' notice of the time and place of sale, in the manner provided by law for advertising sales of personal property on execution in the State wherein such collector resides. And the bill of sale of the officer of any goods, chattels, or other personal property, distrained and sold as aforesaid, shall be conclusive evidence of title to the purchaser, and prima-facie evidence of the right of the officer to make such sale, and of the correctness of his proceedings in selling the same. And for want of goods and chattels, or other personal effects of such collector, sufficient to satisfy any warrant of distress, issued as aforesaid, the real estate of such collector, or so much thereof as may be necessary for satisfying the said warrant, after being advertised for at least three weeks next before the time of sale, in not less than three public places in the collection-district, and in one newspaper printed in the county or district, if any there be, shall be sold at public auction by the marshal or his deputy. Upon such sale, the marshal shall make and deliver to the purchaser of the premises sold a deed of conveyance thereof, to be executed and acknowledged in the manner and form prescribed by the laws of the State in which said lands are situated, and said deed so made shall invest the purchaser with all the title and interest of the defendant named in said warrant, existing at the time of the seizure thereof. And all moneys that may remain of the proceeds of such sale of personal or real property, after satisfying the said warrant of distress, and paying the reasonable costs and charges of sale, shall be returned to the proprietor of the property sold as aforesaid.

Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 35, 13 Stat. 237.

The First Comptroller of the Treasury was designated Comptroller of the Treasury by the Dockery Act of July 31, 1894, c. 174, § 4, ante, § 402.

§ 5942. (R. S. § 3218.) Collectors charged with what.

Every collector shall be charged with the whole amount of taxes, whether contained in lists transmitted to him by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, or by other collectors, or delivered to him by his predecessor in office, and with the additions thereto, with the par value of all stamps deposited with him, and with all moneys collected for penalties, forfeitures, fees, or costs; and he shall be credited with all payments into the Treasury made as provided by law, with all stamps returned by him uncanceled to the Treasury, and with the amount of taxes contained in the lists transmitted in the manner heretofore provided to other collectors, and by them receipted as aforesaid; also with the amount of the taxes of such persons as may have absconded, or become insolvent, prior to the day when the tax ought, according to the provisions of law, to have been collected, and with all uncollected taxes transferred by him or by his deputy acting as collector to his successor in office: Provided, That it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who shall certify the facts to the First Comptroller of the Treasury, that due diligence was used by the collector. And each collector shall also be credited with the amount of all property purchased by him for the use of the United States, provided he faithfully account for and pay over the proceeds thereof upon a resale of the same as required by law.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 110. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 2, 17 Stat. 402.

Notes of Decisions

See, also, notes under § 5847, ante.

Credits to collector.—A collector of internal revenue is entitled to a credit for all uncollected taxes transferred by him to a successor in office, if he proves that due diligence was used by him for their collection. U. S. v. Kimball (1879) 101 U. S. 726, 25 L. Ed. 835.

The rejection by the commissioner of internal revenue of a claim of a collector of internal revenue for a credit for uncollected taxes, presented by the collector, entitles the latter, when sued for such taxes, to prove his claim. Id.

The proper credits to a collector on transferring the list of assessments to his successor. U. S. v. Able (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 14,417.

§ 5943. (R. S. § 3219.) Death, etc., of collector; uncollected balances.

In case of the death, resignation, or removal of any collector, all lists and accounts of taxes uncollected shall be transferred to his successor in office as soon as such successor is appointed and qualified, and it shall be the duty of such successor to collect the same.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 110.

Notes of Decisions

Power and duty of collector after removal.—A collector of internal revenue after removal from office has no power to collect the duties outstanding at the time of his removal, and which had accrued while he remained in office, but the power and duty devolve on his successor. Sthreshley v. U. S. (1807) 8 U. S. (4 Cranch) 169, 2 L. Ed. 584.

§ 5944. (R. S. § 3220.) Refundment of taxes, penalties, etc.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, subject to regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury, is authorized, on appeal to him made, to remit, refund, and pay back all taxes erroneously or illegally assessed or collected, all penalties collected without authority, and all taxes that appear to be unjustly assessed or excessive in amount, or in any manner wrongfully collected; also to repay to any collector or deputy collector the full amount of such sums of money as may be recovered against him in any court, for any internal taxes collected by him, with the cost and expenses of suit; also all damages and costs recovered against any assessor, assistant assessor, collector, deputy collector, or inspector, in any suit brought against him by reason of anything done in the due performance of his official duty: Provided, That where a second assessment is made in case of a list, statement, or return which in the opinion of the collector or deputy collector was false or fraudulent, or contained any understatement or undervaluation, such assessment shall not be remitted, nor shall taxes collected under such assessment be refunded, or paid back, unless it is proved that said list, statement, or return was not false or fraudulent, and did not contain any understatement or undervaluation.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 111. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401.

A permanent appropriation to refund taxes illegally collected under the internal revenue laws was made by R. S. § 3689, post, § 6799.

Redemption of stamps issued under Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, is provided for by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 411, set forth post, § 6346a.

Notes of Decisions

1. Constitutionality.
2. Remedy for illegal assessment in general.
3. Jurisdiction and authority of commissioner and secretary of the treasury.
4. Protest, voluntary payment, and mistake of fact.
5. Special taxes.
6. Tax paid by distiller on account of loss or destruction of stamps.
7. Tax on spirits lost by leakage.
8. Oleomargarine tax.
9. Income tax.
10. Excise tax on corporations.
11. Direct tax under former law.
12. Rights of surety on distiller's bond.
13. Practice and procedure in general.
14. When appeal lies to commissioner.
15. Presentation of appeal or claim.
16. Treasury regulations.
17. Decisions of commissioner in general.
18. Commissioner's certificate.
19. Conclusiveness or finality of decision.
20. Reopening and re-examining refund allowed and paid.
21. Set-off of claim.
22. Right of action to recover tax paid.
23. Enforcement of liability to refund against collector's successor.
24. Liability of officer for trespass.
25. Recovery of interest.
26. Compromise of suits.
27. Jurisdiction of suits.
28. Time to sue to recover taxes back.
29. Parties and process.
30. Pleading.
31. Evidence.
32. Question for jury.
33. Costs.
34. Review.
35. Payment of judgment against officer.
36. Rebate of taxes on tobacco and snuff.

1. Constitutionality.—There is no want of due process of law in this section and sections 5949 and 5950, post, making appeal to commissioner of internal revenue after payment and his refusal prerequisite to suit to recover taxes illegally assessed. Dodge v. Osborn (1916) 36 S. Ct. 275.

2. Remedy for illegal assessment in general.—The remedy against an illegal tax assessment under this and other statutes pointed out. U. S. v. Pacific R. R. (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 15,-983.

3. Jurisdiction and authority of commissioner and secretary of the treasury.—Congress has conferred upon the commissioner the power of passing upon the merits and determining the validity of the claims for refund of taxes therein specified. First Nat. Bank of Greencastle v. U. S. (1879) 15 Ct. Cl. 225.

The secretary of the treasury and the commissioner of internal revenue are not accounting officers. Their adjudication upon matters submitted by law to the sole discretion and determination of either one of them bear a relation to the rights or liabilities of parties different from the results reached by accounting officers. Real Estate Savings under a mutual mistake of law, as the judgment of the Supreme Court ([1906] 200 U. S. 488, 26 Sup. Ct. 327, 50 L. Ed. 569), in sustaining the ruling of the commissioner that the company had no legal claim against the government, deprived the commissioner of jurisdiction to again entertain the claim. (1906) 25 Op. Atty. Gen. 605.

The commissioner may, however, allow similar claims where no legal protest has been made; but such cases must arise under a misapprehension of fact and not of law. Id.

The decision in the case of Thacher v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 149 Fed. 902, as to the matter of protest in the refunding of inheritance legacy taxes, together with the views expressed in this opinion, should be regarded by the Treasury Department as the rule of administrative action in claims arising under this section. Opinion of May 7, 1906 (25 Op. Atty. Gen. 605), in so far as it conflicts with these views, is reversed. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 194.

The rule is firmly established and unqualified that protest is indispensable to the right to recover taxes claimed to have been illegally exacted. (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 472.

The commissioner of internal revenue has no power under this section to refund taxes voluntarily paid, without protest, under a mutual mistake of law. Id.

The unwilling payment of an illegal tax to a collector of internal revenue to avoid seizure and sale of property is not voluntary. Hubbard v. Brainard (1869) 35 Conn. 563.

Where a municipal corporation, by its officers and agents, distills spirits, and, without paying the gallon tax on them, removes them from the place of distillation to a place other than the United States bonded warehouse, and sells them and converts the money into its treasury, a payment of the taxes under protest and under threat of distraint is a satisfaction of a lien held by the United States, and the money cannot be recovered in an action against the United States collector. Salt Lake City v. Hollister (1883) 3 Utah, 200, 2 Pac. 200.

5. Special taxes.—This section and section 5949, post, relating to the return of internal revenue taxes illegally assessed, and providing that no suit shall be maintained in any court for the recovery of an internal tax alleged to have been erroneously or illegally assessed or collected, or of any penalty or sum claimed to have been wrongfully collected until an appeal shall have been duly made to the commissioner of internal revenue, provided that, if the decision is delayed more than six months from the date of the appeal, suit may be brought without first having the commissioner's decision, apply to special taxes assessed and collected under the laws regulating the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine. Hastings v. Herold (C. C. 1910) 184 Fed. 759.

6. Tax paid by distiller on account of loss or destruction of stamps.—Where a distiller loses his tax-paid stamps before they are affixed to the cask, and pays the tax again to procure other stamps, the duplicate payment is an overpayment, which may be refunded by the commissioner of internal revenue. Woolner v. U. S. (1877) 13 Ct. Cl. 355.

Distillers whose tax-paid stamps are lost before being affixed to the cask are not restricted to applying to the commissioner of internal revenue for duplicate stamps under the statutes. They may pay the tax a second time to the collector and apply for a refund. Id.

Semble, that where a distiller, in consequence of the destruction of a revenue stamp without fault on his part, is forced to affix a new one, the commissioner, upon proof of these facts, may direct the price of the second stamp, or rather the tax thus a second time exacted, to be refunded, under the power given him to refund taxes illegally assessed. (1871) 13 Op. Atty. Gen. 574.

7. Tax on spirits lost by leakage.—In the winter of 1866–67, R. purchased a large quantity (1,777 barrels) of distilled spirits in bond, which were not withdrawn from warehouse until May, 1869. Upon their withdrawal therefrom the internal revenue tax was exacted on the whole quantity originally deposited in the warehouse, without allowance for leakage (which amounted to about 13,000 gallons) whilst there. R. subsequently made application to the commissioner of internal revenue, under this section, for repayment of so much of the tax which was exacted as covered the amount of spirits lost by warehouse leakage, claiming that to this extent such tax was "wrongfully collected." Held that, under the provisions of the internal revenue laws in force at the time (Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, and Act July 20, 1868, c. 186), the tax was chargeable upon spirits in warehouse according to the quantity originally deposited therein, without regard to leakage, and that the tax in the above case upon the whole quantity originally deposited being therefore exacted pursuant to law, there was in the collection thereof "nothing wrongful" within the meaning of this section, and accordingly the case is not one wherein the commissioner is authorized by that section to refund. (1880) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 667.

8. Oleomargarine tax.—The provisions of the general internal revenue legislation do not apply to the oleomargarine law, except those sections expressly made applicable. Grier v.

Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658, 661.

The provisions of the general internal revenue legislation do not apply to Oleomagarine Act, except those sections expressly made applicable by that act. Tucker v. Grier (1908) 160 Fed. 611, 615, 87 C. C. A. 53, affirming (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658.

The statute applies to the Oleomargarine Act. U. S. v. Barnes (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 117, 118, 222 U. S. 513, 56 L. Ed. 291.

9. Income tax.—The inhibition of section 5947, post, of suits to restrain assessment or collection of a tax, and provisions of this section and of sections 5949 and 5950, post, making an appeal to a commissioner of internal revenue after payment and refusal to refund prerequisite to a suit to recover taxes illegally collected, are applicable to taxes under the income tax section of tariff act (Act Oct. 3, 1913, § 2, par. L). Dodge v. Osborn (1916) 36 Sup. Ct. 275.

Federal district court did not commit reversible error in passing on merits of controversy in supplemental bill to enjoin collection of surtaxes under income tax law 1913, on ground of its unconstitutionality, that the commissioner of internal revenue had ruled adversely upon plaintiff's protest and the taxes had been paid, notwithstanding failure of such bill to allege compliance with conditions imposed by this section and section 5949, post, as prerequisites to such suit. Dodge v. Brady (1916) 36 Sup. Ct. 277.

Under Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 120, money earned and received by a bank during any one of the four years beginning with April 1, 1864, and added to its surplus or contingent funds, either actually (i. e., at periods having intervals of less than six months) or by construction of law (i. e., once in six months), remained liable to the 5 per centum tax imposed by said section, notwithstanding that subsequently an equivalent amount of money was stolen from the bank by one of its officers. But where the money earned and received was stolen and lost, either before having been actually added to the surplus or before the expiration of the six months, the case is one entitled to relief. (1874) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 643.

The amount of taxes illegally collected from the Illinois Central Railroad Company from 1863 to 1866, as income tax upon dividends on stock held by nonresident aliens, should be repaid to that company, after deducting so much therefrom as has already been paid over to the stockholders lawfully entitled thereto. (1875) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 67.

Judgment for defendant was ordered in this case upon the ground that the claim of the plaintiff was barred by the act of July, 1862, as construed by the supreme court. Francis v. Slack (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 5,041.

A bill in equity will not lie to enjoin the assessment and collection by the commissioner of internal revenue of a surtax imposed upon the plaintiff's income under section 2, Act Oct. 3, 1913, as the plaintiffs have an adequate remedy at law under this section and sections 5949, 5950, post, and section 5947, post, expressly provides that no suit for the purpose of restraining the assessment or collection of any tax shall be maintained in any court. Dodge v. Osborn (1915) 43 App. D. C. 144.

10. Excise tax on corporations.—Remedy by suit against collector, where internal revenue taxes have been wrongfully collected under Corporation Tax Law, Aug. 5, 1909, § 38, post, § 6300 et seq., is not exclusive. U. S. v. Emery, Bird, Thayer Realty Co. (1915) 35 Sup. Ct. 499, 237 U. S. 28, 59 L. Ed. 825, affirming judgment Emery, Bird, Thayer Realty Co. v. U. S. (D. C. 1912) 198 Fed. 242.

Under this section and section 5949, post, a stockholder could not sue in equity to restrain the corporation from paying taxes on its income under Act Aug. 5, 1909, post, § 6300. Straus v. Abrast Realty Co. (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 327.

A collector held not personally liable for return of amount of excise tax improperly collected from a company which had leased its railway and was not doing business. Public Service Ry. Co. v. Herold (D. C. 1915) 219 Fed. 301.

Plaintiff company, having leased all the property, and taking over the entire business of another company, and agreeing to pay taxes against it, and, to avoid threatened distraint and sale of the leased property under R. S. § 3186 et seq. ante, § 5908 et seq., having paid the tax under protest, held to have paid under duress, and entitled to sue for its recovery. Cambria Steel Co. v. McCoach (D. C. 1915) 225 Fed. 278.

11. Direct tax under former law.—The act of congress providing for the refunding of the federal direct tax contemplates that it shall be refunded to the person on whose property the tax was collected, and not necessarily to the person who paid the tax. Herbert v. Harbert (Tex. Civ. App. 1894) 28 S. W. 250.

12. Rights of surety on distiller's bond.—The commissioner of internal revenue has no authority to refund to a surety on a distiller's bond, who has paid a judgment recovered against him thereon, the amount of such judgment, when the commissioner finds that the tax upon which this recovery was had was not illegally assessed, but was justly due from the distiller, and the only claim for refund is founded on the allegation that the surety was not liable therefor on his bond. Seat v. U. S. (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 458.

Where an assessment is made against a distiller, and paid by a surety on his bond, and the distiller obtains an allowance for repayment on the ground that the assessment was erroneous, and such distiller, after the issue of a warrant which was delivered to such surety for delivery to his principal, has removed to parts unknown, preventing the collection of the warrant, the surety, being ultimately entitled to the amount, may recover it from the government. Shwarz v. U. S. (1900) 35 Ct. Cl. 303.

Where the government has received money from a surety, his right to recover it back as money had and received arises, if it be determined that it was paid on an erroneous assessment. Id.

13. Practice and procedure in general.—Where the authority is in the commissioner of internal revenue to refund a tax in his discretion, errors in the mere forms of procedure are wholly immaterial, not being within the control of the applicant. Woolner v. U. S. (1877) 13 Ct. Cl. 355.

The uniform practice of the commissioner of internal revenue and the secretary of the treasury in proper cases to make allowances of refund to creditors who recover judgments against collectors for taxes illegally assessed or collected, and not to require the collectors first to pay such judgments and then apply themselves for refund, is reasonable and proper, and ought to be upheld. Nixon v. U. S. (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 448.

14. When appeal lies to commissioner.—From any assessment or collection growing out of the regauging of spirits, an appeal lies to the commissioner of internal revenue under this section. Corning & Co. v. U. S. (1899) 34 Ct. Cl. 271.

In any assessment or collection growing out of the regauging of spirits an appeal lies to the commissioner. Id.

15. Presentation of appeal or claim.—See, also, note under § 5951, post.

The lodging of an appeal made out in due form with the proper collector for transmission to the commissioner in the usual course of business under the requirements of the regulations of the secretary of the treasury held in legal effect a presentation. U. S. v. Real Estate Sav. Bank (1881) 104 U. S. 728, 734, 26 L. Ed. 908.

A written application to the commissioner to refund, though it might be sufficient to justify favorable action by him under this section, was not equivalent to an appeal from an adverse decision of the collector essential to the maintenance of a suit under sections 5949, 5951, post. Chesebrough v. U. S. (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 262, 265, 192 U. S. 253, 48 L. Ed. 432.

The filing of the claim for drawback or rebate under Act April 12, 1902, c. 500, § 4, with the collector of internal revenue held in legal effect a presentation of it to the commissioner. U. S. v. Hyams (1906) 146 Fed. 15, 76 C. C. A. 523.

It is immaterial whether the application to the commissioner be made by the collector against whom a judgment has been recovered or by the judgment creditor. Frerichs v. U. S. (1886) 21 Ct. Cl. 16.

If a claim for "refunding taxes illegally collected" is brought before the commissioner of internal revenue by a statement from the comptroller within the time prescribed by law, and he attaches to it a regular printed blank and acts upon it, it is a sufficient presentation to confer jurisdiction upon him. Wayne v. U. S. (1891) 26 Ct. Cl. 274.

16. Treasury regulations.—Regulation 3 prescribed by the secretary of the treasury requires the commissioner, after hearing an appeal, to make a formal certificate of his decision, with the amount in writing which should be refunded; regulation 4 requires the entry of the decision in a docket; regulation 5 requires a weekly transmission of the list of awards, with the vouchers, to the first comptroller of the treasury; and regulation 7 requires the transmission of the case, with the evidence in support of it, to the secretary of the treasury, for his consideration and advisement, before final decision of an appeal involving over $250. Held, that the examination and allowance of a claim exceeding $250 by the commissioner without complying with regulations 3, 4, and 5, and the subsequent transmission of the claim to the secretary of the treasury for his consideration and advisement, did not constitute a final award by the commissioner, which was binding on the government. Stotesbury v. U. S. (1892) 13 Sup. Ct. 1, 2, 146 U. S. 196, 36 L. Ed. 940, affirming (1888) 23 Ct. Cl. 285.

The fact that the duty of determining whether any, and, if so, how much, should be returned to claimants, was committed to the commissioner did not take the revising power from a secretary or prevent his regulations from determining the procedure to be followed by the commissioner in hearing and deciding on claims. Id.

The regulations made by the Secretary of the Treasury prescribing the manner in which appeals for the refund of taxes shall be made is a proper exercise of his statutory authority. Real Estate Savings Bank of Pittsburgh v. U. S. (1880) 16 Ct. Cl. 335.

A treasury regulation which requires the commissioner of internal revenue to transmit certain claims, before they are finally decided, to the secretary of the treasury, "for his consideration and advisement," is not repugnant to the statute. Dupasseur v. U. S. (1883) 19 Ct. Cl. 1.

17. Decisions of commissioner in general.—The commissioner of internal revenue, when considering claims for the overpayment of taxes or a refund of a tax excessive in amount, may take all the facts and circumstances into consideration, and will act upon his own judgment and discretion. Woolner v. U. S. (1877) 13 Ct. Cl. 355.

The decisions of the commissioner concerning a refund of taxes are in the nature of awards. First Nat. Bank of Greencastle v. U. S. (1879) 15 Ct. Cl. 225.

When the commissioner of internal revenue acts beyond his jurisdiction in making an allowance, such an allowance is without force or effect, and no action can be maintained thereon. Seat v. U. S. (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 458.

An allowance by the commissioner, as a refund, of taxes illegally collected, when approved by the secretary of the treasury, is an award upon which an action may be maintained in the court of claims. City of Louisville v. U. S. (1896) 31 Ct. Cl. 1.

An allowance by the commissioner as a refund of taxes illegally collected, duly approved by the secretary of the treasury, is an award upon which an action may be maintained; it is conclusive unless impeached, and the burden of impeaching it is upon the defendants. Id.

Where the allowance of a claim by the commissioner of internal revenue for the refund of a tax illegally collected is rejected by the commissioner, a judicial remedy is given the party by an action against the commissioner. Edison Electric Illuminating Co. v. U. S. (1903) 38 Ct. Cl. 208.

An allowance by the Commissioner for the refund of a tax illegally collected is not the simple passing of an ordinary claim by an ordinary accounting officer, but an award upon which an action may be brought, and which is conclusive unless impeached for fraud or mistake. Id.

18. Commissioner's certificate.—It is immaterial whether the commissioner's certificate be in form under this section, so long as it represents a case where he is authorized to refund and the amount which the party is entitled to have refunded. Kaufman v. U. S. (1875) 11 Ct. Cl. 659.

The commissioner's certificate allowing a claim for "damages and costs recovered" against a revenue officer is not invalidated because the claim is styled therein as one "for the refunding of taxes erroneously assessed." Dunnegan v. U. S. (1881) 17 Ct. Cl. 247.

19. Conclusiveness or finality of decision.—See, also, note under § 5951, post.

An allowance by the commissioners of internal revenue for an excess of stamp tax paid by a brewer on his business is conclusive, unless impeached in some proper form by the United States. U. S. v. Kaufman (1877) 96 U. S. 567, 24 L. Ed. 792.

Where the commissioner of internal revenue, in a case within the scope of his authority and jurisdiction, has ordered a refund of an overpaid tax, a court cannot inquire as to the sufficiency of the evidence before him. Woolner v. U. S. (1877) 13 Ct. Cl. 355.

An award of the commissioner cannot be impeached for error in the determination of any fact which it is his duty to determine. Whether the claim was presented to him in due time is such a fact. First Nat. Bank of Greencastle v. U. S. (1879) 15 Ct. Cl. 225.

An award or refund of the commission may be impeached for fraud, want of jurisdiction, mistake apparent upon the face of his certificate, or for such irregularities as would avoid an award. Id.

When the commissioner makes and certifies to an allowance, the liability of the government is fixed, and the claimant is not obliged to follow the award through the treasury, nor to satisfy other officials of its correctness. Id.

Although the comptroller of the treasury must sign a warrant for the payment of a refund allowed by the Commissioner, neither he nor any accounting officer has authority to review the commissioner's decision. Id.

An allowance by the commissioner of internal revenue can be impeached only for fraud or mistake. It may be impeached for want of jurisdiction in the commissioner to act upon the application therefor, but it cannot be impeached for a mistake of judgment or discretion when the commissioner acts within the scope of his authority. Nixon v. U. S. (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 448.

The law plainly imposes upon the commissioner the duty of deciding whether a tax has been erroneously or illegally assessed and whether it should be refunded, and neither the accounting officers nor the courts can review the evidence and say that it is insufficient. Sybrandt v. U. S. (1884) 19 Ct. Cl. 461.

The decision of the commissioner of internal revenue (after advisement with the secretary of the treasury) that there was probable cause for a seizure is final, and cannot be reviewed by the accounting officers. Frerichs v. U. S. (1886) 21 Ct. Cl. 16.

An award of the commissioner of internal revenue for the refund of a tax illegally assessed cannot become final and irrevocable before it has passed out of his control by being transmitted to the first comptroller. Stotesbury v. U. S. (1888) 23 Ct. Cl. 285.

An allowance by the commissioner as a refund of taxes illegally collected is conclusive unless impeached. City of Louisville v. U. S. (1895) 31 Ct. Cl. 1.

The commissioner's decision is final. Dugan v. U. S. (1899) 34 Ct. Cl. 458.

An allowance by the commissioner of internal revenue for the refund of a tax illegally collected is not the simple passing of an ordinary claim by an ordinary accounting officer, but an award on which an action may be brought, and which is conclusive unless impeached for fraud or mistake. Edison Electric Illuminating Co. v. U. S. (1903) 38 Ct. Cl. 208.

Where a decision of the commissioner rests entirely upon his construction of a statute it is not final; and, if adverse to the claimant, the court of claims has jurisdiction of the case. American West Indies Trading Co. v. U. S. (1910) 45 Ct. Cl. 488.

20. Reopening and re-examining refund allowed and paid.—Act Feb. 25, 1893, requires the commissioner to audit and adjust the claim of the city of Louisville "for internal revenue taxes collected on railroad dividends on stock, and on interest on railroad bonds, * * * to the extent that such taxes were deducted from any dividends or interest due and payable," and directs that the amounts, when ascertained, if "not heretofore refunded, shall be paid out of the permanent annual appropriation." Held not to authorize reopening and re-examining a refund previously allowed by the commissioner, and paid under a special appropriation by congress. City of Louisville v. U. S. (1896) 31 Ct. Cl. 1.

21. Set-off of claim.—See, also, notes under § 5951, post.

A claim for internal revenue taxes paid, which has not been presented to the accounting officers of the treasury and disallowed, cannot be set off in an action by the United States for other internal revenue taxes. Western Union R. Co. v. U. S. (1879) 101 U. S. 543, 548, 25 L. Ed. 1008.

22. Right of action to recover tax paid.—The court has no power to allow an abatement of tax to a distiller from the loss of mash by the bursting of a fermenting tub. Turner v. Williams (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 14,265.

The collector having assessed and collected an additional tax of 6 cents per pound under the War Revenue Act of 1898 on tobacco while it still remained in the factory, whereas it was not subject to the payment of any tax until its removal for consumption or sale, his action amounted to a finding of the jurisdictional fact that it had been removed and was being held for sale, which, as against the government, fixed its status for taxation under the act, and rendered the collection of any additional tax above 3 cents per pound illegal, and such excess recoverable by the taxpayer. Robards Tobacco Co. v. Franks (C. C. 1900) 103 Fed. 276, judgment affirmed Franks v. Robards Tobacco Co. (1901) 112 Fed. 784, 50 C. C. A. 527.

A manufacturer of surgical supplies, which purchased internal revenue stamps from time to time under protest for use on articles made and sold by it, may maintain different actions against successive collectors to recover the amounts paid to each, and different actions against the same collector, when required to prevent the bar of limitations, or when they relate to different classes of articles, and the questions involved may be different, and a recovery in one such suit is not a bar to the prosecution of the others pending, where no motion has been made to consolidate. Johnson & Johnson v. Herold (C. C. 1907) 161 Fed. 593.

No suit lay at common law on an implied assumpsit to recover taxes illegally paid, and hence an action to recover such taxes could only be maintained under and in strict pursuance of the statutes authorizing the same. Hastings v. Herold (C. C. 1910) 184 Fed. 759.

A person cannot recover from an internal revenue collector taxes paid which were in fact due from him even though the manner of their assessment or collection was unauthorized. Schafer v. Craft (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 907, judgment affirmed Craft v. Schafer (1907) 153 Fed. 175, 82 C. C. A. 349.

Where a tax is paid under such circumstances that the terms of protest are understood and sufficiently expressed to be brought to the notice of the government, and where the levy is used merely to protect the government officer in acting under the statute, an action is maintainable to recover the tax illegally imposed. Abrast Realty Co. v. Maxwell (D. C. 1913) 206 Fed. 333.

If any indistinguishable or inseparable part or proportion of an assessment for internal revenue is illegal, the whole assessment is illegal. There is no sufficient consideration for the payment of the money, and it may be recovered. Hubbard v. Brainard (1869) 35 Conn. 563.

23. Enforcement of liability to refund against collector's successor.—Act June 13, 1898, imposing an internal revenue tax on certain legacies, required the executor to sign a statement to the collector and to pay the tax to him, and section 30 gave the commissioner of internal revenue control of the assessment. Sections 5904 and 5905, ante, require the collector to pay the tax into the treasury, and declare that on the death of the collector all lists should be transferred to his successor; and section 1594, ante, declares that an action against such collector should not abate by his death, but his successor should be substituted as defendant. Held that, where the collector wrongfully received an inheritance tax on bequests which were not taxable, on his death the liability to refund was enforceable against his successor in office; it being the duty of the commissioner to pay any judgment rendered against the collector as provided by this section. Armour v. Roberts (C. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 846.

24. Liability of officer for trespass.—See, also, notes under § 1611, ante, and § 6362, post.

An assessment duly certified to the collector by the assessor in the exercise of the latter's jurisdiction will protect the collector from personal liability for the levy. Erskine v. Hohnbach (1871) 81 U. S. (14 Wall.) 613, 20 L. Ed. 745.

A tax collector of the United States cannot revise or refuse to enforce an assessment regularly made by the assessor in the exercise of the latter's jurisdiction; his duties in this respect being merely ministerial. Id.

Trespass will not lie against a collector of internal revenue for improperly seizing and carrying away goods forfeited, if he, as such collector, had good cause to believe, and did believe, that the owner was attempting to sell the goods to avoid the payment of the internal revenue duties imposed thereon. Averill v. Smith (1872) 84 U. S. (17 Wall.) 82, 21 L. Ed. 613.

Proof of probable cause, shown by the certificate of the district court, is a good defense to an action of trespass brought by the claimant against a collector of internal revenue who seized the property for forfeiture. Id.

The fact that, after a decree discharging property seized for forfeiture by an internal revenue collector, the collector neglected to return the property, does not make him a trespasser ab initio, where the property was taken out of his possession by process issued by the district court and remained in the custody of the marshal. Id.

A mere failure by an internal revenue collector to return property seized for forfeiture after the rendition of a decree directing its discharge will not amount to such an abuse of authority as will render him a trespasser ab initio. Id.

The doctrine that a ministerial officer will be protected in the enforcement of process regular on its face, issued by an officer or tribunal possessing jurisdiction over the subject-matter, and having the power to issue process for the enforcement of its judgment, applies to a collector of internal revenue in enforcing against a distiller an assessment for taxes, regular on its face, made by the commissioner of internal revenue and duly certified to the collector, though such assessment may in fact have been invalid. Harding v. Woodcock (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 6, 137 U. S. 43, 34 L. Ed. 580.

An internal revenue officer, who, under color of his office, commits a trespass, is liable therefor; such cases being contemplated by the internal revenue act of July 13, 1866. Coblens v. Abel (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 2,926.

25. Recovery of interest.—Plaintiff having paid excessive tax and having accepted a sum appropriated by Congress for repayment (July 26, 1886), assumpsit against the collector for the sum illegally exacted, with interest, would not lie, the principal sum having been paid, and the action, not sounding in damages, could not be maintained for the interest. Stewart v. Barnes (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 849, 850, 153 U. S. 456, 38 L. Ed. 781.

Where an internal revenue tax on certain legacies was illegally exacted, interest was properly allowed on the principal of the tax in a suit to recover the same. Herold v. Shanley (1906) 146 Fed. 20, 76 C. C. A. 478, affirming judgment Shanley v. Herold (C. C. 1905) 141 Fed. 423.

Certain parties became entitled to a judgment against an internal revenue collector for the cost of stamps which he had illegally compelled them to use. Held, that, inasmuch as they had purchased the revenue stamps in large quantities and evidently for other purposes than that of paying the unlawful tax, they were entitled to interest only from the date of their demand. Treat v. Taylor (1908) 166 Fed. 1021, 91 C. C. A. 330, affirming judgment Taylor v. Treat (C. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 656.

A suit against a collector to recover a tax collected is not in form against the United States, and hence the successful claimant may recover interest. Kinney v. Conant (1909) 166 Fed. 720, 92 C. C. A. 410, certiorari denied (1909) 29 Sup. Ct. 703, 214 U. S. 526, 53 L. Ed. 1068.

On judgment against a collector of internal revenue for taxes unlawfully exacted and paid under protest, interest was properly awarded. Treat v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. (1911) 185 Fed. 760, 108 C. C. A. 98, affirming judgments Central Trust Co. of New York v. Treat (C. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 301, and Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Same (C. C. 1909) Id. 302.

By analogy to this section interest should not be allowed in a suit to recover customs duties. White v. Arthur (C. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 80, 83.

On taxes originally paid without protest no right of interest was given. Commissioners of the Sinking Fund v. Buckner (C. C. 1891) 48 Fed. 533, 538, 539.

Where there was such delay in the prosecution of a claim for the repayment of internal revenue taxes alleged to have been illegally exacted by the collector that nearly 30 years elapsed before action was brought thereon, the plaintiff will not be allowed interest during such time, but he is entitled to interest on the principle recovered from the time the suit was commenced. Burrough v. Abel (C. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 366.

One from whom internal revenue taxes have been illegally exacted, and who pays the same under threats of distraint, and acts promptly in prosecuting his claim for their recovery, is entitled to recover interest from the time of their payment. Pennsylvania Co. for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities v. McClain (C. C. 1900) 105 Fed. 367, judgment affirmed McClain v. Pennsylvania Co. for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities (1901) 108 Fed. 618, 47 C. C. A. 529.

A suit against a collector for a tax illegally exacted held not one against the United States, so as to preclude recovery of interest. Conant v. Kinney (C. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 581, affirmed (1909) 166 Fed. 720, 92 C. C. A. 410, certiorari denied (1909) 29 Sup. Ct. 703, 214 U. S. 526, 53 L. Ed. 1068.

In an action against a collector of internal revenue to recover taxes and penalties paid under protest, plaintiff, on recovery, is entitled to interest up to the entry of final judgment, unless an appeal is taken, when, if the judgment is affirmed, interest will be allowed up to the date of judgment on the mandate of the appellate court unless plaintiff has unduly delayed the presentation of his claim. Klock Produce Co. v. Hartson (D. C. 1914) 212 Fed. 758.

In a suit to recover taxes paid under protest, interest is recoverable, without any statute to that effect. State Line & S. R. Co. v. Davis (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 246.

26. Compromise of suits.—See, also, §§ 5952, 6375, post, and notes thereunder.

In passing on cases submitted to him for compromise, under sections 5952, 6375, post, the secretary of the treasury, while he is not at liberty to act from motives merely of compassion or charity, may consider, not only the pecuniary interests of the government, but take into view general considerations of justice and equity and of public policy. (1881) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 213.

The power given the Secretary of the Treasury by section 5952, post, to compromise cases arising under the internal revenue laws, extends only to suits commenced by the government to recover taxes, while the ampler power of compromise given him by section 6375, post, is limited to claims in favor of the United States. (1901) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 507.

The Secretary of the Treasury has no power to compromise a suit brought against a collector of internal revenue for the recovery of taxes claimed to have been illegally collected. Id.

Except as modified by sections 5952 and 6375, post, the power to determine whether a compromise should be made of pending litigation would seem to rest with the attorney-general, such suits being necessarily under his control and subject to his direction. Id.

27. Jurisdiction of suits.—Suits to recover money illegally exacted as internal revenue taxes cannot, under existing laws, be commenced in the circuit courts, except where the taxpayer and the officer are citizens of different states. Collector of Internal Revenue v. Hubbard (1870) 79 U. S. (12 Wall.) 1, 20 L. Ed. 272.

The court of claims held to have jurisdiction of suits on claims for taxes and penalties. U. S. v. Real Estate Sav. Bank (1881) 104 U. S. 728, 732, 26 L. Ed. 908.

R. S. §§ 3220, 3226–3228, this section, and sections 5949–5951, post, held not inconsistent with Tucker Act March 3, 1887 (ante, § 991 [20]), and hence a federal district court had jurisdiction of an action against the United States to recover money paid on an erroneous internal revenue assessment. U. S. v. Finch (1912) 201 Fed. 95, 119 C. C. A. 433.

Until the officer exercises his power and decides in favor of a claim, no court has jurisdiction of it; when a claim is allowed and certified, a new cause of action arises by implied contract upon the award or allowance. First Nat. Bank of Greencastle v. U. S. (1879) 15 Ct. Cl. 225.

28. Time to sue to recover taxes back.—See, also, §§ 5949, 5950, and notes thereunder.

Under this section and sections 5949–5951, post, a corporate excise tax illegally collected could not be recovered back, where suit was not brought within two years. Public Service Ry. Co. v. Herold (D. C. 1915) 219 Fed. 301.

Under this section and sections 5949–5951, post, suit to recover corporate excise tax illegally collected could not be maintained more than two years after payment, though the claim was presented to and rejected by the commissioner of internal revenue after the expiration of the two years. Id.

29. Parties and process.—Rev. St. Mo. 1899, § 542 [Ann. St. 1906, pp. 581, 583, 745], provides that all parties having an interest in the object of an action may be joined as plaintiff. Section 544 declares that both as to actions at law and in equity parties united in interest must join, and if one refuses he may be made a defendant; and section 767 provides that judgment may be given for or against any one or more plaintiffs or defendants, and the judgment will determine the respective rights of the parties. Held that, where an internal revenue tax was wrongfully assessed against three cestuis que trust under a will and was jointly paid under protest by the trustees, such trustees and beneficiaries were entitled to join in a single suit against the internal revenue collector to recover the same. Armour v. Roberts (C. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 846.

Where, in an action to recover oleomargarine taxes paid under protest into the hands of a deputy collector of internal revenue and by him deposited to the credit of the treasurer of the United States, the summons was issued against the collector individually, but the demand claimed was for moneys paid into his office as collector of internal revenue, and a petition for removal of the cause to the federal court alleged that defendant, acting as internal revenue collector under and by authority of the acts of Congress relating to the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine, collected the moneys in question, and the case was tried on the theory that the moneys were received by defendant as such, and it was admitted at the trial that defendant made the assessment and sent it to his deputy for collection, the summons would be considered as amended, so that it would be directed to defendant in his official capacity, or otherwise, as might be necessary. Hastings v. Herold (C. C. 1910) 184 Fed. 759.

30. Pleading.—The rule that justification of an alleged trespass, to avail, must be pleaded, does not apply in an action against a collector of internal revenue for the alleged wrongful seizure of a distiller's property, where the declaration itself shows that the collector acted in his official capacity, and in conformity with law, in making the seizure. Harding v. Woodcock (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 6, 137 U. S. 43, 34 L. Ed. 580.

In a complaint against a collector of internal revenue to recover the amount of taxes exacted by him from plaintiffs, who were shipping agents, as due, under the war revenue act, on copies of charter parties in their possession, and alleged by them to have been obtained for the information of themselves and their customers, an allegation that "plaintiffs' said firm were strangers to said charter parties and the matter to which the same related" is not sufficient to show that plaintiffs were not agents or representatives of one or the other of the parties to such instruments, and properly chargeable with the tax. Simpson v. Treat (C. C. 1904) 126 Fed. 1003.

A statement of claim in a suit against a collector to recover internal revenue taxes assessed and collected from plaintiff as a broker under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 1, 30 Stat. 448, as amended by Act March 2, 1901, c. 806, § 1, 31 Stat. 938, on the ground that plaintiff was not subject to such taxes, should set out the transactions on account of which they were assessed. Haight & Freese Co. v. McCoach (C. C. 1905) 135 Fed. 894.

31. Evidence.—In a suit against a revenue collector to recover taxes, the burden is on the plaintiff to show that the collector ex æquo et bono is bound to refund the amount which he has paid. Bailey v. New York Cent. R. Co. (1874) 89 U. S. (22 Wall.) 604, 22 L. Ed. 840.

A railroad company issued certificates entitling each stockholder to 80 per cent. of his stock, payable ratably out of future earnings, with dividends thereon at the same rates and times as capital stock, and convertible into stock, at the option of the company, whenever authorized to sufficiently increase its capital. At a former hearing, it was held that, while these certificates constituted a scrip dividend, and were subject to the 5 per cent. income tax imposed by Internal Revenue Act 1864, § 122 (13 Stat. 284), still, as they represented earnings expended in the improvement, construction, and equipment of the road through a period of 15 years, during only 6 of which the income tax was in force, the amount subject thereto was properly reduced to six-fifteenths of their total. The company paid under protest, and brought action to recover the amount as illegally exacted. Held, that it was competent for plaintiff to show just how much of the sums represented by the certificates had been expended for construction and improvement during the six years covered by the tax, and had not already been assessed for taxation as profits carried to construction or other account. Bailey v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co. (1882) 106 U. S. 109, 1 Sup. Ct. 62, 27 L. Ed. 81.

In a suit to recover back taxes paid on a reassessment, for error in the first assessment, the record of reassessment is not evidence of the error. Barker v. White (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 996.

Where it appears that some of the boxes of matches in a lot contained an excessive number, the burden is put upon the manufacturer to show what boxes did not overrun the number. Schmitt v. Trowbridge (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 12,468.

In an action to recover a special tax assessed against and collected from plaintiff as a dealer in oleomargarine, on the ground that it was based on an erroneous finding that he sold oleomargarine colored to resemble butter, and was therefore excessive, the burden of proof to establish such contention rests upon the plaintiff. Schafer v. Craft (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 907, judgment affirmed Craft v. Schafer (1907) 153 Fed. 175, 82 C. C. A. 349.

32. Question for jury.—Whether or not a regulation of the commissioner of internal revenue, made in pursuance of Oleomargarine Act May 9, 1902, § 4, post, § 6233 et seq., has the force of law as a conclusive determination of the fact, it furnishes a working rule for the guidance of officers and the information of manufacturers, and on the trial of an action by a manufacturer to recover taxes exacted on butter claimed to contain more than 16 per cent. of water the submission to the jury of the question whether such a percentage of water was "abnormal" was not an error of which the plaintiff could complain. Coopersville Co-operative Creamery Co. v. Lemon (1908) 163 Fed. 145, 89 C. C. A. 595.

33. Costs.—By analogy, costs should be allowed in a suit to recover customs duties under Act June 10, 1890. U. S. v. Davis (1893) 54 Fed. 147, 157, 4 C. C. A. 251.

Costs held to be recoverable against a collector in a suit against him, removed from a state court to the federal court. De Bary v. Carter (1900) 102 Fed. 130, 131, 42 C. C. A. 209.

On judgment against a collector of internal revenue for taxes paid under protest, costs incurred before judgment and before any certificate of probable cause was granted were properly awarded against him. Treat v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. (1911) 185 Fed. 760, 108 C. C. A. 98, affirming judgments Central Trust Co. of New York v. Treat (C. C. 1909) 171 Fed. 301, and Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Same (C C. 1909) 171 Fed. 302.

34. Review.—A judgment dismissing an action by a legatee against the United States to recover an alleged illegal tax where the statute is held constitutional, but on a proper construction thereof is held not to justify the imposition of the whole amount collected, will be reversed, though in another action the executor has established his right to recover the excess from the internal revenue collector, in order that the dismissal may not embarrass plaintiff's right to indemnity from the executor. Sherman v. U. S. (1900) 20 Sup. Ct. 779, 780, 178 U. S. 150, 44 L. Ed. 1014.

In an action to recover the amount of internal revenue taxes which plaintiff was required to pay as a brewer and for beer stamps, tried by stipulation without a jury, it was stipulated that plaintiff manufactured a beverage from ingredients and in a manner stated, but it was a disputed question, upon which testimony was taken, whether such beverage was a "fermented liquor manufactured from malt, wholly or in part, or from any substitute therefor," within the meaning of section 5971, post, which rendered plaintiff liable for special tax as a brewer, and which was subject to tax under section 6143, post. Held, that requests to the court to hold as propositions of law on the facts stipulated that plaintiff was not a brewer, and the beverage was not subject to tax under the statute, conceding the practice of requiring findings upon propositions of law in such cases to be permissible, involved a finding of the disputed question of fact whether the beverage was a fermented liquor, and, as such requests were not based on all the evidence, so as to be treated as a motion for judgment as matter of law on the entire case, the ruling of the court thereon was not reviewable on a writ of error. Davis v. Daugherty (1901) 105 Fed. 769, 45 C. C. A. 39.

35. Payment of judgment against officer.—Under this section an officer applied to the commissioner for payment of a judgment, who, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, allowed the claim, and certified it for payment to the judgment creditor, "upon due satisfaction of the judgment." Held, it was proper, under the statute, to make the payment directly to the judgment creditor, on satisfaction of the judgment by him, when it appeared that payment had not been made by the officer. U. S. v. Frerichs (1888) 8 Sup. Ct. 514, 124 U. S. 315, 31 L. Ed. 471.

The term "repay" in the statute does not imply that the officer must pay the judgment before the commissioner can act. The statute is for the protection of the officer, and the "damages and costs recovered" against him may be allowed by the commissioner directly to the judgment creditor. Dunnegan v. U. S. (1881) 17 Ct. Cl. 247.

Where application for refund of a tax collected is rejected, suit may be maintained on an allowance, to a judgment creditor, of the repayment of a judgment against the collector to recover back the same tax, where the collector does not object thereto and sets up no claim himself. Nixon v. U. S. (1883) 18 Ct. Cl. 448.

36. Rebate of taxes on tobacco and snuff.—See notes under § 6174, post.

Cited without definite application, Kings County Sav. Inst. v. Blair (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 353, 355, 116 U. S. 200, 29 L. Ed. 657; Commissioners of Sinking Fund of Logan County, Ky., v. U. S. (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 361, 169 U. S. 255, 42 L. Ed. 737; Spreckels Sugar Ref. Co. v. McClain (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 376, 378, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. Ed. 496; Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (1905) 136 Fed. 326, 328, 329, 69 C. C. A. 464; U. S. v. Shipley (1912) 197 Fed. 265, 116 C. C. A. 627; Hicks v. James' Adm'x (C. C. 1882) 48 Fed. 542 (affirmed [1884] 4 Sup. Ct. 6, 110 U. S. 272, 28 L. Ed. 144); Commonwealth Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. U. S. (1902) 37 Ct. Cl. 532.

§ 5945. (R. S. § 3221, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 6.) Taxes on spirits accidentally destroyed.

The Secretary of the Treasury, upon the production to him of satisfactory proof of the actual destruction by accidental fire or other casualty, and without any fraud, collusion, or negligence of the owner thereof, of any distilled spirits, while the same remained in the custody of any officer of internal revenue in any distillery warehouse, or bonded warehouse of the United States and before the tax thereon has been paid, may abate the amount of internal taxes accruing thereon, and may cancel any warehouse bond, or enter satisfaction thereon, in whole or in part, as the case may be. And if such taxes have been collected since the destruction of said spirits, the said Secretary shall refund the same to the owners thereof out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. And when any distilled spirits are hereafter destroyed by accidental fire or other casualty, without any fraud, collusion, or negligence of the owner thereof, after the time when the same should have been drawn off by the gauger and placed in the distillery-warehouse provided by law, no tax shall be collected on such spirits so destroyed, or, if collected, it shall be refunded upon the production of satisfactory proof that the spirits were destroyed as herein specified.

Act May 27, 1872, c. 218, § 1, 17 Stat. 162. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 6, 20 Stat. 341.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by adding, at the end of the section as originally enacted, the provisions beginning with the words, "And when any distilled spirits are hereafter destroyed," etc., to the end of the section as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 6, cited above.

The provisions of this section were extended to grape brandy accidentally destroyed while stored in fortifying room on winery premises, by Act June 7, 1906, c. 3046, § 5, post, § 6121. See, also, in this connection, § 6114e, post.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5947, post.

Construction with other statute.—This section must be construed together with section 6034, post, as parts of the same statute. U. S. v. Peace (1893) 53 Fed. 999, 1001, 4 C. C. A. 148.

Loss by casualty in general.—An "unavoidable casualty," within this section, is an event or accident which human prudence, foresight, and sagacity cannot prevent. Crystal Springs Distillery Co. v. Cox (1892) 49 Fed. 555, 1 C. C. A. 365, affirming (C. C. 1891) 47 Fed. 693.

Spirits lost after seizure by an internal revenue officer, through the latter's mere negligence, were not lost by reason of "casualty," within this section. U. S. v. Sisk (1910) 176 Fed. 885, 100 C. C. A. 355.

The secretary of the treasury has jurisdiction of claims for refund founded on the actual destruction by casualty of distilled spirits in the custody of an officer of internal revenue, and his decision is final and conclusive. Hoffheimer Bros. v. U. S. (1885) 20 Ct. Cl. 371.

See, also, Thompson v. U. S. (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 299, 300, 142 U. S. 471, 35 L. Ed. 1084.

Destruction by fire.—An order from the secretary of the treasury pursuant to Act May 27, 1872 (17 Stat. 162), abating taxes upon bonded spirits on account of their destruction by fire, cancels the warehouse bond; and, although the order may be revoked for cause and the tax reimposed, the obligation of the bond can never be revived. U. S. v. Alexander (1884) 4 S. Ct. 99, 110 U. S. 325, 28 L. Ed. 166.

The abandonment under this section of the tax on distilled spirits destroyed while in a bonded warehouse "by accidental fire or other casualty," does not include a loss by the warping of barrels from unusual and excessive summer heat, abnormal evaporation caused by such heat, or the existence of undiscoverable wormholes in the barrels. Crystal Spring Distillery Co. v. Cox (1892) 49 Fed. 555, 1 C. C. A. 365, affirming (C. C. 1891) 47 Fed. 693.

The Secretary of the Treasury has the authority under this section to abate the tax on whisky which was accidentally destroyed by fire in a distillery warehouse without any fraud, collusion or negligence of the distillers, and while the same remained under the custody of an internal revenue officer, a portion of which whisky had been in warehouse beyond the bonded period of three years. (1886) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 379.

See, also, Hedger v. Union Ins. Co. (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 498.

Cited without definite application, Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (1905) 136 Fed. 326, 329, 69 C. C. A. 464.

(R. S. § 3222. Temporary.)

This section provided that the preceding section should take effect in all cases of loss which had occurred since January 1, 1868. It is omitted as temporary merely.

§ 5946. (R. S. § 3223, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3.) When tax on lost spirits is indemnified by insurance.

When the owners of distilled spirits in the cases provided for by the two preceding sections may be indemnified against such tax by a valid claim of insurance, for a sum greater than the actual value of the distilled spirits before and without the tax being paid, the tax shall not be remitted to the extent of such insurance.

Act May 27, 1872, c. 218, § 2, 17 Stat. 162. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, 20 Stat. 333.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting, after the words "valid claim of insurance," the words "for a sum greater than the actual value of the distilled spirits before and without the tax being paid," as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 3, cited above.

A similar provision relating to spirits withdrawn for exportation was made by Act Dec. 20, 1879, c. 1, § 2, post, § 6056.

The provisions of this section were extended to grape brandy accidentally destroyed while stored in fortifying room on winery premises, by Act June 7, 1906, c. 3046, § 5, post, § 6121. See, also, in this connection, § 6114e, post.

Cited without definite application, Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (1905) 136 Fed. 326, 329, 69 C. C. A. 464; Kensett v. Stivers (C. C. 1880) 10 Fed. 517, 521.

See Hedger v. Union Ins. Co. (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 498.

§ 5947. (R. S. § 3224.) Suits to restrain assessments or collection of taxes.

No suit for the purpose of restraining the assessment or collection of any tax shall be maintained in any court.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 10, 14 Stat. 475.

Notes of Decisions

Construction with other sections.—The inhibition of this section of suits to restrain asessment or collection of a tax, and provisions of section 5944, ante, and sections 5949, 5950, post, making an appeal to a commissioner of internal revenue after payment and refusal to refund prerequisite to a suit to recover taxes illegally collected, are applicable to taxes under the income tax section of tariff act (Act Oct. 3, 1913, § 2, par. L). Dodge v. Osborn (1916) 36 Sup. Ct. 275.

This provision, having been enacted as an amendment to Act July 13, 1866, § 19 (R. S. § 3226, post, § 5949), is to be construed as applying to taxes erroneously or illegally assessed as well as legal taxes. Kensett v. Stivers (C. C. 1880) 10 Fed. 517, 522.

This section was originally an amendment to what is now R. S. § 3221, ante, § 5945, and should be construed with it. Miles v. Johnson (C. C. 1893) 59 Fed. 38, 40.

Restraining assessment or imposition of tax.—Maintenance by stockholder of suit to restrain corporation from voluntarily complying with income tax provisions of Act Oct. 3, 1913, as unconstitutional, is not forbidden by this section. Brushaber v. Union Pac. R. Co. (1916) 36 S. Ct. 236; Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co. (1916) 36 S. Ct. 278.

A suit by a stockholder in a corporation to restrain it from voluntarily making the returns required, and paying the tax levied under an act of congress alleged to be unconstitutional, should not be sustained on the ground of a right to equitable relief arising from the fact that the stockholder is without other remedy; the proper course, in case of illegal taxation, being to pay the tax under protest or with notice of suit, and then bring an action against the officer who collected it. Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. (1895) 15 Sup. Ct. 673, 700, 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. Ed. 759, per Mr. Justice White and Mr. Justice Harlan.

A federal court has power to prevent, by injunction, the imposition of an illegal tax under Act June 30, 1864. Act March 2, 1833, § 2; Act June 30, 1864, § 50. Cutting v. Gilbert (C. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 3,519.

Where a great number of persons are affected by a tax, and the remedy by separate suits in equity will involve onerous and vexatious litigation, the court will not interfere by injunction in any suit. Id.

To justify a holding that this section does not forbid the issuance of an injunction, it must appear that the assessment could not by any possibility be legal. Kissinger v. Bean (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 7,853.

Restraining collection.—This statute was intended to apply alone to tax levy by the United States. In addition to illegality, hardship, or irregularity, a proceeding to restrain the collection of illegal taxes must be brought within some of the recognized foundations of equitable jurisdiction, and mere errors or excess in valuation or hardship, or injustice of the law, or any grievance which can be remedied by a suit at law, will not justify a court of equity to interpose by injunction to stay collection of a tax. State Railroad Tax Cases (1875) 92 U. S. 575, 613, 23 L. Ed. 663.

Under this section prohibiting suits restraining the collection of internal revenue taxes, and providing a remedy by suit to recover back the tax after it is paid, the statutory remedy is exclusive, and a bill in equity will not lie to enjoin the collection of an internal revenue tax on tobacco, on the theory that a tax illegally assessed is not a tax, within the statute. Snyder v. Marks (1883) 3 Sup. Ct. 157, 109 U. S. 189, 27 L. Ed. 901.

Where the court below did not grant an injunction against the collection of war revenue taxes, but dismissed the bill, it was not necessary to consider whether the collector of internal revenue might have been enjoined, even had the court concluded that the bill disclosed a good cause of action. High v. Coyne (1900) 20 Sup. Ct. 747, 178 U. S. 111, 44 L. Ed. 997.

Courts are precluded by this section from taking jurisdiction of a bill against commissioner of internal revenue to enjoin collection of taxes imposed by income tax section of Tariff Act Oct. 3, 1913, on the ground that the statute is in violation of Const. U. S. Dodge v. Osborn (1916) 36 S. Ct. 275.

Allegations in bill against commissioner of internal revenue to enjoin collection of taxes imposed by income tax law, that by the statute, making tax a lien on plaintiff's property, its assessment would constitute a cloud on plaintiff's title, do not take case out of rule that by this section collection of tax cannot be enjoined because of alleged unconstitutionality of act imposing it. Id.

The inhibition of this section against suits "for the purpose of restraining the assessment or collection of a tax," and the provisons of sections 5949, 5950, post, that a suit to recover an illegal tax shall not be brought "until after appeal to the commissioner of internal revenue, and must be brought within two years next after the cause of action accrued," do not apply to a proceeding in which the government is the moving party; and, therefore, upon an application by the United States for an order upon a receiver to pay an assessment, the receiver may show that the assessment was erroneous or illegal, without regard to the lapse of time, or to whether there has been an appeal to the commissioner of internal revenue. U. S. v. Nebraska Distilling Co. (1897) 80 Fed. 285, 25 C. C. A. 418.

The circuit court has power to enjoin threatened proceedings of a collector of internal revenue to collect a tax which is not authorized by act of congress. Georgia v. Atkins (C. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 5,350; Frayser v. Russell (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 5,067.

This section prohibits a suit to restrain the collection of any sum by authority of the United States, having the form and color of a tax, by any means authorized by law for the collection of taxes. Howland v. Soule (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 6,800.

A suit in equity will not lie to restrain the collection of an income tax on the ground that the act of congress imposing the tax is unconstitutional and void. Robbins v. Freeland (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 11,883.

The constitutionality of an internal revenue act cannot be tested in a suit to restrain the collection of a tax levied thereunder. Delaware R. Co. v. Prettyman (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 3,767.

Under this section, a federal court cannot enjoin the collection of an assessment levied by the commissioner of internal revenue against a stockholder of a corporation engaged in the business of distilling spirits. Kissinger v. Bean (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 7,853.

Collection of assessment not restrained on allegation in bill that assessment is irregular, and in violation of law, and void. Alkan v. Bean (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 202.

Whether this section applies to a suit in a federal court to restrain the collection of a state tax, quære. Wells v. Central Vermont R. R. Co. (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 17,390.

The collection of the tax cannot be restrained by injunction in any court of equity in the United States, however erroneously or illegally it may have been assessed, if assessed by the proper officer. It is prohibited by the statute. The right to a remedy is merely a remedy which congress may take away without affecting an accrued right. Kensett v. Stivers (C. C. 1880) 10 Fed. 517.

While this section probably refers to taxes levied by the general government only, it shows the attitude of the government upon the general question of restraining the collection of taxes and federal courts will always refrain from taking jurisdiction, except when the complaint makes a case free from doubt and under some well-recognized head of equity. Schulenberg-Boeckeler Lumber Co. v. Hayward (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 422, 423.

A bill for a mandatory injunction requiring a collector to accept an export bond for certain spirits in a bonded warehouse after the bonded period has expired, and allow their withdrawal for export without requiring payment of the tax thereon, is in effect a bill to restrain the collection of internal revenue taxes, which the court is forbidden to entertain by this section. Miles v. Johnson (C. C. 1893) 59 Fed. 38.

Under this section, and on general principles of equity, an injunction suit cannot be maintained to restrain the collection by town authorities of a personal property tax. Nye, Jenks & Co. v. Town of Washburn (C. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 817.

Both under this section and on general principles of equity, an injunction suit cannot be maintained to restrain the collection by town authorities of a personal property tax; there being an adequate remedy at law to be had, by paying the tax and bringing an action to recover it, and it being contrary to public policy to tie up the collection of taxes. Id.

An injunction does not lie to restrain the collection of further taxes imposed by Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 38. Pacific Building & Loan Ass'n v. Hartson (D. C. 1913) 201 Fed. 1011.

A decree of the Supreme Court of this district dismissing a bill in equity to enjoin the commissioners of internal revenue from proceeding with the collection of the income tax affirmed. Moore v. Miller (1895) 5 App. D. C. 413.

Remedy at law.—The taxpayer has a remedy by an action at law against an assessor making an illegal assessment. Cutting v. Gilbert (C. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 3,519.

A bill in equity will not lie to enjoin the assessment and collection by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue of a surtax imposed upon the plaintiff's income under section 2, Act Oct. 3, 1913, as the plaintiffs have an adequate remedy at law under section 5944, ante, and sections 5949, 5950, post, and as this section expressly provides that no suit for the purpose of restraining the assessment or collection of any tax shall be maintained in any court. Dodge v. Osborn (1915) 43 App. D. C. 144.

Cited without definite application, Andreae v. Redfield (1878) 98 U. S. 225, 232, 25 L. Ed. 158; Pittsburg, C., C. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Board of Public Works (1898) 19 Sup. Ct. 90, 93, 172 U. S. 32, 43 L. Ed. 354; Pacific Steam Whaling Co. v. U. S. (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 154, 156, 187 U. S. 447, 47 L. Ed. 253; Taylor v. Louisville & N. R. Co. (1898) 88 Fed. 350, 357, 31 C. C. A. 537 (writ of certiorari denied [1898] 19 Sup. Ct. 887, 172 U. S. 647, 43 L. Ed. 1182); Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (1905) 136 Fed. 326, 328, 69 C. C. A. 464; Sheridan v. Allen (1907) 153 Fed. 568; 82 C. C. A. 522; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Trapp (1911) 186 Fed. 114, 108 C. C. A. 226; Zerres v. Vanina (C. C. 1905) 134 Fed. 610 (affirmed [1907] 150 Fed. 564, 80 C. C. A. 366); Armour v. Roberts (C. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 846; Plant v. One Hundred and Seven Barrels of Porto Rican Bay Rum (D. C. 1908) 165 Fed. 941.

§ 5948. (R. S. § 3225, as amended, Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 14(d).) Suits to recover taxes collected under second assessment; burden of proof to show fraud.

When a second assessment is made in case of any list, statement, or return, which in the opinion of the collector or deputy collector was false or fraudulent, or contained any understatement or undervaluation, no tax collected under such assessment shall be recovered by any suit unless it is proved that the said list, statement, or return was not false nor fraudulent and did not contain any understatement or undervaluation; but this section shall not apply to statements or returns made or to be made in good faith under the laws of the United States regarding annual depreciation of oil or gas wells and mines. (39 Stat. 773.)

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 111. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401. Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 14(d), 39 Stat. 773.

This section was part of § 14 of an act entitled "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," cited above. It amends R. S. § 3225, which read as follows:

"When a second assessment is made in case of any list, statement, or return, which in the opinion of the collector or deputy collector was false or fraudulent, or contained any understatement or undervaluation, no taxes collected under such assessment shall be recovered by any suit, unless it is proved that the said list, statement, or return was not false nor fraudulent, and did not contain any understatement or undervaluation."

Notes of Decisions

See, also, notes under §§ 6300–6309, post.

Necessity of compliance with statute.—In view of this and the following section and section 6799, post, the right to sue the United States through its collector to recover taxes alleged to have been illegally collected is a remedy given by statute, and not a common-law action; and hence the action is not maintainable unless the conditions prescribed by this and the following section are strictly complied with. Commissioners of the Sinking Fund v. Buckner (C. C. 1891) 48 Fed. 533, 535.

Evidence as to return containing no understatements.—In an action by a manufacturer of fermented liquors against the collector to recover taxes paid under protest, on a second assessment, the books of such manufacturer, though not necessarily conclusive for or against the government, under all circumstances, ought to be the best evidence, if kept as the law requires, to prove the quantity of liquor drawn from the fermenting vessels, for the purpose of showing that his return contained no understatements, as required by Act July 13, 1866 (this section); and, until it is shown that they cannot be produced, or that they do not contain the information required, resort cannot be had to the recollection or knowledge of witnesses as to circumstances bearing on the ultimate fact in issue. Bergdoll v. Pollock (1877) 95 U. S. 337, 24 L. Ed. 512.

Stamp tax.—By comparison of the returns with the account for stamps sold, a collector can always tell whether the taxes upon the reported production have been paid, and by comparison of the estimated production with the actual production as returned and with the quantity of material purchased, he can judge as to the probable honesty of the returns. To prove the accuracy of returns, the manufacturer may refer to his books, and parol testimony is only required to identify the books. Bergdoll v. Pollock (1877) 95 U. S. 337, 338, 24 L. Ed. 512.

Cited without definite application, Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (1905) 136 Fed. 326, 329, 69 C. C. A. 464.

§ 5949. (R. S. § 3226, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Suits for recovery of taxes wrongfully collected.

No suit shall be maintained in any court for the recovery of any internal tax alleged to have been erroneously or illegally assessed or collected, or of any penalty claimed to have been collected without authority, or of any sum alleged to have been excessive or in any manner wrongfully collected, until appeal shall have been duly made to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, according to the provisions of law in that regard, and the regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury established in pursuance thereof, and a decision of the Commissioner has been had therein: Provided, That if such decision is delayed more than six months from the date of such appeal, then the said suit may be brought, without first having a decision of the Commissioner at any time within the period limited in the next section.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 19, 14 Stat. 152. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 44, 17 Stat. 257. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 248.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out, after the words "Commissioner of," the word "the," to read as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

1. Constitutionality.
2. Suits to which statute applies.
3. Application to oleomargarine tax.
4. Statutory remedy as exclusive.
5. Compliance with statutes in general.
6. Necessity of appeal in general.
7. Appeal as condition precedent to trespass against collector.
8. Effect of statute as to defense by one sued for tax.
9. Presentation of appeal.
10. Necessity of decision on merits.
11. Delayed decision.
12. Appeal as suspending limitations.
13. Pleading failure to take appeal.
14. Proof of appeal and decision thereon.
15. Restraining, assessment, payment, or collection of taxes.
16. Suits against government.

See note under § 5947, ante.

1. Constitutionality.—There is no want of due process of law in this section and section 5944, ante, and section 5950, post, making appeal to commissioner of internal revenue after payment and his refusal prerequisite to suit to recover taxes illegally assessed. Dodge v. Osborn (1916) 36 Sup. Ct. 275.

2. Suits to which statute applies.—This section operates on all suits brought subsequently to the time fixed by the act, and on suits in state as well as federal courts. Brainard v. Hubbard (1870) 12 Wall. 1, 20 L. Ed. 272.

Under this and the two following sections suit to recover corporate excise tax paid under protest, brought within two years after rejection of claims by commissioner of internal revenue, held not barred by limitations. State Line

& S. R. Co. v. Davis (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 246.

3. Application to oleomargarine tax.—This section held applicable to the enforcement of an oleomargarine tax assessed under Act Aug. 2, 1886. Weaver v. Ewers (1912) 195 Fed. 247, 115 C. C. A. 219, affirming judgment Ewers v. Weaver (C. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 713.

The provisions of the general internal revenue legislation do not apply to Oleomargarine Law Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, 24 Stat. 209, except those sections expressly made applicable by section 3 thereof, section 5977, post; and one assessed with a special tax under such law as a dealer, who before paying such tax, at the suggestion of the collector, made application to the Commissioner for an abatement of the same, stating the facts, which application was refused, is not required to again appeal to the Commissioner under this section, after he has paid under protest, before he can maintain a suit to recover his payment back as illegally imposed. Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658.

4. Statutory remedy as exclusive.—The statutory remedy is exclusive. Snyder v. Marks (1883) 3 Sup. Ct. 157, 158, 109 U. S. 189, 27 L. Ed. 901.

5. Compliance with statutes in general.—See, also, note under the preceding section.

A suit was brought more than 18 years afterwards to recover excess of tax paid through the collector's rating certain fractional parts of gallons of spirits as whole gallons. Prior to suit brought, plaintiff had made a claim for tax charged on spirits lost by evaporation while in the warehouse, but not for this alleged excess. Held, plaintiff not having complied with provisions of this and the two following sections as to the time of presenting his claim to the commissioner of internal revenue, his claim was barred. Stuart v. Barnes (C. C. 1890) 43 Fed. 281.

As the right to sue the United States through its collectors, to recover taxes alleged to have been illegally collected, is only a remedy given by statute, no such right exists, unless the conditions prescribed by this section and section 5950, post, are strictly complied with, namely, that an appeal must first be taken to the commissioner of internal revenue, and the suit must be brought within two years from the date of his decision. Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of Louisville v. Buckner (C. C. 1891) 48 Fed. 533.

That an action is brought under Tucker Act (ante, § 1136) to recover internal revenue taxes voluntarily paid does not change the rule that the taxes cannot be recovered unless this section and sections 5950, 5951, post, have been complied with. Farrell v. U. S. (D. C. 1909) 167 Fed. 639.

An assessment of a legacy tax under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 29, after the taking effect of the repealing act, is illegal, and a recovery of the tax voluntarily paid is authorized by these sections, so that the repealing act (Act June 27, 1902) was not necessary to enable the maintenance of an action therefor. Id.

Internal revenue taxes voluntarily paid cannot be recovered by suit, unless these sections have been complied with, though the suit is brought under the Tucker Act (Act March 3, 1887, c. 359). Id.

As to payments of legacy taxes under War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 29, made after the passage of the act and after the repeal thereof went into effect, there can be no recovery unless this section and sections 5950–5951, post, are complied with. Id.

Under this section, section 5944, ante, and sections 5950, 5951, post, a corporate excise tax illegally collected could not be recovered back, where suit was not brought within two years. Public Service Ry. Co. v. Herold (D. C. 1915) 219 Fed. 301.

Under this section, section 5944, ante, and sections 5950, 5951, post, suit to recover corporate excise tax illegally collected could not be maintained more than two years after payment, though the claim was presented to and rejected by the commissioner of internal revenue after the expiration of the two years. Id.

Corporation taxes, assessed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, cannot be recovered, where the corporation has not complied with this section and sections 5950, 5951, post. Public Service Gas Co. v. Herold (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 496.

6. Necessity of appeal in general.—Act July 13, 1866, § 19 (14 Stat. 152), which declares that no suit shall be maintained in any court to recover back a tax illegally assessed or collected until after an appeal to the commissioner of internal revenue, operates on all suits brought subsequently to the time fixed by the act for it to take effect, and on suits brought in state courts as well as in federal. Collector of Internal Revenue v. Hubbard (1870) 79 U. S. (12 Wall.) 1, 20 L. Ed. 272.

Where a person illegally assessed for an income tax appeals to the commissioner of internal revenue, who orders a new assessment made, the former cannot recover back the money paid on the new assessment, when he neither brings suit therefor within six months after the decision on appeal, nor takes an appeal from the new assessment. Cheatham v. U. S. (1875) 92 U. S. 85, 23 L. Ed. 561.

A party who appeals from an assessment, where a new assessment is ordered, from which he does not appeal, but pays the sum assessed, has no right of action, where he failed to sue within six months from the date of the commissioner's decision on appeal, and took no appeal from the second assessment. Id.

The inhibition of section 5947, ante, of suits to restrain assessment or collection of a tax, and provisions of this section and sections 5944, ante, and 5950, post, making an appeal to a commissioner of internal revenue after payment and refusal to refund prerequisite to a suit to recover taxes illegally collected, are applicable to taxes under the income tax section of the Tariff Act (Act Oct. 3, 1913, § 2, par. L). Dodge v. Osborn (1916) 36 S. Ct. 275.

Plaintiff, after the assessment of an illegal internal revenue tax, having applied to the internal revenue commissioner for abatement, held not bound to appeal to the commissioner after paying the tax, under this section. Weaver v. Ewers (1912) 195 Fed. 247, 115 C. C. A. 219, affirming judgment Ewers v. Weaver (C. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 713.

An appeal after payment of a tax is not necessary before commencing suit to recover the same, where an appeal had been taken from the illegal assessment. San Francisco Savings & Loan Soc. v. Cary (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 12,317.

Failure of a purchaser of property leased for a distillery, with covenants to be subject to the lien of taxes and penalties, to appeal from an assessment thereon, precludes him, in a subsequent action against the collector, from showing that no tax or penalty was in fact due. Milan Distilling Co. v. Tillson (C. C. 1880) Fed. Cas. No. 9,539.

Under this section, where an appeal for a rebate of the tax, taken after its assessment, but before its payment, in accordance with the regulations of the department, has been adversely decided by the commissioner on the merits, a second appeal after payment of the tax is not required before bringing suit. Schwarzchild & Sulzberger Co. v. Rucker (C. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 656.

Where the period of fermentation has been fixed at 48 hours by the officers of the government upon survey, it is not a valid objection to the tax that the distillery uses a longer time in fermentation. The distiller's remedy is by appeal to the commissioner of internal revenue. U. S. v. Bicket (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 14,590.

Suits against collectors of internal revenue for taxes illegally collected and paid into the treasury of the United States are absolutely prohibited, until the taxpayer shall have duly made an appeal to the commissioner of internal revenue in accordance with the provisions of the law, and the regulations of the secretary of the treasury, and until the appeal has been decided, unless the decision is postponed longer than six months, in which case he is at liberty to sue within one year from the time when his appeal was taken. Hubbard v. Kelley (1874) 8 W. Va. 46.

7. Appeal as condition precedent to trespass against collector.—An appeal to the commissioner of internal revenue, under Act July 13, 1866, § 19 (14 Stat. 152), from an assessment, is only a condition precedent to an action for the recovery of taxes paid, and not to an action against the collector for trespass, where such action is permissible. Erskine v. Hohnbach (1871) 81 U. S. (14 Wall.) 613, 614, 20 L. Ed. 745.

8. Effect of statute as to defense by one sued for tax.—The provision of Act July 13, 1866, that no suit shall be maintained for the recovery of any tax erroneously or illegally assessed until an appeal is first made to the commissioner of internal revenue, and a decision had, does not prevent the defendant in a suit brought by the government from setting up as a defense the erroneous assessment or illegality of the tax. Clinkenbeard v. U. S. (1874) 88 U. S. (21 Wall.) 65, 70, 22 L. Ed. 477.

9. Presentation of appeal.—The lodging of an appeal made out in due form with the proper collector for transmission to the commissioner in the usual course of business, under the requirements of the regulations of the secretary of the treasury, held in legal effect a presentation of the appeal. U. S. v. Real Estate Sav. Bank (1881) 104 U. S. 728, 734, 26 L. Ed. 908.

A written application to the commissioner of internal revenue to refund a sum expended in the voluntary purchase of revenue stamps from a collector, to be affixed to a conveyance, though it may be sufficient to justify favorable action by the commissioner, under section 5944, ante, is not the equivalent of an appeal to him from an adverse decision by the collector, under this section and sections 5950 and 5951, post. Chesebrough v. U. S. (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 262, 265, 192 U. S. 253, 48 L. Ed. 432.

This statute is not merely a statute of limitations, but prescribes an absolute condition precedent, which is not waived by a failure to plead it, and without compliance with which a suit cannot be maintained; but where, before payment of the tax, a claim for its abatement was presented to the commissioner in accordance with the rules of the department, and rejected, the same was equivalent to an appeal, and an appeal after payment on the same grounds was not necessary to authorize a suit. De Bary v. Dunne (C. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 961.

Where a person alleged to have been wrongfully assessed for oleomargarine taxes applied pursuant to internal revenue form 47 for an abatement of the assessment, which application was denied, but made no application pursuant to form 46 for a return of the moneys alleged to have been paid as such taxes under a protest, a suit brought against the collector to recover such taxes was premature. Hastings v. Herold (C. C. 1910) 184 Fed. 759.

10. Necessity of decision on merits.—Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 19, 14 Stat. 152, declared that no suit shall be brought to recover taxes illegally exacted until an appeal has been made to the commissioner, and decided by him, "unless such suit shall be brought within six months from the time of said decision"; provided that, if the commissioner delays his decision more than six months, suit may be brought at any time within twelve months from the date of the appeal. Held, that the decision contemplated by the statute was a decision on the merits, and not on the mere formal accuracy of the appeal; and where an appeal to the commissioner was dismissed for irregularity in the papers, and a second appeal was taken, the action could be brought within six months after the decision thereon. James v. Hicks (1884) 4 Sup. Ct. 6, 110 U. S. 272, 28 L. Ed. 144.

11. Delayed decision.—Under this section and section 5950, post, it was held that, on the expiration of six months after an appeal without its having been acted on, a right of action accrued, and became barred in two years thereafter. Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1903) 126 Fed. 991; Schwarzchild & Sulzberger Co. v. Rucker (C. C. 1906) 143 Fed. 656.

A person who, on the neglect of the commissioner to render a decision within six months, fails to bring suit within a year from the date of his appeal, is not thereby precluded from maintaining his action after a decision is actually rendered by the commission. James v. Hicks (1884) 4 Sup. Ct. 6, 7, 110 U. S. 272, 28 L. Ed. 144.

An action against an internal revenue officer for a trespass committed under color of his office cannot be brought until the six months specified in the act had expired. Coblens v. Abel (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 2,926.

A claim for the refunding of taxes alleged to have been illegally collected was made to the commissioner of internal revenue upon form 47, prescribed by the department for claims "for the remission of taxes improperly assessed," instead of upon form 46, for claims "for taxes improperly paid," and was rejected. After a long delay, caused by loss of papers by the department, it was at length presented on form 46, supported by the proper affidavits. Held, that the claim was not in shape for decision on the merits until the last presentation, and, the decision being delayed more than six months, suit could be brought, notwithstanding that more than a year had elapsed since the first rejection, and that the commissioner refused to act on the ground that the first rejection was final. Hicks v. James' Adm'x (C. C. 1882) 48 Fed. 542.

12. Appeal as suspending limitations.—Where an appeal was not taken for more than two years after the decision, by the complainant's own negligence, the action was held barred. Braun v. Sauerwein (1869) 10 Wall. 218, 220, 19 L. Ed. 895.

The proviso of this section is permissive only, and does not compel a claimant to bring suit within two years and six months after taking appeal in any case, but that he may at his election await the decision of the commissioner, and, if adverse, bring suit within two years thereafter. Merck v. Treat (1909) 174 Fed. 388, 98 C. C. A. 606.

An appeal limiting the time to sue for a tax illegally collected dates from the filing of the application to refund in the office of the commissioner of internal revenue. Cotton Press Co. v. Collector (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 3,271.

Where plaintiff appealed to the commissioner of internal revenue for redress because of taxes collected under duress under this section, the running of limitations in an action to recover the same is not suspended during the pendency of the appeal before the commissioner. Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 506, judgment affirmed (1905) 136 Fed. 326, 69 C. C. A. 464.

13. Pleading failure to take appeal.—The failure to take an appeal to the commissioner of internal revenue, as provided by statute, to be available in an action to recover a tax as illegally assessed, must be pleaded in abatement. Hendy v. Soule (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 6,359.

14. Proof of appeal and decision thereon.—Due proof must be made of the commissioner's decision. A certificate indorsed on the appeal, "Examined and rejected," signed by one unknown to the court, with no evidence to show that the commissioner adopted it as his decision, is not due proof. Lauer v. U. S. (1869) 5 Ct. Cl. 447.

It being incumbent on the plaintiff, in an action to recover back taxes illegally collected from him by the United States internal revenue collector, to show that he has appealed to the commissioner of internal revenue, and that the appeal was decided against him, the plaintiff must produce a written appeal in evidence or an authentic copy thereof, or show good cause for its absence. Hubbard v. Kelley (1874) 8 W. Va. 46.

Before a taxpayer may maintain an action against a collector of United States revenue to recover back illegal taxes paid by him he must show that he has complied with all the prerequisites and conditions prescribed by the statute, among which is the fact of the taking of an appeal to the commissioner of internal revenue, and that the same has been decided against him. Id.

15. Restraining assessment, payment, or collection of taxes.—Federal district court did not commit reversible error in passing on merits of controversy in supplemental bill to enjoin collection of surtaxes under income tax law 1913, on ground of its unconstitutionality, that the commissioner of internal revenue had ruled adversely upon plaintiff's protest and the taxes had been paid, notwithstanding failure of such bill to allege compliance with conditions imposed by this section and section 5944, ante, as prerequisites to such suit. Dodge v. Brady (1916) 36 S. Ct. 277.

Under this section and section 5947, ante, a stockholder of a corporation could not maintain a suit in equity to restrain the corporation from paying taxes assessed on its income under Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, 36 Stat. 11. Straus v. Abrast Realty Co. (D. C. 1912) 200 Fed. 327.

A bill in equity will not lie to enjoin the assessment and collection by the commissioner of internal revenue of a surtax imposed upon the plaintiff's income under section 2, Act Oct. 3, 1913, as the plaintiffs have an adequate remedy at law under this section, section 5944, ante, and section 5950, post, and as section 5947, ante, expressly provides that no suit for the purpose of restraining the assessment or collection of any tax shall be maintained in any court. Dodge v. Osborn (1915) 43 App. D. C. 144.

16. Suits against government.—This section, section 5444, ante, and sections 5450, 5451, post, held not inconsistent with Tucker Act March 3, 1887 (ante, § 991 [20]), and hence a federal district court had jurisdiction of an action against the United States to recover money paid on an erroneous internal revenue assessment. U. S. v. Finch (1912) 201 Fed. 95, 119 C. C. A. 433.

Act March 3, 1887, § 1 (ante, § 991 [20]), providing generally for the bringing of suits against the United States, and limiting such suits to six years after the right accrued, did not supersede this and the following section, specifically authorizing suits for the recovery of internal taxes paid, and claimed to have been erroneously or illegally assessed or collected, within two years after an appeal has been taken and determined by the department; and such suits are governed by the limitation contained in those sections, which is made one of the conditions of the right of action thereby given. Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1903) 126 Fed. 991.

Cited without definite application, Bergdoll v. Pollock (1877) 95 U. S. 337, 24 L. Ed. 512; Wright v. Blakeslee (1879) 101 U. S. 174, 179, 25 L. Ed. 1048; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. (1895) 15 Sup. Ct. 673, 700, 157 U. S. 429, 39 L. Ed. 759 (dissenting opinion); Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 376, 378, 192 U. S. 397, 48 L. Ed. 496; South Carolina v. U. S. (1905) 26 Sup. Ct. 110, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. Ed. 261, 4 Ann. Cas. 737 (statement); U. S. v. Barnes (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 117, 118, 222 U. S. 513, 56 L. Ed. 291; U. S. v. Shipley (1912) 197 Fed. 265, 116 C. C. A. 627; Armour v. Roberts (C. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 846; Central Trust Co. of New York v. Treat (C. C. 1911) 192 Fed. 942; Schafer v. Craft (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 907 (affirmed [1907] 153 Fed. 175, 82 C. C. A. 349).

§ 5950. (R. S. § 3227.) Limitation of suits for recovery of taxes wrongfully collected.

No suit or proceeding for the recovery of any internal tax alleged to have been erroneously or illegally assessed or collected, or of any penalty alleged to have been collected without authority, or of any sum alleged to have been excessive or in any manner wrongfully collected, shall be maintained in any court, unless the same is brought within two years next after the cause of action accrued: Provided, That actions for such claims which accrued prior to June six, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, may be brought within one year from said date; and that where any such claim was pending before the Commissioner, as provided in the preceding section, an action thereon may be brought within one year after such decision and not after. But no right of action which was already barred by any statute on the said date shall be revived by this section.

Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 44, 17 Stat. 257.

Notes of Decisions

See, also, notes under § 5949, ante.

Constitutionality.—There is no want of due process of law in this section and sections 5944, 5949, ante, making appeal to commissioner of internal revenue after payment and his refusal prerequisite to suit to recover taxes illegally assessed. Dodge v. Osborn (1916) 36 S. Ct. 275.

Limitations barring action in general.—Under this statute, held, that a remainderman, who, under protest, paid a succession tax properly assessed on the estate and the 50 per cent. penalty erroneously imposed, was entitled to two years from the decision of the commission in which to sue for its recovery. Wright v. Blakeslee (1879) 101 U. S. 174, 25 L. Ed. 1048.

A suit commenced June 15, 1875, to recover a certain tax and penalty collected, is not barred where the decision of the commissioner of internal revenue on appeal from an application to refund was rendered July 3, 1873. Id.

An action against the United States on a claim to recover back internal taxes illegally collected, which has been presented to but not approved by commissioner of internal revenue, is barred by this section, two years after the cause of action accrues. Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (1905) 136 Fed. 326, 69 C. C. A. 464.

Where plaintiff appeals to the commissioner of internal revenue for redress because of taxes collected by duress, statements by the officers of the government to the claimant, pending such appeal, that the claim would be allowed, or had been certified favorably to the auditing office, constitute no estoppel against the government, so as to avoid the operation of the statute of limitations. Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 506, judgment affirmed (1905) 136 Fed. 326, 69 C. C. A. 464.

The two-year limitation prescribed by this section for actions to recover taxes erroneously collected, does not govern, as it applies only when the gist of the claim is the wrongful act of the tax officer, and in this case the original wrong was cured by the action taken by the department to refund the money. Ray v. U. S. (D. C. 1892) 50 Fed. 166.

Repeal of limitations.—Act March 3, 1887, § 1, ante, § 991(20), providing generally for the bringing of suits against the United States, and limiting such suits to six years after the right accrued, did not supersede this section and section 5951, post, specifically authorizing suits for the recovery of internal taxes paid, and claimed to have been erroneously or illegally assessed or collected, within two years after an appeal has been taken and determined by the department; and such suits are governed by the limitation contained in those sections, which is made one of the conditions of the right of action thereby given. Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (C. C. 1903) 126 Fed. 991.

The limitation of two years prescribed by section 5950, post, for commencement of actions to recover back internal taxes illegally exacted is not repealed by section 991(20), ante, providing that no suits shall be allowed under that law unless they are brought within six years after the causes of action respectively accrue. Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (1905) 136 Fed. 326, 69 C. C. A. 464, affirming judgment (C. C. 1904) 129 Fed. 506.

"Claim" within meaning of statute.—Where the application for refunding of taxes is delivered to a collector or other local internal revenue officer, it is not a presentation of the claim to the commissioner such as is contemplated in the first proviso. (1873) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 615.

Presentation of claim.—Under this section and sections 5944, 5949, ante, and 5951, post, suit to recover corporate excise tax illegally collected could not be maintained more than two years after payment, though the claim was presented to and rejected by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue after the expiration of the two years. Public Service Ry. Co. v. Herold (D. C. 1915) 219 Fed. 301.

An application filed with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for the refunding of taxes alleged to have been erroneously or illegally assessed and collected, though informal or defective, may nevertheless be regarded as a "claim" within the meaning of the statute, so far at least as to be the foundation for an amendment. (1873) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 615.

Demurrer raising bar of limitations.—In a suit to recover internal revenue taxes alleged to have been illegally collected, where the complaint shows that more than two years have elapsed, and it is therefore barred by this section, the bar may be raised by demurrer, since that section contains no exceptions. Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of Louisville v. Buckner (C. C. 1891) 48 Fed. 533.

Corporate tax.—The limitation for action to recover an illegally collected excise tax on a corporation as doing business is two years from its payment. Public Service Electric Co. v. Herold (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 491; Public Service Ry. Co. v. Moffett (D. C. 1915) 227 Fed. 494.

Under this section and section 5944, ante, and section 5951, post, a corporate excise tax illegally collected could not be recovered back, where suit was not brought within two years. Public Service Ry. Co. v. Herold (D. C. 1915) 219 Fed. 301.

Under this section and section 5949, ante, and section 5951, post, suit to recover corporate excise tax paid under protest, brought within two years after rejection of claims by Commissioner of Internal Revenue, held not barred by limitations. State Line & S. R. Co. v. Davis (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 246.

Income taxes.—The inhibition of section 5947, ante, of suits to restrain assessment or collection of a tax, and provisions of this section and sections 5944, 5949, ante, making an appeal to a commissioner of internal revenue after payment and refusal to refund prerequisite to a suit to recover taxes illegally collected, are applicable to taxes under the income tax section of tariff act (Act Oct. 3, 1913, § 2, par. L). Dodge v. Osborn (1916) 36 Sup. Ct. 275.

A bill in equity will not lie to enjoin the assessment and collection by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue of a surtax imposed upon the plaintiff's income under section 2, Act Oct. 3, 1913, as the plaintiffs have an adequate remedy at law under this section and sections 5944, 5949, ante, and as section 5947, ante, expressly provides that no suit for the purpose of restraining the assessment or collection of any tax shall be maintained in any court. Dodge v. Osborn (1915) 43 App. D. C. 144.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Real Estate Sav. Bank (1881) 104 U. S. 728, 732, 26 L. Ed. 908; South Carolina v. U. S. (1905) 26 Sup. Ct. 110, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. Ed. 261, 4 Ann. Cas. 737 (statement); U. S. v. Barnes (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 117, 222 U. S. 513, 56 L. Ed. 291; U. S. v. Shipley (1912) 197 Fed. 265, 116 C. C. A. 627; Same v. Bank of America (C. C. 1883) 15 Fed. 730; Armour v. Roberts (C. C. 1907) 151 Fed. 846.

§ 5951. (R. S. § 3228.) Claims for refundment; limitation.

All claims for the refunding of any internal tax alleged to have been erroneously or illegally assessed or collected, or of any penalty alleged to have been collected without authority, or of any sum alleged to have been excessive or in any manner wrongfully collected, must be presented to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue within two years next after the cause of action accrued: Provided, That claims which accrued prior to June six, eighteen hundred and seventy-two, may be presented to the Commissioner at any time within one year from said date. But nothing in this section shall be construed to revive any right of action which was already barred by any statute on that date.

Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 44, 17 Stat. 257.

By Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 411, post, § 6346a, holders of stamps issued under Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, are required to present them for redemption within two years.

Notes of Decisions

See, also, notes under § 5949, ante.

To what claims statute applies in general.—That limitation is intended to apply to the claims described in section 5944, ante, only. (1827) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 427.

Claim for legacy taxes.—This section, limiting the time for presenting claims to recover internal revenue taxes illegally collected, has no application to a claim for the refunding of legacy taxes under Act June 27, 1902, § 3. U. S. v. Shipley (1912) 197 Fed. 265, 116 C. C. A. 627.

This section, limiting the time for presenting claims for the refunding of internal revenue taxes illegally collected, has no application to a claim for the refunding of legacy taxes paid on contingent interests, which did not become vested prior to July 1, 1902, which are required to be refunded by Act June 27, 1902, c. 1160, 32 Stat. 406, irrespective of their legality or whether they were voluntarily paid or not; and a failure to present the claim within the time limited by such section will not bar an action thereon. Thacher v. U. S. (C. C. 1906) 149 Fed. 902.

The provisions of the act of 1902 are special and apply to a particular class of obligations against the government, and, being special, these claims are not governed by the provisions of section 5951. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 194.

Claim for stamp taxes.—Stamps or stamp duties come under the provisions of this section imposing a limitation on claims for the refunding of internal taxes, and hence claims for a refund of money paid for stamps must be presented to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue within two years from the time they have accrued, otherwise they will be barred. (1875) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 513.

Where a trust-deed was executed to secure certain bonds and duly stamped and delivered, but the bonds not having been issued as contemplated, the deed was subsequently canceled and in lieu thereof a new trust-deed and bonds of another description were thereupon executed and delivered. Held that the case of the first-mentioned deed is within the provisions of R. S. § 3426, and presents a case for allowance by the Commissioner, unless barred by this section. Id.

The limitation in this section relative to claims for the refunding of internal revenue taxes has no application to claims for allowances for stamps under R. S. § 3426. Opinion of January 7, 1875, in 14 Op. 513, overruled. (1878) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 427.

Claim for corporate tax.—See, also, note, post, as to "Presentation of claim."

Under this section and sections 5944, 5949, 5950, ante, a corporate excise tax illegally collected could not be recovered back, where suit was not brought within two years. Public Service Ry. Co. v. Herold (D. C. 1915) 219 Fed. 301.

Under this section and sections 5949 and 5950, ante, suit to recover corporate excise tax paid under protest, brought within two years after rejection of claims by Commissioner of Internal Revenue, held not barred by limitations. State Line & S. R. Co. v. Davis (D. C. 1915) 228 Fed. 246.

Claim by savings bank.—See, also, note, post, as to "Presentation of claim."

A suit cannot be maintained by a savings bank to recover taxes illegally collected unless claim for payment or refunding has been presented to the commissioner within two years after the claim accrued. Kings County Sav. Inst. v. Blair (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 353, 356, 116 U. S. 200, 29 L. Ed. 657.

Set-off of claim.—Where internal revenue taxes were paid by a railroad company on dividends of its stock owned by a state, and no application has been made by the company within the time limited by statute for a refund, held, that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue has no authority to allow the amount so paid to be applied by way of set-off in discharge of a liability of the company for taxes arising upon a subsequent assessment. (1879) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 249.

Presentation of claim.—See, also, note under § 5944, ante.

Under this section and sections 5944, 5949, 5950, ante, suit to recover corporate excise tax illegally collected could not be maintained more than two years after payment, though the claim was presented to and rejected by the commissioner of Internal Revenue after the expiration of the two years. Public Service Ry. Co. v. Herold (D. C. 1915) 219 Fed. 301.

The provision requiring appeals to be "presented to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue within two years" does not mean that the claim shall be served personally on the Commissioner. The appeal is presented within the intent of the statute when the papers are filed with the collector of the proper district as prescribed by the regulations of the department. Real Estate Savings Bank of Pittsburgh v. U. S. (1880) 16 Ct. Cl. 335.

Commissioner's determination as to due time.—An award of the commissioner cannot be impeached for error in the determination of any fact which it is his duty to determine. Whether the claim was presented to him in due time is such a fact. First Nat. Bank of Greencastle v. U. S. (1879) 15 Ct. Cl. 225.

Cited without definite application, Commissioners of Sinking Fund of Logan County, Ky., v. U. S. (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 361, 169 U. S. 255, 42 L. Ed. 737; South Carolina v. U. S. (1905) 26 Sup. Ct. 110, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. Ed. 261, 4 Ann. Cas. 737 (statement); U. S. v. Barnes (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 117, 222 U. S. 513, 56 L. Ed. 291; Christie-Street Commission Co. v. U. S. (1905) 136 Fed. 326, 329, 69 C. C. A. 464; Commissioners of the Sinking Fund v. Buckner (C. C. 1891) 48 Fed. 533, 535.

§ 5952. (R. S. § 3229.) Compromises.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the advice and consent of the Secretary of the Treasury, may compromise any civil or criminal case arising under the internal-revenue laws instead of commencing suit thereon; and, with the advice and consent of the said Secretary and the recommendation of the Attorney-General, he may compromise any such case after a suit thereon has been commenced. Whenever a compromise is made in any case there shall be placed on file in the office of the Commissioner the opinion of the Solicitor of Internal Revenue, or of the officer acting as such, with his reasons therefor, with a statement of the amount of tax assessed, the amount of additional tax or penalty imposed by law in consequence of the neglect or delinquency of the person against whom the tax is assessed, and the amount actually paid in accordance with the terms of the compromise.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 102, 15 Stat. 166.

This section is made applicable to special taxes imposed on producers and importers of opium and coca leaves, by Act Dec. 17, 1914, c. 1, § 7, post, § 6287m.

Notes of Decisions

1. Repeal of former law.
2. Power to compromise in general.
3. Disposition of pending litigation.
4. Cases included in general.
5. Embezzlement cases.
6. Violation of oleomargarine law.

7. Tax legally due.
8. Procedure in general.
9. Agreement for compromise.
10. Effect of agreement for delay to effect compromise.
11. Dismissal of proceedings.
12. Recovery of money deposited with collector.
13. Rights of informer.
14. Instruction as to compromise in criminal case.

1. Repeal of former law.—The provision in section 179 of the act of June 30, 1864, c. 173, as amended by the act of July 13, 1866, c. 184, for compromising internal revenue cases, is repealed by this section. (1871) 13 Op. Atty. Gen. 525.

2. Power to compromise in general.—Under this section the Commissioner of Internal Revenue has power to compromise cases arising under the internal revenue laws, before suit, with the advice of the Secretary of the Treasury; but after the commencement of a suit or proceeding in court, the recommendation of the Attorney General is also necessary. (1871) 13 Op. Atty. Gen. 479.

In passing upon cases submitted to him for compromise, under this section and section 6375, post, the Secretary of the Treasury, while he is not at liberty to act from motives merely of compassion or charity, may consider not only the pecuniary interests of the government, but take into view general considerations of justice and equity and of public policy. (1881) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 213.

The Secretary of the Treasury has no power to compromise a suit brought against a collector of internal revenue for the recovery of taxes claimed to have been illegally collected. (1901) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 507.

3. Disposition of pending litigation.—The power to compromise ceases as soon as the judgment in the suit or proceeding is rendered. (1871) 13 Op. Atty. Gen. 479.

Under the primary, broad, and general control by the Attorney General of suits in which the United States is interested, he is authorized to make such disposition of pending litigation, including the compromise of cases of forfeiture incurred under the revenue laws, as seems to him meet and proper. (1899) 22 Op. Atty. Gen. 491.

Except as modified by this section and section 6379, post, the power to determine whether a compromise should be made of pending litigation would seem to rest with the Attorney General, such suits being necessarily under his control and subject to his direction. (1901) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 507.

4. Cases included in general.—Where an action is brought by the United States against delinquent corporations which have failed to file a return under Corporation Tax Act, § 38, section 6300 et seq., post, the verdict must specifically state the amount of the penalty not less than $1,000, after which the corporations' only remedy (other than appeal) is to apply for a compromise under this section and section 6375, post. U. S. v. Acorn Roofing Co. (D. C. 1912) 204 Fed. 157.

The words "all cases arising under the internal revenue laws," in the former section as first enacted, mean those cases wherein the taxpayer, and not the tax collector, is the party seeking a compromise. (1872) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 8.

Where an assessor of internal revenue was indicted upon the provisions of section 10201, post, and of sections 97 and 98 of the act of July 20, 1868, ante, §§ 5888, 5889, for having entered into a corrupt arrangement with certain distillers to defraud the government, and before trial proposed terms of compromise to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, under section 102 of the last-mentioned act, this section, it was held that the case did not come within the purview of the latter section. (1872) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 43.

The penalty incurred under sections 20 and 21 of the act of February 8, 1875 (18 Stat. 311), for nonpayment of taxes due on the circulating notes issued by banks in Canada for circulation in Canada, but which have passed over the line and been received by banks in the United States and paid out by them within the United States, may be compromised under this section, by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the advice and consent of the Secretary of the Treasury. (1897) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 558.

The power given the Secretary by this section to compromise cases arising under the internal revenue laws, extends only to suits commenced by the government to recover taxes; while the ampler power of compromise given him by section 6375, post, is limited to claims in favor of the United States. (1901) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 507.

The Secretary of the Treasury has no power to compromise a suit brought against a collector of internal revenue for the recovery of taxes claimed to have been illegally collected. Id.

5. Embezzlement cases.—The Commissioner of Internal Revenue is not authorized by this section to compromise cases in which internal revenue officers are charged with embezzlement under the sixteenth section of Act Aug. 6, 1846, c. 90, the provisions whereof are made applicable to such officers by Internal Revenue Law June 30, 1864, c. 173. (1872) 14 Op. Atty. Gen. 8.

6. Violation of oleomargarine law.—The officers of the Treasury Department are authorized, in accordance with the provisions of this section, to compromise a case involving a violation of the "oleomargarine" statutes, upon terms which, in their judgment, are just and reasonable. (1907) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 282.

7. Tax legally due.—The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has not authority, with the concurrence of the Attorney General and the Secretary of the Treasury, to compromise a tax legally due from a railroad company (the same being solvent) for a sum less than the amount of the tax. The authority to compromise conferred by this section does not permit the voluntary relinquishment of a part of a tax lawfully assessed upon and due from a solvent person or corporation. (1879) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 249.

8. Procedure in general.—The course of proceeding to be observed in execution of this section considered and indicated. (1868) 12 Op. Atty. Gen. 472.

9. Agreement for compromise.—An agreement by a district attorney to release a surety on a stipulation for value on condition of his giving information against other persons is not valid without the concurrence of the commissioner of internal revenue, the secretary of the treasury, and the attorney general. U. S. v. Quantity of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,099.

Where a suit under the internal revenue laws is agreed to be dismissed upon payment of costs by the claimant and entry of certificate of probable cause of seizure, the same is an agreement for a compromise of the case within the meaning of this section, and cannot take effect without the approval of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Attorney General. (1868) 12 Op. Atty. Gen. 536.

10. Effect of agreement for delay to effect compromise.—While any considerable lapse of time between conviction and sentence is not favored by the court, an agreement to give the prisoner reasonable delay in order that he might endeavor to effect a compromise is far from being an inducement of such character as will justify the withdrawal of a plea of guilty. U. S. v. Bayaud (C. C. 1883) 23 Fed. 721, 723.

11. Dismissal of proceedings.—This section does not require that the Attorney General should approve the action of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue where he directs the unconditional dismissal of a judicial proceeding under the internal revenue laws. (1869) 12 Op. Atty. Gen. 552.

12. Recovery of money deposited with collector.—Where a party deposits money with a collector of internal revenue, with authority to apply it to a proposed compromise, of certain revenue demands then pending against the depositor, and the collector, after the proposed compromise has been rejected by the government, applies the money to an assessment for taxes and penalties against the depositor, and pays the money into the Treasury, the Court of Claims has jurisdiction of an action to recover it back. Boughton v. U. S. (1876) 12 Ct. Cl. 330.

13. Rights of informer.—Where a forfeiture is decreed in a suit for breach of internal revenue law, and defendant on a compromise pays a sum of money into court, the right of the informers is not affected by the fact that a part of the sum is designated to cover taxes. U. S. v. Krum (C. C. 1882) 10 Fed. 823.

14. Instruction as to compromise in criminal case.—Under this section accused on trial for selling liquor without paying the special tax held entitled to an instruction that, if he paid the tax and penalty in consideration of an agreement that he should not be prosecuted, he should be found not guilty. Willingham v. U. S. (1913) 208 Fed. 137, 127 C. C. A. 263.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Stanton (1895) 70 Fed. 890, 892, 17 C. C. A. 475.

§ 5953. (R. S. § 3230.) Discontinuances of criminal prosecutions.

No discontinuance or nolle prosequi of any prosecution under section three thousand two hundred and fifty-seven shall be allowed without the permission in writing of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Attorney-General.

Act March 31, 1868, c. 41, § 7, 15 Stat. 60.

R. S. § 3257, mentioned in this section, is set forth post, § 5993.

§ 5954. (R. S. § 3231.) Continuances of internal-revenue cases.

It shall be lawful for any court in which any suit or criminal proceeding arising under the internal-revenue laws may be pending, to continue the same at any stage thereof, for good cause shown on motion by the district attorney.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 102, 15 Stat. 166.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Stanton (1895) 70 Fed. 890, 892, 17 C. C. A. 475.

CHAPTER THREE

Special Taxes

Sec.
5955. Trade or business not to be carried on until tax paid.
5956. Trade or business to be registered.
5957. Persons in partnership at same place liable for only one tax.
5958. Payment of one special tax not to cover several places of business.
5959. When more than one pursuit is carried on in same place by same person at same time.
5960. When special tax to be due, how reckoned; returns.
5961. Stamps for special taxes.
5962. Special-tax stamp to be exhibited in place of business.
5963. List of special tax-payers to be exhibited in collector's office; certified copy.
5964. Death or removal after paying tax; business carried on without additional tax.
5965. Carrying on business without payment of special tax; penalties.
5966. Carrying on business without payment of special tax punishable; forfeitures.
5967. Carrying on business of manufacturer of, or dealer in, oleomargarine without payment of special tax; penalty.
5968. Carrying on business of manufacturer of, or dealer in, process or renovated butter or adulterated butter without payment of tax; penalty.
5969. Carrying on business of manufacturer of, or dealer in, filled cheese without payment of tax.
5970. Payment of special tax not to authorize violation of State laws, nor prohibit State taxation.
5971. Special taxes imposed on whom.
(1) Brewers.
(2) Manufacturers of stills; drawback on stills exported.
(3) Rectifiers.
(4) Retail liquor dealers.
Wholesale liquor dealers.
(5) Retail dealers in malt liquors.
Wholesale dealers in malt liquors; sales by creditors, executors, etc., or under process, etc.
(6) (Superseded in part, and remainder transferred.)
(7) (Superseded.)
(8) (Superseded in part, and remainder transferred.)
(9) (Superseded.)
(10) (Superseded.)
(11) (Superseded in part, and remainder transferred.)
5972. Manufacturers of wooden stills.
5973. Retail liquor dealers; wholesale liquor dealers; retail dealers in malt liquors; wholesale dealers in malt liquors.
5974. Distiller selling his own product; record of sales; transcript; forfeiture.
5975. Special tax not applied to vintners or apothecaries in certain cases, nor to manufacturing chemists, etc., for recovering tax-paid alcohol from dregs, etc.
5976. Retail liquor dealers, etc., on passenger trains, steamboats, or other vessels.
5977. Special taxes upon manufacturers of, or dealers in, oleomargarine.
5978. Special taxes upon manufacturers of, or dealers in, process or renovated butter or adulterated butter.
5979. Special taxes upon manufacturers of, or dealers in, filled cheese.
5980. Special taxes upon manufacturers or packers of mixed flour.
5980a. Corporation tax; amount; mode of assessment on insurance companies; computation of tax; exemption; credit to corporation paying other form of tax; exemption of corporations not doing business; tax on corporations organized in foreign countries; exemptions; credit in case of payment of other form of tax.
5980b. Tax on brokers.
5980c. Tax on pawnbrokers.
5980d. Tax on ship brokers.
5980e. Tax on custom house brokers.
5980f. Tax on theaters, museums, and concert halls.
5980g. Tax on circuses.
5980h. Tax on enumerated public exhibits.
5980i. Tax on bowling alleys and billiard rooms.
5980j. Tax on tobacco, cigar, and cigarette manufacturers; computation of amount; penalty for failure to pay tax imposed by this title.
5980k. Other laws made applicable to this title.
5980l. Repeal.
5980m. When act takes effect.

§ 5955. (R. S. § 3232.) Trade or business not to be carried on until tax paid.

No person shall be engaged in or carry on any trade or business hereinafter mentioned until he has paid a special tax therefor in the manner hereinafter provided.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 113.

R. S. §§ 3232–3241, 3243, so far as applicable, were made to extend to and include and apply to special taxes imposed by Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 3, as amended by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 2, on manufacturers of and dealers in oleomargarine, by provisions of that section set forth post, § 5977, and to special taxes imposed by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 4, on manufacturers of and dealers in process or renovated butter or adulterated butter, by similar provisions of that section, set forth post, § 5967.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 5842, ante, and § 5977, post.

Constitutionality.—The recognition by the acts of Congress of the power and right of the states to tax, control, or regulate any business carried on within its limits does not preclude Congress from taxing such business for national purposes. In re License Tax Cases (1866) 72 U. S. (5 Wall.) 462, 18 L. Ed. 497.

Construction, operation, and validity of provisions in general.—The dispensing and selling agents of a state which, in the exercise of its sovereign power, has taken charge of the business of selling intoxicating liquors, are fairly within the scope of R. S. §§ 3232, 3244, 3140 (this compilation, §§ 5955, 5971, 5842), under which an excise tax is to be collected from all sellers of intoxicating liquors. State of South Carolina v. U. S. (1905) 26 Sup. Ct. 110, 199 U. S. 437, 50 L. Ed. 261, affirming judgment (1904) 39 Ct. Cl. 257.

The provisions imposing special taxes in lieu of requiring payment for licenses removes whatever ambiguity existed in the previous laws, and are in harmony with the constitution and public policy. License Tax Cases (1866) 5 Wall. 462, 464, 18 L. Ed. 497.

Revenue laws imposing license taxes on different kinds of business are to be liberally construed, to carry out the purposes of their enactment; their penal provisions not being penal in the sense that requires a rigidly strict construction. John J. Sesnon Co. v. U. S. (1910) 182 Fed. 573, 105 C. C. A. 111, writ of certiorari denied (1911) 31 Sup. Ct. 714, 220 U. S. 609, 55 L. Ed. 608.

Effect of license.—The licensing of a merchant under the United States revenue laws does not render him an "officer" of the United States, nor withdraw him from the taxing powers of the state. State v. Bell (1867) 61 N. C. 76.

Extension of provisions to oleomargarine tax.—The express extension of the provisions of this section and sections 5956–5964, 5970, post, which deal with special taxes, to the special tax on oleomargarine, made by Act Aug. 2, 1886, § 3, section 5977, post, imposing such tax, and not purporting to be complete in itself, is not an implied exclusion of the general provisions of section 5900, ante, for the entry by revenue officers of any building or place where any articles or objects subject to tax are made, produced, or kept, for the purpose of examining such articles or objects. U. S. v. Barnes (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 117, 222 U. S. 513, 56 L. Ed. 291.

Use of the words "special tax."—The use of the words "special tax" for the word "license" was to guard against misconstruction of legislative intention and to prevent people from believing that they derived from the licenses obtained under internal revenue an authority for carrying on the licensed business independently of state regulation and control. The law of 1866 was enacted after arguments of the preceding term of court involving that question, and Congress imposed these special taxes with the distinct understanding that the several branches of business thus taxed were prohibited by state legislation. License Tax Cases (1866) 5 Wall. 462, 474, 18 L. Ed. 497.

Application to brewers.—Brewers are included within the prohibition of this section. U. S. v. Glab (1878) 99 U. S. 225, 25 L. Ed. 273.

Payment in advance.—The tax must be paid in advance. U. S. v. Clare (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 55, 57.

Decisions as to special taxes under former laws.—See In re Lindauer (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 8,358; Salt Co. of Onondaga v. Wilkinson (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 12,269; Yellow Jacket Silver Min. Co. v. Gage (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 18,134; U. S. v. Colchester (D. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 14,-831; Larned v. Andrews (1871) 106 Mass. 435, 8 Am. Rep. 346; Best v. Bauder (N. Y. 1864) 29 How. Prac. 489.

Cited without definite application. U. S. v. Kaufman (1877) 96 U. S. 567, 568, 24 L. Ed. 792; Plumley v. Massachusetts (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 154, 155 U. S. 461, 39 L. Ed. 223; North Dakota ex rel. Flaherty v. Hanson (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 179, 180, 215 U. S. 515, 54 L. Ed. 307; Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658; U. S. v. Nelson (D. C. 1886) 29 Fed. 202, 208; Same v. Davis (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 468;

In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468, 469; U. S. v. Hance (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 528, affirmed (1911) 191 Fed. 573, 112 C. C. A. 683, certiorari denied (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 840, 225 U. S. 710, 56 L. Ed. 1268.

§ 5956. (R. S. § 3233.) Trade or business to be registered.

Every person engaged in any trade or business on which a special tax is imposed by law shall register with the collector of the district his name or style, place of residence, trade or business, and the place where such trade or business is to be carried on. In case of a firm or company, the names of the several persons constituting the same, and their places of residence, shall be so registered.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 113. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5955, ante.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Glab (1877) 99 U. S. 225, 226, 25 L. Ed. 273; Plumley v. Massachusetts (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 154, 155 U. S. 461, 39 L. Ed. 223; North Dakota ex rel. Flaherty v. Hanson (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 179, 180, 215 U. S. 515, 54 L. Ed. 307; Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658; U. S. v. Davis (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 468.

§ 5957. (R. S. § 3234.) Persons in partnership at same place liable for only one tax.

Any number of persons doing business in copartnership at any one place shall be required to pay but one special tax.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 115.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5955, ante.

Construction with section 5964.—Under this section and section 5964, post, providing that on the death of one who has paid the special tax his legal representatives may continue the business in the same place, and in the same manner, without payment of an additional tax, and also that the licensee may, on removal from the place mentioned in the license, continue the business at the place to which he removed without paying an additional tax, it was held that a member of a firm who has acquired all the interests of the other members in the firm assets, and succeeded to the business, may carry it on under a license issued to the firm, at a place other than the old place of business of the firm. U. S. v. Davis (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 468.

Cited without definite application, Plumley v. Massachusetts (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 154, 155 U. S. 461, 39 L. Ed. 223; Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658; U. S. v. Elgin Churning Co. (C. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 878; In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468, 469.

§ 5958. (R. S. § 3235.) Payment of one special tax not to cover several places of business.

The payment of the special tax imposed shall not exempt from an additional special tax the person carrying on a trade or business in any other place than that stated in the collector's register; but nothing herein contained shall require a special tax for the storage of goods, wares, or merchandise in other places than the place of business, nor, except as hereinafter provided, for the sale by manufacturers or producers of their own goods, wares, and merchandise, at the place of production or manufacture, and at their principal office or place of business, provided no goods, wares, or merchandise shall be kept except as samples at said office or place of business.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 113.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5955, ante.

Cited without definite application, Plumley v. Massachusetts (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 154, 155 U. S. 461, 39 L. Ed. 223; Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658; U. S. v. Elgin Churning Co. (C. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 878; Same v. Davis (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 468; In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468, 469.

§ 5959. (R. S. § 3236.) When more than one pursuit is carried on in same place by same person at same time.

Whenever more than one of the pursuits or occupations hereinafter described are carried on in the same place by the same person at the same time, except as hereinafter provided, the tax shall be paid for each according to the rates severally prescribed.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 114.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5955, ante.

Pursuits or occupations referred to.—This section refers only to pursuits or occupations which cannot be carried on in the same place by the persons at the same time consistently with other requirements of the law. Ludloff v. U. S. 1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 475, 481, 108 U. S. 176, 27 L. Ed. 693.

Sale of cigars and tobacco.—There is nothing in the provision of this section which authorizes a manufacturer of cigars to sell, at the place of manufacture, from and out of boxes, though he has paid a special tax as a dealer in tobacco; nothing therein or in the provisions of R. S. § 3236, and section 3244, subds. 8, 10, and sections 3387, 3388, 3390, 3392, post, sections 5971, 6197, 6198, 6200, and 6202, authorizes such sale; but such sales being without the proper stamp and in the boxes of the merchant, constitute a removal of cigars from the place where they were manufactured, without the stamp or tax under R. S. §§ 3392, 3397, 3400, post, sections 6202, 6207, 6210. Ludloff v. U. S. (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 475, 481, 108 U. S. 176, 27 L. Ed. 693.

It was held that a cigar manufacturer cannot sell cigars at retail at the place of manufacture, notwithstanding he has paid the special tax required of retail dealers, citing this section and R. S. §§ 3387, 3397, sections 6197 and 6207, post. Crisp v. Proud (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 3,392.

Upon consideration of this section and of R. S. §§ 3244, 3362, 3363, 3387, 3390, and 3392, post, §§ 5971, 6169, 6170, 6197, 6200, 6202, it was held that the manufacture of cigars and tobacco and the sale of cigars and manufactured tobacco at retail cannot be lawfully carried on at the same time in the same place; that the manufacturer of these articles is not authorized to sell from broken packages under a retail dealer's license, at the place of manufacture. (1878) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 89.

Cited without definite application, Plumley v. Massachusetts (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 154, 155 U. S. 461, 39 L. Ed. 223; Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658; U. S. v. Elgin Churning Co. (C. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 878; Same v. Davis (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 468; In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468, 469.

(R. S. § 3237. Superseded.)

This section made all special taxes due on the first Monday of May in each year, or on commencing any business on which a tax was imposed, and in the former case the tax should be reckoned for one year, and in the latter case it should be reckoned proportionately from the 1st of the month in which the liability to a special tax commenced to the 1st day of May following. It was superseded by Act Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 53, post, § 5960.

§ 5960. (Act Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 53.) When special tax to be due, how reckoned; returns.

That all special taxes shall become due on the first day of July, eighteen hundred and ninety-one, and on the first day of July in each year thereafter, or on commencing any trade or business on which such tax is imposed. In the former case the tax shall be reckoned for one year; and in the latter case it shall be reckoned proportionately, from the first day of the month in which the liability to a special tax commenced to the first day of July following. * * And it shall be the duty of special tax payers to render their returns to the deputy collector at such times within the calendar month in which the special tax liability commenced as shall enable him to receive such returns, duly signed and verified, not later than the last day of the month, except in cases of sickness or absence, as provided for in section three thousand one hundred and seventy-six of the Revised Statutes. (26 Stat. 624.)

This section was part of the McKinley Tariff Act, cited above.

The first part of this section was similar to the language of R. S. § 3237, except as to the time that special taxes become due. The last sentence of the section was new legislation. The portion of the section omitted here provided for the payment of the special taxes from May 1 to July 1, 1891, and was temporary merely.

The special taxes imposed on manufacturers of and dealers in oleomargarine by Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, were due and payable according to the provisions of R. S. § 3237, by section 3 of said act, as amended by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 2, post, § 5977.

The special taxes imposed on manufacturers of and dealers in filled cheese by Act June 6, 1896, c. 337, become due on July 1st in each year or on commencing business, by section 3 of said act, post, § 5979.

R. S. § 3176, mentioned in this section, is set forth ante, § 5899.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5955, ante.

Payment in advance.—The tax must be paid in advance. U. S. v. Clare (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 55, 56.

The special tax required from wholesale dealers in malt liquors, etc., must be paid in advance. U. S. v. Clure (Pa. 1880) 14 Phila. 543.

Cited without definite application, Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658; U. S. v. Elgin Churning Co. (C. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 878; Same v. Davis (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 468; Same v. Fifty-Nine Demijohns Aguadiente and Four Barrels of Cigarettes (D. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 401, 402; In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468, 469.

§ 5961. (R. S. § 3238, as amended, Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, § 1.) Stamps for special taxes.

All special taxes imposed by law, including the tax on stills or worms, shall be paid by stamps denoting the tax, and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue is required to procure appropriate stamps for the payment of such taxes; and the provisions of sections thirty-three hundred and twelve and thirty-four hundred and forty-six, and all other provisions of law relating to the preparation and issue of stamps for distilled spirits, fermented liquors, tobacco, and cigars, shall, so far as applicable, extend to and include such stamps for special taxes; and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall have authority to make all needful regulations relative thereto.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, §§ 26, 101, 15 Stat. 137, 165. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 3, 17 Stat. 402. Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, § 1, 18 Stat. 319.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out, after the words "thirty-three hundred and," the word "thirteen," and inserting in place thereof the word "twelve," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, § 1, cited above.

R. S. §§ 3312, 3446, mentioned in this section, are set forth post, §§ 6094, 6343.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5955, ante.

Validity of instruction issued by commissioner of internal revenue.—An instruction issued by the commissioner of internal revenue, directing collectors and their deputies to refuse to produce, in criminal prosecutions of liquor dealers in the state courts, the returns made to the collectors, or the lists showing payments of federal liquor taxes, or to give information derived from official sources as to the fact of such payments, is valid, and in accordance with the federal laws. R. S. §§ 251, 321, ante, §§ 384, 492, this section, and sections 3240, 3244, post, sections 5963, 5971. In re Weeks (D. C. 1897) 82 Fed. 729.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Kaufman (1877) 96 U. S. 567, 568, 24 L. Ed. 792; Plumley v. Massachusetts (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 154, 155 U. S. 461, 39 L. Ed. 223; Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658; U. S. v. Davis (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 468; In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468, 469.

§ 5962. (R. S. § 3239, as amended, Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1.) Special-tax stamp to be exhibited in place of business.

Every person engaged in any business, avocation, or employment, who is thereby made liable to a special tax, except tobacco peddlers, shall place and keep conspicuously in his establishment or place of business all stamps denoting the payment of said special tax; and any person who shall, through negligence, fail to so place and keep said stamps shall be liable to a penalty equal to the special tax for which his business rendered him liable, and the costs of prosecution; but in no case shall said penalty be less than ten dollars. And where the failure to comply with the foregoing provision of law shall be through willful neglect or refusal, then the penalty shall be double the amount above prescribed: Provided, That nothing in this section shall in any way affect the liability of any person for exercising or carrying on any trade, business, or profession, or doing any act for the exercising, carrying on, or doing of which a special tax is imposed by law, without the payment thereof.

Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 3, 17 Stat. 402. Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, § 1, 19 Stat. 248.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out, after the words "so place and keep said," the word "stamp," and inserting in place thereof the word "stamps," as set forth here, by Act Feb. 27, 1877, c. 69, cited above.

Special taxes on tobacco peddlers were abolished by Act Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 26, post, § 6177. And see, in this connection, § 6187, post.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under §§ 5955 and 5961, ante.

Payment of tax before pursuing business.—The tax must be paid before the business may be lawfully pursued. U. S. v. Clare (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 55, 56.

Copy of records as evidence.—A certified copy of the records in the office of the collector of internal revenue, relating to the issuance of liquor license, and kept pursuant to this section and section 5963, post, held admissible in evidence under Comp. Laws 1913, N. D. § 7917 et seq. and section 10128. State v. Kilmer (N. D. 1915) 153 N. W. 1089.

Collectors producing records and testifying.—Regulations of the treasury department prohibiting a collector of internal revenue from producing records in his office, or copies thereof, in a state court, are within the power conferred upon the secretary of the treasury by R. S. § 161, ante, § 235; and therefore an attempt of a state court to punish him for obeying such regulations will be in violation of his rights under the constitution and laws of the United States, against which he will be protected by the federal courts. Boske v. Comingore (1900) 20 Sup. Ct. 701, 706, 177 U. S. 459, 44 L. Ed. 840, affirming judgment In re Comingore (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 552.

Instructions from the commissioner of internal revenue not to produce for use in evidence in state courts the application or return made by one desiring to pay the taxes imposed by the federal statutes on persons engaged in the retail liquor business do not justify an internal revenue collector in refusing to produce such papers in evidence in obedience to a subpœna duces tecum issued by a state court. In re Hirsch (C. C. 1896) 74 Fed. 928, affirmed (1898) 87 Fed. 1005, 31 C. C. A. 350.

Under R. S. §§ 161, 251, 321, ante, §§ 235, 384, 492, a regulation promulgated by the commissioner of internal revenue, under the direction of the secretary of the treasury, prohibiting collectors from producing the records of their offices, or furnishing copies thereof, for the use of third persons, or for use as evidence in behalf of litigants in any court, is a valid and binding regulation; and neither a state nor a state court has authority to require a collector to violate it, or to punish him for contempt because of his refusal to produce such records, or to testify to their contents. In re Comingore (D. C. 1899) 96 Fed. 552, judgment affirmed Boske v. Comingore (1900) 20 Sup. Ct. 701, 177 U. S. 459, 44 L. Ed. 846.

A collector, or deputy collector, cannot be compelled to disclose, as a witness before the court or grand jury, names of persons in whose place of business special tax stamps are posted, or the places in which the same are posted; his information on the subject being obtained in an official capacity, and primarily from his office records, copies of which he is forbidden to furnish by lawful regulation of the department under section 384, ante, as against public policy. In re Lamberton (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 446.

Cited without definite application. Plumley v. Massachusetts (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 154, 155 U. S. 461, 39 L. Ed. 223; North Dakota ex rel. Flaherty v. Hanson (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 179, 180, 215 U. S. 515, 54 L. Ed. 307; Benbrook v. U. S. (1911) 186 Fed. 153, 108 C. C. A. 265; Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658; U. S. v. Davis (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 468; In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468, 469; Stegall v. Thurman (D. C. 1910) 175 Fed. 813.

§ 5963. (R. S. § 3240, as amended, Act June 21, 1906, c. 3509.) List of special tax-payers to be exhibited in collector's office; certified copy.

Each collector of internal revenue shall, under regulations of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, place and keep conspicuously in his office, for public inspection, an alphabetical list of the names of all persons who shall have paid special taxes within his district, and shall state thereon the time, place, and business for which such special taxes have been paid, and upon application of any prosecuting officer of any State, county, or municipality he shall furnish a certified copy thereof, as a public record, for which a fee of one dollar for each one hundred words or fraction thereof in the copy or copies so requested may be charged.

Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 4, 17 Stat. 403. Act June 21, 1906, c. 3509, 34 Stat. 387.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by the addition, at the end of the section as originally enacted, of the provision beginning with the words "and upon application of any prosecuting officer," etc., to the end of the section as set forth here, by Act June 21, 1906, c. 3509, cited above.

This section is made applicable to the special taxes levied on producers, importers, etc., of opium or coca leaves or their compounds, by Act Dec. 17, 1914, c. 1, § 1, post, § 6287g.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under §§ 5955 and 5961, ante.

Statute as contemplating known places of business.—Refusal to furnish special revenue stamps within territory which has ceased to be Indian country may be based upon the fact that there are no counties nor legally organized towns whose limits are capable of definition, and therefore such license cannot specifically define and describe known places of doing business as contemplated by this section and section 5964, post. The Internal Revenue Department may decline to furnish special revenue stamps for the sale of intoxicating liquors within that territory until Congress shall have time to consider the subject. (1889) 19 Op. Atty. Gen. 306.

Requisites of record.—The record of special taxes which the collectors are required to make under this section should be in such form as to show clearly in each instance the business for which the special taxes are paid. The words should be written in full, not abbreviated. (1911) 28 Op. Atty. Gen. 561.

Judicial notice of record.—The courts will take judicial notice that the abbreviations "R. L. D.," as used in the records of the collector of internal revenue, mean "retail liquor dealer." Billingsley v. State (1910) 113 P. 241, 4 Okl. Cr. 597.

Copy of records as evidence.—See, also, notes under the preceding section.

A collector, or deputy collector, cannot be compelled to disclose, as a witness before the court or grand jury, names of persons in whose place of business special tax stamps are posted, or the places in which the same are posted; his information on the subject being obtained in an official capacity, and primarily from his office records, copies of which he is forbidden to furnish by lawful regulation of the department under section 384, ante, as against public policy. In re Lamberton (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 446.

That the certification is subsequent to commencement of the prosecution for violation of the liquor law is no ground of objection to a certified copy of the record of the internal revenue collector's office, as proof of payment by defendant of a retail liquor dealer's stamp tax for the place and period covered by the indictment, made by Acts Sp. Sess. Ala. 1909, p. 84, § 22½, prima facie evidence of sale of the prohibited liquor. Baker v. State (Ala. App. 1912) 59 South. 690.

In a prosecution for maintaining an unlawful drinking place, certified copy of the stub of internal revenue license and tax stamp, issued to accused, held admissible. Strange v. State (Ala. App. 1912) 59 South. 691.

A certified copy from the internal revenue records, showing that accused has paid a tax as a retail liquor dealer, is admissible, whether or not it is evidence of an application for a tax receipt required by the federal statute, so as to shift the burden of proof on defendant, under Acts Ga. 1911, p. 180. Daniel v. State (1912) 76 S. E. 162, 11 Ga. App. 799, following Huckabee v. State (1910) 67 S. E. 837, 7 Ga. App. 677, and Cassidy v. State (1911) 72 S. E. 939, 10 Ga. App. 123.

Entries in the record of the office of the United States Collector of Internal Revenue may be proved by examined copies made by a person not having the official custody of the records. State v. Schaeffer (1906) 86 P. 477, 74 Kan. 390.

A certified copy of the collector's book, showing that accused had paid the United States revenue tax for carrying on the business of a retail dealer in liquors was admissible, under Ky. St. § 1636 (Russell's St. § 95), declaring that all records, exemplifications of office books, kept in any office of the United States not appertaining to a court, shall be evidence, if attested by the keeper under the seal of his office, in a prosecution for having in possession liquor for purposes of sale in a local option district, in violation of Ky. St. § 2557b, subsec. 2 (Russell's St. § 3638). Anderson v. Commonwealth (1911) 136 S. W. 134, 143 Ky. 87, denying rehearing (1911) 134 S. W. 477, 142 Ky. 446.

In a local option case prosecuted under Ky. St. § 2557b (Russell's St. §§ 3637-3640), making the sale or possession of intoxicating liquors in local option territory unlawful, a copy of an internal revenue license taken from the books of the collector, when certified by the collector, is competent evidence without further authentication. King v. Commonwealth (1911) 136 S. W. 147, 143 Ky. 125.

A copy of the internal revenue collector's "record of special taxpayers," consisting of various columns with appropriate headings, which, taken with the entries thereunder, inform one that a person of defendant's name and address paid a special tax of $20, as a retail dealer in malt liquors, will not be excluded on the ground that it is too abbreviated and indefinite to convey information to the jury. State v. Howard (1898) 40 A. 65, 91 Me. 396.

An examined copy of the part of the internal revenue collector's record of "special taxpayers" of the state in which defendant is prosecuted, relating to defendant and his business, is admissible in evidence, though a copy of the entire list of such taxpayers is inadmissible. Id.

Under Comp. Laws Mich. § 10,169, and in view of this section, a certified copy of an internal revenue license is admissible on a prosecution of a sale of intoxicants. People v. Lalonde (Mich. 1912) 137 N. W. 74.

Revisal 1905, N. C., §§ 1616, 1617, provide that copies of all official papers and records of any public office of the state or the United States shall be received in evidence when certified to be true copies. Held, in view of this section and the rules of the Department of Internal Revenue prohibiting its officers from giving oral testimony of the contents of public records in its offices, that the admission in evidence, on a trial for an unlawful sale of spirituous liquor, of a certified copy of the list of persons paying special taxes, was not an invasion of defendant's constitutional right to confront the witnesses against him. State v. Dowdy (1907) 58 S. E. 1002, 145 N. C. 432; Same v. Toler (1907) 58 S. E. 1005, 145 N. C. 440.

This section makes the matter certified to an official record of his office, for the purpose of the certificate, and, as such, the copy, properly certified, is made competent evidence by Revisal 1905, N. C., §§ 1616, 1617, providing that copies of all official papers and records of any public office of the state or the United States shall be received in evidence when certified to be true copies. Id.

A certified copy of the records in the office of the collector of internal revenue, relating to the issuance of liquor license, and kept pursuant to this section and section 5962, ante, held admissible in evidence under Comp. Laws N. D. 1913, § 7917 et seq. and section 10128. State v. Kilmer (N. D. 1915) 153 N. W. 1089.

Admission of a certified copy of the record in the United States internal revenue department showing payment by accused of a special tax as retail dealer in intoxicating liquors, payment of which is made prima facie evidence of violation of local option laws, is not in contravention of section 10 of the bill of rights providing that accused shall be entitled to meet witnesses face to face; the constitutional inhibition applying to parol evidence only. Folliard v. State (1911) 32 Ohio Cir. Ct. R. 481.

Under Gen. Code Ohio, § 11500, making copies of certain records in the executive departments competent evidence, a certified copy of the internal revenue department showing payment of a retail dealer's liquor tax is the best evidence of the fact of payment provided for in Gen. Code, § 6100, especially since under the rules of the internal revenue department the original records are not permitted to be taken from the office of the collector. Id.

A certified copy of the record of the collector of internal revenue made by the deputy collector under the seal of the collector, showing payment of special tax required of liquor dealers by the laws of the United States, is admissible in a prosecution for violating the liquor law. Billingsley v. State (1910) 113 P. 241, 4 Okl. Cr. 597.

An officer in making a certified copy of a record in his possession should not testify in his certificate to the meaning of abbreviations in such record; but, where he does, and the abbreviations are such as the court will take judicial notice of their meaning, and the meaning of the terms given by the officer is in accordance with the court's judicial notice, the fact that the explanation is contained in the certificate is no ground for exclusion. Id.

A certified copy of the record of the United States internal revenue collector, showing the payment of a special revenue tax as a retail liquor dealer, is admissible. Hargrove v. State (1913) 129 P. 74, 8 Okl. Cr. 487, following Billingsley v. Same (1910) 113 P. 241, 4 Okl. Cr. 597.

Where, in a prosecution for violating the local option law, a witness testifies that he examined the books of the United States internal revenue collector for the district, and made a correct copy of an entry therein with reference to accused, showing, among other things, under the caption "Business," the initials "R. L. D. 4," it is proper to receive the copy in evidence, notwithstanding an objection that it is not certified, that there is no proof whether the original book was correctly copied, and that the initials are unintelligible; the witness stating that he knows, from having engaged in the business once himself, that the initials mean "retail liquor dealer." Terry v. State (Tex. Cr. App. 1904) 79 S. W. 319.

The issuance to accused of an internal revenue license may be proved by an examined copy of the proper record. Broadnax v. State (Tex. Cr. App. 1912) 150 S. W. 1168.

Bill of Rights, Va. Const. art. 1, § 8 (Code 1904, p. ccix), guaranteeing the right of accused to be confronted with the accusers and witnesses, does not exclude proper documentary evidence, and Acts Va. 1901–02, p. 601, c. 516, and Act March 15, 1906 (Acts 1906, p. 411, c. 236), relating to the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, are not unconstitutional on the ground that proof that accused held a United States license as a retail liquor dealer shall be presumptive proof of his guilt, which proof may be furnished by a copy of the record in the office of a United States internal revenue collector. Runde v. Commonwealth (Va. 1908) 61 S. E. 792.

Sworn letter from collector as evidence.—Notwithstanding Gen. & Loc. Acts Sp. Sess. Ala. 1909, pp. 84, 89, §§ 22½, 29, and Code Ala. 1907, § 7383, a sworn letter from the United States internal revenue collector to the sheriff reciting that accused had secured a United States internal revenue liquor license is inadmissible against accused. Rose v. State (Ala. App. 1912) 58 South. 680.

Cited without definite application, North Dakota ex rel. Flaherty v. Hanson (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 179, 180, 215 U. S. 515. 54 L. Ed. 307; In re Hirsch (C. C. 1896) 74 Fed. 928, 932, 933 (affirmed [1898] 87 Fed. 1005, 31 C. C. A. 350); Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658; U. S. v. Elgin Churning Co. (C. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 878.

§ 5964. (R. S. § 3241.) Death or removal after paying tax; business carried on without additional tax.

When any person who has paid the special tax for any trade or business dies, his wife or child, or executors or administrators or other legal representatives, may occupy the house or premises, and in like manner carry on, for the residue of the term for which the tax is paid, the same trade or business as the deceased before carried on, in the same house and upon the same premises, without the payment of any additional tax. And when any person removes from the house or premises for which any trade or business was taxed to any other place, he may carry on the trade or business specified in the collector's register at the place to which he removes, without the payment of any additional tax: Provided, That all cases of death, change, or removal, as aforesaid, with the name of the successor to any person deceased, or of the person making such change or removal, shall be registered with the collector, under regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 114.

Special taxes do not accrue on sales of liquors received by an executor, administrator, or other fiduciary, when such liquors are sold in one parcel only, or at a public auction in parcels of not less than twenty wine gallons, by amendment of R. S. § 3244, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 4, incorporated into that section as set forth post, § 5971.

Notes of Decisions

See, also, notes under §§ 5955, 5957, and 5963, ante.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Glab (1878) 99 U. S. 225, 228, 25 L. Ed. 273; Plumley v. Massachusetts (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 154, 155 U. S. 461, 39 L. Ed. 223; U. S. v. Elgin Churning Co. (C. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 878; Same v. Davis (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 468; In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468, 469.

§ 5965. (R. S. § 3242.) Carrying on business without payment of special tax; penalties.

Every person who carries on the business of a rectifier, wholesale liquor-dealer, retail liquor-dealer, or manufacturer of stills, without having paid the special tax as required by law, shall, for every such offense, be fined not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and be imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years. And all distilled spirits or wines, and all apparatus fit or intended to be used for the distillation or rectification of spirits or the compounding of liquors, owned by such person, wherever found, and all distilled spirits or wines and personal property found in the rectifying establishment, or in any building, room, yard, or inclosure connected therewith, and used with or constituting a part of the premises, shall be forfeited to the United States. [Every person who carries on the business of a manufacturer of tobacco, snuff, or cigars, dealer in manufactured tobacco, dealer in leaf-tobacco, or retail dealer in leaf-tobacco, without having paid a special tax therefor, as provided by law, shall, besides being liable to the payment of the tax, be fined not more than five hundred dollars or be imprisoned not more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court.] And every person who carries on the business of a brewer or wholesale or retail dealer in malt liquors, without having paid a special tax therefor, as required by law, shall, besides being liable to the payment of the tax, be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than five hundred dollars.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 9, 14 Stat. 473. Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 44, 15 Stat. 142. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, §§ 12, 32, 17 Stat. 240, 255.

More comprehensive provisions relating to the subject of this section were made by Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 16, post, § 5966.

The words of this section, "Every person who carries on the business of a manufacturer of tobacco," etc., inclosed in brackets, were superseded by the abolition of special taxes upon manufacturers of tobacco, snuff, and cigars and upon dealers and retail dealers in leaf tobacco and dealers in manufactured tobacco by Act Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 26, post, § 6177. This tax was restored by Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 4, but the latter act was repealed by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 408, set forth post, § 5980j; but special penal provisions are contained in both of these acts.

Notes of Decisions

1. Constitutionality of former penal statute.
2. Violation of statute in general.
3. Intent.
4. Payment of tax.
5. Wholesale dealer.
6. Who are retailers in general.
7. Officer in charge of post exchange.
8. "Locker club."
9. Club janitor.
10. Partnership for the sale of liquor.
11. Common carriers.
12. Physician prescribing liquor.
13. Sale or use by druggist or apothecary.
14. Prosecution and punishment.
15. Forfeiture.

See notes under section 6021, post.

1. Constitutionality of former penal statute.—Act June 30, 1864 (13 Stat. 223), providing that no persons should be engaged in certain occupations without obtaining licenses from the United States, and imposing penalties for not taking out and paying them, is not unconstitutional. License Tax Cases (1866) 72 U. S. (5 Wall.) 462, 18 L. Ed. 497.

2. Violation of statute in general.—One who has paid a special tax entitling him to retail liquor at his regular place of business does not violate this section by delivering liquor to a customer at the latter's residence, though the sale be completed there. Benbrook v. U. S. (1911) 186 Fed. 153, 108 C. C. A. 265.

A retail liquor dealer who has his internal revenue tax paid stamp duly posted in his place of business is not subject to prosecution for carrying on business without paying the special tax therefor because of the shipment of a quantity of liquor from his stock on an order received by mail by an express company C. O. D. to the purchaser at another place. In such case the sale is completed, and the property passes when the goods are delivered to the carrier; the collection and transmission of the price being merely an incident of the express business. Jones v. U. S. (1909) 170 Fed. 1, 95 C. C. A. 213, 24 L. R. A. (N. S.) 143.

To convict of retailing liquor without payment of the special tax, defendant must be shown to have held himself out publicly as following the business, as one of his means of livelihood. U. S. v. Logan (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 15,624.

A person is not relieved from the consequences of a violation of law by the neglect of a revenue officer to perform a duty required of him by law. U. S. v. Devlin (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 14,953.

A sale of whisky in small quantities on several occasions may be sufficient to warrant a conviction for selling by retail without a license, though defendant did not keep a shop or store, or did not carry on the business for a livelihood. U. S. v. Harbison (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,300.

Selling an occasional drink from a bottle, not in a barroom, with no intention of defrauding the revenues, is not carrying on the business of a retail liquor dealer, within this section. U. S. v. Jackson (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 15,455.

If a party having a license to retail liquors sells or offers to sell after his license expires, it is a violation of the law for which he is liable. When the period stated in a license issued to exercise a business for a specific time expires, the license expires, no matter what stock he may still have on hand. U. S. v. Angell (C. C. 1881) 11 Fed. 34.

A grocer who, without obtaining a license for selling liquor, purchases a barrel of whisky for a customer, and enters on his books a charge against the customer for the price at which it was actually obtained from the liquor dealer, does not transgress the spirit of the revenue laws. U. S. v. Howell (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 718, 719.

The fact that one is a grocer, rather than in any other line of business, should not raise a presumption of wrongdoing against him, in case of his purchasing a barrel of whisky to oblige a customer, and his entering on his books a charge therefor. Id.

A failure to take out a license as required by the internal revenue law is an indictable offense. U. S. v. Chapel (D. C. 1863) Fed. Cas. No. 14,781.

A sale of intoxicating liquors without a license is a violation of Act June 30, 1864, § 73, although the person intended to give the proceeds to a charitable use. U. S. v. Dodge (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 14,974.

Any person who carries on the business of a brewer, or wholesale or retail dealer in malt liquors, must first pay a special tax therefor. U. S. v. Clare (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 55, 57.

Where a person who has secured a license to retail liquors at one town receives an order for a certain amount of designated liquors from a person residing at another town or place, and he fills such order by taking or sending the liquor desired to such party, and collects the price therefor at the time of delivery, he is guilty of a violation of the revenue laws, prohibiting the sale of liquor without license. U. S. v. Cline (D. C. 1885) 26 Fed. 515.

Supplying a friend as a matter of accommodation merely, from liquor on hand for private use, is not carrying on the business, although money is received for it. U. S. v. Rennecke (D. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 847.

If persons dealing in liquor have paid the special retail tax at the distillery, they may receive and fill orders, and send the liquor to persons residing at a distance, but cannot make sales in small quantities from barrels to persons along the road, who pay them on receipt of the liquor. U. S. v. Durham (D. C. 1888) 33 Fed. 834.

One may be convicted of carrying on the business of a retail liquor dealer without payment of the required tax, in violation of this section, though the article is put up in bottles and labeled as an appetizer, and he did not know its nature when he bought it, it in fact containing a large per cent. of alcohol, and nothing of a curative character, and the circumstances of purchasers from him being such as to show that his customers are buying it merely as an intoxicant. U. S. v. Bray (D. C. 1902) 113 Fed. 1008.

Where a seller accepts an order for goods at its place of business, by delivering the goods to a carrier to be transported and delivered to the purchaser, at another place, on payment of the price, in accordance with the terms of the order, the sale is made and the title passes at the time and place of such delivery to the carrier; and the seller is not liable to indictment for carrying on the business of retail liquor dealer in the county where the purchaser lives without having paid the special tax required by the revenue act. U. S. v. Orene Parker Co. (D. C. 1902) 121 Fed. 596.

While the cardinal purpose of the provisions of the internal revenue law imposing special taxes on dealers in liquors is the raising of revenue for the United States, the federal courts may properly, in the exercise of the powers vested in them, rigidly enforce the penalties provided for a violation of such law, for the secondary purpose of aiding in the enforcement of the laws of a state regulating or prohibiting the sale of liquors. In re Charge to Grand Jury (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 736.

S., who owned a distillery and a quantity of whisky, sold the same to R., taking in payment a promissory note, which he had discounted at a bank. S. had no license to sell whisky, nor were the barrels, when sold, marked as required by the United States laws. The bank brought suit against R. on the note, who contended that it was void because of these violations of the law by S. Held, that it was not void, as the United States statutes did not prohibit the sale of whisky, but only imposed a penalty for their violation. Rahter v. Lancaster Bank (1880) 92 Pa. 393, distinguishing Holt v. Green (1873) 73 Pa. (23 P. F. Smith) 198, 13 Am. Dec. 737.

3. Intent.—An intent to defraud forms no part of the offense of the omission to pay the special tax imposed by Act June 20, 1868, § 44. U. S. v. Rectifying Establishment (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,131.

Intent to defraud the government need not be proved to sustain a conviction for selling intoxicating liquor without a license. U. S. v. Barnhardt (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 14,526.

To constitute the offense of carrying on the business of a retail liquor dealer without having paid the special tax, the accused must have procured the liquor sold with intent to retail it, or, having it on hand, formed the intent to retail it, and carried out that intent by one or more acts. It is not enough that, having the liquor on hand for his own use, he let others have it as a matter of kindness or neighborly feeling, although he took money from them for the accommodation. U. S. v. Bonham (D. C. 1887) 31 Fed. 808.

4. Payment of tax.—Where a person has complied with section 24, Act July 13, 1866, as to giving notice, bond, etc., he is not liable to indictment for carrying on the business within the 10 days after the receipt by the collector of the assessment list without having paid the special tax. U. S. v. Shea (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 16,269.

Under the revenue law (14 Stat. 112) a party is liable for carrying on a trade, business, or profession without payment of a special tax imposed by law, not only for the amount of the tax, but also to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or a fine not exceeding $500, or both, and the payment of the tax will not relieve from punishment by fine and imprisonment. U. S. v. Angell (C. C. 1881) 11 Fed. 34.

The payment of the tax prescribed in Act July 20, 1868, § 59, is not a condition precedent to commencing business, and the penalty is not incurred until after assessment, demand, and refusal. U. S. v. Thirty-Five Barrels of High Wines (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 16,460.

Distilled spirits and wines cannot lawfully be sold in any quantity, or for any purpose, by any person who has not paid the special tax required by law. U. S. v. Stafford (D. C. 1883) 20 Fed. 720.

5. Wholesale dealer.—See, also, notes under § 5971, post.

A sale of a single lot of spirits which have been taken for a debt, in quantities of not less than five gallons at one time, does not make the person a wholesale liquor dealer. U. S. v. Feigelstock (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 15,084.

6. Who are retailers in general.—See, also, notes under § 5971, post.

One is engaged in the business of a retail liquor dealer, within the meaning of this section, if he has liquor on hand to be sold to any one who applies for it. U. S. v. Rennecke (D. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 847.

Defendant was engaged in procuring and furnishing to any one who would patronize him liquors in quantities less than five gallons. He testified that he received orders, requiring the person ordering to pay 10 cents down for a bottle of beer, and, when the beer was delivered, an extra 15 cents as remuneration for going to a neighboring state to procure it. But the evidence failed to show that defendant bought specific quantities of liquor to correspond with special orders, but showed that he bought beer by the case, and paid for it, and sold it to any one desiring it. Held, that defendant was a "dealer," within this section, requiring persons carrying on the business of retail liquor dealer to pay a special tax. U. S. v. Allen (D. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 736.

Where a licensed retail liquor dealer in one town receives orders from residents of other towns and fills the same by sending or taking the liquor to such persons, and collects the price at the time of delivery, he violates the revenue laws prohibiting sale without license. U. S. v. Shriver (D. C. 1885) 23 Fed. 134; U. S. v. Cline (D. C. 1885) 26 Fed. 515.

7. Officer in charge of post exchange.—An officer in charge of a post exchange is not a retail dealer in liquors. Dugan v. U. S. (1899) 34 Ct. Cl. 458.

8. "Locker club."—Under the statute law of Georgia which makes it unlawful for any person to sell or barter either directly or indirectly, or to keep or furnish at any public place, or to keep on hand at any place of business, intoxicating liquors, a municipal corporation cannot lawfully license or charter a so-called "locker club" which, in fact, sells or furnishes liquors to its members, and such illegal charter is no protection to its members, each one of whom, who by his money, name, or patronage contributes to its support and maintenance, is a retail liquor dealer within the internal revenue law of the United States, subject to special tax as such and to the penalty imposed for carrying on the business without payment of such tax where a single tax stamp only is taken out in the name of the club. In re Charge to Grand Jury (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 736.

9. Club janitor.—Sales of liquors belonging to a social club, by the janitor thereof to the individual members, the money being deposited in the treasury of the club, makes the janitor a retail liquor dealer, and liable to indictment, where the special tax is not paid. U. S. v. Woods (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 16,759.

10. Partnership for the sale of liquor.—Where a license is issued to a firm, the continuing partner, on the dissolution of the firm, may carry on the business until the end of the year. U. S. v. Glab (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,213; Same v. Daniels (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 14,916.

An association whose initiation fees were used to buy a stock of liquors which were dealt out to members only on payment by the drink, at cost price, is a partnership for the sale of liquors at retail, and each member thereof is guilty of violating the statute, where the special tax is not paid. U. S. v. Roliger (D. C. 1882) Fed. Cas. No. 16,190a.

11. Common carriers.—A licensed liquor seller received orders from customers living in a place where he was not authorized to sell. He filled such orders by separating the liquor from the stock in his place of business, and delivering the packages, marked with the customers' names, to a private carrier, to be carried to the customers, and to be delivered at their place of residence, on payment of the price. Held, that the sales were completed in the seller's place of business, where he was licensed to sell, and hence the carrier was not liable for retailing liquor without a license. U. S. v. Lackey (D. C. 1903) 120 Fed. 577.

On an indictment charging a common carrier with carrying on the business of a retail liquor dealer without a license by receiving liquors from a liquor company without the state, carrying them to the consignee C. O. D., receiving the money, and carrying it to the liquor company, it was immaterial that no bills or invoices accompanied the shipment. U. S. v. Adams Exp. Co. (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 240.

The "commerce clause" of the constitution was not involved; the only question being whether defendant sold the liquors. Id.

The title to the liquors passed to the consignee on delivery thereof by the liquor company to the carrier, and therefore the carrier acted as the vendee in carrying and agent of the vendor in collecting, and was not guilty of a sale. Id.

12. Physician prescribing liquor.—A practicing physician, living in the country, who, when he prescribes whisky for his patients, furnishes the liquor himself, charging the usual price, without having paid the special tax, is guilty of a violation of this section, requiring payment of a special tax. U. S. v. Smith (D. C. 1891) 45 Fed. 115.

13. Sale on use by druggist or apothecary.—See, also, § 5975, and note thereunder.

One who sells a medicinal preparation, knowing that it contains an intoxicating quality, to be used as a beverage, or with the knowledge that it was purchased to be used as a beverage, is a retail liquor dealer, within the meaning of the United States statutes providing for the punishment of persons carrying on the business of retail liquor dealers without payment of the special tax. U. S. v. Starnes (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 665.

Where the dealer, after having sold such preparation to a customer, who, in his presence, or with his knowledge, used it as a beverage, continues to sell it to the customer, the jury may find him guilty of such offense. Id.

So, also, if the preparation is but a disguised form of spirituous liquors, intended for use as a beverage. Id.

An apothecary, who bona fide uses spirituous liquors in the preparation of a medicine, to be used as such, and not as a beverage, does not violate this section by not paying the special tax required of a retail liquor dealer. U. S. v. Calhoun (D. C. 1889) 39 Fed. 604.

A druggist can use alcohol in the making of a toilet preparation, such as cologne, and he can sell it as cologne for toilet purposes; but if he puts into alcohol something else, for the mere purpose of modifying its character, as by placing a little bergamot, or some of the ingredients of cologne, into alcohol, and sells it for mechanical purposes, he is liable. U. S. v. White (D. C. 1890) 42 Fed. 138.

A druggist is liable criminally for unauthorized sales of liquor by his clerk without the payment of the special tax if the sales made by the clerk were made within the scope of the authority delegated to him by the druggist, or the authority which may fairly be presumed from the instructions of the druggist, or the course of dealing by him, with reference to such matters. Id.

14. Prosecution and punishment.—Act March 1, 1889, establishing a United States court in the Indian Territory, and giving exclusive jurisdiction of offenses "not punishable by death or by imprisonment at hard labor," did not give it jurisdiction of the offense of retailing liquors without a license, made punishable, under R. S. § 2139, and this section, by imprisonment for "not less than six months nor more than two years," since, under R. S. § 5541, post, § 10527, a punishment which a statute prescribes shall be by imprisonment merely, may, if it be for more than one year, be executed in a state prison, the rules of which prescribe hard labor. In re Mills (1889) 10 Sup. Ct. 762, 763, 135 U. S. 263, 34 L. Ed. 107.

An indictment charging that on a given day at a specified place within the jurisdiction of the court the defendant "did willfully, unlawfully, and feloniously carry on the business of a retail liquor dealer without having paid the special tax therefor, as required by law," sufficiently charges the statutory offense. Hodge v. U. S. (1911) 191 Fed. 165, 111 C. C. A. 643.

An allegation that intoxicating liquor has been unlawfully sold imports payment of the price therefor. Booth v. U. S. (1912) 197 Fed. 283, 116 C. C. A. 645.

In a prosecution of a foreign corporation for engaging as a wholesale dealer in malt liquors in North Dakota without paying the special tax, evidence that the acts of defendant's agents which were the basis of the prosecution were without defendant's knowledge or consent and in direct violation of the agent's instruction was admissible, and, if found true, constituted a defense. John Gund Brewing Co. v. U. S. (1913) 204 Fed. 17, 122 C. C. A. 331, opinion modified (1913) 206 Fed. 386, 124 C. C. A. 268.

An indictment charging that defendant engaged in the wholesale liquor business in North Dakota without paying the tax imposed was not demurrable because it did not describe the tax as a "special tax." Id.

An indictment charging in a single count a conspiracy to evade payment of a special tax on wholesale liquor dealers imposed by this section, and also to violate Penal Code, § 239, post, § 10409, prohibiting C. O. D. shipments, held duplicitous. Id.

On trial for carrying on business of wholesale liquor dealer in 1910 without paying tax, evidence of sales of liquor in 1909 held erroneously admitted. Day v. U. S. (1915) 220 Fed. 818, 136 C. C. A. 406.

Defendant, indicted for carrying on business without a license, and without having paid the special tax, and for failure to keep books required by law, has the burden of showing that he had a license, paid the special tax, and kept the books. U. S. v. Devlin (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cases Nos. 14,953, 14,955.

An indictment which showed the business to have been begun under the old law, and continued under a new law, which substituted special taxes for licenses, should negative the payment of the license fee, or of the additional fee, as well as of the special tax. U. S. v. Fox (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,156.

A receipt for a license tax is not retroactive, and cannot be admitted in evidence on a charge for selling spirituous liquors by retail during a period of time prior to its date. U. S. v. Angell (C. C. 1881) 11 Fed. 34.

The offenses of violating the internal revenue laws, under this section and section 5971, post, are punishable by a fine of not less than $1,000, nor more than $5,000, and imprisonment not less than six months, nor more than two years. Sections 10523, 10527, and 10528, post, provide that a sentence of the United States courts to imprisonment for more than one year, or to imprisonment at hard labor, may be ordered to be executed in a state prison or penitentiary. Held, that the punishment which may be imposed for these offenses is "infamous," and the prosecution must be by indictment or presentment of the grand jury, and not by information. U. S. v. Johannesen (C. C. 1888) 35 Fed. 411.

An indictment which charges defendant with carrying on the business of a wholesale liquor dealer without the payment of a special tax therefor, at a certain place, continuously between certain dates, is sufficient without stating the means or circumstances by which he became such dealer. U. S. v. Page (D. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 15,988.

Evidence of a single act of selling may be sufficient for conviction. The absence of a bar and other appliances should not weigh much in defense. U. S. v. Rennecke (D. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 847.

The presumption that a wife who, on her husband's premises, and in his presence, and with his knowledge, makes illegal sales at retail of intoxicating liquors, does so as his agent, does not attach to such sales so made by a woman living with a man as his concubine; and, to authorize the conviction of the man for such sales by the concubine, the jury must be satisfied, from the evidence, that she was acting as the agent of the accused when she made the sales. U. S. v. Bonham (D. C. 1887) 31 Fed. 808.

15. Forfeiture.—Under Acts June 30, 1864, § 48, July 13, 1866, § 9, March 31, 1868, § 5, July 20, 1868, §§ 19, 22, 44, and June 6, 1872, § 12, no proof is required of the actual complicity of the owner of the property to be forfeited in the fraud or other thing which causes the forfeiture. U. S. v. Distillery at Spring Valley (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 14,963.

An information of forfeiture for violation of Act July 20, 1868, § 44, need not aver that the special tax was assessed, or that payment was demanded and refused, or neglected to be paid, but only that the business was carried on without payment of such tax. U. S. v. Rectifying Establishment (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,131.

Wine and distilled spirits owned by a wholesale liquor dealer are not forfeited by reason of his not having paid the special tax, under Act July 20, 1868, § 44. Two Thousand Bottles of Liquors (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 14,302.

The state and federal courts have concurrent jurisdiction of actions to enforce forfeitures arising under Act 1813, c. 38, requiring "retailers of wines, spirituous liquors, and foreign merchandise, to take out license," etc. Hartley v. U. S. (1816) 4 Tenn. (3 Hayw.) 45.

Cited without definite application, North Dakota ex rel. Flaherty v. Hanson (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 179, 180, 215 U. S. 515, 54 L. Ed. 307; Powers v. U. S. (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 281, 282, 223 U. S. 303, 56 L. Ed. 448; Quinn v. Dimond (1896) 72 Fed. 993, 994, 19 C. C. A. 336; Foster v. U. S. (1911) 188 Fed. 305, 110 C. C. A. 283 (denied [1911] 192 Fed. 1022, 112 C. C. A. 665); U. S. v. Strickland (C. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 469; Same v. Schneider (C. C. 1888) 35 Fed. 107, 108; In re Commissioners of Circuit Court (C. C. 1894) 65 Fed. 314, 316; In re Christian (C. C. 1897) 82 Fed. 199, 202; U. S. v. Davis (D. C. 1889) 37 Fed. 468; Same v. Morfew (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 491, 492.

§ 5966. (Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 16.) Carrying on business without payment of special tax punishable; forfeitures.

Any person who shall carry on the business of a rectifier, wholesale liquor-dealer, retail liquor-dealer, wholesale dealer in malt-liquors, retail dealer in malt-liquors, or manufacturer of stills, without having paid the special tax as required by law, or who shall carry on the business of a distiller without having given bond as required by law, or who shall engage in or carry on the business of a distiller with intent to defraud the United States of the tax on the spirits distilled by him, or any part thereof, shall, for every such offense be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars and imprisoned not less than thirty days nor more than two years. And all distilled spirits or wines, and all stills or other apparatus, fit or intending to be used for the distillation or rectification of spirits, or for the compounding of liquors, owned by such person, wherever found, and all distilled spirits or wines and personal property found in the distillery or rectifying establishment, or in any building, room, yard, inclosures connected therewith, and used with or constituting a part of the premises; and all the right, title, and interest of such person in the lot or tract of land on which such distillery is situated, and all right, title, and interest therein of every person who knowingly has suffered or permitted the business of a distiller to be there carried on, or has connived at the same; and all personal property owned by or in possession of any person who has permitted or suffered any building, yard, or enclosure, or any part thereof, to be used for purposes of ingress or egress to or from such distillery which shall be found in any such building, yard, or enclosure, and all the right, title, and interest, of every person in any premises used for ingress or egress to or from such distillery, who has knowingly suffered or permitted such premises to be used for such ingress or egress, shall be forfeited to the United States. (18 Stat. 310.)

This section was part of an act to amend existing customs and internal-revenue laws, cited above.

Similar provisions for the punishment of carrying on the business of distiller without giving bond were made by R. S. § 3281, post, § 6021.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under the preceding section.

See, also, § 602, post, and notes thereunder.

Construction in general.—Statutes to prevent fraud on the revenue such as the above are enacted for the public good, and, though they impose penalties, they are not to be construed strictly in favor of the defendant like penal laws generally, but are to be so construed as to carry out the intention of the legislature. U. S. v. Stowell (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 244, 246, 133 U. S. 1, 33 L. Ed. 555.

Property subject to forfeiture.—The interest of a prior mortgagee of the land, without whose knowledge the act was committed, held not subject to forfeiture. U. S. v. Stowell (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 244, 133 U. S. 1, 33 L. Ed. 555.

The forfeiture takes effect on the commission of the act, and the condemnation relates back, and avoids all intermediate sales, even to purchasers in good faith. Id.

Personalty sold by distiller, before commission of offense, but left in his possession and found on premises at the time of seizure, is subject to forfeiture, though owner had no knowledge of unlawful acts. Id.

Boilers, engines, pumps, vats, and tanks, which were in lawful use as part of a brewery before an illicit still was set up on the premises, constitute a part of the land while annexed thereto, and are covered by a mortgage thereon, and hence are not subject to forfeiture for a violation of the revenue laws by the mortgagor. Id.

Indictment for offense.—An indictment under this section is sufficient which charges, in the language of the statute, that defendant, at a time and place stated, did willfully, unlawfully, and feloniously "carry on the business of a retail liquor dealer, without having paid the special tax therefor as required by law," without more particularly defining the offense. Ledbetter v. U. S. (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 774, 775, 170 U. S. 606, 42 L. Ed. 1162.

Evidence of offense.—In a prosecution for carrying on the business of a malt retail liquor dealer, without having paid the special tax therefor, evidence that at the time of the alleged offense defendant was also the keeper of a bawdy-house was inadmissible. Taliaferro v. U. S. (1914) 213 Fed. 25, 129 C. C. A. 611.

Trial by jury.—Defendants were indicted for unlawfully carrying on the business of a rectifier without having paid the special tax required by law, in violation of this section, for which defendants might have been fined $500 and imprisoned for two years. The second count was for the unlawful rectifying in violation of section 6099, post, for which a punishment of not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000 fine, and imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than two years, might be imposed. The third count was for omitting to put up signs as required by section 6019, post, the punishment for which was a fine of $500. And the fourth count was for violating section 6107, post, prohibiting the changing of stamps and shifting of distilled spirits, under which the maximum punishment is a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for a year. Held, that such offenses involving imprisonment were crimes for which accused could only be punished after a conviction by a jury under Const. art. 3, § 2, providing that the trial of all crimes except in the case of impeachment shall be by jury. Low v. U. S. (1909) 169 Fed. 86, 94 C. C. A. 1.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Dominici (1897) 78 Fed. 334, 336, 24 C. C. A. 116; Same v. Stubblefield (C. C. 1889) 40 Fed. 454; Same v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411, 414.

§ 5967. (Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 4.) Carrying on business of manufacturer of, or dealer in, oleomargarine without payment of special tax; penalty.

Every person who carries on the business of a manufacturer of oleomargarine without having paid the special tax therefor, as required by law, shall, besides being liable to the payment of the tax, be fined not less than one thousand and not more than five thousand dollars; and every person who carries on the business of a wholesale dealer in oleomargarine without having paid the special tax therefor, as required by law, shall, besides being liable to the payment of the tax, be fined not less than five hundred nor more than two thousand dollars; and every person who carries on the business of a retail dealer in oleomargarine without having paid the special tax therefor, as required by law, shall, besides being liable to the payment of the tax, be fined not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars for each and every offense. (24 Stat. 209.)

This section was part of the Oleomargarine Act of Aug. 2, 1886, cited above. The special tax mentioned in this section was imposed by section 3 of this act, post, § 5977. Other provisions of this act are set forth post, §§ 6215–6232.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 5977, post.

Carrying on business of retailer without paying tax.—A person having a license to carry on the business of a retail dealer in oleomargarine in the town of W., which does not specify the street or number at which the business is to be carried on, and who has paid the tax, and who peddles oleomargarine at retail, from a wagon, through the streets, is not carrying on the business of a retail dealer, without having paid the special tax. U. S. v. Dubé (D. C. 1889) 40 Fed. 576.

Prosecution under statute—How instituted.—Though a violation of this section is not in terms made a misdemeanor, violations are in the nature of criminal offenses, and may be prosecuted by information or indictment. U. S. v. Joyce (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 455.

—— Indictment.—An indictment in the language of this section, charging that the defendant at a certain time and place did unlawfully "carry on the business of a manufacturer of oleomargarine without having first then and there paid the special tax therefor as required by law," states all the elements of the offense and is sufficiently specific in the absence of a motion for a bill of particulars showing whether the defendant is charged with being a manufacturer in the ordinary sense under the original act or as defined in the amendment of May 9, 1902. c. 784, § 2, 32 Stat. 194, post, § 5977. Morris v. U. S. (1908) 161 Fed. 672, 88 C. C. A. 532, judgment reversed on rehearing (1909) 168 Fed. 682, 94 C. C. A. 168, writ of certiorari denied (1909) 29 Sup. Ct. 704, 214 U. S. 527, 53 L. Ed. 1068.

The offenses created by Oleomargarine Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, 24 Stat. 209, were unknown to the common law, and are all merely statutory misdemeanors and of the same class regardless of the various penalties prescribed, and charges under its different provisions may be joined in the same indictment under R. S. § 1024, section 1690, ante. Id.

An indictment for carrying on the business of a manufacturer of oleomargarine without having paid the special tax therefor, based on the amendment to section 5977, post, which provides that any person that sells, vends, or furnishes oleomargarine for the use and consumption of others "except to his own family table without compensation," and who shall color the same to resemble butter, shall be deemed a manufacturer, need not negative such exception which is in fact mere surplusage, since it does not exempt from the operation of the statute anything which would otherwise be within it. Id.

An indictment, charging the defendant generally in the language of the statute with carrying on the business of a manufacturer of oleomargarine without having paid the special tax required by section 5977, post, is sufficient, and need not set out a statement of the facts which constitute the defendant a manufacturer. Hart v. U. S. (1910) 183 Fed. 368, 105 C. C. A. 588, writ of certiorari denied (1911) 31 Sup. Ct. 714, 220 U. S. 609, 55 L. Ed. 608.

Section 5977, post, provides that manufacturers of oleomargarine shall pay $600, and that any person manufacturing oleomargarine for sale shall be deemed a manufacturer, and any person that sells, vends, or furnishes oleomargarine for use and consumption of others than his own family table without compensation, who shall add to such oleomargarine any artificial coloration that causes it to look like butter, shall also be a manufacturer of oleomargarine, subject to the provisions of the act. Held, that the statute created two classes of manufacturers, one manufacturing oleomargarine itself for sale, and the other those selling oleomargarine for consumption after adding artificial coloration; and hence an indictment against an alleged member of the second class for selling oleomargarine on which the tax was not paid was not defective for failure to contain the averment, applicable only to original manufacture, that the oleomargarine on which the tax was not paid was intended for sale. Enders v. U. S. (1911) 187 Fed. 754, 109 C. C. A. 502, writ of certiorari denied (1911) 32 Sup. Ct. 523, 223 U. S. 719, 56 L. Ed. 629.

Where a person is indicted for the unlawful sale of oleomargarine, in violation of the statute, it is sufficient to charge in the words of the act that the defendant was carrying on the business of a wholesale or of a retail dealer, as the case may be, without having paid the tax required by law. U. S. v. Joyce (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 457.

An indictment in the words of the statute charging defendant with knowingly, willfully, and unlawfully carrying on the business of a wholesale dealer in oleomargarine without having paid the special tax therefor as required by law is not objectionable for failure to negative that defendant was a manufacturer selling his own product in stamped packages at the place of manufacture, within the exception of the statute. Id.

An indictment in the words of the statute charging defendant with knowingly, willfully, and unlawfully carrying on the business of wholesale dealer in oleomargarine without having paid the special tax therefor as required by law is not objectionable for indefiniteness. Id.

—— Evidence.—In a prosecution for carrying on a business without having paid the internal revenue tax required by statute it is sufficient for the government to prove that defendant carried on the business at a certain time and place, and payment of the tax is a matter of defense, which if relied on must be proved by defendant. Morris v. U. S. (1908) 161 Fed. 672, 88 C. C. A. 532, judgment reversed on rehearing (1909) 168 Fed. 682, 94 C. C. A. 168, writ of certiorari denied (1909) 29 Sup. Ct. 704, 214 U. S. 527, 53 L. Ed. 1068.

Evidence held sufficient to warrant a conviction of defendants as manufacturers of oleomargarine for mixing coloring matter therewith to represent butter without having paid the federal tax and obtained the required license, and for selling, vending, or furnishing oleomargarine for use and consumption of others. Vermont v. U. S. (1909) 174 Fed. 792, 98 C. C. A. 500, writ of certiorari denied (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 695, 217 U. S. 605, 54 L. Ed. 899.

Rulings on evidence in a prosecution under this section held not erroneous. Wesoky v. U. S. (1910) 175 Fed. 333, 99 C. C. A. 121.

Other statutes applying to collection of tax.—Section 5900, ante, and section 6364, post, relative to inspection and search warrants to prevent frauds against the internal revenue laws, apply to the collection of special taxes imposed by the Oleomargarine Act. Kercheval v. Allen (1915) 220 Fed. 262, 135 C. C. A. 1.

Cited without definite application, McCray v. U. S. (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 769, 771, 195 U. S. 27, 49 L. Ed. 78, 1 Ann. Cas. 561; Schick v. Same (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 826, 829, 195 U. S. 65, 49 L. Ed. 99, 1 Ann. Cas. 585; Schafer v. Craft (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 907, affirmed (1907) 153 Fed. 175, 82 C. C. A. 349.

§ 5968. (Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 4.) Carrying on business of manufacturer of, or dealer in, process or renovated butter or adulterated butter without payment of tax; penalty.

Every person who carries on the business of a manufacturer of process or renovated butter or adulterated butter without having paid the special tax therefor, as required by law, shall, besides being liable to the payment of the tax, be fined not less than one thousand and not more than five thousand dollars; and every person who carries on the business of a dealer in adulterated butter without having paid the special tax therefor, as required by law, shall, besides being liable to the payment of the tax, be fined not less than fifty nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. (32 Stat. 194.)

These were provisions of section 4 of the Oleomargarine Act of May 9, 1902, cited above. The tax mentioned in this section was imposed by other provisions of this act, set forth post, § 5978. Provisions relating to the tax on process butter, etc., are set forth post, §§ 6237, 6238.

Cited without definite application, Coopersville Co-operative Creamery Co. v. Lemon (1908) 163 Fed. 145, 89 C. C. A. 595.

§ 5969. (Act June 6, 1896, c. 337, § 4.) Carrying on business of manufacturer of, or dealer in, filled cheese without payment of tax.

Every person, firm, or corporation who carries on the business of a manufacturer of filled cheese without having paid the special tax therefor, as required by law, shall, besides being liable to the payment of the tax, be fined not less than four hundred dollars and not more than three thousand dollars; and every person, firm, or corporation who carries on the business of a wholesale dealer in filled cheese without having paid the special tax therefor, as required by law, shall, besides being liable to the payment of the tax, be fined not less than two hundred and fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars; and every person, firm, or corporation who carries on the business of a retail dealer in filled cheese without having paid the special tax therefor, as required by law, shall, besides being liable for the payment of the tax, be fined not less than forty nor more than five hundred dollars for each and every offense. (29 Stat. 254.)

This section was part of the Filled Cheese Act, cited above. The special tax mentioned in this section was imposed by section 3 of this act, post, § 5979. Other sections of this act, relating to the tax on filled cheese, are set forth post, §§ 6248–6250.

§ 5970. (R. S. § 3243.) Payment of special tax not to authorize violation of State laws, nor prohibit State taxation.

The payment of any tax imposed by the internal-revenue laws for carrying on any trade or business shall not be held to exempt any person from any penalty or punishment provided by the laws of any State for carrying on the same within such State, or in any manner to authorize the commencement or continuance of such trade or business contrary to the laws of such State or in places prohibited by municipal law; nor shall the payment of any such tax be held to prohibit any State from placing a duty or tax on the same trade or business, for State or other purposes.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 122. Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 59, 15 Stat. 151.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under §§ 5955 and 5965, ante, and § 5977, post.

Violation of state laws in general.—A license granted by the United States, under the internal revenue act of July 1, 1862, to carry on the business of a liquor dealer in a particular state named, does not, although it has been granted in consideration of a fee paid, give the licensee power to carry on the business in violation of the state laws. McGuire v. Commonwealth (1865) 70 U. S. (3 Wall.) 387, 18 L. Ed. 226; In re Jordan (D. C. 1892) 49 Fed.

238; Pierson v. State (1882) 39 Ark. 219; Block v. Town of Jacksonville (1865) 36 Ill. 301; State v. McCleary (1864) 17 Iowa, 44; Same v. Carney (1866) 20 Iowa, 82; Same v. Stulz, Id. 488; Same v. Baughman, Id. 497; Stommel v. Timbrel (1892) 84 Iowa, 336, 51 N. W. 159; Commonwealth v. Thorniley (1863) 88 Mass. (6 Allen) 445; Same v. O'Donnell (1864) 90 Mass. (8 Allen) 548; Same v. Holbrook (1865) 92 Mass. (10 Allen) 200; Same v. Keenan (1865) 93 Mass. (11 Allen) 262; Same v. McNamee (1873) 113 Mass. 12; Same v. Sanborn (1874) 116 Mass. 61; State v. Funk (1880) 27 Minn. 318, 7 N. W. 359; State v. Downs (1895) 116 N. C. 1064, 21 S. E. 689.

Recognition by act of congress of the power and right of the states to tax, control, or regulate any business carried on within its limits is entirely consistent with an intention on the part of congress to tax such business for national purposes. License Tax Cases (1886) 5 Wall. 462, 474, 18 L. Ed. 497.

The United States is not concerned in the enforcement of local regulations governing the selling of liquor; it being the policy of the government to collect its special taxes rather than to inflict punishment for technical violations of the revenue laws. Willingham v. U. S. (C. C. A. 1913) 208 Fed. 137.

While the cardinal purpose of the provisions of the internal revenue law imposing special taxes on dealers in liquors is the raising of revenue for the United States, the federal courts may properly, in the exercise of the powers vested in them, rigidly enforce the penalties provided for a violation of such law, for the secondary purpose of aiding in the enforcement of the laws of a state regulating or prohibiting the sale of liquors. In re Charge to Grand Jury (D. C. 1908) 162 Fed. 736.

A federal license, being merely a form of taxation, does not authorize the holder to sell liquor without a license required by state laws; the statute authorizing the issuance of federal licenses so providing. Combast v. Commonwealth (Ky. 1910) 125 S. W. 1092.

Local option and prohibition.—The payment of the tax imposed upon retail liquor dealers by the statutes of the United States in no wise entitles the dealer to protection against a state prohibitory law. In re Jordan (D. C. 1892) 49 Fed. 238.

Laws N. D. 1887, c. 70, known as the "Local Option Act," regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors, is a valid exercise of police power, not contrary to the revenue laws of the United States granting licenses for such sales. Territory v. O'Connor (Dak. 1888) 37 N. W. 765; Minnehaha County v. Champion, Id. 766.

The local option law (Laws Dak. 1887–88, c. 70), does not conflict with the federal revenue laws granting a license to liquor sellers, as the revenue laws are merely to provide revenue, and the license granted thereunder is a receipt for the tax, and not a permit to sell liquors. Territory v. O'Connor (1889) 5 Dak. 397, 41 N. W. 746, 3 L. R. A. 355.

The prohibitory liquor law is not in conflict with Act July 16, 1862, entitled "An act to provide internal revenue." State v. Carney (1866) 20 Iowa, 82; Same v. Baughman, Id. 497.

Payment of the United States excise tax and a license from the United States internal revenue collector will not justify the sale of intoxicating liquors of domestic manufacture in this state in violation of its laws. State v. Delano (1867) 54 Me. 501.

Sales by licensed distiller.—That one is a licensed distiller under the laws of the United States, and the whisky sold of his own manufacture, affords no immunity for a sale contrary to state law. State v. Hazell (1888) 100 N. C. 471, 6 S. E. 404.

Doing business as wholesaler.—A license by the United States under the Internal Revenue Act of July 1, 1862, to carry on the business of wholesale liquor dealer does not give the licensee power to carry on the business in violation of the state laws, though the license was granted in consideration of a fee paid. McGuire v. Massachusetts (1865) 3 Wall. 387, 395, 18 L. Ed. 226.

Sale of liquor on board steamer.—This section provides that the holders of special tax stamps for the sale of liquor shall not be exempt from any penalty imposed by state laws for carrying on the sale in the state. Held, that such holder on board a steamer within the state limits was subject to the state license law. Commonwealth v. Sheckels (1883) 78 Va. 36.

Sale of liquors in Alaska.—The payment of the special tax levied by the general government on the business of retailing liquors is no defense to a prosecution for illegally selling liquors in Alaska. Endleman v. U. S. (1898) 86 Fed. 456, 30 C. C. A. 186.

The payment by defendant of the tax imposed by the internal revenue laws of the United States, and the issuance to him of an internal revenue license thereunder, is no defense to an indictment under Act May 17, 1884, § 14 (23 Stat. 24), prohibiting the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating liquors in Alaska. U. S. v. Ash (D. C. 1896) 75 Fed. 651.

Recovery on contracts violating state laws.—Where a state statute prohibits the sale, the seller cannot recover the contract price, where the contract is made and completed within the state, though he holds a license to sell under the internal revenue act. Daniels v. McCabe (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 3,567.

Manufacture and sale of cigarettes.—In view of this section, section 6202, taxing cigarettes, and prescribing the form of putting them up, and of stamping them, is not a recognition of them as a legitimate article of commerce. Austin v. State (1898) 48 S. W. 305, 101 Tenn. 563, 50 L. R. A. 478, 70 Am. St. Rep. 703, affirmed (1900) 21 Sup. Ct. 132, 179 U. S. 343, 45 L. Ed. 224.

Manufacture and sale of oleomargarine.—Section 5977, post, imposes special taxes on manufactures of oleomargarine, and wholesale and retail dealers therein. Section 5977, post, also, declares that sections 5955–5959, 5961–5964, ante, and this section are, so far as applicable, made to extend to and include such taxes, and the persons on whom they are imposed. Held, in view of this section, that post, § 5977, was not intended to interfere with the exercise by the states of any authority they can rightfully exercise over the sale of oleomargarine therein. Plumley v. Massachusetts (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 154, 155 U. S. 461, 39 L. Ed. 223.

Cited without definite application, Schollenberger v. Pennsylvania (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 757, 171 U. S. 1, 43 L. Ed. 49; Austin v. Tennessee (1900) 21 Sup. Ct. 132, 139, 179 U. S. 343, 45 L. Ed. 224; North Dakota ex rel. Flaherty v. Hanson (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 179, 180, 215 U. S. 515, 54 L. Ed. 307; Tucker v. Grier (1908) 160 Fed. 611, 87 C. C. A. 513; In re Hirsch (C. C. 1896) 74 Fed. 928, 931 (affirmed [1898] 87 Fed. 1005, 31 C. C. A. 350); Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658; U. S. v. Elgin Churning Co. (C. C. 1910) 183 Fed. 878; In re Comingore (D. C. 1895) 96 Fed. 552, 555, 561 (affirmed [1900] 20 Sup. Ct. 701, 177 U. S. 459, 44 L. Ed. 846); In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468, 469.

§ 5971. (R. S. § 3244, as amended, Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, § 1, and Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, §§ 4, 10.) Special taxes imposed on whom.

Special taxes are imposed as follows:

(1) Brewers.

First. Brewers shall pay one hundred dollars. Every person who manufactures fermented liquors of any name or description for sale, from malt, wholly or in part, or from any substitute therefor, shall be deemed a brewer: Provided, That any person who manufactures less than five hundred barrels a year shall pay the sum of fifty dollars.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 117. Act July 14, 1870, c. 255, § 1, 16 Stat. 256.

The quantity of malt liquors purchased by a brewer from another brewer under the provisions of R. S. § 3349, post, § 6156, was to be included in calculating the liability to brewer's special tax of both the brewer who manufactures and sells and the brewer who purchases by Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 18, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 4, post, § 5973.

Notes of Decisions

See, also, notes under § 5955, ante.

Review in case involving question under statute.—In an action to recover the amount of internal revenue taxes which plaintiff was required to pay as a brewer and for beer stamps, tried by stipulation without a jury, it was stipulated that plaintiff manufactured a beverage from ingredients and in a manner stated, but it was a disputed question, upon which testimony was taken, whether such beverage was a "fermented liquor manufactured from malt, wholly or in part, or from any substitute therefor," within the meaning of section 5971, which rendered plaintiff liable for special tax as a brewer, and which was subject to tax under section 6143. Held, that requests to the court to hold as propositions of law on the facts stipulated that plaintiff was not a brewer, and the beverage was not subject to tax under the statute, conceding the practice of requiring findings upon propositions of law in such cases to be permissible, involved a finding of the disputed question of fact whether the beverage was a fermented liquor, and, as such requests were not based on all the evidence, so as to be treated as a motion for judgment as matter of law on the entire case, the ruling of the court thereon was not reviewable on a writ of error. Davis v. Daugherty (1901) 105 Fed. 769, 45 C. C. A. 39.

(2) Manufacturers of stills; drawback on stills exported.

Second. Manufacturers of stills shall each pay fifty dollars, and twenty dollars for each still or worm for distilling made by him. Any person who manufactures any still or worm to be used in distilling shall be deemed a manufacturer of stills. Upon all stills manufactured for export, and actually exported, there shall be allowed a drawback, where the tax thereon has been paid, under such rules and regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall prescribe.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 59, 15 Stat. 151. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 10, 20 Stat. 342.

This subsection, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by adding at the end of the subsection as originally enacted the provision beginning with the words "Upon all stills manufactured for export," etc., to the end of the subsection, as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 10, cited above.

Manufacturers of wooden stills for their own use were not subject to this special tax, by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 18, post, § 5972.

The special tax on the manufacture of stills was made inapplicable to stills used in distilling alcohol for denaturation, by a provision of the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, N, subsec. 2, post, § 6137.

(3) Rectifiers.

Third. Rectifiers of distilled spirits shall pay two hundred dollars. Every person who rectifies, purifies, or refines distilled spirits or wines by any process other than by original and continuous distillation from mash, wort, or wash, through continuous closed vessels and pipes, until the manufacture thereof is complete, and every wholesale or retail liquor-dealer who has in his possession any still or leach-tub, or who keeps any other apparatus for the purpose of refining in any manner distilled spirits, and every person who, without rectifying, purifying, or refining distilled spirits, shall, by mixing such spirits, wine, or other liquor with any materials, manufacture any spurious, imitation, or compound liquors for sale, under the name of whisky, brandy, gin, rum, wine, spirits, cordials, or wine bitters, or any other name, shall be regarded as a rectifier, and as being engaged in the business of rectifying: Provided, That any person who rectifies, purifies, refines, or manufactures as aforesaid less than five hundred barrels a year, counting forty gallons of proof spirits to the barrel, shall pay one hundred dollars. And provided, That nothing in this section shall be held to prohibit the purifying or refining of spirits in the course of original and continuous distillation through any material which will not remain incorporated with such spirits when the manufacture thereof is complete: And provided further, That no officer shall collect any special tax for rectifying distilled spirits on any premises distant less than six hundred feet in a direct line from any distillery. And every officer who collects any special tax in violation of this proviso shall be liable to a penalty of five thousand dollars for each offense.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, §§ 11, 59, 15 Stat. 130, 150. Act April 10, 1869, c. 18, § 1, 16 Stat. 41, 42. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, §§ 12, 13, 17 Stat. 239, 244. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, 17 Stat. 401–403. Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, 18 Stat. 319. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 4, 20 Stat. 333.

This subsection, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out, in the last proviso, after the words "tax in violation of this," the word "section," and inserting in the place thereof the word "proviso," by Act Feb. 18, 1875, c. 80, cited above. It was further amended by inserting the first proviso, as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 4, last cited above.

These provisions were made inapplicable to the blending of fortified wines by a provision of Act June 7, 1906, c. 3046, § 6, post, § 6122, and by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 402(f), post, § 6114c.

Notes of Decisions

Rectification defined.—Rectification of distilled spirits, in the legal sense, means any process exclusive of original and continuous distillation from mash, wort, or wash through continuous closed vessels and pipes until the manufacture thereof is complete, by which the spirits are separated from the substance with which they are mixed or combined, and a rectifier may take the raw spirit of the distiller, and by repeated processes of distillation separate the spirits from the oils and impurities left in it by the distiller, or he may take the refuse material of the manufacturer of an extract saturated with alcohol, and by distillation separate the spirit from that material. Henry K. Wampole & Co. v. U. S. (1911) 191 Fed. 573, 112 C. C. A. 633, certiorari denied (1912)

32 Sup. Ct. 840, 225 U. S. 710, 56 L. Ed. 1268.

Rectifiers.—Flavoring extracts, composed of from 40 to 50 per cent. alcohol, 3 per cent. flavoring principle, and water, the quantity of alcohol being no greater than is required to hold the flavoring principle in solution, which are not made, nor used, nor capable of being used, as a beverage, but which are chiefly used in flavoring soda water syrups, the quantity of extract used in each glass of the beverage being about 3 or 4 drops, are not "beverages," nor "liquors," within the meaning of the statute, and the manufacturer is not subject to special tax as a rectifier or wholesale or retail dealer in liquors. Allen v. Liquid Carbonic Co. (1909) 170 Fed. 315, 95 C. C. A. 11.

A manufacturer of vanilla or ginger extract by mixing the comminuted vanilla beans or ginger root with alcohol in a percolator, and who afterward recovers a part of the alcohol remaining in the mixture for reuse by distillation, is a "rectifier of distilled spirits" and subject to the special tax. Henry K. Wampole & Co. v. U. S. (1911) 191 Fed. 573, 112 C. C. A. 633, affirming judgments U. S. v. Hance (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 528, and Same v. Smith, Kline & French Co. (D. C. 1911) Id. 532, and writ of certiorari denied Hance v. U. S. (1912) 32 S. Ct. 840, 225 U. S. 710, 56 L. Ed. 1268.

Under the provision declaring that "every person who without rectifying, purifying or refining distilled spirits shall, by mixing such spirits, wine or other liquor with any materials, manufacture any spurious, imitation or compound liquors for sale under the name of whisky, * * * cordials, or wine bitters, or any other name, shall be regarded as a rectifier and as being engaged in the business of rectifying," a retail liquor dealer, who mixes whisky with water and sugar, or water and blackberry juice, and keeps the same in stock for sale, is a rectifier, and subject to special tax as such. Michel v. Nunn (C. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 423.

The statute, in defining rectifiers, includes "every person who, without rectifying, purifying or refining distilled spirits, shall, by mixing such spirits, wine or other liquors with any materials manufacture any spurious imitation or compound liquors for sale under the name of whisky, brandy * * * or any other name." Held, that in view of such statutory recognition of the manufacture of "imitation whisky," etc., and of the process of such manufacture, the regulation by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue which directs that "alcohol, commercial alcohol or high wines which have been manipulated, * * * so as to resemble some particular kind of potable spirits, will be marked with the name of such spirits preceded by the word 'Imitation,' as for example 'Imitation Whisky,' " is a proper and reasonable regulation, having also in view the provisions of Food & Drugs Act June 30, 1906, post, § 8717 et seq., notwithstanding the fact that such compounds may have been previously sold in the trade under the name of the liquors they imitate. Woolner & Co. v. Rennick (C. C. 1908) 170 Fed. 662.

Defendant manufactured a ginger ale paste used for making ginger ale. The paste was manufactured by placing a quantity of ginger in a percolator and adding alcohol. The oleoresin thus obtained from the ginger containing unnecessary alcohol was distilled and the alcohol separated. This alcohol was of a low grade and was charged with ginger essence so as not to be commercially salable and could not be used except in repeating the process of extracting oleoresin from ginger root and in the manufacture of flavors. Held, that defendant in so distilling the alcohol was engaged in the business of rectifying, purifying, and refining distilled spirits within the statute, imposing an internal revenue tax on every person so engaged. U. S. v. S. Twitchell Co. (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 525.

The phrase "through continuous closed vessels and pipes until the manufacture thereof is complete" refers to the exception, to wit, "other than by original and continuous distillation from mash, wort or wash through continuous vessels and pipes until the manufacture is complete," and not to "every person who rectifies, purifies or refines distilled spirits or wines by any process." Id.

(4) Retail liquor dealers.

Fourth. Retail dealers in liquors shall pay twenty-five dollars. Every person who sells, or offers for sale foreign or domestic distilled spirits or wines, in less quantities than five wine gallons at the same time, shall be regarded as a retail dealer in liquors.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, §§ 1, 2, 15 Stat. 125. Act April 10, 1869, c. 18, § 1, 16 Stat. 42.

This paragraph was modified by a more comprehensive definition of retail liquor dealers, so as to include malt liquors in the liquors such dealers sell or offer for sale, by Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 18, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 4, post, § 5973.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5842, ante.

Retail dealers in general.—Defendant, a wholesale liquor dealer in San Francisco, maintained a branch house in Portland, bearing his sign, and where presumably samples of his trade were kept, and where the public were invited to purchase. The manager thereof was a "salesman" who was required to sell judiciously, the right to cancel his contracts being reserved to his principal, who filled all orders, and, without prepaying the freight, delivered the goods to a carrier at San Francisco, consigned to purchasers in various parts of the agent's territory. Held, that the sales were made wholly at San Francisco, notwithstanding the agent may have been authorized to make binding contracts and collected the purchase money, and defendant was not subject, under the statute, to the internal revenue tax, as an Oregon liquor dealer, though his method of transacting business may have been devised purposely to evade such tax. U. S. v. Chevallier (1901) 107 Fed. 434, 46 C. C. A. 402, affirming judgment (C. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 125.

Where defendant purchased rum in his own name, and had the same billed to him in his own name, and dealt it out from time to time as called for, he is a retail dealer in liquor, notwithstanding the money for the purchase of said liquor was advanced to him by others, and he procured and dealt out the liquor without profit to himself. U. S. v. Angell (C. C. 1881) 11 Fed. 34.

A single sale of spirituous liquors makes the seller a retail dealer. U. S. v. Barnhardt (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 14,526.

Where packages contain distilled spirits in a form to be got at by squeezing, suction, or any other process, and the spirits, and not the fruit or other ingredients contained in the packages, are the inducements to their sale, purchase, and use, one selling such packages must pay a special tax as liquor dealer. U. S. v. Stafford (D. C. 1883) 20 Fed. 720.

A party having paid special tax as retail liquor dealer at a particular town, who fills orders received by mail to ship liquors in retail quantities to another town, there to be delivered to the party so ordering upon payment of the price of the liquor, together with the express charges, is liable to the payment of special tax as retail liquor dealer at the place where such delivery is made. U. S. v. Shriver (D. C. 1885) 23 Fed. 134.

When one has procured spirituous liquor with the intent to sell it out again in small quantities to any one who may apply for it or, having it on hand, determines to sell it out to any one who may apply for it, he is a retail liquor dealer, and must pay the special tax. U. S. v. Rennecke (D. C. 1886) 28 Fed. 847, 848.

Distilled spirits or wines.—Flavoring extracts, composed of from 40 to 50 per cent. alcohol, 3 per cent. flavoring principle, and water, the quantity of alcohol being no greater than is required to hold the flavoring principle in solution, which are not made, nor used, nor capable of being used, as a beverage, but which are chiefly used in flavoring soda water syrups, the quantity of extract used in each glass of the beverage being about 3 or 4 drops, are not "beverages," nor "liquors," within the meaning of the statute, and the manufacturer is not subject to special tax as a rectifier or wholesale or retail dealer in liquors. Allen v. Liquid Carbonic Co. (1909) 170 Fed. 315, 95 C. C. A. 11.

Distilled spirits and wines cannot lawfully be sold in any quantity by any person for any purpose, without payment of the special tax. Where packages contain distilled spirits in a form to be got at by suction or any other process, and the spirits, and not the other ingredients contained in the packages, is the inducement to their sale and purchase, one selling such packages must pay a special tax as a liquor dealer. U. S. v. Stafford (D. C. 1883) 20 Fed. 720, 721.

"Lemon Ginger" and "Empire Tonic Bitters" are sold by the bottle as medicinal preparations, and are believed to possess curative properties. They consist of about one-third alcohol, and the residue of distilled water and extracts from herbs, etc., and the quantity of alcohol is not greater than is necessary to extract and retain the virtues from the herbs, and is less than is contained in some ordinary tinctures. Held, that they are medicinal preparations and dealers in them are not liquor dealers, within the meaning of the statute defining a liquor dealer as one who sells "distilled spirits or wines," though they are intoxicating, if used immoderately. U. S. v. Stubblefield (D. C. 1889) 40 Fed. 454.

Alcoholic beverages in which the essential ingredient is distilled spirits, disguised by aromatic or other drugs, which are commonly bought and sold as intoxicating beverages, are not to be classed as patent or proprietary medicines, though named as such, so as to relieve dealers selling the same at retail from the retail liquor dealer's special tax. U. S. v. Wilson (D. C. 1895) 69 Fed. 144.

"Domestic distilled spirits," as used in the law requiring retail liquor dealers to pay a special tax, does not include patent or proprietary medicines manufactured and sold in good faith for curative or health-imparting properties, though they contain a large per cent. of distilled spirits as an essential ingredient, and though men with strong appetites for drink occasionally buy such preparations for the purpose of becoming drunk. Id.

Under this subdivision, and section 5982, post, it was held that, where a druggist, without paying the internal revenue tax imposed on retail liquor dealers, sold a medicinal preparation which was 88 per cent. proof spirits, more than sufficient to preserve the medicinal properties of any herbs, roots, or drugs contained therein, he was a retail liquor dealer within the statute. U. S. v. Morfew (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 491.

Association or club as subject to tax.—See, also, notes under section 5965, ante.

An incorporated social club, which purchases a stock of liquors, and supplies the same to individual members for their consumption in its club rooms on their orders, and receives payment from them therefor, is a retail dealer in liquors. U. S. v. Alexis Club (D. C. 1899) 98 Fed. 725.

State dispensary agents.—State dispensary agents held liable to pay the special taxes. State of South Carolina v. U. S. (1904) 39 Ct. Cl. 257.

Doctors and druggists.—The law does not treat distilled spirits as a drug or medicine, and doctors and druggists are not privileged to sell it as such without first paying the special tax required of dealers in liquor. U. S. v. Stafford (D. C. 1883) 20 Fed. 720.

Dealers in Indian country and Alaska.—The opinion of the Attorney General of May 15, 1889 (19 Op. 306), does not conflict with the collection of the special tax on retail liquor dealers in the Indian country and Alaska under the statute. (1894) 21 Op. Atty. Gen. 25.

Wholesale liquor dealers.

Wholesale liquor-dealers shall pay one hundred dollars. Every person who sells or offers for sale foreign or domestic distilled spirits or wines, in quantities of not less than five wine gallons at the same time, shall be regarded as a wholesale liquor-dealer. But no distiller who has given the required bond, and who sells only distilled spirits of his own production at the place of manufacture, in the original packages to which the tax-stamps are affixed, shall be required to pay the special tax of a wholesale liquor-dealer on account of such sales.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, §§ 1, 2, 15 Stat. 125. Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 59, 15 Stat. 150. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 13, 17 Stat. 244.

This paragraph was modified by a more comprehensive definition of wholesale liquor dealers, so as to include malt liquors in the liquors such dealers sell or offer for sale, by Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 18, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 4, set forth post, § 5973.

The provision authorizing distillers to sell their own production, contained in the last sentence of this paragraph, was repeated, with a proviso requiring such distillers to keep books showing the date when the spirits were sent out, the serial numbers of the packages, and the like, and to make a transcript of such books, in Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 62, post, § 5974.

Notes of Decisions

Wholesale dealers in general.—See notes, ante, as to "Distilled spirits or wines."

See, also, notes under § 5965, ante.

Under this subdivision it was held that, where an indictment charged defendant as a wholesale liquor dealer with sending out two casks of distilled spirits without making the required entries in his record book, required to be kept by section 6100, post, the indictment sufficiently charged that the casks contained each not less than five wine gallons. Williams v. U. S. (1907) 158 Fed. 30, 88 C. C. A. 296, reversing judgment (Okl. 1906) 87 Pac. 647.

Where a wholesale liquor firm, having an office in New York, where it pays the internal revenue tax required of such dealers, accepts orders at such office, and directs the delivery of the goods thereon from a public warehouse in New Orleans, in which they are stored, such sales are made in New York, and not in New Orleans, and do not render the firm subject to a second tax as a dealer at New Orleans. De Bary v. Souer (1900) 101 Fed. 425, 41 C. C. A. 417.

Commission merchants who, at the request of foreign correspondents, occasionally purchase liquors in quantity, and take charge of shipping the same, and either charge the costs and their commissions upon their books to the account of such correspondents, or draw upon them for the full amount of the purchase price with costs and commissions, are "wholesale liquor dealers," and liable, as such, to the special tax. Morrow, District Judge, dissenting. Quinn v. Dimond (1896) 72 Fed. 993, 19 C. C. A. 336.

Agents who sell by sample from their place of business all the goods of a manufacturing company, from whose factory the goods are delivered, are not liable to a special tax as wholesale dealers. Acts June 30, 1864; July 13, 1866. Tucker v. Slack (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 14,226.

A wholesale and retail liquor dealer who pays special tax as such at his place of business cannot be subjected to the payment of a second tax in another district because he there maintains an office in his own name, in charge of an agent who is authorized to, and does, take orders for liquors, where such orders are forwarded to his principal for acceptance, and, if accepted, the liquors are shipped thereon by the principal direct to the purchaser; the agent having no authority to bind his principal by sales, and no liquors in his possession. In such case the sales are made at the place of business of the principal. U. S. v. Chevallier (C. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 125, judgment affirmed (1901) 107 Fed. 434, 46 C. C. A. 402.

Plaintiffs, who were wholesale liquor dealers in New York City, paid the special internal revenue tax there and kept imported wines on storage with McC. & Co., at Portland, from which jobbers in that city and vicinity were supplied. Plaintiffs delivered to McC. & Co. a list of dealers to whom they were authorized to deliver wines from the stock on storage when requested to do so by such dealers, not exceeding a certain number of cases in any one month. The persons or firms on such credit list, when desiring to purchase wines of plaintiff, delivered to McC. & Co. a written order for the number of cases desired, and if the maximum limit to which the purchaser was entitled for the current month had not been exceeded McC. & Co. immediately delivered the goods without consulting plaintiffs, and reported the sale to them at New York, from whence an invoice for the goods at the current price would be shipped to the buyer and the price remitted to plaintiffs in New York. There was no contract that the accredited purchasers should buy any particular quantity per month, or any at all. Held, that sales made under such arrangements were made in Portland, and not in New York, and that plaintiff was therefore subject to the payment of a federal wholesale liquor dealer's tax in Oregon. De Bary v. Dunne (C. C. 1909) 172 Fed. 940.

Meaning of "five gallons."—The words "five gallons," as used in Act April 10, 1869, § 44, defining what constitutes a wholesale dealer refers to "wine" gallons and not to "proof" gallons. In re Wangerien (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 17,141.

Distiller as dealer.—A seller of liquors manufactured by him in his own distillery need not obtain the license required by the act of congress, as he is not a dealer within the act. Rahter v. First Nat. Bank of Lancaster (1880) 92 Pa. 393.

(5) Retail dealers in malt liquors.

Fifth. Retail dealers in malt liquors shall pay twenty dollars. Every person who sells or offers for sale malt liquors in quantities of five gallons or less at one time, but who does not deal in spirituous liquors, shall be regarded as a retail dealer in malt liquors.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 59, 15 Stat. 151. Act April 10, 1869, c. 18, § 1, 16 Stat. 42. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 13, 17 Stat. 244.

This paragraph was modified by a change in the definition of retail dealers in malt liquors by Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 18, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 4, post, § 5973.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 5973, post.

Tax dependent on ownership of liquor.—To render one who "sells or offers for sale" malt liquors subject to special tax as a dealer in malt liquors, his ownership of such liquors is not essential. Western Express Co. v. U. S. (1905) 141 Fed. 28, 72 C. C. A. 516.

Clerk of owner of saloon as amenable for tax.—This statute attaches to one the office of a dealer when he sells or offers for sale malt liquors, and the clerk of the owner of a saloon selling liquor for his employer who has no license is amenable to indictment, or for the revenue tax. Western Express Co. v. U. S. (1905) 141 Fed. 28, 72 C. C. A. 516.

Express company.—The local agents of an express company in a prohibition state took orders from persons desiring beer and forwarded the same to breweries in another state. The breweries delivered the beer to the company for shipment to the agent who sent the order charging the price to the company, and having no knowledge of the local customer. On its receipt the agent stored the beer in the company's warehouse until it was called for, and then delivered it to the customer, collecting the price and the express charges, and accounting to the company for the same. He sometimes also sent orders which had not been requested, and delivered the beer to persons who thereafter applied for it. No receipts were taken from persons to whom beer was delivered, and their names did not appear on the company's books. When beer was not called for it was returned to the breweries, and the company given credit therefor. The company received nothing except the usual charges for transportation. Held, that the company was not merely a carrier nor a commercial broker in the transaction, but was, in effect, a commission merchant, and as such was subject to special tax under the statute as a dealer in malt liquors at each of the agencies where such business was carried on. Western Express Co. v. U. S. (1905) 141 Fed. 28, 72 C. C. A. 516.

Wholesale dealers in malt liquors; sales by creditors, executors, etc., or under process, etc.

Wholesale dealers in malt liquors shall pay fifty dollars. Every person who sells or offers for sale malt liquors in larger quantities than five gallons at one time, but who does not deal in spirituous liquors, shall be regarded as a wholesale dealer in malt liquors: Provided, That no brewer shall be required to pay a special tax as a wholesale dealer by reason of selling in the original stamped packages, whether at the place of manufacture or otherwise, malt liquors manufactured by him. But no special tax shall be held to accrue on a sale of distilled spirits, wines, or malt liquors made by a person who is not otherwise a dealer in liquors, where such spirits, wines, or liquors have been received by the person so selling as security for or in payment of a debt, or as executor, administrator, or other fiduciary, or have been levied on by any officer, under order or process of any court or magistrate, and where such spirits are sold by such person in one parcel only, or at public auction in parcels not less than twenty wine-gallons, nor shall such tax be held to accrue on a sale made by a retiring partner, or the representatives of a deceased partner to the incoming, remaining, or surviving partner or partners of a firm; nor shall the special tax of a wholesale liquor-dealer or wholesale dealer in malt liquors be held to apply to a retail dealer in liquors or a retail dealer in malt liquors, because of such retail dealer selling out his entire stock of liquors in one parcel, or in parcels embracing not less than his entire stock of distilled spirits, of wines, or of malt liquors; and section thirty-three hundred and nineteen of the Revised Statutes shall not be held to prohibit a rectifier or liquor-dealer from purchasing, in quantities greater that twenty wine-gallons, the distilled spirits sold in one parcel as aforesaid.

Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, §§ 13, 17, 17 Stat. 244, 245. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 4, 20 Stat. 333.

This paragraph, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by adding, at the end of the section as originally enacted, the provisions beginning with the words "But no special tax shall be held to accrue," etc., to the end of the paragraph, as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 4, cited above.

The paragraph was modified by a change in the definition of wholesale dealers in malt liquors by Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 18, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 4, post, § 5973.

R. S. § 3319, mentioned in this paragraph, is set forth post, § 6101.

Notes of Decisions

Wholesale dealers in general.—If the quantity of malt liquors sold at one time exceeds five gallons, the vender is a "wholesale dealer," although the same is not contained in one package. U. S. v. Clare (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 55, 57.

The special tax required from wholesale dealers in malt liquors, etc., must be paid in advance. U. S. v. Clure (Pa. 1880) 14 Phila. 543.

Brewers as dealers.—Brewers selling elsewhere than at the place of manufacture are liable to taxation as wholesale dealers. Act July 20, 1868, § 59; Act April 10, 1869. Underhill v. Pleasonton (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 14,337.

Union of retail dealers.—Where retail liquor dealers organize under the style of a "Protection Union," and purchase beer through the "Union," saving two dollars a barrel, they become wholesale dealers, and must take out a license as such. U. S. v. Kallstrom (D. C. 1887) 30 Fed. 184.

Sixth. (Superseded in part, and remainder transferred.)

This subsection imposed a tax of twenty-five dollars a year upon dealers in leaf tobacco, except retail dealers, and defined dealers in leaf tobacco. It was amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 14, 20 Stat. 343, by the enactment of a more comprehensive definition. The tax was reduced to twelve dollars a year by Act March 3, 1883, c. 121, § 2, 22 Stat. 488. The tax was abolished, and such dealers were required to register by the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 26, post, § 6177.

The definition of dealers in leaf tobacco by this subsection is set forth post, § 6176.

The special taxes imposed on dealers in leaf tobacco and on dealers in and manufacturers of tobacco and manufacturers of cigars by the War Revenue Act of June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 4, 30 Stat. 450, and on bankers, brokers, pawnbrokers, customs-house brokers, proprietors of theaters, museums, and concert halls, proprietors of circuses, proprietors of unenumerated exhibitions, and proprietors of bowling alleys and billiard rooms, by section 2 of the same act, were abrogated, by the repeal of those sections by Act April 12, 1902, c. 500, §§ 2, 5, 32 Stat. 96, 97. The tax was again imposed by Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, §§ 3, 4, 38 Stat. 750–753, which was in turn repealed by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 410, post, § 5980*l*, and a new tax levied, the provisions for which is set forth post, §§ 5980b–5980k, 5980m, 6346a.

Dealers in leaf tobacco were made subject to all the provisions of this section, as amended in 1879 and also in 1883, and to the provisions of certain other sections of the Revised Statutes, by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 35, set forth post, § 6175.

Seventh. (Superseded.)

This subsection imposed a tax of $500 a year, with an additional tax of 50 cents for every dollar of the annual sales exceeding $1,000, upon retail dealers in leaf tobacco, and defined such dealers. The tax was reduced to $250 a year, with an additional tax of 30 cents for each dollar of the amount of monthly sales in excess of the rate of $500 a year, by Act March 3, 1883, c. 121, § 2, 22 Stat. 488. The tax was abolished, and such dealers were required to register, by the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 26, set forth post, § 6177. A tax was imposed by Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 4, 38 Stat. 752, but that act was repealed by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 410, post, § 5980*l*.

The definition of retail dealers in leaf tobacco by the Payne-Aldrich Tariff Act of Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, § 35, is set forth post, § 6175.

Eighth. (Superseded in part, and remainder transferred.)

This subsection imposed a tax of $5 a year upon dealers in tobacco, and defined such dealers. The tax was reduced to $2.40 a year by Act March 3, 1883, c. 121, § 2, 22 Stat. 488. The tax was abolished, and such dealers were required to register, by the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 26, set forth post, § 6177.

The special taxes imposed upon dealers in tobacco by the War Revenue Act of June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 4, 30 Stat. 450, were repealed by Act April 12, 1902, c. 500, § 5, 32 Stat. 97.

Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 4, 38 Stat. 752, imposed a tax on dealers in tobacco, but that act is repealed by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 410, post, § 5980*l*.

The definition of dealers in tobacco by this subsection is set forth post, § 6176.

Notes of Decisions

See Jones v. Van Benthuysen (1880) 103 U. S. 87, 26 L. Ed. 477; Ludloff v. U. S. (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 475, 481, 108 U. S. 176, 27 L. Ed. 693; Jones v. Van Benthuysen (1884) 6 Sup. Ct. 128, 115 U. S. 464, 29 L. Ed. 446; Seeberger v. Castro (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 766, 767, 153 U. S. 32, 38 L. Ed. 624; U. S. v. Vinson (D. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 507.

Ninth. (Superseded.)

This subsection imposed a tax of ten dollars a year upon manufacturers of tobacco, and defined such manufacturers. The tax was reduced to six dollars a year by Act March 3, 1883, c. 121, § 2, 22 Stat. 488. The tax was abolished, and such manufacturers were required to register, by Act Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 26, set forth post, § 6177.

Tobacco manufacturers were defined by the Wilson Tariff Act of Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 69, post, § 6162.

The special taxes imposed upon manufacturers of tobacco by the War Revenue Act of June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 4, 30 Stat. 450, were repealed by Act April 12, 1902, c. 500, § 5, 32 Stat. 97. It was revived by Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 4, 38 Stat. 752, which act is repealed and supplanted by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, §§ 408–410, set forth post, §§ 5980j–5980*l*.

Notes of Decisions

See § 5980j, post, and notes thereunder.

Tenth. (Superseded.)

This subsection imposed a tax of ten dollars a year upon manufacturers of cigars, and defined such manufacturers, and required cigar makers, as defined, to register their names and addresses with the collectors. The tax was reduced to six dollars a year by Act March 3, 1883, c. 121, § 2, 22 Stat. 488. The tax was abolished, and such manufacturers were required to register, by the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 26, post, § 6177.

The special taxes imposed upon manufacturers of cigars by the War Revenue Act of June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 4, 30 Stat. 450, were repealed by Act April 12, 1902, c. 500, § 5, 32 Stat. 97. The tax was revived by Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 4, 38 Stat. 752, 753, which act was repealed and supplanted by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, §§ 408–410, 39 Stat., set forth post, §§ 5980j–5980l.

The definition of manufacturers of tobacco by the Wilson Tariff Act of Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 69, is set forth post, § 6162.

Notes of Decisions

See § 5980j, post, and notes thereunder.

Eleventh. (Superseded in part, and remainder transferred.)

This subsection defined and classified peddlers of tobacco, and imposed an annual tax of $50 upon peddlers of the first class, $25 upon peddlers of the second class, $15 upon peddlers of the third class, and $10 upon peddlers of the fourth class. The tax was reduced to $30 upon peddlers of the first class, $15 upon peddlers of the second class, $7.50 upon peddlers of the third class, and $3.60 upon peddlers of the fourth class, by Act March 3, 1883, c. 121, § 2, 22 Stat. 488. The tax was abolished, and such peddlers were required to register, by the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 26, post, § 6177.

The definition of peddlers of tobacco by this section is set forth post, § 6187.

Provisions declaring that nothing in this chapter should exempt retail dealers in liquors, in malt liquors, and in tobacco, upon trains and vessels, from the payment of the special taxes, were made by Res. May 8, 1876, No. 10, post, § 5976.

Special taxes were imposed upon manufacturers of, and wholesale and retail dealers in, oleomargarine, by Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 3, post, § 5977: and upon manufacturers of and dealers in process, etc., butter, by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 4, post, § 5978.

Special taxes were imposed upon manufacturers of, and wholesale and retail dealers in, filled cheese, by Act June 6, 1896, c. 337, § 3, post, § 5979.

Special taxes were imposed upon manufacturers and packers of mixed flour by Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 36, post, § 5980.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SECTION IN GENERAL

In general.—See Ludloff v. U. S. (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 475, 481, 108 U. S. 176, 27 L. Ed. 693; Seeberger v. Castro (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 766, 767, 153 U. S. 32, 38 L. Ed. 624; U. S. v. Vinson (D. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 507.

See notes under §§ 5959 and 5961, ante.

See Ludloff v. U. S. (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 475, 481, 108 U. S. 176, 27 L. Ed. 693.

Construction with other statutes.—The term "cask" is generally understood to be a receptacle for liquids, either larger or smaller than the usual barrel, and, as employed in the statute respecting the manufacture and sale of spirituous liquors, pertaining to wholesale dealers, has a well-recognized import as a vessel containing not less than 20, 10, or 5 gallons wine measure, as provided by this section and sections 6028 and 6104, post. Williams v. U. S. (1907) 158 Fed. 30, 88 C. C. A. 296, reversing judgment (Okl. 1906) 87 Pac. 647.

"Malt liquors" and "spirituous liquors" distinguished.—Provisions of this section seem to plainly distinguish "malt liquors," the product of fermentation, from "spirituous liquors," the result of distillation. Sarlls v. U. S. (1894) 14 Sup. Ct. 720, 721, 152 U. S. 570, 38 L. Ed. 556.

Person carrying on business to pay tax.—Any person who carries on the business of a brewer, or wholesale or retail dealer in malt liquors, must first pay a special tax therefor. U. S. v. Clare (D. C. 1880) 2 Fed. 55, 57.

Prosecution for violation of statute.—See, also, notes under § 5965, ante.

The offenses of violating the internal revenue laws, under section 5965, ante, and this section are punishable by a fine of not less than $1,000, nor more than $5,000, and imprisonment not less than six months, nor more than two years. Sections 10523, 10527, and 10528, post, provide that a sentence of the United States courts to imprisonment for more than one year, or to imprisonment at hard labor, may be ordered to be executed in a state prison or penitentiary. Held, that the punishment which may be imposed for these offenses is "infamous," and the prosecution must be by indictment or presentment of the grand jury, and not by information. U. S. v. Johannesen (C. C. 1888) 35 Fed. 411.

Cited without definite application. U. S. v. Kaufman (1877) 96 U. S. 567, 568, 24 L. Ed. 792; Solomons v. U. S. (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 88, 89, 137 U. S. 342, 34 L. Ed. 667; North Dakota ex rel. Flaherty v. Hanson (1910) 30 Sup.

Ct. 179, 180, 215 U. S. 515, 54 L. Ed. 307; U. S. v. Dominici (1897) 78 Fed. 334, 336, 24 C. C. A. 116; Davis v. Daugherty (1901) 105 Fed. 769, 45 C. C. A. 39; U. S. v. Schneider (C. C. 1888) 35 Fed. 107, 108; Same v. Giller (C. C. 1892) 54 Fed. 656, 658; In re Commissioners of Circuit Court (C. C. 1894) 65 Fed. 314, 316; U. S. v. Cota (D. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 734; Same v. Nelson (D. C. 1886) 29 Fed. 202, 208; In re Lamberton (D. C. 1903) 124 Fed. 446; U. S. v. Three Packages of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 580.

§ 5972. (Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 18.) Manufacturers of wooden stills.

Subsection second of section thirty-two hundred and forty-four shall not apply to distillers in registered distilleries who manufacture for their own use wooden stills, but each of said distillers shall give notice to the collector of the district in which his distillery is located of each still manufactured before the same is used. (21 Stat. 149.)

This section was part of an act to amend the laws in relation to internal revenue, cited above.

R. S. § 3244, subsec. 2, mentioned in this act, imposing special taxes upon manufacturers of stills, is set forth ante, § 5971 (2).

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 5973. (Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 18, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 4.) Retail liquor dealers; wholesale liquor dealers; retail dealers in malt liquors; wholesale dealers in malt liquors.

That retail dealers in liquors shall pay twenty-five dollars. Every person who sells, or offers for sale, foreign or domestic distilled spirits wines, or malt liquors, otherwise than as hereinafter provided, in less quantities than five wine-gallons at the same time, shall be regarded as a retail dealer in liquors. Wholesale liquor-dealers shall each pay one hundred dollars. Every person who sells, or offers for sale, foreign or domestic distilled spirits, wines, or malt liquors, otherwise than as hereinafter provided, in quantities of not less than five wine-gallons at the same time, shall be regarded as a wholesale liquor-dealer. But no distiller who has given the required bond and who sells only distilled spirits of his own production at the place of manufacture in the original packages to which the tax-stamps are affixed, shall be required to pay the special tax of a wholesale liquor-dealer on account of such sales. Retail dealers in malt liquors shall pay twenty dollars. Every person who sells, or offers for sale, malt liquors in less quantities than five gallons at one time, but who does not deal in spirituous liquors, shall be regarded as a retail dealer in malt liquors. Wholesale dealers in malt liquors shall pay fifty dollars. Every person who sells, or offers for sale, malt liquors in quantities of not less than five gallons at one time, but who does not deal in spirituous liquors at wholesale, shall be regarded as a wholesale dealer in malt liquors: Provided, That no brewer shall be required to pay a special tax as a dealer by reason of selling in the original stamped packages whether at the place of manufacture or elsewhere, malt liquors manufactured by him, or purchased and procured by him in his own casks or vessels, under the provisions of section thirty-three hundred and forty-nine of the Revised Statutes; but the quantity of malt liquors so purchased shall be included in calculating the liability to brewer's special tax of both the brewer who manufactures and sells the same and the brewer who purchases the same: And it is hereby provided, That no further collection of special tax as retail dealers in malt liquors shall be made from brewers for selling malt liquors of their own manufacture in the original stamped eighth-barrel package. (18 Stat. 311. 20 Stat. 333.)

These provisions were part of section 18 of an act entitled "An act to amend the laws relating to internal revenue," cited above.

This section, as originally enacted, in Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 18, cited above, was amended by inserting, before the words "shall be regarded as wholesale dealer in malt liquors," the words "at wholesale," and by adding, after the word "him," the words "or purchased and procured by him in his own casks," etc., to the end of the section, as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 4, last cited above.

A further proviso, annexed to the section as so amended, for remission of certain assessments of additional special tax previously made and for refunding such assessments if paid, are omitted as temporary merely, and executed.

This section modified R. S. § 3244, subsecs. 4, 5, ante, § 5971.

Notes of Decisions

Retail dealers.—An incorporated benevolent association, which sells to its members, for five cents each, tickets entitling the holder to a glass of beer or other refreshment from the association, at a picnic, or to participate in some amusement, at his option, is a dealer in malt liquors, within Act March 1, 1879, § 18, which defines such dealer to be one who sells or offers for sale in less quantities than five gallons at one time, but who does not deal in spirituous liquors. U. S. v. Giller (C. C. 1892) 54 Fed. 656.

An unincorporated social or literary club, which sells checks to its members, which it takes in exchange for glasses of beer, is a dealer, and liable to taxation under Act 1875, c. 36, § 18. U. S. v. Wittig (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 16,748.

An officer in charge of a post exchange is not a retail dealer in liquors, within Internal Revenue Act March 1, 1879, enacting that persons selling or offering to sell liquors, otherwise than as hereinafter provided, in less quantities than five gallons, shall be regarded as retail dealers. Dugan v. U. S. (1899) 34 Ct. Cl. 458.

§ 5974. (Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 62.) Distiller selling his own product; record of sales; transcript; forfeiture.

No distiller who has given the required bond and who sells only distilled spirits of his own production at the place of manufacture, or at the place of storage in bond, in the original packages to which the tax-paid stamps are affixed, shall be required to pay the special tax of a wholesale liquor dealer on account of such sales: Provided, That he shall be required to keep the book prescribed by section thirty-three hundred and eighteen of the Revised Statutes of the United States, or so much as shall show the date when he sent out any spirits, the serial numbers of the packages containing same, the kind and quality of the spirits in wine gallons and taxable gallons, the serial numbers of the stamps on the packages, and the name and residence of the person to whom sent; and the provisions of section five of an Act entitled "An Act to amend the laws relating to internal revenue," approved March fifth, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, as to transcripts, shall apply to such books. Any failure, by reason of refusal or willful neglect, to furnish the transcript by him shall subject the spirits owned or distilled by him to forfeiture. (28 Stat. 567.)

This section was part of the Wilson Tariff Act, cited above.

The reference in this section to the provisions of an act approved March 5, 1879, was intended, apparently, to be to the provisions of Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, amending R. S. § 3318, and incorporated into that section, as set forth post, § 6100.

Notes of Decisions

See §§ 5983 and 6100, and notes thereunder.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

(R. S. § 3245. Temporary.)

This section provided that the special tax paid by distillers prior to August 1, 1872, not exhausted by the quantity of spirits distilled, should be refunded. It is omitted as temporary merely and executed.

§ 5975. (R. S. § 3246, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, ch. 125, § 5, and Act March 3, 1915, c. 78.) Special tax not applied to vintners or apothecaries in certain cases, nor to manufacturing chemists, etc., for recovering tax-paid alcohol from dregs, etc.

Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to impose a special tax upon vintners who sell wine of their own growth, or manufacturers who sell wine produced from grapes grown by others, at the place where the same is made or at the general business office of such vintner or manufacturer: Provided, That no vintner or manufacturer shall have more than one office for the sale of such wine that shall be exempt from special tax under this Act; nor shall any special tax be imposed upon apothecaries as to wines or spirituous liquors which they use exclusively in the preparation or making-up of medicines.

Nor shall any special tax be imposed upon manufacturing chemists or flavoring extract manufacturers for recovering tax-paid alcohol or spirituous liquors from dregs or marc of percolation or extraction if said recovered alcohol or spirituous liquors be again used in the manufacture of flavoring extracts. (38 Stat. 893.)

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 9, 14 Stat. 122. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, 20 Stat. 334. Act March 3, 1915, c. 78, 38 Stat. 893.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to impose a special tax upon vintners who sell wine of their own growth at the place where the same is made; or upon apothecaries, as to wines or spirituous liquors which they use exclusively in the preparation or making up of medicines."

It was amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, cited above. As so amended it read as above down to and including the word "medicines."

Notes of Decisions

Exemption of apothecaries.—Manufacturers of vanilla or ginger extract by mixing the comminuted vanilla beans or ginger root with alcohol in a percolator, and who afterwards recover a part of the alcohol remaining in the mixture for re-use by distillation, are not exempt from the tax as apothecaries. Henry K. Wampole & Co. v. U. S. (1911) 191 Fed. 573, 112 C. C. A. 633, affirming judgment U. S. v. Hance (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 528, and Same v. Smith, Kline & French Co. (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 532, and writ of certiorari denied Hance v. U. S. (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 840, 225 U. S. 710, 56 L. Ed. 1268.

A distiller of alcohol from oleoresin, obtained from ginger root in the manufacture of a ginger ale paste, which alcohol so obtained was again used in obtaining ginger extract by percolation, was not engaged in business as an "apothecary" and was not exempt from liability for internal revenue taxation as a rectifier, purifier, or refiner of distilled spirits by this section. U. S. v. S. Twitchell Co. (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 525.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Smith (D. C. 1891) 45 Fed. 115.

§ 5976. (Res. May 8, 1876, No. 10.) Retail liquor dealers, etc., on passenger trains, steamboats, or other vessels.

Nothing contained in chapter three of title thirty-five of the Revised Statutes shall prevent the issue, under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe, of special-tax stamps to persons carrying on the business of retail dealers in liquors, retail dealers in malt liquors, or dealers in tobacco, upon passenger railroad-trains or upon steamboats or other vessels engaged in the business of carrying passengers. (19 Stat. 213.)

Special taxes upon dealers in tobacco were repealed by Act Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 26, post, § 6177. A tax was imposed on such dealers by Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 4, 38 Stat. 752, but such act was repealed by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 410, set forth post, § 5980*l*.

§ 5977. (Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 3, as amended, Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 2.) Special taxes upon manufacturers of, or dealers in, oleomargarine.

Special taxes are imposed as follows:

Manufacturers of oleomargarine shall pay six hundred dollars. Every person who manufactures oleomargarine for sale shall be deemed a manufacturer of oleomargarine.

And any person that sells, vends, or furnishes oleomargarine for the use and consumption of others, except to his own family table without compensation, who shall add to or mix with such oleomargarine any artificial coloration that causes it to look like butter of any shade of yellow shall also be held to be a manufacturer of oleomargarine within the meaning of said Act, and subject to the provisions thereof.

Wholesale dealers in oleomargarine shall pay four hundred and eighty dollars. Every person who sells or offers for sale oleomargarine in the original manufacturer's packages shall be deemed a wholesale dealer in oleomargarine. But any manufacturer of oleomargarine who has given the required bond and paid the required special tax, and who sells only oleomargarine of his own production, at the place of manufacture, in the original packages to which the tax-paid stamps are affixed, shall not be required to pay the special tax of a wholesale dealer in oleomargarine on account of such sales.

Retail dealers in oleomargarine shall pay forty-eight dollars. Every person who sells oleomargarine in less quantities than ten pounds at one time shall be regarded as a retail dealer in oleomargarine.

And sections thirty-two hundred and thirty-two, thirty-two hundred and thirty-three, thirty-two hundred and thirty-four, thirty-two hundred and thirty-five, thirty-two hundred and thirty-six, thirty-two hundred and thirty-seven, thirty-two hundred and thirty-eight, thirty-two hundred and thirty-nine, thirty-two hundred and forty, thirty-two hundred and forty-one, and thirty-two hundred and forty-three of the Revised Statutes of the United States are, so far as applicable, made to extend to and include and apply to the special taxes imposed by this section, and to the persons upon whom they are imposed: Provided, That in case any manufacturer of oleomargarine commences business subsequent to the thirtieth day of June in any year, the special tax shall be reckoned from the first day of July in that year, and shall be five hundred dollars.

Provided further, That wholesale dealers who vend no other oleomargarine or butterine except that upon which a tax of one-fourth of one per cent per pound is imposed by this Act, as amended, shall pay two hundred dollars; and such retail dealers as vend no other oleomargarine or butterine except that upon which is imposed by this Act, as amended, a tax of one-fourth of one cent per pound shall pay six dollars. (24 Stat. 209. 32 Stat. 194.)

This section, as enacted in the Oleomargarine Act of Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, § 3, cited above, was amended by adding to the first clause thereof, after the word "oleomargarine," at the end of said clause, the words "And any person that sells, vends or furnishes oleomargarine," etc., ending with the words "subject to the provisions thereof," and by adding at the end of the section a new proviso, as set forth here, by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 2, last cited above.

Special taxes were imposed also on manufacturers of and dealers in process or renovated butter or adulterated butter by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 4, set forth post, § 5978.

Wholesale dealers were required to keep books and make returns, as prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, by Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 6, set forth post, § 6241.

All special taxes become due July 1st in each year, or on commencing the business, by the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 53, ante, § 5960.

R. S. §§ 3232–3241, 3243, mentioned in this section, are set forth ante, §§ 5955–5959, 5961–5964, 5970.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 5967, ante, and § 6218, post.

Constitutionality.—Under this section and section 6218, post, persons selling oleomargarine at retail in original packages in quantities greater than 10 pounds violate the law. Ripper v. U. S. (1910) 178 Fed. 24, 101 C. C. A. 152, rehearing denied (1910) 179 Fed. 497, 103 C. C. A. 478.

Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, 24 Stat. 210, imposing a tax on manufacturers and dealers in oleomargarine, and regulating the sale of such article, having for its primary object the raising of revenue, and not protection to purchasers, is not unconstitutional, as being an infringement upon the police powers of the states. U. S. v. Dougherty (D. C. 1900) 101 Fed. 439, judgment affirmed Dougherty v. U. S. (1901) 108 Fed. 56, 47 C. C. A. 195, writ of certiorari denied (1901) 21 Sup. Ct. 926, 181 U. S. 622, 45 L. Ed. 1033.

Construction and operation of statute in general.—Section 5970, ante, provides that the payment of any tax imposed by the internal revenue laws for carrying on any business shall not exempt any person from any penalty provided by the laws of a state for carrying on the same within such state, or authorize such business contrary to the laws of such state, or in places prohibited by municipal law, nor prohibit any state from placing a tax on the same business. Held, in view of section 5970, ante, that this section was not intended to interfere with the exercise by the states of any authority they can rightfully exercise over the sale of oleomargarine therein. Plumley v. Massachusetts (1894) 15 Sup. Ct. 154, 155 U. S. 461, 39 L. Ed. 223.

This section relates only to the adding to or mixing of artificial coloration with oleomargarine after its manufacture, and does not support the proposition that where, in the process of manufacture, oleomargarine becomes artificially colored, it must be treated as free from artificial coloration. McCray v. U. S. (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 769, 774, 195 U. S. 27, 49 L. Ed. 78, 1 Ann. Cas. 561.

An indictment against officers, agents, and employés of a corporation for violating section 6229, post, held insufficient notwithstanding this section. U. S. v. Orr (D. C. 1915) 223 Fed. 222.

Application of general revenue law.—The express extension of the provisions of sections 5955–5964, 5970, ante, which deal with special taxes, to the special tax on oleomargarine made by this section, imposing such tax, and not purporting to be complete in itself, is not an implied exclusion of the general provisions of section 5900, ante, for the entry by revenue officers of any building or place where any articles or objects subject to tax are made, produced, or kept, for the purpose of examining such articles or objects. U. S. v. Barnes (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 117, 222 U. S. 513, 56 L. Ed. 291.

The provisions of the general internal revenue legislation do not apply to Oleomargarine Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, 24 Stat. 209, except those sections expressly made applicable by this section; and one assessed with a special tax as a dealer under such law, who, before paying the tax at the suggestion of the collector, made application to the Commissioner for an abatement of the same, stating the facts, which application was refused, is not required to again appeal to the Commissioner under section 5949, ante, after he has paid under protest, before he can maintain a suit to recover his payment back as illegally imposed. Tucker v. Grier (1908) 160 Fed. 611, 87 C. C. A. 513.

The act of Aug. 2, 1886, and the sections of the Revised Statutes adopted by it and made applicable mean that oleomargarine shall only be sold in the manner and according to the regulations prescribed. Ripper v. U. S. (1910) 178 Fed. 24, 101 C. C. A. 152, rehearing denied (1910) 179 Fed. 497, 103 C. C. A. 478.

Manufacturers.—The words "any person" are not limited to licensed wholesale or retail dealers in oleomargarine, but are comprehensive enough to embrace any or all persons, whether licensed dealers or not, selling, vending, or furnishing oleomargarine to which he has added coloring matter to represent butter. Vermont v. U. S. (1909) 174 Fed. 792, 98 C. C. A. 500, writ of certiorari denied (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 695, 217 U. S. 605, 54 L. Ed. 899.

The actual selling, vending, or furnishing of oleomargarine for use and consumption by others is not one of the necessary components of a manufacturer as contemplated by the statute, so as to require proof of actual selling, vending, or furnishing of some of the product to constitute the offense; the term "manufacturer" as used being construed to mean one engaged in the business of selling, vending, or furnishing oleomargarine for consumption of others. Id.

See, also, notes under § 5967, ante.

Retail dealers.—A retail dealer is liable to the tax, though he honestly believed that what he bought and sold was butter. Eagle v. Nowlin (D. C. 1899) 94 Fed. 646.

Wholesale dealers.—Plaintiff was a retail grocer, who prior to the passage of Act Aug. 2, 1886, c. 840, 24 Stat. 209, had sold oleomargarine. After that he ceased handling it; but, having two or three customers who desired it, at their request and for their accommodation he sent orders in their respective names to the manufacturer for 10-pound packages at a time, to be shipped to each customer in his care. The manufacturer shipped the same to its local branch house, addressed and billed to the customers. The branch house, which did not deliver to retail customers, left the packages at plaintiff's store, and he delivered the same, with other groceries. The customers returned the bills to him, and he remitted for the same to the manufacturer each month, charging the customers with the cash so sent. There was no fraud nor attempt at concealment, and plaintiff made no profit whatever on the transactions. Held, that such transactions were not sales of the article by plaintiff, and did not render him subject to tax as a wholesale dealer. Tucker v. Grier (1908) 160 Fed. 611, 87 C. C. A. 513; Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658.

Facts held insufficient to constitute plaintiff a wholesale dealer in oleomargarine, so as to authorize assessment of an internal revenue tax against him as such. Weaver v. Ewers (1912) 195 Fed. 247, 115 C. C. A. 219, affirming judgment Ewers v. Weaver (C. C. 1910) 182 Fed. 713.

A merchant does not become a dealer in oleomargarine, and subject to special tax as such, by permitting packages ordered by an hotel keeper from a wholesale house, through its salesman, to be shipped in his name, simply as an accommodation, and as a guaranty that the price would be paid, where he had no part in making the sales, and received no profit thereon. Hartzell v. U. S. (D. C. 1897) 83 Fed. 1002.

A firm otherwise engaged only in retailing held, under this section, a wholesale dealer in oleomargarine, for purpose of internal revenue, where it buys the amount desired by it and another such firm, and lets the other have part at the same price. Mitchell v. Cole (D. C. 1915) 226 Fed. 824.

Indictment.—An indictment in the language of section 5967, ante, charging that the defendant at a certain time and place did unlawfully "carry on the business of a manufacturer of oleomargarine without having first then and there paid the special tax therefor as required by law," states all the elements of the offense, and is sufficiently specific in the absence of a motion for a bill of particulars showing whether the defendant is charged with being a manufacturer in the ordinary sense under the original act or as defined in this section. Morris v. U. S. (1908) 161 Fed. 672, 88 C. C. A. 532, judgment reversed on rehearing (1909) 168 Fed. 682, 94 C. C. A. 168, and writ of certiorari denied (1909) 29 Sup. Ct. 704, 214 U. S. 527, 53 L. Ed. 1068.

An indictment for carrying on the business of a manufacturer of oleomargarine without having paid the special tax therefor, based on this section which provides that any person that sells, vends, or furnishes oleomargarine for the use and consumption of others "except to his own family table without compensation," and who shall color the same to resemble butter, shall be deemed a manufacturer, need not negative such exception which is in fact mere surplusage, since it does not exempt from the operation of the statute anything which would otherwise be within it. Id.

An indictment charging the defendant generally in the language of the statute with carrying on the business of a manufacturer of oleomargarine without having paid the special tax required by this section is sufficient, and need not set out a statement of the facts which constitute the defendant a manufacturer. Hart v. U. S. (1910) 183 Fed. 368, 105 C. C. A. 588, writ of certiorari denied (1911) 31 Sup. Ct. 714, 220 U. S. 609, 55 L. Ed. 608.

An indictment in the words of the statute charging defendant with knowingly, willfully, and unlawfully carrying on the business of a wholesale dealer in oleomargarine without having paid the special tax therefor as required by law is not objectionable for failure to negative that defendant was a manufacturer selling his own product in stamped packages at the place of manufacture, within the exception of the statute. U. S. v. Joyce (D. C. 1905) 138 Fed. 455.

See, also, notes under § 5967, ante.

Evidence in prosecutions under statute.—Evidence held sufficient to warrant a conviction of defendants as manufacturers of oleomargarine for mixing coloring matter therewith to represent butter without having paid the federal tax and obtained the required license, and for selling, vending, or furnishing oleomargarine for use and consumption of others. Vermont v. U. S. (1909) 174 Fed. 792, 98 C. C. A. 500, writ of certiorari denied (1910) 30 Sup. Ct. 695, 217 U. S. 605, 54 L. Ed. 899.

Rulings on evidence in a prosecution under this section held not erroneous. Wesoky v. U. S. (1910) 175 Fed. 333, 99 C. C. A. 121.

Other statutes applying to collection of tax.—Section 5900, ante, and section 6364, post, relative to inspection and search warrants to prevent frauds against the internal revenue laws, apply to the collection of special taxes imposed by the Oleomargarine Act. Kercheval v. Allen (1915) 220 Fed. 262, 135 C. C. A. 1.

Cited without definite application, Cornell v. Coyne (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 383, 386, 192 U. S. 418, 48 L. Ed. 504; Hartman v. U. S. (1909) 168 Fed. 30, 94 C. C. A. 124; Hastings v. Herold (C. C. 1910) 184 Fed. 759; In re Kinney (D. C. 1900) 102 Fed. 468, 469.

§ 5978. (Act May 9, 1902, c. 784, § 4.) Special taxes upon manufacturers of, or dealers in, process or renovated butter or adulterated butter.

Special taxes are imposed as follows:

Manufacturers of process or renovated butter shall pay fifty dollars per year and manufacturers of adulterated butter shall pay six hundred dollars per year. Every person who engages in the production of process or renovated butter or adulterated butter as a business shall be considered to be a manufacturer thereof.

Wholesale dealers in adulterated butter shall pay a tax of four hundred and eighty dollars per annum, and retail dealers in adulterated butter shall pay a tax of forty-eight dollars per annum. Every person who sells adulterated butter in less quantities than ten pounds at one time shall be regarded as a retail dealer in adulterated butter.

Every person who sells adulterated butter shall be regarded as a dealer in adulterated butter. And sections thirty-two hundred and thirty-two, thirty-two hundred and thirty-three, thirty-two hundred and thirty-four, thirty-two hundred and thirty-five, thirty-two hundred and thirty-six, thirty-two hundred and thirty-seven, thirty-two hundred and thirty-eight, thirty-two hundred and thirty-nine, thirty-two hundred and forty, thirty-two hundred and forty-one, and thirty-two hundred and forty-three of the Revised Statutes of the United States are, so far as applicable, made to extend to and include and apply to the special taxes imposed by this section and to the person upon whom they are imposed. (32 Stat. 194.)

These were provisions of section 4 of the Oleomargarine Act of 1902, cited above.

Other provisions of that act, relating to tax on oleomargarine, process butter, etc., are set forth post, §§ 6233–6239, 6241.

R. S. §§ 3232–3241, 3243, mentioned in this section, are set forth ante, §§ 5955–5959, 5961–5964, 5970.

Notes of Decisions

Tax as dependent on "knowingly" engaging in business.—A dealer in adulterated butter is liable to the tax imposed whether he "knowingly" engaged in the business or not. C. H. Lawrence & Co. v. Seyburn (1913) 202 Fed. 913, 121 C. C. A. 271.

Cited without definite application, Coopersville Co-operation Creamery Co. v. Lemon (1908) 163 Fed. 145, 89 C. C. A. 595.

§ 5979. (Act June 6, 1896, c. 337, § 3.) Special taxes upon manufacturers of, or dealers in, filled cheese.

Special taxes are imposed as follows:

Manufacturers of filled cheese shall pay four hundred dollars for each and every factory per annum. Every person, firm, or corporation who manufactures filled cheese for sale shall be deemed a manufacturer of filled cheese.

Wholesale dealers in filled cheese shall pay two hundred and fifty dollars per annum. Every person, firm, or corporation who sells or offers for sale filled cheese in the original manufacturer's packages for resale, or to retail dealers as hereinafter defined, shall be deemed a wholesale dealer in filled cheese.

But any manufacturer of filled cheese who has given the required bond and paid the required special tax, and who sells only filled cheese of his own production, at the place of manufacture, in the original packages, to which the tax-paid stamps are affixed, shall not be required to pay the special tax of a wholesale dealer in filled cheese on account of such sales.

Retail dealers in filled cheese shall pay twelve dollars per annum. Every person who sells filled cheese at retail, not for resale, and for actual consumption, shall be regarded as a retail dealer in filled cheese, and sections thirty-two hundred and thirty-two, thirty-two hundred and thirty-three, thirty-two hundred and thirty-four, thirty-two hundred and thirty-five, thirty-two hundred and thirty-six, thirty-two hundred and thirty-seven, thirty-two hundred and thirty-eight, thirty-two hundred and thirty-nine, thirty-two hundred and forty, thirty-two hundred and forty-one, thirty-two hundred and forty-three of the Revised Statutes of the United States are, so far as applicable, made to extend to and include and apply to the special taxes imposed by this section and to the persons, firms, or corporations upon whom they are imposed: Provided, That all special taxes under this Act shall become due on the first day of July in every year, or on commencing any manufacture, trade, or business on which said tax is imposed. In the latter case the tax shall be reckoned proportionately from the first day of the month in which the liability to the special tax commences to the first day of July following. (29 Stat. 253.)

This section was part of the Filled Cheese Act, cited above.

Other sections of the act, relating to the tax on filled cheese, etc., are set forth post, §§ 6242–6257.

R. S. §§ 3232–3241, 3243, mentioned in this section, are set forth ante, §§ 5955–5959, 5961–5964, 5970.

All special taxes become due July 1st in each year, or on commencing the business, by the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 53, ante, § 5960.

§ 5980. (Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 36.) Special taxes upon manufacturers or packers of mixed flour.

Every person, firm, or corporation, before engaging in the business of making, packing, or repacking mixed flour, shall pay a special tax at the rate of twelve dollars per annum, the same to be paid and posted in accordance with the provisions of sections thirty-two hundred and forty-two and thirty-two hundred and thirty-nine of the Revised Statutes, and subject to the fines and penalties therein imposed for any violation thereof. (30 Stat. 467.)

This was a provision of the War Revenue Act of June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 36, cited above.

Other provisions of this act, relating to the tax on mixed flour, are set forth post, §§ 6258–6270.

Special tax stamps were required to be exhibited in the taxpayer's place of business, by R. S. § 3239, ante, § 5962.

Carrying on business without payment of the special tax was punishable by R. S. § 3242, ante, § 5965.

All special taxes become due July 1st in each year, or on commencing the business, by the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 53, ante, § 5960.

§ 5980a. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 407 [1].) Corporation tax; amount; mode of assessment on insurance companies; computation of tax; exemption; credit to corporation paying other form of tax; exemption of corporations not doing business; tax on corporations organized in foreign countries; exemptions; credit in case of payment of other form of tax.

That on and after January first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, special taxes shall be, and hereby are, imposed annually, as follows, that is to say:

Every corporation, joint-stock company or association, now or hereafter organized in the United States for profit and having a capital stock represented by shares, and every insurance company, now or hereafter organized under the laws of the United States, or any State or Territory of the United States, shall pay annually a special excise tax with respect to the carrying on or doing business by such corporation, joint-stock company or association, or insurance company, equivalent to 50 cents for each $1,000 of the fair value of its capital stock and in estimating the value of capital stock the surplus and undivided profits shall be included: Provided, That in the case of insurance companies such deposits and reserve funds as they are required by law or contract to maintain or hold for the protection of or payment to or apportionment among policyholders shall not be included. The amount of such annual tax shall in all cases be computed on the basis of the fair average value of the capital stock for the preceding year: Provided, That for the purpose of this tax an exemption of $99,000 shall be allowed from the capital stock as defined in this paragraph of each corporation, joint-stock company or association, or insurance company: Provided further, That a corporation, joint-stock company or association, or insurance company, actually paying the tax imposed by section three hundred and one of Title III of this Act shall be entitled to a credit as against the tax imposed by this paragraph equal to the amount of the tax so actually paid: And provided further, That this tax shall not be imposed upon any corporation, joint-stock company or association, or insurance company not engaged in business during the preceding taxable year, or which is exempt under the provisions of section eleven, Title I, of this Act.

Every corporation, joint-stock company or association, or insurance company, now or hereafter organized for profit under the laws of any foreign country and engaged in business in the United States shall pay annually a special excise tax with respect to the carrying on or doing business in the United States by such corporation, joint-stock company or association, or insurance company, equivalent to 50 cents for each $1,000 of the capital actually invested in the transaction of its business in the United States: Provided, That in the case of insurance companies such deposits or reserve funds as they are required by law or contract to maintain or hold in the United States for the protection of or payment to or apportionment among policyholders, shall not be included. The amount of such annual tax shall in all cases be computed on the basis of the average amount of capital so invested during the preceding year: Provided, That for the purpose of this tax an exemption from the amount of capital so invested shall be allowed equal to such proportion of $99,000 as the amount so invested bears to the total amount invested in the transaction of business in the United States or elsewhere: Provided, further, That this exemption shall be allowed only if such corporation, joint-stock company or association, or insurance company makes return to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, under regulations prescribed by him, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, of the amount of capital invested in the transaction of business outside the United States: And provided further, That a corporation, joint-stock company or association, or insurance company actually paying the tax imposed by section three hundred and one of Title III of this act, shall be entitled to a credit as against the tax imposed by this paragraph equal to the amount of the tax so actually paid: And provided further, That this tax shall not be imposed upon any corporation, joint-stock company or association, or insurance company not engaged in business during the preceding taxable year, or which is exempt under the provisions of section eleven, Title I, of this Act. (39 Stat. 789.)

Title III, referred to above, is set forth post, §§ 6336¼a–6336¼m.

Title I, referred to above, is set forth post, §§ 5887, 5895, 5896, 5899, 5948, 6336a–6336m.

Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 3, dealt with the subject-matter of this section, and sections 5980b–5980i, post. That act is repealed by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 410, set forth post, § 5980*l*, except that said section 3 is to remain in force till January 1, 1917.

Act Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, subd. S, repeals Act Aug. 5, 1909, c. 6, §§ 1–41, leaving section 38 thereof, imposing a special excise tax on corporations, in operation for a limited time. The limitation on such repealing clause is superseded by that part of Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, set forth herein as sections 5980a–5980i.

Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 3(1), imposes a special tax on bankers, and reads as follows:

"On and after November first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, special taxes shall be, and hereby are, imposed annually as follows, that is to say: First. Bankers shall pay $1 for each $1,000 of capital used or employed, and in estimating capital surplus and undivided profits shall be included. The amount of such annual tax shall in all cases be computed on the basis of the capital, surplus, and undivided profits for the preceding fiscal year. Every person, firm, or company, and every incorporated or other bank, having a place of business where credits are opened by the deposit or collection of money or currency, subject to be paid or remitted upon draft, check, or order, or where money is advanced or loaned on stocks, bonds, bullion, bills of exchange, or promissory notes, or where stocks, bonds, bullion, bills of exchange, or promissory notes are received for discount or sale, shall be a banker under this Act: Provided, That any postal savings bank, or savings bank having no capital stock, and whose business is confined to receiving deposits and loaning or investing the same for the benefit of its depositors, and which does no other business of banking, shall not be subject to this tax." This provision is expressly repealed by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 410, set forth post, § 5980*l* such repeal to take effect January 1, 1917.

All administrative or special provisions of law are made part of Title IV of Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 331, under which the above provision appears, by section 409 of such title, set forth post, § 5980k.

Section 900 of Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, set forth post, § 6371a, provides that an adjudication of the invalidity of a part of the act shall not invalidate the rest of the act.

Section 902 of such act, set forth post, § 6371b, provides that it shall take effect on the day after its passage unless otherwise provided, and repeals all inconsistent acts.

Notes of Decisions

For decisions based on superseded Act August 5, 1909, imposing an excise tax computed on net income, see notes under §§ 6300–6309, post.

§ 5980b. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 407 [2].) Tax on brokers.

Second. Brokers shall pay $30. Every person, firm, or company, whose business it is to negotiate purchases or sales of stocks, bonds, exchange, bullion, coined money, bank notes, promissory notes, or other securities, for others, shall be regarded as a broker. (39 Stat. 790.)

Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 3(2), repealed as stated in the note to § 5980a, ante, was in the same language as above, except that it contained the words "themselves or" before the word "others," and also contained the following proviso: "Provided, That any person having paid the special tax as a banker shall not be required to pay the special tax as a broker."

BROKERS UNDER FORMER REVENUE LAWS

Brokers under former law in general.—Under the internal revenue act of June 30, 1864, as amended by the act of March 3, 1865, the sales of stocks, bonds, and securities made by "brokers" for themselves were subject to the same duties as those made by them for others. U. S. v. Cutting (1865) 70 U. S. (3 Wall.) 441, 18 L. Ed. 241.

Under the internal revenue act as amended, extending the definition of "brokers" so as to make it include persons selling securities "for themselves or others," bankers, who sell the federal securities not otherwise than for the United States and for themselves, and who, therefore, do not sell them for others or for a commission, are not liable to pay the duties imposed upon "brokers and bankers doing business as brokers." U. S. v. Fisk (1865) 70 U. S. (3 Wall.) 445, 18 L. Ed. 243, affirming (C. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 15,104.

The provision in Act March 3, 1865, extending the definition of "brokers" given in Act June 30, 1864, § 79, subd. 9, does not apply to section 99 of the act of 1864. U. S. v. Fisk (C. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 15,104.

A person purchasing stock for others in his own name, advancing his own money, and holding the stock as security, is liable to a tax as a broker. Clark v. Gilbert (C. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 2,822.

Definition of broker under the internal revenue tax acts. Peabody v. Gilbert (C. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 10,868.

A farmer occasionally buying and selling stock in connection with his main pursuit is not within the statute. U. S. v. Kenton (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 15,526.

Taxation of brokers under Acts June 30, 1864, and March 3, 1865. Northrup v. Shook (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 10,329.

Produce broker.—A person whose occupation is to sell agricultural produce in public market is liable to a tax as a "produce broker" (Act 1866, § 79), though the produce is raised by himself upon his farm. U. S. v. Simons (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,291.

Real estate agents.—A real estate agent, doing nothing by way of negotiating "purchase or sale of securities," is not required by the United States revenue laws to pay a tax. Rounds v. Allee (1902) 89 N. W. 1098, 116 Iowa, 345.

The fact that a real estate agent has taken out no license under the internal revenue laws will not affect his right to recover compensation. Ruckman v. Bergholz (1874) 37 N. J. Law (8 Vroom) 437.

Bankers.—A person having a license of a banker, who receives stocks, etc., and sells them, charging as a banker, is not liable to the tax imposed upon brokers by Act June 30, 1864, § 99. Clark v. Gilbert (C. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 2,822.

Taxation of bankers as doing business as brokers under Acts June 30, 1864, and March 3, 1865. Northrup v. Shook (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 10,329.

Express companies.—Express companies issuing money orders and travelers' checks are not taxable as brokers under the war revenue act of June 13, 1898 (30 Stat. 448). (1900) 23 Op. Atty. Gen. 139.

Money orders and travelers' checks as at present issued by certain express companies do not come within the legal definition of bills of exchange or checks, but possess more of the characteristics of promissory notes. Id.

The issuing of these orders by express companies upon themselves is not a sale of promissory notes. It is merely an incident to their business as carriers, and does not constitute them brokers. Id.

§ 5980c. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 407 [3].) Tax on pawnbrokers.

Third. Pawnbrokers shall pay $50. Every person, firm, or company whose business or occupation it is to take or receive, by way of pledge, pawn, or exchange, any goods, wares, or merchandise, or any kind of personal property whatever, as security for the repayment of money loaned thereon, shall be deemed a pawnbroker. (39 Stat. 790.)

Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 3(3), repealed as stated in the note under § 5980a, ante, is in the identical language of the above provision.

§ 5980d. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 407 [4].) Tax on ship brokers.

Fourth. Ship brokers shall pay $20. Every person, firm, or company whose business it is as a broker to negotiate freights and other business for the owners of vessels, or for the shippers or consignors or consignees of freight carried by vessels, shall be regarded as a ship broker under this section. (39 Stat. 791.)

Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 3(4), repealed as stated in the note to § 5980a, ante, provided as follows: "Fourth. Commercial brokers shall pay $20. Every person, firm, or company whose business it is as a broker to negotiate sales or purchases of goods, wares, produce, or merchandise, or to negotiate freights and other business for the owners of vessels, or for the shippers or consignors or consignees of freight carried by vessels, shall be regarded as a commercial broker under this Act."

Commercial Brokers under Former Revenue Laws

Who were "commercial brokers" under former law.—Persons who sell goods in their own name, at their own store, on commission, and have possession of the goods as soon as the sales are made, and deliver them to their customers, are not "commercial brokers," within Act June 30, 1864, § 79, cl. 14, as amended by Act July 13, 1866, defining such brokers as persons who negotiate sales or purchases of goods, wares, or merchandise. Slack v. Tucker (1874) 90 U. S. (23 Wall.) 321, 23 L. Ed. 143.

Right to compensation under former law.—To entitle a plaintiff to recover compensation for "negotiating freights for the owners of vessels," within Act June 30, 1864, c. 173, § 79, cl. 14, defining such person as a commercial broker, and requiring him to pay $20 for a license, and making it highly penal to carry on such business without a license, plaintiff must prove that he was licensed as a commercial broker. There can be no recovery for acts done in direct contravention of an express statute. Harding v. Hagar (1872) 60 Me. 340.

A commercial broker cannot recover commissions, unless he has taken out a license as required by internal revenue laws. Holt v. Green (1873) 73 Pa. (23 P. F. Smith) 198, 13 Am. Rep. 737.

Violations of law.—A person is not liable for a fine for pursuing the business of a cattle broker without a license, unless it appear that he dealt in cattle or hogs as his principal business. U. S. v. Kenton (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 15,526.

§ 5980e. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 407 [5].) Tax on custom house brokers.

Fifth. Customhouse brokers shall pay $10. Every person, firm, or company whose occupation it is, as the agent of others, to arrange entries and other customhouse papers, or transact business at any port of entry relating to the importation or exportation of goods, wares, or merchandise, shall be regarded as a customhouse broker. (39 Stat. 791.)

Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 3(5), repealed as stated in the note to § 5980a, ante, was in the exact language of the above provision.

§ 5980f. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 407 [6].) Tax on theaters, museums, and concert halls.

Sixth. Proprietors of theaters, museums, and concert halls, where a charge for admission is made, having a seating capacity of not more than two hundred and fifty, shall pay $25; having a seating capacity of more than two hundred and fifty and not exceeding five hundred, shall pay $50; having a seating capacity exceeding five hundred and not exceeding eight hundred, shall pay $75; having a seating capacity of more than eight hundred, shall pay $100. Every edifice used for the purpose of dramatic or operatic or other representations, plays, or performances, for admission to which entrance money is received, not including halls or armories rented or used occasionally for concerts or theatrical representations, shall be regarded as a theater: Provided, That in cities, towns, or villages of five thousand inhabitants or less the amount of such payment shall be one-half of that above stated: Provided further, That whenever any such edifice is under lease at the passage of this Act, the tax shall be paid by the lessee, unless otherwise stipulated between the parties to said lease. (39 Stat. 791.)

Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 3(6), repealed as stated in the notes to § 5980a, ante, was in the exact language of the above provision, except that it did not contain the first proviso.

§ 5980g. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 407 [7].) Tax on circuses.

Seventh. The proprietor or proprietors of circuses shall pay $100. Every building, space, tent, or area where feats of horsemanship or acrobatic sports or theatrical performances not otherwise provided for in this section are exhibited shall be regarded as a circus: Provided, That no special tax paid in one State, Territory, or the District of Columbia shall exempt exhibitions from the tax in another State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, and but one special tax shall be imposed for exhibitions within any one State, Territory, or District. (39 Stat. 791.)

Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 3(7), repealed as stated in the notes to § 5980a, ante, is identical in substance with the above provision.

§ 5980h. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 407 [8].) Tax on enumerated public exhibits.

Eighth. Proprietors or agents of all other public exhibitions or shows for money not enumerated in this section shall pay $10: Provided, That a special tax paid in one State, Territory, or the District of Columbia shall not exempt exhibitions from the tax in another State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, and but one special tax shall be required for exhibitions within any one State, Territory, or the District of Columbia: Provided further, That this paragraph shall not apply to Chautauquas, lecture lyceums, agricultural or industrial fairs, or exhibitions held under the auspices of religious or charitable associations: Provided further, That an aggregation of entertainments, known as a street fair, shall not pay a larger tax than $100 in any State, Territory, or in the District of Columbia. (39 Stat. 791.)

Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 3(8), repealed as stated in the notes under § 5980a, ante, was identical in language with the above provision, except that it did not contain the second proviso.

§ 5980i. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 407 [9].) Tax on bowling alleys and billiard rooms.

Ninth. Proprietors of bowling alleys and billiard rooms shall pay $5 for each alley or table. Every building or place where bowls are thrown or where games of billiards or pool are played, except in private homes, shall be regarded as a bowling alley or a billiard room, respectively. (39 Stat. 791.)

Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 3(9), repealed as stated in notes under § 5980a, ante, was in the language of this section, except that it used the words "and that are open to the public with or without price" in the place of the words "except in private homes."

Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 3(10), repealed as stated in the notes to § 5980a, ante, provided as follows:

"Tenth. Commission merchants shall pay $20. Every person, firm, or company whose business or occupation it is to receive into his or its possession any goods, wares, or merchandise to sell the same on commission shall be regarded as a commission merchant: Provided, That any person having paid the special tax as a commercial broker shall not be required to pay the special tax as a commission merchant: Provided further, That this provision shall not apply to commission houses run upon a cooperative plan."

OWNERS OF BOWLING ALLEYS AND BILLIARD ROOMS UNDER FORMER REVENUE LAWS

Liability to tax under former law.—A person in possession and control of a billiard table in a place open to the public is liable prima facie to pay the special tax, though the general property and ultimate control of the table or place are in another. U. S. v. Howard (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,402.

Indictments.—An allegation that defendant carried on the business of keeping a billiard table in a particular building is a sufficient allegation that he kept a billiard room, and was the proprietor thereof. U. S. v. Howard (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,402.

§ 5980j. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 408.) Tax on tobacco, cigar, and cigarette manufacturers; computation of amount; penalty for failure to pay tax imposed by this title.

That on and after January first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, special taxes on tobacco, cigar, and cigarette manufacturers shall be, and hereby are, imposed annually as follows, the amount of such annual taxes to be computed in all cases on the basis of the annual sales for the preceding fiscal year:

Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales do not exceed fifty thousand pounds shall each pay $3;

Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed fifty thousand and do not exceed one hundred thousand pounds shall each pay $6;

Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed one hundred thousand and do not exceed two hundred thousand pounds shall each pay $12;

Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed two hundred thousand pounds shall each pay at the rate of 8 cents per thousand pounds, or fraction thereof;

Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales do not exceed fifty thousand cigars shall each pay $2;

Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed fifty thousand and do not exceed one hundred thousand cigars shall each pay $3;

Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed one hundred thousand and do not exceed two hundred thousand cigars shall each pay $6;

Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed two hundred thousand and do not exceed four hundred thousand cigars shall each pay $12;

Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed four hundred thousand cigars shall each pay at the rate of 5 cents per thousand cigars, or fraction thereof;

Manufacturers of cigarettes, including small cigars weighing not more than three pounds per thousand, shall each pay at the rate of 3 cents for every ten thousand cigarettes, or fraction thereof.

In arriving at the amount of special tax to be paid under this section, and in the levy and collection of such tax, each person, firm, or corporation engaged in the manufacture of more than one of the classes of articles specified in this section shall be considered and deemed a manufacturer of each class separately.

Every person who carries on any business or occupation for which special taxes are imposed by this title, without having paid the special tax therein provided, shall, besides being liable to the payment of such special tax, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not more than $500, or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (39 Stat. 791.)

This was a provision of "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes." By section 410 of the act, post, § 5980*l*, Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 4, is repealed, such repeal to become effective January 1, 1917. Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 4, read as follows:

"On and after November first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, special taxes on tobacco dealers and manufacturers shall be and hereby are imposed annually as follows, the amount of such annual taxes to be computed in all cases on the basis of the annual sales for the preceding fiscal year:

"Dealers in leaf tobacco whose annual sales or transfers do not exceed fifty thousand pounds shall each pay $6. Dealers in leaf tobacco whose annual sales or transfers exceed fifty thousand and do not exceed one hundred thousand pounds shall pay $12, and if their annual sales or transfers exceed one hundred thousand pounds shall pay $24: Provided, That dealers in leaf tobacco whose annual sales or transfers do not exceed one thousand pounds shall be exempt from the tax herein imposed on dealers in leaf tobacco.

"Dealers in tobacco, not specially provided for in this section, whose annual receipts from the sale of tobacco exceed $200, shall each pay $4.80 for each store, shop, or other place in which tobacco in any form is sold.

"Every person whose business it is to sell, or offer for sale, manufactured tobacco, snuff, cigars, or cigarettes shall be regarded as a dealer in tobacco: Provided, That no manufacturer of tobacco, snuff, cigars, or cigarettes shall be required to pay a special tax as a dealer in manufactured tobacco, snuff, cigars, or cigarettes for selling his own products at the place of manufacture.

"Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales do not exceed one hundred thousand pounds shall each pay $6.

"Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed one hundred thousand and do not exceed two hundred thousand pounds shall each pay $12.

"Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed two hundred thousand and do not exceed four hundred thousand pounds shall each pay $24.

"Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed four hundred thousand and do not exceed one million pounds shall each pay $60.

"Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed one million and do not exceed five million pounds shall each pay $300.

"Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed five million and do not exceed ten million pounds shall each pay $600.

"Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed ten million and do not exceed twenty million pounds shall each pay $1,200.

"Manufacturers of tobacco whose annual sales exceed twenty million pounds shall each pay $2,496.

"Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales do not exceed one hundred thousand cigars shall each pay $3.

"Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed one hundred thousand and do not exceed two hundred thousand cigars shall each pay $6.

"Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed two hundred thousand and do not exceed four hundred thousand cigars shall each pay $12.

"Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed four hundred thousand and do not exceed one million cigars shall each pay $30.

"Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed one million and do not exceed five million cigars shall each pay $150.

"Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed five million and do not exceed twenty million cigars shall each pay $600.

"Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed twenty million and do not exceed forty million cigars shall each pay $1,200.

"Manufacturers of cigars whose annual sales exceed forty million cigars shall each pay $2,496.

"Manufacturers of cigarettes whose annual sales do not exceed one million cigarettes shall each pay $12.

"Manufacturers of cigarettes whose annual sales exceed one million and do not exceed two million cigarettes shall each pay $24.

"Manufacturers of cigarettes whose annual sales exceed two million and do not exceed five million cigarettes shall each pay $60.

"Manufacturers of cigarettes whose annual sales exceed five million and do not exceed ten million cigarettes shall each pay $120.

"Manufacturers of cigarettes whose annual sales exceed ten million and do not exceed fifty million cigarettes shall each pay $600.

"Manufacturers of cigarettes whose annual sales exceed fifty million and do not exceed one hundred million cigarettes shall each pay $1,200.

"Manufacturers of cigarettes whose annual sales exceed one hundred million cigarettes shall each pay $2,496.

"In arriving at the amount of license tax to be paid hereunder, and in the levy and collection of such tax, each person, firm, or corporation engaged in the manufacture of cigars, cigarettes (including little cigars), or tobacco shall be considered and deemed a single manufacturer.

"And every person who carries on any business or occupation for which special taxes are imposed by this Act, without having paid the special tax herein provided, shall, besides being liable to the payment of such special tax, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall pay a fine of not more than $500, or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both, at the discretion of the court: Provided, That the special taxes imposed by this Act and payable during the special tax year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and sixteen, shall be collected and paid proportionately for the period during which such taxes shall remain in force during said year."

Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, § 4, 30 Stat. 450, imposed a special tax on dealers in and manufacturers of tobacco and cigars. This act was repealed by Act April 12, 1902, c. 500, § 5, 32 Stat. 97.

R. S. § 3244, post, § 6176, imposed a special tax on dealers in tobacco. That section was amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 14, 20 Stat. 343, and by Act March 3, 1883, c. 121, 22 Stat. 488. The special tax provisions were repealed by the McKinley Tariff Act of Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 26, post, § 6177.

By section 409 of Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, set forth post, § 5980k, all administrative provisions of law, so far as applicable, are made applicable in the enforcement of the tax hereby imposed.

R. S. § 3367, set forth post, § 6173a, makes it an offense to purchase or receive manufactured tobacco or snuff from any manufacturer who has not paid the special tax.

R. S. § 3372, set forth post, § 6181, imposes a penalty on manufacturers of tobacco for removing stamps from tobacco, or selling tobacco without having paid the special tax.

R. S. § 3400, set forth post, § 6210, provides for a forfeiture for removal or sale of cigars without payment of the special tax.

R. S. § 3405, set forth post, § 6213a, imposes a penalty on buyers of cigars from a manufacturer who has not paid the special tax.

Dealers in Tobaccos under Former Revenue Laws

Dealers in general.—Employers who buy tobacco and deal it out to their employés at cost, charging them with its cash cost when thus delivered, were subject to the special tax required to be paid, under R. S. § 3244, by those "whose business it is to sell or offer for sale manufactured tobacco." U. S. v. Vinson (D. C. 1881) 8 Fed. 507.

A single sale of all the merchandise which a person has on hand, who is going out of a business formerly carried on by him, does not constitute the seller a "dealer" within the meaning of the revenue laws of the United States, which require a license for making sales. Goodwin v. Clark (1876) 65 Me. 280.

Incorporated club.—An incorporated club may recover the price of cigars sold without a United States license; for, the sale of cigars not being prohibited, the selling without government license does not make the sale unlawful. Carteret Club of Elizabeth v. Florence (1880) 3 N. J. Law, 208.

Commission merchant.—A commission merchant engaged in the sale of manufactured tobacco is not liable to be taxed for the revenue stamps required to be affixed to the tobacco before the removal thereof from a bonded warehouse, unless they were at the time of such sale so affixed, whereby they entered into the value of the tobacco and formed a part of the price thereof. Jones v. Van Benthuysen (1880) 103 U. S. 87, 26 L. Ed. 477; Id. (1885) 115 U. S. 464, 6 Sup. Ct. 128, 29 L. Ed. 446.

Dealer in manufactured tobacco.—R. S. § 3244, had no other effect than not to require that a manufacturer who sells any tobaccos at the place of manufacture, in a manner consistent with other provisions of the law, shall pay a special tax as a dealer in manufactured tobacco. It related solely to the exaction of a tax, and not to the conferring of authority to sell. Ludloff v. U. S. (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 475, 481, 108 U. S. 176, 27 L. Ed. 693.

Violation of statute in general.—The propriety of submitting to the jury the question whether an alleged sale of goods by a vendor to his brother was fraudulent as to creditors was not obviated by the fact, if it existed, that the sale of cigars (which were among the goods) was made in violation of the United States revenue laws, since the sale embraced property not covered by those laws. Wessels v. Beeman (1887) 66 Mich. 343, 33 N. W. 510.

Indictment or information.—As all persons dealing in tobacco are not liable to the special tax, an indictment must show that defendant was such a dealer as is required to pay the tax. U. S. v. Howard (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,402..

The same rule applies in charging the same offense against a retail dealer. Id.

An affidavit stating that a party "sold tobacco" will not support an information charging the accused with carrying on the business of a retail dealer in tobacco without paying the special tax. U. S. v. Strickland (D. C. 1885) 25 Fed. 469.

§ 5980k. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 409.) Other laws made applicable to this title.

That all administrative or special provisions of law, including the law relating to the assessment of taxes, so far as applicable, are hereby extended to and made a part of this title, and every person, firm, company, corporation, or association liable to any tax imposed by this title, shall keep such records and render, under oath, such statements and returns, and shall comply with such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may from time to time prescribe. (39 Stat. 792.)

The above provision constitutes section 409 of "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes." It appears under the title heading. "Title IV—Miscellaneous Taxes." The various provisions of such title are set forth ante, §§ 5877a, 5980a–5980j, and post, §§ 5980*l*, 5980m, 5990, 6002, 6070a, 6110a, 6110b–6112, 6114–6114e, 6127a, 6144a, 6161.

§ 5980*l*. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 410.) Repeal.

That the Act approved October twenty-second, nineteen hundred and fourteen, entitled "An Act to increase the internal revenue, and for other purposes," and the joint resolution approved December seventeenth, nineteen hundred and fifteen, entitled "Joint resolution extending the provisions of the Act entitled 'An Act to increase the internal revenue, and for other purposes,' approved October twenty-second, nineteen hundred and fourteen, to December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and sixteen," are hereby repealed, except sections three and four of such Act as so extended, which sections shall remain in force till January first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, and except that the provisions of the said Act shall remain in force for the assessment and collection of all special taxes imposed by sections three and four thereof, or by such sections as extended by said joint resolution, for any year or part thereof ending prior to January first, nineteen hundred and seventeen, and of all other taxes imposed by such Act, or by such Act as so extended, accrued prior to the taking effect of this title, and for the imposition and collection of all penalties or forfeitures which have accrued or may accrue in relation to any of such taxes. (39 Stat. 792.)

The above repealing provision appears in "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," cited above, as section 410 of title 4, which is headed, "Miscellaneous Taxes." The positions in this compilation of the various provisions of title 4 is stated in the notes to the preceding section. The effect of the repealing clause is discussed in the notes to §§ 6115, 6119, 6122.

Res. Dec. 17, 1915, No. 4, referred to read as follows: "The provisions of the Act entitled 'An Act to increase the internal revenue, and for other purposes,' approved October twenty-second, nineteen hundred and fourteen (Statutes at Large, volume thirty-eight, pages seven hundred and forty-five to seven hundred and sixty-four, inclusive), are continued in full force and effect until and including December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and sixteen."

Sections 3 and 4, referred to, correspond to sections 407 and 408 of Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, and are set forth ante, §§ 5980a–5980j.

§ 5980m. (Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 412.) When act takes effect. That the provisions of this title shall take effect on the day following the passage of this Act, except where otherwise in this title provided. (39 Stat. 793.)

This was a provision of "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," cited above, which appeared under title 4 of such act, headed "Miscellaneous Taxes." The other provisions of this title are set forth herein as sections 5877a, 5980a–5980*l*, 5990, 6002, 6070a, 6110a–6112, 6114–6114e, 6127a, 6161, 6346a.

CHAPTER FOUR

Distilled Spirits and Wines

Sec.
5981. Distiller, definition of.
5982. Distilled spirits, definition of.
5983. Standard of proof-spirits; prevention of frauds.
5984. Gallon as used in sales, definition of.
5985. Tax on distilled spirits.
5986. Tax on distilled spirits; stamps; time for payment of tax; deposit in warehouse.
5987. Adding substances to create fictitious proof; penalty.
5988. Tax on spirits removed without deposit in warehouse.
5989. Products of distillation containing spirits.
5990. Brandy made from apples, peaches, grapes, etc.
5991. Small distilleries may be exempted from certain requirements.
5992. Evading tax; penalty.
5993. Distiller defrauding or attempting to defraud United States of tax on spirits.
5994. Registry of stills, etc.
5995. Notice of intention to carry on business of distiller or rectifier.
5996. Notice by rectifier of intention to rectify, etc.; gauging; returns.
5997. Distiller to give bond.
5998. Bond not to be approved until law complied with.
5999. Distiller must be owner in fee-simple, or have written consent of owner, etc.
6000. Refusal of bond from person previously convicted.
6001. Plan of distillery.
6002. Surveys of distilleries.
6003. Notice by manufacturer of a still; penalty for setting up still without permit.
6004. Distilling on certain premises prohibited; penalty.
6005. Receiving-cisterns in distilleries.
6006. Breaking locks, gaining access to cistern, etc.; penalty.
6007. Furnaces, tubs, doublers, worm-tanks; penalty.
6008. Apparatus and fastenings.
6009. Distillery warehouse.
6010. Use of distillery warehouse by successor in business.
6011. When a warehouse becomes unsafe.
6012. Discontinuance of warehouse and transfer of merchandise.
6013. Store-keepers have charge under direction of collector.
6014. Custody and management of warehouse.
6015. Distiller to keep distillery accessible.
6016. Power of revenue officers to enter and examine distilleries; penalty for obstructing officer.
6017. Distillers and rectifiers to furnish facilities for examination; penalty for neglect.
6018. Officers to break up ground or walls in order to examine.
6019. Signs to be put up by distillers and rectifiers; penalty for neglect; penalty for using false signs, etc.
6020. Distillers not to carry on business until the law is complied with.
6021. Carrying on distillery without giving bond, etc.; penalty.
6022. Mash, wort, and vinegar; location and operation of vinegar factories; forfeitures; punishment.
6023. Location and operation of certain vinegar factories.
6024. No process for distilling between 11 p. m. of Saturday and 1 a. m. of Monday.
6025. Using material or removing spirits in absence of store-keeper; penalty.
6026. Emptying and filling fermenting tubs.
6027. Drawing off water, cleansing worm-tub, etc.
6028. Drawing off, gauging, etc., and removal of spirits to warehouse.
6029. Tax-paid spirits not to remain on distillery premises.

Sec.
6030. Forfeiture of unstamped packages.
6031. Gauger employing distiller, etc., to use brands or perform his duties; penalty.
6032. Gauger's returns.
6033. Fraudulent inspection, gauging, etc.; penalty.
6034. Distiller's entry of deposit in warehouse; bond for taxes; collection of taxes.
6035. Distiller's bond for taxes on spirits deposited in warehouses.
6036. Withdrawal from warehouse, entry for.
6037. Gauging, stamping, and branding spirits removed from warehouse.
6038. Removal, concealment, etc., of spirits contrary to law; penalty.
6039. Special bonded warehouses for grape brandy.
6040. Payment of tax on grape brandy; removal to special bonded warehouse.
6041. Special stamp on removal to special bonded warehouse.
6042. Deposit in warehouse; bond.
6043. Withdrawal from warehouse for transfer or exportation; entry; bond.
6044. Exportation of grape brandy.
6045. Discontinuance of warehouse and transfer of merchandise.
6046. Removal of grape brandy without compliance with act; assessment and collection of tax.
6047. Time for payment of tax on grape brandy; forfeitures.
6048. Rules and regulations.
6049. Failure to comply with provisions for deposit in special warehouse, etc.; punishable.
6050. Special bonded warehouse provisions extended to fruit brandy.
6051. Regauging at warehouse; allowance for loss.
6052. Allowance for loss of spirits in warehouse.
6053. Regauging.
6054. Allowance for loss of spirits deposited in warehouse extended.
6055. Allowance for leakage or loss on withdrawal of spirits from distillery warehouse for exportation.
6056. Tax on lost spirits covered by insurance not to be remitted.
6057. Allowance for leakage or loss on withdrawal of spirits from distillery warehouse to manufacturing warehouse.
6058. General bonded warehouses.
6059. Removal of spirits to general bonded warehouses.
6060. Stamp on removal to general bonded warehouse.
6061. Warehousing bonds.
6062. Withdrawal from general bonded warehouse.
6063. Previous provisions applicable to spirits deposited in general bonded warehouses.
6064. Tax on spirits removed from distillery warehouse to general bonded warehouse without compliance with requirements of act; excessive loss.
6065. Failure to deposit in general bonded warehouse in time, or removal therefrom without compliance with requirements of act; punishment; forfeitures.
6066. Alcohol withdrawn for scientific purposes.
6067. Withdrawal of alcohol for scientific purposes by unincorporated institutions.
6068. Withdrawal of spirits for medicinal preparations, etc., manufactured in bonded warehouse for export.
6069. Withdrawal of spirits from distillery warehouses for making sorghum sugar.
6070. Bottling of spirits in bond.
6070a. Bottling of gin in bond for export without payment of tax.
6071. Regulations for bottling of spirits in bond.
6072. Inspection, etc., of spirits bottled for export; drawback.
6073. Tax on deficiency of spirits bottled.
6074. Tax on spirits entered for export if case opened, or marks, etc., removed, changed, etc.
6075. Reusing stamp or bottle, and other violations of act, punishable.
6076. Forging stamps, etc., punishable.
6077. Bottled spirits subject to State law.
6078. Power of officers to detain packages on suspicion.
6079. Forfeiture of spirits unlawfully removed from distillery.
6080. Store-keeper unlawfully removing or allowing to be removed, etc.
6081. Store-keepers' warehouse-books and returns.
6082. Store-keepers to have charge of distillery and keep account of materials used, etc.
6083. Distillers' books; entries to be made.
6084. Books to be open to inspection and preserved two years.
6085. False entries, or omitting to keep or produce books; penalty.
6086. Using false weights or measures in ascertaining materials; penalty; using unregistered materials; penalty.
6087. Distillers' returns of production to collector.
6088. Distillers' returns of the number of barrels distilled.
6089. Monthly examination of distiller's return, etc.

Sec.
6090. Assessments for deficiency in production.
6091. Remission and refunding of assessments for deficient production of distillery.
6092. When distilling deemed commenced; suspension of work; penalty.
6093. Reduction of capacity; penalty.
6094. Stamps, how prepared and issued.
6095. Stamps, form of, how used.
6096. Accountability for stamp-books.
6097. Restamping tax-paid spirits, tobacco, etc., when stamps lost or destroyed.
6098. Officer using, or issuing, or permitting use of stamps, contrary to law; penalty.
6099. Rectifier's returns; penalty for unlawfully rectifying.
6100. Books to be kept by rectifiers and wholesale dealers; penalty; monthly transcript; penalty.
6101. Purchase of quantities greater than twenty gallons from one person, etc.
6102. Gauging, inspection, and stamping of rectified spirits.
6102a. Casks or packages dumped for rectification, or received from rectification, to be gauged, marked, etc., by gauger or by rectifier.
6103. Filling blanks, and affixing and protecting stamps.
6104. Spirits drawn into new packages to be gauged and branded; returns; forfeitures.
6105. Stamps and brands to be effaced from empty casks; penalty for omitting to efface, and for transporting in violation of law.
6106. Buying or selling spirit-casks having inspection-marks.
6107. Changing stamps, shifting spirits, etc.; penalty.
6108. Affixing imitation stamps on packages of distilled spirits; penalty.
6109. Removal within certain hours from distillery or rectifier's premises.
6110. (Superseded.)
6110a. What constitutes natural wine; what constitutes wine within meaning of act; sweetening of wine.
6110b. [a] Rate of tax on still wines and combinations sold as wine; classification of wines; abatement or refundment in case of payment of tax under other acts.
[b] Payment of tax to be made by affixing stamp; notice, bond and inventories; affixing stamps; not to apply to wines held by retail dealers defined by R. S. § 3244, or wines produced for family use; issuance of stamps; collection before stamps are prepared.
[c] Withdrawal of grape brandy or wine spirits from distillery or special bonded warehouse for fortification of wines; tax on wines; exemptions from payment of tax.
6111. Use of wine spirits to fortify pure sweet wines.
6112. Wine spirits and sweet wine defined.
6113. (Superseded.)
6114. Withdrawal of wine spirits from warehouse or registered distillery for fortifying sweet wines.
6114a. Removal of domestic wines to bonded premises; number of removals; tax on product of wines used as material.
6114b. Amount of tax payable on domestic and imported sparkling wines; regulations, etc.; exception of wines, etc., on which tax has been paid under other acts; preparation of revenue stamps; application of other laws; collection of tax by assessment instead of by stamps.
6114c. Penalty for violation of act; forfeiture of wines, etc.; prohibition as to mixing or blending not applicable; use of tax paid grain or other ethyl alcohol for fortification purposes.
6114d. Requiring use of spirit meters, locks, seals; assignment of gaugers or storekeeper-gaugers; compensation of gaugers.
6114e. Allowance for unavoidable loss of wines.
6114f. Rules and regulations.
6115. Withdrawal of wine spirits for fortifying wines for exportation.
6116. Reimportation of domestic wines exported.
6117. Unlawful use of wine spirits, not tax-paid, punishable.
6118. Recovery of wine spirits from fortified wines.
6119. Special gaugers for supervision of fortification of wines; compensation; bonds.
6120. Fermenting vats for manufacture of wines or of brandy for fortification thereof.
6121. Remission of tax on grape brandy accidentally destroyed.
6122. Unlawful recovery of spirits from fortified wines; penalty; blending fortified wines.
6123. Tax on alcoholic compounds coming from Porto Rico.
6124. Drawback on distilled spirits.
6125. Exportation of distilled spirits withdrawn from bonded warehouses.

Sec.
6126. Transportation bond on withdrawal of distilled spirits from bonded warehouse for exportation; export bond.
6127. Expense of providing and affixing stamps for casks for exportation.
6127a. Transfer in tanks or tank cars of distilled spirits for export.
6128. Release of distillery before judgment, in what cases.
6129. Distillery to be destroyed in certain cases of forfeiture; witnesses of destruction; reimbursement.
6130. When burden of proof is on claimant of spirits seized.
6131. Spirits sold under judicial process subject to tax; sale of spirits for taxes.
6132. Denatured alcohol for use in arts, etc., free of tax.
6133. Denatured alcohol for manufacture of chemicals, free of tax; rum.
6134. Central denaturing bonded warehouses authorized.
6135. Transfer of alcohol for denaturation from distilleries to denaturing bonded warehouses or to central denaturing plants.
6136. Unlawful use of alcohol withdrawn, etc., punishable.
6137. Manufacture of alcohol free of tax for denaturation.

§ 5981. (R. S. § 3247.) Distiller, definition of.

Every person who produces distilled spirits, or who brews or makes mash, wort, or wash, fit for distillation or for the production of spirits, or who, by any process of evaporization, separates alcoholic spirit from any fermented substance, or who, making or keeping mash, wort, or wash, has also in his possession or use a still, shall be regarded as a distiller.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 59, 15 Stat. 150.

Notes of Decisions

See note under § 5842.

General purpose of statute.—The provisions of this chapter were adopted solely to secure the payment of the tax imposed by law on distilled spirits. U. S. v. Ulrici (1884) 4 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 111 U. S. 38, 28 L. Ed. 344.

The general purpose of the internal revenue law of July 20, 1868 (chapter 186), so far as relates to distilled spirits, is to lay a tax upon the product of distillation known as proof-spirits. (1868) 12 Op. Atty. Gen. 523.

The act has made decisive and peremptory distinctions between the production of proof-spirits and the rectification or purification or the production of other forms of alcoholic compounds. Id.

Distillers.—A manufacturer of vanilla or ginger extract by mixing the comminuted vanilla beans or ginger root with alcohol in a percolator, and who afterward recovers a part of the alcohol remaining in the mixture for reuse by distillation, is not a distiller within this section. Henry K. Wampole & Co. v. U. S. (1911) 191 Fed. 573, 112 C. C. A. 633, certiorari denied (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 840, 225 U. S. 710, 56 L. Ed. 1268.

A rectifier of spirits distilled from domestic materials is not a distiller of spirituous liquors, within the meaning of Act July 24, 1813. U. S. v. Tenbroek (C. C. 1815) Fed. Cas. No. 16,446.

If a rectifier, by any process, manufactures spirits from fruits or berries, saloon washings containing fermented substances, or from sour beer, he becomes a distiller. R. S. §§ 3259, 3260, post, §§ 5994, 5995. U. S. v. Marshall (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,726.

To make one in possession of a still a distiller, because he keeps mash, wort, or wash, the mash, wort, or wash kept must be such as will produce spirits on distillation. U. S. v. Frerichs (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 15,166.

And a person who makes alcoholic vapor in the process of making vinegar by machinery, which is not adapted to the condensation of such vapor is not a distiller. Act July 13, 1866, §§ 21, 23; Act March 2, § 16. U. S. v. One Still (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 15,956.

A manufacturer of vinegar, who, in the process, produces a fluid containing from 5 to 7 per cent. of spirits, with machinery which is not capable of producing a higher per cent., is not bound to take out a distiller's license. U. S. v. Two Barrels (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 16,575.

Under Act March 2, 1867, § 16, a manufacturer of vinegar is not a distiller, although he uses a patent apparatus in which a mash, fermented in the same manner as for the production of whisky, is used. One Vaporizer (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 10,537.

All persons having an interest in the business of distilling or directly aiding in the production of spirits for their use or benefit are distillers, and amenable to the provisions of the internal revenue laws. U. S. v. Howard (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 15,401.

A vinegar manufacturer is liable as a distiller if, by the process used, he obtains alcohol from his mash so that he is saved the expense of purchasing the alcohol necessary for the manufacture of vinegar. U. S. v. Steen & Cwergius' Factory (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 16,383; Same v. Distillery (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 14,960.

A person is liable for illicit distilling under Act July 20, 1868, where the spirits extracted partake of the qualities of alcohol, irrespective of their degree of strength. U. S. v. Bagwell (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 14,494.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; U. S. v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411, 414.

§ 5982. (R. S. § 3248.) Distilled spirits, definition of.

Distilled spirits, spirits, alcohol, and alcoholic spirit, within the true intent and meaning of this act, is that substance known as ethyl alcohol, hydrated oxide of ethyl, or spirit of wine, which is commonly produced by the fermentation of grain, starch, molasses, or sugar, including all dilutions and mixtures of this substance; and the tax shall attach to this substance as soon as it is in existence as such, whether it be subsequently separated as pure or impure spirit, or be immediately, or at any subsequent time, transferred into any other substance, either in the process of original production or by any subsequent process.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 4, 15 Stat. 126.

Wine spirits and pure sweet wine were defined by Act Oct. 1, 1890, c. 1244, § 43, as amended by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 68, Act June 7, 1906, c. 3046, § 1, Act Oct. 22, 1914, c. 331, § 2, 38 Stat. 747, and Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 402(c), post, § 6112.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 6125, post.

Medicinal preparation.—Under this section and section 5971, subd. 4, ante, it was held that, where a druggist, without paying the internal revenue tax imposed on retail liquor dealers, sold a medicinal preparation which was 88 per cent. proof spirits, more than sufficient to preserve the medicinal properties of any herbs, roots, or drugs contained therein, he was a retail liquor dealer within such section. U. S. v. Morfew (D. C. 1905) 136 Fed. 491.

Bay rum.—Bay rum is not within the enumeration of "distilled spirits," defined in this section as "ethyl alcohol, * * * including all dilutions and mixtures of this substance." Anderson v. Newhall (1908) 161 Fed. 906, 88 C. C. A. 511.

"Bay rum" is a fragrant spirit, obtained by distilling the leaves of the pimenta acris with rum, or by mixing the volatile oil procured from the leaves by distillation with alcohol, water, and acetic ether. It is also defined as an aromatic liquid obtained by distilling the leaves with the bayberry, or by mixing various oils, as the oils of myrica, of orange peel, and of pimenta, with alcohol. Under the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals, it must be held that it is neither a "distilled spirit," as that term is defined by this section, nor a "product of distillation," within section 5989, post, providing for internal revenue taxation of products of distillation as distilled spirits. Roche v. Jordan (C. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 234.

Vermuth as wine.—Vermuth is not "wine" within either the commercial or the popular meaning of that term, and therefore is not subject to the stamp tax on "sparkling or other wines," provided in War Revenue Act June 13, 1898, c. 448, 30 Stat. 463. Treat v. Taylor (1908) 166 Fed. 1021, 91 C. C. A. 330, affirming judgment Taylor v. Treat (C. C. 1907) 153 Fed. 656.

Soakage of barrel of spirits.—Under this section, declaring it to be the true intent and meaning of internal revenue laws that all "distilled spirits, spirits, alcohol, and alcoholic spirit," shall be subject to the tax, the soakage of a barrel of spirits is liable to taxation if, by any process, it is extracted from the wood, so as to become merchantable. It is no obstacle to the collection of the tax thereon that the usual allowance for soakage was originally made on the package, the tax then paid, and the proper stamps affixed, or that there are no specific regulations by the commissioner of internal revenue for the collection of the tax on soakage so extracted. Hunter v. E. S. Corning & Co. (1898) 86 Fed. 913, 30 C. C. A. 483.

When tax attaches.—Under the internal revenue laws, the tax on spirts attaches as soon as they come into existence, and must be paid by the manufacturer, even in case of their destruction, unless the circumstances on which he relies for exemption come within the particular description in some one of the remedial statutes.

of tax on distilled spirits deposited in a bonded warehouse prior to Aug. 1, 1872, was temporary merely, and is omitted.

The tax on distilled spirits was increased to 90 cents on each proof gallon, or wine gallon when below proof, to be paid by the distiller, owner, or person in possession thereof before removal from the distillery bonded warehouse, and so much of this section as is inconsistent with these provisions was repealed by Act March 3, 1875, c. 127, § 1, 18 Stat. 339. The tax was increased to $1.10 on each proof gallon, or wine gallon when below proof, a proportionate tax at a like rate on fractional parts of such proof or wine gallon, excluding fractional parts less than one-tenth, to be paid by the distiller on or before the removal from the distillery or place of storage, by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 48, post, § 5986.

The word "seventy," in this section, inclosed in brackets, was superseded by said subsequent provisions.

Notes of Decisions

1. Tax as constitutional.
2. Construction of former laws.
3. Statute in force in Alaska.
4. When tax becomes due.
5. Increase or reduction of tax.
6. Rate of tax.
7. Tax on fractional part of gallon.
8. Liability for tax on illicit spirits.
9. Persons interested in use of distillery, etc.
10. Proprietor defined.
11. Liability of municipal corporation.
12. Tax on bay rum imported from Porto Rico.
13. Lien and enforcement thereof.

See notes under §§ 5908, 5982, and 5983, ante.

1. Tax as constitutional.—The tax imposed on distillers is constitutional. U. S. v. Singer (1872) 15 Wall. 111, 121, 21 L. Ed. 49.

2. Construction of former laws.—Construction of acts of March 3, 1791, May 8, 1792, Feb. 18, 1793, and April 6, 1802, in relation to the duties on domestic distilled spirits. U. S. v. Sweeney (D. C. 1859) Fed. Cas. No. 16,426.

3. Statute in force in Alaska.—Act July 20, 1868, imposing a tax on distilled spirits, being a general act, and passed since the acquisition of Alaska, is in force there. U. S. v. Seveloff (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 16,252.

4. When tax becomes due.—The internal revenue tax on spirits becomes due as soon as the spirits are produced. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. U. S. (C. C. A. 1914) 220 Fed. 592.

5. Increase or reduction of tax.—When distilled spirits are only proof as defined by section 5983, ante, or less than proof, the tax is to be levied and collected by the wine gallon pursuant to this section; but, if the spirits are above proof, the excess is to be determined, and the tax thereon increased proportionately. Louisville Public Warehouse Co. v. Collector of Customs (1892) 49 Fed. 561, 567, 1 C. C. A. 371.

Spirits in a bonded warehouse at the time of the passage of Act March 7, 1864, are subject to the additional duty imposed by section 7. Westfall v. Shook (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 17,448.

The statute which took effect March 3, 1875, changed the rate of duty upon spirituous liquors from 70 cents to 90 cents. An assessment was made for a period previous to and including March 3d at 70 cents. Held, that though the statute was in force during the whole of March 3d, so that the rate for that day should have been 90 cents, the taxpayer could not, on that account, dispute the validity of the assessment. U. S. v. O'Neill (C. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 567.

Act July 20, 1868, reducing the tax on distilled spirits, but requiring payment on the quantity manufactured, instead of the quantity remaining when it was withdrawn from bond, as under prior acts, and which took effect by its terms as to "all distilled spirits on which the tax prescribed by law has not been paid," as applied to spirits which had been previously placed in a bonded warehouse and had not been withdrawn, required payment of the tax upon the quantity in existence when the act was passed; being neither retroactive, so as to tax spirits which had, prior to its enactment, become lost by leakage, soakage, or evaporation, nor affected by a custom of the department, continued for a time after its passage, to accept payment on the quantity shown by a regauge at the time of withdrawal. Burrough v. Abel (C. C. 1900) 100 Fed. 66.

6. Rate of tax.—The tax must be paid at the rate prescribed by the law in force at the time the bond was given. U. S. v. Dutcher (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,014.

7. Tax on fractional part of gallon.—Spirits were manufactured and placed in bond prior to July 20, 1868. Upon withdrawal, on July 26, 1869, plaintiff was required to pay taxes on 13.86 gallons more than the number of proof gallons, through the reckoning by the collector of each fraction of a gallon left over in each package, after the number of whole gallons therein had been counted, as a whole gallon. Held, in view of Act July 20, 1868 (15 Stat. 125), plaintiff could not recover the amount of the taxes collected on these extra gallons. Stuart v. Barnes (C. C. 1890) 43 Fed. 281.

8. Liability for tax on illicit spirits.—Knowledge by defendant that illicit spirits were being manufactured on the premises does not render him liable for the tax. U. S. v. Van Slyke (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 16,610.

9. Persons interested in use of distillery, etc.—The stockholders of a corporation engaged in operating a distillery are "persons interested in the use of the distillery," within this section. U. S. v. Wolters (C. C. 1891) 46 Fed. 509; Richter v. Henningsan (1895) 42 P. 1077, 110 Cal. 530.

A person is not liable for the tax unless he has a direct interest in the business. An interest as lessor, or as a creditor who expected to collect his claim if the business proved successful, is not sufficient. U. S. v. Van Slyke (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 16,-610.

The terms of this section, namely, "every person in any manner interested in the use of any still, distillery, or distilling apparatus shall be jointly and severally liable for the taxes imposed by law on the distilled spirits produced therefrom," include stockholders of private corporations engaged in distilling for gain. (1877) 15 Op. Atty. Gen. 559.

The stockholders of a corporation engaged in the business of distilling cannot properly be accepted as sureties upon the bond required of the corporation by section 6034, post, even if their individual liability for the debts of the corporation is, by the terms of the charter, limited to the amount of their stock. Such stockholders being already jointly and severally liable, under the provisions of this section, for the taxes imposed upon the spirits manufactured by the corporation, no additional security for the payment thereof would be gained by their suretyship. (1878) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 10.

The liability imposed upon the stockholders by the internal revenue law is a liability distinct from that which they are under as such to the public with whom the corporation deals; it is a liability imposed by reason of the business in which the corporation whereof they are stockholders is engaged. Id.

10. Proprietor defined.—The word "proprietor" is used in the sense of an owner who has the exclusive right to and control over the premises, and includes a lessee. U. S. v. Van Slyke (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 16,610.

11. Liability of municipal corporation.—A municipal corporation which engages in the business of distilling and selling ardent spirits is none the less liable for the internal revenue taxes thereon, because it had no authority under its charter to engage in the business. City of Salt Lake City v. Hollister (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 1055, 118 U. S. 256, 30 L. Ed. 176, affirming (1882) 3 Utah, 200, 2 Pac. 200.

12. Tax on bay rum imported from Porto Rico.—The Circuit Court of Appeals having previously determined that under Foraker Act April 12, 1900, C.—§ 3, ante, § 3749, providing for the taxation of imports from Porto Rico, Porto Rican bay rum was not subject to customs duties because not distilled spirits nor the product of distillation, taxable under this section and section 5989, post, such construction could not be affected by the subsequent passage of Act Cong. Feb. 4, 1909, post, § 6123, declaring that on bay rum or any article containing alcohol afterwards brought from Porto Rico into the United States a tax should be paid on any spirits contained therein. Roche v. Jordan (C. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 234.

13. Lien and enforcement thereof.—The tax being a first lien, sureties on a bond of a distiller have the right to insist that, when the spirits are seized and sold by the United States for any reason whatever, the proceeds shall be first applied to the payment of the taxes and the bond thereby discharged. U. S. v. Ulrici (1884) 4 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 290, 111 U. S. 38, 28 L. Ed. 344.

Under this section and section 5999, post, declaring that, where a distiller does not own the land on which his distillery is situated, he must file with the collector the written consent of the owner of the fee, or of any mortgagee, judgment creditor, or other person having a lien thereon, that the premises may be used for the purpose of distilling spirits, and stipulating that the lien of the United States for taxes shall have priority of such mortgage, etc., it was held that the consent provided for in section 5999, post, passes no interest in the land to the distiller, but merely gives to the United States a first lien for the taxes that may be due from him. Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co. (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 825, 830, 135 U. S. 326, 34 L. Ed. 162.

The lien can be enforced only by a suit in equity, in which the owners of the fee in the land, or of incumbrances on it, are made parties. Id.

The government has a first lien on spirits until the tax is paid. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. U. S. (C. C. A. 1914) 220 Fed. 592.

Failure of a purchaser of property leased for a distillery, with covenants to be subject to the lien of taxes and penalties, to appeal from an assessment thereon, precludes him, in a subsequent action against the collector, from showing that no tax or penalty was in fact due. Milan Distilling Co. v. Tillson (C. C. 1880) Fed. Cas. No. 9,539.

The lien of the government for its tax, and its possession by a storekeeper, is not a proprietary right. Hedger v. Union Ins. Co. (C. C. 1883) 17 Fed. 498.

Act 1867, making the land on which whisky is distilled liable for the tax, does not apply where one distills on another's land without his consent. Gudger v. Bates (1874) 52 Ga. 285.

The lien of the United States for taxes on distilled spirits under the acts of July 13, 1866, and March 2, 1867, is valid against subsequent judgments on the distiller's real and personal estate. U. S. v. Black (Pa. 1869) 3 Brewst. 166.

Personal property of a distiller, not located on the distillery premises nor used in the process of distilling, is not subject to the lien for taxes on the spirits. Id.

The lien of the United States for tax upon distilled spirits under the acts of July 13, 1866, and March 2, 1867, is valid against subsequent judgments on the real and personal estate of the distiller. Id.

Where a distillery is sold on execution issuing out of a state court, the lien of the United States for taxes on distilled spirits must be first paid out of the proceeds of the execution sale, which priority will be recognized in the state court. Appeal of Dungan (1871) 68 Pa. (18 P. F. Smith) 204, 8 Am. Rep. 169.

Where the state court has issued execution against property used for a distillery, the property cannot be sold under the lien of the United States for taxes, but the taxes will be paid first out of the proceeds under the execution sale. Id.

See, also, notes under § 5982, ante.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Boecker (1874) 21 Wall. 652, 653, 22 L. Ed. 472; Hartman v. Bean (1878) 99 U. S. 393, 25 L. Ed. 455; Solomons v. U. S. (1890). 11 Sup. Ct. 88, 89, 137 U. S. 342, 34 L. Ed. 667; Jordan v. Roche (1913) 33 Sup. Ct. 573, 228 U. S. 436, 57 L. Ed. 908; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Crystal Springs Distillery Co. v. Cox (1892) 49 Fed. 555, 557, 1 C. C. A. 365; Anderson v. Newhall (1908) 161 Fed. 906, 88 C. C. A. 511; Pattison v. Dale (1912) 196 Fed. 5, 115 C. C. A. 639; Louisville Public Warehouse Co. v. Surveyor of Port at Louisville (C. C. 1891) 48 Fed. 372, 374; U. S. v. Peace (C. C. 1892) 48 Fed. 714, 715; Same v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411, 414.

§ 5986. (Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 48.) Tax on distilled spirits; stamps; time for payment of tax; deposit in warehouse.

On and after the passage of this Act there shall be levied and collected on all distilled spirits in bond at that time, or that have been or that may be then or thereafter produced in the United States, on which the tax is not paid before that day, a tax of one dollar and ten cents on each proof gallon, or wine gallon when below proof, and a proportionate tax at a like rate on all fractional parts of such proof or wine gallon: Provided, That in computing the tax on any package of spirits all fractional parts of a gallon, less than one tenth, shall be excluded. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall prescribe and furnish suitable stamps denoting the payment of the internal-revenue tax imposed by this section; and until such stamps are prepared and furnished, the stamps now used to denote the payment of the internal-revenue tax on distilled spirits shall be affixed to all packages containing distilled spirits on which the tax imposed by this section is paid; and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall, by assessment or otherwise, cause to be collected the tax on any fractional gallon contained in each of such packages as ascertained by the original gauge, or regauge when made, before or at the time of removal of such packages from warehouse or other place of storage; and all provisions of existing laws relating to stamps denoting the payment of internal-revenue tax on distilled spirits, so far as applicable, are hereby extended to the stamps provided for in this section. That the tax herein imposed shall be paid by the distiller of the spirits, on or before their removal from the distillery or place of storage, except in case the removal therefrom without payment of tax is authorized by law; and (upon spirits lawfully deposited in any distillery warehouse, or other bonded warehouse, established under internal-revenue laws) within eight years from the date of the original entry for deposit in any distillery warehouse, or from the date of original gauge of fruit brandy deposited in special-bonded warehouse, except in case of withdrawal therefrom without payment of tax as authorized by law. (28 Stat. 563.)

This section was part of the Wilson Tariff Act, cited above.

This section modified R. S. § 3251, ante, § 5985, and superseded the provision fixing the tax at 90 cents a gallon contained in Act March 3, 1875, c. 127, § 1, 18 Stat. 339.

Provisions for drawing off distilled spirits into packages, and for gauging, proving, marking, branding, and stamping the packages, were made by R. S. § 3287, as amended by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 6, Act Feb. 21, 1899, c. 177, and Act March 2, 1911, c. 199, incorporated into said section, set forth post, § 6028.

Provisions for gauging, stamping, and branding spirits removed from warehouses were made by R. S. § 3295, as amended by Act July 16, 1892, c. 196, § 1, incorporated into said section, post, § 6037.

Provisions for the preparation and issuance of stamps required for distilled spirits were made by R. S. § 3312, post, § 6094.

The failure to efface stamps from empty casks and the changing of stamps and shifting spirits were punishable by R. S. §§ 3324, 3326, post, §§ 6105, 6107.

Special bonded warehouses for fruit brandy were authorized by Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, and Act Oct. 18, 1888, c. 1194, post, §§ 6039–6050.

General bonded warehouses for spirits were authorized by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 51, post, § 6058.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 5985, ante.

When tax is due.—The tax on distilled spirits is due the moment they are produced, and must be paid, even if they are afterwards destroyed by leakage or fire. Mason v. Peabody (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 9,250.

Payment of tax.—A distiller sold certain casks of unstamped spirits to plaintiff, which were then in the government warehouse, and on March 10, 1902, plaintiff paid the tax on the spirits, but before the attachment of stamps the spirits were seized on the same day for violation of the internal revenue law by the distiller, discovered March 4, 1902, after which the spirits were forfeited to the government and sold. Held that, as this section requires the payment of the tax by the distiller and the issuance of stamps to him, plaintiff was not entitled to recover from the United States the internal revenue tax so paid. Harkins v. Williard (1906) 146 Fed. 703, 77 C. C. A. 129.

The purpose of Congress in adopting this amendment was to provide that only the distiller should have a right to apply to the commissioner of internal revenue for the settlement of a controversy as to the payment of taxes. Id.

Taxation by state of liquors in bonded warehouse.—The taxation of liquors in bonded warehouses within the state, provided for by Laws Md. 1892, c. 704, as amended by Laws 1900, c. 320, under which the proprietors of such warehouses were required to pay the taxes, and were given a lien on the property therefor, is within the powers of the state, despite the facts that there is no specific provision giving the proprietor who pays the taxes a right to recover interest thereon, that, under federal legislation, distilled spirits may be left in a warehouse for several years, and that for spirits so in bond negotiable warehouse receipts have been issued. Carstairs v. Cochran (1904) 24 Sup. Ct. 318, 319, 193 U. S. 10, 48 L. Ed. 596.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; U. S. v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411, 415.

§ 5987. (R. S. § 3252.) Adding substances to create fictitious proof; penalty.

Every person who adds or causes to be added any ingredient or substance to any distilled spirits before the tax is paid thereon, for the purpose of creating a fictitious proof, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each cask or package so adulterated, and imprisoned not less than three months nor more than two years; and every such cask or package, with its contents, shall be forfeited to the United States.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 38, 15 Stat. 141.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 5988. (R. S. § 3253.) Tax on spirits removed without deposit in warehouse.

The tax upon any distilled spirits, removed from the place where they were distilled and not deposited in bonded warehouse as required by law, shall, at any time, when knowledge of such fact is obtained by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, be assessed by him upon the distiller of the same, and returned to the collector, who shall immediately demand payment of such tax, and, upon the neglect or refusal of payment by the distiller, shall proceed to collect the same by distraint. But this provision shall not exclude any other remedy or proceeding provided by law.

Act March 2, 1867, c. 169, § 14, 14 Stat. 481. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 2, 17 Stat. 402.

Notes of Decisions

Suit to recover taxes assessed under statute.—The defendants in a suit on a distiller's bond, instituted for the recovery of internal revenue taxes assessed under this section, have no legal right to the use at the trial of the reports, documents and other papers on file in the office of the Commissioner upon which the Commissioner acted in making the inquiries and determinations contemplated by section 5904, ante, and from which he derived the information that, in whole or in part, formed the basis of the assessment. Nor has the court authority to compel the production of such papers (1878) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 24.

Cited without definite application, Hartman v. Bean (1878) 99 U. S. 393, 25 L. Ed. 455; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; U. S. v. Allen (C. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 263, 267.

§ 5989. (R. S. § 3254.) Products of distillation containing spirits.

All products of distillation, by whatever name known, which contain distilled spirits or alcohol, on which the tax imposed by law has not been paid, shall be considered and taxed as distilled spirits.

Res. Feb. 5, 1867, No. 11, § 1, 14 Stat. 565.

Notes of Decisions

Bay rum.—"Bay rum" is a fragrant spirit, obtained by distilling the leaves of the pimenta acris with rum, or by mixing the volatile oil procured from the leaves by distillation with alcohol, water, and acetic ether. It is also defined as an aromatic liquid obtained by distilling the leaves with the bayberry, or by mixing various oils, as the oils of myrica, of orange peel, and of pimenta, with alcohol. Under the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals, it must be held that it is neither a "distilled spirit," as that term is defined by section 5982, ante, nor a "product of distillation," within section 5989, providing for internal revenue taxation of products of distillation as distilled spirits. Roche v. Jordan (C. C. 1909) 175 Fed. 234.

The Circuit Court of Appeals having previously determined that under Foraker Act April 12, 1900, § 3, ante, § 3749, providing for the taxation of imports from Porto Rico, Porto Rican bay rum was not subject to customs duties because not distilled spirits nor the product of distillation, taxable under this section and section 5985, ante, such construction could not be affected by the subsequent passage of Act Feb. 4, 1909, post, § 6123, declaring that on bay rum or any article containing alcohol afterwards brought from Porto Rico into the United States a tax should be paid on any spirits contained therein. Id.

Cited without definite application, Jordan v. Roche (1913) 33 Sup. Ct. 573, 228 U. S. 436, 57 L. Ed. 908; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Anderson v. Newhall (1908) 161 Fed. 906, 88 C. C. A. 511; U. S. v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411, 414.

§ 5990. (R. S. § 3255, as amended, Act June 3, 1896, c. 309, Act Feb. 4, 1901, c. 195, Act March 2, 1911, c. 198, and Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 404.) Brandy made from apples, peaches, grapes, etc.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may exempt distillers of brandy made exclusively from apples, peaches, grapes, pears, pineapples, oranges, apricots, berries, plums, pawpaws, persimmons, prunes, figs, or cherries from any provision of this title relating to the manufacture of spirits except as to the tax thereon, when in his judgment it may seem expedient to do so: Provided, That where, in manufacture of wine, artificial sweetening has been used the wine or the fruit pomace residuum may be used in the distillation of brandy, as such use shall not prevent the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, from exempting such distiller from any provision of this title relating to the manufacture of spirits, except as to the tax thereon, when in his judgment it may seem expedient to do so: And provided further, That the distillers mentioned in this section may add to not less than five hundred gallons (or ten barrels) of grape cheese not more than five hundred gallons of a sugar solution made from cane, beet, starch, or corn sugar, ninety-five per centum pure, such solution to have a saccharine strength of not to exceed ten per centum, and may ferment the resultant mixture on a winery or distillery premises, and such fermented product shall be regarded as distilling material. (39 Stat. 788.)

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 2, 15 Stat. 125. Act June 3, 1896, c. 309, 29 Stat. 195. Act Feb. 4, 1901, c. 195, 31 Stat. 759. Act March 2, 1911, c. 198, 36 Stat. 1014. Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 404, 39 Stat. 788.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by adding pears, pineapples, oranges, apricots, berries, and prunes to the list of fruits mentioned by Act June 3, 1896, c. 309, cited above. It was further amended by adding figs and cherries to such list of fruits, by Act Feb. 8, 1901, c. 195, cited above. It was further amended by adding plums, pawpaws, and persimmons to such list of fruits, and by adding the proviso at the end of the section, making it read as set forth here, by Act March 2, 1911, c. 198, last cited above.

Special bonded warehouses for fruit brandy are authorized and regulated by Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, and Act Oct. 18, 1888, c. 1194, post, under Rev. St. § 3296.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, is authorized to exempt small distilleries from certain provisions of this chapter, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, post, § 5991.

This section was § 404 of an act entitled "An act to increase the revenue, and for other purposes," cited above. The amendatory act adds a second proviso to the section as amended by Act March 2, 1911. In other respects the provision remains the same.

Notes of Decisions

Regulations authorized by statute.—The regulations of April 22, 1869, were authorized by the act of July 20, 1868, § 2. U. S. v. Thirty-Seven Barrels of Apple Brandy (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,466.

Exemption from special tax.—Distillers of brandy from apples, peaches, and grapes, exclusively, may be exempted, in the discretion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and the Secretary of the Interior, from the provision of the fifty-ninth section of Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, levying a special tax of $4 a barrel upon distilled spirits. (1868) 12 Op. Atty. Gen. 514.

Cited without definite application, Solomons v. U. S. (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 88, 89, 137 U. S. 342, 34 L. Ed. 667; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; U. S. v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411, 415; Same v. Three Packages of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 52, reversed (1904) 129 Fed. 329, 63 C. C. A. 263.

§ 5991. (Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5.) Small distilleries may be exempted from certain requirements.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may exempt distillers whose distilleries have a daily spirit-producing capacity of thirty gallons of proof spirits, or less, from such of the provisions of existing law in regard to grain distilleries which require the processes of distillation to be carried on through continuous closed vessels and pipes, or which require the cisterns to be connected with the outlet of the worm or condenser by suitable pipes or other apparatus or which require certain clear spaces about the cisterns and other vessels of the distillery, or which require the distillers to have or furnish a plan of the distillery, as he may deem proper. (20 Stat. 336.)

This was a provision of an act to amend the laws relating to internal revenue, cited above.

The requirements mentioned in this section were prescribed by R. S. §§ 3263, 3267, post, §§ 6001, 6005.

§ 5992. (R. S. § 3256.) Evading tax; penalty.

Whenever any person evades, or attempts to evade, the payment of the tax on any distilled spirits, in any manner whatever, he shall forfeit and pay double the amount of the tax so evaded or attempted to be evaded.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 39, 15 Stat. 141.
As to fortification of wines, see § 6114c, post.

Cited without definite application, Coffey v. U. S. (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 437, 439, 116 U. S. 436, 29 L. Ed. 684; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 5993. (R. S. § 3257.) Distiller defrauding or attempting to defraud United States of tax on spirits.

Whenever any person engaged in carrying on the business of a distiller defrauds or attempts to defraud the United States of the tax on the spirits distilled by him, or of any part thereof, he shall forfeit the distillery and distilling-apparatus used by him, and all distilled spirits and all raw materials for the production of distilled spirits found in the distillery and on the distillery premises, and shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and be imprisoned not less than six months nor more than three years.

Act March 31, 1868, c. 41, § 5, 15 Stat. 59.
Violation of act relating to tax on wines, see post, § 6114c.

Notes of Decisions

1. Repeal of statute.
2. Effect of statute as repealing former law.
3. Rights of participants in fraud.
4. Forfeitures in general.
5. Unlawful removal of spirits.
6. Forfeiture of distillery as bar to prosecution of stockholder personally.
7. Who may contest forfeiture proceedings.
8. Evidence required in forfeiture proceedings.
9. Distiller of apple brandy as subject to indictment under statute.
10. Indictment or information.
11. General verdict on several counts.
12. Judgment of acquittal as bar to suit.

See § 5966, ante, and § 6021, post, and notes thereunder. See also, notes under § 6355, post.

1. Repeal of statute.—This section is not repealed by section 6039 et seq., post, providing for the establishment of a bonded warehouse exclusively for the storage of grape brandy, removal of such spirits thereto, their deposit and withdrawal, etc., and Act October 18, 1888, section 6050, post, extending the provisions of the act of March 3, 1877, to distillers of all fruit brandies. U. S. v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411.

2. Effect of statute as repealing former law.—Act July 13, 1866, § 23, was not repealed by this statute, which provides a more severe punishment, as the statutes cover different subject-matters. U. S. v. Cushman (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 14,906.

3. Rights of participants in fraud.—Where plaintiff and his bookkeeper shared the gains from a sale of whisky sold in fraud of revenue laws, and the sales were affected through the bookkeeper as agent of his employer, the fact that the bookkeeper was the more immediate participant in the fraud will not enable his partner in the transaction to recover his share of the illicit gains. Curran v. Downs (1879) 7 Mo. App. 329.

4. Forfeitures in general.—A forfeiture for a violation of the law extends to the interest of the mortgagee. U. S. v. Seven Barrels Distilled Oil (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 16,253: All the Distilled Spirits, etc., Found at the Distillery of England v. Evans (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 3,923; U. S. v. Twenty Barrels of Distilled Spirits, Id. 16,558.

A bona fide purchaser for value, prior to seizure, is protected. U. S. v. Sixty-Four Barrels Distilled Spirits (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,306; Same v. Three Hundred and Ninety-Six Barrels of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 16,504; Same v. Three Hundred and Seventy-Two Pipes of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 16,505.

Distilled spirits are subject to forfeiture for misconduct of the distiller, even though the tax on the same may have been paid in full. Harkins v. Williard (1906) 146 Fed. 703, 77 C. C. A. 129.

The intention of congress must be manifest and unmistakable to justify the courts in construing a law imposing a forfeiture as extending to property which, before seizure, had been sold to an innocent purchaser. U. S. v. One Hundred Barrels of Spirits (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 15,948.

This section, in declaring that a dis-tiller shall forfeit the distillery and distillery apparatus used by him, means "shall subject to forfeiture." U. S. v. Distillery at Spring Valley (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 14,963.

Under this section no proof is required of the actual complicity of the owner of the property to be forfeited in the fraud or other thing which causes the forfeiture. Id.

Where forfeited spirits have been mixed, though in good faith, with spirits which have paid the tax, so that they can no longer be distinguished, the entire amount is forfeited to the government. U. S. v. Fifty-Six Barrels of Whisky (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 15,095; Same v. Fifty-Four Barrels of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 15,093.

A forfeiture under Act June 30, 1864, § 68, and the penalty of $500 therein prescribed, are independent of any other penalties named, and are cumulative. U. S. v. Three Hundred and Ninety-Six Barrels Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 16,502.

In the absence of any express declaration that the forfeiture shall be instantaneous upon the commission of the forbidden acts, the forfeiture relates only to the time of seizure. U. S. v. Three Hundred and Ninety-Six Barrels Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 16,503.

The volunteering of information by the owner after knowledge that his violations of law had been discovered will not save a forfeiture. Id.

After an officer and stockholder of a corporation engaged in distilling is convicted for a violation of the internal revenue law, an action cannot be maintained to enforce the forfeiture of the corporation's property for the same offense, even though the forfeiture is resisted only by the other stockholders. U. S. v. One Distillery (D. C. 1890) 43 Fed. 846, following Same v. McKee (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 15,688, judgment affirmed (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 624, 174 U. S. 149, 43 L. Ed. 929.

One who has been fined and imprisoned under this section for illicit distilling is estopped to claim as his own the distillery and sprits forfeited thereby; and such a conviction is not a bar to the proceeding in rem required by section 6355, post, to declare and perfect the forfeiture. U. S. v. Three Copper Stills, etc. (D. C. 1890) 47 Fed. 495.

The government does not lose its rights to forfeit a distillery for violation of law by reason of a failure of the government's officers to discharge their duties or because of their dereliction or malfeasance. U. S. v. One Distillery and Fixtures, etc. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 720.

5. Unlawful removal of spirits.—Removal of distilled spirits from the cistern room of a distillery by the employés or operators thereof to a place other than a distillery warehouse held to authorize a forfeiture of the distillery and the spirits. U. S. v. One Distillery and Fixtures, etc. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 720.

Removal of any distilled spirits, the product of a distillery by the operator or proprietor without payment of the tax, is ground for forfeiture of the distillery and product. Id.

6. Forfeiture of distillery as bar to prosecution of stockholder personally.—That a distillery has been forfeited in a proceeding by the United States for a violation of the internal revenue laws is not a bar to the prosecution of a stockholder personally for the same violation, although he is the sole stockholder; nor would it be a bar if the property was in his own name. Wood v. U. S. (1913) 204 Fed. 55, 122 C. C. A. 369.

7. Who may contest forfeiture proceedings.—A proceeding to forfeit a distillery and its products for violation of the internal revenue law may be contested by claimant of the property or the sureties on its bond in case a bond is given. U. S. v. One Distillery and Fixtures, etc. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 720.

8. Evidence required in forfeiture proceedings.—The government, in a libel to forfeit a distillery for violation of internal revenue law, is only required to prove its allegations by a preponderance of evidence. U. S. v. One Distillery and Fixtures, etc. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 720.

9. Distiller of apple brandy as subject to indictment under statute.—In view of the legislative intent, manifested by legislation for many years, that "spirits distilled" should include apple brandy, a distiller of apple brandy was properly indicted under this section for an attempt to defraud the government of taxes due by him. U. S. v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411.

10. Indictment or information.—It is not necessary for a count under this section to set forth the particular means by which the claimant defrauded and attempted to defraud, or to specify the particular spirits covered by the tax. Coffey v. U. S. (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 432, 436, 116 U. S. 427, 29 L. Ed. 681.

It is not necessary for an information to aver that the distilled spirits found on claimant's distillery premises and seized were distilled by him, or were the product of his distillery, or that the distillery apparatus was wrongfully used; the section not making these facts elements of the causes of forfeiture denounced by it. Id.

A count following the language of this section is sufficient against a general objection by demurrer. Id.

A demurrer to counts of an indictment under this section and section 6354 and 6359, post, as not authorized because a specific penalty other than forfeiture was provided for the acts therein charged by section 6038, post, was overruled. Id.

In a proceeding by information for the forfeiture of property under this section and section 6021, post, as being used by one carrying on the business of a distiller without giving bond and attempting to defraud the government of the tax on spirits distilled by him, the burden of proof rests on the United States to establish the facts alleged, and every reasonable intendment and effect must be given to answers filed by third persons who claim the property as their own. U. S. v. One Engine & Belting, etc. (1910) 179 Fed. 698, 103 C. C. A. 43.

An indictment under this section which describes the offense in the language of the statute is sufficient. U. S. v. Staton (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 16,382.

11. General verdict on several counts.—Informations under the revenue laws for forfeiture of goods which seek no judgment or fine or imprisonment, though civil, and not strictly criminal, cases, are so far criminal as to come within the rule that a general verdict on several counts seeking in different forms one object must be upheld if one count is good. Coffey v. U. S. (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 432, 436, 116 U. S. 427, 29 L. Ed. 681; Id. 6 Sup. Ct. 437, 440, 116 U. S. 436, 29 L. Ed. 684.

12. Judgment of acquittal as bar to suit.—A judgment of acquittal on counts of an information founded on this section and sections 6352 and 6355, post, is a bar to a suit by the government founded on the fraudulent acts and attempts, and intent to defraud alleged in the prior criminal information and covered by the verdict and judgment of acquittal. Coffey v. U. S. (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 437, 440, 116 U. S. 436, 29 L. Ed. 684.

Cited without definite application, Dobbins's Distillery v. U. S. (1877) 96 U. S. 395, 397, 24 L. Ed. 637; Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co. (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 825, 830, 135 U. S. 326, 34 L. Ed. 162; U. S. v. Zucker (1896) 16 Sup. Ct. 641, 642, 161 U. S. 475, 40 L. Ed. 777; Same v. One Distillery (1899) 19 S. Ct. 624, 174 U. S. 149, 43 L. Ed. 929; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; U. S. v. Donaldson-Shultz Co. (1906) 148 Fed. 581, 79 C. C. A. 403; Tucker v. Grier (1908) 160 Fed. 611, 87 C. C. A. 513; Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658; U. S. v. Olsen (D. C. 1893) 57 Fed. 579, 583; Same v. Jaedicke (D. C. 1896) 73 Fed. 100, 103; Same v. Manufacturing Apparatus of New Jersey Melting & Churning Co. (D. C. 1905) 141 Fed. 475.

§ 5994. (R. S. § 3258.) Registry of stills, etc.

Every person having in his possession or custody, or under his control, any still or distilling apparatus set up, shall register the same with the collector of the district in which it is, by subscribing and filing with him duplicate statements, in writing, setting forth the particular place where such still or distilling-apparatus is set up, the kind of still and its cubic contents, the owner thereof, his place of residence, and the purpose for which said still or distilling-apparatus has been or is intended to be used; one of which statements shall be retained and preserved by the collector, and the other transmitted by him to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Stills and distilling-apparatus shall be registered immediately upon their being set up. Every still or distilling-apparatus not so registered, together with all personal property in the possession or custody, or under the control of such person, and found in the building, or in any yard or inclosure connected with the building in which the same may be set up, shall be forfeited. And every person having in his possession or custody, or under his control, any still or distilling-apparatus set up which is not so registered, shall pay a penalty of five hundred dollars, and shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, and imprisoned for not less than one month, nor more than two years.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 5, 15 Stat. 126. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, §§ 1, 2, 17 Stat. 401, 402.

Notes of Decisions

Yearly entry of stills under former statute.—Act March 3, 1791, §§ 21, 23, 24, imposed a yearly duty on stills, to be measured by their capacity, unless the actual amount distilled was shown. Act May 8, 1792, required stills to be entered yearly at the inspection office of the district under a penalty. Held, that the duty on stills could be recovered, whether an inspection office was established in the district or not. U. S. v. Wolf (Pa. 1796) Add. 312.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Stowell (1890) 10 Sup. Ct.

244, 247, 133 U. S. 1, 33 L. Ed. 555; Powers v. U. S. (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 281, 282, 223 U. S. 303, 56 L. Ed. 448; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Foster v. U. S. (1911) 188 Fed. 305, 110 C. C. A. 283 (denied [1911] 192 Fed. 1022, 112 C. C. A. 665); U. S. v. Hance (D. C. 1911) 184 Fed. 528 (affirmed [1911] 191 Fed. 573, 112 C. C. A. 633, and certiorari denied [1912] 32 Sup. Ct. 840, 225 U. S. 710, 56 L. Ed. 1268).

§ 5995. (R. S. § 3259.) Notice of intention to carry on business of distiller or rectifier.

Every person engaged in, or intending to be engaged in, the business of a distiller or rectifier, shall give notice in writing, subscribed by him, to the collector of the district wherein such business is to be carried on, stating his name and residence, and if a company or firm, the name and residence of each member thereof, the name and residence of every person interested or to be interested in the business, the precise place where said business is to be carried on, and whether of distilling or rectifying; and if such business is carried on in a city, the residence and place of business shall be indicated by the name of the street and number of the building. In case of a distiller, the notice shall also state the kind of stills and the cubic contents thereof, the number and kind of boilers, the number of mash-tubs and fermenting-tubs, the cubic contents of each tub, the number of receiving-cisterns, the cubic contents of each cistern, the number of hours in which the distillery will ferment each tub of mash or beer, the estimated quantity of distilled spirits which the apparatus is capable of distilling every twenty-four hours, a particular description of the lot or tract of land on which the distillery is situated, and of the buildings thereon, including their size, material, and construction; and that said distillery premises are not within six hundred feet, in a direct line, of any premises authorized to be used for rectifying or refining distilled spirits by any process. In case of a rectifier, the notice shall state the precise place where such business is to be carried on; the name and residence of every person interested or to be interested in the business, the process by which the applicant intends to rectify, purify, or refine distilled spirits, the kind and cubic contents of any still used or to be used for such purpose, the estimated quantity of spirits which can be rectified, purified, or refined every twenty-four hours in such establishment, and that said rectifying-establishment is not within six hundred feet, in a direct line, of the premises of any distillery registered for the distillation of spirits. In case of any change in the location, form, capacity, ownership, agency, superintendency, or in the persons interested in the business of such distillery or rectifying-establishment, or in the time of fermenting the mash or beer, notice thereof, in writing, shall be given to the said collector or proper deputy collector, of the district within twenty-four hours after such change; and any deputy collector receiving such notice shall immediately transmit the same to the collector of the district. Every notice required by this section shall be in such form, and shall contain such additional particulars, as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may, from time to time, prescribe. Every person who fails or refuses to give such notice shall pay a penalty of one thousand dollars, and shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than two thousand dollars; and every person who gives a false or fraudulent notice shall, in addition to such penalty or fine, be imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 6, 15 Stat. 126, 127. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401.

A rectifier intending to rectify was required, before emptying any package of distilled spirits for the purpose, to give notice of his intention to the collector of the district, and was also required to submit such package for inspection to a gauger, who was required to gauge such package and its contents, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 8, as amended by Act July 16, 1892, c. 196, § 1, post, § 5996.

Notes of Decisions

Construction with other sections.—Under sections 6087 and 6089, post, the penalty is not to be assessed against an apparent excess above the daily average in one month, when that is balanced by a corresponding deficiency in the succeeding month, and this is not altered by the expression in this section and section 6093, post, by which a survey is taken to ascertain the producing capacity for "a day of 24 hours"; that expression being used to represent, with greater certainty, the exact period of duration for which the average capacity of production was to be ascertained; and nothing but "average" was intended, as is manifest from the fact that no distillery, under ordinary conditions, has any spirit-producing capacity in 24 hours. Chicago Distilling Co. v. Stone (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 862, 865, 140 U. S. 647, 35 L. Ed. 532.

When rectifier becomes a distiller.—If a rectifier, by any process, manufactures spirits from fruits or berries, saloon washings containing fermented substances, or from sour beer, he becomes a distiller. R. S. §§ 3259, 3260, ante, § 5994, and this section. U. S. v. Marshall (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,726.

Notice in general.—Act July 20, 1868, imposing a tax on distilled spirits, provides in section 6 that the distiller shall give a written notice of his place of business and certain other information, and that the notice "shall also state the number of hours in which the distiller will ferment each tub of mash or beer," etc. Held, that the period of fermentation fixed by the distiller in such notice was not conclusive, but the assessor, in estimating the capacity of the distillery, could fix as the true fermenting period such period as he deemed correct after due examination. Pahlman v. Raster (1873) 87 U. S. (20 Wall.) 189, 22 L. Ed. 342.

Allegation as to notice in indictment.—An indictment under Act 1866, c. 184, § 25, must allege that the still was intended to be used within the United States for distilling spirits, and that defendant failed to give the notice, etc. U. S. v. Reed (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 16,136.

Evidence of violation of statute.—Evidence held to sustain a finding that the running of beer into the slop tank of a distillery, instead of into the mash and fermenting tubs, in violation of this section and section 6001, post, was not by mistake, and to sustain a libel against the distillery. Pocahontas Distilling Co. v. U. S. (1914) 218 Fed. 782, 134 C. C. A. 566.

The government, on a libel against a distillery for illegal operation, is only required to establish its case by a preponderance of the evidence. Id.

Cited without definite application. U. S. v. Boecker (1874) 21 Wall. 652, 653, 22 L. Ed. 472; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 5996. (Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 8, as amended Act July 16, 1892, c. 196, § 1.) Notice by rectifier of intention to rectify, etc.; gauging; returns.

When any rectifier intends to rectify or compound any distilled spirits he shall, before emptying any package of distilled spirits for that purpose, give notice in duplicate to the collector of internal revenue for the district of his intention so to rectify, and submit such package for the inspection of a United States gauger, who shall duly weigh or gauge such package and its contents and make due return thereof, and such spirits shall not be emptied for rectification, nor rectified or compounded in the package, until gauged or weighed as herein above provided. And such notice and return shall be made in such form and contain such particulars as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may from time to time prescribe. (20 Stat. 341. 27 Stat. 200.)

This section was part of an act to amend the laws relating to internal revenue, cited above.

This section, as originally enacted, required the rectifier to give notice in duplicate to the collector of the district, in such form and giving such particulars as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe, one of such notices to be forwarded by the collector to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. It was amended, by substituting therefor the provisions set forth here, by Act July 16, 1892, c. 196, § 1, cited above. The amendment followed an appropriation for salaries, expenses, and fees of internal-revenue officers in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1893, cited above.

A rectifier intending to commence or continue business was required to execute a bond conditioned for the faithful compliance with the law in relation to the business, and for the payment of taxes, penalties, and fines imposed, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 7, 20 Stat. 341. This section was repealed by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 9, 21 Stat. 148.

Notes of Decisions

Necessity of again inspecting, gauging, and branding.—Spirits merely poured from the original packages into an open vat for rectification, need not be again inspected, gauged, and branded. Act 1866, c. 184, § 43. U. S. v. Eight Barrels of Whiskey (D. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 15,028.

Regulation as to regauging.—A regulation requiring a regauging of distilled spirits on their being emptied to be rectified, and the certificate of the gauger as to the destruction of stamps, held valid and reasonable. Thacher v. U. S. (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 13,-851.

Form for return of spirits emptied for rectification.—"Form 122" for the return of spirits emptied for rectification held authorized by law. U. S. v. One Hundred and Two Packages Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,944.

§ 5997. (R. S. § 3260, as amended, Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 1.) Distiller to give bond.

Every person intending to commence or to continue the business of a distiller shall, on filing with the collector his notice of such intention, and before proceeding with such business, and on the first day of May of each succeeding year, execute a bond in the form prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, conditioned that he shall faithfully comply with all the provisions of law relating to the duties and business of distillers, and shall pay all penalties incurred or fines imposed on him for a violation of any of the said provisions; and that he shall not suffer the lot or tract of land on which the distillery stands, or any part thereof, or any of the distilling-apparatus, to be incumbered by mortgage, judgment, or other lien, during the time in which he shall carry on said business. Said bond shall be with at least two sureties, approved by the collector of the district, and for a penal sum not less than the amount of tax on the spirits that can be distilled in his distillery during a period of fifteen days. But in no case shall the bond exceed the sum of one hundred thousand dollars. The collector may refuse to approve said bond when, in his judgment, the situation of the distillery is such as would enable the distiller to defraud the United States; and in case of such refusal the distiller may appeal to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, whose decision in the matter shall be final. A new bond shall be required in case of the death, insolvency, or removal of either of the sureties, and may be required in any other contingency at the discretion of the collector or Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Every person who fails or refuses to give the bond hereinbefore required, or to renew the same, or who gives any false, forged, or fraudulent bond, shall forfeit the distillery, distilling-apparatus, and all real estate and premises connected therewith, and shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 7, 15 Stat. 127. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 239. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401. Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 1, 21 Stat. 145.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out after the words "penal sum not less than" the word "double," and by inserting after the words "a period of fifteen days" the words "But in no case shall the bond exceed the sum of one hundred thousand dollars," as set forth here, by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 1, cited above.

Collectors were authorized to refuse to approve the bond of a person convicted of any fraud under the laws relating to distillers, by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 67, post, § 6000.

A successor in the business of distilling was authorized to use the distilling warehouse of his predecessor by Act Jan. 8, 1874, c. 7, post, § 6010.

Carrying on distillery without giving bond was punishable by R. S. § 3281, post, § 6021.

Notes of Decisions

1. Constitutionality.
2. Who is distiller.
3. Validity of bond.
4. Voluntary bond.
5. Authority of officer to vary or change terms of bonds.
6. Prosecution and penalty for failure to give bond.
7. Prosecution for false and fraudulent bond.
8. Forfeiture.
9. When sureties not bound.
10. Obligations or acts covered by bond.
11. Credits to which surety is entitled.
12. Discharge of sureties or release from liability.
13. Actions on bonds.

See § 5985, ante, and notes thereunder; § 6021, post, and notes thereunder.

1. Constitutionality.—Act July 20, 1868, in relation to a tax on distilled spirits, is not unconstitutional because of its regulations requiring a bond before commencing business, etc. Mason v. Rollins (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 9,252.

2. Who is distiller.—If a rectifier, by any process, manufactures spirits from fruits or berries, saloon washings containing fermented substances, or from sour beer, he becomes a distiller. R. S. §§ 3259, 3260, ante, §§ 5994, 5995. U. S. v. Marshall (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,726.

3. Validity of bond. — A distiller's bond, taken in pursuance of Act July 20, 1868, imposing taxes on distilled spirits, and which enacts that the assessor shall not approve it unless the distillery property is unincumbered as against the United States, is not void, even as against the sureties thereto, because the ground was incumbered, and because, it being so, the bond was approved without the consent of the incumbrancers to postpone their liens to that of the United States for taxes and penalties. Osborne v. U. S. (1873) 86 U. S. (19 Wall.) 577, 580, 22 L. Ed. 208.

This rule is not altered by the fact that, if the consent of the incumbrancers had been procured to postpone their liens, the ground on which the distillery stood was of sufficient value to discharge the taxes due by the distiller. Id.

A distiller's bond given under Act July 1, 1862, § 39, conditioned that the distiller should comply with the conditions of such act and of such other acts as might thereafter be enacted, held valid. U. S. v. Mynderse (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 15,850a.

4. Voluntary bond.—A bond under the statute is none the less voluntary because of the word "shall." U. S. v. Hodson (1870) 10 Wall. 395, 406, 19 L. Ed. 937.

5. Authority of officer to vary or change terms of bonds.—A public officer cannot vary, or in any way change the terms of distillers' bonds required by law. U. S. v. Bicket (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 14,590.

6. Prosecution and penalty for failure to give bond.—A distiller is justified in relying upon the act of the assessor in passing upon the bond given for excise duty (Act July 20, 1868, § 7), and is not liable for the penalty because the preliminaries have not been complied with. U. S. v. Thirty-Five Barrels of High Wines (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 16,460.

On a prosecution for conducting a distillery without giving the necessary bond or paying the tax, ignorance on the part of defendant that the bond had not been given or the tax paid is no defense. U. S. v. Dobbs (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 14,972.

7. Prosecution for false and fraudulent bond.—It is no defense to a prosecution for executing and signing a false and fraudulent bond that defendant knew nothing of his sureties, but hired a man to obtain them, and that they swore to all that was required by law. U. S. v. O'Brien (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,909.

8. Forfeiture.—Premises occupied and used as a distillery are liable to forfeiture for the violation of sections 7 and 19 of the act of July 20, 1868 (15 Stat. 127, 132), in relation to distiller's bonds and books of account, without regard to the culpability of the owner of the property. Heidritter v. Elizabeth Oil Cloth Co. (C. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 138, judgment affirmed (1884) 5 Sup. Ct. 135, 112 U. S. 294, 28 L. Ed. 729.

A decree of condemnation under forfeiture for violation of sections 7 and 19 of Act July 20, 1868, 15 Stat. 127, 132, relates back to the time when the acts were committed which incurred the forfeiture. Id.

A mechanic's lien cannot be enforced in a state court, where the premises have been seized by the United States marshal under forfeiture proceedings of property used as a distillery before the claim has been filed. Id.

9. When sureties not bound. — The sureties are not bound if the distillery is established on a different lot from that described in the notice and bond. U. S. v. Boecker (1874) 21 Wall. 652, 654, 22 L. Ed. 472.

10. Obligations or acts covered by bond.—The penalty of a bond given pursuant to Act June 30, 1864, on taking out a distiller's license, cannot be enforced for acts done in carrying on such business after the term of the license has expired. U. S. v. Smith (1869) 75 U. S. (8 Wall.) 587, 19 L. Ed. 506.

The condition in a distiller's bond, given under Act July 20, 1868, § 7 (15 Stat. 128), that the obligors "shall in all respects comply with all the provisions of law in relation to the duties and business of distillers," is prospective, as well as present. U. S. v. Powell (1871) 81 U. S. (14 Wall.) 493, 20 L. Ed. 726.

A distiller's bond conditioned "faithfully to comply with all the provisions of law in relation to the business of distillers" covers wages of a storekeeper in charge of a distiller's warehouse on week days and Sundays, under Joint Resolution of March 29, 1869, whether the bond was executed before or after the passage of the Joint Resolution. Id.

The bond does not bind the distiller and his sureties to make reimbursement to the government of moneys paid by it to its own officers or agents in pursuance of law. U. S. v. Singer (1872) 15 Wall. 111, 122, 21 L. Ed. 49.

The sureties of a distiller under Act July 20, 1868, are not liable for taxes incurred on business carried on by the principal at a different place from that specified in the bond and notice of the residence and place of business of the principal, prescribed by section 6. U. S. v. Boecker (1874) 88 U. S. (21 Wall.) 652, 22 L. Ed. 472.

A distiller's official or annual bond, given pursuant to this section, and conditioned that he "shall faithfully comply with all the provisions of law relating to the duties and business of distillers," binds the sureties for the payment of the tax on all spirits distilled during its term, which is one of the duties of the distiller, and which tax becomes a debt due to the United States from the time the spirits are manufactured, due and payable at once on their removal, unless they are entered for deposit in warehouse; nor are the sureties relieved from such liability by the execution of a warehousing bond given pursuant to section 6034, post, to secure delay in payment of the tax, which does not extinguish the debt, nor become a substitute for the original bond with respect to such spirits, from the government, for which he failed to account; and the measure of recovery is the face value of such stamps, as charged to him in his account. Such an action is not one for the conversion of property, but one for a breach of official duty, and is governed by the terms and conditions of the bond and the statutes which prescribe such duty; and the government is not required to prove that the stamps unaccounted for were sold, and the money received therefor, even though such fact is unnecessarily alleged in the complaint. U. S. v. Mullins (1902) 119 Fed. 334, 56 C. C. A. 238, writ of certiorari denied (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 851, 189 U. S. 513, 47 L. Ed. 924.

A distiller's bond, binding him to comply with all the provisions of law and regulations in relation to the duties and business of a distiller, held to cover taxes assessed on liquor distilled. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. U. S. (1912) 201 Fed. 91, 119 C. C. A. 429.

A distiller's official or annual bond binds the sureties for the payment of the tax on all the spirits distilled by the principal during its term, and they are not relieved from such liability by the execution of a warehousing bond covering certain of such spirits, which is not a substituted, but a cumulative, security. U. S. v. Richardson (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 893.

11. Credits to which surety is entitled.—Where the government made an assessment against a distiller of the tax on spirits made from material used and not reported, and a portion of such spirits were found seized and sold, and the tax on such part paid from the proceeds, the surety on the distiller's bond, when charged with liability for the assessment, is entitled to credit for the part of the tax so paid, but not for the remainder of the proceeds of the sale. U. S. v. National Surety Co. (1907) 157 Fed. 174, 84 C. C. A. 622.

Moneys paid to the collector without specific appropriation during the existence of a bond are properly applied first to the payment of back taxes. U. S. v. Bicket (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 14,-590.

12. Discharge of sureties or release from liability.—A surety is not released by the neglect of the government's officers in the performance of their duties. Hart v. U. S. (1877) 95 U. S. 316, 317, 24 L. Ed. 479.

Sureties on a distillery bond cannot be subjected to the penalty attached to the removal of spirits from the distillery without payment of the tax, when the principal in the bond has effected a full and complete compromise with the government of prosecutions based on the same offense and designed to secure the same penalty. U. S. v. Chouteau (1880) 102 U. S. 603, 26 L. Ed. 246.

The seizure and sale of bonded spirits forfeited by the fraudulent acts of the distiller, and the payment of the taxes out of the proceeds, render the bond functus officio, and discharge the obligors. U. S. v. Ulrici (1884) 111 U. S. 38, 4 Sup. Ct. 288, 28 L. Ed. 344; Same v. Sutton (1884) 111 U. S. 42, 4 Sup. Ct. 291, 28 L. Ed. 346.

The liability of the sureties is not released by the fact that the collector permitted the distiller to remove from the bonded warehouse a quantity of spirits, sufficient to pay all the taxes due, without first requiring payment thereof. U. S. v. Hosmer (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 15,394.

A pardon operates the same as an actual fulfillment of the sentence, and completely releases the sureties from all liability for the acts or breach of duty charged. U. S. v. Cullerton (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 14,899.

The destruction of spirits by fire while in a distillery warehouse, due to the absence of the government storekeeper, does not release the bondsman from liability for the amount of taxes due. U. S. v. Farrell (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,073.

After a bond had been signed by two sureties, with the understanding between them and the obligor and obligee that it was to be signed by a third surety whose name was written in the bond, the name of the third surety was altered in the body of the instrument, with the knowledge of the obligee, by the substitution of a different surety, who then signed the bond. Held, that the two sureties were discharged. U. S. v. O'Neill (C. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 567.

A sale of a distillery for the sum due to the United States will extinguish the debt, though it is incumbered by valid liens to its full value, and the distiller's bond is discharged thereby. U. S. v. Triplett (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 16,539.

13. Actions on bonds.—In a suit on a distiller's bond, the petition alleged that defendant omitted to make book entries required by the law, and was thereby enabled to defraud the government. Defendant answered, averring that whatever fraud was committed was effected through other means. Held sufficient on demurrer. U. S. v. Chouteau (1880) 102 U. S. 603, 26 L. Ed. 246.

In an action on a distiller's bond for nonpayment of the tax due on a specified number of gallons of spirits alleged to have been distilled at his distillery between certain dates, the assessment of the commissioner of internal revenue was prima facie evidence of his liability. U. S. v. Rindskopf (1881) 105 U. S. 418, 26 L. Ed. 1131.

The duty imposed on the collector to collect by distraint is not suspended by an action by the government on the distiller's bond for the collection of the same taxes. Harding v. Woodcock (1890) 11 Sup. Ct. 6, 137 U. S. 43, 34 L. Ed. 580.

On a seizure and sale of distilled spirits under the internal revenue law for nonpayment of the tax thereon, the proceeds are applicable on such tax, and, if sufficient, extinguish the same; and in an action by the government on a distiller's bond to recover a tax on spirits an answer containing allegations under which the defendant is entitled to prove such a state of facts is not demurrable. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. U. S. (1907) 158 Fed. 604, 85 C. C. A. 426, reversing judgment U. S. v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (D. C. 1906) 144 Fed. 866.

In action for breach of distillery bond, recital of assessment against spirits removed without payment of tax held not to base the action on the assessment, or preclude a recovery as in debt. U. S. v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md. (1915) 221 Fed. 27, 136 C. C. A. 553.

That it was unconscionable for the government to recover from the surety on a distillery bond for a breach of the bond under the circumstances held not a defense. Id.

It is a good defense to a surety on a distiller's bond that it was signed and delivered on a condition of the nonfulfillment of which plaintiff's agent had notice when he accepted it. U. S. v. Hammond (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 15,292.

In an action on a distiller's bond under Act July 20, 1868, a plea that the still exploded, whereupon the assessor locked up and took control of the property, is a good defense as to the time the still was disabled. U. S. v. Miller (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 15,770.

It is no defense to the sureties on a distiller's bond that the assessor failed to obtain the consent of the mortgagee of the distillery premises to their use as such, and a stipulation for priority of lien of the United States. U. S. v. Hosmer (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 15,394.

Errors in the assessment and reassessment of a distiller's tax cannot be set up by the sureties in defense to a suit on the bond. Their remedy is to pay the tax under restraint, and to appeal to the commissioner of internal revenue. If the appeal is denied, a suit will lie against the collector. U. S. v. Black (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 14,600.

In an action on a distiller's bond it need not be shown affirmatively that the survey required by Act July 20, 1868, § 10, has been made, and a copy of it served upon him, and a demand of payment made.—Id.

Defense to action on distiller's bond of seizure of property by the collector and surrender to state court receiver. U. S. v. Grant (C. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 15,247.

In an action upon a distiller's bond, an erroneous assessment, which does not include the amount actually due as prescribed by the statute, is not conclusive against the government. U. S. v. Halloran (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,286.

A conviction and sentence for violation of the law is no bar to an action on the distiller's bond, unless the sentence is actually fulfilled. U. S. v. Cullerton (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 14,899.

In a suit on a distiller's bond for the amount of an assessment, defendant may impeach the assessment, though he has not first appealed to the commissioner. U. S. v. Myers (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,846.

In an action on a distiller's bond, verdict was rendered for the full amount of the bond, subject to the opinion of the court upon the question whether the sureties were entitled to a deduction from the verdict of the amount realized from the sale of the distiller's personal property. Held, on a motion for judgment on the verdict, that the judgment should be entered for the full amount of the bond, the sum realized from the personal property not being a legal offset. U. S. v. Loeb (C. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 688.

An action upon a bond, conditioned upon the payment of an assessment, will not fail because the complaint does not set forth the whole of the assessment. U. S. v. O'Neill (C. C. 1884) 19 Fed. 567.

The original report of survey, and certificate of collector of delivery of one of the triplicate copies to distiller, held competent evidence in a suit on his bond for amount assessed for deficiency in spirits reported. U. S. v. Bristow (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 378.

A suit in another court on the distiller's bond, commenced before an information for forfeiture under Act June 30, 1864, § 68, or before seizure of the property, does not bar or abate the forfeiture proceeding. U. S. v. Three Hundred and Ninety-Six Barrels Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 16,502.

The government has its remedy upon the distiller's bond, though it might have collected the tax from the proceeds themselves. U. S. v. Bicket (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 14,590.

The defendants, being distillers, having been indicted, tried, found guilty, and fined for a violation of section 6019, post, and execution issued thereon having been returned nulla bona, this action was instituted on the bond executed by the defendants to the United States, containing a covenant that the defendants "shall in all respects faithfully comply with all the provisions of law and regulations in relation to the duties and business of distillers, * * * and shall pay all penalties incurred or fines imposed on him for a violation of any of said provisions." Held, on demurrer to the petition, that the action was maintainable. U. S. v. Thompson (D. C. 1891) 45 Fed. 468.

In an action by the United States on a distiller's bond, plea of accord and satisfaction with the collector, without an averment of his authority to make the commutation is insufficient. Martin's Adm'rs v. U. S. (1825) 18 Ky. (2 T. B. Mon.) 89, 15 Am. Dec. 129.

To debt on a revenue bond, accord with the collector and delivery of goods in satisfaction is not a good answer. Collectors must obtain money. Martin's Adm'rs v. U. S. (1827) 20 Ky. (4 T. B. Mon.) 487.

It is no defense in an action against the sureties on a distiller's bond that they had no notice of the increased producing capacity of the distillery. Notice to the principal is sufficient. U. S. v. Woodman (1875) 1 Utah, 265.

Where the producing capacity of a distillery is 266 gallons per day, the assessor cannot agree with the owners to return taxes for only 80 gallons per day, and such agreement constitutes no defense in an action on the distiller's bond. Id.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 5998. (R. S. § 3261.) Bond not to be approved until law complied with.

No collector shall approve the bond of any distiller until all the requirements of the law and all regulations made by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in relation to distilleries, in pursuance thereof, have been complied with. Every collector who violates this provision shall forfeit and pay two thousand dollars, and be dismissed from office.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 17, 15 Stat. 131. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401.

Notes of Decisions

Approval of bond.—The surety on a distiller's bond is liable, though the same is approved in violation of the provisions of Act July 20, 1868, § 7, that prior liens on the property must first be released. Osborne v. U. S. (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 10,599.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 5999. (R. S. § 3262, as amended, Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 2.) Distiller must be owner in fee-simple, or have written consent of owner, etc.

No bond of a distiller shall be approved, unless he is the owner in fee, unincumbered by any mortgage, judgment, or other lien, of the lot or tract of land on which the distillery is situated, or unless he files with the collector, in connection with his notice, the written consent of the owner of the fee, and of any mortgagee, judgment-creditor, or other person having a lien thereon, duly acknowledged, that the premises may be used for the purpose of distilling spirits, subject to the provisions of law, and expressly stipulating that the lien of the United States for taxes and penalties shall have priority of such mortgage, judgment, or other incumbrance, and that in case of the forfeiture of the distillery premises, or of any part thereof, the title of the same shall vest in the United States, discharged from such mortgage, judgment, or other incumbrance. In any case where the owner of a distillery or distilling-apparatus, erected prior to the twentieth day of July, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, has only an estate for a term of years or other estate less than fee-simple in the lot or tract of land on which the distillery is situated, the evidence of title to which shall have been duly recorded prior to that date; or in like case, where the lease or other evidence of title is held but was not required by the laws of the State to be recorded in order to be valid at the time of its execution; or in any case of such prior erection where the title was then, and has continued to be, in litigation; or in any case of such prior erection where such owner is possessed of the fee, but incumbered with a mortgage executed and duly recorded prior to said twentieth of July, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, and not due, or in any case of such prior erection where the fee is held by a feme-covert, minor, person of unsound mind, or other person incapable of giving consent, as hereinbefore required, the value of such lot or tract of land, together with the building and distilling-apparatus, shall be appraised in the manner to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; and the collector may, at the discretion of the Commissioner, be authorized to accept, in lieu of the said written consent of the owner of the fee, the bond of such distiller, in such form as the Commissioner may prescribe, with not less than two sureties, conditioned that in case the distillery, distilling-apparatus, or any part thereof, shall by final judgment be forfeited for the violation of any of the provisions of law, the obligors shall pay the amount stated in said bond. Said sureties shall be residents of the collection-district or county, or of an adjoining county in the same State in which the distillery is situated, and owners of unincumbered real estate in said district or county, or adjoining county, equal to such appraised value, and the penal sum of said bond shall be equal to the appraised value of said lot or tract of land together with the buildings and distilling-apparatus: Provided, That in case of any distillery sold at judicial or other sale in favor of the United States, a bond may be taken at the discretion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, in lieu of the written consent required by this section, and the person giving such bond may be allowed to operate such a distillery during the existence of the right of redemption from such sale, on complying with all the other provisions of law: And provided also, That the collector may at any time, at the discretion of the Commissioner, accept such bond as is authorized to be given by the distiller in lieu of the written consent of the owner of the fee in the case of a distillery erected prior to July twentieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, notwithstanding such distillery has since then been increased by the addition of land or buildings adjacent or contiguous thereto, not owned by the distiller himself in fee; such bond to be for and in respect of such addition only, if the distillery be one which the distiller owns in fee or in respect to which he has procured the written consent of the owner of the fee or other incumbrance, otherwise to be for and in respect of the entire distillery as increased by such addition.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 8, 15 Stat. 127. Act April 10, 1869, c. 18, § 1, 16 Stat. 41. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 13, 17 Stat. 243. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401. Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 2, 21 Stat. 145.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by adding at the end of the section, as originally enacted, the last proviso, as set forth here, by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 2, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

Consent of owner.—The consent provided for in this section passes no interest in the land to the distiller, but merely gives to the government a first lien for the taxes. Mansfield v. Excelsior Refinery Co. (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 825, 829, 135 U. S. 326, 34 L. Ed. 162.

Consent of incumbrancers.—A distiller's bond is not void as against the sureties because the ground was incumbered, and because, it being so, the bond was approved without the consent of the incumbrancers to postpone their liens, and this rule is not altered by the fact that, if the consent of the incumbrancers had been procured to postpone their liens, the ground on which the distillery stood was of sufficient value to discharge the taxes due by the distiller. Osborne v. U. S. (1873) 19 Wall. 577, 580, 22 L. Ed. 208.

Sale of property leased for distillery with covenants as to lien.—Failure of a purchaser of property leased for a distillery, with covenants to be subject to the lien of taxes and penalties, to appeal from an assessment thereon, precludes him, in a subsequent action against the collector, from showing that no tax or penalty was in fact due. Milan Distilling Co. v. Tillson (C. C. 1880) Fed. Cas. No. 9,539.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Boecker (1874) 21 Wall. 652, 654, 22 L. Ed. 472; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6000. (Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 67.) Refusal of bond from person previously convicted.

Whenever any person intending to commence or to continue the business of a distiller shall execute a bond under the provisions of section thirty-two hundred and sixty of the Revised Statutes of United States, and file the same with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which he proposes to distill, the collector may refuse to approve said bond if the person offering the same shall have been previously convicted, in a court of competent jurisdiction, of any fraudulent noncompliance with any of the provisions of law relating to the duties and business of distillers, or if the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall have compromised such an offense with the person upon the payment of penalties or otherwise, and, in case of such refusal, the person so proposing to distill may appeal to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, whose decision in the matter shall be final. (28 Stat. 568.)

This section was part of the Wilson Tariff Act, cited above.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6001. (R. S. § 3263.) Plan of distillery.

Every distiller and person intending to engage in the business of a distiller shall, previous to the approval of his bond, cause to be made, under the direction of the collector of the district, an accurate plan and description, in triplicate, of the distillery and distilling-apparatus, distinctly showing the location of every still, boiler, doubler, worm-tub, and receiving-cistern, the course and construction of all fixed pipes used or to be used in the distillery, and of every branch and every cock or joint thereof, and of every valve therein, together with every place, vessel, tub, or utensil from and to which any such pipe leads, or with which it communicates; also the number and location and cubic contents of every still, mash-tub, and fermenting-tub, the cubic contents of every receiving-cistern, and the color of each fixed pipe, as required in this Title. One copy of said plan and description shall be kept displayed in some conspicuous place in the distillery, and two copies shall be furnished to the collector of the district, one of which shall be kept by him, and the other transmitted to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. The accuracy of every such plan and description shall be verified by the collector, the draughtsman, and the distiller; and no alteration shall be made in such distillery without the consent, in writing, of the collector. Any alteration so made shall be shown on the original, or by a supplemental plan and description, and a reference thereto noted on the original, as the collector may direct; and any supplemental plan and description shall be executed and preserved in the same manner as the original.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 9, 15 Stat. 128. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue was authorized to exempt distilleries having a daily spirit-producing capacity of thirty gallons of proof spirits or less from the requirements of this section, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, ante, § 5991.

Notes of Decisions

Evidence of violation of statute.—Evidence held to sustain a finding that the running of beer into the slop tank of a distillery, instead of into the mash and fermenting tubs, in violation of this section and section 5995, ante, was not by mistake, and to sustain a libel against the distillery. Pocahontas Distilling Co. v. U. S. (1914) 218 Fed. 782, 134 C. C. A. 566.

The government, on a libel against a distillery for illegal operation, is only required to establish its case by a preponderance of the evidence. Id.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6002. (R. S. § 3264, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, Act June 22, 1910, c. 329, § 1, and Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 402(i).) Surveys of distilleries.

On receipt of notice that any person, firm, or corporation wishes to commence the business of distilling, the collector, or a deputy collector, to be designated by him, shall proceed in person, at the expense of the United States, with the aid of an assistant designated by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for the purpose of making surveys of distilleries in that district, to make a survey of such distillery for the purpose of estimating and determining its true spirit-producing capacity for a day of twenty-four hours.

In all surveys forty-five gallons of mash or beer brewed or fermented from grain shall represent not less than one bushel of grain, and seven gallons of mash or beer brewed or fermented from molasses shall represent not less than one gallon of molasses, except in distilleries operated on the sour-mash principle, in which distilleries sixty gallons of beer brewed or fermented from grain shall represent not less than one bushel of grain, and except that in distilleries where the filtration-aeration process is used, with the approval of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; that is, where the mash after it leaves the mash tub is passed through a filtering machine before it is run into the fermenting tub, and only the filtered liquor passes into the fermenting tub, there shall hereafter be no limitation upon the number of gallons of water which may be used in the process of mashing or filtration for fermentation; but the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, in order to protect the revenue, shall be authorized to prescribe by regulation, to be made by him, such character of survey as he may find suitable for distilleries using such filtration-aeration process. The provisions hereof relating to filtration-aeration process shall apply only to sweet-mash distilleries.

A written report of such survey shall be made in triplicate, of which one copy shall be delivered to the distiller, one copy shall be retained by the collector, and one copy shall be transmitted to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and the survey shall take effect upon the delivery of such copy to the distiller. Whenever the Commissioner is satisfied that any report of the capacity of a distillery is incorrect or needs revision, he shall direct the collector to make in like manner another survey of said distillery, and the report thereof shall be made and deposited as hereinbefore required: Provided, That the survey of any distillery estimated and stated by the distiller, in his notice of intention to distill, as capable of distilling not more than one hundred and fifty proof-gallons of distilled spirits every twenty-four hours may be made by the collector or by a deputy collector without the aid of an assistant; and that all surveys made for the purpose of correcting clerical errors or errors of computation existing in the report of a previous survey, and all surveys made for the purpose of changing the true spirit-producing capacity of any distillery for a day of twenty-four hours as estimated and determined by a previous survey, but which surveys do not require the remeasuring of the fermenting-tubs in a grain or molasses distillery, or the still or stills in a distillery of apples, peaches, or grapes exclusively, may be made without taking the measurements of the fermenting tubs or stills, as the case may be, and without revisiting the distillery: And provided further, That the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may, whenever he shall deem it proper, designate an officer, agent, or person other than the collector or deputy collector, to make, with or without the aid of a designated assistant, the surveys and resurveys hereinabove provided for. (39 Stat. 787.)

Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 238. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, 20 Stat. 334. Act June 22, 1910, c. 329, § 1, 36 Stat. 590. Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 402(i), 39 Stat. 787.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting, after the words "notice that any person," the words "firm or corporation," and by inserting, after the words "the collector," the words "or a deputy collector to be designated by him," and by inserting, after the words "shall proceed," the words "in person," and by striking out, after the words "of an assistant designated," the words "for the purpose," and by inserting, after the words "Internal Revenue," the words "for the purpose of making surveys of distilleries in that district," and by striking out, after the words "as hereinbefore," the word "provided," and by inserting in place thereof the word "required," followed by the two provisos at the end of the section, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, cited above. It was further amended by the insertion, in the second paragraph of the section, of provisions relating to distilleries where the filtration-aeration process is used, making said second paragraph read as set forth here, by Act June 22, 1910, c. 329, § 1, last cited above.

Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 402(i), amends the "second paragraph" of R. S. § 3264. The section as it appeared in the Revised Statutes and in the amendatory acts above referred to did not contain a second paragraph. The subject-matter of the amendment, however, seems to relate to the sentences of the section as amended which read as follows: "In all surveys forty-five gallons of mash or beer brewed or fermented from grain shall represent not less than one bushel of grain, and seven gallons of mash or beer brewed or fermented from molasses shall represent not less than one gallon of molasses, except in distilleries operated on the sour mash principle, in which distilleries sixty gallons of beer brewed or fermented from grain shall represent not less than one bushel of grain, and except that in distilleries where the filtration-aeration process is used, with the approval of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; that is, where the mash after it leaves the mash tub is passed through a filtering machine before it is run into the fermenting tub, and only the filtered liquor passes into the fermenting tub, seventy gallons of beer brewed or fermented from grain shall represent not less than one bushel of grain. The provisions hereof relating to filtration-aeration process shall apply only to sweet-mash distilleries." This part of the section as amended is set forth above in the second paragraph.

Notes of Decisions

Statute to be strictly followed.—Act July 20, 1868, § 10, providing for surveys must be strictly followed in ascertaining the capacity of the distillery. Mason v. Peabody (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 9,250.

Ascertaining producing capacity.—The survey directed is required to be made by the assessor of the collection district with the aid of a competent person designated by the commissioner of internal revenue, and the mode in which the producing capacity of a distillery is to be ascertained is by measuring each mash or fermenting tub by calculating how many bushels of grain when mashed, if grain is used, the fermenters would hold, by considering the period of fermentation and deducing therefrom the number of bushels which could be fermented in twenty-four hours. Stevenson v. Beggs (1872) 17 Wall. 182, 189, 21 L. Ed. 624.

The assessor, in estimating the producing capacity of a distillery, may fix as the true fermenting period such period as he may deem the true one after examination and calculation, and is not bound to take the period which the distiller is required to give in the notice. Pahlman v. Raster (1873) 20 Wall. 189, 190, 22 L. Ed. 342.

Where the period of fermentation has been fixed at 48 hours by the officers of the government upon survey, it is not a valid objection to the tax that the distillery uses a longer time in fermentation. The distiller's remedy is by appeal to the commissioner of internal revenue. U. S. v. Bicket (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 14,590.

Delivery of copy.—A distiller may waive delivery of a copy of the survey, and when the distiller accepted the survey and stipulated that it was binding on him, he, in effect, said that he would consider the certificate as effective without formal delivery. Wright v. U. S. (1883) 2 Sup. Ct. 633, 108 U. S. 281, 27 L. Ed. 727.

An indorsement by a distiller on the collector's survey of his distillery, accepting it, and acknowledging it as binding, made at the time his bond is executed, is a waiver of a formal delivery of a copy of the survey required by this section, and the taxes on the difference between the capacity of the distillery and the returns of production may be recovered in an action on the bond. Id.

Under the 80 per cent. clause in section 20 of Act July 20, 1868, a distiller is not liable until a survey in which the tax is assessed has been delivered to him as provided in section 10. Peabody v. Stark (1872) 16 Wall. 240, 243, 21 L. Ed. 311.

Resurvey under former law.—Act July 20, 1868 (15 Stat. 129) § 10, providing for the survey of registered distilleries, declares that, if the commissioner shall at any time be satisfied that the report needs revision, he shall direct a resurvey to be made, the report to be executed in triplicate and deposited as aforesaid. A survey was made of defendant's distillery, and the report properly executed and deposited. Thereafter the commissioner directed a resurvey to be made, stating in his notice that no new measurements were required, etc. The second report was made accordingly from the old measurements, but it did not appear that a copy was furnished the distiller. Held that, as the commissioner's letter required in effect a new estimate of the producing capacity founded on the old survey, and not a new survey, and no new survey was actually made, and no new estimate proven to have been given the distiller, the old survey and estimate was not abrogated, and the defendant was liable for the amount of taxes based on the old estimate. U. S. v. Ferrary (1876) 93 U. S. 625, 23 L. Ed. 832.

Conclusiveness of survey and estimate.—A valid survey and estimate conclusively determines the producing capacity and fixes the minimum tax, and can only be abrogated by a new survey and estimate ordered by the commissioner. U. S. v. Ferrary (1876) 93 U. S. 625, 629, 23 L. Ed. 832.

Compensation of surveyors.—The Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe the compensation to be allowed distillery surveyors either by regulations or instructions. Landram v. U. S. (1880) 16 Ct. Cl. 74.

Cited without definite application, Stall v. Pepper (1878) 97 U. S. 438, 441, 24 L. Ed. 1070; Chicago Distilling Co. v. Stone (1891) 11 Sup. Ct. 862, 863, 140 U. S. 647, 35 L. Ed. 532; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; U. S. v. Nebraska Distilling Co. (1897) 80 Fed. 285, 286, 25 C. C. A. 418; Same v. Millinger (C. C. 1881) 7 Fed. 187, 188; Same v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411, 415.

§ 6003. (R. S. § 3265.) Notice by manufacturer of a still; penalty for setting up still without permit.

Any person who manufactures any still, boiler, or other vessel to be used for the purpose of distilling, shall, before the same is removed from the place of manufacture, notify in writing the collector of the district in which such still, boiler, or other vessel is to be used or set up, by whom it is to be used, its capacity, and the time when the same is to be removed from the place of manufacture; and no such still, boiler, or other vessel shall be set up without the permit in writing of the said collector for that purpose; and any person who sets up any such still, boiler, or other vessel, without first obtaining a permit from the said collector of the district in which such still, boiler, or other vessel is intended to be used, or who fails to give such notice, shall pay in either case the sum of five hundred dollars, and shall forfeit the distilling-apparatus thus removed or set up in violation of law.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 14, 15 Stat. 130. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; U. S. v. Craft (D. C. 1890) 43 Fed. 374, 375.

§ 6004. (R. S. § 3266.) Distilling on certain premises prohibited; penalty.

No person shall use any still, boiler, or other vessel, for the purpose of distilling, in any dwelling-house, or in any shed, yard, or inclosure connected with any dwelling-house, or on board of any vessel or boat, or in any building, or on any premises where beer, lager-beer, ale, porter, or other fermented liquors, vinegar, or ether, are manufactured or produced, or where sugars or sirups are refined, or where liquors of any description are retailed, or where any other business is carried on; or within six hundred feet in a direct line of any premises authorized to be used for rectifying; and every person who does any of the acts prohibited by this section, or aids or assists therein, or causes or procures the same to be done, shall be fined one thousand dollars and imprisoned for not less than six months nor more than two years, in the discretion of the court, for each such offense: Provided, That saleratus may be manufactured, or meal or flour ground from grain, in any building or on any premises where spirits are distilled; but such meal or flour shall be used only for distillation on the premises: Provided, further, That any boiler used in generating steam or heating water to be used in any distillery, may be located in any other building or on any other premises to be connected with such still or boiling-tubs, by suitable pipes or other apparatus, or the steam from such boiler in the distillery may be conveyed to other premises to be used for manufacturing or other purposes.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 25, 14 Stat. 154. Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 12, 15 Stat. 130. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 239.

Notes of Decisions

Indictment under statute.—An indictment, under this section charging the defendant with causing or procuring some other person to use a still, boiler, or other vessel, for the purpose of distilling, within the intent and meaning of the internal revenue laws of the United States, is bad, unless it states the name of such other person, or avers that the same is unknown. U. S. v. Simmons (1877) 96 U. S. 360, 24 L. Ed. 819.

An indictment under this section for causing another to use a still "in a certain building and on certain premises where vinegar was manufactured and produced," is insufficient, as it does not show that vinegar was manufactured there at the time the still was used for the purpose of distilling. Id.

An indictment under this section, forbidding any person to cause another to use a still where vinegar is manufactured, sufficiently shows that a still was in fact used by an allegation that defendant caused and procured a still to be used. Id.

An indictment under this section, forbidding any person to cause another to use a still, boiler, and other vessels where vinegar is manufactured, is not bad for failing to allege that the spirits distilled were alcoholic, where it alleges that the vessels were used "for the purpose of distilling, within the intent and meaning of the internal revenue law of the United States." Id.

An indictment under Act 1866, c. 184, § 25, must allege that the still was intended to be used within the United States for distilling spirits, and that defendant failed to give the notice, etc. U. S. v. Reed (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 16,136.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Boecker (1874) 21 Wall. 652, 654, 22 L. Ed. 472; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Miller v. U. S. (1905) 136 Fed. 581, 582, 69 C. C. A. 355; U. S. v. Kee Ho (D. C. 1887) 33 Fed. 333. 334; Same v. Wilson (D. C. 1894) 60 Fed. 890, 895.

§ 6005. (R. S. § 3267.) Receiving-cisterns in distilleries.

The owner, agent, or superintendent of any distillery established as hereinbefore provided, shall erect, in a room or building to be provided and used for that purpose, and for no other, and to be constructed in the manner to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, two or more receiving-cisterns, each to be at least of sufficient capacity to hold all the spirits distilled during the day of twenty-four hours, into which shall be conveyed all the spirits produced in said distillery; and each of said cisterns shall be so constructed as to leave an open space of at least three feet between the top thereof and the floor or roof above, and of not less than eighteen inches between the bottom thereof and the floor below, and shall be so situated that the officer can pass around the same, and shall be connected with the outlet of the worm or condenser by suitable pipes or other apparatus, so constructed as always to be exposed to the view of the officer, and so connected and constructed as to prevent the abstraction of spirits while passing from the outlet of the worm or condenser back to the still or doubler, or forward to the receiving-cistern. Such cisterns and the room in which they are contained shall be in charge and under the lock and seal of the internal-revenue gauger designated for that duty; and all locks and seals required by law shall be provided by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, at the expense of the United States; and the keys shall be in charge of the collector or such gauger as he may designate. On the third day after the spirits are conveyed into such cistern they shall be drawn off into casks, under the supervision of such gauger, in the presence of the store-keeper, and be removed directly to the distillery warehouse; but on special application to the collector by the owner, agent, or superintendent of any distillery, the spirits may be drawn off from the said cisterns, under the supervision of the gauger, at any time previous to the third day.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 16, 15 Stat. 131. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 239. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue was authorized to exempt distilleries having a daily spirit-producing capacity of thirty gallons of proof spirits or less from the requirements of this section by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, ante, § 5991.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 5993, ante.

Arrangement of still or apparatus.—A true construction of the statute does not require any distinction to be drawn between an arrangement of stills by which the process of "doubling" is carried on by passing the low wines a second time through the same still, and passing these a second time through distillation in another still. (1868) 12 Op. Atty. Gen. 523.

An arrangement by which a tank is interposed as a receptacle for the product of distillation, so far as the same has not reached the condition of proof-spirits, but still continues to be low wines, with a view to carry it back for further distillation, is not a violation of the act. Id.

Violation of law and penalty therefor.—A distiller will not be held to a penalty imposed for knowingly and willfully violating the law, where he has procured suitable utensils and machinery, employed competent agents and workmen, and given proper directions to accomplish the end desired, and the violation claimed is a technical one only, and unintended, and arises from defects in the apparatus. Felton v. U. S. (1877) 96 U. S. 699, 24 L. Ed. 875.

All that is required to avoid the penalties of the law is to use in good faith the ordinary means by the employment of skilled artisans and competent inspectors to secure utensils and machinery which will accomplish the end desired. If defects should then exist, and the end sought be not attained, or defects not then open to observation should subsequently be discovered, the parties cannot be charged with "knowingly and willfully" omitting to do what is required. Id.

Parties are presumed to be acquainted with the utensils and machinery used in their business, but the law does not punish them where there is no intent to evade it, and usual means to comply therewith are adopted. Id.

A distiller who failed to arrange his distillery apparatus, as prescribed by section 16, Act July 20, 1868, has no authority to manufacture spirits, and is subject to the penalty prescribed by section 96 (section 6359, post), and this whether he intended to defraud the revenue or not. U. S. v. McKim (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 15,693.

Any contrivance which should accomplish the production of alcohol or rectified spirits in a manner to subject such products to a single tax, as upon proof-spirits, would be presumptively in contravention of the law. (1868) 12 Op. Atty. Gen. 523.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6006. (R. S. § 3268.) Breaking locks, gaining access to cistern, etc.; penalty.

Every person who destroys, breaks, injures, or tampers with any lock or seal which may be placed on any cistern-room or building by the duly authorized officers of the revenue, or opens said lock or seal, or the door to said cistern-room or building, or in any manner gains access to the contents therein, in the absence of the proper officer, shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than one year nor more than three years.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 40, 15 Stat. 141.

Notes of Decisions

Evidence as to breaking lock in prosecution under section 6038.—On the trial of one indicted under section 6038, post, for the removal and concealment of distilled spirits on which the tax had not been paid, testimony was offered that, on the night before the whisky was removed, accused broke the lock of the warehouse where it was stored. Defendant objected on the ground that he had been indicted under this section for breaking such lock, and at the last term of the court had been tried thereon and acquitted. Held that, though such acquittal could be considered by the jury in considering the credibility of the witnesses, it was not ground for excluding the testimony. Pilcher v. U. S. (1902) 113 Fed. 248, 51 C. C. A. 205.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6007. (R. S. § 3269.) Furnaces, tubs, doublers, worm-tanks; penalty.

The door of the furnace of every still or boiler used in any distillery shall be so constructed that it may be securely fastened and locked. The fermenting-tubs shall be so placed as to be easily accessible to any revenue officer, and each tub shall have distinctly painted thereon in oil-colors its cubic contents in gallons and the number of the tub. There shall be a clear space of not less than one foot around every wood-still, and not less than two feet around every doubler and worm-tank. The doubler and worm-tanks shall be elevated not less than one foot from the floor; and every fixed pipe to be used by the distiller, except for conveyance of water, or of spent mash or beer only, shall be so fixed and placed as to be capable of being examined by the officer for the whole of its length or course, and shall be painted, and kept painted, as follows, that is to say: Every pipe for the conveyance of mash or beer shall be painted of a red color; every pipe for the conveyance of low-wines back into the still or doubler shall be painted blue; every pipe for the conveyance of spirits shall be painted black, and every pipe for the conveyance of water shall be painted white. Whenever any fixed pipe is used by any distiller which is not painted or kept painted as herein directed, or which is painted otherwise than as herein directed, he shall forfeit the sum of one thousand dollars.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 17, 15 Stat. 131.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 6005, ante.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6008. (R. S. § 3270.) Apparatus and fastenings.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue is authorized to order and require such changes of or additions to distilling apparatus, connecting-pipes, pumps, or cisterns, or any machinery connected with or used in or on the distillery premises. or may require to be put on any of the stills, tubs, cisterns, pipes, or other vessels, such fastenings, locks, or seals as he may deem necessary.

Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 239.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6009. (R. S. § 3271.) Distillery warehouse.

Every distiller shall provide, at his own expense, a warehouse, to be situated on and to constitute a part of his distillery premises, and to be used only for the storage of distilled spirits of his own manufacture until the tax thereon shall have been paid; but no dwelling-house shall be used for such purpose, and no door, window, or other opening shall be made or permitted in the walls of such warehouse leading into the distillery or into any other room or building; and such warehouse, when approved by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, on report of the collector, is hereby declared to be a bonded warehouse of the United States, to be known as a distillery warehouse, and shall be under the direction and control of the collector of the district, and in charge of an internal-revenue store-keeper, assigned thereto by the Commissioner.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 15, 15 Stat. 130. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 239.

A successor in the business of distilling was authorized to use the distillery warehouse of his predecessor by Act Jan. 8, 1874, c. 7, post, § 6010.

Spirits may remain eight years in distillery warehouses, by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 48, ante, § 5986.

The establishment of special bonded warehouses for fruit brandy was authorized by Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, and Act Oct. 18, 1888, c. 1194, post, §§ 6039–6050.

The establishment of general bonded warehouses for spirits other than from fruit is authorized by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 51, post, § 6058.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue was authorized to discontinue a distillery warehouse whenever distilling has been suspended at the distillery for six months in a year, and the spirits in the warehouse do not exceed 5,000 proof gallons, by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 57, post, § 6012.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 5997, ante.

Authority to dispense with requirement of statute.—An officer of the United States had no authority to dispense with the requirement of this section, and if in violation of his duty he permitted a removal before payment of the tax he subjected himself to punishment, but did not bind the government by his acts, as the government is not responsible for the laches or wrongful acts of its officers. Hart v. U. S. (1877) 95 U. S. 316, 318, 24 L. Ed. 479.

"Bonded warehouse" as including distillery warehouses.—The "bonded warehouse" referred to in this section includes distillery warehouses. U. S. v. Powell (1871) 81 U. S. (14 Wall.) 493, 500, 20 L. Ed. 726.

The "distillery warehouses" which distillers are required by Act July 20, 1868, § 15 (15 Stat. 128), to provide, situated on their distillery premises, are "bonded warehouses," within the joint resolution of March 29, 1869 (16 Stat. 52), which declares that the proprietors of all "internal revenue bonded warehouses" shall reimburse to the United States the expenses and salary of all storekeepers put by it in charge of them. Id.

Per diem wages of storekeepers.—Per diem wages paid to storekeepers for taking charge of distillery warehouses on Sundays, are expenses within the joint resolution of congress of March 29, 1869, which declares that the proprietors of all internal revenue bonded warehouses shall reimburse to the United States the expenses of storekeepers put by it in charge of them. U. S. v. Powell (1871) 81 U. S. (14 Wall.) 493, 20 L. Ed. 726.

Custody and control of warehouse and spirits therein.—Under this section and sections 6014 and 6015, post, the government is not responsible for safe keeping of bonded whisky deposited in a distillery warehouse, and if it is stolen through failure of the revenue officers to provide sufficient locks for the doors, it is no defense to an action on the bond either in favor of the distiller or of his sureties. U. S. v. Witten (1892) 12 Sup. Ct. 372, 373, 143 U. S. 76, 36 L. Ed. 81.

Though a distillery warehouse is under the lock of the inspector, as provided by Act July 13, 1866, §§ 27–29, the spirits are still in the possession of the owner, within Act July 13, 1866, § 9. U. S. v. Thirty-Six Barrels of High Wines (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,468.

Whisky deposited in a bonded warehouse and held for internal revenue tax is in possession of the United States, and a sheriff has no right to enter such warehouse and seize the whisky under execution, even though he offers to pay the tax. McCullough v. Large (C. C. 1884) 20 Fed. 309, 311.

A distiller's warehouse is under the government's complete control, and neither a buyer nor pledgee may take actual delivery of spirits stored therein without paying the tax, and neither is bound to make payment until actual removal is desired. In re Miller Pure Rye Distilling Co. (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 606, affirmed Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1911) 187 Fed. 689, 109 C. C. A. 437.

Warehouse receipts.—The relation between a distiller and the officers of the government in custody of the whisky in his distillery warehouse is sui generis. It is prescribed by law, and is not contractual, and warehouse receipts issued by the distiller for whisky so stored in bond are not within Act Pa. Sept. 24, 1866 (1 Purd. Dig. [13th Ed.] p. 393), providing for the negotiability of warehouse receipts, which receipts, under the decisions of the Supreme Court of the state, must have been issued by a third and independent person, in order that their transfer by the bailor to a purchaser or pledgee shall operate as a delivery of the property. Taney v. Penn. Nat. Bank of Reading (1911) 187 Fed. 689, 109 C. C. A. 437, affirming decree In re Miller Pure Rye Distilling Co. (D. C. 1910) 176 Fed. 606.

Transfer of warehouse receipts as delivery of whisky, see Id.

A receipt for whisky stored in a bonded warehouse is not a "document of title," within the meaning of Act Ky. May 5, 1880, which provides that "every factor or other agent intrusted with possession of a document of title to merchandise shall be deemed the owner," so as to validate a sale or pledge of the property to an innocent third party, and which also declares that any custom-house permit or warehouse receipt shall be deemed a document of title, since whisky in a bonded warehouse is subject to the regulations of congress, and is in charge of the officers of the government. George v. Fourth Nat. Bank (C. C. 1888) 41 Fed. 257.

Pledges of warehouse receipts against pledgor's whisky stored in his warehouse held invalid. In re Rohrer (D. C. 1911) 186 Fed. 997, reversed Pattison v. Dale (1912) 196 Fed. 5, 115 C. C. A. 639.

Averment as to warehouse in indictment.—An indictment for aiding in the concealment of distilled spirits on which the tax had not been paid need not aver that there was a warehouse provided by law as required by this section, where the spirits should have been stored. Pounds v. U. S. (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 729, 171 U. S. 35, 43 L. Ed. 62.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; U. S. v. Sisk (1910) 176 Fed. 885, 100 C. C. A. 355; Same v. South Branch Distilling Co. (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 16,359; Same v. Peace (C. C. 1892) 48 Fed. 714, 715 (reversed [1893] 53 Fed. 999, 4 C. C. A. 148); Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Roxbury Distilling Co. (D. C. 1912) 196 Fed. 76.

§ 6010. (Act Jan. 8, 1874, c. 7.) Use of distillery warehouse by successor in business.

When from death or from any other cause there shall be a change in the person, firm or company engaged in the business of distilling at any distillery, and the person, firm or company that by reason of such change ceases to carry on said business at such distillery has at the time of such change spirits in the distillery warehouse, it shall be lawful for the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, upon the written consent of the surviving principals and sureties interested, and under such rules and regulations, and upon such other conditions, as he may prescribe, to permit the succeeding person, firm or company to use the distillery warehouse on the premises in the same manner as if it did not contain distilled spirits belonging to the original person, firm, or company after setting apart and separating, by a secure and unbroken partition such portion of it as may be necessary for the storage and safe-keeping of the spirits distilled by the original person, firm or company, during the period allowed by law for the removal of distilled spirits from distillery warehouses, or until said spirits are removed, and the tax paid thereon within that time: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall impair or in any way affect the lien existing at the time of such change under section one of the internal revenue act of July twenty, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, as amended, or other liabilities under any internal revenue law, but the existence of such lien shall be no ground for refusing to approve the bond of the succeeding person, firm or company, anything in section eight of the said act of July twenty, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, as amended, to the contrary notwithstanding. (18 Stat. 2.)

These were provisions of an act to allow distillery warehouses to be continued in use after changes in the management of the business, cited above.

The provisions of Act July 20, 1868, and amendments, mentioned in the proviso in this section, were incorporated into R. S. §§ 3251, 3260, 3262, ante, §§ 5985, 5997, 5999.

Provisions for the distiller's entry for deposit in distillery warehouse were made by R. S. § 3293, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, and by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 4, incorporated into that section, post, § 6034.

§ 6011. (R. S. § 3272.) When a warehouse becomes unsafe.

Whenever in the opinion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue any distillery or other warehouse is unsafe or unfit for use, or the merchandise therein is for any reason liable to loss or great wastage, he may discontinue such warehouse, and require the merchandise therein to be transferred to such other warehouse as he may designate and within such time as he may prescribe. Such transfer shall be made under the supervision of the collector, or of such other officer as may be designated by the Commissioner, and the expense thereof shall be paid by the owner of the merchandise. Whenever the owner of such merchandise fails to make such transfer within the time prescribed, or to pay the just and proper expense of such transfer, as ascertained and determined by the Commissioner, such merchandise may be seized and sold by the collector in the same manner as goods are sold upon distraint for taxes, and the proceeds of such sale shall be applied to the payment of the taxes due thereon and the costs and expenses of such sale and removal, and the balance paid over to the owner of such merchandise.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 56, 15 Stat. 149.

The discontinuance of unsafe or unfit special bonded warehouses, and the transfer of merchandise therein, pursuant to this section, including the penalties imposed, were authorized by Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 7, post, § 6045.

Similar provisions extended to distillery warehouses and general bonded warehouses were made by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 57, post, § 6012.

Notes of Decisions

Tax as due on removal.—The tax is not due on the removal from one warehouse to another. U. S. v. Peace (C. C. 1892) 48 Fed. 714, 716, reversed (1893) 53 Fed. 999, 4 C. C. A. 148.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Id. (1911) 187 Fed. 689, 109 C. C. A. 437.

§ 6012. (Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 57.) Discontinuance of warehouse and transfer of merchandise.

Whenever distilling shall have been suspended at any distillery for a period or periods aggregating six months during any calendar year, and the quantity of spirits remaining in the distillery warehouse does not exceed five thousand proof gallons, or whenever, in the opinion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, any distillery warehouse or general bonded warehouse is unsafe or unfit for use, or the merchandise therein is liable to loss or great wastage, he may in either such case discontinue such warehouse and require the merchandise therein to be transferred to such other warehouse as he may designate, and within such time as he may prescribe; and all the provisions of section thirty-two hundred and seventy-two of the Revised Statutes of the United States relating to transfers of spirits from warehouses, including those imposing penalties, are hereby made applicable to transfers to or from general bonded warehouses established under this Act. (28 Stat. 566.)

This section was part of the Wilson Tariff Act, cited above.

R. S. § 3272, mentioned in this section, providing for discontinuance of a distillery or other warehouse becoming unsafe, etc., is set forth ante, § 6011.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Id. (1911) 187 Fed. 689, 109 C. C. A. 437.

§ 6013. (R. S. § 3273.) Store-keepers have charge under direction of collector.

The store-keeper assigned to any distillery warehouse shall also have charge of the distillery connected therewith; and every store-keeper shall have charge of the warehouse to which he is assigned, and of such distillery, under the direction of the collector controlling the same.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, §§ 21, 52, 15 Stat. 134, 146.

Cited without definite application, Clinkenbeard v. U. S. (1874) 21 Wall. 65, 69, 22 L. Ed. 477; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Id. (1911) 187 Fed. 689, 109 C. C. A. 437.

§ 6014. (R. S. § 3274.) Custody and management of warehouse.

Every distillery warehouse shall be in the joint custody of the store-keeper and the proprietor thereof. It shall be kept securely locked, and shall at no time be unlocked, or opened, or remain open, unless in the presence of such store-keeper, or other person who may be designated to act for him, as provided by law; and no articles shall be received in or delivered from such warehouse except on an order or permit addressed to the store-keeper and signed by the collector having control of the warehouse.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 52, 15 Stat. 146.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 6009, ante.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Id. (1911) 187 Fed. 689, 109 C. C. A. 437; U. S. v. Peace (C. C. 1892) 48 Fed. 714, 715, reversed (1893) 53 Fed. 999, 4 C. C. A. 148.

§ 6015. (R. S. § 3275.) Distiller to keep distillery accessible.

No fence or wall of a height greater than five feet shall be erected or maintained around the premises of any distillery, so as to prevent easy and immediate access to such distillery. And every distiller shall furnish to the collector of the district as many keys of the gates and doors of the distillery as may be required by the collector, from time to time, for any revenue officer or other person who may be authorized to make survey or inspection of the premises, or of the contents thereof; and said distillery shall be kept always accessible to any officer or other person having any such key. Every person who violates any of the foregoing provisions of this section by negligence or refusal, or otherwise, shall pay a penalty of five hundred dollars.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 18, 15 Stat. 132. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 6009, ante.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6016. (R. S. § 3276, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5.) Power of revenue officers to enter and examine distilleries; penalty for obstructing officer.

It shall be lawful for any revenue officer at all times, as well by night as by day, to enter into any distillery or building or place used for the business of distilling, or used in connection therewith for storage or other purposes, and to examine, gauge, measure, and take an account of every still or other vessel or utensil of any kind and of all low-wines, and of the quantity and gravity of all mash, wort, or beer, and of all yeast, or other compositions for exciting or producing fermentation in any mash or beer, of all spirits and of all materials for making or distilling spirits, which may be in any such distillery or premises, or in possession of the distiller. And whenever any internal-revenue officer, or any person called by him to his aid, is hindered, obstructed, or prevented by any distiller or by any workman, or other person acting for such distiller, or in his employ, from entering into any such distillery or building or place as aforesaid; or any such officer is by the distiller, or his workman or any person in his employ, prevented or hindered from, or opposed or obstructed, or molested in the performance of his duty under the internal-revenue laws, in any respect, the distiller shall forfeit the sum of not exceeding one thousand dollars. And whenever any officer, having demanded admittance into a distillery or distillery premises, and having declared his name and office, is not admitted into such distillery or premises by the distiller or other person having charge thereof, it shall be lawful for such officer at all times, as well by night as by day, to break open by force any of the doors or windows, or to break through any of the walls of such distillery or premises necessary to be broken open or through, to enable him to enter the said distillery or premises; and the distiller shall forfeit the sum of not exceeding one thousand dollars.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 32, 15 Stat. 139. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, 20 Stat. 335.

This section is amended by inserting before the words "one thousand dollars," where they occur in this section, the words "not exceeding," as set forth here by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

Operation of distillery by officers.— Internal revenue officers held authorized to take possession of a registered distillery and operate same for a short time to ascertain its capacity and whether it is being operated according to law. U. S. v. One Distillery and Fixtures, etc. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 720.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Id. (1911) 187 Fed. 689, 109 C. C. A. 437.

§ 6017. (R. S. § 3277.) Distillers and rectifiers to furnish facilities for examination; penalty for neglect.

On the demand of any internal-revenue officer, every distiller or rectifier shall furnish strong, safe, and convenient ladders of sufficient length to enable the officer to examine and gauge any vessel or utensil in such distillery or premises; and shall, at all times when required, supply all assistance, lights, ladders, tools, staging, or other things necessary for inspecting the premises, stocks, tools, and apparatus belonging to such person, and shall open all doors, and open for examination all boxes, packages, and all casks, barrels, and other vessels not under the control of the revenue officer in charge, under a penalty of five hundred dollars for every refusal or neglect so to do.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 33, 15 Stat. 139.

The provisions of this section were made applicable to revenue agents by an amendment of R. S. § 3152, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, ante, § 5856.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6018. (R. S. § 3278.) Officers to break up ground or walls in order to examine.

It shall be lawful for any revenue officer, and any person acting in his aid, to break up the ground on any part of a distillery, or premises of a distiller or rectifier, or any ground adjoining or near to such distillery or premises, or any wall or partition thereof, or belonging thereto, or other place, to search for any pipe, cock, private conveyance, or utensil; and, upon finding any such pipe or conveyance leading therefrom or thereto, to break up any ground, house, wall, or other place through or into which such pipe or other conveyance leads, and to break or cut away such pipe or other conveyance, and turn any cock, or to examine whether such pipe or other conveyance conveys or conceals any mash, wort, or beer, or other liquor, which may be used for the distillation of low-wines or spirits, from the sight or view of the officer, so as to prevent or hinder him from taking a true account thereof.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 34, 15 Stat. 140.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6019. (R. S. § 3279.) Signs to be put up by distillers and rectifiers; penalty for neglect; penalty for using false signs, etc.

Every person engaged in distilling or rectifying spirits, and every wholesale liquor-dealer, shall place and keep conspicuously on the outside of the place of such business a sign, exhibiting in plain and legible letters, not less than three inches in length, painted in oil-colors or gilded, and of a proper and proportionate width, the name or firm of the distiller, rectifier, or wholesale dealer, with the words: "Registered distillery," "rectifier of spirits," or "wholesale liquor-dealer," as the case may be. Every person who violates the foregoing provision by negligence or refusal, or otherwise, shall pay a penalty of five hundred dollars. And every person, other than a rectifier or wholesale liquor-dealer who has paid the special tax, or a distiller who has given bond as required by law, who puts up or keeps up the sign required by this section, or any sign indicating that he may lawfully carry on the business of a distiller, rectifier, or wholesale liquor-dealer, shall forfeit and pay one thousand dollars, and shall be imprisoned not less than one month nor more than six months. And every person who works in any distillery, rectifying establishment, or wholesale liquor-store, on which no sign is placed and kept, as hereinbefore provided; and every person who knowingly receives at, carries or conveys any distilled spirits to or from, any such distillery, rectifying establishment, warehouse, or store, or who knowingly carries and delivers any grain, molasses, or other raw material to any distillery on which such sign is not placed and kept, shall forfeit all horses, carts, drays, wagons, or other vehicle or animal used in carrying or conveying such property aforesaid, and shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or be imprisoned not less than one month nor more than six months.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 18, 15 Stat. 132.

Notes of Decisions

Violations of statute in general.—It is an offense under this section to work in a distillery on which no sign is placed and kept as provided therein. U. S. v. Flynn (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,123.

One who erects a "shanty," in which is put up an illicit still, is not punishable under this section, providing that every person who works in any distillery on which no sign is placed and kept, shall be fined. U. S. v. Burgess (D. C. 1888) 33 Fed. 833.

The defendants, being distillers, having been indicted, tried, found guilty, and fined for a violation of this section, and execution issued thereon having been returned nulla bona, this action was instituted on the bond executed by the defendants to the United States, containing a covenant that the defendants "shall in all respects faithfully comply with all the provisions of law and regulations in relation to the duties and business of distillers, * * * and shall pay all penalties incurred or fines imposed on him for a violation of any of said provisions." Held, on demurrer to the petition, that the action was maintainable. U. S. v. Thompson (D. C. 1891) 45 Fed. 468.

Indictment.—An indictment under this section which charges that the accused "unlawfully and knowingly did carry and deliver, to wit, raw material to a distillery" on which no sign was placed and kept as required by law, but which does not state that such distillery was one for the production of spirits, nor set forth the kind of raw material which was furnished, is insufficient, as not describing the offense with the particularity required. Terry v. U. S. (1903) 120 Fed. 483, 56 C. C. A. 633.

Trial by jury.—Defendants were indicted for unlawfully carrying on the business of a rectifier without having paid the special tax required by law, in violation of section 5966, ante, for which defendants might have been fined $5,000 and imprisoned for two years. The second count was for the unlawful rectifying in violation of section 6099, post, for which a punishment of not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000 fine and imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than two years might be imposed. The third count was for omitting to put up signs as required by this section. And the fourth count was for violating section 6107, post, prohibiting the changing of stamps and shifting of distilled spirits, under which the maximum punishment is a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for a year. Held, that such offenses involving imprisonment were crimes for which accused could only be punished after a conviction by a jury under Const. art. 3, § 2, providing that the trial of all crimes except in the case of impeachment shall be by jury. Low v. U. S. (1909) 169 Fed. 86, 94 C. C. A. 1.

Cited without definite application, Powers v. U. S. (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 281, 282, 223 U. S. 303, 56 L. Ed. 448; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Foster v. U. S. (1911) 188 Fed. 305, 110 C. C. A. 283, denied (1911) 192 Fed. 1022, 112 C. C. A. 665.

§ 6020. (R. S. § 3280.) Distillers not to carry on business until the law is complied with.

It shall not be lawful for any distiller to commence or to continue the business of distilling, until he has given the bond required by law, and complied with the provisions of law relating to the registration and survey of distilleries, and the arrangement and construction of distilleries and the premises connected therewith; nor shall it be lawful for any person to engage in the business of distilling on any premises distant less than six hundred feet in a direct line from any premises used for rectifying; nor shall the processes of distillation and rectification both be carried on within the distance of six hundred feet in a direct line.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 11, 15 Stat. 129. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 239.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Heidritter v. Elizabeth Oilcloth Co. (C. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 138, 140, affirmed (1884) 5 Sup. Ct. 135, 112 U. S. 294, 28 L. Ed. 729.

§ 6021. (R. S. § 3281.) Carrying on distillery without giving bond, etc.; penalty.

Every person who carries on the business of a distiller without having given bond as required by law, or who engages in or carries on the business of a distiller with intent to defraud the United States of the tax on the spirits distilled by him, or of any part thereof, shall, for every such offense, be fined not less than one thousand dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years. And all distilled spirits or wines, and all stills or other apparatus fit or intended to be used for the distillation or rectification of spirits, or for the compounding of liquors, owned by such person, wherever found, and all distilled spirits or wines and personal property found in the distillery or in any building, room, yard, or inclosure connected therewith, and used with or constituting a part of the premises, and all the right, title, and interest of such person in the lot or tract of land on which such distillery is situated, and all right, title, and interest therein of every person, who knowingly has suffered or permitted the business of a distiller to be there carried on, or has connived at the same; and all personal property owned by or in possession of any person who has permitted or suffered any building, yard, or inclosure, or any part thereof, to be used for purposes of ingress or egress to or from such distillery, which shall be found in any such building, yard, or inclosure, and all the right, title, and interest of every person in any premises used for ingress or egress to or from such distillery, who has knowingly suffered or permitted such premises to be used for such ingress or egress, shall be forfeited to the United States.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 44, 15 Stat. 142. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 240.

Similar provisions were made by Act Feb. 8, 1875, c. 36, § 16, ante, § 5966.

Notes of Decisions

See §§ 5966, 5993, ante, and 6038, post, and notes thereunder.

Violation of statute in general.—The act and fraudulent intent together constitute the offense under this section. U. S. v. Simmons (1877) 96 U. S. 360, 364, 24 L. Ed. 819.

An employé having no interest in a distillery or the product as a proprietor or partner, though he is paid in such product, is not subject to indictment, though he has knowledge that the special tax has not been paid. U. S. v. Logan (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 15,624; Same v. Cooper (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 14,863.

The owner of a distillery who rents the same to another knowing that the latter intends to use it for distilling whisky, in violation of law, is guilty of aiding and abetting such unlawful manufacture. U. S. v. Harbison (C. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,300.

Act July 20, 1868, § 44, is applicable to any person distilling spirits without paying the special tax, or giving bond, whether he has registered his still, or given notice of intention to engage in the business, or not. U. S. v. Mathoit (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 15,740.

A person is liable to indictment for running a distillery upon which the special tax has not been paid, though he acted merely as the agent of another. U. S. v. Davis (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 14,928.

A vinegar manufacturer is liable as a distiller if, by the process used, he obtains alcohol from his mash so that he is saved the expense of purchasing the alcohol necessary for the manufacture of vinegar. U. S. v. Steen & Cwergius' Factory (D. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 16,383; Same v. Distillery (D. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 14,960.

A part owner of a still is liable where he has knowledge of illicit distilling by his co-owner, though he does not share in the product. U. S. v. Bagwell (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 14,494.

A person is liable for illicit distilling under Act July 20, 1868, where the spirits extracted partake of the qualities of alcohol, irrespective of their degree of strength. Id.

Whoever aids in the act of illegal distilling is to be held responsible under the law, without regard to ownership of the still or its product. U. S. v. Carpenter (D. C. 1874) Fed. Cas. No. 14,727.

S., who owned a distillery and a quantity of whisky, sold the same to R., taking in payment a promissory note, which he had discounted at a bank. S. had no license to sell whisky, nor were the barrels, when sold, marked as required by the United States laws. The bank brought suit against R. on the note, who contended that it was void because of these violations of the law by S. Held, that it was not void, as the United States statutes did not prohibit the sale of whisky, but only imposed a penalty for their violation. Rahter v. First Nat. Bank (1880) 92 Pa. 393, distinguishing Holt v. Green (1873) 73 Pa. 198, 13 Am. Rep. 737.

Prosecution and punishment.—An indictment, under this section, forbidding the operation of a still with the intent of evading the tax on spirits, charging that defendant knowingly carried on the business of a distiller, within the meaning of the internal revenue laws of the United States, with the intent to defraud the United States of the tax on spirits distilled by him, need not also state the particular means by which the fraud was effected. U. S. v. Simmons (1877) 96 U. S. 360, 24 L. Ed. 819.

In an action on a distiller's bond for breach of section 6038, post, a compromise of prosecutions under this section and section 10201, post, for removal of the same liquor, is a complete defense. U. S. v. Chouteau (1880) 102 U. S. 603, 26 L. Ed. 246.

An indictment for unlawfully carrying on the business of distillers with intent to defraud the United States, or having a still under their superintendence, is supported by proof that the distillery was owned by a corporation of which defendants were the officers and managers. Wood v. U. S. (1913) 204 Fed. 55, 122 C. C. A. 369.

On trial of defendants for operating an illicit still, testimony offered to show that other persons lived in the vicinity of the still, and that there were paths between their houses and the still, held properly excluded as immaterial. Fields v. U. S. (1915) 221 Fed. 242, 137 C. C. A. 98, certiorari denied (1915) 35 Sup. Ct. 941, 238 U. S. 640, 59 L. Ed. 1501.

"Then and there distilling and manufacturing spirits to a very large amount, to wit, to the amount and number of 1,000 gallons of proof spirits," held a sufficient affirmative allegation that defendant did distill. U. S. v. Fox (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,156.

In an indictment against a distiller for conspiracy to defraud the United States, it is not essential to state, in addition to an intent to defraud, the facts showing such intent. U. S. v. Ulrici (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 16,594.

Where the charge is an attempt to defraud, acts constituting the attempt should be specified. Id.

An indictment under this section, which describes the offense in the language of the statute, is sufficient. U. S. v. Staton (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 16,382.

The finding of unstamped spirits on premises containing a still is, when unexplained, sufficient to justify the jury in finding that such spirits were distilled there since the last inspection by the gauger. U. S. v. Mathoit (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 15,740.

The presence of defendants while the distillery was in operation is merely a circumstance to show their connection with it, and will not alone justify a conviction. U. S. v. Dobbs (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 14,972.

A conviction, under section 6038, post, for removing distilled spirits to a place other than a distillery warehouse, or concealing them there contrary to law, is not a bar to a conviction under this section for illicit distilling, because the same are different offenses, and the question of being twice in jeopardy, within Const. Amend. 5, does not arise. U. S. v. Three Copper Stills (D. C. 1890) 47 Fed. 495.

—— For carrying on business without paying special tax under former law.—An indictment for carrying on the business of a distiller of spirits without paying the special tax (Act July 13, 1866, § 23) need not set out the particular acts of distilling, or the kinds of spirits. U. S. v. Fox (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,156.

—— For false and fraudulent bond under former law.—In an indictment under Act July 13, 1866, § 42, for executing a fraudulent bond, it is not necessary to set out the particulars. U. S. v. Henry (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,350.

On a prosecution for executing and signing a false and fraudulent bond, the testimony of a subscribing witness that the bond was taken away and returned with the signature of a person whom the witness had seen sign another bond, held sufficient proof of execution by him. U. S. v. O'Brien (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,909.

Forfeitures and enforcement thereof.—A bona fide purchaser for value, prior to seizure, is protected. U. S. v. Sixty-Four Barrels Distilled Spirits (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,306; Same v. Three Hundred and Ninety-Six Barrels Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 16,504; Same v. Three Hundred and Seventy-Two Pipes Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 16,505.

Under this section the property is forfeited irrespective of question of ownership. U. S. v. Distillery at Spring Valley (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 14,963; Same v. One Copper Still (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,928.

Where the owner of a distillery and other property connected therewith leased them for the purpose of distilling, the acts or omissions of the lessee in carrying on the business of distilling while he was in possession, and with intent to defraud the revenue, though they are unknown to the owner, subject the distillery and such other property to forfeiture to the United States. Dobbins Distillery v. U. S. (1877) 96 U. S. 395, 24 L. Ed. 637.

The forfeiture takes effect on commission of the act, and the condemnation relates back and avoids all intermediate sales, even to purchasers in good faith. U. S. v. Stowell (1890) 10 Sup. Ct. 244, 247, 133 U. S. 1, 33 L. Ed. 555.

The provision in R. S. § 3305, post, § 6085, that "the distillery, distilling apparatus, and the lot or tract of land on which it stands," shall be forfeited, will not be construed to include the interests of innocent third persons; as the forfeiture would be more comprehensive than that provided for the graver offense declared against in this section. Id.

In a proceeding by information for the forfeiture of property under section 5993, ante, and this section as being used by one carrying on the business of a distiller without giving bond and attempting to defraud the government of the tax on spirits distilled by him, the burden of proof rests on the United States to establish the facts alleged, and every reasonable intendment and effect must be given to answers filed by third persons who claim the property as their own. U. S. v. One Engine & Belting, etc. (1910) 179 Fed. 698, 103 C. C. A. 43.

A sale passes to the purchaser all the interest of the United States, and they are estopped to set up against him any lien known when the sale was ordered. U. S. v. Mackoy (C. C. 1872) Fed. Cas. No. 15,696.

Money paid into the district court, on the sale, in condemnation proceedings, of a distillery, cannot, while the proceedings are pending, be withdrawn, or their distribution directed, by the circuit court, on an original bill. Id.

Where the tax has been paid, and the barrels properly marked, branded, and stamped, the spirits cannot be seized under Act July 20, 1868, § 44, while in the hands of an innocent purchaser, for frauds of the distiller. U. S. v. One Hundred Barrels of High Wines (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,947.

Under this section the forfeiture does not operate when the statute is violated, but only at the time of seizure. U. S. v. Feigelstock (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 15,084.

Knowledge that the ingress or egress over the premises was to or from a distillery is necessary to subject it to forfeiture for having suffered its use for ingress or egress to or from an illicit distillery. Gregory v. U. S. (C. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 5,803.

Premises occupied and used as a distillery are liable to forfeiture for the violation of sections 7 and 19 of the act of July 20, 1868 (15 Stat. 127, 132), in relation to distiller's bonds and books of account, without regard to the culpability of the owner of the property. Heidritter v. Elizabeth Oilcloth Co. (C. C. 1881) 6 Fed. 138, judgment affirmed (1884) 5 Sup. Ct. 135, 112 U. S. 294, 28 L. Ed. 729.

In an information for forfeiture of a distillery for violation of the statute, the acts and intents of the servants or agents of the claimant are to be imputed to the principal, in so far as that they may work the forfeiture of the property used for unlawful purposes. Bush v. U. S. (C. C. 1885) 24 Fed. 917.

A factor's lien is not protected against forfeiture unless it appear that his demand requires for his protection an enforcement of his lien against the specific property seized. U. S. v. Three Hundred and Ninety-Six Barrels Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1865) Fed. Cas. No. 16,504.

A lienor prior to seizure is protected. U. S. v. Three Hundred and Seventy-Two Pipes of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1879) Fed. Cas. No. 16,505.

Knowledge by the owner of a distillery that his lessees are using the same for the fraudulent manufacture of liquors, and evading payment of taxes thereon, is sufficient to warrant a forfeiture of the property. U. S. v. Blair (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 14,607.

Pastures, orchards, and vineyards contiguous to a distillery, and under the same ownership, but in no other way connected therewith, are not subject to forfeiture with the distillery as a part of the lot or tract of land on which it is situated. U. S. v. Certain Piece of Land (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 14,767.

Under Act July 20, 1868, § 44, no proof is required of the actual complicity of the owner of the property to be forfeited in the fraud or other thing which causes the forfeiture. U. S. v. Distillery at Spring Valley (C. C. 1873) Fed. Cas. No. 14,963.

The connivance of the government storekeeper in the frauds committed by the person who runs the distillery will not operate to destroy the forfeiture resulting from the acts of such person. U. S. v. Distillery at Spring Valley (D. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 14,962.

Knowledge of the owner of its unlawful use. U. S. v. One Copper Still (D. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 15,928.

After an officer and stockholder of a corporation engaged in distilling is convicted for a violation of the internal revenue law, an action cannot be maintained to enforce the forfeiture of the corporation's property for the same offense, even though the forfeiture is resisted only by the other stockholders. U. S. v. One Distillery (D. C. 1890) 43 Fed. 846, judgment affirmed (1899) 19 Sup. Ct. 624, 174 U. S. 149, 43 L. Ed. 929.

A distillery and its product of distilled spirits is subject to forfeiture if the proprietor, his agent or servants, operates the same with intent to evade payment of the tax on the product. U. S. v. One Distillery and Fixtures, etc. (D. C. 1911) 193 Fed. 720.

Under this section a sale, in proceedings in rem, of land forfeited by the distiller, does not pass the title of a mortgagee, without whose knowledge the distillery was maintained. Glenn v. Winstead (1895) 116 N. C. 451, 21 S. E. 393.

The mere erection of a house on land, and its use as a distillery, is not, as a matter of law, notice to a mortgagee that a distillery is being maintained thereon, so as to render his interest liable to forfeiture for violation by the distiller of the revenue laws. Id.

A mortgage of personal property made six days after the decree of forfeiture thereof for violation of the revenue law as to illicit distilling, but before the sale, conveyed no title. Beattie v. Boyle (Ohio, 1872) 2 Cin. R. 201.

Cited without definite application, Whisky Cases (1878) 99 U. S. 594, 25 L. Ed. 399; Coffey v. U. S. (1886) 6 S. Ct. 432, 436, 116 U. S. 427, 29 L. Ed. 681; Powers v. U. S. (1912) 32 Sup. Ct. 281, 282, 223 U. S. 303, 56 L. Ed. 448; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Hardesty v. U. S. (1909) 168 Fed. 25, 93 C. C. A. 417; Foster v. Same (1911) 188 Fed. 305, 110 C. C. A. 283 (denied [1911] 192 Fed. 1022, 112 C. C. A. 665); U. S. v. Manufacturing Apparatus of New Jersey Melting & Churning Co. (D. C. 1905) 141 Fed. 475.

§ 6022. (R. S. § 3282, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5.) Mash, wort and vinegar; location and operation of vinegar factories; forfeitures; punishment.

No mash, wort, or wash, fit for distillation or for the production of spirits or alcohol, shall be made or fermented in any building or on any premises other than a distillery duly authorized according to law; and no mash, wort, or wash so made and fermented shall be sold or removed from any distillery before being distilled; and no person, other than an authorized distiller, shall, by distillation, or by any other process, separate the alcoholic spirits from any fermented mash, wort, or wash; and no person shall use spirits or alcohol, in manufacturing vinegar or any other article, or in any process of manufacture whatever, unless the spirits or alcohol so used shall have been produced in an authorized distillery and the tax thereon paid. Every person who violates any provision of this section shall be fined for each offense not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and be imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years: Provided further, That nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to fermented liquors, or to fermented liquids used for the manufacture of vinegar exclusively. But no worm, goose-neck, pipe, conductor, or contrivance of any description whatsoever whereby vapor might in any manner be conveyed away and converted into distilled spirits, shall be used or employed or be fastened to or connected with any vaporizing apparatus used for the manufacture of vinegar; nor shall any worm be permitted on or near the premises where such vaporizing process is carried on. Nor shall any vinegar factory, for the manufacture of vinegar as aforesaid, be permitted within six hundred feet of any distillery or rectifying house. But it shall be lawful for manufacturers of vinegar to separate, by a vaporizing process, the alcoholic property from the mash produced by them, and condense the same by introducing it into the water or other liquid used in making vinegar. No person, however, shall remove, or cause to be removed, from any vinegar factory or place where vinegar is made, any vinegar or other fluid or material containing a greater proportion than two per centum of proof spirits. Any violation of this provision shall incur a forfeiture of the vinegar, fluid, or material containing such proof spirits, and shall subject the person or persons guilty of removing the same to the punishment provided for any violation of this section. And all the provisions of sections thirty-two hundred and seventy-six, thirty-two hundred and seventy-seven, and thirty-two hundred and seventy-eight of the Revised Statutes of the United States are hereby extended and made applicable to all premises whereon vinegar is manufactured, to all manufacturers of vinegar and their workmen or other persons employed by them.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 4, 15 Stat. 126. Res. March 3, 1871, No. 53, 16 Stat. 601. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, 20 Stat. 335.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes was amended by striking out, after the words "use spirits or alcohol," the words "or any vapor of alcoholic spirits," and by striking out, at the end of the section as originally enacted, the words "But nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize the distillation of such fermented liquids, except in an authorized distillery," and by inserting, in lieu thereof, the provisions beginning with the words "But no worm, goose-neck, pipe, conductor," etc., to the end of the section as set forth here by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, cited above.

Vinegar factories established and operated before March 1, 1879, were authorized to be operated, for the manufacture of alcoholic vapor, within 600 feet of a distillery or rectifying-house, by Act June 14, 1879, c. 23, set forth post, § 6023.

R. S. §§ 3276, 3277, 3278, mentioned in this section, are set forth ante, §§ 6016–6018.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue was required to exempt distillers of alcohol for denaturation from the provisions of this section by a provision of the Underwood Tariff Act of Oct. 3, 1913, c. 16, § IV, N, subsec. 2, post, § 6137.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 5981, ante.

Manufacture prohibited by statute.—The manufacture of alcohol in the process of making vinegar, though the alcohol is not released from its impure state, is within the prohibition of Act July 20, 1868, § 4. U. S. v. Prussing (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,095.

Cited without definite application, Jordan v. Roche (1913) 33 Sup. Ct. 573, 228 U. S. 436, 57 L. Ed. 908; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6023. (Act June 14, 1879, c. 23.) Location and operation of certain vinegar factories.

Any vinegar factory for the manufacture of vinegar, established and operated as a vinegar factory prior to March first, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, may be operated for the manufacture of vinegar by the use of alcoholic vapor within such distance less than six hundred feet of any distillery or rectifying-house under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. (21 Stat. 20.)

§ 6024. (R. S. § 3283.) No process for distilling between 11 p. m. of Saturday and 1 a. m. of Monday.

No malt, corn, grain, or other material shall be mashed, nor any mash, wort, or beer brewed or made, nor any still used by a distiller, at any time between the hour of eleven in the afternoon of any Saturday and the hour of one in the forenoon of the next succeeding Monday; and every person who violates the provisions of this section shall be liable to a penalty of one thousand dollars.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 35, 15 Stat. 140.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6025. (R. S. § 3284.) Using material or removing spirits in absence of store-keeper; penalty.

Every distiller or person employed in any distillery who, in the absence of the store-keeper, or person designated to act as store-keeper, uses, or causes or permits to be used, any material for the purpose of making mash, wort, or beer, or for the production of spirits, or removes any spirits, shall forfeit and pay double the amount of taxes on the spirits so produced, distilled, or removed, and in addition thereto be liable to a penalty of one thousand dollars.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 21, 15 Stat. 134.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6026. (R. S. § 3285, as amended, Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 3, and Act June 22, 1910, c. 329, § 2.) Emptying and filling fermenting tubs.

Every fermenting tub shall be emptied at or before the end of the fermenting period; no fermenting tub in a sweet-mash distillery shall be filled oftener than once in seventy-two hours, nor in a sour-mash distillery oftener than once in ninety-six hours, nor in a rum distillery oftener than once in one hundred and forty-four hours, nor in a distillery where the filtration-aeration process is employed, that is, where the mash after it leaves the mash tub is passed through a filtering machine, before it is run into the fermenting tub, and only the filtered liquor passes into the fermenting tub, and the approval of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue being secured, oftener than once in twenty-four hours. The provisions hereof relating to filtration-aeration process shall apply only to sweet-mash distilleries.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 19, 15 Stat. 133. Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 3, 21 Stat. 145. Act June 22, 1910, c. 329, § 2, 36 Stat. 590.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was as follows:

"Every fermenting-tub shall be emptied at the end of the fermenting period, and shall remain empty for twenty-four hours."

It was amended by substituting therefor the provisions beginning with the word "Every," and ending with the words "one hundred and forty-four hours," by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 3, cited above.

It was further amended by the addition, at the end of said amended section, of the provisions relating to distilleries where the filtration-aeration process is employed, making it read as set forth here, by Act June 22, 1910, c. 329, § 2, last cited above.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6027. (R. S. § 3286, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5.) Drawing off water, cleansing worm-tub, etc.

Whenever any officer requires the water contained in any worm-tub in a distillery, at any time when the still is not at work, to be drawn off, and the tub and worm cleansed, the water shall forthwith be drawn off, and the tub and worm cleansed by the distiller, or his workmen, accordingly; and the water shall be kept and continued out of such worm-tub for the period of two hours, or until the officer has finished his examination thereof. For any refusal or neglect to comply with any provision of this section, the distiller shall forfeit the sum of not exceeding one thousand dollars; and it shall be lawful for the officer to draw off such water, or any portion of it, and to keep the same drawn off for so long a time as he shall think necessary.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 31, 15 Stat. 139.

Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, 20 Stat. 335.

This section, enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting, before the words "one thousand dollars," the words "not exceeding," as set forth here, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, cited above.

The provisions of this section were made applicable to revenue agents by an amendment of R. S. § 3152, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 2, ante, § 5856.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6028. (R. S. § 3287, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 6, Act Feb. 21, 1899, c. 177, and Act March 2, 1911, c. 199.) Drawing off, gauging, etc., and removal of spirits to warehouse.

All distilled spirits shall be drawn from the receiving cisterns into casks or packages, each of not less capacity than ten gallons wine-measure, and shall thereupon be gauged, proved, and marked by an internal-revenue gauger, who shall cut on the cask or package containing such spirits, in a manner to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the quantity in wine-gallons and in proof-gallons of the contents of such casks or packages, and the particular name of such distilled spirits as known to the trade, that is to say, high-wines, alcohol, or spirits, as the case may be, shall be marked or branded on the head of such cask or package in letters of not less than one inch in length; and the spirits shall be immediately removed into the distillery warehouse, and the gauger shall, in the presence of the storekeeper of the warehouse, place upon the head of the cask or package an engraved stamp, which shall be signed by the collector of the district and the storekeeper and gauger; and shall have written thereon the number of proof-gallons contained therein, the name of the distiller, the date of the receipt in the warehouse, and the serial number of each cask or package, in progressive order, as the same are received from the distillery. Such serial number for every distillery shall be in regular sequence of the serial number thereof, beginning with number one (No. 1) with the first cask or package deposited therein after July twentieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, and no two or more casks or packages warehoused at the same distillery shall be marked with the same number. The said stamp shall be as follows:

Distillery-warehouse stamp No. —. Issued by ——— ———, collector, ——— district, State of ———, distillery warehouse of ——— ———, 18—, Cask No. —; contents ——— gallons proof-spirits.

——— ———,
United States Storekeeper

Attest:

——— ———,
United States Gauger.

Provided, however, That upon the application of the distiller, and under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe, distilled spirits may be drawn into wooden packages, each containing two or more metallic cans, which cans shall have each a capacity of not less than five gallons, wine measure, such packages to be filled and used only for exportation from the United States. And there shall be charged for each of said packages or cases for the expense of providing and affixing stamps, five cents instead of ten cents as now required by law.

Provided further, That alcohol or high-proof spirits withdrawn free of tax for the use of the United States, as authorized by section thirty-four hundred and sixty-four, Revised Statutes, may be drawn off for transfer by pipes direct from the receiving cisterns in the cistern room of any distillery to closed metal storage tanks situated in the distillery bonded warehouse and transferred from such storage tanks to tanks or tank cars for shipment, upon the execution of such bonds and under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe.

Act July 20, 1868, § 23, 15 Stat. 135. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, 20 Stat. 336. Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 6, 21 Stat. 147. Act Feb. 21, 1899, c. 177, 30 Stat. 843. Act March 2, 1911, c. 199, 36 Stat. 1014.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting, after the words "contents of such casks," the words "and by branding or burning into the head of such cask in letters of not less than one inch in length, and such brand shall distinctly indicate the particular name of such distilled spirits as known to the trade, i. e. high-wines, alcohol, or spirits, as the case may be," by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, cited above.

It was further amended by striking out, after the words "less capacity than," the word "twenty," and inserting in place thereof the word "ten," and by striking out, after the words "internal-revenue gauger," the words "by cutting," and inserting in place thereof the words "who shall cut," and by inserting, after the words "on the cask," the words "or package," and by inserting, after the words "contents of such casks," the words "or packages," and by inserting, in place of the amendment by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, set forth above, the words "and the particular name of such distilled spirits as known to the trade, that is to say, high-wines, alcohol, or spirits, as the case may be, shall be marked or branded on the head of such cask or package in letters of not less than one inch in length," and by inserting, in place of the words "and shall be immediately," the words "and the spirits shall be immediately," and by inserting, after the words "serial number of each cask," the words "or package," and by inserting, after the words "first cask," the words "or package," and by inserting, after the words "no two or more casks," the words "or packages," by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 6, cited above.

It was further amended by adding the first of the two provisos at the end of the section by Act Feb. 21, 1899, c. 177, cited above.

It was further amended by adding the last proviso at the end of the section as set forth here, by Act March 2, 1911, c. 199, last cited above.

Said Act March 2, 1911, c. 199, purported to amend R. S. § 3287, as amended by Act May 28, 1880, not mentioning the later amendment by Act Feb. 21, 1899, c. 177.

The amendatory provision of this act, that R. S. § 3287, as amended by Act May 28, 1880, be "amended to read as follows," which was followed merely by the provision above, beginning with the words "Provided further," may be construed, strictly, as substituting the new provision for the former section, as amended, etc.; but the purpose really contemplated probably was to add said new provision, as a further proviso, at the end of the section as previously amended.

R. S. § 3464, mentioned in said last amendment, is set forth post, § 6365.

Notes of Decisions

1. Food and Drugs Act as repealing or superseding statute.
2. Branding or marking in general.
3. Administrative discretion.
4. Inconsistent regulations.
5. Effect of restraining order.
6. Rebranding.
7. Meaning of the term "cask."
8. "Spirits" or "spirits as the case may be."
9. "Whisky."
10. "High wines."
11. "Alcohol."

See § 8717 et seq., post, and notes thereunder.

See note as to "whisky," ante.

1. Food and Drugs Act as repealing or superseding statute.—Circular No. 33, issued by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue May 10, 1910, instructing subordinates in his department that "all forms of distilled spirits from which the substances congeneric with ethyl alcohol have been removed for practical purposes altogether, and which have been heretofore marked as 'pure, neutral, or cologne spirits,' will be marked 'alcohol,'" under which the marking of any distilled product as "spirits" has been discontinued, is in violation of this section, which provides that "all distilled spirits shall be drawn from the receiving cisterns into casks or packages, * * * and the particular name of such distilled spirits as known to the trade, that is to say, high-wines, alcohol, or spirits, as the case may be, shall be marked or branded on the head of such cask or package"; it being shown that one distinct product of alcoholic distillation is known to the trade as "spirits," while another product is known as "alcohol," the distinction being so well known and established that their being so marked does not constitute a misbranding, and therefore the provision therefor is not by implication repealed by Food and Drugs Act June 30, 1906 (post, § 8717 et seq.). Union Distilling Co. v. Bettman (C. C. 1908) 181 Fed. 419.

There is no inconsistency between the provisions of this section, and section 8 of the pure-food law (section 8724, post). The former statutes are not superseded by the latter. (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 475.

2. Branding or marking in general.—A removal of brandy from a distillery without having cut or burned on the barrels the name of the distiller, the name of the district, or serial numbers, is not illegal, if all other requirements of the statute have been complied with. U. S. v. Thirty-Seven Barrels of Apple Brandy (D. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,466.

As to the requirement that gaugers mark on the casks or packages "the particular name of such distilled spirits as known to the trade, that is to say, high wines, alcohol, or spirits, as the case may be," it is immaterial whether this legislative declaration was, or was not, in accordance with the fact as to trade usages at the time of its adoption, or is, or is not, in conformity with such usages at present. (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 475.

This section requires that casks or packages not containing either "high wines" or "alcohol" shall be marked with the name of a recognized distilled liquor included within the definition of potable "spirits" and nothing more. Id.

The owner of a cask of spirits may brand his end of the cask with any name he sees fit, subject only to the penalties of the food and drugs act if it should enter into federal commerce when mislabeled or misbranded under that act. (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 542.

Spirits which have been rectified should be branded so as to show distinctly that the appropriate name of the potable spirits is not applied to spirits from which the congeneric substances have been practically eliminated—which would leave an alcohol—but only to those products of distillation which, without being blended or compounded with other substances, have been so treated as to partially transform or otherwise partially eliminate the original congeneric spirits and bring them to the condition of a particular form of potable spirits. Id.

3. Administrative discretion. — This section makes the characteristics of the marking to be placed on the cask or package a matter of administrative discretion with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. (1908) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 43.

4. Inconsistent regulations. — Those portions of the regulations of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue which require the gauger to mark or brand on the head of each cask containing distilled spirits "the particular name of the spirits as known to the trade," which brand or mark may be varied to suit whatever kind of spirits is contained in the package, as "high wines" "rye," "Bourbon," or "copper distilled" whisky, as the case may be, are inconsistent with the provisions of this section. (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 475.

5. Effect of restraining order.—The effect of the restraining order issued by the Circuit Courts of the United States for the Southern district of Ohio and the Southern district of Illinois, prohibiting the collectors of internal revenue in those districts from marking casks of spirits as provided by Circular No. 723, issued May 5, 1908, was that the marking or branding of the casks or packages of the two distilleries affected by that order cannot now be done in accordance with said regulations; but in all other cases the circular remains unaffected by the action of those courts, and will so continue until superseded or suspended by the action of the same or other courts, or until modified or rescinded by the Treasury Department. (1908) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 43.

Such restraining orders did not have the effect of restoring the regulations which were in force prior to the issuance of that circular, and consequently there are no internal revenue regulations now in force regulating the branding of distilled spirits produced by the distillers affected by the order. Id.

Suggested that any action by the officers of the internal revenue service inconsistent with the circular of May 5, 1908, taken in consequence of such orders of court, should be made a matter of record, showing that such action is the result of said orders only and done under protest, or, at least, with a reservation of legal right. Id.

Suggested that casks and packages constituting the subject-matter of such action should be so identified that any course of procedure with respect to them, rendered appropriate by the ultimate determination of the cases, may be readily adopted. Id.

6. Rebranding.—The duty of rebranding packages of distilled spirits to conform to proposed regulations should not be imposed in all cases, but should be limited to instances where the parties intending to use the spirits in federal commerce in such manner as to render them subject to the food and drugs act request a change in the branding. (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 542.

7. Meaning of the term "cask."—The term "cask" is generally understood to be a receptacle for liquids, either larger or smaller than the usual barrel, and, as employed in the statute respecting the manufacture and sale of spirituous liquors, pertaining to wholesale dealers, has a well-recognized import as a vessel containing not less than 20, 10, or 5 gallons wine measure, as provided by this section and section 5971, ante, and section 6104, post. Williams v. U. S. (1907) 158 Fed. 30, 88 C. C. A. 296, reversing judgment (1906) 87 Pac. 647, 17 Okl. 28.

8. "Spirits" or "spirits as the case may be."—Congress considered the several kinds of spirits in the restricted sense in which the word is used in this section as liquids which were neither "high wines" nor yet "alcohol." (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 475.

The words "as the case may be" in this section, are intended to apply to "spirits" only, and not to "high wines," on the one hand, or "alcohol," on the other. Id.

The words "spirits, as the case may be," used in this section, are used in conformity with the definition of the word "spirits" as given by Webster, viz.: "Rum, whisky, brandy, gin, and other distilled liquors having much alcohol, in distinction from wines and malt liquors." These words mean such distilled liquor included within the definition of spirits "as may be appropriate in the particular case," that is to say, "rum" or "whisky," "brandy," or "gin," or whatever other name of a distilled spirit may be suitable. Id.

The brand or label, however, must contain only the general name of a spirit; no descriptive or particular designation being required, contemplated, or allowed by this section. Id.

The term "spirits, as the case may be," used in this section, applies to those products of distillation in which, by reason of the original material used and the methods of distillation employed, certain characteristic congeneric products have been retained which differentiate them into certain forms of potable spirits, such as whisky, brandy, and rum. (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 541.

9. "Whisky."—If the liquid contained in a cask or package is really so-called "neutral spirit," or, in other words, for practical purposes, "ethyl alcohol," this statute requires it to be branded "alcohol," and does not permit it to be labeled a particular kind of potable spirits, as, for example, "whisky." (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 475.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue would not be justified in directing all collectors of internal revenue to instruct their gaugers to mark as "whisky" the product of distillers who state that they have so changed the process of their manufacture as to eliminate from wines a portion of the secondary product. (1908) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 47.

Such action could in any event be justified only when the absence of error in any such statement by a distiller has been established to the satisfaction of the Treasury Department by sufficient legal proof. Id.

Distilled spirits containing a part and not all of the substances congeneric with alcohol, produced by rectifying high wines to the point where a part of the congeneric substances is retained, a larger part of such secondary product being retained than in the product formerly known as "neutral spirits," should not be marked "whisky" upon entry into warehouses. Id.

The question in each case must be determined by the fact whether the said spirit is or is not whisky within the contemplation of the pure food law. Id.

Neutral spirits diluted with water and colored with caramel cannot properly, under the provisions of the pure food law, be designated as "neutral whisky," "rectified whisky," or "redistilled whisky." (1909) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 202.

The Attorney General adheres to his opinions of April 10, 1907 (26 Op. Atty. Gen. 217) and of May 29, 1907 (26 Op. Atty. Gen. 263). (1909) 27 Op. Atty. Gen. 202.

10. "High wines."—It was not intended by the opinion of January 11, 1908 (26 Op. Atty. Gen. 474), to require the term "high wines" to be applied to a product now usually marked "whisky." (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 541.

For the purposes of the revenue laws, the term "high wines" should be applied to that which is practically the first product of distillation in which substances congeneric with alcohol have not been transformed or their properties otherwise partially eliminated so as to convert them into any form of potable spirits, and should not be applied either to any product of distillation, or to spirits which have been reduced by dilution or otherwise partially transformed so as to convert them into a form of potable spirits, although yet in crude form. Id.

When "high wines" have been diluted to potable proof before being withdrawn from receiving cisterns into casks, and then constitute a form of potable spirits, although crude, then, so far at least as the revenue laws are concerned, such product more nearly resembles the particular form of potable spirits whose name it will ultimately be than it does "high wines," and it should be branded with the name of the particular potable spirits for which it is intended. Id.

The by-product in the distillation of "true alcohol," for the purposes of the revenue laws, may be branded as "commercial," "refuse," or "coarse" alcohol, or any other term which will indicate definitely that it is a product intended only for purposes entirely distinct from those of a food or drug. Id.

11. "Alcohol."—A distiller is entitled to an injunction to restrain the enforcement by the Internal Revenue Bureau of an unauthorized order requiring a distilled product known to the trade as "spirits" to be branded as "alcohol," which as known in the trade is an inferior and cheaper product. Union Distilling Co. v. Bettman (C. C. 1908) 181 Fed. 419.

The term "alcohol" should be applied to the distillate heretofore known as "pure, neutral, or cologne spirits." (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 541.

Cited without definite application, Pounds v. U. S. (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 729, 171 U. S. 35, 43 L. Ed. 62; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 290, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank (1911) 187 Fed. 689, 109 C. C. A. 437; U. S. v. Peace (C. C. 1892) 48 Fed. 714, 715 (reversed [1893] 53 Fed. 999, 4 C. C. A. 148); Same v. One Package of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1898) 88 Fed. 856, 857; Same v. National Surety Co. (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 336 (reversed [1903] 122 Fed. 904, 59 C. C. A. 130); Same v. Three Packages of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 52 (reversed [1904] 129 Fed. 329, 63 C. C. A. 263).

§ 6029. (R. S. § 3288.) Tax-paid spirits not to remain on distillery premises.

No distilled spirits on which the tax has been paid shall be stored or allowed to remain on any distillery premises, under the penalty of a forfeiture of all spirits so found.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 43, 14 Stat. 162.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6030. (R. S. § 3289.) Forfeiture of unstamped packages.

All distilled spirits found in any cask or package containing five gallons or more, without having thereon each mark and stamp required therefor by law, shall be forfeited to the United States.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 57, 15 Stat. 150. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 243.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under §§ 6104 and 6358, post.

Pure food law as repealing statute.—There is nothing in the pure food law which renders the provision of this section, forfeiting to the United States all distilled spirits not contained in receptacles and marked as herein prescribed, inappropriate; and this section was not repealed, either expressly or by implication, by the enactment of the pure food law. (1908) 26 Op. Atty. Gen. 475.

Forfeiture in general.—Under this section and Act July 20, 1868, § 96, post, § 6358, providing that, if any person neglects to do anything required by him to be done in carrying on his business, if there is no specific penalty imposed by any other section for such negligence, he shall suffer the penalty and forfeiture imposed thereby it was held that the omission of a distiller to cause packages of distilled spirits containing more than 20 gallons each to be gauged, inspected, and stamped according to Act July 20, 1868, § 25, post, § 6102, does not warrant forfeiture under section 96; a specified penalty being provided by section 57. United States v. Two Hundred Barrels of Whisky (1877) 95 U. S. 571, 24 L. Ed. 491.

The special provision of section 57 of the act of 1868 is not limited to distilled spirits on hand when that act was passed, but is a specific penalty for failure to procure stamping to be done on packages of five gallons and upwards, and it follows the packages wherever found. Id.

The fact that packages of whisky which have been once properly gauged and marked, and the taxes thereon paid, are afterwards found to contain a less quantity and lower proof of spirit than the marks indicate, is no evidence that the government has been defrauded, and does not justify forfeiture of the whisky, under this section. U. S. v. Fourteen Packages of Whisky (1895) 66 Fed. 984, 14 C. C. A. 220.

The term "distilled spirits" includes all spirits which have been distilled, whether they have been subsequently rectified or not. Boyd v. U. S. (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 1,749.

The fact that a person has, in good faith, made advances upon distilled spirits, is no defense to an action for their forfeiture. Id.

"Stand casks" forming part of the fixtures of a retail liquor saloon, and used for holding distilled spirits, are not required to be stamped; and their contents are not liable to forfeiture, under this section, because of the absence of such stamp. U. S. v. Four Stand Casks (C. C. 1881) 5 Fed. 438; Same v. Cask of Gin (D. C. 1880) 3 Fed. 20.

Merely tacking a piece of newspaper over the stamped end of a barrel of distilled spirits is no ground of forfeiture under the internal revenue laws and the regulations of the internal revenue department. U. S. v. Three Barrels of Whisky (C. C. 1896) 77 Fed. 963.

The removal of spirits by a distiller before they have been officially inspected, gauged, and proved is a cause of forfeiture; otherwise as to a removal before payment of duties. U. S. v. Three Hundred and Ninety-Six Barrels Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1866) Fed. Cas. No. 16,502.

And the failure of the inspector to mark on the barrels the quantity in proof as required by Act June 30, 1864, § 59, is not a cause of forfeiture. Id.

The forfeiture by section 57 (Act July 20, 1868) is general, and that section imposes a penalty for a violation of section 25 in case the unstamped packages contain more than five gallons. U. S. v. Ninety-Five Barrels of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 15,890.

Where packages containing liquors have once been properly stamped and marked, and the proper duties paid thereon, and after a sale by a retail dealer of a portion of the contents the residue is diluted with water only, and still remains in the original packages, held, that such liquors are not liable to forfeiture, under this section, as "not having thereon each mark and stamp required therefor." Three Packages of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1882) 14 Fed. 569.

Under this section a package is forfeited when found bearing a distillery warehouse stamp and an inspection mark, neither of which have any date; for section 6028, ante, requires each warehouse stamp to bear the date of the receipt of the package into the warehouse, and the regulations promulgated by the commissioner of internal revenue require the inspection brand to show the date of inspection. U. S. v. 9 Casks & Packages of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1892) 51 Fed. 191.

Section 5983, ante, which provides that the commissioner of internal revenue may prescribe rules and regulations to secure a uniform and correct system of inspection, weighing, marking, and gauging of spirits, does not empower the commissioner to require an additional mark upon a package of distilled spirits in the event of a reduction in proof or volume, so as to make the absence of it a forfeitable offense under this section, as not "having thereon such mark and stamp required therefor by law," where the statutes neither prohibit such reduction nor provide for any additional marks in the event it is so reduced. U. S. v. One Package of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1898) 88 Fed. 856.

Mere evidence that the contents of a package of spirits as to volume and proof does not conform to the volume and proof as marked on the package, without more, fails to make a prima facie case for seizure or forfeiture. Id.

In proceedings to forfeit liquors not properly stamped it was immaterial that the stamps on the barrels indicated that they contained a greater number of gallons than were actually placed therein, and that the government therefore was not actually defrauded. U. S. v. Seven Barrels of Whisky (D. C. 1904) 131 Fed. 806.

Section 6104, post, declares that every rectifier or wholesale liquor dealer who refuses or willfully neglects to comply with the requirements of the act as to marking, branding, and stamping, in accordance with the rules and regulations made in pursuance thereof, the packages filled on his premises as aforesaid, shall for every offense be fined not less than $200 nor more than $1,000. Held, in view of this section, that the penalty imposed by section 6104, post, was not exclusive, and did not prevent the United States from enforcing a forfeiture of the goods not properly stamped in a proceeding in rem against them. Id.

Section 6104, post, which declares that every package of distilled spirits containing five wine gallons or more, filled on the premises of a local liquor dealer, shall be marked, branded, and stamped by such wholesale liquor dealer in such manner and under such rules and regulations as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe, etc., and declares that every rectifier or wholesale dealer who refuses or willfully neglects so to mark, brand, or stamp his liquors shall be fined, etc., only authorizes the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to designate the kind and character of the mark and stamp to be affixed to the packages, and hence the marks and stamps so prescribed were marks and stamps "required by law," within this section. Id.

Information for forfeiture.—If the dates of the distillery warehouse stamp and inspection mark required to be stamped on a cask or package of distilled liquors have been removed through accidental causes, their absence is no ground of forfeiture under this section, but, as the statute does not in terms contain any exceptions, this fact need not be negatived by the information; it is matter of defense to be set up by the claimant. U. S. v. 9 Casks & Packages of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1892) 51 Fed. 191.

An information for a forfeiture of distilled spirits for violation of this section and section 6357, post, held bad on demurrer, as not sufficiently definite to disclose to the court or claimant the precise nature of the act charged to be a violation of statute. U. S. v. Three Packages of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1907) 152 Fed. 580.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; U. S. v. Two Barrels of Whisky (1899) 96 Fed. 479, 37 C. C. A. 518; Same v. Three Packages of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 52, reversed (1904) 129 Fed. 329, 63 C. C. A. 263.

§ 6031. (R. S. § 3290.) Gauger employing distiller, etc., to use brands or perform his duties; penalty.

Whenever any gauger employs any owner, agent, or superintendent of any distillery or distillery warehouse, or any person in the service of such owner, agent, or superintendent, or any rectifier or wholesale liquor-dealer, or any person in the service of such rectifier or wholesale liquor-dealer, to use his brands, or to discharge any of the duties imposed upon him by law, he shall, for each offense so committed, pay a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, in the discretion of the court.

Act July 13, 1866, c. 184, § 38, 14 Stat. 160.

Notes of Decisions

Delegation of authority.—A gauger has no power to delegate his authority, or to have his duties performed for him. U. S. v. Bittinger (D. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 14,599.

Use of inspector's brand with intent to defraud.—The use of an inspector's brand with intent to defraud, though without the inspector's knowledge or connivance, was punishable under another provision of Act July 13, 1866, § 38 (not incorporated in this section). U. S. v. Devlin (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 14,954.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6032. (R. S. § 3291.) Gauger's returns.

Every gauger shall, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, make a daily return to the collector of his district, giving a true account, in detail, of all articles gauged and proved or inspected by him, and for whom, and the number and kind of stamps used by him.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 53, 15 Stat. 147. Act Dec. 24, 1872, c. 13, § 1, 17 Stat. 401.

Notes of Decisions

Mistake in overgauging.—A distiller cannot avail himself of any mistake of the officer in overgauging the spirits. U. S. v. Dutcher (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,014.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6033. (R. S. § 3292.) Fraudulent inspection, gauging, etc.; penalty.

Every gauger who makes any false or fraudulent inspection, gauging, or proof shall pay a penalty of one thousand dollars, and be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than three months nor more than three years.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 53, 15 Stat. 147.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Brown v. Foster (1912) 194 Fed. 855, 116 C. C. A. 1.

§ 6034. (R. S. § 3293, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, and Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 4.) Distiller's entry of deposit in warehouse; bond for taxes; collection of taxes.

The distiller or owner of all spirits removed as aforesaid to the distillery warehouse shall, on the first day of each month, or within five days thereafter, enter the same for deposit in such warehouse, under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may prescribe. Said entry shall be in triplicate, and shall contain the name of the person making the entry, the designation of the warehouse in which the deposit is made, and the date thereof, and shall be in the following form:

Entry for Deposit in Distillery Warehouse.

Entry of distilled spirits deposited by ——— ———, in distillery warehouse ———, in the ——— district, State of ———, during the month ending on the ——— day of ———, anno Domini ———.

And the entry shall specify the kind of spirits, the whole number of packages, the marks and serial numbers thereon, the number of gauge or wine gallons, proof-gallons, and taxable gallons, and the amount of tax on the spirits contained in them; all of which shall be verified by the oath of the distiller or owner of the same attached to the entry. The said distiller or owner shall at the time of making said entry give his bond in duplicate, with one or more sureties, satisfactory to the collector of the district, conditioned that the principal named in said bond shall pay the tax on the spirits as specified in the entry, or cause the same to be paid, before removal from said distillery warehouse, and within three years from the date of said entry; and the penal sum of such bond shall not be less than the amount of the tax on such distilled spirits. One of said entries shall be retained in the office of the collector of the district, one sent to the storekeeper in charge of the warehouse, to be retained and filed in the warehouse, and one sent with duplicate of the bond to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to be filed in his office. A new bond shall be required in case of the death, insolvency, or removal of either of the sureties, and may be required in any other contingency affecting its validity or impairing its efficiency, at the discretion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. And in case the distiller or owner fails or refuses to give the bond hereinbefore required, or to renew the same, or neglects to immediately withdraw the spirits and pay the tax thereon, or if he neglects to withdraw any bonded spirits and pay the tax thereon before the expiration of the time limited in the bond, the collector shall proceed to collect the tax by distraint, issuing his warrant of distraint for the amount of tax found to be due, as ascertained by him from the report of the gauger if no bond was given, or from the terms of the bond if a bond was given. But this provision shall not exclude any other remedy or proceeding provided by law. If it shall appear at any time that there has been a loss of distilled spirits from any cask or other package hereafter deposited in a distillery warehouse, other than the loss provided for in section thirty-two hundred and twenty-one of the Revised Statutes of the United States, as amended, which, in the opinion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, is excessive, he may instruct the collector of the district in which the loss has occurred to require the withdrawal from warehouse of such distilled spirits, and to collect the tax accrued upon the original quantity of distilled spirits entered into the warehouse in such cask or package, notwithstanding that the time specified in any bond given for the withdrawal of the spirits entered into warehouse in such cask or package has not expired. If the said tax is not paid on demand, the collector shall report the amount due upon his next monthly list, and it shall be assessed and collected as other taxes are assessed and collected. That the tax on all distilled spirits hereafter entered for deposit in distillery warehouses shall be due and payable before and at the time the same are withdrawn therefrom and within three years from the date of the entry for deposit therein; and warehousing bonds hereafter taken under the provisions of section thirty-two hundred and ninety-three of the Revised Statutes of the United States shall be conditioned for the payment of the tax on the spirits as specified in the entry before removal from the distillery warehouse, and within three years from the date of said bonds.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 23, 15 Stat. 135. Act June 6, 1872, c. 315, § 12, 17 Stat. 240. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, 20 Stat. 336. Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 4, 21 Stat. 145.

This section, as enacted in Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting, in the form for entry, after the words "State of ———" the words "during the month ending," and by striking out, after the words "gauge or wine gallons," the words "and proof-gallons," and inserting in lieu thereof the words "proof-gallons, and taxable gallons," and by inserting, after the words "owner shall," the words "at the time of making said entry," and by striking out, after the words "the date of said," the word "bond," and inserting in place thereof the word "entry," and by adding, at the end of the section as originally enacted, the provisions beginning with the words "A new bond shall be required," and ending with the words "as other taxes are assessed and collected," by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, cited above.

It was further amended by inserting, in place of the words "whole number of casks," the words "whole number of packages," and by inserting, in place of the words "and within one year from the date," the words "and within three years from the date," and by striking out, after the words "not less than," the word "double," and by adding, at the end of the section as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, the provisions beginning with the words "That the tax on all distilled spirits," etc., to the end of the section as set forth here by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 4, cited above.

The bonds for taxes were conditioned upon the payment of the taxes within three years from the date of the bonds, by Res. March 28, 1878, No. 16, 20 Stat. 249. This resolution was repealed by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 4, 21 Stat. 145.

Provisions for the entry of fruit brandy in special bonded warehouses, and the giving of bonds for taxes, were made by Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, post, §§ 6039–6049.

Provisions for the removal of spirits to general bonded warehouses were made by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, §§ 52–59, post, §§ 6059–6065.

The bonds for taxes on spirits deposited in distillery warehouses and special bonded warehouses were conditioned for the payment of the taxes before removal and within eight years, by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 49, post, § 6035.

Notes of Decisions

Bonds.—Theft from distillery warehouse as defense to an action on bond, see note under section 6009, ante.

Right to assess on deficiency after giving of bond, see note under section 6125, post.

A bond was given, under 15 Stat. 135, § 23, by a distiller, with sureties, conditioned to be void if the obligors paid the taxes on the spirits deposited in the warehouse before their removal and within one year from the date of the bond. Before the expiration of that time, the spirits, while in the bonded warehouse, in charge of an internal revenue storekeeper, were destroyed by fire, without any fault, negligence, or carelessness on the part of the dis-tiller, or of any person in charge of the distillery and warehouse who was in his employ. Held, that the obligors were liable to pay the taxes. Farrell v. U. S. (1878) 99 U. S. 221, 25 L. Ed. 321.

Obligors held liable on a bond taken pursuant to Act July 20, 1868, § 23. Id.

The seizure and sale of bonded spirits forfeited by the fraudulent acts of the distiller, and the payment of the taxes out of the proceeds, render the bond functus officio, and discharge the obligors. U. S. v. Ulrici (1884) 4 Sup. Ct. 288, 111 U. S. 38, 28 L. Ed. 344; Same v. Sutton (1884) 4 Sup. Ct. 291, 111 U. S. 42, 28 L. Ed. 346.

A bond on which suit was brought, having been executed for the sole purpose of securing payment of taxes, was discharged by forfeiture, seizure, and sale of bonded spirits, and was discharged as against the contention that the forfeiture, being for the fraudulent acts of the distiller in seeking to evade payment of the tax, was quasi criminal and merely a punishment, and not a payment of the tax. In this case the marshal procured from the collector the necessary stamps and placed them on the packages containing the spirits. U. S. v. Ulrici (1884) 4 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 290, 111 U. S. 38, 28 L. Ed. 344.

Where bonded spirits forfeited by the fraudulent acts of the distiller were seized, the affixing of the stamps to the packages by the marshal was intended to be a payment of the tax, and the bond of the distiller given to secure the payment was discharged. Id.

When the commissioner of internal revenue regards a loss from warping of barrels as excessive, he has authority, under Act May 28, 1880, § 4, to order the withdrawal of the spirits from the warehouse before the three years of the bond have expired, and to require payment of the tax on the quantity originally entered, without making any allowance under section 17 of said act for the loss even though it occurred without the fraud or negligence of the owner. Crystal Spring Distillery Co. v. Cox (1892) 49 Fed. 555, 1 C. C. A. 365, affirming (C. C. 1891) 47 Fed. 693.

Under the requirement of the statute that distillers give a bond conditioned to pay the tax on spirits stored in distillery warehouses "before removal" therefrom, or within three years from the date of the bond, it was held that the destruction of such spirits by fire, while in the warehouse, constitutes a "removal," so as to make the tax payable before the expiration of the three years. U. S. v. Peace (1893) 53 Fed. 999, 4 C. C. A. 148, reversing judgment (C. C. 1892) 48 Fed. 714.

The word "removal" means "withdrawal," and withdrawal must be the act of an intelligent agent and not the work of chance or accident. U. S. v. Peace (C. C. 1892) 48 Fed. 714, 716, reversed (1893) 53 Fed. 999, 4 C. C. A. 148.

The word "withdraw" is the equivalent of "removal." Id.

A removal from a distillery warehouse must be a removal by or under the authority of the owner of the commodity. Id.

The negligence of officers in failing to collect a tax on spirits at the proper time, when the spirits were removed from the warehouse, will not preclude the United States from recovering such tax in an action upon the distiller's bond if it was properly chargeable. U. S. v. Mullins (1902) 119 Fed. 334, 56 C. C. A. 238, writ of certiorari denied (1903) 23 Sup. Ct. 851, 189 U. S. 513, 47 L. Ed. 924.

A distiller's official or annual bond, given pursuant to section 5997, ante, and conditioned that he "shall faithfully comply with all the provisions of law relating to the duties and business of distillers," binds the sureties for the payment of the tax on all spirits distilled during its term, which is one of the duties of the distiller, and which tax becomes a debt due to the United States from the time the spirits are manufactured, due and payable at once on their removal, unless they are entered for deposit in warehouse; nor are the sureties relieved from such liability by the execution of a warehousing bond given pursuant to this section to secure delay in payment of the tax, which does not extinguish the debt, nor become a substitute for the original bond with respect to such spirits, but is an additional or cumulative security required under the scheme of the revenue law because of the additional risk incidental to the long time given the distiller in such case before he is required to remove the spirits and pay the tax. U. S. v. National Surety Co. of Kansas City, Mo. (1903) 122 Fed. 904, 59 C. C. A. 130, reversing judgment (D. C. 1901) 112 Fed. 336, and writ of certiorari denied National Surety Co. of Kansas City, Mo., v. U. S. (1903) 24 Sup. Ct. 845, 191 U. S. 573, 48 L. Ed. 307.

Surety on distillery warehouse bond held liable for internal revenue tax on spirits deposited in warehouse and subsequently stolen after the government had obtained a judgment forfeiting the distillery and the spirits to it. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. U. S. (C. C. A. 1914) 220 Fed. 592.

Exercise by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue of his discretion under this section to require a new warehousing bond held, under the circumstances, not subject to interference by the courts. Brown v. Foster (1912) 194 Fed. 855, 116 C. C. A. 1.

The fact that distilled spirits are seized, condemned, and sold for violation of the internal revenue law while bonded, does not release the obligors on the warehouse bond. U. S. v. South Branch Distilling Co. (C. C. 1878) Fed. Cas. No. 16,359.

The fact that the purchaser at the sale paid the tax is immaterial. Id.

Plaintiffs deposited distilled spirits in their bonded warehouse in December, 1880, and gave bond under this section to pay the tax within three years from entry. The tax was not paid within three years, and on February 24, 1884, the collector gave them notice to pay the tax as required by section 5906, ante, stating, as in the section provided, that unless the tax was paid within 10 days it would be the collector's duty to collect a penalty of 5 per centum in addition, and interest. By section 5982, ante, the tax attaches as soon as the spirits come into existence. Held, that the tax and penalty were due and payable before March 5, 1884. Clay v. Swope (C. C. 1889) 38 Fed. 396.

The person to give the warehouse bond under section 27, Act July 13, 1866, is the person who, under section 24, notifies the government that he is the person engaged in the business of a distiller. U. S. v. Henry (D. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,350.

A distiller's official or annual bond binds the sureties for the payment of the tax on all the spirits distilled by the principal during its term, and they are not relieved from such liability by the execution of a warehousing bond covering certain of such spirits, which is not a substituted, but a cumulative, security. U. S. v. Richardson (D. C. 1904) 127 Fed. 893.

The stockholders of a corporation engaged in the business of distilling cannot properly be accepted as sureties upon the bond required of the corporation by this section, even if their individual liability for the debts of the corporation is, by the terms of the charter, limited to the amount of their stock. Such stockholders being already jointly and severally liable, under the provisions of section 5985, ante, for the taxes imposed upon the spirits manufactured by the corporation, no additional security for the payment thereof would be gained by their suretyship. (1878) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 10.

The liability imposed upon the stockholders by the internal revenue law is a liability distinct from that which they are under as such to the public with whom the corporation deals; it is a liability imposed by reason of the business in which the corporation whereof they are stockholders is engaged. Id.

The Secretary of the Treasury has power to make a regulation under which distilled spirits may be permitted to remain in warehouse after the expiration of three years, upon the distiller or owner of the spirits filing a declaration of his purpose to export the same in good faith, and giving a bond to do so within a given period. (1884) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 92.

—— Transportation bonds.—See U. S. v. Grotenkemper (C. C. 1867) Fed. Cas. No. 15,267; Same v. Dutcher (C. C. 1868) Fed. Cas. No. 15,014; Same v. Turner (C. C. 1870) Fed. Cas. No. 16,547; Same v. Stewart (D. C. 1871) Fed. Cas. No. 16,399.

Distraint.—The "tax on deficiency" in the quantity of distilled spirits exported, when compared with the quantity withdrawn for exportation (see Act June 9, 1874, c. 259, and Act March 1, 1879, c. 125), may be collected by distraint upon the property of the withdrawer of the spirits, as well as by suit upon the transportation bond. (1879) 16 Op. Atty. Gen. 634.

The spirits covered by an exportation bond, after the failure to withdraw them and after the forfeiture of the bond, are liable to distraint under the act of May 28, 1880 (21 Stat. 145). (1885) 18 Op. Atty. Gen. 246.

The condition of the bond having been broken by the failure to withdraw the spirits, the government may also proceed upon the bond. Id.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 290, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Crystal Springs Distillery Co. v. Cox (1892) 49 Fed. 555, 557, 1 C. C. A. 365; Pattison v. Dale (1912) 196 Fed. 5, 115 C. C. A. 639.

§ 6035. (Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 49.) Distiller's bond for taxes on spirits deposited in warehouses.

Warehousing bonds and transportation and warehousing bonds, conditioned for the payment of the taxes on all distilled spirits entered for deposit into distillery or special bonded warehouses on and after the passage of this Act, shall be given by the distiller of said spirits as required by existing laws, conditioned, however, for payment of taxes at the rate imposed by this Act and before removal from warehouse and within eight years; as to fruit brandy, from the date of the original gauge, and as to all other spirits from the date of the original entry for deposit, and all warehousing bonds or transportation and warehousing bonds conditioned for the payment of the taxes on distilled spirits entered for deposit into distillery or special bonded warehouses prior to that date shall continue in full force and effect for the time named in said bonds, except where new or additional bonds are required under existing law. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue may require the distillers of the spirits to give bonds for the additional tax, and before the expiration of the original bonds shall prescribe rules and regulations for re-entry for deposit and for new bonds as provided for spirits originally entered for deposit under this Act, and conditioned for payment of tax at the rate imposed by this Act and before removal of the spirits from warehouse, and within eight years; as to fruit brandy, from the date of the original gauge, and as to all other spirits from the date of original entry for deposit. If the distiller of the spirits fails or refuses to give the bond for the additional tax, or to re-enter and re-bond the spirits, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may proceed to collect the tax as now provided by law for failure or refusal to give warehousing bonds on original entry into distillery warehouse or special-bonded warehouse, and the provisions of section four of the Act of May twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and eighty (twenty-first Statutes, one hundred and forty-five), so far as applicable, are hereby extended to bonds given under the provisions of this section: Provided, That the distiller may, at his option and under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall prescribe, execute an annual bond for the spirits so deposited in lieu of the bonds herein provided. (28 Stat. 563.)

This section was part of the Wilson Tariff Act, cited above.

This section modified the provisions for distillery warehouse bonds made by R. S. § 3293, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, and Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 4, incorporated into that section, ante, § 6034, and superseded the provisions for bonds for special bonded warehouses made by Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 4, set forth post, § 6042.

Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 4, mentioned in this section, is incorporated into R. S. § 3293, ante, § 6034.

Notes of Decisions

See the preceding section and notes thereunder.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 290, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6036. (R. S. § 3294, as amended, Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, and Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 5.) Withdrawal from warehouse, entry for.

Any distilled spirits may, on payment of the tax thereon, be withdrawn from the warehouse on application to the collector of the district in charge of such warehouse, on making a withdrawal entry in duplicate and in the following form:

Entry for Withdrawal of Distilled Spirits from Warehouse Tax paid

Entry of distilled spirits to be withdrawn, on payment of the tax, from warehouse of distillery number ———, situated in the ——— district of ———, by ——— deposited on the ——— day of ———, anno Domini ———, by ———, in said warehouse.

And the entry shall specify the whole number of casks, or packages with the marks and serial numbers thereon, the number of gauge or wine gallons, and of proof gallons and taxable gallons, and the amount of the tax on the distilled spirits contained in them at the time they were deposited in the distillery warehouse; and said entry shall also specify the number of gauge or wine gallons, and of proof-gallons and taxable gallons contained in said casks or packages at the time application shall be made for the withdrawal thereof; and on payment of the tax the collector shall issue his order to the storekeeper in charge of the warehouse for the delivery. One of said entries shall be filed in the office of the collector, and the other transmitted by him to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 24, 15 Stat. 136. Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, 20 Stat. 337. Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 5, 21 Stat. 146.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by inserting, in the form of entry, after the words "on payment of the tax," in place of the words "from —— warehouse," the words "from warehouse of distillery number ——, situated in the —— district of ——," by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, cited above.

It was further amended by inserting, after the words "number of casks," the words "or packages," and by inserting, after the words "contained in them," the provision beginning with the words "at the time they were" and ending with the words "for withdrawal thereof," as set forth here, by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 5, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 5985, ante, and § 6125, post.

Functions of treasury officials.—The functions of the treasury officials in these cases are more than ministerial. Corning & Co. v. U. S. (1899) 34 Ct. Cl. 271.

Withdrawal in general.—Under this section whisky can be only withdrawn from a bonded warehouse on application to the proper collector, on making a withdrawal entry in duplicate in a prescribed form, specifying the whole number of casks or packages, with the marks and serial numbers thereon, etc., which particulars must be verified on oath, and the withdrawal can only be made upon the order of the collector, on payment of the proper tax, and on branding the casks, etc. McCullough v. Large (Pa. 1884) 1 Lanc. Law Rev. 205.

Seizure of whisky on execution by sheriff offering to pay tax.—Whisky deposited in a bonded warehouse of the United States, and held therein for internal revenue tax due the government, is virtually in the possession of the United States, and a sheriff has no right to enter such warehouse and seize, in execution, such whisky as the property of the defendant in a writ of fieri facias in his hands, even though he may offer to pay the tax. This section and section 6037, post, preclude the exercise by the sheriff of the authority claimed by him in such case. McCullough v. Large (1884) 20 Fed. 309.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 290, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Pattison v. Dale (1912) 196 Fed. 5, 115 C. C. A. 639; Miles v. Johnson (C. C. 1893) 59 Fed. 38, 40; U. S. v. Three Packages of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 52, reversed (1904) 129 Fed. 329, 63 C. C. A. 263.

§ 6037. (R. S. § 3295, as amended, Act July 16, 1892, c. 196, § 1.) Gauging, stamping, and branding spirits removed from warehouse.

Whenever an order is received from the collector for the removal from any distillery warehouse of any cask of distilled spirits on which tax has been paid, the gauger by whom the same is gauged and inspected shall, in presence of the store-keeper and before such cask has left the warehouse, place upon the head thereof, in such manner as to cover no portion of any brand or mark prescribed by law already placed thereon, a stamp, on which shall be engraved the number of proof-gallons contained in said cask on which the tax has been paid, and which shall state the serial number of the cask, the name of the person by whom the tax was paid, and the person to whom and the place where it is to be delivered. Said stamp shall be signed by the collector of the district, the store-keeper, and gauger, and shall be as follows:

Tax-Paid Stamp, No. —.

Received ——— ———, 18—, from ——— ——— tax on ——— gallons proof-spirit, cask No. ——, ——— warehouse at ———, for delivery to ———, at ———.

——— ———,

Collector —— District, State of ———.

Attest:

——— ———,

United States Store-keeper.

——— ———,

United States Gauger.

And at the time of affixing the tax-paid stamp the gauger shall, in the presence of the store-keeper, cut or burn upon each cask the name of the distiller, the district, the date of the payment of the tax, the number of proof-gallons, and the number of the stamp, which cutting or burning shall be erased when such cask is emptied.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 25, 15 Stat. 136. Act July 16, 1892, c. 196, § 1, 27 Stat. 200.

This section, as enacted in the Revised Statutes, was amended by striking out, at the end of the section as originally enacted, the words "by cutting or burning a canceling line across such marks or brands," as set forth here, by Act July 16, 1892, c. 196, § 1, cited above. This amendment was a provision following an appropriation for salaries, expenses, and fees of internal revenue officers in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation act for the fiscal year 1893, cited above.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 6036, ante.

Casks to which statute refers.—This section evidently has reference to casks containing less than 20 gallons wine measure. Williams v. U. S. (1907) 158 Fed. 30, 88 C. C. A. 296.

Duty to cause casks to be gauged, inspected, or stamped.—Section 25, Act July 20, 1868, does not impose the duty upon the rectifier or wholesale dealer of causing the filled casks to be gauged, inspected, or stamped, but it is the duty of the gauger to cause this to be done. U. S. v. Two Hundred Barrels of Whisky (1877) 95 U. S. 571, 573, 24 L. Ed. 491.

Stamps as receipts.—The tax-paid stamps issued by collectors for the payment of taxes on distilled spirits are nothing more than receipts, and are worthless as receipts to other parties than those to whom they are issued. Woolner v. U. S. (1877) 13 Ct. Cl. 355.

Cited without definite application, Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Pattison v. Dale (1912) 196 Fed. 5, 115 C. C. A. 639; U. S. v. Bayaud (C. C. 1883) 16 Fed. 376, 377; Same v. One Package of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1898) 88 Fed. 856, 857; Same v. Three Packages of Distilled Spirits (D. C. 1903) 125 Fed. 52, reversed (1904) 129 Fed. 329, 63 C. C. A. 263.

§ 6038. (R. S. § 3296.) Removal, concealment, etc., of spirits contrary to law; penalty.

Whenever any person removes, or aids or abets in the removal of any distilled spirits on which the tax has not been paid, to a place other than the distillery warehouse provided by law, or conceals or aids in the concealment of any spirits so removed, or removes, or aids or abets in the removal of any distilled spirits from any distillery warehouse, or other warehouse for distilled spirits authorized by law, in any manner other than is provided by law, or conceals or aids in the concealment of any spirits so removed he shall be liable to a penalty of double the tax imposed on such distilled spirits so removed or concealed, and shall be fined not less than two hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and imprisoned not less than three months nor more than three years.

Act July 20, 1868, c. 186, § 36, 15 Stat. 140.

The establishment of special bonded warehouses for fruit brandy was authorized by Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, and Act Oct. 18, 1888, c. 1194, post, §§

6039–6050, and the establishment of general bonded warehouses was authorized by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, §§ 49–62, and Act March 3, 1899, c. 435, ante, § 6035, and post, §§ 6051–6053, 6056–6065.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 5993, ante.

Removal and concealment in general.—Under Act July 13, 1866, § 45, providing that all distilled spirits found elsewhere than in a bonded warehouse, not having been removed from such warehouse according to law, and the tax imposed by law not having been paid, shall be forfeited, a removal procured by a false and fraudulent bond, though accepted by the collector, is not a removal according to law, and spirits thus withdrawn are not exempted from the operation of the section. In re Distilled Spirits (1870) 78 U. S. (11 Wall.) 356, 20 L. Ed. 167, affirming U. S. v. Two Hundred and Seventy-Eight Barrels of Distilled Spirits (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 16,580.

In an action on a distiller's bond for breach of this section, a compromise of prosecutions under section 6021 ante, and section 10201, post, for removal of the same liquor is a complete defense. U. S. v. Chouteau (1880) 102 U. S. 603, 26 L. Ed. 246.

In an indictment under this section for the removal and concealment of spirits, where defendant pleaded that the spirits had been removed from the designated place of deposit to an adjoining smoke room, with purpose of preventing waste from leakage, and not with the intent of defrauding the government, the jury are justified in acquitting, if they find that the act of removal was not willful, in the sense not only of voluntary, but also with a bad purpose. U. S. v. Smith (D. C. 1886) 27 Fed. 854.

This section makes it unlawful to remove any spirits on which the tax has not been paid except from a registered distillery to the designated place of deposit, and applies as well to removals from an illicit, as from a registered, distillery. U. S. v. Thompson (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 838.

Larceny of spirits.—This section, which makes it indictable to remove distilled spirits from a government warehouse before the lien for taxes is satisfied, has no application to the larceny of such spirits, and the latter offense is triable in the state courts. State v. Harmon (1889) 104 N. C. 792, 10 S. E. 474.

Persons liable.—If an officer of the United States in violation of his duty permits removal of liquor from a distillery warehouse without payment of the tax, he subjects himself to punishment, but does not bind the government by his acts; as the government is not responsible for the laches or wrongful acts of its officers. Hart v. U. S. (1877) 95 U. S. 316, 318, 24 L. Ed. 479.

Under Act July 13, 1866, § 45, a person cannot be convicted as a principal in removing spirits, and also as an aider and abettor in the same offense. U. S. v. Blaisdell (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 14,608.

A person who, with unlawful intent, designs or directs the removal of spirits on which the tax has not been paid, is equally guilty with the one who actually carries out the unlawful object. U. S. v. Nunnemacher (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,902.

Conspiracy to remove spirits.—An indictment will lie, under R. S. § 5440, post, § 10201, for conspiracy to remove distilled spirits on which the tax had not been paid, in violation of this section, although it is charged that the purpose of the conspiracy was accomplished. Scott v. U. S. (1908) 165 Fed. 172, 91 C. C. A. 206, affirming judgment U. S. v. Scott (C. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 697.

Indictment.—An indictment under this section for aiding in the concealment of distilled spirits on which the tax had not been paid, and which had been removed to a place other than the distillery warehouse provided by law, is sufficiently certain where it charges the offense substantially in the language of the statute, and need not aver that there was a warehouse provided by law where such spirits should have been stored. Pounds v. U. S. (1898) 18 Sup. Ct. 729, 171 U. S. 35, 43 L. Ed. 62.

An indictment which charges a removal of a certain quantity of "distilled spirits" on which the tax has not been paid to a place other than the distillery warehouse, is good. U. S. v. Ulrici (C. C. 1875) Fed. Cas. No. 16,594; Same v. Anthony (C. C. 1877) Fed. Cas. No. 14,460.

An indictment under this section charging defendant with aiding in the concealment of spirits removed from a distillery, contrary to law, and on which the tax had not been paid, held sufficient. Rosenfeld v. U. S. (1912) 202 Fed. 469, 120 C. C. A. 599.

An allegation that the tax on certain spirits "had not been paid" is sufficient without an allegation that it "was still due and owing." U. S. v. Nunnemacher (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,903.

The words "in execution and pursuance of" are equivalent in meaning to the words "to effect the object of." Id.

An indictment averring the removal of spirits on which the tax had not been paid to a place other than the distillery warehouse, "and" the concealment thereof, is not bad for duplicity, under this section. Id.

On indictment for removing whisky from a distillery, and sending it to another state under a false inspector's brand, without paying the tax, the court of the latter state has jurisdiction, where the whisky was not taken from the possession of the railroad company by which it was shipped, before arrival at its destination. U. S. v. Sperry (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 16,369.

Under this section which makes it an offense to remove any distilled spirits on which the tax has not been paid "to a place other than the distillery warehouse provided by law," an indictment states an offense where it charges the removal by defendant of fruit brandy from the distillery to a place other than "the designated place of deposit provided by law," since under the regulations of the department, made by authority of law, such brandy is not required to be removed to a distillery warehouse, but to a designated place of deposit required to be provided by the distiller. U. S. v. Thompson (D. C. 1911) 189 Fed. 838.

Evidence.—On the trial of defendants, charged with a violation of the internal revenue laws, the instructions, rules, and regulations prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, as authorized by statute, are admissible in evidence where pertinent to the issues. Sprinkle v. U. S. (1905) 141 Fed. 811, 73 C. C. A. 285.

On a trial for the fraudulent removal of distilled spirits from the distiller's bonded warehouse (Act July 13, 1866, § 45), it need not be shown that the warehouse was duly designated or authorized. U. S. v. Harries (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 15,309.

A distiller's bonded warehouse which the law requires him to provide is a part of the distiller's premises, and proof of the unlawful removal of spirits therefrom sustains the averment that the removal was from the distillery. U. S. v. Smith (C. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 16,322.

On an indictment for removing distilled spirits on which the tax has not been paid, that the removal took place at the precise time stated need not be proved. U. S. v. Nunnemacher (C. C. 1876) Fed. Cas. No. 15,902.

Under a count for removal and concealment, conviction may be had if removal is proved, though concealment is not shown. Id.

See, also, U. S. v. Furlong (D. C. 1869) Fed. Cas. No. 15,178.

—— In prosecutions under other statutes.—On the trial of one indicted under this section for the removal and concealment of distilled spirits on which the tax had not been paid, testimony was offered that, on the night before the whisky was removed, accused broke the lock of the warehouse where it was stored. Defendant objected on the ground that he had been indicted under section 6006, ante, for breaking such lock, and at the last term of the court had been tried thereon and acquitted. Held that, though such acquittal could be considered by the jury in considering the credibility of the witnesses, it was not ground for excluding the testimony. Pilcher v. U. S. (1902) 113 Fed. 248, 51 C. C. A. 205.

Evidence that employés of the owner of a distillery joined and participated with him in removing from such distillery to a place other than a bonded warehouse spirits on which the internal revenue tax had not been paid, in violation of this section, under circumstances from which they must have known the illegal nature of the transactions, is sufficient to sustain an indictment, under section 10201, post, of both employer and employés, for conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States. U. S. v. Scott (C. C. 1905) 139 Fed. 697, judgment affirmed Scott v. U. S. (1908) 165 Fed. 172, 91 C. C. A. 206.

Conviction under statute as bar to prosecution under other statute.—A conviction, under this section for removing distilled spirits to a place other than a distillery warehouse, or concealing them there contrary to law, is not a bar to a conviction under section 6021, ante, for illicit distilling, because the same are different offenses, and the question of being twice in jeopardy, within Const. Amend. 5, does not arise. U. S. v. Three Copper Stills (D. C. 1890) 47 Fed. 495.

Recovery for spirits fraudulently removed and sold.—Where one permits distilled spirits to be removed from his distillery and sold in fraud of the revenue laws, he cannot recover for spirits thus sold. Curran v. Downs (1879) 7 Mo. App. 329.

Cited without definite application, Whisky Cases (1878) 99 U. S. 594, 25 L. Ed. 399; Coffey v. U. S. (1886) 6 Sup. Ct. 437–439, 116 U. S. 436, 29 L. Ed. 684; Sprinkle v. Same (1906) 150 Fed. 56, 82 C. C. A. 1 (certiorari denied Angle v. U. S. [1907] 27 Sup. Ct. 789, 205 U. S. 542, 51 L. Ed. 922); Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 290, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558; Tucker v. Grier (1908) 160 Fed. 611, 87 C. C. A. 513; Foster v. U. S. (1911) 188 Fed. 305, 110 C. C. A. 283 (denied [1911] 192 Fed. 1022, 112 C. C. A. 665); Pattison v. Dale (1912) 196 Fed. 5, 115 C. C. A. 639; Tucker v. U. S. (1912) 196 Fed. 260, 116 C. C. A. 62, 41 L. R. A. (N. S.) 70; Grier v. Tucker (C. C. 1907) 150 Fed. 658; U. S. v. Olsen (D. C. 1893) 57 Fed. 579, 583; Same v. Gallant (D. C. 1910) 177 Fed. 281.

§ 6039. (Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 1.) Special bonded warehouses for grape brandy.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall be, and hereby is, authorized in his discretion, and upon the execution of such bonds as he may prescribe, to establish warehouses, to be known as special bonded warehouses, not exceeding ten in numbers in any one collection-district, exclusively for the storage of brandy made from grapes, each of which warehouses shall be in the charge of a storekeeper, to be appointed, assigned, transferred, and paid in the same manner that storekeepers for distillery-warehouses are now appointed, assigned, transferred, and paid. Every such warehouse shall be under the control of the collector of internal revenue of the district in which such warehouse is located, and shall be in the joint custody of the storekeeper and the proprietor thereof and kept securely locked, and shall at no time be unlocked or opened or remain open except in the presence of such storekeeper or other person who may be designated to act for him, as provided in the case of distillery-warehouses. And such warehouses shall be under such further regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe. (19 Stat. 393.)

This section and the ten sections next following were an act entitled "An act relating to the production of fruit brandy, and to punish frauds connected with the same."

The provisions of this act were made applicable to brandy distilled from apples or peaches or other fruit, the brandy distilled from which was not required to be deposited in a distillery warehouse, by Act Oct. 18, 1888, c. 1194, post, § 6050.

Notes of Decisions

Effect as repealing other statute.—Section 5993, ante, punishing distillers who defraud or attempt to defraud the United States of the tax on spirits distilled by them is not repealed by this and following sections, providing for the establishment of a bonded warehouse exclusively for the storage of grape brandy, removal of such spirits thereto, their deposit and withdrawal, etc., and Act Oct. 18, 1888 (section 6050, post), extending the provisions of the act of March 3, 1877, to distillers of all fruit brandies. U. S. v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411, 412, 414, 415.

§ 6040. (Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 2.) Payment of tax on grape brandy; removal to special bonded warehouse.

Every distiller of brandy from grapes, upon rendering his monthly return of materials used and spirits produced by him, shall immediately pay the tax upon such spirits, or may, after they have been properly gauged, marked, and branded, under regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, and also stamped as hereinafter provided, cause them to be removed in bond from the place of manufacture to a special bonded warehouse, under such regulations, and after making such entries, and executing and filing with the collector of the district in which such spirits were manufactured such bonds and bills of lading, and giving such other additional security as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and approved by the Secretary of the Treasury. (19 Stat. 393.)

Assessments were not to be charged against a distiller of fruit brandy for failing to maintain the required capacity, in the absence of notification by the Commissioner to the distiller within six months of such failure, by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 6, as amended by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 8, post, § 6091.

The amount of the tax was fixed by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 48, ante, § 5986.

§ 6041. (Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 3.) Special stamp on removal to special bonded warehouse.

All brandy intended for deposit in a special bonded warehouse, before being removed from the distillery, shall have affixed to each package an engraved stamp indicative of such intention, to be provided and furnished to the several collectors as in the case of other stamps, and to be charged to them and accounted for in the same manner; and for the expense attending, providing, and affixing such stamps ten cents for each stamp shall be paid the collector on making the entry for such transportation. (19 Stat. 393.)

Provisions for the drawing off of spirits into packages, for the gauging, marking, and stamping the packages, and for the allowance of five cents for the expense of providing and affixing stamps to wooden packages containing two or more metallic cans, were made in R. S. § 3287, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 6, Act Feb. 21, 1899, c. 177, and by Act March 2, 1911, c. 119, incorporated into that section, ante, § 6028.

§ 6042. (Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 4.) Deposit in warehouse; bond.

Any brandy made from grapes removed in bond according to law may, upon its arrival at a special bonded warehouse, be deposited therein upon making such entries, filing such bonds and other securities, and under such regulations as shall be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury. It shall be one of the conditions of the warehousing-bond covering such spirits that the principal named in said bond shall pay the tax on the spirits as specified in the entry, or cause the same to be paid within three years from the date of the original gauging of the same, and before withdrawal, except as hereinafter provided. (19 Stat. 393.)

The provisions of the last sentence of this section were superseded by the provisions requiring that bonds for deposit of spirits in special bonded warehouses be conditioned for the payment of the tax before removal, and within eight years from the date of the original gauge, made by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 49, ante, § 6035.

Provisions for bonds on deposit of spirits in distillery warehouses were made by R. S. § 3293, as amended by Act March 1, 1879, c. 125, § 5, and by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 4, incorporated into that section, ante, § 6034.

§ 6043. (Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 5.) Withdrawal from warehouse for transfer or exportation; entry; bond.

Any brandy made from grapes may be withdrawn once and no more from one special bonded warehouse for transportation to another special bonded warehouse; and such brandy shall, on its arrival at the second special bonded warehouse, be immediately entered therein, from which warehouse it shall be withdrawn only on payment of the tax or for immediate exportation. In case the brandy withdrawn is intended for deposit in another special bonded warehouse, an additional stamp, indicative of such intention, shall be affixed to each package withdrawn, as in the case of brandy withdrawn from a distillery intended to be so deposited. And in case the brandy is intended for exportation, an engraved stamp indicative of such intention, shall be affixed to each package so removed, as in the case of spirits withdrawn from a distillery bonded warehouse for exportation, under the provisions of section thirty-three hundred and thirty, Revised Statutes: all the provisions of which section not inconsistent with this act are hereby made applicable to such withdrawals. And all withdrawals authorized by law of grape-brandy from any special bonded warehouse shall be upon making such withdrawal entries, and under such regulations, and unless the withdrawal is upon payment of tax, upon the execution of such bonds and bills of lading as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe. Export bonds given under the provisions of this act shall be canceled upon the production of such certificates of landing as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe, or upon proof of loss at sea satisfactory to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. And the provisions of existing law relative to an allowance of loss by casual[i]ty in a distillery bonded warehouse are hereby made applicable to brandy stored in special bonded warehouses, in accordance with the provisions of this act. (19 Stat. 394.)

Provisions authorizing an allowance for leakage upon the withdrawal of spirits from special bonded warehouses were made by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 17, 21 Stat. 149, which were superseded by provisions authorizing an allowance for loss upon a regauging of spirits in bond in special bonded warehouses, made by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 50, Act March 3, 1899, c. 435, and Act Jan. 13, 1903, c. 134, post, §§ 6051–6053.

R. S. § 3330, mentioned in this section, is set forth post, § 6125.

Provision for withdrawal of wine spirits for fortification of wines is made by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, post, § 6114.

§ 6044. (Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 6.) Exportation of grape brandy.

The provisions of existing law in regard to the exportation of distilled spirits are hereby extended so as to permit the exportation from special bonded warehouses of grape brandy free of tax in any original cask containing not less than twenty gallons, and for the exportation of grape brandy upon which all taxes have been paid, with the privilege of drawback in quantities of not less than one hundred gallons, and in the distillers' original cask, containing not less than twenty nine gallons each. (19 Stat. 394.)

The provisions for the exportation of distilled spirits from bonded warehouses without payment of taxes were made by Rev. St. § 3330, post, § 6125.

See, also, § 6127a, post.

§ 6045. (Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 7.) Discontinuance of warehouse and transfer of merchandise.

Whenever, in the opinion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, any special bonded warehouse is unsafe or unfit for use, or the merchandize therein is liable to loss or great wastage, he may discontinue such warehouse, and require the merchandize therein to be transferred to such other warehouse as he may designate, and within such time as he may prescribe; and all the provisions of section thirty two hundred and seventy two of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relating to transfers of spirits from warehouses, including those imposing penalties, are hereby made applicable to transfers from special bonded warehouses. (19 Stat. 394.)

A similar provision authorizing the discontinuance of a distillery or other warehouse was made by R. S. § 3272, ante, § 6011, and a similar provision authorizing the discontinuance of a distillery warehouse or general bonded warehouse was made by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 57, ante, § 6012.

§ 6046. (Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 8.) Removal of grape brandy without compliance with act; assessment and collection of tax.

The tax upon any brandy distilled from grapes, removed from the place where it was distilled, and in respect of which any requirement of this act is not complied with, shall at any time when knowledge of such fact is obtained by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, be assessed by him upon the distiller of the same, and returned to the collector, who shall immediately demand payment of such tax, and, upon the neglect or refusal of payment by the distiller, shall proceed to collect the same by distraint. But this provision shall not exclude any other remedy or proceeding provided by law. (19 Stat. 394.)

§ 6047. (Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 9.) Time for payment of tax on grape brandy; forfeitures.

Nothing in this act shall be construed as extending the time in which the tax on brandy made from grapes shall be paid beyond three years from the day on which the taxable quantity is ascertained by the gauger; and all brandy made from grapes, found elsewhere than in a distillery or special bonded warehouse, not having been removed therefrom according to law, and all brandy on which the tax has not been paid within three years of the date of the original gauging shall be forfeited to the United States. (19 Stat. 394.)

The provision of this section limiting the time for the payment of the tax to three years superseded by provisions limiting the time to eight years, made by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 48, ante, § 5986.

§ 6048. (Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 10.) Rules and regulations.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may make all needful rules and regulations for carrying into effect the provisions of this act, and such regulations when made shall have all the force and effect of law. (19 Stat. 395.)

§ 6049. (Act March 3, 1877, c. 114, § 11.) Failure to comply with provisions for deposit in special warehouse, etc., punishable.

In case any grape brandy removed from the distillery for deposit in a special warehouse, shall fail to be deposited in such warehouse within ten days thereafter, or within the time specified in any bond given on such removal, or if any grape-brandy deposited in any special warehouse shall be taken therefrom for deposit in another warehouse, or for export, or otherwise, without full compliance with the provisions of this act, and with the requirements of any regulations made thereunder, and with the terms of any bond given on such removal, then any person who shall be guilty of such failure, and any person who shall in any manner violate any provisions of this act, or of the regulations made in pursuance thereof, shall be subject, on conviction to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars, and to imprisonment for not less than three months nor more than three years, for every such failure or violation; and the spirits as to which such failure or violation shall take place shall be forfeited to the United States. (19 Stat. 395.)

A similar provision applicable to deposits of spirits in general bonded warehouses and the removal of the same therefrom was made by Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 59, post, § 6065.

§ 6050. (Act Oct. 18, 1888, c. 1194.) Special bonded warehouse provisions extended to fruit brandy.

The provisions of an act entitled "An act relating to the production of fruit brandy, and to punish frauds connected with the same," approved March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-seven, be extended and made applicable to brandy distilled from apples or peaches, or from any other fruit the brandy distilled from which is not now required or hereafter shall not be required to be deposited in a distillery warehouse: Provided, That each of the warehouses established under said act, or which may hereafter be established, shall be in charge either of a storekeeper or of a storekeeper and gauger, at the discretion of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. (25 Stat. 560.)

This was an act entitled "An act to provide for warehousing fruit brandy." Act March 3, 1887, c. 114, mentioned in this section, is set forth ante, §§ 6039–6049.

Notes of Decisions

Effect as repealing other statute.—Section 5993, ante, punishing distillers who defraud or attempt to defraud the United States of the tax on spirits distilled by them is not repealed by this section and section 6039 et seq. ante, providing for the establishment of a bonded warehouse exclusively for the storage of grape brandy, removal of such spirits thereto, their deposit and withdrawal, etc. U. S. v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411.

Cited without definite application, U. S. v. Ridenour (D. C. 1902) 119 Fed. 411, 412, 414, 415.

§ 6051. (Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 50.) Regauging at warehouse; allowance for loss.

The distiller of any distilled spirits deposited in any distillery warehouse, or special-bonded warehouse, or in any general-bonded warehouse established under the provisions of this Act may, prior to the expiration of four years from the date of original gauge as to fruit brandy, or original entry as to all other spirits, file with the collector a notice giving a description of the packages containing the spirits, and request a regauge of the same, and thereupon the collector shall direct a gauger to regauge the spirits, and to mark upon each such package the number of gauge or wine gallons and proof gallons therein contained. If upon such regauging it shall appear that there has been a loss of distilled spirits from any cask or package, without the fault or negligence of the distiller thereof, taxes shall be collected only on the quantity of distilled spirits contained in such cask or package at the time of the withdrawal thereof from the distillery warehouse or other bonded warehouse: Provided, however, That the allowance which shall be made for such loss of spirits as aforesaid shall not exceed one proof gallon for two months or part thereof; one and one-half gallons for three and four months; two gallons for five and six months; two and one-half gallons for seven and eight months; three gallons for nine and ten months; three and one-half gallons for eleven and twelve months; four gallons for thirteen, fourteen, and fifteen months; four and one-half gallons for sixteen, seventeen, and eighteen months; five gallons for nineteen, twenty, and twenty-one months; five and one-half gallons for twenty-two, twenty-three, and twenty-four months; six gallons for twenty-five, twenty-six, and twenty-seven months; six and one-half gallons for twenty-eight, twenty-nine, and thirty months; seven gallons for thirty-one, thirty-two, and thirty-three months; seven and one-half gallons for thirty-four, thirty-five, and thirty-six months; eight gallons for thirty-seven, thirty-eight, thirty-nine, and forty months; eight and one-half gallons for forty-one, forty-two, forty-three, and forty-four months; nine gallons for forty-five, forty-six, forty-seven, and forty-eight months; and no further allowance shall be made: And provided further, That in case such spirits shall remain in warehouse after the same have been regauged, the packages containing the spirits shall, at the time of withdrawal from warehouse and at such other times as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue may direct, be again regauged or inspected; and if found to contain a larger quantity than shown by the first regauge, the tax shall be collected and paid on the quantity contained in each such package as shown by the original gauge: And provided further, That taxes shall be collected on the quantity contained in each cask or package as shown by the original gauge, where the distiller does not request a regauge before the expiration of four years from the date of original entry or gauge: Provided also, That the foregoing allowance of loss shall apply only to casks or packages of a capacity of forty or more wine gallons, and that the allowance for loss on casks or packages of less capacity than forty gallons shall not exceed one-half the amount allowed on said forty-gallon cask or package; but no allowance shall be made on casks or packages of less capacity than twenty gallons: And provided further, That the proof of such distilled spirits shall not in any case be computed at the time of withdrawal at less than one hundred per centum. (28 Stat. 564.)

This section was part of the Wilson Tariff Act, cited above.

A further maximum allowance for loss was authorized, and the time of the allowance was extended to seven years, by Act March 3, 1899, c. 435, post, §§ 6052, 6053.

This section and Act March 3, 1899, c. 435, superseded the provisions requiring a regauge of spirits withdrawn from a distillery warehouse or special bonded warehouse, and authorizing an allowance for loss, made by Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 17, 21 Stat. 149.

The allowance for loss as to distilled spirits deposited in warehouse prior to Jan. 1, 1899, by Act March 3, 1899, c. 435, under the conditions and limitations of this section, was extended to all distilled spirits in internal revenue bonded warehouses, or afterwards produced and deposited therein, by Act Jan. 13, 1903, c. 134 post, § 6054.

Notes of Decisions

Functions of commissioner and collectors and finality of decision.—When the commissioner of internal revenue regards a loss from warping of barrels as excessive, he has authority, under Act May 28, 1880, § 4, to order the withdrawal of the spirits from the warehouse before the three years of the bond have expired, and to require payment of the tax on the quantity originally entered, without making any allowance under section 17 of said act for the loss, even though it occurred without the fraud or negligence of the owner. Crystal Spring Distillery Co. v. Cox (1892) 49 Fed. 555, 1 C. C. A. 365, affirming (C. C. 1891) 47 Fed. 693.

The functions of the commissioner and the collectors of internal revenue are judicial, and his decision final, under Act May 28, 1880 (21 Stat. 145) § 17, providing for the payment of taxes on spirits in bonded warehouses, and for regauging the same, and for refunding of taxes erroneously or unlawfully assessed or collected. Corning & Co. v. U. S. (1899) 34 Ct. Cl. 271.

Regauging as prerequisite to claim.—Under Act May 28, 1880 (21 Stat. 145), providing for the payment of taxes on spirits in bonded warehouses, regauging, as required by section 17, is an important step in determining how much loss by leakage or evaporation there has been, and what the tax shall be; and is the prerequisite to any claim. Corning & Co. v. U. S. (1899) 34 Ct. Cl. 271.

Allowance for leakage.—No allowance is made by Act June 30, 1864 (13 Stat. 223), for leakage of spirituous liquors while stored in bonded warehouses. (1883) 17 Op. Atty. Gen. 500.

Cited without definite application. Taney v. Penn Nat. Bank of Reading (1914) 34 Sup. Ct. 288, 289, 232 U. S. 174, 58 L. Ed. 558.

§ 6052. (Act March 3, 1899, c. 435, § 1.) Allowance for loss of spirits in warehouse.

Under the conditions and limitations imposed by section fifty of the Act of August twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four, entitled "An act to reduce taxation, to provide revenue for the support of the Government, and for other purposes," allowance for loss shall be made as to all distilled spirits produced and originally gauged for deposit prior to January first, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine, and which lawfully remain in any internal-revenue bonded warehouse, after the expiration of the period of forty-eight months from the date of original gauge: Provided, however, That the allowance for loss herein authorized shall not exceed nine and one-half gallons for forty-nine, fifty, fifty-one, and fifty-two months; ten gallons for fifty-three, fifty-four, fifty-five, and fifty-six months; ten and one-half gallons for fifty-seven, fifty-eight, fifty-nine, and sixty months; eleven gallons for sixty-one, sixty-two, sixty-three, and sixty-four months; eleven and one-half gallons for sixty-five, sixty-six, sixty-seven, and sixty-eight months; twelve gallons for sixty-nine, seventy, seventy-one, and seventy-two months; twelve and one-half gallons for seventy-three, seventy-four, seventy-five, and seventy-six months; thirteen gallons for seventy-seven, seventy-eight, seventy-nine, and eighty months; and thirteen and one-half gallons for eighty-one, eighty-two, eighty-three, and eighty-four months, and no further allowance shall be made. (30 Stat. 1349.)

This section and the section next following were an act entitled "An act to amend the internal revenue laws relating to distilled spirits, and for other purposes."

Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 50, mentioned in this section, is set forth ante, § 6051.

This act and Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 50, superseded Act May 28, 1880, c. 108, § 17, 21 Stat. 149. See note to said section 50, ante, § 6051.

The allowance for loss authorized by this section was extended to all distilled spirits in internal revenue bonded warehouses, or afterwards produced and deposited therein, by Act Jan. 13, 1903, c. 134, post, § 6054.

Allowance for loss of wine while on storage is provided for by Act Sept. 8, 1916, c. 463, § 402(h), post, § 6114e.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under the preceding section.

§ 6053. (Act March 3, 1899, c. 435, § 2.) Regauging.

The allowance for loss herein provided shall be ascertained by regauge on request of distiller before the expiration of eighty-four months from date of original gauge, and shall apply to spirits remaining in any internal-revenue bonded warehouse which shall have been regauged heretofore under the provisions of section fifty of the said Act of August twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and ninety-four: Provided, That for the regauge of spirits originally gauged for deposit on or before the first day of March, eighteen hundred and ninety-two, the request of the distiller for a regauge under the provisions of this Act may be made at any time before the first day of May, eighteen hundred and ninety-nine. (30 Stat. 1350.)

Act Aug. 27, 1894, c. 349, § 50, mentioned in this section, limiting the time for regauging to four years from the date of original gauge as to fruit brandy in special bonded warehouses, and to four years from the date of the original entry as to all other spirits in distillery warehouses or general bonded warehouses, is set forth ante, § 6051.

Notes of Decisions

See notes under § 6051, ante.

§ 6054. (Act Jan. 13, 1903, c. 134.) Allowance for loss of spirits deposited in warehouse extended.

